THEY afterwards applied themselves to the Archbishop; and he moved King James I, in their Behalf, who was ready to forward so religious a Design: But the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, perceiving the Encouragement given, were resolved to have the Honour of so pious a Work, by whose Means a new Parish-Church was built; and, in the Time it was erecting, was called Trinity Christ-church, being raised out of the Ruins of Trinity Priory in Duke's-place: And to this Purpose is an Inscription, over the Door, on the North Side of the Chancel.

V E R S E S

Consecrated to the Eternizing the Memory of the Right Honourable Sir Edward Barkham, Lord Mayor of LONDON, the religious Mr. George Whitmore, and Mr. Nicholas Raynton, Sheriffs and Aldermen of the Honourable Senate and City, for their pious re-edifying of the long decayed Ruins of Trinity Christ-church in Duke's-place.

As David would his Eyes no Rest afford
Till he had found a Place out to the Lord
To build a Temple, so this Man of Worth,
The Mirrour which these latter Days bring forth:
Barkham, the worthy, whose immortal Name,
Marble's too weak to hold, for his Work's Fame;
He never ceased in Industry and Care,
From Ruin to redeem this House of Prayer.
Following in this the Holy Patriarchs Ways,
That ready were an Altar still to raise,
When they received a Blessing; so this Lord,
Scarce warm in Honour's Seat, did first accord,
To this most pious Work, by which is shewn
God's Blessings and his Thanks met both in one.
The Charge the Honourable City bears,
Whose Bounty in full Nobleness appears;
To Acts of blest'd Condition, in such wise,
That all Things better'd by their Ruins rise,
Two noble faithful Supervisors then,
Among a Senate of Religious Men,

Selected were, to whom the Care they gave,
The Generous Hamerly, Cambel the Grave;
Each being a Master-piece of Zeal and Care,
Tow'rd God's own Temple, fit for Truths Affair.
Now at the blessed Foundress I arrive,
Matilda, whom Henry the first did wive,
The Christ'ndom she gave, held the same,
Till James, our Sovereign, gave it his own Name:
And since, I touch Antiquity so near,
Observe what Notes remarkable appear:
An Alderman of LONDON was at first,
The Prior of this Church, falling to th' worst;
'Tis now raised by th' Encouragement and Care,
Of a Lord Mayor of LONDON, which is rare:
And worth observing, then as I began,
I end best with the Honour of that Man.

This City's first Lord Mayor, lies buried here,

Fitz Abwin, of the Drapers Company;

And the Lord Mayor, whose Fame now shines so clear,
Barkham, is of the same Fraternity.

WHEN the Work was brought to such Perfection, that nothing was wanting but Glazing the Windows; that was performed in this Man-

THE main and great East Light in the Chancel, Sir Edward Barkham himself undertook, and effected it at his own Charge, as was expressed in the same Window: The other, more Southerly, the two worshipful Gentlemen, Mr. George Whitmore, and Mr. Nicholas Ranton, worthily performed; and the third, standing Northerly in the same Chancel, Mr. Walter Leigh, who had been a Serjeant at Arms to the King's Majesty, and Sword-bearer of LONDON, did likewise, at his own Charge, perform. The two Western Lights, in the Bottom of the Church, the Honourable Company of Drapers effected the one, and the Woodmongers Worshipful Society finished the other. Besides, the two Southerly Windows, the one done at the Charge of Mr. Cornelius Fish, Chamberlain of LONDON, and the other by Mr. Waldron, then Marshal. So now you have the Church of St. James's compleat.

ONLY there is a fair Monument in the East End of the Chancel, made in Resemblance of a Golden Sun, with Beams and Rays, very ingeniously formed, charactering these Verses in and among them.

*The rising here of the clear Gospel's Sun,
Is through the Senate's free Donation,
The Globe of that bright Sun,
the God of Might,
Christ Jesus is the Rising,
and the Light,
The Heat the blessed Spirit
Of Truth and Right:
And as these three,
the Globe, the Light, the Heat,
Are all one Sun,
so Three one God compleat:
Thrice Allelujah,
speaks about the Rays,
That Three in one may only have the Praise.*

THIS Church was consecrated January 2, 1622, the Right Honourable Sir Peter Proby being then Lord Mayor, and the Right Worshipful Mr. John Hodges, and Sir Humphrey Handford, Knt. Sheriffs and Aldermen.

AN authentick Copy of the abovesaid Consecration of St. James Duke's-place Church, is preserved preserved in a Register-Book of the Parish, beginning, Universis & singulis, &c. Georgius, Permissione Divina London. Epif. Salutem in Domino sempiternam, &c. i. e. To all and every one, &c. George, by Divine Permission, Bishop of LONDON, Health in the Lord everlasting, &c. Then it set forth, How the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City, had prayed him, that he would vouchsafe to separate from all human or common and profane Uses, and convert to sacred and divine, the Chapel or Church, with the Steeple united to it, to the Honour of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, and for the Propagation of the Gospel, being situate within a certain Precinct commonly called The Duke's-place, within the Gate of the aforesaid City, called Aldgate, of the Diocese and Jurisdiction of LONDON, heretofore built; but afterwards, by the Authority of Parliament, dissolved and turned to common Uses: But that they had founded and built it again at their great Costs; and had also assigned certain Plats of Ground joyning and contiguous to the said Chapel, or Church, for burying the faithful Dead therein. Therefore he, the said George, Bishop of LONDON, desirous to satisfy the laudable and pious Desires of the said Mayor, Aldermen, &c. in that Behalf, did, on Thursday the 2d Day of January, 1622, between the Hours of eight and eleven the same Day, come to the Church or Chapel aforesaid. At which Time and Place, he, with the most Reverend Father in Christ, George, by the Divine Providence, Archbishop of Canterbury, and Sir Henry Marten, Doctor of Law, and Knight, the Bishop's Vicar General in Spirituals, standing before the West Folding-Doors of the Chapel or Church aforesaid; the Honourable Peter Proby Lord Mayor of the City, together with some of his Worshipful Brethren, viz. Sir John Leman, Sir William Cockin, Sir Edward Barkham, Knts. Martin Lumley, John Gore, William Gore, Cuthbert Hacket, James Campbell, Richard Herne, Hugh Hammersty, Edward Allen, Robert Ducey, George Whitmore, and Nicholas Reynton, Esqrs; Aldermen of the same City; John Hodges, Esq; and Sir Humphrey Hanford, Knt. also Aldermen and Sheriffs, and others of the Commonalty accompanying them, came to them; and the said Mayor, for himself and the Aldermen and Commonalty, publicly offered, gave, delivered, and granted to the said Bishop, the Chapel or Church, the Steeple and the Plats of Ground united to them, for the aforesaid Uses; beseeching him to separate the same from all profane Uses by Virtue of his Pastoral Office, and to convert them to such as were sacred and divine; and solemnly to dedicate the same to GOD: And then delivered to him the Keys of the Chapel or Church, and of the Steeple: Which the Bishop receiving, he unlocked, and opened the Doors, and entered with the Archbishop, &c. and took Possession. And in the very Threshold, at his Entrance, blessed the Place after this Manner:

I was glad when they said unto me, We will go into the House of the Lord.

Peace be within these Walls, and Prosperity within these Doors.

Because thou art a House for the Lord our God, we will seek to do thee good.

I have chosen and sanctified this Place, that my Name may be there for ever.

And mine Eyes and mine Heart shall be there perpetually.

THEN going a little forward, with bended Knees, and Hands towards the East, lifted up to Heaven, he made a devout Prayer, thereby Devoting and Dedicating the Place, from that Day, for ever, unto God, and Consecrating it to his Service only, for Hearing his Word, Celebrating his Sacraments, and Offering up the Sacrifice of Prayer and Thanksgiving.

THEN, turning to the Congregation, standing at the Doors of the Chapel, or Church, in the Sight of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and a Multitude of the Faithful there present, by a formal Instrument in that Behalf conceived in Writing, and by the Vicar General offered and delivered to the Bishop, he separated the said Chapel, or Church, with the Steeple, from human and profane Uses, and dedicated it to GOD; and so declared it to be Dedicated and Consecrated openly and publickly in these Words, In Nomine Dei, &c. i. e. In the Name of God, Amen. We GEORGE, by the Divine Permission, Bishop of LONDON, &c. Therein he mentioned the said Church to be notoriously situated within his Diocese and Jurisdiction; and that he had dedicated the same to the Worship of the Holy and Undivided Trinity; and named it, The Church, or Chapel, of St. James within Aldgate.

THEN the ordinary Prayers were said, with three Select Psalms, by Thomas Langley, and other Petty Canons of St. Paul's. Then the 23d Psalm was sung with Musical Instruments: And a Sermon was preached by John Whiting, D. D. out of 2 Samuel vii. He shall build a House for my Name, &c.

THEN a Child was baptized; Sir Henry Marten, the Bishop's Vicar-General, Sir William Cockain, Alderman, and the Lady Mayors, being Sureties; baptized by the Bishop, and named James.

THEN the Bishop made another Prayer, praying GOD to accept that Day's Duty and Service of Dedicating that Church to his Great and Dreadful Name.

THEN the Bishop went to the Chancel, and called the Mayor and Aldermen; to whom, being placed before the Lord's Table, he spake in these, or the like Words:

MY Lord Mayor, and you the Aldermen and Commonalty of this CITY; "You have done
"a worthy Work in Building this House for "GOD. It is your most earnest Desire to have
"it Consecrated; which Request you have obtained, and therein a double Favour both
"from GOD, that it hath pleased him to accept
"from simple Men, such mean Offers, and to tie
"his Pleasure by Promise to such Places as this,
"and also from the Church, which hath appointed the Means for performing thereof; and this "Request is by me already satisfied, and that Duty
"performed. Now then you must know, that this "Place is become an Anathema; and that in "every Anathema is both a Consecration
"and an Execration, a Blessing and a Curse.
"If you shall use it rightly, and to that Purpose only for which it is sanctified, it will be "an Anathema, a Blessing to you and your Families: If otherwise, and that you profane it,
"it will be an Anathema, a Curse to you and your Posterity.

"THEREFORE I do here charge you, in the "Name of Almighty GOD, in whose Presence
"you now appear, and to whose Great and Glorious Name this Place is now Dedicated; that "neither ye by yourselves, nor by any Permission
"of others, do suffer any Thing to be done contrary to what is now intended and performed:
"If ye shall, I do call the great GOD of Heaven, before whose Altar ye now stand; and
"this Congregation here, Witness against the "Souls of you and yours, at the dreadful Day
"of Judgment: But my Hope is, you will not.
"And yet, for more Assurance, I do require
"you to pass me your Promises before GOD and
"this

“ this Company, not to do or suffer it any way
“ to be profaned.

AND accordingly the Mayor and Aldermen gave their Words, and promised sufficient to endow the Church for a Priest to serve in it.

AND then the Bishop read a Prayer for a Collect.

THIS being done, they betook themselves to the Lord's Supper, and the Archbishop, the Mayor, Aldermen, and several others received : And then the Bishop pronounced another Prayer for a Conclusion.

THEN they all went to the Plats set out for the Church-yard, and one of the Bishop's Chaplains, viz. Thomas Worrall, B. D. read the 23d Chapter of Genesis. Then the Vicar General gave the Bishop an Instrument, setting forth the Places, with their Dimensions, allotted for the Church-yard : And then the Bishop read, In Nomine Domini, &c. Cum Honorandus Vir Dominus Mayor, &c. Then he added a Prayer, That those that should hereafter be committed to that Earth; might be so guided by GOD's Grace, while they are here in this World, that setting GOD evermore before their Eyes, and accounting all Things vain in Comparison of their enjoying their only GOD and SAVIOUR, might live in his Fear, and die in his Faith, and so be made Heirs of his everlasting Kingdom.

AND so the Bishop dismissed the whole Congregation in Peace, with the Apostolical Benediction.

THIS Instrument was signed and dated the 10th Day of January, Anno Dom. 1622, and of the Bishop's Translation the Second.

IN the Beginning of the Reign of K. Charles I. the Parish of St. Catharine Creechurch contended with this new Parish of St. James's Duke's-Place, as though all that Place was but a Precinct of the Parish of St. Catharine. In this Suit, Dr. Barnaby Gooch, Master of Magdalen College in Cambridge, with the Fellows of the same House, Patrons of Creechurch, joined with Stephen Denison, Minister, or Curate, of the said Parish. This Matter obtained a final Decree by three Judges, Delegates, Thomas Talbot, Hugh Barker, and Edmund Pope, Doctors of Law, viz. That within the Duke's-Place there formerly stood a certain Parish Church of the Holy Trinity, and that the Inhabitants within the said Place frequented it, for the celebrating Divine Things. And this Church of St. James's, newly built and re-edified within the Place called Duke's-Place, was, and is, rightfully and lawfully, together with the Church-yard adjoining to it, consecrated by GEORGE, by Divine Providence, Bishop of LONDON, and named the Church of St. James's within Aldgate, and ought so to be had and esteemed, and to be a Parish Church.

Sir Edward Barkham, Alderman of LONDON, by his Will, dated January 15, 1632, gave unto the Parson of the new Church in Duke's-Place, the yearly Sum of 40 s. to be paid to the said Parson yearly, for the Time being, upon Good-Friday, upon Condition the said Parson preach a Sermon in the aforesaid Church upon the Maunday-Thursdays; and to ten of the poorest People of the Parish, that have been at the Sermon that Day, 2 s. a-piece, to be distributed at the Discretion of the Church-wardens; that is, 20 s. to the Poor; which 3 l. to be yearly issuing out of a Messuage, or Tenement, called The Flower-de-Lis.

THIS Tenement being burnt down in the great Fire, the Heir of the said Sir Edmund Barkham did, Anno 1668, pray the Judges, sitting in the Hall of Clifford's-Inn, That the said Legacy might therefore be abated; and the Judges ordered, that the third Part should be abated for 40 Years next to come; to begin at Christmas 1668; and when the 40 Years were expired, to be 3 l. as formerly.

The MONUMENTS here are few.

A Child without Name, buried in the Chancel as soon as Born, with Latin and English Verses, on a Brass Plate.

Qui mihi prima fuit, fuit hora novissima vitæ;

Cæperat, incepto, desit esse Dies.

Consecrare pater voluit primordia Christo;

Præveni patrem, Christum adeundo patrem.

My Life's first Hour proved the Last to me;

My Day began, began strait ceas'd to be.

My Father unto CHRIST my first Prime meant;

Father, no need; to our Father CHRIST I went.

IN the Body of the Church, a flat Stone, thus inscribed, for Booker, the famous Astrologer:

In oblivione conteretur urna Johannis Bookeri, Astrologi. Qui Fatis cessit VI<sup>to</sup> Idus April. Ann. Dom. MDCLXVII. Hoc illi posuit Amoris Monumentum Elias Asmole, Armiger.

THIS Church escaped the Conflagration in the Year 1666, but the Body of it was taken down, and new built, in a very plain Manner, in the Year 1727. There are but two Isles, and very few Ornaments of any Kind.

It is an Impropriation, in the Gift of the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen; the Value 13 l. per Ann. paid out of the Chamber of LONDON, besides Perquisites. It is not rated in the King's Books.

THE Minister is the Reverend Mr. Beecher; and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Hutchinson.

PRAYERS are every Wednesday, Friday, and Holiday, at 11 o'Clock; here is no Organ, and but one Bell.

THE Vestry is general.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are:

2 Church-wardens.	2 Headboroughs.
1 Overseer.	1 Scavenger, and
1 Constable.	15 Jurymen.

THIS Parish begins Southward at Aldgate, and extends Northward to Bury's, or Bevis's-Marks, taking in all the Streets, Courts, &c. in that Compass. Number of Houses 150.

The PARISH-CHURCH of St. CATHARINE CREECHURCH.

THE Parish-Church of St. Catharine standeth in the Cœmity of the same dissolved Priory of the Holy Trinity, and is therefore called St. Catharine Christ's-Church.

THE Parishioners, as it appeareth by a Leiger-Book of Christ's Church Priory, did at first meet together for Divine Service, at the Altar of St. Mary Magdalen, in the South Part of this Conventual Church: But afterwards, an Inconvenience being found therein, per Dissonantiam vocum, when Service was saying to the Canons in another Part of the Church, and at the same Time to the said Parishioners here in this Part of it: Therefore, by the Consent and Agreement, as well of the Prior and Convent, as of the Parishioners aforesaid, the Chapel of St. Catharine was built in the Church-yard of the said Church, at the Motion of the Lord Richard de Gravesbende, Bishop of LONDON [who was Bishop from the Year 1280 to 1303] In which Chapel Service might be more quietly performed: But there happened upon this much Contention and Discord between Robert Exeter the Prior, and the Parishioners; which continued to the Time of William Haradon, Prior, and Lord Richard Clifford, Bishop of LONDON, who in the Time of his ordinary Visitation, (which happend Anno 1414) made an Agreement between them by mutual Consent, in the Composition following:

THAT a Baptismal Font in the Church or Chapel should be erected a-new, for Baptizing of Children, and other Things there necessary or seasonable to be done. And that other Solemnities and Services should be performed, for perpetual future Times in their said Church or Chapel.

ALSO, that the Parishioners repair yearly to the Conventual Church in the Festival of the Holy Trinity, and also in the Festival of the Dedication of the said Conventual Church, falling out on the Morrow of St. Bartholomew the Apostle, every Year; and giving due Reverence to the said Church, in Token of Subjection and Acknowledgment, each at least in the same Festivals, should offer humbly and devoutly single Pence, Halfpence, or Farthings.

BUT in case the same Parishioners were minded to celebrate the Solemnity of the Dedication of the said Church or Chapel of St. Catharine, in the same Church or Chapel, we do not hinder the Devotion and Will of the said Parishioners; yea, rather with a Paternal Affection yield to it.

THAT there be no Ringing to the Office of the Resurrection in the Church or Chapel, till such Office in the Conventual Church, on the usual Time, be done.

THAT Service be said to the Parishioners by one of the said Canons in their said Church or Chapel, according to the Will of the Prior and Convent, as was accustomed antiently before this Ordinance.

To have to the said Parishioners all the Sacraments and Sacramentals to be performed by him, or by some Canon, or Secular Priest to be deputed in his Absence.

THE Prior and Convent not bound to find a-new, or support any Ornaments or Burthens to the same Church, on Account of this Ordinance, or having been enjoined by any, may they be forced to it. Given and acted in the Chapter-House of the Priory, in the Year of the Incarnation of our Lord 1414. Witnesses John Swayn, Doctor of both Laws, our Chancellor, Peter Hynewick, &c.

THIS Composition was confirmed by the Pope.

WHEN Monday published his Edition of Stow, he saith this Church seemed to be very old, and that the high Street having been often raised by new Pavements, Men were fain to descend into the said Church by divers Steps, seven in Number; the old Steeple, or Bell Tower was built about the Year 1504, long after the other Part, Sir John Percival, Merchant-Taylor, at his Death leaving Money for that Purpose.

THE present Structure was raised in the Year 1630, and the Dial-Post and Clock in 1662, the Entrance in Leadenhall-street is now up two or three Steps, by a handsome Door-case, adorned with two Pillars, and an open Pediment of the Ionick Order; it escaped the Fire in 1666, was repaired and beautified Anno 1686, at the Charge of the Parish, and again, in a very elegant Manner, the last Year, as appears by this Inscription under the Organ Gallery:

This Church was new pewed, paved and beautified at the Charge of the Parishioners: Ann. Dom. 1732.

Thomas Wagstaffe, } Church-wardens.
Thomas Ellston, }

THE Church is of Stone, strong and well built. The Roof is square, supported by Pilasters and large Pillars of the Composite Order, the last two near the Communion Table are painted blue and veined with Gold, in Imitation of Lapis Lazula. Over the said Communion-Table is a curious Window of painted Glasse; and at the West End a very handsome Organ.

THE Church is in Length about 90 Feet, Breadth 51, Altitude 37, that of the Steeple 75, wherein are five Bells to ring in Peal.

The MONUMENTS are;

Sir Thomas Fleming, Lord of Rowalls, alias Rowles in Essex, and Margaret his Wife, 1464.

William Creswick, Citizen, buried in St. Marries Chapel in Creechurh. By his Will, about 1405, he gave his Manor of Heston, and his Manor of Halls in the Town of Heston, &c. and to the Poor of the Church of St. Augustin Pappey, juxta Bewes Marks, LONDON, and to the Rector and Parishioners, of the same Church for the Time being, a Tenement, Garden, and Shops, with its Appurtenances, &c. in the same Parish to the said Rector and Parishioners and their Successors for ever, in augmentationem sustentationis Rectoris ejusd. Ecclesie; ad orand. pro anima sua: And also, to the Rector and Parishioners of the Church of St. Sepulchre, and their Successors, for ever, 13 s. 4 d. of yearly Rent, to be received out of his Lands and Tenement, which he hath, at a certain Inn, called the Castle, near Barram [the Barrs] of West Smithfield, within the Liberty, pro sustentatione Ornamentorum dictae Ecclesie.

Henry Elvedon of LONDON, Esq; buried in Christ's-Church within Aldgate, LONDON, by his Will dated Aug. 27, 1498, gave to Joyce his Wife, the third Part of his Lands and Tenements lying in Brakking, Mochel Hadham, Lytel Hadham, &c. and the Residue of his Goods and Chattels, after his Debts paid, requiring her to be a good Mother to Florence and James his Children.

THIS Elvedon was Esquire of the Body to King Henry VII.

Here lieth the Body of Sir Nicholas Throckmorton, Knt. the fourth Son of Sir George Throckmorton, Knt. The which Sir Nicholas was chief Butler of England, one of the Chamberlains of the Exchequer, and Ambassador Lieger to the Queen's Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, in France: And after his Return into England, he was sent Ambassador again into France, and twice into Scotland. He married Anne Carew, Daughter to Sir Nicholas Carew, Knt. and begat of her ten Sons and three Daughters. He died the 12th Day of February, Anno Dom. 1570, aged 57 Years.

Here lieth buried the Body of Frances Croke, the loving and beloved Wife of Haulus Ambrosius Croke of the Inner Temple, Esq; She was one of the Daughters and Heirs of Frances Wellesborne, Esq; of Hanny in the County of Berk, who deceased the 10th Day of July, Anno Dom. 1605, aged 22 Years.

Wellborne she was,
but better born again;
Her first Birth to the flesh did make her Debtor,
The latter in the Spirit,
by Christ hath set her.
Freed from Flesh's Debts,
Death's first and latter Gain:
Wives pay no Debts,
Whose Husbands live and reign.

Here lieth the Body of Master John Smith, Esq; Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, who had two Wives, the first named Anne, the Daughter of Fulke Mullart, in the County of Surrey, Esq; which brought him one Daughter, named Mary. His other Wife was Mary, Daughter to Sir James Hawes, Knt. and Lord Mayor of LONDON, by whom he had no Issue. He deceased the 24th Day of December, Anno Domini 1594, Ætatis sue 63.

James Wellington, Citizen and Draper, March 27, 1684; John Lambert 1686.

At the North West Angle of the Church, near the Organ is a neat Marble Monument, thus inscribed:

Sacred to the Memory of Mr. Samuel Marshal, who was a bright Scholar to the excellent Dr. Blow, an admired, useful and sedulous Ornament to the Choir of St. Paul, above 11 Years, the exquisite Organist of this Church, and Master to other good Organists.

His very artful, solemn, and moving Compositions and Performances, for, and in the Service of GOD, &c. tho' through his Humility disregarded by himself, have deservedly raised him a great Name and Esteem among the best and most impartial Judges of them.

He was very unaffectedly charitable, generous, faithful, sincere, neat and amiable, but suffered much by over Credulity, Excess of Modesty, and good Nature, and by false Reports.

Before his last languishing Illness, occasioned by Grief, he regained that Spirit of Piety, for which he had been early distinguished, and so ended his Life, as has caused Joy in Heaven.

As he was fervently praying for Blessings on us all, and just had said Amen, [the last Word he ever spoke] he sweetly and gladly died in the Lord, March 11, 1714, Æ. S. 27.

His Body lies interred under this Organ, facing the Middle Isle, expecting a glorious Resurrection to endless Blifs.

B. Prat. A.M. Amicus mærens. H.M. P.C.

In this Church likewise is interred Johanna Wife of John Sayer, Merchant.

Samuel Strype, Apprentice to James Stanier, Merchant.

Susanna, some Time Wife of James Crawforth of this Parish, and eldest Daughter of John Strype, Clerk.

It is said, that Hans Holben, the inimitable Painter in King Henry VIII's Time, was buried in this Church; and that the Earl of Arundel, that great Patron of Learning and Arts, would have set up a Monument to his Memory here, had he been certain where the Corpse lay.

Of the Foundation of this Church, Mr. Strype gives the following Account:

THE first Brick, as also the first Stone in this Foundation, was laid by Mr. Martin Bond of this Parish, Alderman's Deputy of the Ward, and one of our City Captains. The Brick was laid laid the 23d of June 1630, and the Stone (a principal Corner Stone) the 28th of July following.

MANY of the Parishioners (following this worthy Leader) laid every Man his Stone, with which they laid something else, which the Workmen took up very thankfully.

ON the Back-side of the North Wall of the old Church, was a Cloister, the Breadth of it seven Feet and above: Which Cloister, by the taking down of that Wall, being taken into the Church, gave it all its Breadth to enlarge it.

IN digging under this Wall, there was found the Figure of half the Face of a Man, cast in Lead; the Mould setting likewise upon it this Word, Comes.

DIGGING under the South Row of Pillars, they found the Skull of a Man, the Thickness of which was three Quarters of an Inch, and better; measured by many, and admired by all that have seen it.

AT the West End of this Church, adjoining to the Steeple, stands a Pillar of the old Church, as it stood, and was there erected. This Pillar (from the Basis, or Foot, to the Chapter, or Head, upon which the old Arch was raised) being 18 Feet high; and but three to be seen above Ground, shews the Measure, or Height, to which the Floor of this Church had been raised above that of the old, which is, the hidden Part of the Pillar, or the 15 Feet of it buried.

THIS Structure, not of Brick, but built from the Ground with the choicest Free-Stone, was supplied, furnished, and enriched with whatsoever might add to its greater Grace and Lustre; and finished in the Year aforesaid.

IN this Year (accounting from March to March) upon the 16th Day of January, it was Consecrated by the Right Reverend Father in God, William Lord Bishop of LONDON; and upon the same Day (as on such it is usual with us) were the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and the Sacrament of Baptism, administered.

IN this Church the Pulpit and Communion-Table are pure Cedar, and both the Gift of Mr. John Dyke, a Merchant, living in this Parish.

A very handsome Gate built at the East End of the South Wall, was the Gift of William Avenen, Citizen and Goldsmith of LONDON, who died in December 1631, as is expressed by an Inscription over it.

THERE is no Parsonage-House, or Glebe, belonging to this Parish, nor was before the great Fire.

IT is a Curacy, and the Impropriation was devised by the Lady Audley, Anno 1544, to the Masters and Fellows of Magdalen College in Cambridge, for ever, who have leased out the Impropriation to the Parishioners for 90 Years past; but some Disputes arising between the College and the Parish, at the Expiration of the last Lease in 1725, about a Renewal, a Lease was granted to Jerome Knapp, Haberdasher of LONDON, and in order to settle the Difference, it was agreed, that 150 l. per Ann. should be raised by the Parishioners, in Lieu of Tithe, &c. out of which the officiating Curate should be paid 50 l. per Ann. for the first ten Years, besides Surplice Fees, &c. and after the Expiration of that Term of Years, 70 l. per Ann. besides Surplice Fees, &c. And this Agreement was confirmed by Act of Parliament in May 1727.

THE present Curate is the Reverend Dr. Folkes, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Lucy.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays, at 11 o'Clock: Here is a Preparation-Sermon on the Saturday, before the Sacrament, which is administered on the first Sunday in every Month; endowed with 8 l. per Ann. paid by the Church-wardens, which is charged on some Houses in Petticoat-lane. A Sermon on Michaelmas-Day, pursuant to the Will of Mr. Lewis, who left 6 l. 10 s. for ever, to be distributed in the following Manner, viz. to the Preacher 20 s. to the Clerk 5 s. to the Sexton 5 s. and the Remainder to the poor Inhabitants. A Sermon on the 16th Day of November, the Gift of Sir John Gage, Lord Mayor of LONDON in the Year 1646, in Commemoration of his happy Deliverance from a Lion, which he met in a Desert, as he was travelling in the Turkish Dominions, which suffered him to pass unmolested. The Minister has 20 s. for preaching the Sermon, the Clerk 2 s. 6 d. and the Sexton 1 s. and the Sum of 8 l. 16 s. 6 d. is on that Day distributed among the necessitous Inhabitants, pursuant to the Will of Sir John. A Sermon the 5th of November founded by Mr. Dunn, the Minister is paid 10 s.

THE Vestry is Select, consisting of the Church-wardens, and those who have served that Office.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are:	WARD-OFFICERS are:
Auditors of Accompts are uncertain.	6 Common-Council- Men.
2 Church-wardens, the Under-one being Collector for the Poor.	6 Constables, and

T H E R E are also in this Parish two Meeting-Houses, one in Poor-jury-lane, and the other in Little Bury-street; in a Place called Bury's, or Bevis Marks, is the Jews Synagogue: And a little beyond Bury-street are the Jews Alms-Houses.

T H I S Parish begins at Aldgate, and takes in a Part of Poor-jury-lane, on each Side, and from Aldgate Westward, it extends on the Southerly Side to the George Alehouse in Fenchurch-street, and on the North Side of that Street nine Houses. On the South Side of Leadenhall-street, from the Pump, it extends Westward to the Cook's behind Billiter-lane; and on the North Side of the same Street, from right against Billiter-lane End to Aldgate. In Billiter-lane it takes in 22 Houses on the East Side, and on the West Side nine Houses, besides Warehouses; also Cree-lane, Bury-street, the Westerly Side of Heneage-lane; and all Courts, Alleys, &c. in this Compass.

N U M B E R of Dwelling-Houses are about 300, of which about 60 are inhabited by Jews.

The PARISH of St. ANDREW UNDERSHAFT

A T the North West Corner of this Ward, in the said high Street, stands the Parish Church of St. Andrew the Apostle, with an Addition, to be known from other Churches of that Name, of the Knape, or Undershaft, and so called St. Andrew Undershaft, because that of old Time, every Year (on May-day in the Morning) it was used, that an high or long Shaft, or Maypole, was set up there in the midst of the Street, before the South Door of the said Church; which Shaft when it was set on End, and fixed in the Ground, was higher than the Church Steeple. Geffrey Chaucer, writing of a vain Boaster, hath these Words, meaning of the Shaft.

Right well aloft
And high, ye bear your Head,
The Weather-Cock with flying,
As ye would kill
When he be stuffed
Bet of Wine than Bread,
Then look ye
When your Womb doth fill
As ye would bear
The great S H A F T of Cornhill.
Lord, so merrily
Crowdeth then your Croke,
That all the Street
May hear your Body Cloke.

T H I S Shaft was not raised at any Time since Evil May-day, (so called from an Insurrection made by Apprentices, and other young Persons, against Aliens, in the Year 1517) but the said Shaft was laid along over the Doors, and under the Pen-tises of one Row of Houses, and Alley-gate, called from the Shaft, Shaft-alley, (being of the Possessions of Rocheſter Bridge) in the Ward of Lime-street.
VOL. I.

I T was there hanged on Iron Hooks many Years, till the third of King Edward VI, that one Sir Stephen, Curate of St. Catharine Christ's Church, preaching at Paul's-Cross, said there, That this Shaft was made an Idol, by naming the Church of St. Andrew, with the Addition of Under that Shaft: He perswaded them therefore, that the Names of Churches might be altered: Also, that the Names of Days in the Week might be changed, the Fifth Days to be kept any Day, except Friday and Saturday, and the Lent any Time, save only betwixt Shrovetide and Easter.

Stow saith, That he oftentimes saw this Man forsake the Pulpit of his said Parish Church, and preach out of an high Elm Tree in the midst of the Church-yard, and then entering the Church, forsaking the Altar, he would sing high Mass in English, upon a Tomb of the Dead towards the North. He also heard his Sermon at Paul's-Cross, and saw the Effect that followed: For in the Afternoon of the said Sunday, the Neighbours, and Tenants to the said Bridge, over whose Doors the said Shaft had lain, after they had dined, to make themselves strong, gathered more Help, and with great Labour raising the Shaft from the Hooks, (whereon it had rested 32 Years) they sawed it in Pieces, every Man taking for his Share, so much as had lain over his Door or Stall, the Length of his House; and they of the Alley, divided amongst them so much as had lain over their Alley-Gate. Thus was this Idol as he, poor Man, termed it, mangled, and after burnt.

The Shaft, or Maypole, saw'd in Pieces and burnt.

S O O N after there was a Commotion among the common People of Norfolk, Suffolk, Essex, and other Shires: On which Account strict Orders were given to suppress all Rumours, divers Persons were apprehended and executed by Martial Law; amongst whom the Bailiff of Rumford in Essex was one, a Man very well beloved: He was early in the Morning of Mary Magdalen's Day, then kept Holiday, brought by the Sheriffs of LONDON, and the Knight Marshal, to the Well within Aldgate, there to be executed upon a Gibbet, set up that Morning, where being on the Ladder, he spoke to this Effect:

Good People,

" I am come hither to die, but know not for
" what Offence, except for Words by me spo" ken Yesternight to Sir Stephen, Curate and " Preacher of this Parish, which were these:
" He asked me, What News in the Country?
" I answered, Heavy News. Why, quoth he?
" It is said, quoth I, that many Men be up in " Essex, but Thanks be to God all is in good
" Quiet about us: And this was all, as God be
" my Judge, &c.

U P O N these Words of the Prisoner, Sir Stephen, to avoid the Reproach of the People, left the City, and never heard of among them afterwards. Stow heard these Words of the Prisoner, for he was executed on the Pavement before his Door.

T H U S much by way of Digression; now to return to the Parish-Church of St. Andrew Undershaft, for it still retaineth that Name.

T H I S Church was new built, and in the Year 1532 finished at the Charge, for the most Part, of William Fitz-Williams, Esq; (Sheriff of LONDON) in the Year 1506, and afterward of Council to King Henry VIII. It was also repaired and beautified in 1627, in Feb. 1704, and again again in the Year 1723. It was all new wainscotted, pewed, paved, and then finished at the Parish Charge: It had the good Fortune to escape the Flames in the Year 1666, as the rest of the Parish did, tho' the Fire came very near it.

THE Church is a Gothick Building, the Wainscot, Pews, and Pulpit are of Norway Oak.

THE Pulpit is finely finnier'd, and carved. In the Pannel thereof, which directly fronts the South, there is a Glory, the Rays whereof and

IHS, (or Iesus Holy Saviour) are particularly curious, and the whole adorned with Cherubims, Flowers, Fruit, Leaves, Books displayed, &c. in great Perfection.

THE Altar-piece is also new railed round, and paved with Marble, the Commandments done in Gold on Black, as the Creed and the Lord's Prayer are enrich'd with Cherubims; the Portraits of Moses and Aaron painted, and upon the Cornice over the Commandments is the King's Arms carved at large, over which are painted on Glass at full Length, the Effigies of these Royal Persons, Edward VI, Queen Elizabeth, King James I, King Charles I, and King Charles II, Promoters of the Reformation of the Church, and there are also several Coats of Arms painted in the Windows round the Church, and the Roof is on the Inside cieled, strengthen'd and adorned with Timber. The Organ Gallery is also new and handsome, elevated on Columns of the Corinthian Order.

THE Length of this beautiful Church is about 96 Feet, Breadth 54, and Height 42. The Altitude of the Square Tower is about 73 Foot and a half, wherein are six Bells, and to the Top of the Turret it is about 91 Feet.

The MONUMENTS of the Dead buried in this Church are as follow:

Philip Malpas, one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1539, buried in the old Church. This Man gave by his Testament to the poor Prisoners 125 l. to other Poor every Year, for five Years together, 400 Shirts and Smocks, 150 Gowns, and 40 pair of Sheets: To poor Maids Marriages 100 Marks: To Highways 100 Marks; and to 500 poor People in LONDON, every one 6 s. 8 d. besides 20 s. the Year for 20 Years to the Preachers of the Spital, the three Easter-Holidays. Besides 20 Marks the Year to a Graduate to preach abroad in the Countries.

Sir Robert Dennie, Knt. and after him Thomas Dennie, his Son, in the Year 1421.

Thomas Stokes, Gentleman, Grocer, 1496.

IN the new Church, John Michell, Merchant-Taylor, 1537.

William Draper, Esq; 1537. Isabel and Margaret his Wives.

Nickolas Levison, Mercer, one of the Sheriffs, 1534.

John Gerrard, Woolman, Merchant of the Staple, 1546.

Henry Man, D.D. Bishop of Man, 1550.

Stephen Kyrton, Merchant-Taylor, Alderman, 1553.

David Woodroffe, Haberdasher, one of the Sheriffs, 1554.

GIVEN by his Order at his Funeral, 60 Mantle Frize Gowns to Men and Women, and 150 Black Gowns and Coats, and Cassocks. The poor Men and Women walked before, after came 20 Clerks, bearing their Surplices upon their Arms, next four Aldermen in Black, Mourners, and the Curate; then a Mourner, bearing his Penon of Arms, next a Herald bearing his Coat Armour; next Mr. Clarencieux, in his best Coat Armour; next the Corpse covered with a Pall of Black Velvet, and with Arms hanging on it, six Mourners bearing the Corpse; next, two Penons borne, on each Side one. The chief Mourners, Mr. Woodroffe, his eldest Son; next Mr. Stonehouse, his Son-in-Law, and so another Son, and another Son-in-Law, and many other Mourners, and then many Women Mourners. The four Aldermen attending, were Sir William Garret, Sir Thomas Offley, Sir William Chester, and Mr. Christopher Draper, late Sheriff. The Church was hung; in the midst of the Church, Rails made, and hung with Black and Arms, and so was the Street and House, Mr. Gowth preached the Funeral Sermon. After this, they offered his Coat and Penon, and all the Mourners and Craft offered, and then all retired to his House to Dinner.

This Funeral was March 31, 1563.

Stephen Woodroffe, his Son, gave 100 l. in Money, for which, the Poor of that Parish receives 2 s. in Bread weekly for ever.

Sir Thomas Offley, Merchant-Taylor, Mayor, 1556, bequeathed the one half of his Goods, to charitable Actions, but the Parish received little Benefit thereby.

Hugh Offley, Leatherfeller, one of the Sheriffs, 1588.

William Hanbury, Baker.

These other MONUMENTS there are beside.

Nicholai de Nale, Ragusini Caro hoc in Tumulo repulverescit. Spiritus ad Cælum reversus reassumptionem carnis expectat. Obiit Die 1 Januarii. 1566. A nativitate vixit An. 50, Mens. 7, Dies 29. Augustinus amantissimo fratri mœrens ponere curavit.

Henry Man, Doctor of Divinity in the University of Oxford, and some Time Bishop of Man, which Henry departed this Life the 19th Day of October, An. Dom. 1556, and lieth buried under this Stone.

Memoriæ Sacrum.

Resurrectionem in Christo hic expectat Johannes Stow, Civis Londinensis, Qui in antiquis Monumentis eruendis accuratissima Diligentia usus, Angliæ Annales & Civitatis Londini Synopsim bene de sua, bene de postera Ætate meritis, luculenter scripsit, vitæq; stadio pie & probe decurso, obiit Ætatis Anno 80, die 5, Aprilis 1605.

Elizabeth, Conjux, ut perpetuum sui amoris testimonium dolens P.

THIS well deserving Citizen, and most elaborate Writer, is represented in this Monument by a good Figure, which seems to be of Stone; but Mr. Strype saith, He has been told by an ingenious Person in Antiquities, that it is only Clay burnt, and painted; a fine Art known in former Times. He is in this Monument sitting with a Table before him, on which lieth a Book open, and hath many Books about him, with a reverend Aspect, bald on his Head, a short white Beard, and short Hair above his Ears.

As we are greatly indebted to this worthy Author, for the most Part of what relates to the Antiquities of LONDON, in this Work, it may not be improper to give some Account of him in this Place.

John Stow, the Author of the Annals of England, and the Survey of LONDON, was Stow. born in that City, in the Parish of St. Michael Cornhill, Cornhill, about the Year 1525, in the 17th of Henry VIII. His Father, altho' he lived in Cornhill for the Sake of his Trade, yet was a Man of such Rank and Estate, that he had a Garden to retire to for his Pleasure and Diversion, situated on the Backside of Throgmorton-street, in Broad-street Ward, near the Place where now the Drapers Hall standeth, which then was the House of Sir Thomas Cromwell, King Henry VIII.'s great Minister, and Secretary of State.

Stow, a Taylor by Trade.

John Stow seemed to follow his Father's Trade, whatever it were. In a Letter of Grindal, Bishop of LONDON, to the Privy Council, concerning a Search that was made by his Chaplain in Stow's House, for Papistical Books, he called him Stow the Taylor, which perhaps might be more than barely relating to the Company of Merchant-Tailors, of which he was free; but might bespeak him a Taylor by Trade, since in former Times, Men of that Occupation lived, and had their Shops in Cornhill, and were then of more Reputation and Wealth than of later Times Men of the same Trade commonly are.

THESE Shopkeepers, as they sold Cloth out of the Piece, so they used to make and fit it for Wearing.

IN the Year 1544, Stow was in some great Danger, by Reason of a false Accusation, given in against him by a Priest. But the Priest's Perjury, was at length discovered, and met with a due Desert; for he was adjudged in the Star-chamber to stand upon the Pillory, and have his Cheek marked with F. A. for False Accusation.

How soon Stow removed from Cornhill, is uncertain, but in the third of Edward VI. he dwelled within Aldgate, where the Pump now stands, where a Man was hanged before his House, as is before related.

AFTERWARDS Stow removed his Dwelling to Lime-street Ward, but in this Parish of St. Andrew Undershaft, where he continued till his Death, following his beloved Study of the History and Antiquity of England more than his Trade, on which Account he reduced himself at last to some Straits.

IT was about the Year 1560, that he began his Searches for composing a Chronicle. The greatest Part of his Time from hence to his Death, he employed in collecting such Matters as he thought worthy to be recommended to Posterity, which was 40 Years and upwards.

INDEED, after some Time, he began to be discouraged, and to lay aside these Studies, and follow his Calling more diligently, because of the little Gain that came from his Studies, the great Charge of purchasing Manuscripts, and the Necessity of looking after a Subsistence and Provision for his Family: But Archbishop Parker (who as he was a great Friend to these Studies himself, so was he a Patron to others that addicted themselves to them) excited him to go on, and was a good Benefactor to him, as he gratefully upon Occasion acknowledged: And namely, in his Dedication of his Annals to Archbishop Whitgift, he saith, That he was hereunto induced, for that his worthy Predecessor, and his especial Benefactor, Archbishop Parker, animated him in the Course of those Studies; which otherwise he had long since discontinued: But that excellent Prelate died, and left him to struggle with his former Discouragements. He worsted indeed hereby his Paternal Estate, neglected his Business, and was exposed also to the Censures and Backbitings of Criticks, and other evil-disposed Men; which is suggested by Edmund Howes, that set out with Enlargements, Stow's Chronicle, after his Death; who in his Preface, mentioned some, that when he, the said Howes, had moved them to go on in a Continuation of Stow's Books, one cried he could not see, how in any civil Action, a Man should spend his Travel, Time, and Money worse than in that; acquiring no Regard nor Reward, except Backbiting and Detraction: Another swore an Oath, and said, "That he thanked God he was not yet Mad, to waste his Time; spend 200 l. a Year, trouble himself, and all his Friends, only to gain Assurance of endless Reproach, Loss of Liberty, &c." hinting perhaps hereby what poor Stow at last was reduced to.

BUT to proceed to further Accidents of this Man's Life. He was looked upon as no great Friend to the Reformation of Religion; but being an Admirer of Antiquity in Religion, as well as in History, he came into some Trouble in the Year 1568. Report was brought to the Queen's Council, as tho' he were a suspicious Person, and had a great many dangerous Books of Superstition in his Custody: And, therefore, they sent to Grindal, Bishop of LONDON, (of whose Diocese Stow was) to cause his Study to be searched. Watts, the said Bishop's Chaplain, and Bedel, Clerk to the Ecclesiastical Commission, and one Williams, another Divine, were accordingly dispatched to Stow's House, where all his Books and MSS they could find, were duly examined. The Report thereupon they made to the Bishop was, That he had great Collections of his own for the English Chronicles; wherein, as Watts signified to the Bishop, he seemed to have bestowed much Travel. They found also a great Sort of old Books Printed; some fabulous, as of Sir Degory Triamour, &c. and a great Parcel of old MSS Chronicles, both in Parchment and Paper. And that, besides, he had Miscellaneous Tracts, touching Physick, Surgery, and Herbs, and Medicinal Recipes; and also fantastical old Popish Books printed in old Time; also others written in old English in Parchment: But another Sort of Books he had more modern, of which the said Searchers thought fit to take an Inventory, as likely most to touch him; and they were Books lately set forth in the Realm, or beyond Sea, in Defence of Papistry. Which Books, as the Chaplain said, declared him a great Fautor of that Religion. Some of these Books, the List whereof so taken, and sent to the Bishop, were,

A Parliament of Christ; made by Thomas Heskyns.

The Hatchet of Heresy; set out by Shacklock. Exposition of the Creed, Ten Commandments, Pater Noster, Ave Maria. By Bishop Bonner.

Certain Sermons, set forth in Print by Edgeworth, D. D.

The Manner of the List of Saints: An old printed Book.

Five Homilies; made by Leonard Pollard, Prebendary of Worcester.

A Proof of certain Articles of Religion, denied by Mr. Juell.

A Book made by Dorman.

With a great many more of that Kind.

How he came off is uncertain; but being looked after with a watchful Eye, his Inclinations in Religion being known, he was not long after, about the Year 1570, dangerously accused before the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, by one who had been his Servant, and after he had defrauded him of his Goods, now sought to deprive him of his Life, by a false Accusation, consisting of no less than Seventy and odd Articles. A far less Number would have served to have dispatched a Man out of the World, if they could have been proved. The Witnesses against him were such, as some whereof had been detected of Perjury, others burnt in the Hand for Felony, and such like. But nevertheless none of these could sufficiently prove any one of those numerous Articles against him before the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the other Ecclesiastical Commissioners, as appeared in their Register. Stow would have prosecuted these, his false Accusers, but was answered by Some, that there was no Remedy against them, by means of the Statute made; which, it seems, favoured Informers for the Queen.

THESE were dangerous Times to the Queen and State, by reason of Malecontents, and dissatisfied Persons to Religion, and the Pope's Creatures; who were sent over to make Disturbance in the Government, and had raised a dangerous Rebellion in the North. And so many innocent Persons, suspected to be of the Roman Religion, were brought into Question.

Stow seems to have been accused by his own Brother, for in his Chronicle, in Queen Mary's Reign, Anno 1556, relating to the Punishment of a Man, who was brought from Westminster, with his Face to the Horse's Tail, and with a Paper on his Head, to the Standard in Cheape, and there set on the Pillory, and then burnt on the Cheek with the Letters F. A. for false accusing of one of the Court of Common-Pleas of Treason. "The like Justice, said he, I once wished to the like Accuser of his Master and eldest Brother, &c.

AND again, in his Survey of Cordwainer-street Ward, having mentioned one William Fitz-osbert, a Deceiver, a Murderer, a filthy Fornicator, and among other Crimes, a false Accuser of his elder Brother, who had in his Youth brought him up to Learning, and done many Things for him; and the sad End he deservedly came to at last, namely, draw'd by the Heels to the Elms in Smithfield, and there hanged: The Author seemed hereupon to think of his own Case, by his Note in the Margin, viz. A false Accuser of his elder Brother, in the End was hanged. God amend, or shortly send such an End to such false Brethren.

HE hath also, in his Survey, another Fling at this false Brother of his; viz. where he was mentioning a Fuller, who dwelt at Shoreditch, that had impeached wrongfully of Treason, many honest Gentlemen in King Henry VI's Days, but was hanged, drawn, and quartered for his Pains, and his Head set on London-Bridge: And then shewing how justly this Punishment was inflicted on him, quoted a Place of Scripture for it, Deut. xvi. That if the Judges making Inquisition, should find a Person giving false Witness against his Brother, then they should do unto him, as he had thought to do unto his Brother. And here in the Margin he writeth, The Reward of a false Brother.

Stow could not be taken off from his Studies, but earnestly and indefatigably applied himself to make Collections of Historical Remarks, to enable him to compile an History of England, under the several Kings thereof, and a Survey of the City of LONDON, his native Place. And to furnish him with the former, he got into his Possession as many of the antient English Writers, both printed and Manuscript, as he could, by Money or Favour; and seemed, at length, to have so thoroughly conversed with them, that he was able to give a critical Character of all his Authors. He also became acquainted with such as were famous for their Love of Antiquity in his Time; as Archbishop Parker, Lambard, admirably skilled in Saxon Learning, and Author of the Perambulation of Kent, Archion, Irenarcha, and other curious Things; Bowyer, Keeper of the Records of the Tower, and the first Digester of them into some Method, the learned Camden, and many others of less Note.

AND for his Knowledge in the Antiquities of the City, he also procured to himself all the old Books, Parchments, Instruments, Muniments, Charters, Registers, Journals, relating to LONDON, that he could possibly get. And withal got Access into the Archives of the Chamber of LONDON, where he perused the Volumes of most Fame there, for the City's antient Privileges, Charters, Laws, and Customs; as the Books Horne, Dunthorne, Liber Albus, and doubtless many other Records preserved in that Chamber.

THE first Book he put forth of the History of England, was his Summary of the Chronicles of England, from the Coming in of Brute to his own Time. The Occasion of his first setting upon this Historical Work, was by the Motion of the Lord Robert Dudley; when in the Year 1562, Stow presented him with an ingenious Book of Edmund Dudley, his Grandfather's Compiling, during his Imprisonment in the Tower, entitled, The Tree of the Commonwealth; which he dedicated to King Henry VIII, but it never came to his Hand. The Original of this Piece Stow, a Collector of curious Things, obtained: And the Copy, fair written, he took an Occasion to give to the said Lord; but the Original he reserved to himself. Then, at that great Man's Request, he first collected his Summary, which he dedicated to him. In Reward whereof, saith he, I always received his hearty Thanks, with Commendations, and not otherwise. But the contrary had been maliciously reported by his Adversary T. S. (his Brother, 'tis supposed.)

AFTER his Summary, he published (in the Year 1600, now after near forty Years Study of History) his Flores Historiarum, that is, his Annals of this Land from the Time of the antient Britains, to his own; these were nothing else but his Summary greatly enlarged, which he dedicated to Archbishop Whitgift, moved thereunto, as he writ, by reason of that Prelate's great Love and entire Affection to all good Letters in general, and to Antiquities in particular, which had been so singular, that all that liked and loved good Studies, did justly esteem him their Patron. This Epistle Dedicatory he dated from LONDON, Nov. the 24th, 1600. This Book was set forth again in the Year 1605, by Stow himself, with Enlargements, in the black Letter, in a thick Quarto, printed by George Bishop. And even this was but a Contraction of a far larger Composition of the History of England, which he had been forty Years and more a collecting, out of some hundreds of antient Authors, Registers, Chronicles, Lives, &c. and Writings of particular Cities and Towns: But the Printer, for some private Views, fearing, very likely, the Expence, chose rather to be concerned in this less Work. In the next Page after his Epistle to the Reader, he sets down the Names of the Authors, and Registers, Chronicles, Records, Books of Monasteries, Charters, &c. whence he collected these his Annals: And one cannot but observe his infinite Pains, by that vast Number he had perused for his Purpose.

SOME Time before, (viz. Anno 1573) came forth the voluminous Chronicle of Britain, and the Kings and Queens thereof, printed and reprinted by Raphael Hollingshead; being the laborious Collections of Reiner Wolfe, Printer to the Queen, and a grave and learned Citizen, and of others; which forestalled Stow's said History. But had the good Archbishop Parker liv'd, (who had set him on Work, both by his Request and Command) it would have long before seen the Light, by that great Prelate's Furtherance, and (no doubt) Expence too. And it must be remembered here, that in the last and largest Edition of the said Chronicle, (which ended at the Year 1587, and the 29th of the Queen) Stow communicated many considerable Additions to it, as in some Places of his Annals he lets us know, know, that he had a Hand in those Chronicles set forth by Hollingshead: Where, speaking of a Book called, A Declaration of the favourable Dealing of the Queen's Commissioners, &c. he saith, "He had caused it to be set down in the Continuation of that Chronicle, first collected by Reyner Wolfe, and finished by Ra. Hollingshead". He also inserted into the same Reyner Wolfe's Chronicle continued, A true and plain Declaration of the horrible Treasons practised by William Parry. Likewise, A true and summary Report of some Part of the Earl of Northumberland's Treasons delivered, &c. "Which, saith Stow, are set down in my Continuation of R. Wolfe's Chronicle. And likewise, A Declaration of the Cause moving the Queen of England to give Aid to the Defence of the People, afflicted and oppressed in the Low Countries". So that the whole Continuation, which was from the Year 1573, when that Chronicle first came out, to 1587, seems chiefly to be of Stow's Doing and Pains. Ralph Hollingshead ended his Chronicle Anno 1576, with an Epilogue, wherein he acknowledged, that he had made Use of the Abridgment of Richard Grafton, and the Summaries of John Stow.

LONDON.

BUT now we proceed to another of his excellent Books published from Antiquities, viz. his Topographical Piece, called, A Survey of LONDON. The Reason that first put him upon doing this, was the Sight of a Book of the great Antiquarian, William Lambard, viz. his Perambulation of the County of Kent; whom (upon Occasion of the mention of his Father's Monument in St. Michael Woodstreet Church) he called his loving Friend, well known by sundry learned Books which he published. As this Gentleman somewhere in that Book had desired and called upon others, to write particular Descriptions of other Shires and Counties, where they were born, or dwelt, so our Author took his Warning, and attempted the Description of this Place, where he was both born, and had his Habitation: Hoping also that he should excite others; by his Example, to write Memorials of other Cities, and eminent Places of England, as he of this; and so to make up a whole Body of the Chorography of this Island among themselves: And all this, he said, was, that he might give Occasion and Courage to Mr. Camden, to increase and beautify his singular Work of the Britannia.

Stow was also backed by some of his good Friends to set about this, as being a very fit Person to undertake it, having seen sundry antient Writings and Muniments touching LONDON, by searching Records occasionally for other Purposes; and also by many written Helps coming to his Hands, which few other had met with. It was likewise a Work very agreeable to his professed Studies, and he accounted it a Duty that he owed to his native Mother and Country, and an Office that of Right he held himself bound in Love, to bestow upon the Body Politick, and Members of the same.

AND how diligent Stow was, both by his Pains and Application, in gathering Matter for this his Book, appeared, in that he usually resorted to the Records, and those who had the keeping of them, though some Time he met with no civil Reception from them; which may be gathered from a Passage of his in the Vintry Ward, where setting down divers Antiquities of the Company of Vintners, that he had collected, and still enquiring after more, that being one of the antient and chief Corporations; he addressed himself one Day to the Hall, where was a Court of Assistants, and there read to them what he had collected concerning that Company for their Honour; thinking, that this would be so acceptable to them, the Brothers of that Society, that he should have the Request granted, that he intended to make to them; namely, To have the Leave to make further Search into their Archives, for the Use of his intended Survey: But what Answer some of them then gave him, and how he himself repented it, may be seen by what he printed afterwards, under that Ward, concerning them; which was in the first Edition; but left out by himself in the second and after Editions. His Words are these:

"HAVING thus much, not without Travel, and some Charges, noted the Antiquity of these Vintners, I repaired to the common Hall of the same Company, and there shewed, and read it in a Court of Assistants, requiring them, as being one of the principal Companies in this City, of whom I meant therefore to write more at large, if they knew any more which might sound to their Worship or Commendation; at their Leisure to send it me, and I would join it to my former Collection. At which Time I was answered by some, that took upon them, That they were none of the principal, but of the inferior Companies; and so willing me to leave them, I departed, and never since heard from them. Adding, (which was Pity) that this had somewhat discouraged him any farther to travel amongst the Companies, to learn ought at their Hands.

HE lived to publish two Editions of his Survey, both in Quarto. The one, which was the first, came out Anno 1598; the other Anno 1603, within five Years; the first went off so well. This was printed by John Windet, Printer to the City, and dedicated, as the first was, to the Lord Mayor, the Commonalty, and Citizens. This Edition hath considerable Additions, put in by the Author, out of his old Store of many rare Notes of Antiquity, as he files them; and more he intended, but was prevented by Death.

IN the Year 1618, a third Edition, in Quarto, was published by A. M. a Citizen also, and dedicated to George Bolls, Lord Mayor, Sir Anthony Ben, Recorder, and all the Knights and Aldermen of the City; and to Dr. King, then Bishop of LONDON. This Man made several Additions, (as he pretended) which, or much of which, (as he hinted in his Epistle) he had formerly from Stow himself; who, while he was alive, delivered him some of his best Collections, and used importunate Persuasions with him, to correct what he found amiss, and to proceed in perfecting a Work so worthy: And being overcome by Affection to him, and much more by Respect to this Royal City, Birth-place to him as well as Stow, he undertook to further a Book (as far as his Abilities would extend) of such needful Use. And this, he saith, he was employed about twelve Years in, and had the Encouragement of the Court of Aldermen in the Council-Chamber, being brought before them by Sir Henry Montague, the Recorder, afterwards Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench.

BUT the Additions this Editor made, were chiefly some Inscriptions and Epitaphs set on the Monuments in the Parish Churches; a Continuation of the Names of the Mayors and Sheriffs to the Year of this Edition; and little more, except some Transcripts out of Stow's Summary and Annals; and here and there venturing to correct some pretended Errors of Stow, the Errors, indeed, being rather his own: For Stow was too exact and learned, to be corrected by such an one, much inferior to him, both in Learning, and the Skill of Antiquity. Inasmuch, that it is wonderful, having had such considerable Materials rials for the Work from Stow himself, and having also the Countenance of the Court of Aldermen, that so little Improvement of the Book was made by him. But in respect of his Diligence in conversing among Epitaphs, he is commended in the Epitaph upon his own Monument in Coleman-street Church.

He that hath many a Tomb-stone read,
I'th' Labour seeming more among the Dead
To Live, than with the Living; that survey'd
Abstruse Antiquities, and o're them laid
Such vive and beauteous Colours with his Pen,
That spight of Time those old are new agen, &c.

THIS A. M. was Anthony Monday, some Time the Pope's Scholar in the Seminary at Rome. Afterwards came home, and renouncing the Pope and Popery, wrote two Books concerning Matters of the English Priests and Papists abroad. One was called, The Discovery of Campion the Jesuit, about the Year 1581, which he presented to Bromley, Lord Chancellor; Lord Burleigh, Lord Treasurer; and Robert Earl of Leicester. The other was, The English Roman Life, set forth Anno 1591, discovering the Lives of the Englishmen at Rome; and the Orders of the English Seminaries, &c.

THERE was yet a fourth Edition of the Survey put forth in the Year 1633, by the same A. M. together with H. D. C. J. and some others. This came out in Folio, and was likewise dedicated (as all the former Editions) to the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder, and Citizens, by A. M. In this Edition was a Continuation of the Names of the Mayors and Sheriffs to that Year, and an Addition of the Coats of Arms of all the Mayors, and of all the Companies of LONDON, Merchants, and others; and some short imperfect Account of the said Companies Originals and Date of their Charters; some scattering Articles of the Statutes, Acts, and Customs of the City; an Act of Parliament, and an Act of Common Council, concerning the River Thames; the Oath of some City Officers; the Free Customs of the two Manors of Stepney and Hackney; more Customs and Orders for the City; Remains of other Things to be put in their due Places in the Work; which are concerning Dulwich College: The Time of the Reparations of Decays in the Churches, and Inscriptions upon some Monuments and Stones there, or within four Miles Compass; with some other loose, disjointed Matters, to be inserted in proper Places of the Book; which, it seems, were sent in to such on whom the Care of the Work lay, but came too late. By this Time, the Book abounded with verbal Errata and Deviations from the Author's Edition, and Sense; too tedious to mention many of them: Let one suffice.

IN the first Edition, in that Place of the Book where the Suburbs came to be handled, Wapping is divided into two distinct Places, viz. Wapping in the Wose, and Wapping itself. In the second Edition, (Stow being then in a weak Condition, and not able to look to the Sheets, as they came from the Press) Wapping in the Wose was changed into Wapping in the West, occasioned, doubtless, by the Ignorance of him that had the Care of the Press, who knew not that Wose or Oose meant a Marish Wet Land; which is perhaps that now called Wapping-Wall: But because Wapping does not stand in the West of LONDON, but contrary, in the East, therefore in the third Edition, it was printed Wapping in the East, and so remained in the fourth, in both which A. M. was concerned: By which we may judge of his Abilities to correct Stow; and in all the Editions, except the first, Wapping itself, which was the other Part of Wapping, was quite left out. So that this was one Error in the After-Editions of the Survey, that Wapping in the Wose, and Wapping itself was turned into Wapping in the West, and that turned into the East.

IN the Year 1720, this Book arrived to a fifth Edition, enlarged by some Scores of Sheets, set forth by the Reverend Mr. Strype, also a Citizen, born and bred, (as the former Editors were) and the Son of a Freeman of LONDON, and dedicated to the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens of LONDON, which Dedication they may claim by long and laudable Custom, and also by their favourable Leave to consult their Records. In this Edition great Numbers of Errors are corrected, and Stow restored to himself, the Remains are inserted every where in their proper Places, the History of the City brought down to that Time, and the Customs, Laws and Acts of Common Council (wherein the former Book was most of all defective) make a considerable Part of the Work.

IN both Books, viz. his Chronicle and Survey, Stow had the Advantage of making Use of Leland's six Volumes of Collections, where-ever he had them, which he transcribed, as it seems, for his own Use, and parted with them at length to the learned Camden, who is said also to make great Use of them in writing his Britannia; and for these Papers of Leland, he had, by Agreement, an Annuity of 8*l.* during the said Stow's Life. This we take upon the Credit of Brooks, or Brooksmouth, York Herald, in some Writings of his against Camden, intending thereby to charge him to have been a Plagiary; but to relate this Matter more particularly:

THIS Ralph Brooksmouth, as he had wrote a very virulent Book against Camden, entitled, A Discovery of Errors, &c. endeavouring therein to charge his Britannia with many Errors, especially in Matters of Genealogy and Heraldry, and that since Queen Elizabeth had made him Clarencieux; so Camden modestly, but learnedly, answered that angry Man, and vindicated what he had writ, and set his Answer at the End of an Edition of his Britannia, Anno 1600. This Herald wrote yet another Piece against Clarencieux, pretending to a second Discovery of Errors in his Britannia, and in Justification of what he had published before, and that he had stolen from Leland: Therein he hath these Words:

“ His new coated Britannia made and digested of industrious Labours of John Leland, that great Scholar, and painful Searcher of England's Antiquities, as may appear both by the said Leland's six Volumes, written with his own Hand, yet extant in Custody of Mr. Osborne, of the Exchequer, as also by the said Leland's New-Year's-Gift, dedicated to the same King, annexed to the End of my late Discovery, which six Books or Volumes were copied out by John Stow, and by him sold to this learned Man [Camden] for an Annuity of 8*l.* per Ann. which he did pay unto the said Stow himself before his Death confessed to divers Persons of Credit, lamenting the Wrong done to Leland, both by that learned Man, and also by one Harrison of Wyndesore, who likewise had robbed Leland of the Islands adjacent to this Realm of England, setting them in Hollingshead as his own Travels and Collection, &c.” These Lines, reflecting unworthily upon Stow, as well as Camden, are easily answered, since both do freely acknowledge where they made Use of Leland, by setting his Name in their Margins.

AND our Author, as he had a Genius towards our History, so he had an Advantage over many after him, in writing his History and Survey, and that that was by living in those Times when the Monasteries were dissolved. In which Places were repositied most of the antient MSS as well relating to those religious Foundations, as containing also Historical Accounts of the Kingdom, and Kings thereof, written by the Monks and learned Persons, Members of those Fraternities. By which Means he might probably come to the Sight of those Registers, Records and Chronicles, which he so often cites.

AND as Mr. Stow thus published, for the Benefit and Pleasure of his Countrymen, his own Pains in History; so likewise, as a hearty Promoter of the Antiquities of this Land, he gave all the Encouragement and Assistance that he could to others that bestowed Labour that Way. Dr. David Powel, a learned Welchman, had communicated to him by Sir Henry Sidney, some Time President of Wales, an antient MS of the History and Antiquity of Wales, being a Collection of the Successions and Acts of the British Princes after Cadwallador, unto the Year 1156, done by Caradoc of Lancarvan. These Collections were kept in an Abbey of Conwey in Wales, and another Abbey, and were continued and augmented every three Years until the Year 1270. These were copied out, so that there were an hundred Copies of them. This Book Humphrey Lloyd, Gentleman, translated into English, and partly augmented out of Matthew Paris and Nicholas Trivet. The Copy of the Translation Sir Henry Sidney (whose Disposition was to seek after Antiquities, and the Weal Publick of the Countries, that he governed, rather than their Lands and Revenues) had lying by him a great while; and desirous to have it printed, sent for Dr. Powel, requiring him to peruse and correct it, that it might be committed to the Press. For the polishing and improving this Work, he took a great deal of Pains, and had no small Assistance from our Stow, who supplied him with a considerable Number of Manuscript Historians, as the said Powel acknowledges in his Preface.

He made many Notes and Corrections in the Works of the antient Poet Chaucer, of which he gives this Account himself, where he mentions his Tomb in the Abbey, That through his own painful Labour he had corrected those Works, and twice increased them in Queen Elizabeth's Reign.

It doth not appear what Honour or Advantage Mr. Stow obtained, after all his extraordinary Pains and Study for the publick Good; unless that he seemed to have been made by the City their Chronicler, for so he is called in a Cause between the City and the Lieutenant of the Tower, about their Bounds and Liberties. By which Place it is likely he had the Liberty of Access to the City Records. In this Cause he is called the City's fee'd Chronicler, but that, it is to be hoped, not because he took Fees of the City to write only such Things as might turn to their Honour and Advantage without a strict Regard to Truth; but because he received a Salary for the great Labour he was at in searching its Records and Archives to retrieve the Knowledge of its true History, and of its antient Customs and Privileges.

HE was afflicted near his End very much with Pain in his Feet; which, perhaps, was the Gout. In the Year 1602, or 1603, he was fain to keep his Bed four or five Months with it. Where he observed how his Affliction lay in that Part that formerly he had made so much Use of in walking many a Mile to search after Antiquities, and antient Books and Manuscripts. He was now within a Year or two of Fourscore.

TOGETHER with his Age and his Infirmities, he was in his last Years oppress'd with Need; having spent his Patrimony, and the best Part of his Estate in these Studies, useful to this City, and to the English Nation, though not to himself. These Afflictions he met with in his Life; but all Reproach his Memory hath out-lived, being now esteemed one of the best and most exact of our English Historians.

IN the Year 1604, he obtained a Licence from King James I, to collect the charitable Benevolence of well-disposed People for his Subsistence, the Copy of which was communicated to Mr. Strype from the Rev. Dr. Tanner, then Chancellor of Norwich, by the Hands of Dr. Gibson, the present Bishop of LONDON, and is as followeth:

JAMES, by the Grace of God, King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. To all and singular Archbishops, Bishops, Archdeacons, Deans, and their Officials, Parsons, Vicars, Curates; and to all Spiritual Persons: And also to all Justices of Peace, Mayors, Sheriffs, Bailiffs, Constables, Church-wardens, and Headboroughs: And to all Officers of Cities, Boroughs, and Towns Corporate: And to all other our Officers, Ministers, and Subjects whatsoever, as well within Liberties as without, to whom these Presents shall come, Greeting.

WHEREAS our true and loyal Subject, John Stow, Citizen of LONDON, having, for the Good of the Commonwealth, and Posterity to come, employed all his Industry and Labour to commit to the History of Chronicle, all such Things worthy of Remembrance, as from Time to Time happened within this whole Realm, for the Space of Five and Forty Years, until Christmas last past, (as by divers large and brief Chronicles of his writing may appear) besides his great Pains and Charge in making his Book, called his Survey of LONDON; wherein he spent eight Years in searching out of antient Records, concerning Antiquities both for LONDON and Southwark; hath been an humble Suitor unto us, that we would be pleased to grant him a Licence under our Great Seal, to gather the Benevolence of well-disposed People within this our Realm of England, in Recompence of his said Labour and Travel, and towards his Relief now in his old Age, having left his former Means whereby he lived, only employing himself for the Service and Good of his Country. We, tendering the poor Estate of so loyal and painful a Subject, who hath so well deserved of us, and all our whole Realm and Subjects, and being desirous that his said Industry and Labour should be recompenced in some bountiful and good Sort, of our especial Grace and Princely Compassion have been pleased that Collection should be made for the Recompence and Relief of our said Subject John Stow, in this our Realm of England.

KNOW ye therefore, that we have given and granted, and by these our Letters Patents, do give and grant unto our said Subject, John Stow, and to his Deputy, the Bearer hereof, full Power, Licence and Authority to ask, gather, receive and take the Alms and charitable Benevolence of all our loving Subjects whatsoever, inhabiting within our Cities of LONDON and Westminster, and the Suburbs thereof; and in our Counties of Middlesex, Surrey, Kent, Sussex, Essex, Hertford, Cambridge, with the University there, Norfolk, with the City of Norwich; Suffolk, Huntingdon, Bedford, Buckingham, Berks, Oxon, with the University there; Northampton, Warwick, Leiceſter, Derby, Nottingham, Rutland, York, with the Bishoprick of Durham; Lincoln, Southamp-

STYWARD.

God Save the KING.

Printed by THOMAS BURFOOT.

THERE was another Brief granted to Stow, in the first Year of the King, as this above was granted the second, that first expiring within a Twelvemonth, and so, probably, before the Collection was every where finished. This first Brief was seconded by a Letter from the King, recommending the said Stow's Condition: Which was to this Tenor:

“ JAMES, by the Grace of GOD, King
 “ of England, Scotland, France, and Ire- “ land, Defender of the Faith, &c. To all our “ well-beloved Subjects, Greeting. Whereas “ our Loving Subject John Stow, a very aged and “ worthy Member of our City of LONDON,
 “ this five and forty Years hath, to his great “ Charge, and with Neglect of his ordinary “ Means of Maintenance, for the general Good,
 “ as well of Posterity as of the present Age,
 “ compiled and published divers necessary Books
 “ and Chronicles. And therefore We, in Re“ compence of these his painful Labours, and “ for Encouragement to the like, have, in our “ Royal Inclination, been pleased to grant our “ Letters Patents under our Great Seal of Eng- “ land, dated the 8th of May 1603; thereby “ authorizing him the said John Stow, and his “ Deputy, to collect among our Loving Subjects
 “ their voluntary Contribution and kind Gra“ tuity, as by the said Letters Patents more at “ large may appear. NOW, seeing that Our
 “ said Patents, being but one of themselves, “ cannot be shewed in divers Places, or Parishes, “ at once, as the Occasions of the speedy put“ ting them in Execution may require. We “ have therefore thought expedient, in this un“ usual Manner, to recommend his Cause unto “ you, having already in Our own Person, and
 “ of Our special Grace, begun the largest, for

“ the Example of others. Given at our Palace
 “ at Westminster.

It is without Date; this seeming to be the first Minutes of a Letter intended to be printed, and shewn by the Collectors, for the more Speed, where the Original Letters Patents could not so soon be produced.

ON the Back-side of this Letter was set down what was collected of the Parishioners of St. Mary Woolnoth, viz. 7 s. 6 d. with the Churchwarden's Name subscribed.

HE died April the 5th following, that is, within less than six Months after, of the Stone Cholick: So that it is to be feared, the poor Man made but little Progress in this Collection. 'Tis strange that the City of LONDON, to which he had done such Service and Honour, in writing such an elaborate and accurate Survey thereof; nor the wealthy Company of Merchant-Taylors, of which he was a worthy and creditable Member; nor lastly, the State, in grateful Remembrance of his diligent and faithful Pains, in composing an excellent History of the Kingdom, neither of them had allotted him some Honorary Pension during his Life. He being arrived at the Age of 80 Years, deceased, and was buried towards the upper End of the North Isle of this Church of St. Andrew Undershaft, and hath a handsome Monument set up for him, as before-mentioned. He left behind him a Widow and four Daughters.

As to his Person, he was, as described by Edmund Howes, who well knew him, tall of Stature, lean in the Body and Face; his Eyes small and Chrystalline; of a pleasant and cheerful Countenance; his Sight and Memory very good; and he retained the true Use of all his Senses to the Day of his Death. He was sober, mild, and courteous. He always protested, never to have wrote any thing thro' Envy, Fear, or Favour, nor to seek his own particular Gain or Vain-glory; but that his only Pains and Care were to write Truth.

BUT before we finish Mr. Stow's Character, we must know more particularly what were the Disposition, Inclination, and Endowments of his Mind; and what first offereth itself to be related in this Consideration is, that he was an earnest Student, and Lover of the Antiquity of his own Country; which was so great, that it made him, at length, lay aside the Trade he was bred to, that he might wholly apply himself to it. He was an unwearied Reader of all Authors of English History, whether printed, or in Manuscript, and a Searcher into Records, Registers, Journals, Original Charters, Instruments, &c. as may be seen by the large Catalogues of them set down both in his Annals and Survey, as consulted by him, and from whence the Materials and Authority of those his Books were taken; as Testimonies of his Truth and Diligence.

AND it contented him not to have the reading of Books and Writings of this Kind, but he was greedy of making himself Possessor of them, as of a great Treasure. By the Year 1568, he had furnished himself a considerable Library of such; as appears from the Report of Mr. Watts, Archdeacon of LONDON, the Bishop of LONDON's Chaplain, who was sent to search his Library, viz. “ That he had a great Collection “ of old Books and Manuscripts, of all Sorts;
 “ but especially relating to Chronicle and Hi“ story, both in Parchment and Paper; and that “ there was abundance of Matter collected for “ History, Fundationes Ecclesiarum, Monasteri- “ orum, &c. Flores Historiarum, &c.” And the Rarity of his Study was, that it was not only stored with antient Authors, but Original Charters,

ters, Registers, and Chronicles of particular Places; such as, the Register of Bermondsey; the Register of St. Edmund's-Bury; of the new Abby near the Tower; of St. Bartholomew Smithfield; of the Fryars Minors of LONDON, &c. these in Latin; other Registers in English; as, a Register of the Knights of the Garter; a Register of the Mayors of LONDON. He also had old Records of LONDON; Records of St. Asaph; Chronicles of St. Alban's; Arnold's Chronicles; Annals of the Monastery of Hyde, &c. Most of which, he had purchased, or some way or other procured, with considerable Charge and Cost (no Question) out of his own Purse. And he had the greater Opportunity to furnish himself with these Things, living in the Times when they were dispersed and scattered Abroad, and conveyed away into divers Hands, out of the Monasteries and Religious Houses, where they had been, for the most Part, diligently kept, and preserved, and mostly written by the Monks that dwelt and enjoyed their studious Retirements there.

HE was also a diligent Transcriber of such antient and useful Books, and which he could not obtain or purchase, being of Esteem with him, or serving to his Purpose. Thus he transcribed Leland's six Books of Collections, which turned very seasonably to his Profit, as was said before. Another Transcript of his was a Speech of Queen Elizabeth, to her Parliament, 27 Eliz. Anno 1584; which, with Stow's other Papers, coming afterwards into the Hands of Sir Simmonds d'Ews, Baronet, he presented to the World, in his Journal of Parliaments; where he tells us, that it was written with Stow's own Hand; the Speech not being found in the Original Journal Book of the Upper House, and therefore he supplied it out of a Copy which he had by him, written by John Stow, the Chronicler, with his own Hand, being verbatim, as followed, &c.

AND as he had a good Library, replenished with such Books, so he was a very good Judge of them; and was able to discourse critically concerning them. His Abilities this way may appear in Descriptions of antient Writers and Writings, being a little Tract (taken Notice of before) prefixed to his Summary of Chronicles, Printed Anno 1573, which begins with Afferus Menevensis, of whom he gives this Description: "A Man of great Holiness and Learning, who was sent for from Menevia, or St. David's in Wales, by King Alfrede, and by him made Bishop of Sherbourne, [the See] now called Salisbury. It is said, that King Alfrede erected the School, or University of Oxford; but this Afferus, writing purposely, diligently, and honourably of all King Alfrede's noble Acts, maketh no Mention of. Divers there be, and those antient Writers, which attribute all to the English Church at Rome, which the late, without Consideration, do speak of Oxford. Afferus flourished in the Year after Christ's Birth 890. Again,

"Alfredus Beverlacensis, Treasurer of the College of Beverly, a deep Philosopher, a diligent Historiographer, and notable Divine, brought up in the most antient and famous University of Cambridge; he writ the Accidents of Time, from the Beginning of the Britons, to the Year of Christ 1136, in the which he lived. Again,

"Adam Merimouth, a Prebendary of St. Paul's in LONDON; he seeing the Want of Chronicles, and feeling the Necessity of them, laboured earnestly to commit Things to Memory, and writ from the Year after Christ's Birth 1320, unto the Year 1380; in the which he flourished. Further,

"Additiones Polycronicon were added by Thomas Walsingham, born in Norfolk, and after a Monk at St. Alban's. The Book called Polycronicon, was writ by Ranulphus Higden, a Monk of Chester. Thomas Walsingham's chief Delight was in the Collection of English Histories, wherein he hath left, to the perpetual Registering his Name, divers other Monuments of reverend Antiquity. He lived 1443.

Again, "Galfridus Monumetensis his Chronicle of the Britons is of some scornfully rejected, wherein they shew their great Unthankfulness, not to embrace him, who painfully, for their Behoof, playeth only the Part of an Interpreter. Little Wisdom, to condemn what they cannot mend; or, if they can, not to consider the Time wherein he lived. The true History may, by a skilful Reader, be well discerned from the false: And many Things in him that seem strange, are confirmed by the best Writers of all Ages. He lived 1158.

AGAIN, He thus describeth Gulielmus Novoburgensis, otherwise Gulielmus Petit, or Parvus; who for his true Dealing in Histories is much commended by Polydore Virgil: But it was an Italian Flourish, to put Galfridus Monumetensis out of Conceit, because he reporteth (which the Italian cannot abide) friendly and liberally of the Britons. His Chronicle is lately printed at Antwerp, both dishonestly and imperfectly, by the King's Printer, Will. Silvius; for, leaving out Doctor Turner's Preface, Dean of Wells, he inserted his own, and left out several Chapters, which were in the Copy that Dr. Turner sent unto him: But it is well seen, that Novoburgensis was a good Divine, and diligent Historiographer, his untimely Preface being excepted. He lived Anno 1200.

THIS is a Specimen large enough of Stow's Acquaintance with our antient Authors, and of his critical Skill and Judgment of them.

HE delighted in those that were inquisitive with him in antient History, and were truly learned therein. Their Conversation he used, and with them he loved to consort; or if he were not personally acquainted with them, he revered them, and was well acquainted with their Labours: But as for such as pretended to this Sort of Learning, and presumed to set forth Histories in their own Names, when they were none of their own, but unskilfully borrowed from others, and withal betraying much Ignorance therein, he was a great Enemy to them.

THIS made him not spare R. G. [that is, Richard Grafton] but lash him whensoever he came in his Way, being offended with him, both for stealing from him and from others, and by abusing other Writers, and falsifying them. He gave his Book the specious Title of, A Chronicle at large of the Affairs of England, and the Kings of the same, deduced from the Creation of the World, &c. Where first Stow noteth him for a great Mis-quoter of Authors, both in Latin, as Flores Historiarum, Polydore Virgil, and Matthew Paris; and in the Vulgar Tongue, as Polychronicon, William Caxton, Fabian, Hall, and Cooper; which if looked into, will be found to have no such Matter as he quotes. And as for other Authors which he pretended to cite, as Robert de Averbury, Thomas Walsingham, Henry of Leicester, the Register of Bury, and many others, he had not so much as seen them, but took what he said out of his (Stow's) Summary.

THIS Summary he abridged and published as his own; which, notwithstanding it was discovered to be Stow's, he had the Confidence in the second Impression, to write a Preface to, in Vindication of himself against Stow.

Edward Hall wrote a History of the Union of the two Houses of York and Lancaster, which, Stow saith, was hitherto held in great Esteem, doubtless hereafter will be in greater. This Book was set forth by Grafton, as if it was his own, of which Stow speaking, saith, "That some-body without any ingenuous and plain Declaration thereof, hath published, but not without mangling, Mr. Hall's Book for his own." Thus would not Stow spare this Plagiary.

Our Author's good Judgment and Skill in Antiquity, joined with an inquisitive Temper, rendered him useful in divers Respects. He was not to be put off with Frauds and superstitious Fables, commonly imposed upon Men of less Accuracy; but was able to detect and discover them: And as he was a great Lover of Truth, so he was the more inquisitive to find it out; and his Reading and Learning the better enabled him to do it. He confuted the Story of Edward Hall in his Chronicle, following a Fable (saith Stow) then on foot, concerning one Bolton, some Time Prior of St. Bartholomew: "That there being Prognostications, that in the Year 1524, there should be such Eclipses in Watry Signs, and such Conjunctions, that by Waters and Floods many People should perish. Whereupon many removed to high Grounds for fear of drowning: And particularly Prior Bolton built him an House upon Harrow on the Hill, and that thither he went, and made Provision of all Things necessary within his House, for the Space of two Months, &c." This Stow would not let pass without diligent Enquiry, and by credible Information found it not so: And that the Ground of the Story was only this, that this Prior being Parson of Harrow, bestowed some Reparation on the Parsonage-House; and built only a Dove-house, to serve him when he quitted his Priory. Thus Stow sifted out Matters, and was not to be carried away by Reports.

HE confuted also the commonly related and believed Report of William Walworth killing Jack Straw with his Dagger in the King's Presence: And that from that Act of the Mayor the Dagger was added to the Arms of the City, which was before a Red Cross only: Whereas that Dagger was mistaken for St. Paul's Sword; borne before in the old Arms, as it seems. And that it was indeed Wat Tyler that was struck by Walworth, in arresting him with a sound Blow on the Head; and afterwards wounded him with his Baselard; whereas Jack Straw was taken and executed in Smithfield. As Stow gives a large Account of it, writing of Crooked-lane Church, in Candlewick-street Ward.

AND so again, he threw away the many fanciful Conjectures, whence the Name of Aldermanbury, a Place in LONDON, was pretended to be taken; disdaining not once to mention them, as being all fabulous; but gives a more judicious Reason for that Name of Aldermanbury, appropriated to that Place, being antiently the Court where the Aldermen met; partly from his Skill in old English Words, and partly from his own Experience, he himself having seen there the Ruins of the old Court Hall of the Aldermen, which they used before Guildhall was built; which Place was then become a Carpenter's Yard. And Bery, or Bury, he understood to signify a Court or Hall, and meant no more than we mean by Guildhall; shewing that there in Aldermanbury, lying there on the West of the present Guildhall, the Courts of the Mayor and Aldermen were continually holden, before Guildhall was built.

THE Shank-bone of a Man, or of a supposed Giant, which hung up by a Chain in the Cloister of Aldermanbury Church, of 28 Inches and an half long, was commonly reported to be digged up at St. Paul's, when the Bones were carried from the Charnel-House, or the Cloister there, into Moorfields, in the Time of King Edward VI. but Stow made a Doubt of it; because Reyner Wolfe, Stationer, a grave Antiquarian, and the Man that paid for the Carriage of those Bones, never spoke a Word of any such Bone found in either Place, tho' he had discoursed with him concerning those Bones which he carried away: Adding, that if such a monstrous Bone had fallen into his Hands, it would not have easily been gotten from him, being one of the greatest Preservers of Antiquities in these Parts for his Time.

FURTHER, when the aforesaid R. G. would have obtruded upon Peoples Belief, fabulous Reports concerning Relicks found of Giants, our Antiquary, by his Skill and accurate Search, evidently confuted them. The said R. G. in a Book entitled, A Brief Collection of History, wrote a Chapter of Giants, or monstrous Men: And therein he said, that in the Year 1564, and in such a Day of the Month, he had in his Hand the Tooth of a Man that weighed ten Ounces, Troy Weight, and the Skull of the same Man was extant to be seen, that held five Pecks of Wheat, and the Shin-bones six Feet in Length. By which Proportion the Man must be 28 Feet long; and underneath in a kind of Glory he thus subscribed: This saw R. G. And thence Grafton went on to mention one Gerard, a Giant, and his supposed Staff, which was then kept at an Inn in Basing-lane, LONDON, called Gerard's Hall, which fabulous Tradition said was the Giant's House; and there indeed, to Stow's Time, was preserved a Pole 40 Feet long, and 15 Inches about. But Stow was not so credulous, nor would impose such incredible Stories upon his Readers, without better Enquiry: And in short, he found that wondrous Tooth (tho' some Time he thought it might have belonged to some monstrous Fish) to be nothing else but a Stone, and so he proved it. Nor was there any Shape of a Tooth: And there was no Skull at all to be found.

THIS prodigious Tooth, with a Shank-bone, that was 25 Inches of Assize, Stow speaks of in Cheap Ward, hanging up in St. Laurence Jewry Church, and that he himself had seen them above 70 Years before, that is, before his own second Edition of the Survey. These hung in Chains of Iron upon a Pillar of Stone; that imaginary Tooth being about the Bigness of a Man's Fist, long since conveyed thence. The Shank-bone remained, which he conjectured might belong to some Elephant: And of this Bone he observed, not so much the Length (which most did) as the Thickness, Hardness, and Strength thereof. For it had fretted and worn the Stone Pillar by which it hung by often moving, but was not itself fretted or worn: And he observed further, a Difference between this Bone, and that hanging up in Aldermanbury, that as that was longer by three Inches and an half, so it was more light, pory, and spungy: This in St. Laurence's Church more hard and steely. That Bone therefore at Aldermanbury, Stow was apt to think was of a Man, and so he said the Form shewed, concluding it to be more than after the Proportion of five Shank-bones of any Man now living among us.

AND as for the Giant Gerard and his House and Staff, there he found it to be only a great House, once belonging to a great Man, whose Name was Gisors, and his House called Gisor's Hall, corrupted into Gerard's Hall.

AND

AND that high Pole which stood up in the high roofed Hall, that was said to be his Staff, was nothing else (as he shewed from an old Custom in LONDON) than a Maypole of Fir Wood that used to be set up at some Time of the Year in Summer, before the chiefeft Hall or House in the Parish, and at other Times to remain, and stand in the Hall before the Skreen: And that this could be no Giant's House, he collected from the Doors that he had observed here, as not convenient at all for Men of such monstrous Proportion.

THERE was also standing by this Pole a Ladder of the same Length, which, together with the said Pole, the Vulgar, apt to invent and believe superstitious Stories, gave out, as the one to be the Giant's Staff that he used to halt withal, so the other, that whereby Men climbed up to the Top of it. Whereas the Pole was nothing else but a Maypole, as was said before, which was used to be decked with Holm and Ivy at Christmas, and the Ladder served for Men to go up for the decking of it. This Gisor's Hall was a large spacious House, having been the Habitation of the Gisors, flourishing much in Wealth and Honour in the City for a great while, in the Reign of King Henry III. and successive Kings. One whereof, John Gisor, was Constable of the Tower, and Lord Mayor, Ann. 1245. Another of that Name, a Knight, lived there, Ann. 1311, and Mayor that Year and other Years; and since, several others of the same Name and Family were Owners of that House.

THERE is no hindering the ignorant Populace from receiving and crediting Fancies, but Stow was justly offended with such as would be Historians and Chroniclers, and thought learned, so easily to take up such Lies, and recommend them in their Writings to Posterity; as besides Grafton, Reyner Wolfe, and others, did this.

ONCE again, whereas R. Grafton, in his Chronicle, had related concerning one Bartholomew Read, Goldsmith, Mayor Anno 1502; that in the Goldsmiths-Hall, he entertained, as his Guests, more than an hundred Persons of great Estate; Messes, and Dishes of Meat, served in a vast Number: Nay, and that there was a Park, paved, in the same Hall, furnished with fruitful Trees, and Beasts of Venery, and other like Circumstances. Stow comparing the Dimensions of that Hall with the Room that all those Guests, with their Attendants, and other Magnificence did require, whereunto Westminster-Hall (he said) would scarcely have sufficed, concluded it, with good Ground, a Fable, and far incredible, and altogether impossible.

HIS Learning in Antiquities made him further useful, as in detecting Falshood, so in bringing Truth to Light, which sometimes tended to decide Differences, and bring Controversies to an End: As in settling and adjusting Bounds and Limits, he more than once was serviceable to the City. He ascertained the controverted Bounds of Lime-street Ward, towards the Wall, both against Bishopsgate Ward, and Aldgate Ward, by producing old Records and Charters of St. Augustine's Papey, a Church and House of Priests that stood there; tho' this Ward, whether by the Negligence of the Alderman of it, or some other Cause, had not then Right done it, according to the said Evidence.

IN the latter End of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, was a Controversy in Law, between the City of LONDON and the Lieutenant of the Tower, about the Buttings and Boundings of the City and Tower Liberties, which had been long in Contest; the City claiming the Tower-hill, and Little Tower-hill; and so taking in East-Smithfield. Then they made Use of Stow, as, by his long Experience and Converse in the City Records; likeliest to state this Matter clearly: But the Counsel of the Lieutenant, unjustly, bestowed this Term upon him, Their see'd Chronicler; Mr. Stow: Wherein surely that diligent impartial Historian was wronged, if the Words were taken in the worst Sense.

HE also set out the Boundaries of the Liberty of Creechurch within Aldgate, when it was sold to the City by the Lord Thomas Howard.

BUT to take some further Notice of John Stow, as an Antiquarian; his Affection for Antiquities made him very inquisitive after Things of that Kind; and a curious Observer, and a greedy Collector of them; of which take a few Instances.

IT was a notable Remark he made of King James IV. the unfortunate King of Scotland, and the strange Neglect and unseemly Disregard of his dead Body, which tho' once a King, could not obtain a Monument; no, nor a Place of Burial. He was slain in the great Battle against the English in Flodden-field; and his dead Corpse was brought away into England, and interred in the Monastery of Shene: Since the Dissolution whereof, the Duke of Suffolk was lodged, and kept House there. But among the Ruins and Violences offered to this Religious House, the Bodies of the Dead could not rest in Quiet: For here, in an old waste Room, among old Timber, Lead, and other Rubbish, did Mr. Stow's Curiosity lead him to see the Body of that King thrown, and wrapt in Lead close to the Head and Body. And what became of the Body afterwards, who can tell? but for the Head, Stow traced it further, telling us, that some Workmen, for their Pleasure, struck it off. Afterward, one Young, a Glazier to Queen Elizabeth, smelling a sweet Savour come from thence, (by reason of its being embalmed) and seeing the same dried from all Moisture, and yet the Form remaining, with the Hair of the Head, and Beard red, brought it to LONDON, to his House in Wood-street, and kept it for some Time; and in the End, caused the Sexton to bury it, with other common Bones, taken out of the Charnel.

ONE Observation more, made by him, may be here mentioned, which is taken from Buck's History of King Richard III.; which Historian saith of Stow, That he was a Man indifferently inquisitive after the verbal Relations of the Persons of Princes, and curious in the Descriptions of their Features and Lineaments. And that in all his Enquiries, he could find no such Note of Deformity in King Richard III., as Historians commonly relate; and that he acknowledged, vi-va voce, that he had spoken with some antient Men, who from their own Sight and Knowledge affirmed, That he was of bodily Shape, comely enough; only of low Stature.

HE was also a curious Observer of Manuscripts, and a diligent Procurer of them to himself, wheresoever he could. He was mightily delighted with the Sight of a large Vellum (the fairest that ever he saw) written by one John Coke, a Brother of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, at the Age of 68 Years. Which Book had belonged to the Library of the said Hospital, given to it, among other Books, by Sir John Wakering, Priest, Master of the House Anno 1463; and since the Spoil of that Library, came into the Custody of Mr. Walter Cope, Stow's worshipful Friend, where he had seen it.

HE had in his Possession a very valuable Manuscript, (both for the Writer and Subject of it) wrote by a remarkable Man, Edmund Dudley, Esq; a great Counsellor to King Henry VII.; but beheaded in the Beginning of K. Henry VIII's Reign, Anno 1509. It was called The Tree of Commonwealth, and treated of Politicks, intended for the Use and Service of his Royal Master King Henry VIII; but being a Prisoner at the Writing, never came to his Hand. A Copy of this Book Stow presented to Robert the great Earl of Leicester, sprung from the said Dudley; to whom it could not but be a very acceptable Gift: And he had his Thanks, but nothing else; as is observed before.

HE giveth us somewhere an exact Account of the Works and Manuscripts of John Gower, one of our antient Poets; and what were Printed, and what were not; some whereof he had in his Possession: And of the three Books lying under his Head in his Monument in St. Saviour's Church, viz. Speculum Meditantis, (which he tells us was writ in French) Vox Clamantis, wrote in Latin, and Confessio Amantis, which last only was printed. He spoke also of Gower's Chronica Tripartita; which, he saith, was never printed.

As for the Speculum Meditantis, he never saw it, but heard that it was somewhere in Kent.

THIS Tripartite Chronicle is (or some Time was) extant in the Cotton Library: It is writ in Latin Monks Verse, or at least some Part of it, as in one Place, where the Author compareth King Richard II, and his Successor King Henry IV together, in which Reigns Gower lived, preferring the latter to the former; Beginning

O! quam pensando, mores variosque notando,
Si bene Scrutetur R. ab H. distare videtur? &c.

HE was also possess'd of Leland's Commentaries, being a Description of Britain (as was observed before) the Value of which, and the Author, are sufficiently known; and of many more English and British Historians, which he lent to David Powel, D. D. in the composing of the History of Cambria, viz. in written Hand, saith that Author to the Reader, I had Gildas Sapiens, alias Nennius, Henry Huntington, William Malmesbury, Marianus Scotus, Ralph Cogsboll, John Eversden, Nicholas Trivet, Florentius Vigorniensis, Simon of Durham, Roger Hoveden, and others; which, he said, remained in the Custody of John Stow, Citizen of LONDON. Adding, how he deserved Commendation for getting together the antient Writers of the Histories of this Land.

WE are also beholden in a great Measure to him, as is before-mentioned, for some of the Editions and Enlargements of another English Poet, viz. Jefferey Chaucer; whose Poems were first collected and printed by William Caxton, Mercer, he that first brought the Art of Printing into England, in the Reign of Henry VI. They were increased again, and published by William Thynne, Esq; in the Reign of Henry VIII; since corrected, and twice increased, (as he writes) through my own painful Labours, in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, to wit, in the Year 1561; and again beautified with Notes, by me collected out of divers Records and Monuments, which I delivered to my loving Friend Thomas Speight. And he having drawn the same into a good Form and Method; as also explained the old and obscure Words, published them Anno 1597.

HE affected likewise old printed Books, and was a great Collector of them, whether History, Divinity, Physick, &c. the Names of divers whereof are mentioned before Anno 1568; when, by Order of Council, his Study was searched for Superstitious Books.

A few more Words are now to be added, to shew that he was skilful in some Sorts of Learning, necessary to qualify him for an able Antiquary, besides what has been already said of his natural Love of Truth, his diligent Inquisitiveness into common Reports and Relations, his laborious Searches after old Manuscripts; to which may be subjoined his Journies, which he sometimes took, to be an Eye Witness, for his better Satisfaction. He had Knowledge in Heraldry and Genealogy, which he had made good Use of sometimes, for the enlightning and asserfing some Matters of History.

Richard Lord Rich, some Time Lord Chancellor of England, made a great Figure in Stow's Time, being in high Place and Favour with King Henry VIII, and some of the succeeding Princes. This Man was raised from the City, some of his Ancestors having been of the Mercers Company; Stow thought fit, for the Honour of the City, to take Notice of it, and shew'd us the Pedigree of this Lord in divers Descents, as far back as his Great Great Grandfather; he being the Son of Thomas Rich; and Thomas the Son of John; John the Son of Richard, Sheriff of LONDON Anno 1442, and buried in the Church of St. Lawrence Jury; and he the Son of Richard Rich of LONDON, Esq;

HE was particularly acquainted with William Smith, alias Rouge Dragon, who communicated several things to him, relating to Pedigrees and Descents; and Stow again communicated some Remarks of Armoury to him. He got a Sight of a fine Book of Genealogies from Smith: It was of all the whole Family of Savoy, compiled by one Philibert Pingonio, an Italian, Baron of Guzani; and because some denied that Peter of Savoy, who built Savoy-House in the Strand, was Earl of Savoy, (as he asserted) he proved it by this Book, that set down Thomas Earl of Savoy's Pedigree; and thence, he saith, he gathered this: That the said Thomas had Issue, by Beatrice, Daughter of Aimon, Earl of Geneva, nine Sons and three Daughters: That Amadis his first Son succeeded the Earl of Savoy in the Year 1253; Peter his second Son, (the Person he was speaking of) Earl of Savoy and Richmond in the Year 1268; Philip his third Son, Earl of Savoy and Burgundy 1284; Thomas the fourth Earl of Flanders, and Prince of Piemont, &c. Boniface the Eighth, Archbishop of Canterbury; Beatrice his Daughter, married to Regimund Berengarius of Aragon, Earl of Provence and Narbone, who had Issue, and was Mother to five Queens. The first, Margaret, Wife to Lewis King of France; the second, Eleanor, Wife to Henry III, King of England, &c. So fortunate an Issue from a small Prince, that Stow thought it worth the transcribing and entering into his Survey.

HE was also acquainted with another learned Herald, William Segar, alias Portclove, an Officer of Arms, with the Earl of Leicester, Governor of the Low Countries, who gave Stow a Relation of the Manner of keeping the Feast of St. George at Utrecht; having got from the said Portclove, a true and faithful Description of it. This Herald gave him also an Account of the French King's Investing with the Order of the Garter. The same Portclove told Stow, that Martin Skinke, a valiant Dutch Captain (who was Knighted by Leicester at the aforesaid Feast) had promised to shew him seventy Ensigns that he had won in the Field.

HIS firm Judgment was, that the Arms of the City of LONDON, was ever borne with a Sword in the first Quarter, which was the Sword of St. Paul, and that it was at first only the Red Cross, till the Dagger was added, upon Walworth's valiant killing Jack Straw, in honourable Memory thereof to the City, was all Fable, as shewed before.

AND he was of the same Opinion afterwards, when Mr. Smith, the abovesaid Pursuivant, had told him, that in our Lady Church of Antwerp he had seen in the Windows, the Picture of King Edward III, and of his Son; and also the Arms of diverse divers Cities of England; and among the rest, a Coat with a red Cross, and the Letter L in the first Quarter; which he therefore thought might be the Bearing of the City of LONDON in those Times; Mr. Stow would not be so persuaded, but affirmed it to be always as it was. This Coat stood then in the uppermost North Window of that Church.

Stow was a true Antiquarian, in that he was not satisfied with Reports, or with the Credit of what he found in Print; but had Recourse to Originals. He knew how much Falshood is commonly thrust upon Readers, either by the Carelessness of Authors, or by taking up Things too credulously, and upon slight Grounds, or upon Hear-says, and the Credit of others. But Stow made Use of his own-Legs (for he could never ride) travelling on Foot to many Cathedral Churches, and other Places, where antient Records and Charters were, and with his own Eyes to read them. Wherein he seemed to be very expert, as appears by that Multitude of Quotations and Transcriptions out of Chartularies, Registers, Records, Instruments, Muniments belonging to Monasteries, that shew themselves in his History, especially in his Survey.

He seemed to have perused all the Monuments and their Inscriptions throughout all the Parishes of LONDON. He read Records of 400 Years before his own Time, which were occasionally once mentioned where he writeth of Shoreditch; which Place in his own Editions he always called Soersditch: And so he could prove it writ in Records for 400 Years, as he noted in his Margin. Where, by the Way, A. M. the Editor of his Survey after his Death, hath utterly falsified his Author. For where the true Reading of Stow's Margin was, Soersditch, so called more than 400 Years since, as I can prove by Record; the After-Editions read, Shoreditch, so called more than 400 Years since, &c. and so spoiling Stow's Sense and Meaning: And besides, every where those Editions read Shoreditch, where the former Editions set forth by Stow himself read Soersditch. Many such Errors crept into the last Editions of Stow's Survey, to the great Wronging of the accurate Author.

THERE is a Volume of these his Notes and Collections, which first came into the Possession of Sir Simmonds d'Ews, Knt. and afterwards was procured by the late Earl of Oxford and Mortimer, and placed in his fine Library.

AND tho' he were a Citizen, and bred up to a Shop, and Calling there, it is not to be doubted but he understood Latin well, as many other Citizens have done, and at this Day do, otherwise he could not have made Use of those many antient Historians of British and English Affairs, which he often quoted, and made very judicious Use of in his History: And he tells us expressly of his reading a Latin Inscription on a Stone-cross, in the Church-yard, founded by Sir Walter Manny for Burial in a great Plague, which was this. Anno Dom. 1349, regnante magna Pestilentia, consecratum fuit hoc Camiterium, in qua & infra septa presentis Monasterij, sepulta fuerunt Mortuorum Corpora plusquam quinquaginta millia, præter alia multa ab hinc usq; ad præsens; quorum animabus propitiatur Deus. Amen.

IN fine, his great Diligence is to be commended in Collecting, Retrieving and Publishing so much of the English History to the Honour of his Country, and the Place where he was born; and besides his own Endeavours, he wished and excited others of Ability in his Days, to do their Part in so noble a Study, and at least not to be behind-hand with the Monks and the Monkish Times, which he could not but praise for their Industry in writing their own Histories, or of the Times before them.

VOL. I.

AND further, it is to be marked in Stow, to shew his Zeal for Historical Collections, the Remembrance he had, and the Record he made not only of Monks in former Times, but of such as in latter Days bestowed their Labour and Pains this Way. He nameth three such. The first is John Shirley, who deceased in 1456, and lies buried in the Church of St. Bartholomew the Less, and hath a Monumental Inscription, were Stow cannot forbear to give this Account of him; that among other his Labours, he collected the Works of Jeffery Chaucer and John Lydgate, and other learned Writers. Which Works were wrote in sundry Volumes to remain to Posterity; and added, that he had seen them, and partly did profess them. (Perhaps it should be read, partly did possess them,) unless this his professing them may mean his owning himself a Student in them, and such like antient Writings.

THE second is Richard Arnold, who lived Anno 1519, a Citizen of LONDON, and inflamed with a Fervency toward good Learning, travelled principally in observing Matters worthy to be remembered, &c.

THE third is Sir John Wrist [the same Name, supposed, as Wryse or Wryley] "who gathered "by Commandment, at the Suppression of Abbeys, Charters of the Foundations of divers "Abbeys, Colleges, &c. This Sir John, studious of Britain's Antiquities, left his Heirs, in "writing, divers excellent Monuments, who did "keep them (saith Stow) too long from the Sight "of the Learned." So that he seems to have been in the like Commission with John Leland. But these two last have been mentioned before.

AND finally, he somewhere giveth this Commendation of Chronicles and Histories of Things past, that they were, Witnesses of the Times, Lights of the Truth, Encouragers of Virtue and Honesty, and Correctors of Vice and Wickedness. So that it seems to have been some publick Spirit for the Common Good, that actuated him to follow so industriously these Studies.

AND yet notwithstanding all his Skill, Study, Exactness, and laborious Collections, he had the Misfortune to have his Pains and Faithfulness undervalued by some, and that partly, because of his Trade and Calling. Among these Detractors was Dr. Sutcliff, a Person of considerable Eminency in the Church, who seems too hastily and passionately to write thus of him in his Answer to Parsons's Three Conversions. When Parsons had alledged Stow's Chronicle, concerning Will. Thomas's Attempt to murder Queen Mary, for which he was executed, as a Traitor, Sutcliff, in Answer, makes Stow to be very partial in Queen Mary's Matters; and takes Occasion to speak contemptibly of him; "as in nothing of any Authority, being a silly and unlearned Botcher, "and abused by crafty Suggestors." And in another Place, Ironically, "a Worthy Chronicler to "set forth the noble Acts of Taylors and Botchers, of which Trade he was." But it is a Sign that Reverend Man knew little more of Stow, than that he was a Taylor.

NOW, as to Mr. Stow's Religion and moral Qualities, let us add something for a Conclusion. He was, no doubt, at first, a Favourer of the Popish Religion, and adhered rather to that than to the Reformed, as may appear from the Jealousy the State had of him, which occasioned the Order to Grindall, Bishop of LONDON, Anno 1568, mentioned before, to have his Library searched for superstitious Books, and from the Books that were found there: As a little Book of Homilies, by Bishop Bonner; Sermons by Dr. Watson, Bishop of Lincoln; a great printed Book, containing a List of the Saints [which seems to be the Golden Legend] A Buckler of the Catholick Faith by Richard Smith, some Time Publick

Professor

Professor of Divinity in Oxford, a zealous Papist; A Defence of the Sacrifice of the Mass; The Assertion and Defence of the Sacrament of the Altar; A Confutation of a Book called, A Defence of the true and Catholick Doctrine, &c. against the late Archbishop of Canterbury: All by the same Author: The Displaying of Protestants, by Miles Haggerd; A Brief Shew of false Wares, by Rastal; The Copy of a Challenge, taken out of the Confutation of Mr. Juell's Sermon; The Trial of the Supremacy: Wherein is set forth the Unity of Christ's Church; and that there ought to be one Head, Bishop, &c. These Popish Books, with divers more, which have been taken Notice of, besides a Mass-Book, were found in his House; a Catalogue whereof was taken, and sent to the Bishop; and he, according to Order, sent it to the Council: Whence we may conclude which Way Stow stood inclined.

AND his Religion was, perhaps, the Grounds of all the Troubles he underwent, either in the Ecclesiastical Commission Court, or Star Chamber, when his own Servant, and Brother, were his chief Accusers, and laid many dangerous Things to his Charge. It might render him the less affected to the Religion in his Time reformed, when he took Notice, how ignorantly; nay, how ridiculously some shewed their Zeal, who professed and preached it: Among which was Sir Stephen, the Curate before-mentioned, who preached against the Shaft belonging to this Church, and who informed against the poor Man hang'd at Stow's Door.

BUT he seemed, at length, to have a good Opinion of the Doctrine of the Church of England; for in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, he hath somewhere this Expression, That Doctrine is more pure now, than it was in the Monkish World.

BUT whatever Respect he might secretly have for the old Religion, he could not endure Priests that were vitious and unchaste; and was for severe Punishment to be laid upon them; and that by the Secular Hand, without staying for Justice from the Ordinary, or their Spiritual Superior, on Pretence of their Privilege of Exemption from the Temporal Magistrate: And he blamed them for their Covetousness and Partiality in pecuniary Commutations. Thus, in a certain Place of his Survey, he praised the City for their exemplary Punishment of Fornication, tho' they took the Office sometimes out of the Hand of the Bishops, who claimed the Cognizance thereof to belong to them: Shewing, How they put both lewd Women, and Priests too, into the Prison, called the Tun in Cornhill, who were Guilty in that Respect. And he praised a certain Way, antiently used in the City for Punishment of light Females, by causing their Heads to be shaven, after the Manner of Thieves, and to be led about the City with Trumpets and Pipes founding before them, that their Persons might be the more known. "Nor did they (addeth he) spare an unclean Priest, a whit the more, because of his Office, but used such as hardly; saying, That they abhorred the Negligence of their Prelates, and detested their Avarice; That for Money, omitted the Punishment limited by Law; and permitted those they found Guilty, to live favourably by their Fines: Wherefore they would themselves, they said, purge the City from such Filthiness, least through God's Vengeance, either Pestilence, or Sword, might happen to them; or that the Earth should swallow them up.

AND elsewhere he speaketh of the Punishment of a Chantry Priest, as his just Deserts, in St. Michael's Cornhill, that had twenty Nobles a Year, as the Salary of his Chantry, who was too familiar with a Shopkeeper's Wife there; a Woman too that seemed the holiest among a Congregation. But the Husband once coming, made him leap out of Window, and afterwards caused him to be punished three Market Days, being conveyed through the High Streets and Markets of the City with a Paper on his Head wherein his Trespas was writ, and each Day rung with Basons, and Proclamation of his Fact, at the Turning of every Street, and also before Atwood's Stall (that was the Husband's Name) and the Church Door where he used to perform his Divine Service; and lastly, was deprived of the Benefit of his Chantry, and banished the City for ever. Thus Stow spared not to expose unclean Priests, and to applaud the Punishments of Shame executed on them.

AND indeed, on all Occasions he shewed great Dislike of all Immorality, Injustice, Wrongs, Frauds, Unfaithfulness, Falshood and Treachery, which shewed that Stow had an honest and good Mind.

AND this might be the Reason, why this good Man had the Mishap sometimes to fall under scurrilous and calumniating Tongues: One among the rest (whereof he was forced to make publick Complaint to the Magistrate) had intolerably abused him, even at his Shop-door, reflecting upon his Chronicles, nay, upon his Trade, as Taylor, and chiefly upon his Integrity and Truth in his Histories and Writings, as tho' they were but Lies; and besides abusive Language there was Assault and Battery added, together with all the Signs of Rage and Madness. All which after much Patience and Forbearance, able no longer to endure, he made his Complaint to the Magistrate. Which he drew up in this Manner:

"Pleaseth it your Worship to understand, how your poor Orator, John Stow, hath of late been more than too much abused by one William Ditcher, alias Tetford, and his Wife, &c." The Process whereof is too long to write; but briefly to touch Parts thereof. He spake much of this Man's railing at him, and of his Apprentice Fighting with Stow's Apprentice, and that he called him Prick-louse Knave, and beggarly Knave, and Rascal Knave, and said, that he made a Chronicle of Lies. That he said to the Parson of the Parish, and to the Deputy of the Ward, that there came nothing but Rogues and Rascals, and the vilest of the Land to Stow's House, which Rascals had him from Alehouse to Alehouse every Night and Morning. That Williams's Wife, before the Stall of the said John, railed against him more than a long Hour, but that he, John Stow, kept himself above Stairs, without any Answer making. That one Day the said William leap'd in his Face, and that he feared he would have torn out his Eyes, foully scratched him, drew Blood of him, and was pulled off by the Neighbours. That the said William threw Tilesheards and Stones at Stow's Apprentice, till he had driven him off the Stall from his Work. And then the said William came to John's Stall, and said, If he could catch the said Apprentice, he would cart him, and vowed he would accuse him to have killed the Man on the Mile's-End in Whitson Week [that it seems was found dead there.] He also said, That Stow's Wife had two Children by one Man, before she was married, to the great Slander of the said John Stow, and Hindrance of their Children, being four Daughters marriageable, and in Service with Right Worshipful Personages. Further, That he caused one John Sneyling, being drunk, to come to the Stall of the said Stow, and there to call him by such a Name, as himself better deserved; and at another Time called him the falsest Man in England, and threatned to cart him, if he could get him out of his Door, called him also also Common Proctor, Common Barator, Common Drunkard, Rascal, Villain, &c.

IT is no wonder if this honest Man, for his Hatred of vicious and base Actions, and exposing them, might thus be served :

To give then some Instances hereof.

HE often took Occasion to rebuke such as were false to their Trusts, and neglected the Performance of the Wills and charitable Donations reposed in them ; which, by his Experience, were most wretchedly abused sometime by Executors putting the Money, Lands, or Houses, into their own Pockets, or converting them some other Ways ; among the Gifts given for the finishing Guildhall, LONDON, he mentioned Nicholas Alwyn, Grocer, some Time Mayor, who, by his last Will, about 1505, gave 73 l. 6 s. 8 d. for a Hanging of Tapestry, to serve for principal Days in Guildhall ; but how that Gift was performed, he had not heard : A modest Expression, importing that they, the Executors, had not performed it ; and then more roundly he speaks it out in general. For the Executors of our Time, having no Conscience ( I speak of my own Knowledge ) prove more Testaments than they perform.

AND before him, Simon Eyre, [or L'eyre, as he is written] a Draper, sometime Mayor, who built the Granary and Chapel in Leadenhall, and deceased 1459, gave by his last Will and Testament (which Stow said he had read) many most notable Charities, and, amongst the rest, he gave the Drapers 3000 Marks, on Condition to establish in his Chapel a Master or Warden, five Secular Priests, six Clerks, and two Queristers, to sing daily Divine Service. Also one Master with an Usher for Grammar, one Master for Writing, and the third for Song, with Housing there, newly built for them for ever, with certain Salaries to each. And in Case the Drapers performed this not, then the 3000 Marks to go to the Prior and Convent of Christ-Church, with Condition as aforesaid, otherwise to be disposed by the Executors in Works of Charity. And then Stow's Conclusion bluntly and plainly follows. “ Thus much for his Testament not performed by establishing of Divine Service in his Chapel, or the Free Schools for Scholars ; neither, how the Stock of 3000 Marks, or rather 5000 Marks, was employed by his Executor, could I ever learn.

THE like Observation he makes of Bernard Randolph, some Time Common Serjeant of the City, who gave 1000 l. in Lands or Annuities, for the Relief of the Poor in the Wards of Queenhithe and Castle Baynard ( where probably his Habitation had been ) and in Tisehurst in Suffex, where he was born ; adding in his first Edition, ( left out afterwards ; ) but that Money being left in Holdfast Hands, I have not heard how it was bestowed. Having, very probably, made Enquiry after so large and notable a Legacy of that eminent Officer of the City.

AND of later Time, Alderman Billingsly, living in the Parish of St. Catharine Coleman, gave by his Will 200 l. to this Parish, for the Relief of the Poor ; which good Intent of his is observed not to be performed, and the Poor wronged : Tho' this indeed, is none of Stow's Observation, but of A. M. who set forth the Survey after Stow's Death.

AND therefore, as he writes in a certain Place in his Survey, having known these Legacies of Charity left in Trust with Executors, hardly, or never performed ; he wished Men to make their own Hands their Executors, and their Eyes their Overseers ; not forgetting the old Proverb :

Women be forgetful, Children be unkind,
Executors be covetous, and take what they find.
If any Body asks where the Dead's Goods became:
They answer,
He died a poor Man, so God me help and holy Dame.

NOR did he shrink at charging Corporations themselves, as well as private Persons for the Abuse of the Charities of the Deceased.

IN this [Aldgate] Ward, he giveth a List of many charitable Gifts of Sir John Milbourn, who was sometime Mayor, the Founder of the Alms-Houses in Crutched-Fryars ; and therein specifies a particular Number of Penny Loaves and Quantity of Coals to be distributed to the Parishes of St. Edmund Lombard-street, and St. Michael's Cornhill, for ever, and that he made the Company of Drapers of LONDON, Trustees ; and settled upon them, for Performance, Twenty-three Messuages and Tenements, and eighteen Garden Plats in the Parish of St. Olave Hart-street : Whereupon Stow makes this severe Note in the Margin of his first and second Edition, but left out in the After-Editions ; That these Points were not performed ; and that the Drapers unlawfully sold these Tenements and Garden Plats, and the Poor were wronged. But Stow, tho' otherwise most careful and exact, in this Matter was misinformed, there being no Mention in the Will of the said Milbourn, of such Bread or Coals given, or such Houses and Gardens assured to the Company : Yet hence may appear what a Dislike he had of those, who by such Practices wronged both the Dead that gave the Charities, and the Living who ought to enjoy them.

AGAIN, another Abuse he discovered in the Parish of St. Michael's Cornhill, where he was born ; and openly blamed the Executors and the Officers of the Parish ; the former for detaining, the others for being so slack in recovering : One John Tolus, Alderman, in the Year 1548, gave to the said Parish and Church-wardens his Tenement, with the Appurtenances in that Parish, towards the Reparation of the Church, and Relief of the Poor : But the Parish, ( as he writes ) never had the Gift, nor heard of it by the Space of 40 Years after. Such, saith he, was the Conscience of G. Barne, and other Executors, to conceal it to themselves ; and such the Negligence of the Parishioners, who being informed thereof, made no Claim thereunto.

THAT good Disposition that was in him towards Charity, made him preserve in his Survey, the charitable Gifts in many Parishes.

THIS Act also of his that follows, viz. in taking the poor Prisoners Part, will shew his Abhorrence of Oppression, as well as Debauchery. In the Year 1552, he was of a Jury of Inquest to make an Enquiry against a Sessions of Jail Delivery : In this Inquest he and his Jurymen found the Prisoners in Bread-street Compter, ( for then the Compter was there ) to be very hardly dealt withal in their Provisions, and otherwise, and that, notwithstanding many Warnings given the Keeper ( whose Name was Husbands ) by the Court of Aldermen, upon Complaint before. And moreover, they found that Thieves and Strumpets were lodged there four some Times in a Night ; whereby they might be safe from Searchers that were abroad a Nights. Husbands, was for these Crimes indicted at the Sessions, and made a Shift still to rub it out ; they removed the Prisoners away from him unto Wood-street, where the Compter is still kept.

THERE was another Sort of Men that this honest Heart rose against, that affected and strove to be Jurymen, who oftentimes for Reward were Perversers of Justice and Judgment. He called them the Ringleaders of Inquests making a gainful Occupation of it. Such as laboured to appear upon Nisi Prius's before they were warned, or procured to be warned, to come on by a Tallis ; and such as procured themselves to be Foremen, when they could, and then took upon them to over-rule the rest to their Opinion. Such a one should be laboured by Plaintiff and Defendant, not without Promise of Reward ; and therefore, said said he, to be suspected of a bad Conscience: And he added how he knew one such that was carted and rung with Basons, and banished out of Billingsgate Ward: And yet afterward in Aldgate Ward made Constable, a Grand Juryman, and Foreman of their Wardmote-Inquest; and that he knew the like or worse of others.

CHEATS and Impostors there were in his Time, who pretended to Skill, which they had not, or some Ways or other amused the People to draw Money out of their Pockets; of these many counterfeited themselves Physicians, who at the same Time got poor Peoples Money, and endangered their Lives too. Stow was glad when Justice took hold of them, and brought them to Shame. Two of these he takes Occasion to speak of, with their Punishment; one in the Reign of King Edward VI, about the Year 1550, a Poulterer of Surrey, named Grig, who, by giving out that he would take no Money for his Cures, and by pretending to heal by Words and Prayers, was taken by the People for a Prophet, as well as a Physician. He was set on a Scaffold in Croydon, with a Paper on his Breast, on which was written his deceitful and Hypocritical Dealings, and afterwards set on the Pillory in Southwark, on Lady-day Fair; when the Mayor and Aldermen riding through the Fair, he asked them and all the Citizens Forgiveness. The other Cheat of a Doctor was long before, viz. Ann. 1382, who, as Stow relateth, was set upon an Horse with his Face to the Horse's Tail, and the Tail held in his Hand as a Bridle; a Collar of Jordans about his Neck, and a Whetstone on his Breast [to denote him a great Liar] and in that Fashion led through the City, and then banished; and hereupon he telleth that many such Deceivers still were, who being never trained up in Reading or Practice of Physick, or Chirurgery, boasted notwithstanding to do great Cures, especially upon Women, as in making them strait that before were crooked, in any Part of their Bodies. The Contrary whereunto, saith he, is true, and then makes this Conclusion. That some had received Gold when they had better deserved the Whetstone. And lastly, as a Disproof of these Pretenders he addeth an Apophthegm witty enough, Not so easy to turn a crooked Body strait, as to turn a Mustard Quern. Nor one Leap out of a Docket maketh a Doctor.

BUT above all, he hated that Inhumanity, Ingratitude, nay Sacrilege, that many, in his Time, shewed to the Dead, in breaking down their Monuments, tearing away, defacing, and purloining the Brasses and Inscriptions, or other Ornaments thereon, alienating their Vaults and Burying Places, and not suffering their Bones to rest in Quiet; though many of them were the Builders, or good Benefactors to the Churches where their Sepulchres were. Against these base Practices, too common in those Times, he often took Occasion to declaim; and spared not them who were guilty herein.

AND as it grieved him to see the Monuments in Churches so violated, so he was much more grieved at the Overthrow of Churches themselves, and so many noble venerable Structures of Religion: And he could not forbear sometimes to express his Admiration of these fine antient Works, the Effects of former Piety and Devotion; and, with as much Modesty as he could, to reprove such as pulled them down for their own Gain and Covetousness. With such a Touch he wiped the old Marquis of Winchester, who obtained the Augustin Fryars in LONDON, or some other; to which belonged a most curious spired Steeple, small, high, and strait, which Stow was mightily delighted with, and said, he had not seen the like. The small Spire of this Church had been overthrown by a Tempest of Wind, Anno 1362, but raised anew to that Beauty in which he had seen it. And so, said he, it might have stood, had not private Benefit (the only Devourer of Antiquity) pulled it down. And then relating how the goodly Steeple, and all the East Part of the Church was taken down, and Houses for one Man's Commodity raised in the Place; LONDON, he said, had lost a goodly Monument; and Time hereafter might more talk of it.

ANOTHER good Quality of Stow was, his Pity and Compassion for the Poor, on whose Account he used to commend the antient Hospitality which afforded them Relief, by Food and Harbour. These Charities he observed to be much abated upon the Suppression of Religious Houses; many of those Helps and Succours of the Poor being sunk and lost, the Revenues falling into private Hands, and become the Possessions of such as were of a quite contrary Disposition to the former Owners. And where Houses were free for the charitable Entertainmet of poor People, even there (the Poor being turned out) Houses were sometimes erected for the Oppressions of the Poor, by hard Bargains made with the Workmen, and by racking the poor Tenants by advanced Rents. Upon this Occasion he would not forbear now and then to express his Mind; and particularly in Shoreditch Parish, where was a Place, called Rotten-row, consisting of small Houses with Gardens; which belonged to the Priory of Haliwel; who placed there a great many Poor, that dwelt there freely, only paying a Penny as an Acknowledgment to him at Christmas, who then feasted them all at the Priory with good Cheer. Afterwards, when that Priory was dissolved, these Houses, with the rest of the Revenues, were swallowed up; and came, at length, into the Hands of one Russel, who bought them a good Pennyworth, and new built them. And now was the Case quite altered; and there, where Charity and Relief was exercised, now became a Place of Rigour and Covetousness: For this Man made his Bargains so hardly with his Carpenters, Bricklayers, and other Workmen, that they were undone by it; and then so rented these Buildings, and took such large Fines of the Tenants, that it came to near as much as the Houses cost him: And yet the Place was now, from Rotten-Row, called Russel-Row, in Honour of his Name, as Stow smartly reproacheth him.

As he had a mighty Concern for the Reputation of the City, which it had obtained of antient Times, so he was uneasy at some Things in his Time that abated it, and made the Citizens degenerate. He observed how it bred warlike People, that delighted in manly and healthful Exercises and Sports, whereby they were fitted for War, and Defence of their City and Country; namely, Wrestling, Running at the Quinten, Shooting in the Long-Bow, Going to the Watches armed; which began now to be disused: Whereof that of Shooting was much laid by, because the common Grounds about the City began to be much inclosed; and so Room was wanted for that Exercise: Which Inclosures, for that Reason, as well as others, Stow disliked; and so instead of that, and the other becoming Recreations, the Sports that then took Place, were Creeping, he said, into Bowling-Allies, and Dicing-Houses, near Home; where, said he, they have Room enough to hazard their Money at unlawful Games: And where I leave them to take their Pleasures. And noted likewise the Pastimes in former Days, the younger Sort used to betake themselves to on Holidays after Evening Prayer; the young Men playing at Bucklers, and the Maids, in the Sight of their Masters and Mistresses, dancing for the Garland, hanging cross the the Streets, (but were now suppressed) worse Practices, added he shortly, within Doors were to be feared.

AND thus we leave these Memorials of this honest good Citizen, to his lasting Praise, and for an Example to all the Natives of this most noble City, and proceed to the other Monuments in this Parish Church of St. Andrew Undershaft.

NEAR Stow's Monument lieth buried the Body of Simon Burton, Citizen and Wax-Chandler of LONDON, a good Benefactor to the Poor of this Parish; who was three Times Master of his Company, and one of the Governors of St. Thomas's Hospital, and of the Common-Council of this Ward 29 Years. He had two Wives, Elizabeth and Anne, and had Issue by Elizabeth, one Son and four Daughters. He deceased the 23d of May, Anno Dom. 1593, being aged 85 Years. In whose Remembrance, his loving Daughter, Alice Coldocke, erected this Monument.

NEAR unto this Monument lieth the Body of Alice Byng, in a Vault with her Father Simon Burton: She had three Husbands, all Batchelors and Stationers. Her first was Richard Waterson; by him she had a Son. Next him was Francis Coldocke, by Birth a Gentleman; he bore all the Offices of his Company, and had Issue two Daughters, Joane and Anne, with whom she lived 40 Years. Lastly, Isaac Byng, Gent. who died Master of his Company. She died the 21st Day of May, Anno Dom. 1616, aged 73 Years, five Months, and 25 Days.

NEAR unto this Monument lieth buried the Body of Dorothy Greswolde, the only Daughter of Roger Greswolde, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor of LONDON: Which Roger was the third Son of Richard Greswolde of Solykull, in the County of Warwick, Esq; She was first married to John Weld, Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, who was the second Son of John Weld of Eaton, in the County of Chester, Gent. by whom she had four Children, viz. John, Elizabeth, Joane, and Dorothy. After his Decease, she married Hugh Offley, Citizen and Alderman of LONDON, and by him had only one Daughter, named Susannah. After his Death she lived a Widow 16 Years, and being of the Age of 60 Years, died in the true Faith of CHRIST, and Hope of eternal Happiness, the 29th of June, 1610.

HERE before this Place lieth buried the Body of Margery, late the Wife of Humphrey Turner, Gent. who deceased the 10th Day of December, 1607, being of the Age of 56 Years. As also the Body of her first Husband, Master Isaac Sutton, late Citizen and Goldsmith of LONDON; who deceased the 2d Day of May, 1589, by which Husband she had Issue, six Sons and six Daughters: All deceased at the Time of her Death, only Joane excepted, Daughter and Heir of the said Isaac, married unto William Howpill, Gent.

Tempus & Patientia.

IN this Church also lieth Sir William Craven, Knight and Alderman; and in the Year 1610, Lord Mayor of this City: Buried with great Pomp and Splendour; and yet without any Monument erected for him, though one of the wealthiest and most eminent Citizens of his Time; and from whom the Lord Craven descended.

DEATH hath added to the Ornaments of this Place, the blessed Memorial of,

VOL. I.

Edward Warner, Esq; a worthy Citizen and Merchant of LONDON, who departed this mortal Life the 28th Day of October 1628. He was the second Son of Francis Warner, of Parham, in the County of Suffolk, Esq; by Mary his second Wife, Daughter and Co-heir of Sir Edmund Rowse, of the same County, Knight. Which Francis Warner was truly and lineally descended from the antient and generous Family of the Warners, who possessed a Place of their own Name at Warner's Hall, in Great Waltham, in the County of Essex.

HE died without Issue, and made Francis Warner of Parham, aforesaid, Esq; his Nephew, and next Heir in Blood, the Executor of his Will, and principal Heir to his Estate; who out of Duty and Affection to the Memory of his dear Uncle, hath dedicated this Monument.

HE had to his first Wife, Mary, Daughter of Mr. Aylmer of Risden in Hertfordshire; and to his second, Margaret, Daughter of Mr. John Cheynie.

AT the Entrance into the Choir, and before the Pulpit:

HERE lieth buried Joane Cartwright, the Wife of Abraham Cartwright, Citizen and Draper of LONDON; who had Issue by him four Sons and five Daughters: And died the 24th of November, Anno Dom. 1609.

ON a fair Grave-Stone, lying in the same Isle, is thus written:

I. H. S.

Mors Christi, mihi Vita.

THE Memorial of Mrs. Elizabeth Turner; whose Body resteth here, in Expectation of her Saviour. She lived the sorrowful Widow of three Husbands, Andrew White, Cuthbert Burby, and Humphry Turner, Gent. and the most dear Mother of seven Children, being the Issue only of her second. Three of them buried her, Edward Burby, Cuthbert, and Joane; which inherit her Sorrow, to bewail their Loss. Her Dissolution happened in her great Climacterical, being on the tenth of the Calends of August, in the Year after her Saviour, 1630.

Refurgam.

In the Chancel are MONUMENTS for,

Humphrey Brook, Dr. of Physick, deceased ix of the Calends of December 1693, aged 76.

John Jeffreys, Esq; of an antient Family in the County of Brecknock, and in the Parish of Llywel, Merchant of LONDON, deceased Nov. 5, 1688.

Bridget, the third Daughter of Sir Christopher Clitherow, Knt. April 12, 1683.

Anthony Abdy, Alderman, and Abigail, his Wife.

Sir Christopher Clitherow, Knt. some Time Lord Mayor of LONDON, deceased Nov. 2, 1642; and Dame Mary, his second Wife, 13 Dec. 1645; also Mary, second Wife to James Clitherow, 14 Sept. 1662, and her only Daughter lying by her.

Charles Thorold, of the antient Family of the Thorolds of Lincolnshire, Esq; Nov. 30, 1691, aged 71.

William Wight, of the Company of Fishmongers, 29 July, 1672, and four of his Children.

Abraham Sutton, Merchant, lived in the City of Ghent 30, and there died. Buried here May 24, 1675.

EIGHT Sermons, 4*l.* given by Mr. Parker.

THERE was once an eminent School kept in St. Mary Axe, with this Inscription over the Door, Seminarium Ecclesie & Reipublice; but it is now put to other Uses.

THIS Parish is a Rectory in the Gift of the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of LONDON, worth about 250*l.* per Annum, and rated in the King's Books at 25*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.* and St. Mary Axe at 5*l.*

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Berriman, who has lately erected a very handsome Parsonage-House, adjoining to the Church, at his own Expence.

THE Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. John Withers.

HERE are Prayers at six o'Clock every Morning from Lady-day to Michaelmas, and at seven from Michaelmas to Lady-day.

THE Vestry is general.

The Parish-Officers are,	The Ward-Officers are,
2 Church-wardens,	2 Common Council-
4 Overseers of the	Men.
Poor.

THE whole Parish contains about 210 Houses.

THE Places of the Parish of St. Andrew's Undershaft, which belong to this Ward are; Part of Leadenhall-street, St. Mary Axe, Jessey's-square, Greyhound-alley, Bury-court; Part of Lime-street, Riche's-court, Lime-street-square, and Billiter-square.

IN St. Mary Axe are several very handsome Houses for Merchants, likewise the Fletchers Hall, which has nothing remarkable in it to be described.

IN this Street stood the Parish-Church of St. Mary, before-mentioned, commonly called St. Mary at Axe. Then come you to the Papey, a House wherein was some Time kept a Fraternity, or Brotherhood, of St. Charity and St. John Evangelist, called the Papey for poor impotent Priests, (for in some Languages Priests are called Papes) founded in the Year 1430, by William Oliver, William Barnabie, and John Stafford, Chaplains, or Chantry Priests in LONDON, for a Master, two Wardens, &c. Chaplains, Chantry Priests, Conducts, and other Brethren and Sisters, that should be admitted into the Church of St. Augustine Papey in the Wall. The Brethren of this House becoming lame, or otherwise into great Poverty, were here relieved, as to have Chambers, with certain Allowance of Bread, Drink, and Coals, and one old Man and his Wife to see them served, and to keep the House clean.

THESE poor Priests of the Papey (as also the Brotherhood of the threescore Priests, and the Company of Clerks that were skilled in singing Diriges, and Church Offices) commonly attended at solemn Funerals. Dame Jane Milbourn, Widow of Sir John Milbourn, in her Last Will, Anno 1543, willed to be buried in St. Edmund Lombard-street, and bequeathed to the Brotherhood of Papey to come to her Burial, and to pray for her Soul, 10*s.* and likewise to the Brotherhood of Threescore Priests in LONDON, to come to her Burial, and to pray for her Soul, 10*s.* and to the Brotherhood of Clerks, to come to her Burial, and pray for her Soul, 10*s.* and likewise to Bartholomew Lynsted, some Time Prior of St. Mary Overies, to come, &c. 6*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*

THEY that please may read more of this Church and Brotherhood in Lime-street Ward, and also in a MS in the Cotton Library, where an Account is given of the Foundation and Statutes of the Fraternity, in Honour of Holy Charity, and St. John Evangelist, for the Aid and Maintenance of poor Priests in the Church or Chapel of St. Augustine de Papey, within Bishopsgate, gate, made at various Times, with the Charter of the Donation of the Papey Church, and other Things belonging to that Fraternity; also the Names of the Masters and Wardens, from the Year 1442, Anno 20, Henry VI, to Anno 1548, Anno 2, Edward VI, when it was dissolved.

THIS Brotherhood (amongst others) was suppressed in the Reign of Edward VI. Since which Time in this House hath been lodged Mr. Morris, of Essex, Sir Francis Walsingham, Principal Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth, Mr. Barret, of Essex, &c.

NEXT to this was one great House, with handsome Courts and Garden Plats, some Time pertaining to the Bassets, since that to the Abbots of Bury in Suffolk, and, therefore called Buries Mark, corruptly Bevis Marks. And since the Dissolution of the Abbey of Bury, to Thomas Heneage, the Father, and Sir Thomas Heneage the Son.

THIS House and Ground is now increased into many Tenements, and, amongst the rest, the Jews of LONDON have built themselves a large Synagogue here, wainscotted round. It stands East and West, like one of our Churches. The great Door is on the West; near to which West End is a long Desk upon an Ascent somewhat raised from the rest of the Floor, where the Law is read. The East Wall is in Part railed in, and before the Wall is a Door, which is to open with a Key, where their Law seems to be laid up. Aloft on this Wall are the Ten Commandments, or some Part of them, inscribed in Golden Hebrew Letters without Points. There are seven great Branched Candlesticks of Brass, hanging down from the Top; and many other Places for Candles and Lamps. The Seats are Benches, with Backs to them that run along from West to East, and the Galleries above, for the Women to sit in, have Lettices before them.

NEXT to this, coming up again towards Aldgate, was the dissolved Priory of the Holy Trinity, before spoken of.

THE second Way from Aldgate, more towards the South, from the Pump, lieth Fenchurch-street, on the Right Hand whereof, near the End of Billiter-lane, is Ironmongers Hall, an old Building not worth describing; but of the Company we shall speak hereafter. On the Left Hand, or South Side of Fenchurch-street, runneth a Lane down towards Tower-hill, called Woodroffe-lane, and out of this Lane, toward the West, a Street called Hart-street.

The House of the Crossed or Crutched-Fryars.

IN this Street, at the South East Corner thereof, some Time stood a House of Crouched (or Crossed) Fryars, founded by Ralph Hosier, and William Sabernes, about the Year 1298. Stephen, the tenth Prior of the Holy Trinity in LONDON, granted three Tenements for 13 s. 8 d. by the Year, unto the said Ralph Hosier and William Sabernes, who afterwards became Fryars of St. Cross: Adam was the first Prior of that House. These Friars founded their House in the Place of certain Tenements, purchased of Richard Wimbury, the twelfth Prior of the Holy Trinity, in the Year 1319, which was confirmed by Edward III, the 17th of his Reign, valued at 52 l. 13 s. 4 d. surrendered the 12th of November, 30 Henry VIII.

ONE Andrew de Bures gave to this House, 5 Edward III, one Messuage and 28 Acres of Land, and one Acre of Meadow in Aketon; and one Messuage and 60 Acres of Land in Waldingfield in the County of Suffolk.

THERE was a Licence granted, 23 Edward III, to the Prior of the Holy Cross, to get Lands in Oxon: And likewise the Prior obtained a Grant for a Tenement in Synedene-lane, the same with that now called Seething-lane.

THE very Ruins of this Religious House are not now to be seen, and nothing of it remains, only it gives Name to the Street, being more commonly called Crutched-Fryars than Hart-street; but in the Place thereof now stands the Navy-Office, a noble Structure; and within the Compass of it many other fine Buildings.

AT a Common-Council, not long before the Beginning of Henry VIII's Reign, an Act passed for granting unto the Prior and Convent of the Crossed Fryars, beside the Tower of LONDON, (to the Intent that they should pray for the good Estate of the City) some common Ground of the said City, for the Enlargement of their Church, viz. in Breadth from the East End of their Church, from the main Wall thereof on the North Part, into the High Street there, five Feet of Assize; and at the West End of their Church, in Breadth four Feet and a half, stretching in Length from the East toward the West Part, seven Score and eight Feet and an half.

AFTERWARDS, at a Common-Council, holden on Tuesday, September 25, Anno 12, Henry VIII, the said Prior and Convent petitioned for Succour, towards the edifying and Maintenance of their new Church; and to take upon them, and the whole City, to be their second Founders. Whereupon it was agreed, that several Exhortations should be made in Writing, to every Fellowship in LONDON, to see what they would do for their Devotions towards the same; and such Sums to be certified to the Mayor and Aldermen, to the Intent it may be known to what it will amount.

A Prior of this House in Henry VIII's Time, was not so observant as he should be of the Rules of his Order; who on a Friday (a Day of somewhat more Mortification and Devotion than others) was found at 11 o'Clock, in Bed with a Whore, and taken by Barthelot, and others, appointed Visitors by Order of Cromwell, the Vicar General. For the concealing of this Incontinency, the surprized Prior distributed 30 l. presently among them, and promised 30 l. more. All which was certified to Cromwell, in a Letter wrote by the said Barthelot. These scandalous Crimes hastened the Dissolution of these Monasteries.

IN this House was buried Mr. John Tirres.

Nicholas, the Son of William Kyriell, Esq;

Sir Thomas de Mollinton, Baron of Wemese; who bequeathed by Will, dated 1408, his Body to be buried in the Chapel of St. Mary, within the College of the Fryars of St. Crucis, LONDON; and Dame Elizabeth, his Wife, Daughter of William Botelar, Baron of Wome, according to her Last Will, Anno 1410.

Rob. Mollinton, Esq; and Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter to Ferreis of Ousley.

Henry Lovell, Son to William Lord Lovell.

Dame Isabel, Wife to William Edwards, Mayor of LONDON, 1471.

William Narborough, and Dame Elizabeth his Wife.

William Narborough, and Dame Beatrix his Wife.

William Brosked, Esq;

William Bowes.

Lionel Mollinton, Esq; Son of Rob. Mollinton.

Nicholas Couderow, and Elizabeth his Wife.

Sir John Stratford, Knight.

Sir Thomas Affeldey, Knight, Clerk of the Crown, Sub-Marshal of England, and Justice of the Shire of Middlesex:

John Rest, Grocer, Mayor of LONDON 1516.

Sir John Skevington, Knight, Merchant-Taylor, Sheriff 1520.

Sir John Milbourn, Draper, Mayor in the Year 1521, was buried there; but removed since to St. Edmond's in Lombard-street.

4 Q

Sir

Sir Rice Griffith, beheaded on the Tower-hill 1531.

Sir John Milbourn aforesaid, was a Benefactor to this House of the Crutched-fryars: He set up his Tomb in their Church in his Life-time, and appointed a solemn Obit to be kept there, during the Life of himself, and his Wife Dame Johan; and, after his Decease, to be also kept in the said Church by the said Fryars, for their Souls.

AND his thirteen Bedesmen, dwelling in his Alms-House hard by, were to come daily unto this Church, where they should, in some convenient Place, near unto the said Tomb, abide and continue while the Service of God, or, at the least, until such Time as the whole Mass, which daily should be begun in the said Church by the Hour of eight o'Clock in the Morning, or thereabouts, should be sung, or said, for evermore, at the Altar called Our Lady's Altar, in the Middle-Isle of the said Church, founded by the said Sir John Milbourn: To the Intent that the said thirteen poor Bedesmen, afore the Beginning of the said Mass, one of them standing right over-against the other, about, and encompassing the same Tomb, or Burial-place, of Sir John Milbourn, shall severally, two and two of them together, say, the Psalm of de Profundis, and a Pater-Noster, Ave, and Creed, with the Collect thereunto belonging: And such of them as could not say the Psalm of de Profundis, were to say a Pater-Noster, Ave, and Creed. Which Prayers, as the Will directs, they should especially say for the good and prosperous Estate of the said Sir John, and Dame Johan, their Children, and Friends now living; and after their Decease, for the Souls of the said Sir John, and Dame Johan, and Margaret his first Wife, their Fathers and Mothers, Children, and Friends Souls, and all Christian Souls.

Two FRATERNITIES of Dutchmen, which Nation seem'd chiefly to inhabit hereabouts, were founded in the Church of these Fryars. The FOUNDATIONS and ORDINANCES whereof follow:

IN the Name of God that is Almighty, and of our Lady Seynt Mary his Moder, and for the blisfed Blode of hir Sone Ihu Cryst, which is by all Cristen People worshipped ad Wilsuak in Saxon, and opynly called, The Holy Blode of Wilsuak, and of all the Seynts of Heveyn the xiiij Day of April, the Yere of our Lord God M. Also, that all other Ordenaunces, Actis, Constitutions, and Rules made among the saide Bretherhede by theyr own free Willis and Consentions, specyfyed and declared in Duych Tong, whereof a Copy in a Seducle indented to these Presentis is annexed by the said Rulers and Governours, and theyr Successors for the Tyme being, and by all the Bretherne and Suiterne of the saide Fraternite, that now benne, and all those that hereafter shall be, and everych of theme, from this Tyme forwardis, be saythfully holden, kepte, performed, and inviolably observed, uppon the Paynes therein comprised and written, to be leved and applyd half thereof to the Use of the said Werkis of Paules, and that other half to the Use of the Fraternite.

Also, that the Rulers and Governours of the said Fraternite for the Tyme being, from henceforth trewly presente, without Favour or Excuse, unto the Judge Ordinary of my Lord Bishop of LONDON, for the Tyme being, the Names of all Manner of Persones, Trangressours, and Rebellis, being Bretherne of the said Fraternite, that offend in eny Point or Article of the Premises, and woll not be reformed by the Rulers and Governours within the Space of xv Dayes after theyr Offencis and Trespasses committed, und no Manne spare contrary to Truth. And yf the said Rulers and Governours, or any of theme, for eny Mede, Favour, or Love, lere spare, or woll not truly presente such Transgressours and Rebellis, and say trowth in that Behalf, forfeit, he, and every of theme, as often as he, or they, be founden in Faute, x*l.* of Wex, to be leved and applyd to the Uses aforesaid.

PROVIDED always, that yf eny of the said Transgressours, being Bretherne of the said Fraternite, fortune to be of such Poverty and Insufficientnes, that he is not able to pay the saide hool Fyns and Forsetures, or ellis yf eny other Consideration, or Remorse of Consciens, or Pitty, canne be thought in such Losses and Forseturs, that Consciens and Pitty wolde not that they shulde not be hool leved, That thenne by the Advyse of the said Ordinary Judge, and of the saide Rulers and Governours of the saide Fraternite, for the Tyme being, the said Fyns and Forsetures, by Grace, shall be mittigated and lessid, as the Case shall require, after theyr Dischrecious.

IN Stow's Time, the Place where this Church stood was made a Carpenter's Yard, and a Tennis-Court, and the Fryars-Hall a Glas-House; which House, in the Year 1575, on the 4th of September, burst out in a terrible Fire, and having in it about 40,000 Billets of Wood, was consumed to the Stone Walls, which were so thick, that they prevented the Fire spreading any farther.

The Fryars Hall made a Glas-House.

ADJOINING to this Fryars Church, by the East End thereof, in Woodroffe-lane, towards Tower-hill, are certain Alms-Houses, fourteen in Number, built of Brick and Timber, founded by Sir John Milbourn, Draper, some Time Mayor, 1521.

AND over the Gate towards the Street, the old Inscription, on a four square Stone, is still remaining, with the Figure of the Assumption of our Blessed Lady, supported by six Angels, in a Cloud of Glory. The Inscription is, Ad laudem Dei & gloriose Virginis MARIE, hoc Opus crexit Dominus JOHANNES MILBOURN, Miles & Alderman. hujus Civitatis, A. D. 1535. This Inscription, formerly obscure or defaced, is lately refreshed, for the better remembering the Founder of this Alms-House.

WHEREIN are placed thirteen aged poor Men, and their Wives, if they have Wives: These have their Dwellings, Rent free, and 2*s.* 4*d.* a-piece, the first Day of every Month, for ever.

Sir Richard Champion, Draper, Mayor, about the eighth of Queen Elizabeth, gave 19*l.* 14*s.* per Annum, to thirteen poor Alms-Men at Tower-hill: On whom Sir John Milbourn, Draper, and Founder, had settled the like Maintenance of 19*l.* 14*s.* before.

CONCERNING this Gift of Sir John Milbourn, it appears by Dolphin's Will, That he built 13 Alms-Houses in his Life-time on a Plat of Ground in the Parish of St. Olave's, near the Tower, in Aldgate Ward, next adjoining on the South Part of the Choir, or Chancel of the Conventual Church of the Priory of Crossed Fryars of London, and the Convent of the said Place, within the Precinct some Time of their House. Which Plat, or Parcel of Ground, contained in the East Part thereof from North to South, that is to say, from the South East Corner of the said Church along by the Highway there, unto the new House of one John Martin, 115 Feet and one Inch of Assize: And in Breadth from East to West, that is to say, from the aforesaid Way to the Convent Garden, 16 Feet and six Inches of Assize, &c. and so it goes, on setting out the Dimensions. The said 13 Tenements, or Cottages, contained about the

the eighth Part of an Acre, with the Appurtenances. This Sir John Milbourn had of Edmund Strettham, Prior of the Crossed Fryars, and the Convent; recovered 26 Henry VIII. as in the Hustens of LONDON appeareth of Record.

OF these said 13 Tenements, or Cottages, the said Milbourn, and Dame Johan, his Wife, made a Gift in Trust unto one William Dolphin, Citizen and Draper; as also of 11 other Messuages in several Parishes in LONDON: which were bought with the Money and Goods of the said Sir John Milbourn and Dame Johan.

THE Houses were these: Five Messuages in Thames-street, in the Parish of St. Laurence Pountney: Two Messuages with their Appurtenances in the Parish of St. Nicholas near Newgate: Two Messuages with their Appurtenances in St. Martin's the Great, some Time belonging to the Reverend Father in Christ, John, Archbishop of Thebes, and Commendatory perpetual of Carlisle: Two Messuages or Tenements and Gardens, some Time John Chester's, afterwards Dame Johan, his late Wife, married to Sir John Milbourn, lying in the Parish of our Blessed Lady of Aldermary: Eleven in all.

ALL these 11 Messuages, with the said 13 Cottages, the said William Dolphin, by his Last Will, bearing Date the 8th Day of December, 36 Henry VIII. devised and bequeathed to the Master and Wardens, Brethren and Sisters of the Guild or Fraternity of our Blessed Lady of Drapers; to have and to hold to them and their Successors for ever, for these Uses, viz. with Part of the Rents and Issues, to dispose and distribute 32 s. 10 d. Sterling, at 12 Times of the Year, to 13 poor People, Householders, either wedded Persons or unmarried, Brethren or Sisters, of the same Fraternity of Drapers, as should be admitted to the 13 Rooms: That is, 7 d. a Week a-piece, on every first Day of the Month, beginning the first Day of May in the Year 1536.

AND in case there should not be found within the Company of Drapers so many poor Householders as would receive the same Alms, then there should be named, to supply the same Number of Alms-men, other Householders of the Parish of St. Edmund's in Lombard-street, and St. Bartholomew the Little, to receive the said Alms.

THESE poor People were to be thus qualified, viz. to be of honest Conversation, and not detected of any open Crime; and after their Admission, should be restant and abiding upon the same; and not to keep any common Selling of Ale, Beer, or Wine, or any other Thing concerning Tippling, or any petty Ostrey.

THEY were to be nominated, and put in, by Sir John Milbourn, and Dame Johan his Wife, during their Mortal Lives; and after their Deceases, by their Executors: And then by the Master and Wardens and Assistants of the Drapers for ever: And the said Bedesmen, or Alms-Men, were daily to come unto the Church of the Crossed Fryars, in some Place near to the Tomb of the said Milbourn, and Dame Johan; and there to abide and continue while the Service of God was said.

THIS Allowance to the Poor of this Alms-House, the Worshipful Company of Drapers do faithfully pay; and have doubled it, and increased the Number of the poor Folks, from 13 to 15.

NEXT to the Alms-Houses was the House of the Lord Lumley, built in the Time of Hen. VIII. by Sir Thomas Wiat, the Father, upon a Piece of Ground that belonged to the Crossed Fryars, which is the farthest Part of Aldgate Ward.

ON the South Side of Fenchurch-street, over-against the Pump, among other large and handsome Houses, was one, some Time belonging to the Prior of Monte Jovis, or Monastrie Cornute (Hornchurch) in Essex. It was the Prior's Inn, when he came to LONDON.

THEN there is a Lane which leadeth down to Northumberland-place, in the Parish of St. Catharine Coleman: Here was formerly a House, which belonged to Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, in the 33d of Henry VI. but being left by the Earls, the Gardens thereof were turned into Bowling-alleys and Dicing-houses; but is now all built upon.

AT the West End of this Lane, in the Way from Aldgate to Crutched-Fryars, of old Time, were certain Tenements called the Poor-Jury, from Jews inhabiting there.

The PARISH of St. CATHARINE COLEMAN.

NEXT to this Northumberland-place, is the Parish-Church of St. Catharine, called Coleman; which Addition of Coleman was taken from a great Haw-yard, or Garden, of old Time, called Coleman-Haw, in the Parish of the Trinity.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified in the Year of our Lord 1620. In the Year 1624, their Vestry was built, and a Gallery new made for the Poor of the Parish to sit in; and having escaped the Flames in 1666, was again repaired in 1703. As to its Foundation, tho' the exact Time of its first Building cannot be justly ascertained, yet it is very probable 'twas built in, or before, the Year 1182, which was the Reign of Richard I. because that Date is carved on a Pew in the Church near the Chancel.

THE Building is partly Gothick, and partly of the Tuscan Order: And as to Ornaments, there is at the West End of the Church, a small Gallery, in the Front of which are several Figures of Cherubs, &c. done in Basso Relievo, and towards the South End hereof these Words:

Let thine Eye be upon this House Day and Night.

AT the North End of this Front, these Words:

This is the House of GOD, and the Gate of Heaven.

AND in the Middle, these Words:

Be Swift to Hear, be Slow to Speak.

THE Pews and Pulpit are plain, but neat; and, as a farther Ornament, here is the Portraiture of King Charles I. at his Devotion; in his Left Hand holding a Scrole, on which are these Words, Christo Tracto; under his Feet,

Carolus ΩΝΟΤΚΗΝ ΑΞΙΟΣ ΟΚΟΣΜΟΣ.
Heb. xi. 38.

Ecce Spectaculum dignum ad quod respiciat Deus operi suo intentus.

Vir fortis cum malâ fortunâ compositus.

Sen. de Provid. Cap. 2.

THE Altar-piece consists of the Commandments, done in Gold on Black, and the Lord's Prayer and Creed in Black Letters upon Gold; over the Lord's Prayer, are these Words, When ye pray say: And over the Creed these Words, Hold fast the Form of sound Words. All which are in a strong Quadrangular Frame, adorned with a Seraphim and two Cherubims painted, as are these Words in large Characters, The Law was given by Moses, but Grace and Truth came by JESUS CHRIST.

HERE is also in Memory of Queen Elizabeth, the Arms of England and France Quarterly, with this Motto, Semper Eadem. Under which are these Words, Elizabeth, late Queen of England, land, France, &c. came to the Crown November 1558; reigned 44 Years, slept in the Lord, March 24, 1602.

Many Daughters have done virtuously, but thou surmountest them all. MEMORIA IMMORTALIS.

MONUMENTS and INSCRIPTIONS, in Memory of Persons here buried.

ON the North Side of the Chancel, a Marble Monument, with this Inscription:

'Here lieth the Body buried of Elizabeth, late Wife of Henry Billingsley, one of the Queen's Majesty's Customers in the Port of LONDON, who died the 22d of July, 1577. With several Latin Verses, setting forth her Piety, &c. too long here to insert.

ON a painted Table, by the North East Corner of the Church, are these Words:

Georgij Christopheri Georgij Sebastiani ab Osterhausen Equitis Thuringij ex antiqua & Nobilissima Osterhanorum Familia Oriundi, &c.
Obiit 11 Kal. Decemb. Anno Sal. 1638.
Arms: Gules, a Bend Argent.

ON the North Side of the Chancel, a Monument, adorned with her Effigies, and two Babes weeping, &c. carved in Marble, is this Inscription:

D. O. M.

In an assured Hope to awake in the Resurrection of the Just at the last Day, to be Partaker with her Soul, of Life and Glory everlasting: Near unto this Place resteth the Body of Dame Mary, late the godly, virtuous, and loving Wife of Sir Richard Heigham, of East-Ham in the County of Essex, Knight, one of the Gentlemen Pensioners in Ordinary Attendants to our Sovereign Lord King Charles, and Daughter of John Colt of Rickmansworth, in the County of Hertford, Esq; She had Issue by her said Husband one Son named Francis, and three Daughters, namely, Mary, Susannah, and Anne; and having lived graciously and godly the Term of 33 Years and two Months, she yielded up her Soul into the Hands of God that gave it, the 27th of October, in the Year of the Incarnation of our Saviour JESUS CHRIST, 1634. To whose Memory the above-named Sir Richard Heigham, her sorrowful Husband, hath consecrated this small Monument.

Here these Arms appear, tho' somewhat obscurely: Two Coats impaled, one Sable, a Fess Chequy Or and Argent, between three Horse-heads, erased of the third.

Two Ermin, a Fess between 3 Colts Saliant, Sable.

OVER the South End of the Altar-piece, on a Table, this Inscription:

Near unto this Place lieth interred Robert Thacker, Citizen and Freeman of LONDON. He was a Man very expert in Military Discipline, which he gain'd in the Low Countries, and Irish Wars, wherein he spent seven Years Service; and afterwards, coming into England, was sworn Servant to three Princes, King James of Blessed Memory, Prince Henry, and our Royal King Charles, when he was Prince, and since he came to the Crown, in the Office of the Armoury.

He took to Wife Elizabeth, the Daughter of Stephen Clopton of Wykoreh, in the County of Bedfordshire, Gent. by whom he had five Sons and two Daughters. They lived together very lovingly 39 Years, in the Conjugal Tye of Wedlock; 38 Years whereof in this Parish, wherein he did bear all Offices; and being of the Age of 62 Years, he assigned his Soul into the Hands of his Redeemer, the 17th of June, 1642.

To whose Memory, his dutiful and obedient Son, John Thacker, hath erected this Monument.

Here are these Arms: Gules, on a Fess between 3 Lozenges Ermin, a Trefoil entre two Eagle's Heads erased, of the first.

2d. Azure, a Bend Ermin, between two Cottises Dauncette Or.

Sir Henry Billingsley was also here buried.

ON a large painted Table, at the South East Corner of the Church, this Inscription:

Hic situs est Jonas a Weely, Amsterdamensis Natus Anno 1606, Denatus Anno (August) 1630.

Dulcis amor rapuit me Anglorum visere terram,
Proq; Anglo Angelicam gratis mihi visere turbam,

Here are these Arms: 4 Coats Quarterly.

1. Argent on a Chevron Gules, 3 Escallop Shells Or.
2. Azure a Fess between two Roses in Chief Gules, and a Falcon peached in Base proper.
3. Argent 6 Flowers-de-lis, 3, 2, and 1 Gules.
4. Or 2 Hammers, Chevron-wise, Sable.

ON the North Side of the Church, near the Pulpit, is a spacious Marble Monument, adorned with several Heads, Cartouches, &c. carved, and this Inscription in large Characters.

HERE are these Arms, Sable a Cressent Argent.

ON the North Side of the Church, as you go up into the Pulpit, is this Inscription, upon a Monument, by Way of Epitaph, on the Death of the Noble Virtuous and Charitable Gentlewoman Mrs. Barnes.

In antient Times, the Friends surviving gave,
Some rich Memorial to the dead Friend's Grave;

Gold,

Gold, Pearls, or Gems, which Custom did intend,
Our Riches ought to wait upon our Friend,
In Life and Death. O blessed Ages! when Men parted Fortunes, and not Fortunes Men!
But now perverted are our present Ends,
That, for Wealth, sell the Fame of living Friends.
The Dead we live by, now can Scant afford
The Rites and Sacrifice of one good Word:
Of which, lest I be one, though I can bring,
For worthy Obsequie, no precious Thing;
My Gratitude presents unto her Hearse,
My Tears for Balme; for Offering my sad Verse.
Give leave, then, Grief, let my drown'd Muse declare
What she that's dead was, unto them that are,
The Rule and Index to find all the Good
That ever Heaven dealt upon Womanhood:
For if we but anatomize her Life,
We find both a good Woman, and good Wife:
First she lov'd God, not like the Pharisee,
In Ostentation and Hypocrisie;
But even with all her Heart and all her Soul,
She secretly did raging Sin controul:
For she, for Goodness sake, was innocent,
And not for Glory, or Fear of Punishment.
Next, to her Neighbour, did her Love extend,
Ready to help at Need, and to be a Friend.
The Poor, and those that never could repay,
But with their Prayers at the latter Day:
The Remnant of her Love she did bestow
Upon her Husband not in outward Show,
Or else in feign'd adulterate Flattery;
But in sound Truth, and deep Sincerity.
Thus did she live, divided in her Love
From this unworthy World and Nature then,
Which had but lent her, took her back agen.
Here let us live in Peace, and let us try,
To live like her, that we like her may die.
Come hither, Women, leave your Vanities,
Your Lust, your Scorns, your Pride, your Fooleries:
For hither you must all. The Dust and Grave
All your adored Braveries must have:
And all those Beauties, that are now afraid
Of Air, of Sun, must in the Ground be laid.
Then deck your Souls, unto whose Quintessence,
Nor Time, nor Death, nor Grave can bring Offence.
For so you may for ever beautifie
Your selves as Angels, in Eternity.

ON a Tomb, in the Southerly Part of this Church-yard is this Inscription.

This Vault was purchased, Anno Dom. 1674, for Mrs. Mary Wefenham, Daughter to Robert Wefenham of Totenhill, in the County of Norfolk, Gent. and for her Mother and Father, and for their Relations.

Lodg'd and retir'd, here does lye
A Virgin who had learnt to dye;
Betimes her virtuous Race begun,
And to our Grief too soon 'twas done;
Nothing below could court her Love,
Espous'd she is in Heaven above:
A joyful Festival to keep,
While with this Marble we must weep.
We'll in our Hearts engrave her spotless Name,
Which shall eternize Mary Wefenham.

ARMS; here are a Fess Dauncette, between three Mullets. The Colours not expressed.

AT the South Door of the Church is a Grave Stone, whereon is a Brass Plate with this Inscription, in an old Church Text Character.

I-humbly do require all which pass this Way,
For Henry Webb, Esq; his Soul devoutly pray;
Which Gentleman Usher was to King Henry VIII.
And now lieth here buried with Barbara his Wife,
Which the 5th of Feb. 1552, departed this Life,
And the last Day of March, in like Sort did he,
The 1000 Year of our Lord God Five hundred Fifty three.
On whose Soul, &c.

THEIR Effigies are both in Brass.

THE Vestry is Select, and consists of those who have served the Office of Church-wardens.

The Parish Officers are:

2 Church-wardens;
and they are Collectors
for the Poor.

The Ward Officers are:

2 Common Council
Men,
2 Constables.
2 Inquests.
2 Scavengers.

HERE is a Parish Workhouse.

THIS Parish begins on the East Side of Billiter-lane, against Smith's Buildings, and extends Southward to Fenchurch-street, and from thence on the North Side of that Street Eastward to Angel-alley, and Sugar-loaf-alley, and takes in Part of Angel-alley. On the South Side of Fenchurch-street it extends from the George Westward, to within about seven Houses of Mark-lane, and in that Compass takes in Northumberland-place, Magpye-alley, and French-ordinary-court, except one House; and in Poor-jury-lane, it extends on the West Side from the Sign of the Horse-shoe Southward, to within four Doors of the Pump in Crutched-fryars, and takes in Cock-alley, Three-crown-court, and Ball-court.

THE Number of House, 180.

IN this Parish was the Manor of Blanch-apleton, now corruptly called Blind-chapel-court: It belonged to Sir Thomas Roos of Hamelake, Knt. the 7th of Richard II. standing at the North East Corner of Mark-lane. In the 3d of Edward IV. all Basket-makers, Wire-drawers, and other Foreigners, were permitted to have Shops in the Manor of Blanch-apleton, and no where else, within the City or Suburbs.

As to the present State of the whole Ward it stands thus:

IT first begins with Aldgate-street, which is broad, but short, and very well inhabited by Tradesmen, and, by giving Passage through the Gate, to and from the adjacent Parts, is a very great Thorough-fare. This Street begins at the Gate, and runs Westward to the Pump, where it divides itself into two Streets; one falling into Leadenhall-street, and the other into Fenchurch-street. Next the Gate is the chief, but narrow Entrance into Duke's-place, which is large, and for the most Part inhabited by Jews.

In this Place are several Courts, some of which are very large; as, where the Church of St. James Duke's Place stands. This Church did pretend to a Privilege above others, especially in Marrying without Licenses, which was, not many Years ago, taken away, by Act of Parliament, as well as from the Minories, and others, by laying very heavy Pecuniary Mulcts upon all Persons whatsoever who marry without Banns, or License. Out of this Court, where the Church stands, is a Passage under an Arch into another large one, called Duke's Place Court; and to these two Courts, there are two Out-lets into that Part of Duke's Place which fronteth London-Wall, along which is a narrow Lane, called commonly Duke's Place, which turning South leads to Aldgate, and North West to Bevis Marks, a Place generally taken up by Shoemaker's Shops. Here is a small Place, called Vine Court, which is but ordinary. Likewise out of Duke's-place-court is a Street which leadeth to another, and both called Duke's Place. In this Place, in a large upper Room, was the old Jews Synagogue: From this Part is Henage-lane, which is but ordinary, and falls into Bevis Marks, which comes out of Duke's Place by London-wall, and falls into Camomile-street, which runs along by the Wall as far as St. Mary-axe: But neither this nor Bevis Marks are Places of great Account. On the South Side here is Plough-yard, which is pretty large, but chiefly taken up for Stabling and Coach-houses, but towards the upper End hath one handsome House, with a Garden before it; and near this Yard is Berry-street, which is very handsome and cleanly kept, with good uniform Buildings on both Sides, which are well inhabited by Merchants, and Persons of Repute, who dwell privately, without Shops: This Street falls into one Part of Duke's-place, where there is a narrow Passage into St. Mary-axe, called Greyhound-alley, which is but ordinary.

St. Mary-axe, a Street that comes out of Bevis Marks by London-wall, and runneth up South to Leadenhall-street against Lime-street. And this Street, especially the East Side, (which is only in this Ward) is generally taken up by Merchants, there being divers large and handsome Buildings seated backwards, with good Entrances to them shut up by Gates; and many of them have Gardens behind them.

At the North End of St. Mary-axe, is Fletcher's Hall, and at the South Corner the Parish Church of St. Andrew Undershaft.

Leadenhall-street, a Place of great Trade, well inhabited, and a great Thorough-fare. In this Street are these Places; Pewter-pot-Inn; Allen's-court hath one large House that fronts the Street, being some Time the Seat of Sir Thomas Allen, and therefore so called; Wheat-sheaf-alley, hath a dark Entrance, and is but ordinary; Axe-alley, hath several Turnings, and leads into Bucker's-gardens, and so into Duke's-place, by the Jews Synagogue; the Crown Tavern, large and of a good Trade; the Royal African House, a large House, being the Place for the Management of the Affairs of that Company; Sugar-loaf-court, a pretty handsome Place, with a Free-Stone Pavement, well built and inhabited; Black-raven-alley, small and ordinary; Little Duke's-place, also mean and small.

Lime-street, on the South Side of Leadenhall-street, leads into Fenchurch-street, and is for the generality taken up by Merchants, and Persons of Repute. The West Side of this Street lieth in Lime-street Ward; some Part in Langborn Ward; there being in this Ward but the East Side, from Leadenhall-street Corner unto a late built Street, called Cullum-street, from the Builder: And in this Part is Axe-yard, which is but indifferent; Lime-street-alley, by some called Billiter-alley, as leading into Billiter-square, and through that Square East into Billiter-lane; betwixt this Alley an Axe-yard is a new Court built out of some Houses pulled down.

EAST of Lime-street is Billiter-lane, which goes out of Leadenhall-street, and falls into Fenchurch-street against the End of Mark-lane. This Lane is of very little Account, the Buildings being very old Timber Houses, which much want pulling down and new building, and the Inhabitants being as inconsiderable; as small Brokers, Chandlers, and such like: And 'tis great Pity that a Place so well seated should be so mean: But the chief Ornament of this Place is Billiter-square, on the West Side; which is a very handsome, open, and airy Place, graced with good new Brick Buildings, well inhabited; and out of this Square is a handsome Free-Stone Passage, called Smith's Rents, which leadeth to Fenchurch-

Fenchurch-street; in this Street or Lane is Billet-court, which is both small and ordinary.

Mark-lane, or Mart-lane, entering into which, on the Left Hand, there is a large, open, square Place, with a Passage to it for Carts, called Blanch-ableton-court: It hath a turning Passage on the South Side, by an Alley, which encompasseth some of the Houses. More South is Pick-axe-alley, very small and ordinary, with a dark Entrance into it. This Lane is very long, falling into Tower-street; but the Part in this Ward is but small, viz. the East Side from the Corner of Fenchurch-street, to Pick-axe-alley, the greatest Part being in Tower-street Ward, with some Part in Langborn Ward.

Fenchurch-street is long, reaching from the Pump within Aldgate to Gracechurch-street, and, for the generality, well inhabited, and amongst the Inhabitants divers Merchants: But of this Street, there is in this Ward no more than from Billiter-lane to Aldgate-street, on the North Side, and a little beyond Mark-lane to Aldgate-street, on the South Side; the rest being in Langborn Ward. Between Mark-lane and St. Catharine Coleman Church, is a new Street lately built, with very handsome Houses in it, called London-street, at the Corner of which, in Fenchurch-street, is a large House, called the London-Tavern, which for elegant Entertainment is scarcely exceeded by any Tavern in the City, not even Pontack's, or the Rummer in Queen-street. Overagainst St. Catharine Coleman Church is a magnificent House now Building for two Jews, Brothers, whose Names are Franco. Adjoining to this Church, Westward, is Magpye-alley, which hath a narrow Passage into French-Ordinary-court, and so into Crutched-fryars. Sugarloaf-alley hath a Passage, with Free-stone Pavement, into Leadenhall-street. Northumberland-alley, which is where Northumberland-house once stood, but now converted into other Buildings, is very long, which, with several turning Passages, falls into Crutched-fryars; and for the generality is but an ordinary Place, as well for Houses as Inhabitants, yet not without some few that are good.

Crutched, Crouched, or Crossed-fryars, begins in the West at Hart-street, and runs Eastward, taking in Part of the Navy-Office, and then turning Northwards falls into Aldgate; but that Part that runs Northward is called Poor-jury-lane, which is but ordinary. This Crutched-fryars-street hath several good Buildings and Places of Name, viz. on the North Side, French-Ordinary-court, already mentioned, being a large open Place, with good Buildings, especially on the East Side; having Pallisado Pales, with Trees before the Court-Yards of the Houses, and a Free-stone Pavement between the Houses. Out of this Court is a Passage down Steps into Fenchurch-street.

THE Navy-Office, on the South Side of the Street, hath some Part in this Ward, viz. almost all the first Court, with the Side Buildings, and some small Part of the Office itself; the other Part, viz. the back Part being in Tower-street Ward, where it is before spoken of.

Bunt's-Yard seated not far from the Navy-Office Eastward, a pretty large Place, but only for Stabling. Allam-yard, taken up for Warehouses. River-street, a good large open Place, with Brick Buildings, well inhabited, leads to Great Tower-hill. Out of this Street, on the East Side, is Colchester-street; it hath good Brick Buildings, and falls into Woodroffe-lane, which begins at Crutched-fryars, and so leads to Tower-hill, in which Lane is a Mixture of Brick and Timber Houses pretty well built and inhabited. In this Lane is Chain-alley, which hath one good House and Garden to it. At the upper End of this Lane, and fronting Crutched-fryars, are good Brick Buildings, called Gold-square, well inhabited. Gunpowder-alley, hath at the Upper-End ten Alms-Houses for Men and their Wives, being the Gift of the Lord Banning, and now called Oxford's Alms-Houses, the Earl marrying an Heiress of the Bannings; these have but small Allowances. Northumberland-alley comes out here into Poor-jury-lane, where is a large Brew-house. Black-horse-yard, for Stabling, with some Dwelling-Houses in it. Flower-de-lis-court, but small. Three-crown-court, a handsome open Place, with a Free-stone Pavement. Holfey's Rents, very small and ordinary. Car-penter's-yard, a good handsome Court, very well inhabited. George-alley, long and narrow, with a Passage to Aldgate.

THIS Ward hath an Alderman, his Deputy, six Common-Council-Men, six Constables, nine Scavengers, eighteen Wardmote-Men for Inquest, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen in LONDON, at 5 l.

THERE are to watch at the several Stands in this Ward, every Night, besides the Constable and Beadle, 34 Watchmen; and for the Liberty of Duke's-place 10; in all 44.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest, are to serve as Jurors in the several Courts in Guildhall, in the Month of January.

THE Alderman of this Ward is Micajah Perry, Esq;

C H A P. IV.

L I M E - S T R E E T W A R D.

THE next is Lime-street Ward, which Street it is supposed had first its Name from making or selling Lime there. The East Side of this Lime-street, from the North Corner thereof, to the midst, is of Aldgate Ward, as is said before: The West Side, for the most Part from the North Corner Southward, is of this Lime-street Ward: The South End on both Sides is of Langborn Ward.

MONUMENTS, or Places of Note in this Ward are these: In Lime-street are several handsome Houses for Merchants and others: There was some Time a Mansion House of the King's, called The King's Artirce, whereof there was a Record in the 14th of Edward I. but now grown out of Knowledge. There was another great House on the West Side of Lime-street, having a Chapel on the South, and a Garden on the West, then belonging to the Lord Nevill, which Garden was afterwards called the Green-yard of the Leadenhall.

AT the North West Corner of Lime-street, was, of old Time, a great Messuage, called Ben-bridge's Inn: Raphe Holland, Draper, about the Year 1542, gave it to John Gill, Master, and to the Wardens and Fraternity of Taylors, and Linnen Armorers of St. John Baptist in LONDON, and to their Successors for ever. They set up in the Place of it a large Frame of Timber, containing in the High Street one great House, and before it, to the Corner of Lime-street, three other Tenements, the Corner House being the largest: And then down Lime-street several Tenements, all which the Merchant-Tailors, in the Reign of Edward VI, sold to Stephen Kyrton, Merchant-Taylor and Alderman. He gave with his Daughter Grifild, to Nicholas Woodroffe, the said great House, with two Tenements before it, in lieu of an hundred Pounds: Next to this in the High-street was the Lord Zouch's Mesuage, or Tenement, and others. In the Place of which, Richard Wetkel, Merchant-Taylor, built a handsome House, with a high Tower, the second in Number, and first of Timber, that had ever been built, to overlook Neighbours in the City.

NEXT to this, was another handsome House, built by Stephen Kyrton, Alderman; afterwards rebuilt by Alderman Lee; but, when Monday's Edition of Stow came out, in the Possession of Sir William Craven.

THEN was there a good House, of old Time, called the Green-gate, with a Tenement and nine Shops, which Richard II, in the 15th Year of his Reign, gave to Roger Crophull, and Thomas Bromeflet, Esqrs; by the Name of the Green-gate, in the Parish of St. Andrew upon Cornhill, in Lime-street Ward: Since which Time, Philip Malpas, some Time Alderman, and one of the Sheriffs, dwelled therein, and was there robbed of his Goods, to a great Value, by Jack Cade, and other Rebels, in the Year 1449.

AFTERWARDS, in the Reign of Henry VII, it was seized into the King's Hands; and then granted first unto John Alston, after that, unto William de la Rivers, and since by Henry VIII, to John Mutas, a Pickard, or Frenchman, who dwelled there, and harboured in his House many Frenchmen, that calendred Worsted, and did other Things, contrary to the Franchises of the Citizens. Wherefore on Evil May-day, which was in the Year 1517; the Apprentices and others spoiled his House, and if they could have found Mutas, they would have struck off his Head. Sir Peter Mutas, Son to the said John Mutas, sold this House to David Woodroffe, Alderman, whose Son Sir Nicholas Woodroffe, Alderman, sold to John Moore, Alderman, that next possessed it.

NEXT was a House, called the Leaden-porch, divided into two Tenements, whereof one was a Tavern, the other House for a Merchant, likewise called the Leaden-porch.

NEAR this was a handsome House, wherein divers Mayoralties had been kept, whereof two in the Remembrance of Stow, to wit, Sir William Bowyer, and Sir Henry Huberthorne.

THE next was the Leadenhall, which in the Year 1309, belonged to Sir Hugh Nevill, Knt. and the Lady Alice, his Widow, made a Feoffment thereof, by the Name of Leadenhall, with the Advowsons of the Church of St. Peter on Cornhill, and other Churches, to Richard Earl of Arundel and Surrey, 1362.

MORE, in the Year 1380, Alice Nevill, Widow to Sir John Nevill, Knt. of Essex, conformed to Thomas Cogshall, and others, the said Manor of Leadenhall, and the Advowsons, &c.

IN the Year 1384, Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford, had the said Manor. And in the Year 1408, Robert Rikeden of Essex, and Margaret his Wife, confirmed to Richard Whittington, and other Citizens of London, the said Manor of Leadenhall, with the Appurtenances, the Advowson of St. Peter's Church, St. Margaret Pattens, &c.

AND in the Year 1411, the said Whittington and others confirmed the same to the Mayor and Commonalty of London, whereby it came to the Possession of the City.

THEN in the Year 1443, the 21st of Henry VI, John Hatberly, Mayor, purchased Licence of the said King to take up 200 Fodder of Lead, for the building of Water Conduits, a common Granary, and the Cross in West Cheap, more richly for the Honour of the City.

IN the Year next following, the Parson and Parish of St. Dunstan in the East of London, seeing the famous and mighty Man (for the Words be in the Grant, Cum nobilis & potens vir,) Simon Eyre, Citizen of London, among other his Works of Piety, effectually determined to erect and build a certain Granary, upon the Soil of the same City at Leadenhall, at his own Charges, for the common Utility of the said City; to the amplifying and enlarging of the said Granary, granted to Henry Frowicke, then Mayor, the Aldermen and Commonalty and their Successors, for ever, all their Tenements, with the Appurtenances, sometime called the Horse Mill in Grass-street, for the annual Rent of four Pounds, &c.

ALSO, certain Evidences (of an Alley and Tenements pertaining to the Horse Mill, adjoining to the said Leadenhall in Grass-street, given by William Kingstone, Fishmonger, unto the Parish Church of St. Peter upon Cornhill) do specify the said Granary, to be built by the said honourable and famous Merchant, Simon Eyre, sometime an Upholster, and then a Draper, in the Year 1419. He built it of squared Stone in the Form as now it sheweth, with a large Chapel in the East Side of the Quadrant, over the Porch of which he caused to be written, Dextra Domini exaltavit me, The Lord's Right Hand exalted me.

WITHIN the said Chapel on the North Wall was written, Honorandus famosus Mercator. Simon Eyre, hujus Operis, &c. The honourable and famous Merchant, Simon Eyre, Founder of this Work, (once Mayor of this City,) Citizen and Draper of the same, departed out of this Life the 18th Day of September, the Year from the Incarnation of Christ 1459, and the 38th Year of the Reign of Henry VI. He was buried in his Parish Church of St. Mary Woolnoth in Lombard-street: He gave by his Testament somewhat to be distributed to all Prisons in LONDON, or within a Mile of that City to relieve them.

MORE, he gave 2000 Marks upon a Condition, which not performed, was then to be distributed to Maids Marriages, and other Deeds of Charity: He also gave 3000 Marks to the Company of Drapers, upon Condition, that they should, within one Year after his Decease, establish perpetually a Master or Warden, five Secular Priests, six Clerks, and two Choristers, to sing daily Divine Service by Note, for ever, in his Chapel of the Leadenhall: Also three School-Masters, with an Usher, to wit, one Master with an Usher for Grammar, one Master for Writing, and the third for Singing, with Housing there newly built for them, for ever: The Master to have a Salary of 10*l.* and every other Priest 8*l.* every other Clerk 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* and every other Chorister, five Marks; and if the Drapers refused this to do, within one Year after his decease, then the three thousand Marks to remain to the Prior and Convent of Christ's Church in LONDON, with Condition to establish as is aforesaid, within two Years after his Decease: And if they refused, then the 3000 Marks to be disposed by his Executors, as they best could devise in Works of Charity.

THUS much for his Testament, not performed, by establishing of Divine Service in his Chapel, or Free-Schools for Scholars; neither how the Stock of 3000 Marks, or rather 5000 Marks, were employed by his Executors, was ever known. He left Issue, Thomas, who had Issue, Thomas, &c. True it is, that in the Year 1464, the 3d of Edward IV, it was agreed by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of LONDON, that notwithstanding the King's Letters Patent, lately before granted to them, touching the Tro-nage, or Weighing of Wares, to be held at the Leadenhall; yet Suit should be made to the King for new Letters Patent, to be granted to the Mayor, of the Staple, for the Tronage of Wools to be held there, and Order to be taken at the Discretion of Thomas Cooke, then Mayor, the Counsel of the City, Jeffrey Fielding, then Mayor of the Staple at Westminster, and of the King's Council, what should be paid to the Mayor and Aldermen of the City, for Laying and Housing of the Wool there, that so they might be brought forth and weighed, &c.

As to the Chapel there, in the Year 1466, by Licence obtained of King Edward IV. in the 6th of his Reign, a Fraternity of the Trinity of sixty Priests, besides other Brethren and Sisters, in the same Chapel, was founded by William Rouse, John Risby, and Thomas Ashby, Priests.

SOME of the which sixty Priests, every Market Day in the Forenoon, did celebrate Divine Service there, to such Market-People that repaired to Prayer: And once, every Year, they met all together, and had solemn Service, with Procession of all the Brethren and Sisters. This Foundation was in the Year 1512, by a Common-Council, confirmed to the sixty Trinity Priests, and to their Successors, at the Will of the Mayor and Commonalty.

IN the Year 1484, a great Fire happened upon the Leadenhall; many Houses were there destroyed, with all the Stocks for Guns, and other Provision belonging to the City, which was a great Loss, and no less Charge to be repaired by them.

IN the Year 1503, the 18th of Henry VII. a Request was made by the Commons of the City, concerning the Usage of the said Leadenhall, in Form as followeth:

Please it the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council, to enact,

“ THAT all Frenchmen, bringing Canvas, Linnen Cloth, and other Wares to be sold, and all Foreigns bringing Wolstens, Says, Stamins, Riverings, Nails, Iron-work, or any other Wares, and also all Manner of Foreigns, bringing Lead to the City to be sold, shall bring all such their Wares aforesaid, to the open Market of the Leadenhall there, and no where else, to be shewed, sold, and uttered, like as of old Time it hath been used, upon Pain of Forfeiture of all the said Wares, shewed, or sold, in any other Place than aforesaid. The Shew of the said Wares to be made three Days in a Week; that is to say, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. It is also thought reasonable that the Common Beam be kept, from henceforth in the Leadenhall; and the Farmer to pay therefore, reasonable Rent to the Chamber: For better it is, that the Chamber have Advantage than a Foreign Person. And also the said Leadenhall, which is more chargeable now by half than profitable, shall better bear out the Charges thereof. Also the Common Beam for Wool, at Leadenhall, may pay yearly a Rent to the Chamber of LONDON, toward the Supportation and Charges of the same Place; for Reason it is, that a common Office occupied upon a common Ground, bear a Charge to the Use of the Commonalty. Also that Foreigns bringing Wools, or any other Merchandizes, or Wares, to Leadenhall, to be kept there for the Sale and Market, may pay more largely for keeping of their Goods than Freemen.

THUS much for the Request of the Commons at this Time.

Now to set down some Proofs that the same hath been employed and used as a Granary for Corn and Grain, (as the same was first appointed) leaving all former Examples, this one may suffice;

Roger Achley, Mayor of LONDON in the Year 1512, the 3d of Henry VIII. when the said Mayor entered his Mayoralty, there was not found one hundred Quarters of Wheat in all the Garners of this City, either within the Liberties, or near adjoining: Through which Scarcity, when the Carts of Stratford came laden with Bread to the City (as they had been accustomed) there was such Prefs about them, that one Man was ready to destroy another, in striving to be served for their Money: But this Scarcity lasted not long; for the Mayor (in short Time) made such Provision of Wheat, that the Bakers both of LONDON and Stratford were weary of taking it up, and were forced to take much more than they would: And for the rest, the Mayor laid out the Money, and stowed it up in Leadenhall, and other Garners of the City. This Mayor also kept the Market so well, that he would be at the Leadenhall by four o'Clock in the Summer Mornings, and from thence he went to other Markets, to the great Comfort of the Citizens.

MOREOVER, in the Year 1528, the 20th of Henry VIII. Surveyors were appointed to view the Garners of the City; namely, the Bridge-house, and Leadenhall, how they were stored with Grain, for the Service of the City.

THE Bread Carts, before mentioned, were certain long Carts, which the Bakers of Stratford were allowed to bring daily, except on the Sabbath, and principal Holidays, laden with Bread, two Ounces in the Penny Wheat Loaf, heavier than the Penny Wheat Loaf baked in the City; the same to be sold in the Cheap, three, or four, Carts standing there, between Guthe-ran's-lane and Fauster's-lane End; one Cart on Cornhill, by the Conduit, and one other in Grass-street. In the fourth Year of Edward II. Richard Reffham being Mayor, a Baker, named John of Stratford, for making Bread less than the Assize, was, with a Fool's-Hood on his Head, and Loaves of Bread about his Neck, drawn on a Hurdle through the Streets of the City.

MOREOVER, in the 44th Year of Edw. III. John Chichester being Mayor of LONDON, “ There was a faithful Commune, (as Stow quotes it, from a Book called, The Visions of Pierce Plowman) when no Cart came to Town with baked Bread from Stratford; tho'gan Beggars weepe, and Workemen were agast, a little this will be thought long in the Date of our Dirte, in a dry Averell, a thousand and three hundred, twice thirty and ten, &c.

IN the twentieth of Henry VIII. Sir James Spencer being Mayor, six Bakers of Stratford were merced in the Guildhall of LONDON, for baking under the Assize appointed.

IN the first Edition of Stow's Survey, which was in the Year 1598, the Ceasing of these Stratford Bread-Carts was said to be thirty Years before, which must then be about the Year 1568.

IN the Year 1519, the 10th of Henry VIII. a Petition was exhibited by the Commons to the Common-Council, and was then allowed, concerning the Leadenhall, how they would have it used; which Petition was in the Form following:

To the Right Honourable the MAYOR, and his Worshipful Brethren the ALDERMEN, and to the discreet COMMONERS, in this Common-Council assembled:

“ MEEKLY beseeching, sheweth unto your good Lordship, and Master-ships, divers and many Citizens of this City, which with your Favours (under Correction) think, that the great Place called the Leadenhall, should, nor ought not to be letten to Farm, to any Person or Persons, and in especial, to any Fellowship or Company incorporate, to have

“ have and hold the same Hall for Term of “ Years, for such Inconveniences as thereby may “ ensue, and come to the Hurt of the common “ Weal of the said City in Time to come, as “ somewhat more largely may appear in the Ar“ ticles hereafter following:

“ First, If any Assembly, or hasty Gathering of “ the Commons of the said City, for Oppressing
 “ or Subduing of mis-ruled People within the said “ City, hereafter shall happen to be called or “ commanded by the Mayor, Aldermen, and “ other Governors and Counsellors of the said
 “ City for the Time being; there is none so con“ venient, meet, and necessary a Place to assem“ ble them in, within the said City, as the said “ Leadenhall, both for Largeness of Room, and
 “ for their sure Defence in Time of their counsel“ ling together about the Premises. Also, in “ that Place hath been used the Artillery Guns,
 “ and other common Armours of the said City, to “ be safely kept in Readiness, for the Safeguard, “ Wealth and Defence of the said City, to be “ had and occupied at Times, when Need requi“ red. As also the Store of Timber, for the ne“ cessary Reparations of the Tenements belonging “ to the Chamber of the said City, there com“ monly hath been kept.

“ Item, If any Triumph or Noblesse were to “ be done, or shewed by the Commonalty of the “ said City, for the Honour of our Sovereign Lord
 “ the King, and Realm, and for the Worship of “ the City, the said Leadenhall is the most meet
 “ and convenient Place, to prepare and order the “ said Triumph therein, and from thence to issue “ forth to the Places therefore appointed.

“ Item, At any Largess or Dole of any Money, “ made unto the poor People of this City; by “ or after the Death of any worshipful Person “ within the said City, it hath been used, to be “ done and given in the said Leadenhall, for that
 “ the said Place is most meet therefore.

“ Item, The honourable Father, that was Maker “ of the said Hall, had a special Will, Intent and “ Mind, (as it is commonly said) that the Market “ Men and Women, that came to the City with “ Victuals and other Things, should have their “ free Standing within the said Leadenhall, in wet “ Weather, to keep themselves and their Wares
 “ dry; and thereby to encourage them, and all “ others, to have the better Will and Desire, the “ more plenteously to resort to the said City, to “ victual the same: And if the said Hall should “ be let to Farm, the Will of the said Honour“ able Father should never be fulfilled, nor take “ Effect.

“ Item, If the said Place, which is the chief “ Fortrefs and most necessary Place within all the “ City, for the Tuition and Safeguard of the “ same, should be let to Farm, out of the “ Hands of the chief Heads of the same City,
 “ and especially to any other Body Politick, it “ might at length (by Likelihood) be Occasion of “ Discord and Debate between the said Bodies “ Politick. Which God defend.

“ For these and many other great and reason“ able Causes, which hereafter shall be shewed to “ this Honourable Court, your said Befeechers “ think it much necessary, that the said Hall be “ still in the Hands of this City, and to be surely “ kept by sad and discreet Officers in such wise,
 “ that it may always be ready to be used and oc“ cupied, for the Common Weal of the said “ City when Need shall require, and in no Wise
 “ to be let to any Body Politick. ” Thus “ much for the Petition.

ABOUT the Year 1534, great Endeavours were used to have the said Leadenhall made a Burse, for the Assembly of Merchants, as they had been accustomed in Lombard-street. Many Common Councils were called to that End; but in the Year 1535, John Champneis being Mayor, it was fully concluded, that the Burse should remain in Lombard-street, as before, and no Mention to be made of Leadenhall, on this Account.

IN the Year 1546, when King Henry's Corpse lay in State in his Chapel at Westminster, in the Month of February, about 12 Days, here at Leadenhall, Heath Bishop of Worcester, the King's Almoner, and other his Ministers and Assistants, did daily distribute to poor People of the City great Plenty of Money, as well as at Westminster, and divers other Places in the several Wards, both in open Doles and by Way of Proclamation.

THE Use made of Leadenhall, Stow says, in his Youth, was thus: In a Part of the North Quadrant, on the East Side of the North Gate, were the common Beams for Weighing of Wool and other Wares, as had been accustomed: On the West Side of the Gate, were the Scales to weigh Meal: The other three Sides were reserved (for the most Part) to the Making and Resting of the Pageants shewed at Midsummer, in the Watch:
 The Remnant of the Sides and Quadrants were employed for the Stowage of Woollacks, but not closed up: The Lofts above, were partly used by the Painters, in working for the Decking of Pageants and other Devices, for beautifying of the Watch and Watchmen; the Residue of the Lofts were let out to Merchants, the Woolwinders and Packers therein, to wind and pack their Wools. Part of this Hall is employed as Warehouses for Colchester, Bocking and Brain-tree Bays, which are open every Thursday and Friday, from nine to eleven in the Morning, and from two to four in the Afternoon, when there is a great Market for that Commodity, and also for Sheeps Wool and Leather; and the rest of it as Warehouses for the East-India Company.
Tuesdays and Fridays are Market-days for vast Quantities of green Hides, and Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays for Flesh and other Food: And thus much for Leadenhall.

NOW, on the North of Lime-street Ward, are many handsome Houses for Merchants, and proper Tenements for Artificers, with an Alley, called Shaft-alley, from the Shaft or May-pole, some Time lying over the Gate of it, as mentioned in the last Chapter, treating of Aldgate Ward.

IN the Year 1576, partly at the Charges of the Parish of St. Andrew, and partly at the Charges of the Chamber of London, a Water Pump was raised in this high Street of Lime-street Ward, near unto Lime-street Corner. For the placing of which Pump, having broken up the Ground, they were forced to dig more than two Fathoms deep, before they came to any main Ground;
 where they found an Hearth made of British, or Roman Tile, every Tile half a Yard square, and about two Inches thick: They found Coal lying there also (for that lying whole will never consume.) Then digging one Fathom into the Main, they found Water sufficient, made their Prall,
 and set up the Pump.

IN St. Mary's-street there was, of old Time,
 a Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin, *St.
 Ursula*, and the 11000 Virgins; which Church was commonly called St. Mary at the Axe, from the Sign of an Axe, over-against the East End thereof, or St. Mary Pellipar, of a Plat of Ground lying on the North Side thereof, pertaining to the Skinners in London. This Parish, about the Year 1565, was united to the Parish-Church of St. Andrew Undershaft. And so was St. Mary at the Axe suppressed, and let out to be a Warehouse for Merchants. Here was afterwards a Free-School kept. Against the East End of this Church was some Time a Wall, now turned to a Pump.

Also

Also against the North End of this St. Mary's-street, was some Time another Parish Church of St. Augustine, called St. Augustine in the Wall, because it stood adjoining to the Wall of the City, and otherwise called St. Augustine's Papey, or the Poor.

IN this Parish an Earl of Oxford had a House, and the last Will of Agnes Lady Bardolph, Anno 1403, was dated from hence in these Words, Hospitio, &c. from the Inn of the Habitation of the Lord, the Earl of Oxford, in the Parish of St. Augustine de Papey, LONDON.

ABOUT the Year 1430, in the Reign of Henry VI, the same Church was allowed to the Brethren of the Papey, the House of poor Priests, spoken of before in Aldgate Ward.

The Copy of the Donation of this Parish Church, about 1430, with the Church-yard, a Messuage, and Garden thereunto belonging, is now in the incomparable Library of the Right Honourable Edward Earl of Oxford, and seems to have some Time belonged to John Stow; it is as followeth:

“ BE it known unto all Men by these Pre“ fents, That I Richard Wodehouse, “ Parson of All-Saints Church in the Wall of “ LONDON, in Broad-street Ward, by “ Assent and License of William, Prior of the “ Trinity-House within Aldgate, and the Con“ vent of the same, being Patrons of All-Saints “ Church, and of the Chapel, late the Parish “ Church, called Papey Church, late in the Pa“ rish of All-Saints aforesaid, in Aldgate Ward, “ situate at Beaufmarkes, next London-wall:
“ Also, by Consent, Assent, and Licence of “ the Reverend Father in Christ William, by “ God's Grace, Bishop of LONDON, Or“ dinary of the same, have confirmed to R. the “ aforesaid Chapel, late the Parish Church, cal“ led Papey Church, with the Church-yard, to“ gether with a certain Tenement, or Messuage,
“ and Garden adjoining to the said Chapel,
“ with all things else that ought of Right to
“ to pertain to the said Chapel: Which Chapel, “ Church-yard, Messuage, and Garden, are “ jointly situate in the aforesaid Parish of All- “ Saints; and containeth in Length, in the “ South Side, by the King's Highway, from the “ Garden which pertaineth to the Chamber in “ Guildhall of LONDON, and is now in “ the Tenure of Richard Wymarke, toward the “ West, unto the King's Way toward the East,
“ 57 Roods and one Foot of Assize; in Length,
“ in the North Part next LONDON, from
“ the aforesaid Garden toward the West unto the “ King's said Highway toward the East, 60 Roods
“ of Assize: And in Breadth in the West End “ toward the said Garden unto the King's High“ way, eight Roods of Assize. William East-

“ Brown, then Alderman of Aldgate Ward.

ON the other Side is an Instrument, shewing the Foundation of this Hospital, the Founder thereof, and the Cause; to wit, out of Compassion to poor decayed Priests, and for their Relief and Subsistence. The Instrument is as follows:

“ To all the Sons of our Holy Mother the

“ these Letters, or the Contents of them shall “ ternity in the Name of the Holy and Undivided “ Trinity, the Father, the Son, and the Holy “ Ghost, the glorious Virgin Mary, St. Charity, “ and St. John Evangelist, in whose Honour the “ aforesaid Fraternity, by the King's Licence “ given, and granted, as is said, is founded, and “ adjoined, we begin and proceed after this Or“ der, &c.” And then follows the Instrument of the Donation of the Papey Church, as before.

THE Parishioners of this Church were appointed to the Parish-Church of Albhallows in the Wall, which is in Broad-street Ward. This Brotherhood, called Papey, being suppressed, the Church of Augustine was pulled down, and in the Place thereof one Grey an Apothecary, built a Stable and Hayloft. The two Parish-Churches, lying in Lime-street Ward, being both suppressed, there is not any one Place of Divine Service in this Ward, but the Inhabitants repair to Churches out of their Ward, namely to St. Peter's in Cornhill, in Cornhill Ward, St. Andrew's, in Aldgate
Ward, Albhallows in the Wall, in Broad-street
Ward, and some to St. Dennis's in Langborn Ward.

THERE having been some Dispute, about what Ward this Church or Chapel of St. Augustine Papey should of right belong, for the same was challenged by Aldgate Ward, and without Reason taken into Bishopsgate Ward, Mr. Stow endeavoured to vindicate the Right of his own [Lime- street] Ward.

ABOUT 30 Years since, saith he, the Chamber of LONDON granted a Lease of Ground

Ward

Ward of Lime-street, from the West of the said Church or Chapel of St. Augustine Papey, towards Bishopsgate, &c. On which Plat of Ground, the Lessee built three Tenements, and placed Tenants there; these were charged to bear Scot and Lot, and some of them to bear Office in Lime-street Ward; all which they did willingly without grudging: And when any suspected or disordered Persons were by the Landlord placed there, the Officers of Lime-street Ward fetched them out of their Houses, committed them to ward, procured their due Punishments, and banished them from thence. Whereby in short Time that Place was reformed, and brought into good Order; which Thing being noted by them of Aldgate Ward, they moved their Alderman, Sir Thomas Offley, to call in those Houses to be of his Ward. But I, myself, shewing a fair Ledger Book, some Time pertaining to the late dissolved Priory of the Holy Trinity within Aldgate, wherein were set down the just Bounds of Aldgate Ward, before Sir Thomas Offley, Sir Rowland Hayward, the Common Council, and Wardmote Inquest of the said Lime-street Ward; Sir Thomas Offley gave over his Challenge, and so the Matter rested in good Quiet, until the Year 1579, that Sir Richard Pype (being Mayor and Alderman of Bishopsgate Ward) challenged those Houses to be of his Ward, whereunto (without Reason shewed) Sir Rowland Hayward yielded; and thus is that Side of the Street, from the North Corner of St. Mary's-street, almost to Bishopsgate, (wherein is one Plat of Ground, letten by the Chamberlain of LONDON to the Parish of St. Martin Oteswich, to be a Church-yard or Burying-place for the Dead of that Parish, &c.) unjustly drawn from the Ward of Lime-street.

SEVERAL other Proofs might have been set down, but this one following may suffice. The Mayor and Aldermen of LONDON made a Grant to the Fraternity of the Papey, in these Words:

"BE it remembered, that where now of late
 "the Master and Wardens of the Fraternity of "the Papey have made a Brick Wall, closing in "the Chapel of St. Augustine, called Papey Chapel, situate in the Parish of All Saints in the "Wall, in the Ward of Lime-street, of the City
 "of LONDON, from the South East Corner
 "of the which Brick Wall, is a Scutcheon of 21
 "Foot of Assize from the said Corner Eastward:
 "And from the same Scutcheon there to a Messuage of 55 Foot and an half Westward: The "said Scutcheon breaketh out of Lineright Southward, betwixt the Measures aforesaid, three "Foot and five Inches of Assize, upon the common Ground of the City aforesaid: Ralph Verney, Mayor, and the Aldermen of the same "City, the 22d Day of October, the 6th Year of "Edward IV, granted to John Hod, Priest, Mr. John Bolt, and Tho. Pachet, Priests, Wardens of the Fraternity of Papey aforesaid, and "to their Successors for ever, &c. yielding 4d. Sterling, yearly at Michaelmas: And this is inrolled in the Guildhall of LONDON; which is a sufficient Proof, that the same Plat of Ground is of Lime-street Ward.

ON the South Side of this Street, stretching West from St. Mary's-street, towards Bishopsgate-street, there was (of old Time) one large Messuage built of Stone and Timber in the Parish of St. Augustine in the Wall, now in the Parish of Alhallowes in the same Wall, belonging to the Earl of Oxford, (for Richard de Vere, Earl of Oxford, possessed it in the 4th of Henry V.) but in Process of Time, the Lands of the Earl fell to Females; amongst which, one being married to Wingfield of Suffolk, this House with the Appurtenances fell to his Lot, and was by his Heir, Sir Robert Wingfield, sold to Mr. Edward Coke, at that Time the Queen's Attorney-General.

It was ordered by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, at a Court holden on Thursday the 24th of April, in the 4th Year of Edward VI, that the Chamberlain of LONDON should yearly pay unto the Scavenger of Lime-street Ward, 20 s. by even Portions, out of the Profit coming by the Butchers Stalls in Leadenhall, toward the Cleaning and sweet Keeping of the same Ward.

ONE Note more of this Ward; in the Year 1371, the 45th of Edward III, a great Subsidy of 100,000 l. was granted towards the King's Wars in France. Whereof the Clergy paid 50,000 l. and the Laity 50,000 l. to be levied in 39 Shires of England, containing Parishes 8600. Of every Parish, 5 l. 16 s. the Greater to help the Less. This City (as one of the Shires) then containing 24 Wards, and in them 110 Parishes, was therefore assessed to 635 l. 12 s. whereof Lime-street Ward did bear 34 s. and no more; so small a Ward it was, and so accounted, as having no one whole Parish therein, but small Portions only of two Parishes in that Ward.

NOW to describe the modern State of this Ward, we must begin with Leadenhall-street, which is spacious, populous, and well inhabited; but the Houses escaping the great Fire Anno 1666, are not so tightly and uniform. In this Street are these Places; Sharp's-alley, seated against the East India House, indifferent good. Token-house-yard, but small, hath a Passage into Leadenhall. The King's-Arms-Inn, on the North of the Street, near to St. Mary-Axe, of a good Trade for Stage Coaches and Waggons out of Essex. The East India House, on the South Side of the Street, stands where Sir William Craven's House formerly was; this House was rebuilt in the Year 1726, the Front next the Street is very magnificent, being a strong Stone Building, with Pilasters and Entablature of the Dorick Order, the rest of it is very spacious, having large Rooms for the Directors, and Offices for the Clerks. It hath a large Hall and Courtyard, for the Reception of People who have Business here, to attend on the Company on their Court Days, which are every Wednesday. There belongs to it also a Garden, with Warehouses in the back Part towards Lime-street, into which there is a back Gate for the Entrance of Carts, to bring in their Goods. These Warehouses were rebuilt in a very handsome Manner, in the Year 1725; the Company have likewise Warehouses in Seething-lane, the Steel-yard, and the Royal-Exchange, under the last of which they have Cellars entirely for Pepper.

WHILE this new House was building, the Company transacted their Business in the old Custom-house in Fenchurch-street.

THE first East-India Company was established by Charter, in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and since confirmed several Times, called, The Governor and Company of Merchants Trading into the East-Indies.

HERE was first subscribed 739,782 l. 10 s. and a Year, or more, afterwards, by the additional Subscription of 834,826 l. the Stock was made up 1,574,608 l. 10 s.

IN 1698, another Company was established by Act of Parliament, called, The English Company of Merchants Trading to the East-Indies, who, upon their Settlement, advanced to the Government 2,000,000 l. Sterling; for which they had Interest given them at 8 per Cent. per Annum; of these two Millions the Members of the old Company subscribed 315,000 l. which with 40 per Cent. more advanced, made up their Share of 2,000,000 l. upon the Union. Subscribers of 500 l. and upwards, have a Vote for choosing Directors

Directors, but none have more than one; none of which Directors are to have less than 2000 l. in the Capital Stock of the Company.

ALL Goods imported by the Company, are to be sold openly by Inch of Candle, on pain of Forfeiture, one half to the King, and the other to the Prosecutor.

THE Stock to be esteemed, in Law, Personal Estate, and the Shares exempt from Taxes.

No Member shall in respect of his Stock only, be judged a Bankrupt.

IN the Year 1702, July the 22d, for the mutual Advantage and Satisfaction of both Companies, an Expedient was found out for the uniting of them, and a Charter of Union was granted them. The new Company joined 15 l. per Cent. with as much of the old Company, which, with several Sums paid in afterwards, the Stock of the united Companies amounted to 170 l. per Share; and upon the Return of the Effects of both Companies, the united Stock was to augment until they became one entire Company, which was to be in seven Years after the Union.

Leadenhall is a very large Building of Free-Stone, containing within it three large Courts, or Yards, all encompassed with Buildings, wherein is kept a Market, one of the greatest, the best, and the most general, for all Provisions, in the City of LONDON, nay, of the Kingdom, and it may be, of all Europe. The Building hath flat Battlements leaded at the Top. And for the Conveniency of Peoples coming to this great Market (which is kept every Day of the Week, except Sundays, for one thing or other) besides the principal Entrance out of Leadenhall-street, there are several others, out of Lime-street, and Gracechurch-street.

OF the three Courts, or Yards, that it consists of, the first is that at the North East Corner of Gracechurch-street, and opens into Leadenhall-street. This Court, or Yard, contains in Length, from North to South, 164 Feet, and in Breadth, from East to West, 80 Feet: Within this Court, or Yard, round about the same, are about 100 Standing-stalls for Butchers, for the selling only of Beef, and therefore this Court is called the Beef Market, many of which Stalls are 8, 10, or 12 Feet long, and 4, 5, or 6 Feet broad, with Racks, Hooks, Blocks, and all other Conveniences for the Sale of their Meat: All which Stalls are either under Warehouses above-head, or sheltered from the Weather by Roofs over them. This Yard is on Tuesdays a Market for Leather, to which Tanners do resort. On Thursdays the Waggon from Colchester, and other Parts, come with Bays, &c. and also the Felmongers with their Wool; and on Fridays, it is a Market for Raw-Hides, besides Saturdays for Beef, as also other Provisions.

THE second Market Yard is called the Green-yard, having been once a green Plat of Ground; afterwards it was the Cities Store-yard for Materials for Building, and the like, but now a Market only for Veal, Mutton, Lamb, &c. This Yard is 170 Feet in Length, from East to West, and 90 Feet Broad from North to South. It hath in it above 140 Stalls for the Butchers, covered over, and of the Bigness of those in the Beef-Market. In the Middle of this Green-yard Market, North to South, is a Row of Shops, with Rooms over them for Fishmongers; and also on the South Side and West End, are Houses and Shops for Fishmongers. Towards the East End of this Yard is erected a handsome Market-House, standing upon Columns, with Vaults underneath, and Rooms above, with a Bell Tower, and a Clock, and under it are Butchers Stalls. The Tenements round about this Yard, are, for the most Part inhabited by Cooks, Victuallers, and such like; and in the Passage leading out of the Streets into this Market, are Fishmongers, Poulterers, Cheesemongers, and such like Traders for Provision.

THE third Market belonging to Leadenhall, was called the Herb Market, because Herbs, Roots, Fruit, &c. were only sold there; but being rebuilt in the Year 1730, is now called the New Market or Nashe's Reits; and hath Shops in it chiefly for Butchers, and a new Passage into Lime-street. This Part of it is about 140 Feet Square; the West, East, and North Sides, have Walks round them, cover'd over for Shelter, and standing upon Columns; in which Walks there are Stalls for Gardiners, with Cellars under them. There is also in this Yard, one Range of Stalls, covered over, for such as sell Tripe, Neat-Feet, Sheeps-Trotters, &c. And on the South Side the Tenements, are taken up by Victuallers, Poulterers, Cheesemongers, Butchers, and such like. Beyond this are likewise some new Shops, built in the Year 1730, in that Part called the old Bacon Market, which are chiefly occupied by Poulterers and such as deal in Bacon: And for the regular ordering of this Market, and those Number of People that Resort thither with their Goods, see the Chapter of Civil Government.

THE general Conflagration of this City in 1666, terminated in that Part of the City near adjoining to this Hall, all the Houses about it, and within the Yards belonging to it, being destroyed, there did (of this Fabrick) only remain the Stone-work, since which, the Courts and Yards belonging to this Building, and some other adjacent Grounds, purchased by the City, are wholly converted into a Market for the City's Use; the Place for the Reception of Country Butchers, and others, who brought Provisions before to the City, being then only in Leadenhall-street, between Gracechurch-street and Lime-street, which was very incommodious, to the Market-People, as well as to the Passengers.

Lime-street, a Place well inhabited by Merchants, and others of Repute: At the End towards Fenchurch-street is Pewterers Hall, a handsome Building with a large Hall, Parlour, and Court Room adorned with Fret Work, Wainscot and Hangings, also the Picture of Mr. William Smallwood, Master in the 2d of King Henry VII, who gave to the Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Company of Pewterers, LONDON, and and their Successors for ever, their Common Hall with a Garden and six Tenements thereto adjacent, by Will dated August 23, 1487. Near this Hall is a Passage into Leadenhall Market; a little more South is a good House, formerly the Seat of Sir Robert Jeffreys, Knt. and Alderman, over-against which is Cullum-street, made a Street since the Fire, which with a turning Passage falls into Fenchurch-street, which Street being the greatest Part in Langborn Ward is there treated of. About the Middle of the Street is a Place called Queen's-Square, or Queen's-Square Passage, leading into Leadenhall Market, a well built Place with a Free Stone Pavement; on the Ground on which this Place is built, was a large House, the Habitation of a Merchant, and antiently supposed to belong to the Kings and Queens of England.

St. Mary Axe goes out of Leadenhall-street, and runs Northwards to Camomile-street by London-wall. It is a Street graced with good Buildings, and much inhabited by eminent Merchants. Out of this Street, and almost over-against St.

Andrew's Undershaft Church, is a Passage into Great St. Helen's; and toward the End is Soper's-yard, a mean Place, opposite to which is Fletchers Hall.

Camomile-street, hath but a small Part in this Ward, not above 200 Feet from St. Mary-axe; the rest is in Aldgate Ward.

To this Ward belongeth an Alderman and his Deputy, four Common-Council Men, four Constables, two Scavengers, 16 for the Wardmote Inquest, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen, at 1 l. 19 s. 2 d. ob. q.

THERE are to watch at the several Stands in this Ward, every Night a Constable, the Beadle, and 11 Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward are to serve as Jurors in the several Courts in Guildhall in the Month of November.

THE Alderman of this Ward is Sir Richard Hopkins, Knt.

CHAP. V.

BISHOPSGATE WARD.

THE next is Bishopsgate Ward, whereof a Part is without the Gate; and of the Suburbs, from the Bars by St. Mary Spital to Bishopsgate, and a Part of Houndsditch, almost half thereof, also without the Wall, is of the same Ward.

THEN within the Gate is Bishopsgate-street, so called from the Gate, to a Pump, where was in old Time, a Well with two Buckets, by the East End of the Parish-Church of St. Martin Outwich, and then winding by the West Corner of Leadenhall, down Gracechurch-street, to the Corner over-against St. Bennet's Gracechurch; and these are the Bounds of this Ward.

AMONG the Buildings, &c. most to be noted in this Ward, is the Parish-Church of St. Botolph without Bishopsgate.

The PARISH of St. BOTOLPH BISHOPSGATE.

THIS Church stands in a handsome Church-yard, which of old Time adjoined to the Town Ditch, upon the very Bank thereof, and was inclosed with a Brick Wall, repaired by Sir William Allen, (Lord Mayor in 1571) because he was born in this Parish, where also he was buried.

THE North Wall of the old Church with the Roof thereof, and the middle Roof likewise were new built, and the Church begun to be repaired in the Year of our Lord 1617, Mr. Stephen Goffson, then being Parson.

THE Repair of it in Pewing the Church throughout, painting, altering, adding and ordering to its greater Convenience and Beauty continued to the Year 1620, in which it was fully finished.

THE Charge of it amounting to 600 l. and upwards.

THIS was wholly taken down in the Year 1726, when it was began to be rebuilt, and was finished in the Year 1729, at the Charge of the Parishioners. It is a very strong and beautiful Piece of Architecture: The first Storey, fronting the Street, is adorned with Pilasters, Entablature and Pediment of the Dorick Order; over the Pediment is a handsome Clock Dial-plate, against the Steeple; the 2d Storey of which is square and adorned with Pilasters of the Ionick Order, and at every Corner has an Urn with a gilt Flame coming out of it. The third Storey is round, having a Ballustrade about it, and is adorned with small Pillars of the Corinthian Order, and four Balls gilt with Gold; and at the Top of all the Steeple is an Urn with a gilt Flame issuing from it.

The antient MONUMENTS in the Church of St. Botolph Bishopsgate, were:

All you that Chahce this Tomb of mine to see;
Pray stop and read, and Warning take by me;
With Care observe your Parents found Advice,
Your Safety in your just Obedience lies.
If you their wise Commands once disobey,
Like me, to sudden Death you'll fall a Prey.

Now for the Christian Charities and Gifts bestowed on this Place.

THE aforesaid Joan Wood gave as followeth :
At her Burial she appointed to be given 10 l. to the Poor.

SHE gave 10 s. yearly, for a Sermon on Midsummer-Day.

FOR a Friendly Meeting among the Neighbours, 40 s.

IN Bread, Weekly, to the Poor, for ever, 2 s.
Also four Loads of Charcoal, yearly, to the Poor, for ever.

To the Parson of the Parish, yearly, for ever, 10 s.

To the two Church-wardens, 10 s. to each, in like manner.

FOR a Frendly Meeting of the Parson and Parishioners, accompanying him, yearly, in walking the Rounds of the Parish 30 s.

To the Poor of the Parish, in Money, yearly, for ever, to be distributed 7 l.

AND the Remainder of the yearly Rents for the Half-Moon, and Half-moon-alley, to remain in the Church Stock, toward the Repairing of the Church.

OVER and beside the memorable Charity of this worthy Widow Mrs. Wood, God hath raised divers other good Benefactors to the Poor in the same Parish, as appeareth by this small Recordation.

John Styward, Citizen, and Alderman of LONDON, had his Last Will and Testament enrolled in the Court of Hustings, in the Guild-hall of LONDON, on Monday next before the Feast of St. Cuthbert the Bishop, in the 13th Year of Edward IV, after the Conquest.

WHEREIN he gave to the poor People of this Parish, 25 Quarters of Charcoal, Yearly, to be delivered by the Company of Tallow-chandlers, betwixt the Feast of All Saints, and the Nativity of our blessed Saviour, with a Penalty of the Forfeiture of 20 s. for the first Quarter, if they be not delivered as aforesaid; and 40 s. for the second Quarter, 4 l. for the third Quarter, and 8 l. for the whole Year, if they be not delivered, and so double still from Quarter to Quarter, if Defect of Payment herein be made.

John Bricket, Citizen and Tooth-drawer of LONDON (by his Last Will and Testament, dated the eleventh Day of February 1554) gave, for ever, at the Feast of Easter, 12 Sacks of Charcoal to the Poor of this Parish, out of two Tenements joining together at the South Side of Bell-alley Gate in this Parish.

THE Parish receive by the Gift of Mrs. Mary Wilkinson, deceased, out of two Houses in St. Mary Spital, four Load of Coals out of each House, 30 Quarters being two Load. The first 30 Quarters to be given to the Poor of this Parish in the Month of November, for ever: The next 30 Quarters to be likewise given to the Poor of this Parish, in December, for ever. Provided, That out of each Load, the Overseers of the Precinct of Norton Falgate, shall have 10 Sacks to be by them given to the Poor of that Precinct.

LIKEWISE is paid, Yearly, by the Company of Ironmongers, the Sum of 30 s. per Ann.
4 U of

of the Gift of Sir William Allen, to be distributed among the Poor in Bread.

ALSO of the Company of Vintners, the Sum of 20 s. yearly, for ever, of the Gift of Sir Stephen Scudamore, Knt. and Alderman of LONDON.

ALSO of Mrs. Wood, the Relict of Mr. Thomas Wood, late of St. Botolph without Aldgate, the Sum of 10 s. yearly, for ever, to be received on St. Thomas's Day, issuing out of certain Tenements in Catharine-wheel-alley in this Parish, of the Gift of Mary Webster, Widow.

Mrs. Price, in the Time of her Widowhood, did at her own Charge new build the Pulpit, in the Year of our Lord, 1614; and shortly after did likewise send (to furnish the same) fair and rich Ornaments for the said Pulpit, as also for the Communion Table. For the Pulpit a costly Cloth of Crimson Velvet, edg'd at the Bottom with a deep Gold Fringe, and laced about with a handsome Gold Lace.

LIKEWISE a Cushion suitable to the same, with a very fine Border to adorn the upper Part of the Pulpit, edged likewise with a deep Gold Fringe.

AND for the Communion Table a large Carpet of Crimson Velvet, edged with a deep Gold Fringe, also a Table-Cloth of fine Cambrick, to be used upon the Communion Days, with a Cambrick Cloth laced, to cover the Bread upon the Table: Also a fair Surplice of Cambricks for the Parson's Use: All which were, with a new Hair Brush kept in a Sarcenet Case, to be locked up in a new Wainscot Chest, by her bought for the same Purpose, and so carefully kept for their several Uses. To the which Chest was set two Locks, with two several Keys, whereof the one to be kept by the Parson of the Parish, the other by the Church-warden of the same Parish, for the safe keeping thereof.

As for the King's-Arms embroidered upon the said Pulpit Cloth, it was made, set on, and freely given by Humphrey Swan, of this Parish, Embroiderer, in Remembrance of God's great Mercy extended towards him, in the Year of the great Visitation, 1625. For in that Year he had buried his Wife, with divers of his Family, himself also lying a long while under the Lord's heavy Hand, without all Hope of Recovery. By God's gracious Providence, he was at last restored to his former Health: In regard whereof, and to express his further Thankfulness to Almighty God, he adorned the said Pulpit Cloth, as now it is.

MOREOVER, in the same Parish Church of St. Botolph, among other Benevolences given thereto, must not be omitted the bountiful Gift of Mr. William Hobby, Citizen and Ale-Brewer of LONDON, viz. the Tenor Bell in the Steeple, bearing his own Name, and called Hobby, which he caused to be founded at his own Cost and Charges, and afterwards to be re-cast two several Times, only to make it tuneable with the other Bells in the Steeple, which was performed accordingly; and they are now as perfect and pleasing a Ring of Bells, as can be wished.

WHEN he gave this Bell to the Parish, he enjoined this Condition, that at what Time soever any Man deceased, that had borne any Place of Eminence and Office in this Parish, and afterward happened (by any Cross or Misadventure) to fall into Decay, that yet he should have the Benefit of the Bell's Service freely bestowed on him at his Burial, not paying any Costs or Duties therefore to the Church. No doubt but this Man had an honest Meaning and most charitable Mind, both in the Promise (which was in Merri-ment, and when he expected not Place of Degree or Office to fall on him) and likewise in the Performance, wherein he shewed himself no way slack, but as forward as any Man could be. Let his worthy Example incite others to the like good Inclination (one Way or other) towards the Church.

Mr. Ralph Pindar, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, Alderman's Deputy of this Ward, who was buried the 28th of May, 1622, gave to the Poor of this Parish in Money, 60 l. for which is given to 13 poor People every Sunday in the Year, for ever, 2 d. a-piece in good Wheaten Bread.

IN the Year 1626, Nicholas Reive, Scrivener in Cornhill (whose Father was Clerk of this Parish) gave by his Last Will and Testament the Sum of 406 l. 5 s. to the said Parish, to buy so much Land as the said Monies will extend to, and the Rents and Profits thereof to be given and distributed to the Comfort of such poor People within this Parish. With which Monies was purchased certain Lands lying at Stratford Bow, the Rent of which Lands is 25 l. per Annum.

IN the Year 1628, the 20th of June, William Earl of Devonshire, died at Devonshire House, without Bishopsgate, and gave 100 l. for ever, to the Use of the Poor of this Parish. For which the Church-wardens do give every Sunday in the Year to 15 poor People of this Parish 2 d. a-piece in good Wheaten Bread.

“ WHEREAS the 6th Day of November last “ past, T. C. Citizen and Armourer of LON-“ DON, humbly petitioned unto the Court that “ they would be pleased to receive into the Cham“ ber of LONDON, the Sum of 100 l. pre-

SINCE the Church has been new built, there are four Tables of the Benefactors Names placed in different Parts of it; the first is on the Right Hand of the Communion-Table, and is thus inscribed:

And likewise a Lease of several Tenements in Cock-yard, for the Habitation of the Poor

Mr. Thomas Bowes, and } Church-wardens.
Mr. John Woodhouse, }

THE fourth Table, which has yet but one Article in it, hangs on the Left Hand of the Communion-Table, as the first does on the Right; and is thus inscribed:

Arthur Batt, Esq; in the Year 1731, gave to the Poor of Bishopsgate Parish, one Hundred Pounds, to be put out to Interest, to be divided amongst the Poor, yearly

THE Inside of this Church is as beautiful as the Out; the Roof is arched, and supported by large Pillars of the Corinthian Order, and the Ceiling curiously fretted. The Pews, Gallery, Pulpit, and Altar, are of fine Oak, and neatly finished.

WITHOUT the Church-yard Wall, was antiently a Causeway, leading to a Quadrant called Petty-France, from a great Number of Frenchmen living there. This Causeway was given by the City to the Parish of St. Botolph Bishopsgate, which being made good level Ground, and walled in, was made a Burial-Place for their Dead. And because the Parishioners would not shew themselves unthankful to the City for so great a Benefit, their Acknowledgment of it stands over the Gate, at the Entrance into the said Church-yard.

IN Petty-France, out of Christian Burial, was buried Hodges Skaughsware, a Persian Merchant, who, with his Son, came over with the Persian Ambassador, and was buried by his own Son, who set up a Tomb of Stone, with certain Persian Characters thereon; the Exposition thus, "This Grave is made for Hodges Skaughsware, the chiefest Servant to the King of Persia, for the Space of twenty Years, who came from the King of Persia, and died in his Service. If any Persian cometh out of that Country, let him read this, and a Prayer for him; the Lord receive his Soul, for here lieth Maghmote Skaughsware, who was born in the Town of Novoy in Persia.

THIS Monument stands in Petty-France, at the West End of the lower Church-yard of St. Botolph's Bishopsgate, (not within, but without the Walls, out of the Bounds of the consecrated Ground.) He was aged 44, and buried the 10th of August 1626. The Ambassador himself, young Skaughsware, his Son, and many other Persians (with many Expressions of their infinite Love and Sorrow) following him to the Ground, between eight and nine o'Clock in the Morning. The Rites and Ceremonies that (with them) are due to the Dead, were chiefly performed by his Son, who sitting cross-legg'd, at the North End of the Grave, (for his Tomb stands North and South) did one while Read, and another while Sing, his Reading and Singing intermixed with Sighing and Weeping. And this, with other Things that were done in the Grave in private, continued about Half an Hour.

BUT this was but this Day's Business; for, as tho' this had not been enough to perform to their Friend departed to this Place, and to this End (that is Prayer, and other Funeral Devotions) some of them came every Morning and Evening at six and six, for the Space of a Month together; and had come (as it was then imagined) the whole Time of their Abode here in England, had not the Rudeness of our People disturbed and prevented their Purpose.

THIS Living is a Rectory, in the Gift of the Bishop of LONDON, the Value about 300 l. per Annum, rated in the King's Books at 20 l.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Crowe; and the Lecturer the Reverend Dr. Watson.

PRAYERS are at 11 in the Morning in the Summer, and at 6 in the Evening, except Holidays; Saturdays Prayers are at three during the Winter Half Year, and at four during the Summer Half Year. Here is no Organ, but six Bells.

THE Vestry was used to be Select, consisting of 27, with the Rector and two Church-wardens for the Time being; but it is now general.

The Parish-Officers are:

2 Church-wardens.
4 Overseers.

The Ward-Officers are:

4 Common - Council-Men.
3 Inquests.
2 Constables.
4 Scavengers.

HERE is one Charity School for 25 Boys, and 25 Girls, at present, who are taught, and put out Apprentices by Subscription and Legacies. There are Alms-houses in Lamb's-court, for the Poor of the Parish, maintained by Dulwich College; the London-Workhouse is in this Parish, and there is another Workhouse lately built for the Poor of the Parish.

THE Bounds of St. Botolph's Parish without Bishopsgate, beginning at the Gate, extends to the the Bars Northward on the West Side, and in that Compass takes in Petty-France, not long since a desolate and ruined Place, but now made a spacious Street, called New Broad-street, with many large uniform Houses, and a handsome Meeting-house in it. Then next to St. Botolph's Church was the antient Hospital of St. Mary of Bethlem, founded by Simon Fitz Mary, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, in the Year 1246; he founded it to have been a Priory of Canons, with Brethren and Sisters: And King Edward III. granted a Protection for the Brethren, Militia beatae Mariæ de Bethlem, within the City of LONDON, the 14th Year of his Reign. It was an Hospital afterwards for distracted People.

BUT the Design of the Foundation will more largely appear by this original Deed following:

The COPY of an antient Deed of Gift, given to Bethlem, or Bedlem, by Simon the Son of Mary.

“ TO all the Children of our Mother Holy Church, to whom this present Writing shall come; Simon the Son of Mary sendeth greeting in our Lord. Where among other Things, and before other Lands, the high Altitude of the heavenly Councils, marvelously wrought by some readier Devotion, ought to be more worshipped, of which Things the mortal Sickneſs (after the Fall of our first Father Adam) hath taken the Beginning of this new Repairing: Therefore, forsooth, it seemeth worthy, that the Place, in which the Sonne of God is become Man, and hath proceeded from the Virgin's Womb, which is Increaser and Beginner of Man's Redemption, namely, ought to be with Reverence worshipped, and with beneficial Portions to be Increased. Therefore it is, that the said Simon, Sonne of Mary, having special and singular Devotion to the Church of the glorious Virgin at Bethlem, where the same Virgin of her brought forth our Saviour incarnate, and lying in the Cratch, and with her own Milk nourished, and where the same Child to us there born, the Chivalry of the heavenly Company sang the new Hymne, Gloria in excelsis Deo. The same Time, the Increaser of our Health (as a King, and his Mother a Queene) willed to be worshipped of Kings. A new Starre going before them at the Honour and Reverence of the same Child, and his meek Mother: And to the Exaltation of my noble Lord, Henry, King of England, whose Wife and Child the aforesaid Mother of God, and her only Son, have in their Keeping and Protection, and to the manifold Increase of this City of LONDON, in which I was born, and also for the Health of my Soul, and the Souls of my Predecessors and Successors, my Father, Mother, and my Friends: And especially for the Souls of Guy of Marlowe, John Durant, Ralph Asbywe, Maud, Margaret, and Dennis, Women: Have given, granted, and by this my present Charter, here have confirmed to God, and to the Church of St. Mary of Bethlem, all my Lands which I have in the Parish of St. Botolph without Bishopsgate of LONDON, that is to say, whatsoever I there now have or had, or in Time to come may have in Houses, Gardens, Pools, Ponds, Ditches and Pits, and all their Appurtenances, as they be closed in by their Bounds, which now extends in Length from the King's high Street, East, to the great Ditch in the West, which is called Deep Ditch; and, in Breadth to the Lands of Ralph Downing, in the North, and to the Land of the Church of St. Botolph, in the South; to have and to hold

VOL. I.

“ the aforesaid Church of Bethlem, in free and perpetual Alms; and also to make there a Priory, and to ordain a Prior and Canons, Brothers, and also Sisters; when Jesus Christ shall enlarge his Grace upon it: And in the same Place, the Rule and Order of the said Church of Bethlem, solemnly professing which shall bear the Token of a Star, openly in their Copes and Mantles of Profession, and for to say divine Service; therefore the Souls aforesaid, and all Christian Souls, and especially to receive there the Bishop of Bethlem, Canons, Brothers, and Messengers of the Church of Bethlem, for evermore, as often as they shall come thither: And that a Church or Oratory there shall be built, as soon as our Lord shall enlarge his Grace, under such Form, that the Order, Institution of Priors, Canons, Brothers, Sisters, of the Visitation, Correction, and Reformation of the said Place, to the Bishop of Bethlem, and his Successors, and to the Charter of his Church, and of his Messengers, as often as they shall come hither; as shall seem to them expedient, no Man's Contradiction, notwithstanding, shall pertain evermore, saving always the Services of the chief Lords, as much as pertaineth to the said Lands. And to the more Surety of this Thing, I have put myself out of this Land, and all mine; and Lord Godfrey, then chosen of the Nobles of the City of Rome, Bishop of Bethlem, and of the Pope, confirmed then by his Name in England, in his Name, and of his Successors, and of the Chapter of his Church of Bethlem; into bodily Possession. I have indented and given to his Possession all the aforesaid Lands, which Possession he hath received and entered in Form aforesaid. And in Token of Subjection and Reverence, the said Place in LONDON, without Bishopsgate, shall pay Yearly, in the said City a Mark Sterling, at Easter, to the Bishop of Bethlem, his Successors, or his Messengers, in the Name of a Pension. And if the Faculties, or Goods of the said Place, (our Lord granting) happen to grow more, the said Place shall pay more in the Name of Pension at the said Term to the Mother Church of Bethlem. This (forsooth) Gift and Confirmation of my Deed, and the putting to of my Seal for me and mine Heirs, I have stedfastly made strong, the Year of our Lord God A thousand two hundred forty-seven, the Wednesday after the Feast of St. Luke the Evangelist: These being Witnesses, Peter, the Son of Allen, then Mayor of LONDON, Nicholas Bet, then Sheriff of the said City, and Alderman of the said Ward; Raph Sparling, Alderman; Godfrey of Campes, Simon Comicent, Simon Bonner, Robert of Woodford, Thomas of Woodford, Walter Pointell, Walter of Woodford, &c.

Stephen Gennings, Merchant-Taylor, gave 44 l. towards the Purchase of the Patronage of this Hospital, by his Testament, Anno 1523.

AND in the Year 1546, the Mayor and Commonalty purchased the Patronage thereof, with all the Lands and Tenements thereunto belonging. The same Year King Henry VIII. gave this Hospital unto the City.

IN the Year 1551, a Protection was granted by Letters Patents, from King Edward VI. dated March 7, to John Whitehead, Proctor for this Hospital of Bethlem, to beg within the Counties of Lincoln and Cambridge, the City of LONDON, and the Isle of Ely, to endure for an whole Year, which was a Sign the Revenues of it were now become but small, and not able to maintain the Charge.

THE Church and Chapel of this Hospital were taken down in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and Houses built there by the Governors of Christ's-Hospital in LONDON.

AT a Court of Aldermen, held on Tuesday the 20th of January, Anno 4, Edward VI., a Carr-room was freely given to the Inhabitants of Bishopsgate Ward, to the Intent, that they should cause the utter Parts of the said Ward, without the Gate, to be kept clean.

ALSO at a Court of Aldermen, held on Tuesday the 7th, of April, Anno 5, Edward VI.; it was ordered, that the Inhabitants within the Precinct of Bethlem, should be (from thenceforth) united to the Parish-Church of St. Botolph without Bishopsgate, and so by the Parson and Parishioners, of the same Parish accepted and taken, and to be allotted and charged with them to all Offices and Charges (Tythes and Clerks Wages excepted) in Consideration whereof, the Parson of the Parish was to receive yearly out of the Chamber of LONDON, 20 s. the Parish-Clerk 6 s. 8 d.

IN the Year 1569, Sir Thomas Roe, Merchant-Taylor, Mayor, caused to be inclosed with a Wall of Brick about one Acre of Ground being Part of the said Hospital of Bethlem, to wit, on the West, on the Bank of Deep Ditch, so called, parting the said Wall of Bethlem from the Moorfield. This he did for Burial Ease to such Parishes in LONDON, as wanted convenient Ground within their Parishes. The Lady his Wife was there buried (by whose Perswasion he inclosed it) but himself, born in LONDON, was buried in the Parish-Church of Hackney.

THIS was called New Church-yard, near Bethlem; where, upon Whitsunday, the Lord Mayor, and his Brethren the Aldermen, used to resort to hear a Sermon: And this was practised Anno 1584, "when (according to a Letter from Recorder Fleetwood to the Lord Treasurer) a very good Sermon was preached at this New Church-yard before the Lord Mayor, Sir Edward Osborn and his Brethren: And by reason no Plays were the same Day [i. e. Whitsunday] as there used to be] all the City was quiet.

ON the South Side of this Church-yard, over a Folding Gate, this Inscription was engraven in great Letters.

Thomas Roe, Miles, cum Prætor esset Londinensis, hunc Locum Reipublicæ, in Usus Publicæ Sepulturæ communem, suo sumptu dedicavit, Anno Dom. 1569.

WHICH Inscription, even in the latter End of Queen Elizabeth's Reign began to decay, and some Letters were utterly defaced. Which was the Cause that A. F. one of the Compilers of Hollingshed's Chronicle, inserted it in the said Book; that so the Memory of the worthy Benefactor might not vanish, and be lost with the fading Inscription.

ON the other Side Bishopsgate-street, was a large House built by the Lord John Powlet; and near that a larger and more beautiful House built by Jasper Fisher, free of the Goldsmiths Company, one of the Six Clerks in Chancery, and a Justice of Peace. It was afterwards the Earl of Oxford's House, and then the Earl of Devonshire's. This House being so large and sumptuously built, by a Man of no great Birth, or Fortune, (for he was much in Debt) was mockingly called Fisher's Folly. From hence, to the West of Berwa d's-lane so called formerly, but now Hog-lane, was a large Close, called Tasell-Close, because there were some Time Tasels planted there for the use of Clothworkers: Afterwards let to the Cross-bow Makers, wherein they used to shoot for Games at the Poppingey. Then the same being inclosed with a Brick Wall, served as an Artillery-garden, to which the Gunners of the Tower repaired Weekly, namely, every Thursday, and there levelled certain Brass Pieces of great Artillery against a Butt of Earth, made for that Purpose.

William the last Prior of St. Mary Spital, with his Convent, granted over this Artillery-garden for thrice 99 Years, for the Use and Practice of great and small Artillery.

THERE was a Charter granted to the Fraternity of Artillery in great and small Ordnance by the famous Prince King Henry VIII. And the Piece of Ground, called the Artillery-garden, mentioned before, by his Means was appointed for the Exercise of the same Fraternity; as by the Lease thereof appeared, granted to the same Fraternity. Which Lease was put into the Hands of Sir William Pelham, Lieutenant of the Ordnance: And the same Charter since was delivered to the Lord Barleigh, Lord Treasurer under Queen Elizabeth.

NOW, for the further Improvement of this Fraternity, and to make it useful to the Kingdom; one William Thomas, Master Gunner of the Queen's Ship the Victory, in the Year 1584. moved the Lords of her Council, that the same Charter might be confirmed, and new established, with other needful Additions thereto: And chiefly, for the increasing of good Gunners for the Queen's Navy and Forts, viz. That some of their Honours, with the Earl of Warwick (who was Master of the Ordnance) should be the Chief Masters or Governors of the said Fraternity. That there might, by the Chief Masters or Governors, be chosen four of the Chief of her Majesty's Gunners to be Under-Masters; who, with the Master Gunner of England, might have the Teaching of all the Scholars, and the Proving of all such Men, as should take upon them the Charge of a Gunner in any of her Majesty's Ships, Forts or Castles, or should have any Gunners Fee: and to make Report to the Chief Masters of their Knowledge, before they should be admitted to any Service. That no Ship or Vessel, having Ordnance in her, should cross the Seas, without the same had in her such Number of Gunners, as followeth, viz. That every Ship of the Burthen of 60 Ton, have three Gunners; whereof the Chief or Master Gunner to be such an one, as should be tried, allowed and licensed by such as should be for that Purpose appointed. And every Ship of 80 Tons, four Gunners, to be tried, as aforesaid. And so for every 20 Tons, one Gunner more. That the Chief Officers in the Havens, Towns, Ports and Places, where Shipping is used, should take the Names of all Persons in the same Towns, Ports and Places, which took Charge or served as Gunners in any Ship or Vessel; and the same to register in a Book for that Purpose: And in every Master Term to send up the same Names, and their Dwelling-places to the Master Gunner, and his four Associates; by which it might be known, where to have skilful Gunners, to serve her Majesty, when Opportunity required. That all such Ships as should be freighted within the River Thames, with Merchandizes or Goods, should for the Safeguard thereof, have, for every two Pieces, one such Sea-faring Man as should be a Scholar, to be taught and instructed in the Science of Shooting in great and small Ordnance, according to the Intent of her Majesty's Allowance for the same Purpose. That there might be, by the chief Masters, such strict Commandment given to the four Under-Masters and the Master Gunner, that the Powder and other her Majesty's Allowances for Teaching and Instructing Scholars in the Science or Mystery of Shooting in great and small Ordnance, be by them justly and truly expended about the same Purpose that it was allowed for, for, and not otherwise, upon some Pain and Penalty. That the four Associates or Under Masters, with the Master Gunner, for the better Service of her Majesty, might have the Proof of all such Salt-petre, Coal, Sulphur, Powder, Match, Ordnance, Carriages, Wheels, Stocks, and Iron Work, as should be for her Majesty's Service and Store; and that none should be received, but that which they should find to be good and fit for Service; and that upon a Penalty to be appointed by their Honours. Lastly, That there might be set down such a perfect Government in every of her Majesty's Ships by their Honours, both for their own Safe-guards, and for a Terror to the Enemy, as heretofore was never put in Practice by any.

AND all this, this Thomas the rather offered at this Time, since the Queen had now gotten a puissant Navy of Ships for Defence, and the Nobility, at their own great Charges, had furnished it with great and terrible Ordnance, for the Terror of her Enemies; but there was a great Want of skilful Men to supply the Room of Gunners: So, that if Proof were made, he asserted, there would not be found skilful Gunners sufficient for four of her Men of War: But this Motion came to nothing.

THERE was also afterwards, for the laying up and preserving of the Arms, an Armoury built. The Foundation of this Armoury, that remarkable Nursery of Military Discipline, called The Artillery-garden, LONDON, was begun to be erected the first Day of May, Anno Dom. 1622, and was finished the last of November then next following; Colonel Hugh Hamersley being then President; Edward Pierse, Treasurer; Henry Petowe, Marshal; and John Bingham, Captain, and one of the Council of War for this Kingdom.

The Hospital of St. Mary, called the Spital.

NEXT to this was the dissolved Priory and Hospital of our blessed Lady, commonly called St. Mary Spital, founded by Walter Brune, and Rosia his Wife, for Canons Regular; Walter, Archdeacon of LONDON, laid the first Stone in the Year 1197; William of St. Mary Church, then Bishop of LONDON, dedicated it to the Honour of JESUS CHRIST, and his Mother the perpetual Virgin Mary, by the Name of Domus Dei, and Beata Mariae extra Bishopsgate, in the Parish of St. Botolph. The Bounds whereof, as appeareth by Composition betwixt the Parson and Prior of the said Hospital, concerning Tithes, begin at Berward's-lane, toward the South, and extend in Breadth to the Parish of St. Leonard Shoreditch towards the North, and in Length from the King's-street on the West, to the Bishop of LONDON's Field, called Lollefworth, on the East. The Prior of this St. Mary Spital, for the Emortising and Propriation of the Priory of Bikenacar in Essex, to this said House of St. Mary Spital, gave to Henry VII, 400 l. in the 22d of his Reign.

THIS Hospital, surrendered to Henry VIII, was reckoned to dispend 478 l. wherein, besides Ornaments of the Church, and other Goods pertaining to the Hospital, there were found standing 180 Beds well furnished, for Receipt of the Poor of Charity; for it was an Hospital of great Relief. Sir Henry Plesington, Knight, was buried there 1452.

IN Place of this Hospital, and near adjoining, are now built many handsome Houses for Merchants and others.

HERE was the House of a famous Italian Merchant, and Ambassador, much employed by Queen Elizabeth, namely, Sir Horatio Pallavicini. And in this same House, in the first Year of King James I, the Ambassador from the Archduke of Austria lodged, with his Company.

QUEEN Elizabeth, in the Month of April 1559, came in great State from St. Mary Spi-

tal, attended with a thousand Men in Harness, with Shirts of Mail, and Crosetts, and Morris-Pikes, and ten great Pieces carried through LONDON unto the Court, with Drums, Flutes, and Trumpets founding, and two Morris-Dancers; and in a Cart two white Bears.

A Part of the large Church-yard pertaining to this Hospital, and severed from the rest with a Brick Wall, was for a long Time remaining, with a Pulpit Cross therein, somewhat like to that in St. Paul's Church-yard: And against the said Pulpit, on the South Side, before the Chancel and Chapel of St. Edmund the Bishop, and St. Mary Magdalen, (which Chapel was founded about the Year 1391, by W. Evesham, Citizen and Pepperer of LONDON, who was there buried) there was a handsome House of two Stories high, for the Mayor, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and other Persons of Distinction, to sit in to hear the Sermons preached in the Easter Holidays. In the Part over them stood the Bishop of LONDON, and other Prelates; afterwards the Aldermens Ladies used to stand, or sit, at a Window there.

Sermons in the Easter Holidays at the Spital.

IT was for a long Time a Custom, on Good-Friday in the Afternoon, for some learned Man, by Appointment of the Prelates, to preach a Sermon at Paul's-Cross, treating of CHRIST'S Passion; and upon the three next Easter Holidays, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, other learned Men, by the like Appointment, used to preach in the Forenoon at the said Spital, to persuade the Articles of CHRIST'S Resurrection: And then on Low-Sunday, before Noon, another learned Man, at Paul's-Cross, was to make Rehearfal of those four former Sermons, either commending, or reproving them, as to him (by Judgment of the learned Divines) was thought convenient: And that done, he was to make a Sermon of himself, which in all were five Sermons in one. At these Sermons, so severally preached, the Mayor, with his Brethren the Aldermen, were accustomed to be present in their Violets, at St. Paul's on Good-Friday, and in their Scarlets, both they and their Wives, at the Spital in the Holidays, except Wednesday, in Violet; and the Mayor, with his Brethren, on Low-Sunday, in Scarlet, at Paul's-Cross.

TOUCHING the Antiquity of this Custom: In the Year 1398, King Richard having procured from Rome, Confirmation of such Statutes and Ordinances as were made in the Parliament begun at Westminster and ended at Shrewsbury, he caused the same Confirmation to be read and pronounced at Paul's-Cross, and at St. Mary Spital, in the Sermons before all the People. Philip Malpas, one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1439, the 18th of Henry VII, gave 20 s. by the Year, to the three Preachers at the Spital. Stephen Forster, Mayor in the Year 1454, gave 40 s. to the Preachers of Paul's-Cross and Spital. The aforesaid House, wherein the Mayor and Aldermen sat at the Spital, was built (for that Purpose) out of the Goods, and by the Executors of Richard Rawson, Alderman, and Isabel his Wife, in the Year 1488. In the Year 1594, this Pulpit, being old, was taken down, and a new one set up, the Preacher's Face turned towards the South, which was before towards the West. Also a large House (on the East Side of the said Pulpit) was then built for the Governors and Children of Christ's Hospital to sit in, and this was done out of the Goods of William Elkins, Alderman: But within the first Year, the same House decaying, and like to have fallen, was again (with great Cost) repaired at the City's Charge.

AMONG these and other memorable Things concerning these Spital Sermons, it deserves to be recorded; That in the Year 1632, three worthy thy Brethren, Dr. Samuel Wincope, Mr. Thomas Wincope, and Mr. John Wincope, learned and reverend Divines, preached at St. Mary Spital upon Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday in Easter Week. They were called to preach from the divers Places of their Habitations, distant many Miles from one another; and as they happily met here to preach, so did the Matter upon which they preached not less happily concur: For tho' their Texts were several, yet their Discourses were upon the same Subject, with an apt Dependence upon one another, like the Links of a Golden Chain, the second beginning where the first ended, and the third where the second ended, and making a suitable and excellent Conclusion of the two former Sermons with his own.

ON the East Side of this Church-yard lieth a large Field, of old Time called Lolefworth, now Spittlefield, which about the Year 1576, was broken up for Clay to make Brick; in the digging whereof many Earthen Pots called Urns, were found full of Ashes, and burnt Bones of Men, to wit, of the Romans, who inhabited here: For it was the Custom of the Romans to burn their Dead, to put their Ashes in an Urn, and then to bury the same, with certain Ceremonies, in some Field, appointed for that Purpose, near unto their City.

EVERY of these Pots had in them (with the Ashes of the Dead) one Piece of Copper Money, with the Inscription of the Emperor then reigning: Some of them were of Claudius, some of Vespasian, some of Nero, of Antoninus Pius, of Trajanus, and others. Besides those Urns many other Pots were found in the same Place, made of a white Earth, with long Necks, and Handles, like to our Stone Jugs: These were empty, but seemed to be buried full of some liquid Matter, long since consumed and soaked through. For there were found divers Vials, and other fashioned Glasses, some most curiously wrought, and some of Chrystal, all which had Water in them, nothing differing in Clearness, Taste, or Savour from common Spring-water, whatsoever it was at the first. Some of these Glasses had Oil in them very thick, and earthy in Savour. Some were supposed to have Balm in them, but had lost the Virtue: Many of these Pots and Glasses were broken in cutting of the Clay, so that few were taken up whole.

THERE were also found divers Dishes and Cups, of a fine red colour'd Earth, which shewed outwardly such a shining Smoothness, as if they had been of Coral: These had (in the Bottoms) Roman Letters printed. There were also Lamps of white Earth, and red, artificially wrought with divers Antiques about them, and three or four Images, made of white Earth, about a Span long each of them: One was of Pallas. Amongst divers of those Antiquities there was found one Urna with the Ashes and Bones, and one Pot of white Earth very small, not exceeding the Quantity of a Quarter of a Wine-Pint, made in the Shape of a Hare squatted upon her Legs, and between her Ears is the Mouth of the Pot.

THERE hath also been found in the same Field, divers Coffins of Stone, containing the Bones of Men, supposed to be Burials of some special Persons in Time of the Britons, or Saxons, after that the Romans had left to govern here. Moreover, there were also found the Skull and Bones of Men, without Coffins, or rather whose Coffins, being of great Timber, were consumed. Divers great Nails of Iron were there found, such as are used in the Wheels of Shod Carts, being each of them as big as a Man's Finger, and a Quarter of a Yard long, the Heads two Inches over. Those Nails were more wondered at than the rest of the Things there found, and many Opinions of Men were uttered of them, namely, that the Men there buried, were murdered, by driving those Nails into their Heads, a Thing unlikely. For a smaller Nail would more aptly serve to so bad a Purpose, and a more secret Place would likely be employed for their Burial.

Dr. Meiric Casaubon (since those Times wherein the Things before-mentioned were observed) came into these Fields, and saw one of these Graves, newly opened, where was a Skull-bone broken by him that digged the Ground, and the Pieces scattered, and some carried away. But being observed to be beyond the ordinary Size, the King was acquainted with it, who appointed that the Pieces should be retrieved as many as might be, and set together, which was done, and then being drawn out according to Art, the Proportion equalled a Bushel in the Compass of it. There were Coins also found in that Grave; some whereof the said Casaubon had, and as for the Skull he conjectured it was once a Giant's, though some thought it might be an Elephant's. Such another Grave he speaks of found in Dauphine in France, with old Coins about it: The Bones and Skeleton about 25 Feet and an half in Length; which he supposed might be a certain antient Giant, named Teuteloehus, of which they had Traditions.

AND thus much for this Part of Bishopsgate Ward, without the Gate. The old Gate has been already mentioned, and the new one being not yet finished, we refer our Readers to the Appendix, in which shall be given some Account, with the Draught of it.

ONLY, for the Mention of certain Places hereabouts in the Bishop of LONDON's Register of Testaments, let this be inserted.

Walter Caketon by his Will, Aug. 18, 1430, gave to the Dean and College of the Royal Free Chapel, of St. Stephen's Westminster, 45 s. 4 d. Rent, which he had of the Gift and Grant of John Preston, Clerk, going yearly out of the Tenement Brewhouse, called Le Scot on the Hoop, situate in Bishopsgate-street, between the Tenement of the Prior of the Hospital of St. Mary without Bishopsgate, on the North, and the Lane [Venellam] of St. Helen's on the South, and the Garden of the Parson of the Church of St. Mary Somerset on the West, to have to the said Dean and College for ever, under Condition, that they keep the Anniversary of Robert Fewlmer, late Canon of the Chapel aforesaid, and of the said John Preston, Canon of the said Chapel.

AND first, to begin on the Left Hand of Bishopsgate-street, from the Gate are certain Tenements of old Time, pertaining to a Brotherhood of St. Nicholas, granted to the Parish-Clerks of LONDON, for two Chaplains to be kept in the Chapel of St. Mary Magdalen, near unto the Guildhall of LONDON, in the 27th of Henry VI. The first of the Houses towards the North, and against the Wall of the City, was some Time a large Inn or Court, called the Wrestlers, from such a Sign, and the last in the high Street towards the South was some Time also an Inn, called the Angel, from such a Sign. Amongst these said Tenements was (on the same Street Side) an Entry or Court to the common Hall of the said Parish-Clerks, with Alms-Houses, seven in Number, adjoining, for Parish-Clerks, and their Wives, their Widows, such as were advanced in Years, and not able for Labour. One of these by the said Brotherhood of Parish-Clerks, was allowed 16 d. the Week, the other six had each of them 9 d. the Week, according to the Patent thereof granted. This Brotherhood (amongst other) being suppressed: In the Reign of Edw. VI. the said Hall with the other Building there, was given to Sir Robert Chester, a Knight of Cambridgeshire; against whom the Parish-Clerks commenced a Suit, in the Reign of Queen Mary, and being being likely to have prevailed; the said Sir Robert Chester pulled down the Hall, fold the Timber, Stone, and Lead, and thereupon the Suit was ended. The Alms-houses remained in Queen Elizabeth's Hands, and People were there placed, such as could make the best Friends. Some of them taking the Pension appointed, let out their Houses for great Rent, giving Occasion to the Parson of the Parish to challenge Tithes of the Poor, &c.

IN this Parish are about 1800 Houses.

The PARISH of St. ETHELBURGA.

St. Ethel-burga's.

NEXT to this is the small Parish Church of St. Ethelburga. The Saint, to whom this Church is dedicated, was a Saxon Queen, Wife to holy Edwyn, the first Christian King of Northumberland, and Daughter to King Etkelbert, of Kent, which Etkelburga, after the Martyrdom of her Lord and Husband, fled out of Northumberland into Kent, her Native Country, with Paulinus, Archbishop of York, taking with her, Eanfled her Daughter, and Vusofrean her Son, together with Iffi, the Son of Offrid, who was the Son of the said King Edwyn, and slain in the same Battle with his Father, where they were honourably received by Honorus, Archbishop of Canterbury, and her Brother Eadbaldus, King of Kent; and having sent the two Youths into France, where they soon died, she determined to exclude out of her Mind all temporal Things, and to employ in a religious Solitude all her Thoughts and Desires upon Heaven, and God alone; which Intentions of her's being known to her Brother, King Ealbald, he bestowed upon her a Village called Liming, where she built a Monastery, and for ought appears, was the first Widow, (saith Cresse) among the Saxons, which with a religious Veil (received from St. Paulinus) consecrated herself to serve our Lord.

THERE she continued in that Godly Vocation for many Years, full of Virtue and Sanctity of Life, and died about the Year 647. Her Memory is celebrated on the 10th of September in our Martyrology.

THIS Parish-Church Stow calls the Church of St. Ethelburgh, Virgin, but it seems to be a Mistake (she being, as appears above, a Widow.) It is a small Church, and stands on the East Side of Bishopsgate, in Bishopsgate Ward within: It is subject to the Archdeacon, but the Advowson having been granted to the Bishop of LONDON, and his Successors, since the Dissolution, those Bishops have since collated and inducted to this Church.

THE Patronage of this Church, was of old, in the Priores and Convent of St. Helen (which stood next unto it) till the Suppression of that House, after which, it was granted by the Crown to the Bishop of LONDON, and his Successors, in whom it hath continued ever since.

HERE was a Chantry founded for the Souls of Gilbert Maryon, and Christine his Wife, as appears by the Admission of a Chaplain to it in December 1436, at the Presentation of the Rector, Church-wardens, and Parishioners of this Parish, as the true Patrons thereof.

IT is uncertain when this Church was first erected; but it was repaired and beautified in the Year 1612, and the Steeple in the Year 1620; and having escaped the deplorable Fire in the Year 1666, the Steeple was again beautified and repaired in 1694, as the Church was in 1701, as appears on the West Gallery with a Cypher of W. R. The South Gallery has this Inscription at the East End of it.

VOL. I.

THIS Gallery was given by Mr. Owen Saint-peer, (being Church-warden) in the Year 1629, only for the Daughters and Maid Servants of this Parish to sit in.

By which Words are these Arms; Sable a Bend Argent, with a Lambeau of three Points for a Difference, quartered with Argent, a Cross.

Sable, and for the Crest, on the Point of a Spear, Or, a Dolphin Proper.

AND the Vestry, at the East End, was built in 1702, at the Charge of the Parish.

THIS Church is a Gothick Building, with a small Spire, and hath a Clock projecting into the Street.

As to the Ornament and Finishing, besides the two Galleries before-mentioned, it is well pewed, and wainscotted with Oak, near seven Feet high.

THE Altar-piece was built in the Year 1705, of right Oak; it consists of Pilasters and Entablature of the Corinthian Order, with Enrichments, also Attick Pilasters, a Compass or Circular Pediment, and Acroters, whereon are placed Lamps; and under the Pediment is a Glory. Here are also the Commandments, Lord's-Prayer, and Creed, done in Gold on Black; which, as also the Branch, was given by Mr. Clark of this Parish.

IN this Church are a few Monuments and Grave-stones; as, for one Williams, who had attended on 42 Mayors, deceased the 19th of July 1583. He is covered with a flat Stone in the Body of the Chancel, on which there is the Representation of a Man in Brass, wearing a Gown, and one behind him kneeling, with his two Wives.

ON the Stone these Verses:

Unusquisq; diu gaudet, bene vivere nemo.
Quisq; pie debet vivere [nemo] diu.

AGAINST the North Wall, near the Chancel, on a black Marble Monument, adorned with Pediments, and two Babes weeping, is this Inscription, viz.

Here lieth interred the Body of John Cornelius Linckebank, of LONDON, Merchant, who exchanged this Life in his grand Climacterical Year 63, the 30th of September 1655, leaving behind him, by his first Wife Mary, three Sons, Henry, Jacob, and Peter, and one beloved Daughter Mary.

Corporis Arca mei variis jactata procellis
Expectans portum Paradisi hac valle quies Heredes. Resurgam.

THERE is also a Monument for John Lamb, Son of William Lamb, Gent. and Catharine his Wife, November 3, 1681.

THIS Parish extends on the West Side of Bishopsgate-street, from the Bull-Inn to Bishopsgate, and takes in Sutton's-court, and Helmet-court; and in Wormwood-street, from the Corner in Bishopsgate-street, to Helmet-court. It extends on the East Side of Bishopsgate-street, from Cammome-street to the Church, and takes in Angel-court, and South-Sea-clerks-alley. It extends also in Cammome-street on the South Side thereof, from the Corner in Bishopsgate Eastward to South-Sea-clerks-alley.

THE Number of Houses in this Parish are 120.

NEAR to St. Ethelburga's is a large Court, the Entrance into which is at this Time new building, called Little St. Helen's, because it once appertained to the Nuns of St. Helen, and was their House: There are seven Alms-Rooms or Houses for the Poor, belonging to the Company of Leatherfellers. Then somewhat more West is another Court with a winding Lane coming out against the West End of St. Andrew Underhaft's Church.

The PARISH of St. HELEN.

St. Helen's

IN this Court stands the Church of St. Helen, some Time a Priory of Black Nuns: St. Helen, to whom this Priory was dedicated, by Constantius Chlorus, Governor of Britain under the Romans, was Mother of Constantine the Great, the first Christian Emperor of Rome. She was the Daughter of Coel, Prince of the Britons, and born at Colchester in Essex, according to the British Chronicles. But some Greek Writers (among whom Nicephorus) relate, That she was born at Drepanum in Bithynia in Asia, being the Daughter of an Host in that City, who brought her to Constantius, then happening to be there in his Passage as Ambassador in Persia, who being enamoured of her great Beauty and Comeliness, had the Use of her Body, and got her with Child, which Child being afterwards born, she named Constantine. But Cardinal Baronius, in his Annals, Anno Christi 306, by some Arguments confutes this Relation, averring, that she was by Birth a Briton, and no Concubine to Constantius Chlorus, but his lawful Wife.

THIS is that Helena, which in antient Writings is named Piissima & Venerabilis Augusta. She went to Jerusalem, and there found out Christ's Cross, and ordained Quirinus, Bishop of Jerusalem. She afterwards returned to Rome, where she died, and was interred about the Year of our Lord 326, aged 80 Years. From Rome she was afterwards translated by her Son Constantine to Constantinople, and from thence, as Peter de Natalibus writes, to Venice, where, says he, her Body lies buried in a Monastery dedicated to her Name. But others say, her Body was translated to Rhemes, where her Translation is celebrated, yearly, Feb. 7, and at Rome her Festivity is kept, August 18.

BEFORE she came from Jerusalem, she repaired that City, adorning the same with many goodly Churches and Monuments. In many other Places she erected divers Churches dedicated to her Name. In her native Country of Great Britain (for so the most authentick Writers affirm) she left some Memorials of herself; for she built (as it is said) the Walls of LONDON and Colchester, and erected also a goodly Church at Bedford, which being turned into a Monastery, was afterwards destroyed by the Danes, about the Year 868. Who so desires to read more of St. Helen, may satisfy himself out of Eusebius in Vita Constantini, Rufinus, Sozomen, Peter de Natalibus, Nicephorus, and divers others.

THE said Priory long since was founded before the Reign of Henry III. William Basing, Dean of St. Paul's, was the first Founder, and was there buried, and William Basing, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, in the second Year of Edward II. was held also to be a Founder, or rather an Helper thereto. This Priory being valued at 314 l. 2 s. 6 d. was surrender'd the 25th of November, the 30th of Henry VIII. The whole Church, the Partition betwixt the Nuns Church and the Parish-Church being taken down, remaineth now to the Parish, and is a fair Parish-Church, but wanteth such a Steeple as Sir Thomas Gresham promised to have built, in Recompence of Ground in their Church filled up with his Monument.

THE Nuns Hall, and other Housing thereto pertaining, was since purchased by the Company of Leatherfellers, and is their common Hall.

The Parsonage of St. Helen's was in the Crown in the Days of Queen Elizabeth. A Lease whereof she granted about the Year 1588 to one Captain Nicholas Oseley for his good Service against the Spaniards. A Person, who being in Spain in these dangerous Times, had sent very good Intelligence thence; and likewise in the Fight against the Spanish Fleet in 1588. Whereupon Howard, Lord Admiral, sent a Letter in his Behalf to the Lord Treasurer, that for the Causes abovementioned, it was the Queen's Pleasure, that no Lease of the said Parsonage should, in the meantime, be granted out of the Exchequer, which might prevent the Reward of one that had so well deserved, in adventuring his Life so many Ways in her Majesty's Service.

THE

BUT before this, in the 10th of Elizabeth, May 27, the Queen granted to Cesar Adelmare, and Thomas Colfil, the Rectory, Parish-Church, Messuages, Tithes, &c. for 21 Years; reserving unto her Majesty and her Heirs, the Advowson of the Vicarage.

THE Rectory came afterwards to Michael Stanhope, Esq; and Edward Stanhope, LL.D. and one of the Masters of the Court of Chancery, 20 l. to be issuing from the said Rectory every Year pro stipendio, i. e. for a Salary to a sufficient Preacher of GOD's Word, to be allowed by the Bishop of LONDON. The Parish have a Copy of the Queen's Sale, granting to them the whole Rectory and Church of St. Helen's, with their Rights, Members, and Appurtenances, late belonging to the Priory of St. Helen's, and all the Messuages, Houses, Edifices, Gardens, and Tithes, Oblations, Rents, Fruits, Profits, Advantages, Commodities, &c. This bore Date, at Westminster, Sept. 13, in the 41st of her Reign.

THIS Church was beautifully repaired, at the Charge of the Parishioners, having 1300 l. laid out upon it, in the Year 1633; and, escaping the dreadful Fire in 1666, was again repaired, and the small Tower built in the Year 1699. It is a modern Gothick Building, and plainly appears to have been two Churches, there being only a North and South Isle, and where the Middle Isle is in other Churches, here is a Range of Pillars and Arches. The Pulpit is placed in the South Isle, fronting Northward, and the Walls of this Building are mostly of Brick and Stone, covered with a Finishing, having Battlements, and strengthened with Butterssies.

IT has a handsome strong Timber Roof. There are three Wainscot Door-cases, one at the West-End is very ornamental, with Columns and Entablature of the Composite Order; also two Lions, and a Shield between two Cherubs, each sustaining a Festoon, and in the Middle of the Pediment these Words carved:

This is none other but the House of GOD, this is the Gate of Heaven.

IT is also pewed with Oak, and there are Seats on the North Side of the Church for the Children, and others of the Work-house in Bishopsgate-street, tho' the said Workhouse, as said before, is in the Parish of St. Botolph: And the Altar-Piece is painted Deal of the Composite Order. The Inter-columns are the Commandments, between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, done in Gold Letters on Black. Over the Commandments is a Glory, and these Words:

If ye love me, keep my Commandments. St. John, Chap. xiv.

AND above the Cornice, the King's Arms, supported by two Angels; also in the East-Wind-ow, there are the Arms of LONDON, the Grocers, and two others, and in the other Wind-ows, the Leatherfellers, and some few more.

THE Length of the Church is 111 Feet, Breadth 50, and Altitude 31; also that of the Steeple, which consists of a small Tower, a Kind of Cupola, and Turret, is 68 Feet, wherein are only two Bells.

In the Church of St. Helen are these MONUMENTS.

Thomas Langton, Chaplain, buried in the Choir, 1350.

Adam Francis, Mayor, 1354.

Elizabeth Venner, Wife to William Venner, Alderman, one of the Sheriffs, 1401.

Dame Elizabeth Greystock, Widow, late Wife of Sir John Vavasor, Knt. which Lady by Will, dated May 14, 1509, bequeathed her Body to be buried in the Monastery of St. Helen, within Bishopsgate, LONDON, in the Chapel of our Lady in the North Side of the Chapel, and gave to the Priorefs and Convent of the same a Bafon and Ewer of Silver.

Robert Knollys, Esq; Gentleman Usher of the Privy Chamber of the King. He bequeathed Anno 1420, to the Priorefs and Convent of this Monastery, a Suit of Copes, and 20 l.

IN this Church there was a Figure of the Trinity, and a high Altar of St. Helen; to which much Devotion was paid. In the Year 1488, Rafe Machin, Esq; of this Parish, made his Will, to be buried before the Trinity in St. Helen's Parish in Bishopsgate-street, &c. "Item, I be"queath to the Church a black Velvet Gown,
"and a black Velvet Cloak. Item, I bequeath
"to the high Aultare of St. Ellen's a fyne Diaper
"Tabull Cloath.

Joan, Daughter to Henry Seamer, Wife to Richard, Son and Heir to Robert Lord Poynings, dyed a Virgin, 1420.

John Swinfleet, 1420.

Nicholas Marshall, Ironmonger, Alderman, 1474.

Sir John Crosby, Alderman, 1475. And Anne his Wife; both their Effigies, finely carved in white Marble, lye at full Length upon the Monument.

Thomas Williams, Gentleman, 1495.

Mary Orrell, Wife to Sir Lewis Orrell, Knt.

Henry Sommer, and Catharine his Wife.

Walter Huntington, Esq;

John Langthorpe, Esq; 1510.

John Gower, Steward of St. Helen's, 1512.

Robert Rochefter, Esq; Serjeant of the Pantry to Henry VIII.

Sir William Sanctlo, and Sir William Sanctlo, Father and Son.

Eleanor, Daughter to Sir Thomas Butler, Lord Sudley.

John Southworth.

Robert Lyade.

Thomas Benolt, alias Clarencieux King at Arms, 1534.

William Hollis, Mayor, 1540.

John Fauconbridge, Esq, 1545.

_____ Hackett, Gentleman of the King's Chapel.

Sir Andrew Jud, Mayor, 1551.

William Skegges, Serjeant Poulter.

Richard Gresham, Son to Sir Thomas Gresham, 1564.

THERE is a very stately Monument, having the Effigies of Sir William Pickering, in white Marble, in full Proportion lying upon it, with this Inscription:

Quiescit hic Gulielmus Pickeringus, Pater Equestris Ordinis Vir, Miles Mariscallus. Qui obiit 19 Die Maij, Anno Salutis a Christo 1542.

Jacit hic etiam Gulielmus Pickeringus, Filius, Miles, Corporis Animiq; bonis insigniter ornatus; Literis excultis, & Religione sincerus, Linguas exacte percalluit. Quatuor Principibus summa cum laude inservivit: Henrico scilicet octavo, militari virtute; Edwardo sexto, Legatione Gallica: Reginae Mariae Negotiatione Germanica: Elizabethae, Principi omnium illustrissimae, summis Officiis devotissimus. Obiit Londini, in Aedibus Pickeringiis, Aetate 51, Anno Gratiae 1573, Januarii Quarto.

Cujus Memoria, Thomas Henneagius, Miles, Camera Regia Thesaurarius; Johannes Asteley, Armiger, Jocalium Magister; Druro Drurecus, & Thomas Wotton, Armig. Testamenti sui Executores, Monumentum hoc posuere.]

THERE is a handsome Monument on the North Wall of the Choir, with this Inscription:

Here lieth the Body of William Bond, Alderman, and some Time Sheriff of LONDON; a Merchant Adventurer, and most famous (in his Age) for his great Adventures both by Sea and Land. Obiit 32 die Maij, 1576.

ANOTHER in the South Isle of the Choir, as in a Chapel by itself, hath this Inscription:

Hic situs est Johannes Spencer, Eques Auratus, Cives & Senator Londinensis, ejusdem Civitatis Prætor An. 1594. Qui ex Alicia Bromfieldia Uxore unicam reliquit Filiam Elizabeth, Gulielmo, Baroni Compton enuptam. Obiit 30 die Martij, Anno Salutis M. DC. IX.

Socero bene merito Gulielmus Baro Compton gener posuit.

IN the West Side of the same Chapel, is an extraordinary beautiful and spacious Marble Monument white, white veined with blue, and red veined with white, adorned with Entablature, and 2 Cupids, one holding a gilded Taper, the other weeping. On the Cornice, three Urns, with a large Festoon, and below are four Cherubims, with other Enrichments of Mantling, Palm-branches, three Chaplets, &c. and this Inscription:

M. S.

Charles Chamberlan, Esq; Alderman of this City, in Testimony of his true Affection and Sorrow for their Deaths, hath consecrated this Monument to the Memory of his dearly beloved Wife Rachael, the Daughter of Sir John Lawrence, Knight, Lord Mayor of LONDON, 1665; who died August 21, 1687, soon after her Delivery of her 10th Child; and of his 4th Daughter Hester, who died the 9th of June 1687, at the Age of six Years, eight Months; both whose Bodies are here deposited in a Vault near this Place, belonging to his Ancestors, in Expectation of a joyful Resurrection at the last Day.

UNDER the last mentioned Monument, is another, with the following Inscription:

M. S.

In the same Vault with his dear Wife and Daughter, and with like Hopes of a joyful Resurrection together, lyeth the Body of Charles Chamberlan, Esq; Alderman of this City; who departed this Life, Jan. 29, 1704, aged sixty five Years; having no where left behind him either a Merchant better accomplished, or a Gentleman more copmleatly adorned with all Sorts of useful Knowledge. In Memory of her most affectionate and intirely beloved Father, Abigail, his sorrowful Daughter and sole Executrix, the Wife of Lemyng Rebow, Esq; caused this Monument to be enlarged.

IN the South Isle of this Church, is a large Window, with this Inscription:

This Window was glazed at the Charge of Joyce Featly, Daughter to William Kerwyn, Esq; and Wife to Daniel Featly, D. D. Anno Domini 1632.

THIS Window is beautified with three rich Coats, her Father's, her first, and her second Husbands.

OVER against it, towards the Middle Isle, is a Monument erected to the Memory of her worthy Father, and aforesaid William Kerwyn, Esq; dated 1594, the Time of his Death and Burial.

ALSO of Mrs. Magdalen Kerwyn, her Mother, buried in the Year of our Lord 1692.

OF Benjamin Kerwyn, her Brother, buried the 27th of July, Anno 1621, and here (with them all that are before named) interred.

THIS Monument, in this Passage after 39 Years, somewhat defaced and withered, was raised, repaired, beautified, and encompassed with Iron Bars, in a fair and graceful Manner, at the Charge of this loving Daughter, the aforesaid Mrs. Joyce Featly, 1632.

THERE is a fair Grave-stone, engraven on a plain Stone, being there laid in Memorial of Mr. Abraham Orelus, a learned Preacher of the French Church. It lieth near to Sir John Spencer's Tomb in the South Isle of the Chancel.

BESIDES the Monuments above-mentioned, there are these later ones.

John Standish, D. D. Chaplain to King Charles II., and King James II., deceased the 2d of the Calends of January 1686.

AGAINST the South Wall of the Church is a Monument for Henry White, late of Bilboa, Merchant, who died January 1, 1702-3.

ANOTHER for Dame Abigail Lawrence, late Wife of Sir John Lawrence, Knight and Alderman. She was the Mother of ten Children; the nine first, being all Daughters, she suckled at her own Breasts: Her last, a Son, died an Infant. She died the 16th of June, 1682.

AGAINST the same Wall, a little above two Years since, was set up a neat Marble Table, with this Inscription:

H. S. E.

Richardus Backwell, Armiger, (Edwardi Backwell, hujus olim Civitatis Aldermanni Filius)
Heu Maxime Deslendus
Patriæ admodum & Amicis
(Haud Æqui sibi)
Utilis vixit.

Obiit Aprilis die 26, A. D. 1731. Ætat. 67.
Patris Dilectissimi

Memoriæ
Hoc Marmor Dicavit
Richardus Backwell
Filius.

BENEATH the Body of the Church in the North Wall, and near the West End of the Church, is a very spacious Marble Monument, with Columns and Entablature of the Corinthian Order; also two Arches, under the Westward of which are the Figures of him and nine Children, and under the Eastward those of his Wife and seven Daughters, all in a Kneeling Posture, and under is the Inscription following.

Within this Monument lieth the earthly Parts of John Robinson, Merchant of the Staple in LONDON, free of the Merchant-Taylors, and some Time Alderman of LONDON, and Christian his Wife, eldest Daughter of Thomas Anderson, Grocer. They spent together in holy Wedlock 36 Years, and were happy, (besides other Blessings) in nine Sons and seven Daughters: She changed her mortal Habitation for a Heavenly, on the 24th of April 1592. Her Husband following her on the 19th of Feb. 1599. Both much beloved in their Lives, and more lamented at their Deaths, especially by the Poor, to whom their good Deeds (being alive) begot many Prayers; now being dead many Tears. The Glass of his Life held 70 Years, and then run out. To live long and happy is an Honour, but to die happy a greater Glory; both these aspired to both. Heaven do doubt hath their Souls, and this House of Stone their Bodies, where they sleep in Peace 'till the Summons of a glorious Resurrection awakens them.
on

Not far from this is the remarkable Monument of Mr. Bancroft, who was there buried in the Year 1728; it is a large, and indeed but clumsy, Piece of Stone Building, having four Urns, with gilt Flames at the Top, a Pair of Wainscot Doors glazed to go into it, which he often did himself in his Life-time; the Key of these Doors is kept by the Drapers Company, to whom he left a great Estate; it is encompassed by a Rail of Iron, and hath this Inscription upon it:

The Ground whereon this Tomb stands, was purchased of this Parish in 1723, by Francis Bancroft, Esq; for the Interment of himself and Friends only, and was confirmed to him by a Faculty from the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, LONDON, the same Year; and in his Life-time he erected this Tomb, Anno 1726. and settled Part of his Estate in LONDON and Middlesex, for beautifying and keeping the same in Repair for ever.

OVER the Inscription are his Arms, viz.

Or, Three Wheat-Sheaves of the same, on a Bend, Azure, between six cross Crofslets of the last.

CREST, A Wheat-Sheaf, Or, between two Wings.

AGAINST the North Wall, and on the North Side of the Church, are Monuments for,

William Finch, Merchant, and Esther his Wife.

William Drax, Esq; Dec. 17, 1669.

Henry Draper, Esq; Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, 17 Jan. 1674. and four of his Grandchildren,

George Briggs, Esq; 1663.

James Stanier, Merchant of this City, Dec. 16, 1663. And Thomasin, his Wife, Nov. 19, 1676.

A Stone with Armenian Letters. It is laid up on John Wartanis, Armenian Merchant: Born in Persia. Deceased 7 April, 1662.

Walter Briggin, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor, 15 Sept. 1625.

Thomas Chamberlain, Purveyor, for the King, May 3, 1684. And Mary his Wife, Sept. 21, 1686.

George Kellum, Esq; April 30, 1672: and several of his Children; and his Wife, Katharine Kellum, 14 Oct. 1703.

Sir Martin Lumley, Knt. Alderman of LONDON, 16—4.

Charles Senior, Son of Richard Senior, Anno 1664.

South Chapel. Regina Wolfe, late Daughter of John Wolfe of LONDON, Merchant, and Regina, his Wife, Feb. 1, 1690. Also Lucy Wolfe, their other Daughter, January 24, and Regina Wolfe, the Mother of these, Jan. 28, 1691;

Sir Julius Adelmare, alias Cæsar, Knt. Doctor of both Laws, Judge of the Court of Admiralty, April 18, 1636, aged 75; the Lady Anne Cæsar set up the Monument, and rests with him.

VOL. I.

Christopher Chamberlain, of LONDON; Merchant, Dec. 15, 1640, aged 72.

Martin Bond, Esq; hath a Monument against the North Wall, Son of William Bond, Sheriff and Alderman of LONDON, he was Captain in the Year 1588, in the Camp at Tilbury: Lived to the Age of 85, and died in May, 1643.

Edward Berkley, Esq; May 8, 1669.

Near the Vestry Door, a little Monument against the Wall, for Gervase Reresby, sprung from an antient Family in Yorkshire; who lived thirty Years in Spain in great Reputation, died in England, Anno 1704. This Monument was erected by his only Son.

THERE is a printed Memorial hanging up in a Table, at the Entrance into this Church, of a young new born Child, that was taken up between the great Warehouse and Sir John Spencer's back Gate, being (by a most unnatural Mother) there buried in a great Dunghil of Sea-Coal Ashes, with the Face upward, yet found alive by Richard Atkinson, who used to make clean this Passage there of the Soil, carrying it thence with his Wheelbarrow. The Child had not any Rag or Cloth about it, but was all bloodied, by reason that the Navel-String was untied, and the Body merely crusted over with the Sea-Coal Dust. Yet being made clean by the poor Man's Wife, it was found to be a most goodly Man-Child; strong and well featured, without any Blemish, or Harm upon it. But strangled inwardly, by sucking in the noisome Filth and Ashes.

It was christened and named, Job Cinere extractus, Job taken out of the Ashes. It lived three Days, and dying, lies buried in the Church-yard, the 5th of September, 1612, Richard Ball, Minister, William Robinson and Richard Westney, Church-wardens; Thomas Edwards and Abraham Gramer, Side-Men; and John Harvey, Clerk.

THE Charities in this Parish given to the Poor are 2 s. every Sunday (for ever) in Bread, allowed by the Gift of the afore-remembered Mr. Robinson, and 1 s. also in Bread every Sunday, given by Mrs. Stiöl.

Sir Andrew Jud also founded six Alms-Houses for certain poor People, and gave Lands to the Skinners, out of which they are to give 4 s. every Week to six poor Alms-Men, 8 d. a-piece, and 25 s. 4 d. a Year in Coals among them for ever. These Houses have been lately rebuilt, having this Inscription over the Door.

These Alms-Houses were founded by Sir Andrew Jud, Knt. Citizen and Skinner, and Lord Mayor of LONDON, Anno Dom. 1551, for six poor Men of the said Company. Rebuilt by the said Company, Anno Dom. 1729.

HERE follows an exact Table of the Grants, Donations and Bequests conferred and settled upon this Parish, and the several Trusts and Uses thereof collected by R. Bromley, Church-warden, March 20, 1703.

DONORS.

IN 1599, Queen Elizabeth, by Letters Patents, did give and grant the Rectory and Church of St. Helen's, with the Rights and Appurtenances, to the late Priory of St. Helen's some Time belonging, and all the Messuages, Houses, &c. to the Use of Michael Stanhope, Esq; one of the Grooms of the Privy Chamber, and Edward Stanhope, Doctor of Laws, their Heirs and Assigns for ever. In which Grant is reserved, to be paid by them 20 l. per Ann. by Quarterly Payments, to be going out of the said Rectory, for a Stipend or Salary, to a sufficient Preacher of the Word of God, from Time to Time in the said faid Church, to be allowed by the Bishop of LONDON.

July 12, 1599, John Robinson, Senior, Merchant of the Staple, by his Will, gave unto his Son Arthur a Messuage, or Tenement, with the Appurtenances, in the Parish of St. Olave, near the Tower of LONDON, to hold to him, and his Heirs Males of his Body, with several Remainders to his other Sons, and their Heirs Males, &c. And his Will is, That for ever shall be paid out of the said Capital House, to the Parson and Church-wardens of this Parish, and their Successors, yearly, by Quarterly Payments, 5 l. 4 s. which they shall distribute weekly, by 2 s. every Sunday Morning, in Bread to the Poor of this Parish, with a Clause for Distress. This was paid by the Wardens of the Carpenters Company.

September 29, 1603, Edward Fenner, of this Parish, Citizen and Carpenter, by his Will, did order and dispose of his Messuage, or Tenement, with the Appurtenances, wherein he dwelt, to several Persons, for their respective Lives, and after their Decease, the Reversion and Remainder thereof to the Minister and Church-wardens of this Parish, for the Time being, and their Successors, for ever. And to the Master and Wardens of the Company of Carpenters LONDON, and their Successors for ever; to the End that they, within four Years next after that they should be possessed thereof, pay his next Heir then living, 20 l. And after that, all such Rents then after made, be devised in two equal Parts: Whereof one Part to be distributed, yearly, for ever, to the Poor of this Parish.

THIS House was then in Lease, by Indenture Tripartite, dated September 12, 1671, for 34 Years, at the Rent, for one Moiety thereof of 5 l. per Annum, to the Church-wardens of this Parish: But it is to be noted, That this House was let by the Lessees to William Poole, Sadler, at 32 l. per Annum by Lease; but Care was afterwards taken by the Officers of the Parish, to be better Husbards for their Poor; for upon the Expiration of this Lease, it was let out at the full Value, for the Use of the Poor.

March 11, 1607, William Prior, Citizen, and Pewterer of LONDON, by his Testament willed, after the Decease of his Wife, the yearly Rent of his Messuage, or Tenement, in this Parish, to be paid to the Church-wardens, and to be by them laid out for ever, viz. 8 l. of the said Rent to be bestowed in Sea-Coals, and given to the Poor of this Parish. And also for two Sermons, to be preached yearly, for ever, viz. on the first Sunday in clean Lents one Sermon; and the other on the Day of his Burial, (which was March 27, 1608) for which Sermons he gave 13 s. 4 d. out of the said Rent. And to the Church-wardens, for the Time being, for a Drinking, 2 l. yearly, to be spent on the Day the said first Sermon shall be preached. And the rest of the said yearly Rent, to be to the Use of the Poor of the said Parish.

THIS House was then let by Lease, by Indenture dated June 4, 1697, for 21 Years, from Lady-Day 1699, at 30 l. per Annum.

September 1, 1631, Sir Martin Lumley, Knt. and Alderman of LONDON, by his Will, gave to the Church-wardens, and their Successors, for ever, one Annuity, or Rent Charge, of 20 l. to be issuing out of his Messuage, or Tenement, in the Parish of St. John Evangelist, LONDON, called The Black Boy, at two Payments, Christmas and Lady-Day; upon Trust for the establishing a Lecture, or Sermon, for ever, to be preached in this Parish-Church on Thursdays Evening weekly, from Michaelmas to Lady-Day; the Church-wardens to pay the same to a godly Divine, for his Pains in preaching the said Lecture. And to the said Church-wardens likewise one other Annuity, or Rent Charge, of 4 l. per Annum, issuing out of the said Messuage, or Tenement, by two Payments, at Christmas and Lady-Day, for the Use of the Poor of this Parish.

THIS House is now known by the Sign of The Bear and ragged Staff, in Watling-street, near St. Paul's Church.

Item, There is a Payment unto the Vicar of this Parish, of 3 l. per Annum, issuing out of a Messuage, some Time in the Occupation of Charles Perkins. This is said to have been antiently the Vicarage House, and of late was claimed by the Skinners Company.

October 14, 1633, William Robinson, late of this Parish, Citizen and Mercer, by his Deed enrolled in Chancery, charged a Messuage, or Tenement, and two Yard Lands, and a Quarter of a Yard Land, in Haverton upon the Hill in Northamptonshire, and all his Lands, with one Annuity of 2 l. 12 s. after his Decease, for ever, to be paid to the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor of this Parish at Lady-Day, to be distributed among the poor Pensioners of this Parish, by 12 d. per Week, in Wheaten Bread, every Sabbath Day, after Morning Service.

February 8, 1635, Thomas Fenner, Citizen of LONDON, did, by his Will, give all that his Messuage and Tenement in this Parish, after the Decease of his Wife and Brother, unto the Parson and Church-wardens of this Parish, upon Trust that they shall, out of the Rent and Profit thereof, yearly distribute among seven poor Women of this Parish, in most Want, 7 l. and shall cause one Sermon, yearly, to be preached in this Church, on the Day he shall be buried, by some godly Preacher; and shall give to him for his Pains, for every Sermon 10 s. and that the Church-wardens may take the other 10 s. and all the rest of the Rents and Profits of the said Messuage, or Tenement, shall be to the Use of the Poor of the said Parish.

Note, This House was leased out to Thomas Kirkes, by Indenture dated November 21, 1689, for fifty Years, at 8 l. per Annum; he having rebuilt the same at his own Charge.

April 20, 1636, Joyce Featly, by her Will, or Writing, indented Tripartite, did appoint, That after the Death of Dr. Daniel Featly, her Husband, and herself, yearly to be paid by her Heirs, out of the Rents and Profits of a Messuage in the Parish of Lambeth in Surrey, (being Copyhold of the Manor of Kennington) for ever, 4 l. per Ann. to be paid to the Vicar and Church-wardens of this Parish, by Quarterly Payments, upon Trust, to distribute 12 d. thereof weekly, every Sunday, in Bread; and 20 s. thereof, yearly, to the Preacher, to preach on the Day of her Burial, (and that happened on the 3d of October 1637) and in Default of such Sermon, that said 20 s. to go to the Poor of the Parish: And 6 s. yearly, to be bestowed in repairing her Father's Tomb. And the other 2 s. yearly, to the Sexton, for keeping clean the same Tomb.

Note, That this Annuity did accrue due and payable in the Year 1645, upon the Death of the said Dr. Featly, (who died April 21, that said Year) but the Heirs of the said Joyce refusing to pay the same, the Vicar and Church-wardens sued out an Inquisition upon the Statute for Charitable Uses; and in December 1648, obtained a Decree for the Payment thereof: But the Manor of Kennington being vested in the Crown, and by reason of the Change of Government, and Confusion in those Times, the said Decree was never put in Execution, or revived, until the Year 1702, when the Vicar and Church-wardens sued out a Writ of Scire Facias, to revive the same Decree.

To

To which one Nicholas Lampen, and others, in Possession of the Premises, put in Exceptions: And Matter coming to be heard before the Right Honourable the Lord Keeper, November 13, 1703, his Lordship dismiss'd the said Exceptions, and ordered the Payment of the said Annuities from Michaelmas 1703; but (for some Reasons) with a Remittance of all Arrears. Which Order is made a final Decree of the Court of Chancery; and so enrolled in the Petty-bag Office, March 1703.

May 23, 1682, Diana Astrey, of this Parish, Widow, did, by her Will, give 10 s. yearly, for ever, to the Minister of this Parish, for better Encouragement to Preach, and to the Clerk, 2 s. 6 d. for ever.

May 16, 1684, by an Indenture (concluding an Agreement between Sir John Lawrence, Knt. and the Parishioners of this Parish) he obliged himself and his Heirs, Executors, &c. to pay a Legacy of 100 l. given to this Parish by Adam Lawrence, Merchant, by his Will, dated March 23, 1656, and to pay 150 l. due for Interest of the same at that Time, and to pay 100 l. more for Leave to make a Vault in the Parish Church, for the Use of himself and his Family: The said Sir John Lawrence did, by the same Indenture, therefore grant to several Persons and their Heirs for ever, in Trust of the Parish, one Annuity or Rent Charge of 20 l. per Annum, to be issuing out of a Messuage or Tenement in this Parish, not long since in the Occupation of John Seagre, with a Clause for Distress: Redeemable upon Payment of 350 l. and the Annuity thereupon to cease.

Note, This 20 l. per Annum, is to be applied towards the Encouragement of the Minister and for the Use of the Poor, at the Direction of the Parishioners in Vestry assembled.

THERE is to be received, yearly, at Christmas, by the Alderman of Bishopsgate Ward, or his Beadle, 2 s. being the Gift of Margaret Dunn, payable from the Ironmongers Company, for the Use of the Poor of this Parish.

THIS Church of St. Helen's and Rectory was once in the Parish, if they could but have kept it, being held of the Crown by Lease: And there is, in a Parish-Book belonging to this Parish, the Copy of a Lease, from Queen Elizabeth to Cæsar Aldermarie (as it is writ for Adelmare) Esq; and Thomas Colcel, (or Colsbill) Parishioners and Inhabitants of St. Helen's Parish in the City of LONDON, for, and in the Name of all the Parishioners and Inhabitants there, upon their Desire, to be to them granted, of the Rectory of the said Parish, for that Intent and Purpose, that the Rents, Issues, and Profits of the same shall from Time to Time rise, grow, and increase, to the Use, Profit and Commodity of the Parishioners there. Therefore, in Consideration of 17 l. 12 s. 2 d. paid by the said Cæsar Aldermarie and Tho. Colcel at the Receipt of the Exchequer, she (the said Queen Elizabeth) granted, and to Farm devised to them, all that Rectory and Parsonage and Church of St. Helen's in the said City, except and reserved to her Majesty, and her Heirs, the Advowson of the Vicarage there: To have and to hold the said Rectory, Parish, and Church, Messuages, Houses, Tithes, Oblations, and other Profits, to the said Cæsar and Thomas, their Executors and Assigns, from the Feast of St. Michael the Archangel, unto the Term of 21 Years: Yielding and paying, therefore, yearly, to her, her Heirs and Successors, 8 l. 16 s. 1 d. The said Cæsar and Thomas to pay as well the Priests Wages, there doing Divine Service, and all other Sums of Money for Bread and Wine, and other Necessaries in the Church, to be expended and paid.

THEN there was a Clause, that the said Farmers shall repair the Chancel and Housing to the said Rectory belonging: And likewise a Clause, that after such reasonable Sums of Money received, paid and deducted, as they laid out, as well for the Fine of this Lease, or otherwise about the Sum, and obtaining the same, or of these Letters Patents; and from thenceforth, all such Issues and Profits coming and issuing of the same Parsonage, all Charges of the said Parsonage being deducted, they shall convert and dispose to the Use and Commodity of the Parishioners, or cause to be converted or disposed, during the said Term. This was dated May the 27th, in the 10th Year of that Queen's Reign.

THE Parish seems to have had this Rectory in Lease before. For it is said that March 21, 1564, the Parish paid Mr. Colcel, for the Charge of the Lease of the said Parsonage, 20 l. according to an Order taken in the Vestry.

ONE of these Farmers of the Rectory, viz. Mr. Cæsar, died soon after the aforesaid Lease, namely, Anno 1569, and seems to have been the Father of Sir Julius Cæsar, a Civilian, and great Man under Queen Elizabeth and King James I, being Judge of the Admiralty, and a Privy-Counsellor, who lies buried in St. Helen's Church under a fair Monument, where, in a Latin Inscription, his Character and Quality are told.

THIS Rectory came afterwards into the Possession of the Stanhopes, viz. in the 41st of Queen Elizabeth, as hath been before-mentioned. The Parish have a Copy of her Sale thereof for the Sum of 610 l. 18 s. 7 d. ob. q. paid by Michael Stanhope, Esq; one of the Grooms of the Privy-Chamber, and Edward Stanhope, Doctor of Law, and one of the Masters of the Court of Chancery: "Granting to them the whole Rectory and Church of St. Helen, with their Rights, Members and Appurtenances, late belonging to the Priory of St. Helen, and all the Messuages, Houses, Edifices, Gardens, Tithes, Oblations, Rents, Fruits, Profits, Commodities, Advantages, &c. belonging to the said Rectory and Church: And the annual Rent of 8 l. 16 s. 1 d. formerly belonging to the said Priory, and Parcel of the Possessions. Which Priory, Rectory and Church, is extended to the clear yearly Value of 8 l. 16 s. 1 d. per Annum, to hold by Fealty in free and common Soccage, and not in Capite, nor by Military Service: And, moreover, she gave and granted all the Rents, Issues, Revenues, Profits, &c. of all and singular the Premises from the Feast of the Annunciation of our Blessed Lady, last past, by her Gift, absq; compoto, 20 l. to be issuing from the said Rectory, pro stipendio sive Salario, i. e. for a Stipend or Salary for a sufficient Preacher of God's Word within the said Church, to preach from Time to Time, to be allowed by the Bishop of LONDON, for the Time being, to be paid him Quarterly by equal Portions, and from the said Payments, to free and indemnify her and her Successors." This bore Date at Westminster the 13th of September, 41 Regni.

THIS Living is now an Impropriation; the Impropriator is Mr. Freeman, the Tithes, 64 l. 12 s. 7 d. per Annum, rated in the King's Books.

THE Vicar is the Reverend Mr. Haywood, and the Lecturer, the Reverend Mr. Wilson.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays, at 11 o'Clock.

The Parish Officers are:	The Ward Officers are:
2 Church-wardens.	2 Common Council Men.
4 Overseers of the Poor.	1 Constable.
2 Sidesmen.	2 Inquests.

THIS Parish takes in Part of Bishopsgate-street, Great St. Helen's, Little St. Helen's, Crosby-square, and Sun-yard.

THE Number of Houses 138.

THE most remarkable Places are, 1. Leather-fellers-Hall, situated at the East End of Little St. Helen's. The Room called the Hall has Joiners and Plaisterers Work, exceeding fine, considering the Antiquity of it: The Screen is magnificent, adorned with six Columns of the Ionick Order, and the Ceiling with Fretwork. 2. Crosby-Square, built with handsome Houses, where was antiently one great House, called Crosby-Place, being built by Sir John Crosby, Grocer and Woolman, in Place of certain Tenements, with their Appurtenances, let to him by Alice Ashfield, Priorefs of St. Helen's, and the Convent, at 99 Years, from the Year 1646, to the Year 1565, for the annual Rent of 11*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* This House he built of Stone and Timber, very large and beautiful, and the highest at that Time in LONDON. He was one of the Sheriffs, and an Alderman in the Year 1470, Knighted by Edward IV. in the Year 1471, and died 1475; so short a Time enjoyed he this stately Building.

WHAT the Contents and Particulars of the Demises granted to Crosby, by the Priorefs, were, may be understood, by the Grant of Crosby-Place, and the Appurtenances made by King Henry VIII. to Anthony Bonvixi, the Italian Merchant, Rex omnibus, &c. cum Alicia Ashfield, &c. wherein are mentioned, first, the great Messuage, or Tenement, commonly called Crosby-Place, with a certain Venell, i. e. Lane, or Passage, that extended in Length from the East Part of the said Tenement, to the Corner, or South End, of a certain little Lane North, bending unto the Priory Close: Also nine Messuages, situate and lying in the said Parish of St. Helen; whereof six were situate and lying between the Front of the said Tenement, and the Front of the Ball-House, or Steeple, aforesaid, and the six Messuages mentioned before, together with a certain void Place of Land, situate in the said Parish, extending, in Length, toward the East by the said Messuage, which Catharine Catesby formerly held, from the outward Part of the Plat, or Post; of the Bell-House, abutting upon the North Part of the said six Messuages, and the King's-street, unto the Church-yard there, five Feet and a half Assize, and thence extending in Breadth toward the South, directly to a certain Tenement there, formerly in the Tenure of Robert Smith; and two Messuages more of the said nine Messuages jointly, situate within the Close of the Priory: Of which one heretofore in the Tenure of the said Robert Smith. And these were the Tenements and Appurtenances held of the Priory of St. Helen, by Sir John Crosby.

HE gave towards the reforming St. Helen's Church, five hundred Marks, which were laid out to the best Advantage; his Arms are both in the Stone-work, Roof of Timber, and Glasing.

It is thought a Fable, That he was named Crosby, from being found by a Cross, for there were many of the Name of Crosby before him; namely, in the Year 1406, the 7th of Henry IV. the said King gave to his Servant John Crosby, the Wardship of Joan, Daughter and sole Heir to John Jordaine, Fishmonger.

AND before him, in the Reign of King Edward III. was another John Crosby, a Knight and Alderman of LONDON; who had a Son and Heir called John. Of this Sir John is this Record; Edwardus Princeps Walliæ, Dux Cornubiæ concessit, &c. Edward, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, hath granted to Thomas Ribby, &c. "The Custody of the Manor of Haneworth, and the Advowson of the Church of Haneworth, which lately was John Crosby's, Knight, late Alderman of LONDON; which he held of the same Prince Edward,

"the Day wherein he died, to have, and to hold, until the lawful Age of John, his Son and Heir, called John Crosby". It was confirmed by the King. This Haneworth is placed on the River Thames, not far from Hampton-Court; and in the Time of King Henry VIII. was in the Crown; and was so pleasantly situated, that that King delighted in it, saith Camden, above any other of his Houses.

Richard, Duke of Glocester, and Lord Protector, afterwards King of England, by the Name of Richard III. was lodged in this House. Richard Duke of Glocester, lodged at Crosby-house.

WHILE his Nephew Edward V. reigned, he here contrived his Plots, and here the Citizens came to him with the Professions of their Love, and desiring him to accept the Crown.

SINCE which Time, among other, Antonio Bonvice, a rich Merchant of Italy, dwelled there, on whom it seems King Henry VIII. bestowed it, Ann. 1542, with all belonging to it, as appears by the Copy of the Grant, running thus, Sciatis, &c. "Know ye, that we of our special Grace, certain Knowledge and mere Motion, give and grant unto the said Anthony Bonvice, the Reversion and Reversions of the said Messuage and Tenement, with the Appurtenances, commonly called Crosby-Place, and of all the said Houses, Solars, Cellars, Gardens, Lanes, Messuages, Tenements, void Places of Land, and all other and singular Premises with the Appurtenances, lying and situate in St. Helen's, and Parcel of the said late Priory, &c. Teste Rege apud Westmonast. 9 die Sept. Ann. Regni Reg. Henrici Octavi 34.

AFTER him German Cioll dwelt here.

THEN William Bond, Alderman, increased this House in Heighth, with building a Turret on the Top thereof: He deceased in the Year 1576, and was buried in St. Helen's Church. Divers Ambassadors have been lodged there; namely, in the Year 1586, Henry Ramelius, Chancellor of Denmark, Ambassador unto the Queen's Majesty of England from Frederick II. King of Denmark, an Ambassador of France, &c. Sir John Spencer, Alderman, purchased this House, made great Reparations, kept his Mayoralty there, and afterwards built a very large Warehouse near thereunto.

IN the first of King James I. when divers Ambassadors came into England, Monsieur de Rosney, Great Treasurer of France, with his Retinue (which was very splendid) was there harboured, the House then belonging to Sir John Spencer.

WITHIN Bishopsgate also, and very likely in this House, were lodged the youngest Son of William Prince of Orange, Monsieur Fulke, and the learned Monsieur Barneveldt; who came from the States of Holland and Zealand.

FROM Crosby-square to Leadenhall Corner and so down Gracechurch-street, are several handsome Houses for Traders, Merchants and others, particularly a very fine one belonging to Sir Roger Hudson.

NOW, for the other Side of this Parish, namely, the Right Hand, hard by, within the Gate, was antiently a handsome Water Conduit, which Tho. Knesworth, Mayor, in the Year 1505, founded. He gave 60*l.* the rest was furnished at the common Charges of the City. This Conduit was afterwards taken down and new built, when David Woodroffe, Alderman, gave 20*l.* towards the Conveyance of more Water to it; and afterwards quite taken away.

FROM hence are many large Inns and Houses, among others, that of Sir Thomas Gresham, Knt. who died in the Year 1579, and was buried in St. Helen's Church, under a Monument, by him prepared in his own Life; he appointed, by his Testament, that this House should be made a College, College, as has been already mentioned in Book I. Chap. XI.

SOMEWHAT West from this House, was one other large House, wherein Sir William Hollis kept his Mayoralty, and was buried in the Parish-Church of St. Helen. Sir Andrew Jud also kept his Mayoralty there, and was buried at St. Helen's.

Alice Smith's Addition to Jud's Alms-Houses.

Alice Smith of LONDON, Widow, Wife of Thomas Smith, of the same City, Esq; and Customer of the Port of LONDON, in her last Will and Testament, bequeathed Lands to the Value of 15 l. by the Year, for ever, to the Company of Skinners, for the augmenting of the Pensions of certain Poor, inhabiting in eight Alms-Houses, erected by Sir Andrew Jud, Knt. her Father, in the Parish of Great St. Helen's in Bishopsgate-street, LONDON. She hath also given in her last Will and Testament, to other charitable Uses, as to the Hospitals, and to the Poor of other Parishes, and good Preachers, the Sum of 300 l. As also to the poor Scholars in the two Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, the Sum of 200 l. of which her last Will and Testament she made her Son Thomas Smith, late Sheriff of LONDON, and Richard and Robert Smith, her Executors; who have performed the same according to her godly and charitable Mind.

The present
State of Bishopsgate
Ward.

Now to describe the Streets and Places of this Ward in general, as they stand at present.

THIS Ward, within the Wall, did not suffer much by the Fire of LONDON, Anno 1666, and the Parts without the Gate not at all.

OF these two general Parts, first to begin with that within the Wall, wherein are these Streets, Lanes, and Alleys, in whole, or in Part, viz.

Gracechurch-street, on both Sides the Way, from Cornhill to Lombard-street, and Fenchurch-street.

Bishopsgate-street in the whole.

St. Helen's, both the Great and Small, in the whole.

Crosby-square, in the whole.

Canomile-street, in the whole.

Wormwood-street, but a small Part. And in these Streets are divers Courts and Alleys.

Grace, or Grass-church-street, a large and spacious Street, with well built and lofty Houses, inhabited by good Tradesmen; the whole Street begins at Eastcheap, and falls into Leadenhall-street at the four cross Streets: But the Part in this Ward begins at Lombard-street End, as before noted.

IN this Street, on the West Side, are these Courts and Places of Name, viz. Cross-Keys-Inn, a Place of great Resort, large, and well built, hath a Passage into George-yard. Bell-yard, a good, large, and well built Place, having a Passage into St. Peter's Church-yard, which Church, although, in Part, standing in this Street, yet being in Cornhill Ward, is there treated of. Corbet's-court, a large, open, well built, and inhabited Place: Near this Court is Tobacco-roll-court, which has but one good House in it: Church-alley, adjoining to St. Peter's Church: This Alley, with a turning Passage, falls into Cornhill.

THEN on the East Side of this Street, within the Limits of this Ward, which begins at Fenchurch-street, is Boar's-head-court, an open Place, taken up with Warehouses for Wholesale Dealers.

Leadenhall-herb-market, large, and not inferior to any in LONDON, is in this Ward; but the other Parts of Leadenhall, viz. the Flesh Market, and the Fish Market, &c. are in Lime-street Ward. From this Street, the Ward, with somewhat a narrow Passage betwixt Cornhill and

N<sup>o</sup> 25. VOL. I.

Leadenhall-street, falleth into Bishopsgate-street.

Bishopsgate-street is large, long, and spacious, and generally well inhabited: But the Fire of LONDON, 1666, not coming into these Parts, the Houses, for the most Part, are old Timber Buildings, and nothing uniform. The like are the Parts without the Gate, but not so good, except in some Places, as Devonshire-square, &c.

IN this Street are these Courts, Alleys, and Places of Name, beginning on the Southern Part, and so towards the Gate, North. Sun-yard, a large Place, with a Passage into Broad-street, taken up for Stablings and Coach-Houses, a Coachmaker, and some private Houses.

Gresham College, a large, but old Building, which encompasseth a large square Court, this being antiently the Seat of Sir Thomas Gresham, Knight, and now called Gresham College.

A little beyond this College are divers great Inns, viz. the Bull Inn, the Green Dragon, and the Four Swans, all three large, and of a considerable Trade and Resort for Waggon and Stage-Coaches, that go Northwards. Here is the Queen's-Head Tavern, which hath a Passage into Queen's-Head-alley, leading into Broad-street. Sutton-court, but narrow, with a Free-stone Pavement, being a new built Court, with neat Brick Houses; Peaben-alley, but ordinary. The Vine Inn, but indifferent, seated near Bishopsgate.

SOME Part of Wormwood-street is in this Ward; but the greatest Part is in Broad-street Ward.

THE Places East of Bishopsgate-street, beginning at the Gate within, are as followeth:

Canomile-street, which runneth beyond St. Mary Axe, but the Part in this Ward goeth but a little beyond Cook's-court. This is a Street but of small Account, either as to its Buildings, or Inhabitants. Clarke's-alley, but ordinary, especially that Part which leadeth to Canomile-street. Angel-court, both small and ordinary.

Little St. Helen's, a good large Place, having one or two Courts within it, with good old Timber Houses, well inhabited, some by Merchants, at the lower End of which is seated Leatherfellers Hall, as said before; and in another Part a Dissenting Meeting-House.

Great St. Helen's, a handsome, open, and large Court, with Rows of good Houses; well inhabited; on the East Side of the Church and Church-yard, which is gracefully seated in the midst of the Court, with Rows of Trees round about the Church-yard, very pleasant in the Summer Season; the Church is large and comely, and adorned with many stately Monuments, but wants a Steeple, the Bells hanging in a poor wooden Frame, not at all answerable to the rest of the Church. Over the Church Door, on the South, is this Inscription:

Sanctitas Decet
Sanctam Helenam. 1633.

PASSING this Court, the Passenger is led to two others, both of the same Name, and well inhabited; which, with a winding Passage, lead into St. Mary Axe, over-against St. Andrew Undershaft Church; and in this Part of St. Helen's, on the South Side, is a Passage to Crosby-square, which is the next Place of Remark on the East Side of Bishopsgate-street, antiently a great Messuage. This large Building hath been of late Years converted into a curious open Square, with fair Brick Houses, well inhabited by Gentry and Merchants; the Houses having Palisado Pales before, and Gardens behind them: And here is another large Meeting-House. Out of this Square is a Passage through a back Gate-way, passing by a large Warehouse, belonging to the East India Company, and so into Great St. Helen's.

len's. This Crosby House, before its Re-building, was the Habitation of Sir James Langham, that eminent Citizen.

Bishopsgate-Street without:

HAVING viewed the Ward within the Gate, we now pass to that Part that stands without it.

THIS is also a very broad and spacious Street, but not so well built and inhabited as that within the Wall. It runs Northward a great Length, but no farther in the Freedom than to the Bars. In the Account of this Street, we begin next the Gate, at St. Botolph Bishopsgate Church, already described, so take in all Places to the Bars on that Side; and then come back from the Bars on the other Side to Bishopsgate again.

ADJOINING to St. Botolph Bishopsgate Church-yard is the Rector's House, and here an open Passage leads to a very magnificent House, with a fine Garden, and a Court-Yard before it, graced with Trees, and a Stone Statue standing on a Pedestal, in the Middle. This House did formerly belong to the Family of the Dashwoods, and is now in the Occupation of Sir Joseph Eyles.

White-hart-court, a large open Place with handsome Buildings, especially the House that fronts the Court, which takes up the Breadth thereof.

THEN come you to Old Bethlem, or Bedlam, as it is vulgarly called; a Lane wherein stood an antient charitable House for Keeping and Curing Lunatics. But being old and much decayed in its Buildings, and likewise its Situation being very close, and pent up with Houses, the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, to whose Care it belonged, thought fit to erect another more commodious, which was finished soon after the dreadful Fire of LONDON, in Moorfields, contiguous to London-wall; upon which this old House was disused, and now converted into other Buildings. The Place that generally goes by the Name of Old Bethlem, is very large, containing several Courts and Alleys; the principal Street comes out of Bishopsgate-street, and runs into Moorfields, being a great Thorough-fare, and of some Note for its Inhabitants, who are Flax and Hemp-Dressers, Shoemakers, Yarn and Worsted Sellers, and Turners. In this Place are divers Courts and Alleys, as aforesaid, which so run into one another that it is something intricate to give a true Description or Account of their Situation; the Names of them are, Bethlem-court, an open Place where the Hospital stood, at the upper End of which is a Passage out of the principal Street of Bethlem; Crown-court, large, with indifferent Buildings; Loom-alley, narrow, and ordinary; Housewives-alley, narrow, which with a turning Passage runs a great Length; Halfmoon-alley, long, but narrow and ordinary, and falls into Round-court, something open, but ordinary; and out of this Court is a Passage into Petty-france; Bullock-court, hath a Passage by Bethlem Church-yard into Cole's Rents, where are several Alleys and Courts within it; some without, and some with Names, as Rose and Crown-court, a large and open Place, but ordinary, leading to Moorfields, and also into Halfmoon-alley, which leadeth into Bishopsgate-street; near to this Alley is Baker's-court, which hath a Passage into Halfmoon-alley, as also into Vine-court, and Chequer-court; Bell-court, but small; and opposite to Bethlem Church-yard; as is Threc-leg-alley, which is narrow and ordinary, with a turning-Passage; likewise Dyer's-court, but ordinary, so called, as having a Dyer's House at the upper End.

Petty-france, the greatest Part of this is new built, and called New Broad-street; it is a most regular Building; the Houses are after the Manner of those by Hanover-square and Burlington-gar- dens, and are the most elegant Buildings in the City; into this Place is a Passage from Bethlem-street, through Round-court; the West End comes into Moorfields by the Pottern-gate, and the East End runneth up to St. Botolph's Church-yard.

NORTHWARDS of Bethlem in Bishopsgate-street is Still-alley, which is but small; Garland-alley, an open Place, at the upper End of which is an Inn, as also a large Yard for Stabling and Coaches, and but ordinarily inhabited; Bottle-alley, hath a narrow Entrance, but openeth into a Free Stone Court, with well built Houses, which said Alley leadeth into another down Steps, bearing the same Name; and out of this is a Passage into Garland-alley; Swan-yard Inn, at the lower End hath Stables and Coach-houses; Crown-yard, indifferent good, with an Entrance for Carts; Halfmoon-alley, ordinary, and ill inhabited; almost at the Entrance it divides itself; one Part falling into Halfmoon-court, which is a large Place, and the other Part in a strait Line runs Westward into Moorfields; on the South Side of this Place is Stone-cutters-yard, an open but ordinary Place, and on the North Side is a small Alley that leads to Dunning's-alley; Three Tun-alley, but indifferent; White Hind-court, an open Place with a narrow Passage into it, and indifferent as to its Houses and Inhabitants; Sweetapple-court, so called from Sir John Sweetapple, Goldsmith, the Owner thereof, a handsome new built Place with an open Passage for Carts; this Place before its new Building was two, viz. Soper's-alley, and Horskoe-yard; the upper End of this Court, or rather Lane, is taken up for Stables for Livery-Horses, with Coach-houses; Dunning's-alley, very large, and ordinary, the West End divides itself, and falls into Halfmoon-alley, which leads into Moorfields; in this Alley are these Courts; Tripe-yard, very small and ordinary; Adams-court, but small, with a Passage into Sweetapple-court; Pump-court, but mean; Westminster-hall-court, indifferent, with a Free Stone Pavement; Cripple-court, very small and mean, with about two Houses; Harrow-yard, also small and ordinary; Bell-yard, inconsiderable; Lamb-alley, very narrow and ordinary, which, running a great Length, divides itself, one Part falling into Sugar-loaf-court, and the other into Long-alley; in this Alley are these Courts, Paved-court, Lamb-yard, and White-hart-yard, all three very mean; Angel-court, likewise very ordinary; Angel-alley, long and mean, at the upper End of which is a Timber-yard, and on the West Side is a small Court, and passing further leads into Angel-court, which is very inconsiderable. In this Alley are these Courts, Brown's-Court, but small; Balam's-court; Sugar-loaf-yard; Pheasant-cock-yard; Three-colts-alley, all four but small and ordinary; Jews-harp-court, a handsome new built Place with a Free Stone Pavement; Brown's-yard, but ordinary; Cock-yard, very mean, at the upper End of which is Thacker's-court, but mean; Acorn-court, very narrow and ordinary; at the upper End it opens into a little Court, and out of this is a Passage into Skinner's-street; George-yard, inconsiderable; Skinner's-street, a handsome open Place with well built Houses; Skip-yard, hath indifferent good Buildings, with a Free Stone Pavement; Primrose-alley, long, narrow, and ordinary, hath a Passage into Long-alley; Gun-yard, indifferent long, at the upper End it opens itself into two Parts.

HAVING thus enumerated the various Places on the West Side of Bishopsgate, we come next to those on the East Side, beginning next the Bars.

Bishopsgate-street without, the East Side.

Mountague-court, a handsome open Place with a Free Stone Pavement, and good Buildings; Catharine-

Catharine-Wheel and George-yard, long, hath a Passage into Mountague-court, and another into the Artillery-ground; Red-lyon-brewhouse, near which is the Red-lyon-Inn.

Artillery-lane, an open Place, with good Houses, which, passing by Petticoat-lane, hath the South West Side in this Ward, and runs behind Gun-street.

Wide [or White] Gate-street, a Place of some Account, falls into Petticoat-lane: In this Street is King's-head-court, as also Savage-court, both but indifferent Places; Rose-alley, with a turning Passage falls into Petticoat-lane, an Alley of no great Account; Swedeland-alley, very ordinary; Sutton's-alley, both narrow and mean; Catharine-wheel-alley, narrow, and without Houses, having only back Yards; it hath one Passage into Hand-alley, and another into Petticoat-lane: Nigh to this Alley, is Catharine-wheel Inn; Rose-alley, long and narrow, falling into Hand-alley; Vine-court, a handsome Place, with good Houses on the North Side, the South lying open to New-street, formerly called Hand-alley, having a Passage for Cart or Coach, its Buildings are good and well inhabited; King's-head-court, but small with Free Stone Pavement; Three Slippers-court, also small, with Free Stone Pavement; Hand-court, but small, and falls into Rose-alley; Walnut-tree-court, both small and mean; Still-court, or Alley, indifferent good, falls into Houndsditch.

Devonshire-square, made out of an House called Fisher's Folly, an airy and creditable Place, and where the Countess of Devonshire, in the Memory of Mr. Strype, who is now living, dwelt in great Repute for her Hospitality; it consists of good Buildings, and they well inhabited by Merchants, and Persons of Wealth. In this Square lived, about four Years since, no less than four Aldermen, at one Time, viz. Sir Edward Bellamy, Sir Richard Hopkins, Sir Edward Becker, and Sir Thomas Lomb. In the Middle of the Square, upon a Pedestal carved with Figures on each Side, and ascended by three Steps, and enclosed with Iron Bars, stands a gilt Mercury: Hence is a Passage called Cavendish-court, which hath good Buildings, with a Free Stone Pavement, leading to Houndsditch.

MORE towards Bishopsgate, is Magpye-alley, which is narrow; near unto this Alley is the Dolphin, an old Inn, large, and of good Account: And adjoining to Bishopsgate is the Flying-horse Inn.

Houndsditch, over-against St. Botolph's, Church, a long Street, running from Bishopsgate to Aldgate: But the Part in this Ward goeth but to the Blue Anchor, the rest is in Aldgate Ward. This Street is a Place of great Trade, and of Note for Salesmen and Brokers, whose Dealings are in Apparel, Linnen and Upholsterers Goods. In this Street are a great many Alleys and Courts, of which some are without Name, and for the most Part are but ordinary, viz. Flying-horse-yard, hath a turning Passage into Bishopsgate-street, a Place of small Account, only for Livery-stables; and Cavendish-court falls into Devonshire-street, already mentioned; Buckle-court, small and ordinary.

THERE are to watch at Bishopsgate, and the several Stands in this Ward, every Night, a Constable, the Beadle, and 80 Watchmen, both within and without.

THE Jury-men returned by the Inquests, are to serve for Jurors in the several Courts in Guildhall in the Month of December.

THUS much for this Bishopsgate Ward, which hath an Alderman, two Deputies, one without the Gate, another within, six Common Councilmen, seven Constables, seven Scavengers, 13 for the Wardmote Inquest, and a Beadle; it is taxed to the Fifteen at 13 l.

THE Alderman of this Ward is Robert Godschall, Esq;

CHAP. VI.

BROAD-STREET WARD.

Broad-street Ward.

THE next is Broad-street Ward, which bebeginneth within Bishopsgate, from where the Water-Conduit once stood, Westward on both Sides of the Street, by Alhallow's Church, to an Iron Grate on the Channel, which runneth into the Water-Course of Walbrook, before you come to the Postern called Moorgate: And this is the farthest West Part of that Ward. Then you have Broad-street, from which the Ward taketh its Name, which stretcheth out of the former Street, from the East Corner of Alhallow's Church- yard, somewhat South to the Parish-Church of St. Peter Poor, on both Sides; and then by the South Gate of the Augustin-fryars, down
Throckmorton-street, by Drapers Hall into Loth- bury, to another Grate of Iron over the Channel there, whereby the Water runs into the Course of Walbrook; under the East End of St.
Margaret's Church, certain Posts of Timber are set up; and this is also the farthest West Part of this Ward in the said Street. Out of this Street it runs up Bartholomew-lane South to the North Side of the Exchange; then, more East out of the former Street, from over-against the Augustine-fryars Church South Gate, runs up another Part of Broad-street, South, to a Pump over-against St. Bennet's Church.

THEN you have another Street, called Three Needle, or Thread-needle-street, beginning at the Pump by St. Martin's Outwitch Church-wall. This Street runs down on both Sides to Fink's, or Finch-lane, and half-way up that Lane to a Gate of a Merchant's House on the West Side. Then the aforesaid Street from this Fink's-lane runs down by the Royal-Exchange, to the Stocks, and to a Place formerly called Scalding-house, or Scalding-wick, but now Scalding-alley; by the West Side whereof, under the Parish-Church of St. Mildred, run the Course of Walbrook; And these are the Bounds of this Ward. The Places of especial Note therein are these:

The PARISH of ALHALLOWS on LONDON-WALL.

THE Parish-Church of Alhallows on London-
wall is so called, being dedicated to All London-Wall
Saints, and situated on the North Wall of LONDON, a little Easterly from Bethlem Hospital.

This

THIS Church was repaired and beautified at the Charge of the Parishioners in the Year of our Lord 1613.

It was again repaired, at the Expence of 220 l. by the Parishioners in the Year of our Lord 1627.

AND lastly, in the Year 1724, as is expressed over the Vestry Door, in golden Letters,

Mr. James Register,
Mr. William Burroughs. } Church-wardens.

THIS Church is a Gothick Building, and, having escaped the Fire of LONDON, is not so beautiful as those which were wholly new erected; it is well wainscotted, and pewed, it is remarkable for having the Pulpit built in the Wall, and the Vestry stands without the Wall; at the East End of this Church is a small Gallery, the Front of which is adorned with Shields and their Compartments, elevated on small Columns of the Tuscan Order, which was new beautified, in the Year 1699, at the Charge of the Parish; Mr. Thomas Stanton, Church-warden.

At the Altar the 10 Commandments, Lord's Prayer and Creed are done in Black, with Moses, on the North, and Aaron on the South Side the Decalogue, finely painted, all under a Cornice, in the Middle whereof are the King's Arms. A little Southerly from this Altar is a Piece of Antiquity, being the Commandments done in an old Character upon Glass, which, hanging against a Window, are transparent; they are in a Sort of a triangular Frame, near five Feet high.

ON the North Wall is a very large Piece of Painting upon Cloth in a strong Frame, of Queen Elizabeth lying on her Tomb with the Ensigns of Royalty and two golden Lions at her Head and Feet, and these Lines upon it:

Read but her Reign,
This Princess might have been
For Wisdom call'd
Nicaulis, Sheba's Queen.
Against Spain's Holofernes,
Judith she,
Dauntless gain'd many
A glorious Victory:
Not Deborah
Did her in Fame excel,
She was a Mother
In our Israel.

An Hester, who
Her Person did engage,
To save her People
From the publick Rage;
Chaste Patroness
Of true Religion,
In Court a Saint,
In Field an Amazon,
Glorious in Life,
Deplored in her Death,
She was unparallel'd ELIZABETH.

Born, Anno, 1534.
Crowned, Anno 1558, January 15.
Reigned 44 Years, 4 Months, and 17 Days.
Died Anno 1602, March 24.

Martin Alleyn, Citizen and Leatherfeller, by Will dated January 2, 1432, gave to the Rector of this Church, and his Successors, his Tenement, with a Garden, &c. in the same Parish, inter Tenementum quondam Nichi. Rumbold, &c. for ever; on Condition that the said Rector, and his Successors, do cause to be celebrated his Obit, and Anniversary, in the Chapel of St. Thomas, the Martyr of Acon, on St. Martin's Day yearly, as his Will ran.

1610, Laurence Camp, did settle by Indenture, for the Use of the Poor, 20 l. payable out of an Estate in Houses in St. Andrew Underbass, Part whereof to six poor Alms-People, in an Alms-House built by the said Laurence Camp in this Parish, viz. 2 s. 8 d. to each, each Month: that is, to each per Ann. 34 s. 8 d. Besides what is given of the said 20 l. to Bridewell, and to the Parishes of St. George's Southwark, and Friern Barnet.

Anne Bowyer, per Ann. 2 l. 10 s.
So in the Table.

Anne Bowyer, 30 l. in the Hands of the Company of Carpenters, to pay ten poor Widows 2 s. 6 d. a-piece, 1 l. 5 s.

Edmund Hammon, per Ann. 10 l.

Margaret Danes, for ever, 5 s.

William Wilson, per Ann. 5 s.

Mr. Hide, to be paid every tenth Year, 4 l. 10 s.

THERE are other Benefactions expressed upon Tables set up in the Church. The last of which is 5 l. given in the Year 1729, by Mr. John Kellaway, towards the Iron Gates, which are at the End of the Church-yard next New Broadstreet.

IN this Church have been buried, Thomas Durrem, Esq; and Margaret his Wife.

Mr. Stanley, (buried February 16, 1560) Priest, and Steward unto the Lord Treasurer, Earl of Winchester, living in Broadstreet. His Corpse in the Afternoon was conducted to the Church, with twelve Clerks, singing. His Funeral adorned with three Dozen of Escutcheons. Four of the Lord Treasurer's Men bore him. He gave Money to every one of the Lord's Servants.

Ro— Robert Beal, Esq; Ob. 1601.

THERE is a fair Monument in the Wall, close by the Pulpit, on the West Side thereof, with this Inscription:

Deo Opt. Max. Sacrum & Memoria.

Huic utrique Parenti optime de se merito, debiti Honoris, & gratitudinis ergo, Petrus ab Heila, F. Serenissimi Electoris Palatini Consiliarius, H. M. Mœst. P.

IN the Chancel are the following Monuments and Inscriptions:

Susan Woodcock, Virgin, eldest Daughter to Tho. Woodcock, Esq; aged 17 Years. Departed Feb. 26, Feb. 26 1637. With an Epitaph made on her by her Father.

Joan Bence, Daughter of Sampson Cotton, Merchant; married first to John Wood, Merchant; afterward to John Bence, Esq; January 16, 1684.

THE worthy Gentleman Edmond Hammond, Esq; April 24, 1643, who gave by his Will 150 large Legacies to pious Uses.

Middle-Isle under a flat Stone, Richard Smith, May 19, 1694.

Under a Grave Stone at the upper End of the South Isle, lies the Body of John Webb, Son of Richard Webb, died Dec. 25, aged four Years; and Richard Webb, who died May 2, 1709, aged 39.

Under another Stone, John Sands, Son of Robert and Anne Sands, died Feb. 18, 1698-9, aged 14: And Anne Sands, Wife of Robert, died Sept. 23, 1711, aged 52.

Elizabeth Watson, Jan. 5, 1706, aged 50.

At the West End of the Church over the Christening Font, is a Marble Table with this Inscription:

Near this Place lies Mr. Edward Phillips, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor of LONDON, born in the Parish of St. Martin's in the County of Salop, April 27, 1656, came to LONDON in the Year 1674, served his Majesty King Charles II. and King James II. in the General Post Office, one of the hundred Yeomen of the Guard to his Majesty King William III. Queen Mary II. Queen Anne, and unto his present Majesty King George I. obiit December the 26th, 1724, in the 69th Year of his Age, and the 11th Year of his Majesty's Reign.

He lived content with mean Estate,
And long ago prepared to die;
The idle Person he did hate,
Poor Peoples Wants he did supply.

UPON a raised Tomb-stone in the Church-yard next Broadstreet, is this Inscription:

Here lies interred the Bodies of Will. Turner, Gent. who died April 11, 1705, aged 74; and Elizabeth Singleton, late Wife of Luke Singleton, Niece of the said William Turner, who departed this Life, April 27, 1706: Also of Catharine, and Anne their Children: Also Luke Singleton, Gent. departed October 31, 1712, aged 56.

JUST at the Entrance into the old Church-yard, next Bethlem, upon a raised Tomb-stone, is this Inscription:

Here lies the Body of William Chapman, Citizen and Merchant of LONDON, who bequeathed by his Last Will and Testament, an Annuity of 5*l.* yearly, to be paid to the Poor of this Parish for ever. He lived in this Parish not full four Years, and died the 20th Day of October, 1629.

To whose pious Memory his loving Wife erected this Monument.

Ask how he liv'd, and thou shalt know his End;
He died a Saint to God, and to the Poor a Friend.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, for the Time being; and the Tythes are about 100*l.* per Ann. It is rated in the King's Books at 8*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* Joining to the Parsonage-House, which is at the West End of the Church, there is a handsome Apartment building by the present Incumbent, who is the Reverend Mr. Woodford, the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Brown.

VOL. I.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays at 11 o'Clock: Here are five Bells, but no Organ.

THE Vestry consists of those who have served or fined for Church-wardens and Constables.

THE Parish have a House in Shoreditch of the yearly Value of 9*l.*

The Parish Officers are: The Ward Officers are:

2 Church-wardens.	1 Constable.
4 Overseers of the Poor.	2 Inquests.
2 Sidesmen.	1 Scavenger.

THERE is a School called the Ward School, consisting of 50 Boys and 30 Girls, who are taught and cloathed, and 5*l.* given with each when put out to Trades, &c. They come to each Church within the Ward by Turns, when there are Collections made for them.

THIS Parish begins at Bevis Marks, and extends along by the Wall towards Moorgate, as far as the Chain-Post near old Moorgate; and ends at Helmet-court, on the South Side of Wormwood-street, taking in all the Streets and Alleys within that Compass. It begins again at the Saracen's Head in Camomile-street, and reaches two Houses beyond Cook's-court on that Side, and all the North Side from Little Moorgate to the Queen's-head and Sugar-loaf in Wormwood-street. It takes in four Houses in St. Mary-axe, on the East Side, and five or six Houses on the South Side of Camomile-street, and four Houses on each Side of Broad-street.

THE Number of Houses in this Parish are 300, of which 224 are in Broad-street Ward.

IN this Parish is Carpenters Hall, an old Building of Timber, with nothing very remarkable in it. Eastward of this was, in antient Times, a long high Wall of Stone, inclosing the North Side of a large Garden, adjoining to as large an House, built in the Reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI. by Sir William Pawlet, Earl of Wilts, and after Marquis of Winchester, Lord Treasurer of England. Through this Garden was a Foot-way, leading by the West End of the Augustine-fryars Church strait North, and opened somewhat West from Alhallows Church, against London-wall, towards Moorgate, which Footway had Gates at each End, locked up every Night: But of later Times those Gardens are all improved into good Buildings, and make a handsome Street, called Winchester-street, from the said Marquis of Winchester, in which are several Houses for Merchants and others, and at this Time the Office and Hall belonging to the York-Buildings Company. The great House joining to the Gardens stretched to the North Corner of Broad-street, and then turned up the said Street to the East End of Augustine-fryars Church, which the Lord Winchester pulled down, except the West End thereof, inclosed from the Steeple and Choir, which was in the Year 1550 let to the Dutch Nation in LONDON, to be their Preaching Place.

IN the 4th of King Edward VI. he granted by Letters Patents, dated the 24th of July 1551, all in that Church, except the Choir to John Alasco, and a Congregation of Germans, and other Strangers fled hither for the Sake of Religion, and to their Successors, in puram & liberam Eleemosynam, and the Church to be called The Temple of the Lord Jesus; and Alasco, to be the first Superintendent, and Gualter de Leone, Martinus Flandrus, Francis Riverius, and Richardus Gallus, to be the four first Ministers: And this Gift hath been confirmed by the successive Princes to the Dutch Strangers, and remains to them to this Day, for the holy Uses of Prayer, Preaching and Administration of the Sacraments. This is a very spacious and comely Church, tho' but a Part of that Church that belonged to the Augustine-fryars: There is a handsome Library erected on the West Part of it, which is very ornamental as well as useful: And the Ministers which are now reduced to two, have convenient Houses allotted them in the said Fryars.

THE aforesaid Charter is extant in the Collection of Records to The History of the Reformation, Vol. II. Book I. Numb. LI.

IT has been customary for the Dutch and Walloon Churches, to pay a Deference to every Bishop of LONDON, and to each Lord Mayor, upon their first Access to their Dignity and Charge, and to present them with a Piece of Plate. Their Ministers and Elders of both Churches, as Representatives of the whole, at some convenient Time, make their Appearance before them, and one of the Ministers makes a short Speech to the Bishop in Latin, to the Mayor in English. The Sum of what is spoken to the Bishop is, "To shew the original Plantation of their Church in LONDON, by a Charter of King Edward VI, in the Year 1550, until they, with many other pious Christians, were fain to fly the Realm in the Reign of Queen Mary: But yet, that in the Year 1558, upon the Success of the Reformed Religion, restored under Queen Elizabeth, they began to fly hither again by little and little, as to a Sanctuary, from the Persecution of the Duke D'Alva, the Guises, and Prince of Parma. She, a true Mother in Israel, restoring them the Place and Privileges granted them by King Edward. That King James I, her Successor, willed this Liberty of theirs to remain to them inviolate. That their Ministers have all along, to that Time, been Men of Piety and Learning, preserving Peace and Brotherhood with the English Churches. And that as for the Bishops of this Diocese of LONDON, it appeared from their Records, how lovingly in their Restoration, Grindal received them, and what Edwin Sandys, the next Bishop most prudently performed, in appeasing certain unreasonable Controversies arisen among them, and how Brotherly all the rest of the Bishops of LONDON since had offered their Assurances to them. The like they certainly promised themselves from him; and so congratulating him on his Preferment, and his Merit of it, for his Piety and Eloquence, so well known in Court, in the University, in the City, and whole Kingdom, they conclude with a Prayer, That God would endue him with his Holy Spirit, that by his Ministry, the Glory of God might be promoted, and his Church edified.

THE Import of their Address to the Lord Mayor is, "That they appear there before his Honour, to congratulate him in the Name of their Congregations, according to their yearly Custom. They pray Almighty God, by his Holy Spirit, to qualify him for the great Duties belonging to his high Office and Calling, that God's Glory may be advanced, and the Church edified. And lastly, beseeching him, according to the Example of his Predecessors, to be favourable unto them Strangers, fled hither, at first, for the true Profession of the Gospel, and hitherto Charitably entertained in this Honourable City". And then they Dine with the Lord Mayor.

To which may be added a Word or two more of the Countenance, Authority has always given to this Dutch Church, when upon the Access of King James I. to the Crown of Great Britain, Anno 1603, the said Church made their humble Address to him, he answered them in French, "That the Queen departed, made herself renowned through the whole World by two Things; the one was, that she always entertained and cherished the Service of God in the Kingdom, and the other, her Hospitality towards Strangers. Which Commendation of her's he was desirous to inherit. That if Occasion had offered itself, when he was at a Distance, and lived as in a Corner of the World, he would have made known his good Affection to them: But now that it had pleased God to constitute him King of this Country, he swore to them, that if any molested them in their Churches, they addressing to him, he would avenge them. And that tho' they were not his proper Subjects, yet he would maintain and cherish them, as much as any Prince in the World." He took Notice also of their former good Deserts to the Queen and Kingdom; that is, "How they had always prayed for the late Queen, and never gone beyond the Limits of their Duty; and how they had enriched the Realm with many Arts, Manufactures, and Sciences useful to the Publick.

FURTHER, in the Year 1642, they preferred a Petition to the House of Lords, in Behalf of themselves and of the reformed Foreign Churches in the Realm; as in Norwich, Colchester, Canterbury, Sandwich, &c. to this Purpose: "That there might be an Ordinance of Parliament for settling the Liberty and Exercise of their Religion and Discipline, as they were used beyond the Seas respectively in the reformed Churches of their several Nations: And which they had hitherto enjoyed by the Charter of King Edward VI. of ever blessed Memory, authorized by his Parliament, and the gracious Favour of all the succeeding Princes." Particularly,

"First, That they might have free Liberty to choose and appoint their own Ministers and all other Officers belonging to their Churches, according to their Discipline.

"Secondly, That no Member of their Congregations, being under the Censure of their Discipline, by reason of some scandalous Offence committed, might be received as Member of any other Church without a Certification from his own Church.

"Thirdly, That no Church or Congregation of Foreigners should be authorized in this Realm, which was not subject respectively to the Synods of their several Nations." They added Reasons for the third Article.

HEREUPON on Saturday, Jan. 21, 1642, (by Report of the Earl of Northumberland) the House ordered, "That there be an Ordinance of Parliament, for settling of the Liberty and Exercise of their Religion and Discipline, as they are used beyond the Seas respectively in the reformed Churches of their several Nations, which they have hitherto enjoyed by the Charter of King Edward VI. authorized by Parliament, and the Favour of all succeeding Princes of the reformed Religion, Queen Elizabeth, King James, and his Majesty that now is. In particular First, &c. as above in the three Articles."

ABOUT the Year 1704, this Dutch Congregation in Augustine-fryars built, at their common Charge, upon a Piece of Ground in Middle Moorfields, purchased by them, a handsome Alms-House, containing 26 Rooms, for maintaining their Poor, either Men or Women, besides one complete Room where the Elders and Deacons meet weekly to pay the Pensions of the Alms-Folks, or to do other Business relating to their Poor. The Pensions are either more or less according as their Necessities require. The Rooms are are not so appropriated to the Dutch Nation, but that any English Woman, whose Husband had been a Member of the said Church, is capable of being admitted. And oftentimes it happens, that there be more English than Dutch harboured there.

THAT Portion of this Church which was East, and not granted to these Strangers, the aforesaid Pawlet, Earl of Wilts, obtained in the fourth also of the said King, who of his special Grace granted him totam superiorem partem Ecclesie nuper fratrum Augustinen. infra Civitatem London. viz. Le Quere, La Cros Ile, & capellas ibidem.

THIS other Part then, namely, the Steeple, Choir, and Side Isles to the Choir adjoining, the Earl reserved to Household Uses, as for Stowage of Corn, Coal, and other Things. His Son and Heir, Marquis of Winchester, sold the Monuments of Noblemen (there buried) in great Number, the Pave Stones, and whatsoever, (which cost many thousands) for one hundred Pounds, and in Place thereof made Stabling for Horses. He caused the Lead to be taken off the Roofs of the Church, and laid Tile in stead thereof; which Exchange of Lead for Tile, proved not so profitable as he looked for, but rather to his Disadvantage.

THIS Augustine Fryars Church is very large, it had formerly a most fine spired Steeple, small, high, and strait; it was founded by Humphrey Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Essex, in the Year 1253. Reginald Cobham gave his Messuage in LONDON, to enlarge it, in the Year 1344. Humphrey Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Essex, re-edified this Church in the Year 1354, whose Body was there buried in the Choir. The small spired Steeple of this Church was overthrown by a Tempest of Wind in the Year 1362, but was raised anew, and was standing in the Year 1603, when Stow set forth his second Edition; but even then in a very dangerous, tottering Condition; but such was the venerable Regard the City had of it, that a Petition being preferred to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, by the Inhabitants of St. Peter Poor, (in which Parish that Church of St. Augustine's stood) they readily concurred to promote the Repair thereof all they could, by using their Interest with the Marquis of Winchester, to whom the Property of that Monastery, and the Lands adjoining, belonged, (being granted to his Ancestors at the Dissolution of Monasteries) and for that Purpose drew up a Letter to him, in the most pathetic Words, and moving Arguments, exciting him to go in Hand with that Work; which was as followeth:

Right Honourable, my very good Lord,

“ THERE hath been offered of late unto
“ this Court, a most just and earnest Pe“ tition, by divers of the chiefest of the Parish “ of St. Peter Poor in LONDON, to move
“ us to be humble Suitors unto your Lordship,
“ in a Cause which is sufficient to speak for it“ self, without the Mediation of any other, viz.
“ for the Repairing of the ruinous Steeple of the “ Church, some Time called The Augustine Fry- “ ars, now belonging to the Dutch Nation, situ“ ated in the same Parish of St. Peter Poor, the Fall “ whereof (which, without speedy Prevention,
“ is near at Hand) must needs bring with it not “ only a great Deformity to the whole City, it “ being, for Architecture, one of the beautifulest
“ and rarest Spectacles thereof, but a fearful im“ nent Danger to all the Inhabitants next ad“ joining. Your Lordship being moved herein,
“ (as we understand) a Year since, was pleased “ to give honourable Promises, with Hope of “ present Help, but the Effects not following, “ according to your honourable Intention, we

“ are bold to renew the said Suit again, esteems “ craving at your Lordships Hands, a due Con“ sideration of so worthy a Work, as to help to “ build up the House of God, one of the “ chiefest Fountains, from whence hath sprung
“ so great Glory to your Lordship's most noble “ Descendency of the Pawlets, whose Steps
“ your Lordship must needs follow, to continue “ to all Posterity the Fame of so bountiful Be“ nefactors both to Church and Commonwealth.
“ So that I trust we shall have the less Need
“ to importune your Lordship in so reasonable a “ Suit: First, Because it doth principally con“ cern your Lordship, being the Owner of the “ greatest Part of the said Spear, or Staple: But “ especially that by disbursing of a small Sum of “ Money, to the Value of 50, or 60 l. your “ Lordship will do an excellent Work, very “ helpful to many, and most grateful to all, as “ well English as Strangers; who by this means “ shall have Cause to magnify to the World, this “ so honourable and charitable an Action. And “ I and my Brethren shall much rejoice to be “ relieved herein by your Lordship's most noble “ Disposition, rather than to fly the last Re“ medy of the Law of the Land, which in this “ Case hath provided a Writ, De reparatione “ facienda.
“ THUS hoping as assuredly on your Lord“ ship's Favour, as we pray incessantly for your “ continual Felicity, we humbly take Leave of “ your Lordship. From London the 4th of Au“ gust 1600.

Your Lordship's humbly to be commanded,

Thomas Lowe.
Leonard Holiday.
Robert Hampson.
Ry. Godard.
John Wattes.
Thomas Smythe.
William Craven.
Humphrey Weld.

Nicholas Mosly, Mayor.
Richard Markin.
John Hart.
Henry Billingsly.
Stephen Soame.
William Ryder.
John Gerrard.
Thomas Bennett,

BUT this took no Effect.

Rob. Sheffield, Knt. by his Will dated Aug. 18. 1518, bequeathed his Body to be buried in the Augustine-fryars Church near the Tomb of Eleanor his Wife. His Will was proved February following.

SINCE this Church hath been appropriated to the Use of the Dutch Nation, few have been buried here, except the Ministers belonging to it, and the Elders, or others, of more eminent Quality, or Wealth. Such as have Monuments, or Stones, with Inscriptions, are these that follow:

AGAINST the East Wall of the North Isle, a Monument for Margaret Laurence, Daughter and Heir of Laurence Huyssen Heer Van Weelde in Zeeland. She was married to Colonel Henry Cornwall of Bredwardine, in the County of Hereford. Died April 21, 1692.

Elizabeth Philippine, Widow of Wylen Albert, George Graaf tot Bronckerst, and Lamborg Stirum, born Baroness of Boetzlaer. Died October 1692.

Jacob George Beck, Merchant, born in Frankfort, at Mayn. Died in LONDON, January 12, 1722-3.

Sarah Kesteman, Widow of Gabriel de la Porte, July 18, 1694.

Elizabeth Gronen, Wife of Frederick Gronen, Merchant, June 18, 1693: And Frederick Gronen, before-named, October 28, 1697.

Jonas Bateman, April 13, 1704.

Catharine Otgher, Widow of David Otgher, April 3, 1676. And Elizabeth Otgher, Wife of Justus Otgher, April 16, 1686.

IN the South Isle is the common Place of Burial for the Ministers of the Church; tho' some others are also here interred.

Catharine Biscop, Daughter of Sam. and Sarah Biscop, died 1686-7, five Years old. Sarah Biscop, Wife of the said Samuel, 1689-90. And Samuel Biscop, who very commendably served in the Office of Preacher in this Church 32 Years; died June 11, 1700, aged 58.

Arnoldina, Daughter of the Heer Arnold Citters, Ordinary Ambassador of the States General to his Majesty of Great Britain. She died June 5, 1686; aged 5 Years.

Agneta Vander Merck, born at Harlem, died Aug. 21, 1703.

Johannes Von Rooge, Mar. 10, 1686-7.

At the West End of the Church, are flat Stones for,

Thomas Viroot, Elder, June 22, 1704.

Theodore Cock, Son of John and Hanna Cock, Feb. 21, 1697-8.

Isaac Vinck, Merchant, born in the City of Norwich, Elder of this Church, died November 27, 1702, aged about 80.

Josyna Schapelinck, aged 76, died Feb. 9, 1689, and her Sister Anna Schapelinck, Widow of John Ellsworth, Sept. 7, 1700, aged 77.

Here is also a very handsome Marble Monument set up for Sir Dennis Dutry, who died in the Year 1728; the Inscription, as upon most of the other, is in the Dutch Language.

At the East End of this Church, between the two Isles, is a Rising with several Steps both from the North and South Sides; and likewise on the West, unto a large Platform, whereon is placed a long Table with Seats against the Wall, and Formes round, for the Use of the holy Communion. On the East Wall at a due Height are the Ten Commandments in Dutch, largely written in Golden Letters.

On the West End over the Skreen is the Library, inscribed thus, Ecclesie Londino-Belgicæ Bibliotheca, extructa, sumptibus Mariæ Dubois, 1659.

In this Library are divers valuable MSS and Letters of Calvin, Peter Martyr, and other Foreign Reformers.

The Church is very large and spacious, supported with two Rows of Stone Pillars. The Seats are all long Benches lined with green Cloth, stuffed for easy sitting. The Floor with Deal-Boards laid over the Stones for Warmth: The Windows on the South Side have painted on them JESUS TEMPLE, in several Places.

THE present State of this Dutch Church in Augustine-fryars, and the Congregation of Strangers or the Children of Strangers belonging to it, is thus:

THEY have two Ministers, who preach twice every Sunday, and once in the Week besides; and they administer the Holy Sacrament Monthly, the last Sunday in the Month; and exchange Churches every first Sunday in the Month with the Walloon Congregation, for their Reception of the Sacrament, their own Church in Threadneedle- street, being too small for them. The Ministers have allowed them a good yearly Salary, and Houses to dwell in, conveniently situated, near the said Church, and a competent Subsistence for their Widows. M. Vandermerck, a Merchant, and one of their Elders, built a House, at his own Cost, for one of the Ministers, on which he laid out 400 l. and afterwards finished it within, at a considerable farther Expence, greatly to his Commendation, and the lasting Memory of his Charity, and good Will to the Church.

THEY maintain their Poor at their own Charge, which stands them in near 1200 l. per Ann. Part of which they collect every Sunday, and Week-day, when there is a Sermon, at the Church-door, by Deacons of the Church, who stand there with Basons to receive what the People are pleased to put in.

NEAR this Church was formerly a Glass-house, where Venice Glasses were made; and Venetians employed in the Work: And Mr. James Howel, an ingenious Man in King James I's Reign, was Steward to this House (who was afterwards Clerk of the Council to King Charles I.) When he left this Place, scarce able to bear the continual Heat of it, he thus wittily express'd himself, That had he continued still Steward, he should in a short Time have melted away to nothing among those hot Venetians. This Place afterwards became Pinner's Hall: And of later Years some Part was fitted up with a Pulpit and Pews for Dissenters from the Church of England to meet in, and there, on Tuesdays, was preached the Merchants Lecture, as it is called.

ON the East Side of this Broad-street, which is the back Part of Gresham House in Bishopsgate-street, are placed eight Alms-Houses, built of Brick and Timber, by Sir Tho. Gresham, Knt. for eight Alms-Men, there placed Rent free; and receive each of them by his Gift, 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. yearly, for ever.

The PARISH of St. PETER POOR.

NEXT to where Parolet House of old Time stood, is the Parish-Church of St. Peter Poor, so called, as being on its first Building dedicated to St. Peter; and Poor is added, to distinguish it from that of Cornhill; and others; not because this Parish is poorer than others, it being inhabited chiefly by rich Merchants, and other Traders; but probably from such as affected the Name, or Habit, of Poor, before the Dissolution of the Fryary, of or belonging to St. Augustine's, near adjoining to it.

THIS Parish hath been also called St. Peter's by St. Augustine-fryars; as appears by an Instrument in the Tower Records, for Founding a Chantry at St. Botolph's Bishopsgate, where the Founder gives one Tenement, cum parvo Gardino cum pertinentiis in Paroch. St. Petri juxta fratres St. Augustini in Warda de Broad-street.

THIS Church, in the Year 1625, was enlarged on the North Side, upward of eight Feet, at the Charge of Sir William Garaway, Knight; whose Arms are in two Windows there, that cost 400 l. In 1616, the Church was new pewed, and the East Window enlarged in 1617; the Roof and Inside of the Church were beautified, the Gallery at the West End, and the Steeple were new built; and Bells new cast, Anno 1629, and 1630; all which being done at the Charge of the Parish amounted to near 1200 l. and having very narrowly escaped burning by the Fire in 1666, (the Flames abating close by the West End.) It remain'd in a bad Condition till the Year 1716, when when it was again repaired, and both inside and out new beautified.

THE Roof is lined with Board painted; the Out-side covered with Slate. It is supported by Gothick Columns and Arches.

IT is paved with Tile and Stone; and there are three Isles. The Walls are Brick and Stone, covered with a Finishing; and the Steeple and Tower are Brick.

THE Ornament is but mean at the East End. The Decalogue is in two Tables, placed above the Wainscot, and painted on Glass, under a Glory, between two Cherubims, and dated 1634. The two Tables of the Lord's-Prayer and Creed, are on the North Side. It is also pewed with Oak, and there is some Wainscot.

THE Dimensions are, Length 54 Feet; Breadth 51; Altitude about 23 Feet; and that of the Steeple, being a Tower and Turret, about 75 Feet; in which Tower are five Bells.

BURIED in this Church,

Richard Fitz-Williams, Merchant-Taylor, 1520.

Sir William Rock, Mayor 1540.

Robert Calthrope, Mayor 1588.

Dominus Johannes Hales, a pueritia literis deditus, excellenti ingenio, docilitate, memoria, studio & industria singulari, adjuncta Linguarum, Discipularum, Juris, Antiquitatis, rerum divinarum, atque humanarum, magna & multiplici doctrina instructissimus, evasit. Innocentia, integritate, gravitate, constantia, fide, pietate, religione, gravissimæ etiam ægrotationis, & rerum difficilium diuturna perpeffione, & patientia ornatissimus fuit, vitæ honestissimæ sanctissimæque actæ, diem supremum quinto Cal. Januar. 1572, clausit; anima ex corporis; reliquæ hoc loco sitæ sunt.

Expecto resurrectionem mortuorum, & vitam æternam.

Two other Plates there are beneath in the same Wall, the one of John Quarles, Draper, and the other of Edward Catcher, Pewterer.

Here, under this Stone, are buried the Bodies of John Lucas, of St. John's beside Colchester, Esq; Master of the Requests to the most virtuous, noble, and worthy Prince, King Edw. VI. He departed this Life the 26th Day of October, Anno Dom. 1556. And his Daughter Margaret, late Wife to Thomas Pennie, Doctor of Physick, here buried the 13th Day of November, 1587.

At the East End of the Chancel is a handsome Monument fixed in the Wall, with this Inscription:

Here lieth the Body of the Worshipful Mr. William Cockaine, the Elder, Citizen and Skinner of LONDON, who departed this Life the 18th Day of November, 1599. Also here lieth the Body of Elizabeth Medcalfe, his first Wife; by whom he had seven Sons, and four Daughters; all which Daughters departed this Life, before any of them accomplished the Age of ten Years. The seven Sons lived, and the youngest of them (at his Death) was 28 Years of Age. Which said Elizabeth departed this Life the 5th Day of April, 1589. Here also lieth the Body of Catharine Wonton, his second Wife, who died the 19th of September, 1596, by whom he had no Issue.

At the East End of the North Isle, there is a fair Monument set up in Remembrance of Sir William Garaway, Knight, and his Wife. This Monument standeth highest of all, next to the Door's Entrance.

A Memorial

Of the worshipful Master Robert Wadson, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor of LONDON.

Epitaphium.

So frail and brittle is the Life of Man,

That who lives longest, liveth but a Span.

In Youth and Age all die, God hath so doom'd,

The Earth returns to Earth to be entomb'd.

WADSON, who of that Substance was compos'd,

Lies in his Mother's Center here enclos'd.

A Sheet doth hide his Face, but not his Fame,

The Grave contains his Corpse, not his good Name,

For his good Name out-lives (O blessed Man)

When others good Names die, before they can.

The sixth of January, that fatal Day,

Sixteen hundred twenty-four, he did pay

The Debt to Nature, which all Men do know,

He was no sooner born, but he did owe.

If

If Virrues could have stay'd the Hand of Death,
Then WADSON still had drawn his vital Breath:
His Soul above, his Worths do here remain,
Till Christ shall come to raise him up again.
Thus he enjoys Heaven's Immortality,
And here on Earth, Earth's happy Memory.

THE Number of Houses about 140.

ON the South Side and at the West End of the St. Augustine-fryars, were several handsome Houses built, namely, in Throgmorton-street, especially one very large and spacious in the Place of old and small Tenements by Thomas Cromwell, Master of the King's Jewel-House, after that Master of the Rolls, then Lord Cromwell, Knt. Lord Privy Seal, Vicar General, Earl of Essex, High Chamberlain of England, &c. Mr. Stow makes great Complaints of this Lord's ill Usage of his Father, who had a Garden and Summer-House, joining to the North Pales of my Lord's Garden: This Summer-House was loosed from the Ground, and carried on Rowlers into his Father's Garden, 22 Feet, without any Warning given to him, or being able to obtain any other Answer, when he spoke of it to the Surveyors of the Work, than, That their Master had commanded them so to do.

THIS House of the Lord Cromwell was bought by the Company of Drapers, in LONDON, and is now their Common Hall. It is a very spacious noble Building, containing the four Sides of a Quadrangle, each Side elevated on Columns, and adorned with Arches, by which there are constituted Piazzas, and between each Arch is a Shield, Mantling, and other Fret Work. To this Hall belongs a large and pleasant Garden, with Walks. The Room called the Hall is adorned within with a stately Screen, Enrichment and fine Wainscot, and there are several large Rooms wainscotted with Oak.

FROM this Hall on the same Side of the Way, are several good Houses till you come to Bartholomew-lane, so called from St. Bartholomew's Church, at the South East Corner thereof. In this Lane are several good Houses on both Sides and so are there likewise in the other Street, which stretcheth from the St. Augustine's-fryars South Gate to the Corner, over-against St. Bennet Fink Church. Among other Buildings in this Street, the most antient was a House appertaining to the Abbot of St. Alban's. There was also a large Free-School, belonging to the dissolved Hospital of St. Anthony, and there are now many good Houses leading up Threadneedle-street to the Parish-Church of St. Martin Outwich.

Drapers Hall.

The

The PARISH of
St. MARTIN OUTWICH.

St. Martin
Outwich
Church.

THIS Church is so called, as being dedicated to the Memory of St. Martin, and the Word Outwich (or more truly Oteswich) was added, because, as Mr. Stow has it, Martin de Oteswich, Nicholas de Oteswich, William de Oteswich, and John de Oteswich, were Founders thereof, and were there interred, as appears by an antient Record, but shews no Date.

THE Founders Names are as above; and tho' we cannot learn the just Time, when the Church was first built, yet this very Church seems to be at least of 250 Years standing, for there are painted on the Glass of the South East Window these Arms.

ARGENT, on a Bend Sable, three covered Cups of the Field, impaled with Gules, a Saltier Argent: And immediately under is the Date 1483.

BEFORE which Time however this must of Necessity have been a Church, for John Churchman, who acted as Trustee for the two last named Oteswiches, was Sheriff of LONDON, Anno 1385. He was a Person of publick Spirit; for he built a Custom-House near the Tower of LONDON, gave (for the said Oteswiches) the Advowson of the Church, four Messuages, 17 Shops, and their Appurtenances to the Merchant-Taylors Company for the Use of the Poor, and the said Mr. Churchman did many Things for the Use and Benefit of this City.

THE Vestry was repaired, and beautified, Anno 1659, and the Fire in 1666, not having damaged the Church, it was repaired and beautified in the Year 1708, and again new painted in the Year 1731.

THE main Parts of this Structure is old, the Walls of Brick and Stone covered with a Finishing, and the Roof with Tile, supported with Gothic and Tuscan Stone Columns and Arches, and the Ground of the Chancel is one Step higher than that of the Church, which hath but two Isles.

THE Finishing and Ornament is handsome enough, considering its Antiquity. The Roof is cieled with Wood, divided into Pannels, and painted.

IT is wainscotted mostly eight, but at the East End about 11 Feet high, and pewed with Oak, whose Ends and Doors are carved partly in Form of the Gothic Arch. The Altar-piece has the Commandments depicted in black Letters on Gold between the Portraits of Moses and Aaron, the first holding a Rod, the latter, on his Head a Mitre, on his Breast, the Plate of precious Stones, called Urim and Thummim (or Lights and Perfection) below that are 6 Bells, and in his Hand, and Incense Pot. These are placed between two Pilasters, and the Lord's Prayer and Creed, in Frames, painted in Perspective; over the Commandments is a Glory, and above that a Cornice adorned with Pyramidal Figures, most of which Work is pretty old. Behind which is a large Window, in the Middle whereof is painted the King's Arms, and two other Coats on either Side, supposed to be those of Benefactors to the Church.

There are these MONUMENTS in the Church.

William Constantine, Alderman, and Emme, his Wife.

Catharine, Wife to Benedict Augustine.
Sir William Driffield, Knt.

John de Oteswich, and his Wife, under a fair monument on the South Side.

STREETS, Courts, &c. in this Parish are, PART of Tbreadneedle-street, Crown-court, Part of Bishopsgate-street, and Helmet-court.

THE Number of Houses about 40.

REMARKABLE PLACES.

OVERAGAINST the Church, is the new South-Sea-House, a most magnificent Structure of Brick and Stone, about a Quadrangle; supported by Stone Pillars of the Tuscan Order, which form a fine Piazza. There is a beautiful Front of the Dorick Order, in Tbreadneedle-street. The Walls are of a very great Thickness; and there are Vaults underneath the House, arched over, to preserve their Treasure and rich Merchandize from Fire. The several Offices for the Business of the Company, are admirable well disposed; and the great Hall for Sales, the Dining-Room, Galleries, and Chambers, are hardly to be paralleled. There is another House, which the Company make use of, and was their only Office, before the Part last mentioned was erected, which goes into Broad-street; it is a very old Building, and was formerly the Excise-Office.

SOME small Distance from St. Martin Outwich Church, is the Merchant-Taylors Hall, pertaining to the Guild and Fraternity of St. John Baptist, Time out of Mind called of Taylors and Linnen Armourers of LONDON: For King Edward I, in the 28th of his Reign, confirmed this Guild, by the Name of Taylors and Linnen Armourers, and also gave to the Brethren thereof, Authority every Year at Midsummer to hold a Feast, and to choose a Governor, or Master, with Wardens. Whereupon, the same Year, 1300, on the Feast Day of the Nativity of St. John Baptist, they chose Henry de Ryall to be their Pilgrim: For the Master of this Mystery (as one that travelled for the whole Company) was then so called, until the 11th Year of Richard II, and the four Wardens were then called Purveyors of Alms (now called Quarterage) of the said Fraternity.

THIS Merchant-Taylors Hall, some Time pertaining to a worshipful Gentleman, named Edmund Crepin (Dominus Crepin, after some Record) he, in the Year of Christ 1331, the 6th of Edward III, for a certain Sum of Money to him paid, made his Grant thereof, by the Name of his principal Messuage, in the Wards of Cornhill and Broad-street (which Sir Oliver Ingham, Knight, did then hold) to John of Yakesly, the King's Pavilion-maker. This was called, the New Hall, or Taylors Inn, for a Difference from their old Hall, which was about the back Side of the Red Lion in Basing-lane.

THIS Merchant-Taylors Hall is a spacious Building, having at the Entrance, in the Front, a handsome large Door-Case, adorned with two Demy Columns, their Entablature and Pediment of the Composite Order; and the Inside is adorned with Hangings, which contain the History of their Patron St. John Baptist; and which, tho' old, are very curious and valuable.

SOME Distance West from this Hall is Finke's-lane, so called from Robert Finke, and Robert Finke his Son; James Finke, and Rosamond Finke. Robert Finke the Elder, new built the Parish-Church of St. Bennet, commonly called Finke, from the Founder; his Tenements were both of St. Bennet, and St. Martin Outwich; the one half of this Finke-lane is of Broad-street Ward, to wit, on the West Side up to the great and principal House, wherein the said Finke dwelt.

St. Bennet
Finke Church.

IN Threadneedle-street aforesaid, a little Eastward from the Royal Exchange, is the Parish-Church of St. Bennet, or more properly St. Benedict; so called, being dedicated to St. Benedict the Abbot, Founder of the Order of Benedictine Monks (who was bred up at Rome, said to do many Miracles, and to be a very holy Man, foretelling his own Death six Days before, which accordingly happened, Anno 518) and the Word Finke was added, because the Church was founded by one Finke, as before-mentioned. It was repaired, and beautifully adorned, at the Parish Charge, amounting to 400 l. in the Year 1633; and in the Year 1666, being consumed by the dreadful Fire, was again re-built, and finished in the Year 1673.

THE Church is well built of Stone, and is a fine Piece of Architecture; the Body of the Church within being a compleat Ellipsis (Oval) which appears a very commodious Form for the Auditory, and the Roof is an Elliptical Cupola (at the Center of which is a Turret glazed round) environed with a Cantaleever Cornice, and supported with six Stone Columns of the Composite Order; between each of which is a spacious Arch, and large six light Windows, made so by strong Munions and Transoms.

It is well wainscotted round with right Wainscot, seven Feet and a half high, as also well pewed, and a handsome Pulpit of the same.

The Altar-Piece consists of four small Columns, with their Entablature of the Composite Order.

Between the two middle Columns, are the Commandments done in Gold Letters, on Black, adorn'd with Palm and Laurel Branches, and above this the King's Arms. Between the two North Columns are Moses, and the two South Aaron well painted, over each of which is a circular Pediment, and on each Pediment, a Shield, with Compartment and Festoon. North from Moses is the Lord's Prayer, and South from Aaron the Creed, done likewise in Gold upon Black, over each of which is a Cornice and triangular Pediment, all carved in right Wainscot, and inclosed with strong Rail and Ballaster, within which the Floor is paved with Black and White Marble.

HERE is also a very beautiful Font, the Cover whereof is adorned with Festoons, Pine-apples, &c.

AND as a further Ornament to the Church, there is in one of the South Windows a South declining West Dial, finely painted, and has this Motto:

Sine Lumine Inane.

AND in the Window a little Eastward from this, that worthy Benefactor (hereafter-mentioned) Mr. Holman's Coat of Arms, which are painted on the Glass, viz. Vert a Chevron between three Pheons Argent, which has a fine Compartment.

THE Length (or greater Diameter) of the Church, is 63 Feet, Breadth (or lesser Diameter) 48, and the Altitude thereof 49. The Steeple consists of a square Tower, over which is a large Cupola, and above that a Spire, which are together above 110 Feet, and the Tower is adorned with Fresco Work of Festoons, &c.

ON the North Side of the Entrance into the Chancel are the Names of the Benefactors, done in Gold Letters on Black, adorned with a carved Frame, and an arching Pediment, under which is 1678, viz.

George Holman, Esq; gave	1000
Mr. Ambrose Bennet to the Poor, yearly,	9
for ever
Mr. John Shield, to be distributed, year-	20 ly, on St. Thomas's Day
Mr. John Woodward, to provide two
Dozen of Bread for the Poor every Lord's	100
Day, for ever
Mrs. Anne Thiscrofs gave to purchase
Lands or Houses, to put forth Apprentices	100
born in this Parish

And there are several others of lesser Note.

ON the Inside of the Doors made to shut in this Table, in Gold Letters are these Words of our Saviour, Luke x. 37.

Abi & tu fac similiter.

ON the South Side of the Entrance into the Choir, is, in a Wainscot Frame, adorned with a circular Pediment, &c. a Table of Fees for Marriages and Burials, over which Table is done in Gold Letters these Words.

Fear God, Honour the King.

AND on the Inside of the Doors that inclose this Table, these Words:

Date Cæsari quæ Cæsaris, & quæ Dei Deo.

i. e.

Give unto Cæsar the Things that are Cæsar's, and to God the Things that are God's.

In this Church are these MONUMENTS of the Dead.

Robert Simson and Elizabeth his Wife.

Roger Strange, Esq; of Trerise.

John Coolby, and John Frey.

Thomas Briar, Plummer, 1410.

ONE John Wilcocks, Citizen, and Cook, of LONDON, Inhabitant here, made his Last Will, dated Jan. 16, 1561, to this Tenor.

" First and principally, I commend my Soul to

" Almighty God, my Maker and Redeemer,

" and with repentant Heart do ask him Forgiveness, having assured Confidence and Trust to " be only saved by the Merits of Christ's Passion,

" &c. I Will that all my Goods, Chattels, and

" Debts shall be divided into three equal Parts.

" Whereof I Will one equal Part to Maudekin,

" my well-beloved Wife. And one other Part I " Will shall be equally divided amongst my

" Children, Peter Wilcocks, &c. And the 3d

" equal Part and Portion of all my said Goods,

“ amongst the Poor within the Hospital of Christ's “ Church in LONDON, 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. to poor “ Maidens Marriages that shall be married with-
 “ in the said Parish, 4 l. that is to say, to every “ one of them, 3 s. 4 d. as far as the same will “ extend, &c.

WHERE note, that what was formerly in Mens Wills given to Priests, to pray for their Souls, was now (Religion being reformed) given to the Poor and the Hospitals.

By this Pillar was buried the Body of Dame Anne Awnsham, who died the 23<sup>d</sup> of December, 1513, being near 12 Years the Wife of Sir Gideon Awnsham, of Istleworth, in the County of Middlesex, Knt. And before, the Wife to William Barradaile, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor of LONDON, dwelling in this Parish together some 30 Years, he died in March 1600, who by his Will gave 5 l. to the Poor of this Parish, and 6 l. 13 s. 8 d. toward the Building a Loft in the Church, besides his other Legacies to the Poor in other Places: And the said Dame Anne, besides her good Deeds to Istleworth, and other Places, she also appointed 5 l. to the Poor of this Parish, which the said Sir Gideon paid. As they both (Thanks be to God) lived godly and well, so they could not but die well, by the only Mercy of Jesus Christ.

UPON a Grave Stone in the Chancel, are these Words engraven:

IN Memory of Nath. Castleton, Esq; who died the 10th of June, aged 78, Anno Dom. 1714.

The good Protestant and sincere Friend.

UPON a Table in the Organ-loft, fronting the Altar.

THE Number of Houses about 100.

IN this Parish of Bennet Finke, certain Gaming-Houses for Cards and Dice were noted; at which several Gamesters used to resort. And about the Year 1551, one of these Houses and the Gamesters there, were inform'd against to the Officers of the Exchequer, by one John Foster of London; namely, That Andrew Cutler, Richard Westfield, Roger Ireland, John Bound, and William Wright, of London, by the Space of 40 Days in the said Parish, did maintain a certain House of playing at Dice and Cards contrary to the Law provided therefore. There came accordingly a Warrant to the Exchequer, that they had forfeited every one 40 s. and so the Exchequer was warranted to surcease for ever all Processes, Executions, Quarrels and Demands, and they be discharged of the Premises.

Some Distance West is the Royal Exchange, whereof more shall be spoken in the Ward of Cornhill, and a Copper-Plate given of the same.

ON the North Side of Threadneedle-street, near where the French Church now stands, was formerly the Hospital of St. Anthony, and some Time a Cell too of St. Anthony of Vienna. For King Henry III. granted to the Brotherhood of St. Anthony of Vienna, a Place amongst the Jews, which was some Time their Synagogue, and had been built by them, about the Year 1231. But the Christians obtained of the King, that it should be dedicated to our Blessed Lady: And since, an Hospital being there built, was called St. Anthony's of London. It was founded in the Parish of St. Bennet Finke, for a Master, two Priests, one School-Master, and twelve poor Men: After which Foundation, amongst other Things given to this Hospital, one was a Messuage and Garden, [whereon was built the fair large Free-School] and one other Parcel of Ground containing 37 Feet in Length, and 18 Feet in Breadth, in the Parish of St. Bennet Finke. This was given to the Master of the Hospital, to the enlarging of their Church, and House to the same belonging, for a Master, 14 Priests, &c. in the 7th of Henry VI.

MOREOVER King Henry VI. in the 20th of his Reign, gave unto John Carpenter, Doctor of Divinity, Master of St. Anthony's Hospital, and to his Brethren and their Successors for ever, his Manor of Ponington, with the Appurtenances, with certain Pensions and Portions of Milburn, Turneworth, Charlton, and Up-wimburne, in the County of Southampton, towards the Maintenance of five Scholars in the University of Oxford, to be brought up in the Faculty of Arts, after the Rate of 10 d. per Week for every Scholar: So that the said Scholars, before their going to Oxford, be first instructed in the Rudiments of Grammar, at the College of Eaton, founded by said King.

IN the Year 1474, Edward the IVth granted to William Say, Batchelor of Divinity, Master of the Hospital of St. Anthony's, to have Priests, Clerks, Scholars, poor Men, and Brethren of the same, Clerks, or Laymen, Queristors, Proctors, Messengers, Servants in Household, and other Things whatsoever, like as the Prior, and Convent of St. Anthony of Vienna, &c. This Hospital was annexed, united, and appropriated unto the Collegiate Church of St. George in Windfor, about the Year 1485, as was reported by Sir Anthony Baker, Master of the said Hospital to Sir John Woolfborne, Knt. and other Commissioners in the 37th of Henry VIII.

THE Proctors of this House were to collect the Benevolence of charitable Persons, towards the Building and Supporting thereof: And among other Things remarkable in this Place, Mr. Stow says, he remember'd that the Officers charged with with the Oversight of the Markets in this City, did several Times take from the Market-People, Pigs starved, or otherwise unwholesome for Man's Sustenance; these they used to slit in the Ear; and one of the Proctors for St. Anthony's would tie a Bell about the Neck of one of them, and let it feed on the Dunghills, no Man would hurt or take it up; but if any gave them Bread, or other Feeding, such they would know, watch for, and daily follow, whining till they had somewhat given them: From whence arose the Proverb, That such-a-one would follow such-a-one, and whine like an Anthony Pig. But if one of these Pigs grew to be fat, and came to good Liking, as oftentimes they would, then the Proctor took it up for the Use of the Hospital.

SINCE the said annexing this Hospital to Windsor College, to wit, in the Year 1499, the 14th of Henry VII. Sir John Tate, some Time Ale-brewer, then a Mercer, caused his Brew-house, called the Swan, near adjoining to the said Free Chapel, College, or Hospital of St. Anthony, to be taken down for the enlarging of the Church, which was then newly built; toward the Building whereof, the said Tate gave great Sums of Money.

THIS goodly Foundation having a Free-School and Alms-Houses for poor Men, built of hard Stone, adjoining to the West End of the Church, was of old Time confirmed by Henry VI. in the Year 1447. The outward Work of this new Church was finished in the Year 1501.

Sir John Tate, deceased 1514, and was there buried in a Monument by him prepared, as appeareth by an Indenture Tripartite, made between the said John Tate, the Dean of Windsor, and William Milbourne, Chamberlain.

Walter Champion, Draper, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, 1529, was buried there, and gave to the Beadmen 20*l.* The Lands, by Year, of this Hospital, were valued in the 37th Year of Henry VIII. to be 55*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*

HERE was also an antient Marble Tomb of John Taylor, some Time Master of the Rolls, remaining long after the French enjoyed the Church, viz.

Religionis interest Monumenta extrui & ornari.

Johannes Taylor Trigeminor. natu primus, Illustrissimo Rege Henrico VIII. imperante, Archichartophylax in hac sacra Aede teneris ab unguiculis enutritus, ad Laudem Dei Omnipotentis, & istius celebris & Beatissimi Patris Antonii Ecclesiae Ornamentum & Decus, & Oblivionis Procacitatem, quæ rerum omnium citius obfuscet memoriam, effugandam, hoc vivus & superstes posuit. Quia præstat tempestive quam sero sapere, Executoribus negligentibus ac avaris hujusmodi Curam relinquendo, Anno Dom. MDXXXII.

Quocunq; ingrederis, sequitur mors corporis umbram.

ONE Johnson (a Schoolmaster here) became a Prebendary of Windsor, and then (by little and little) followed the Spoil of this Hospital: He first dissolved the Choir, conveyed away the Plate and Ornaments; then the Bells, and lastly, put out the Alms-Men from their Houses, appointing them Portions of 12*d.* the Week to each: But afterwards their Houses, with others, were let out for Rent, and the Church was a preaching Place for the French Nation, who hold it of the Church of Windsor.

THIS School was commended in the Reign of Henry VI. and since also commended above other; but now it is decayed, and come to nothing, by taking that from it, which belonged to it.

THE Scholars of this School used at a certain Time of the Year to go in Procession. In the Year 1562, on the 15th Day of September, there set out from Mile-End two hundred Children of this St. Anthony's School, and so along through Aldgate down Cornhill, to the Stocks, and so to the Fryar Augustine's, with Streamers and Flags, and Drums beating.

THE French and Walloon Church is still in this Place, having been new built after the Ruins of the former Church by the great Fire. Formerly three Pastors belonged to it; and in the Year 1652, the Pastors were, Delmeyer, Cisner, and Stoupe. In those Times the two latter disagreed with the former; whom, at length, they, with the Consistory, suspended from his Ministry, upon Pretence of Non-submission to certain Acts made by the Consistory. And when he acquiesced not in their Censure, they summoned him to appear before the Cætus of the Strangers Churches in LONDON, as the true and competent Judge in such Cases, according to the Patent of King Edward VI. This Delmeyer had confuted in the Pulpit some Points that Cisner and the other had preached. They had preached for the Observation of Holidays, and did moreover observe and keep such Days; saying, that if they should scruple to preach on those Days, they should scandalize the Churches of France and Geneva: But, on the other hand, Delmeyer urged, that in the Acts of two Colloquies of all the foreign Churches in this Realm, viz. that were kept Anno 1644, and Anno 1654, the Observation of Holidays were prohibited, and all publick Exercises thereon; and therefore he thought it his Duty to oppose them and their Doctrines, who thereby had made an Irruption upon the Church's Discipline and Government. This gave the first Ground of Offence between them. After Delmeyer's Suspension, many of the Congregation were his Friends, for he was a pious Man, and a good Preacher; these sided with him, and required him to be restored to his Preaching: And he appealed to a Colloquy of all the French Churches within the Kingdom, at Southampton, Norwich, Canterbury, Sandwich, &c. according to the Right and usual Way in such Cases. Cisner refused it, and declined their Judgment herein; and would have all Matters decided by themselves and the Dutch Church in LONDON, contrary to their Discipline and Government, which had been made by Consent of all the said Churches. Upon this a great many Families of this Congregation preferred a Petition to Oliver Cromwel, the Protector, that Delmeyer's Cause might be heard before a Colloquy, which he granted. A Colloquy consisted of a Minister and an Elder of each Church. In seventy six Years there had been twenty nine Colloquies. This Contest was many Years before it was decided. And so much for the French Church: Near to which is

The PARISH of St. BARTHOLOMEW by the Exchange.

THIS Church is so called being dedicated to St. Bartholomew, who was one of the twelve Apostles. He was by Birth a Galilean, of a noble Extraction, being Nephew to the King of Syria. By some he is thought to have been a Syrian of noble Extract, and to have derived his Pedigree from the Ptolomies of Aegypt, from no other Ground, saith Dr. Cave, as I believe, than from the Analogy of his Name. And some are of Opinion,

St. Bartholomew by Exchange.

Opinion that St. Bartholomew was that Nathaniel mentioned in the holy Scripture, in whom there was no Guile: Their Opinion being grounded on this Observation, that almost in every Place, where the Names of the Apostles are rehearsed, Bartholomew followeth next to Philip, as Nathaniel follows Philip in the Number of the Disciples, John 1. 45. It is plain that he was a Galilean, as well as the rest of the Apostles: And of Nathaniel, we know, it is particularly said, that he was of Canaa in Galilee.

ALL Writers agree, that after Christ's Ascension, St. Bartholomew journey'd into India, and after his Labours there, he returned to the more Western and Northern Parts of Asia. At Hieropolis in Phrygia, we find him in Company with St. Philip; hence probably he went into Lycaonia, the People whereof, Chrysostom says, he instructed and trained up in the Christian Discipline. His last Remove was to Albanople in Armenia the Great, where, whilst he sought to reclaim the People from Idolatry, he was by the Governor of the Place commanded to be crucified with his Head downwards. He was buried at Albanople, where he suffered, whence his Body was afterwards translated, first to Daras, a City in the Borders of Persia, thence to Liparis, one of the Ionian Islands, thence to Beneventum in Italy; and last of all to Rome, by the Emperor Otho II. in the Time of Pope Gregory V.

THIS Parish-Church in old Records, is called Little St. Bartholomew's. It was new built by Thomas Pike, Alderman, with the Assistance of Nicholas Yoo, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, about the Year 1438.

Margery, the Wife of Sir John Lepington, and Daughter of Sir John Fray, founded a Chauntry there, 21 Edward IV. Sir William Capell, Mayor, added a Chapel on the South Side of this Church in the Year 1509; and James Wilford, one of the Sheriffs, and Citizen and Taylor, Anno 1499, appointed a Doctor in Divinity, to preach a Sermon here, on the Subject of Christ's Passion every Good Friday; and this Church having been consumed by the Fire of LONDON, Anno 1666, was rebuilt and finished in the Year 1679.

As to the Building, Order and Ornaments, the Roof is flat, divided into Quadrangles or Pannels, with Fretwork; and that Part over the Choir is adorned with Cherubims. It is a strong Building, supported by large Arches and Columns of the Tuscan Order; the Key-pieces of the Arches, have a Seraphim on each of them.

It is wainscotted round the Church with Oak, eight Feet high, and about the Chancel nine Feet.

HERE are three fine Door-cases on the North, South, and West Sides of the Church, whose Pilasters, Entablature and Pediments are of the Corinthian Order, adorned with Cherubims, Shields, Festoons, &c. That towards the South being more particularly spacious and fine.

It is also regularly and well pewed.

THE Altar-piece consists of four Columns of the Corinthian Order, with their Entablature; between the two middle Columns are the Commandments done in Gold upon Black, over which is a spacious Glory painted on the Figure of a sacrificed Lambskin, placed between two gilded Cherubims, and above these an open Pediment, and the King's Arms finely carved. Between the Commandments are the Portraits of Moses and Aaron painted, as also the Lord's Prayer and Creed. All which Altar-piece is adorned with Doves, Palm-branches, Lamps, Cartouches, Shields, and their Compartments, Festoons, &c. all finely carved in Norway Oak, and inclosed with double Rail and Ballister.

THE Pulpit is also of the same Oak, carved and finnier'd with Enrichments of Cherubims, Vases, and an imperial Crown.

N<sup>o</sup> 26: VOL. I.

THE outer Door, fronting Bartholomew-lane, is adorned with a Cherub, and a large Festoon of Fresco Work.

THE Length of the Church is 78 Feet, Breadth 60, and Altitude 41; and that of the Square Tower, about 90 Feet: It is of Stone, and the Roof of the Church is covered with Lead.

MONUMENTS in this Church are, for

Sir John Frey (or Fray) Knt.

Margery, his Daughter and Heir, Wife to Sir John Lepington, Knt.

Alderban, a Gascoigne.

Sir Will. Capell, Mayor.

Sir Giles Capell, was also buried here.

James Wilford, Taylor, one of the Sheriffs, 1499.

John Wilford, Merchant-Taylor, Alderman, 1544.

Sir George Barne, Mayor, 1552.

John Dent.

Miles Coverdale, Bishop of Exeter.

Thomas Dancer, and Anne, his Wife.

ON a fair plated Stone on the Ground in the Chancel is this Inscription:

In Obitum Reverendissimi Patris Milonis

ON other plated Stones in the Chancel are the following Inscriptions:

Here lieth buried the Body of Richard Bowdler, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, being one of the Society of Merchant-Adventurers in England for Muscovia and the East-Indies. Here lieth also Anne, his Wife; by whom he had Issue seven Children, five Sons and two Daughters; whereof three deceased, but the other four were living at the Time of his Death. He died the 16th Day of November, 1603.

Here lieth the Body of John Dent, whilst he lived, Citizen and Merchant of LONDON, born at Halloughton in Leicestershire, and free of the Salters Company, as also of the Spanish and Muscovia Companies: But his chief Trading was to France. He was once chosen Sheriff of LONDON, and once Alderman, and fined for the same. His last Fine was 1000 Marks, towards the repairing of Christ's Hospital in LONDON. He married twice; his first Wife was Margaret, by whom he had one Son, who died, and the Mother. The second Wife was Alice, by whom he had three Daughters, Elizabeth, Mary, and Elizabeth. The first died in her Father's Life-time, the rest with the Mother remained living. He being aged 63 Years, died the 10th of Decemb. 1595.

Here lieth the Body of Master Thomas Church, Citizen and Draper of LONDON. He was helpful to many, hurtful to none, and gave every one his Due. In Memory of whose Love to them, and theirs to him, Mary Bagwell, his Sister, William Bagwell, her Son, his Executors, and Bernard Cooper, the second Husband to the said Mary Bagwell, caused this Stone to be laid here the 28th Day of May, 1617. He departed this Life

Life in August the 26th Day, 1616, being aged 55 Years.

A good Life hath the Days numbered, but a good Name endureth for ever.

ON a Monument in the North Wall of the Chancel are these Verses:

To God's Glory.

In pious Memory of the nobly-virtuous, and religious Matron, Margarite, Wife of Robert Hill, Doctor of Divinity, and Parson of this Parish:

MARGARITA surrepta est, Mons exaruit.

AT the West Door is a very fair Skreen with this Inscription; Ex Dono Richardi Crosshawe Civis & Aurifabri Londinensis, 1631.

Here lieth Richard Crosshawe, some Time Master of the Company of Goldsmiths, and Deputy of this Ward. He was very liberal to the Poor, and in the Time of the great Plague, 1625, neglecting his own Safety, he abode constantly in this City, to provide for their Relief. He did many charitable Acts in his Time, and by his Will he left above 4000*l.* to the maintaining of Lectures, Relief of the Poor, and other pious Uses. He dwelt in this Parish 31 Years, and being 70 Years old, he died the 2d of June, Anno 1621.

Here lieth interred the Body of William Drew, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, who departed this Life the 29th Day of August, 1631, being of the Age of 56 Years, expecting a blessed and joyful Resurrection at the Coming of Christ.

IN this South Isle is a Cenotaph for Queen Elizabeth, with this Inscription:

ELIZA BEATA.

Spain's Rod, Rome's Ruin,

UPON a Grave-Stone in the North Isle.

HERE lies interred Henry Asgil, Silkman, who departed this Life the 25th of March 1714, in the 36th Year of his Age; and also Charles Asgil, his third Son, aged three Years and two Months.

IN the same Isle the Body of Matthius Giesque, Gent. died December 7, 1705, aged 37; also Francis and Matthias Giesque, his Sons by Johanna his Wife. Both dying Feb. 19, 1699.

THUS was a Presentment brought in to the Bishop of LONDON, Anno 1693, concerning the Glebe and Charities to the Poor.

THERE was a Parsonage demolished by the Fire, since rebuilt; now in Lease to Henry Whistler, Esq; for about 18 Years to come.

OTHER Glebe, the Total let for more than 100 Years.

SEVERAL Encroachments made upon the Church and Church-yard. Timbers of the Cock Alehouse laid in the Chapel Wall. A Coal-Hole made in the East End of the South Isle. A Cistern of the said Alehouse set in the Church-yard. A Chimney built from another House into the Church-Steeple, and some Closets built over Part of the Church-yard.

SEVEN Pounds, yearly, given for the Repair of the Church.

SHOPS

SHOPS in Threadneedle-street, in Front of the Church, are built upon part of the Church-yard, and part of the City Ground, for which the Parish paid the City 100 l. Fine, and yearly Rent for above 20 Years before the Fire, and had a Lease thereof from the City. Which Shops were built for the Use of the Poor of this Parish, and the said 100 l. was given by the Parishioners for that only Use and Purpose, &c.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the King, Value per Act of Parliament, 100 l. per Annum; but the Glebes, &c. are now near 400 l. per Annum.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Francis Bernard; and the Sundays Lecturer is the Reverend Dr. John Norris.

PRAYERS are at seven in the Evening daily; and there are the following Lectures; on Tuesdays, 70 l. per Annum, paid by the Company of Haberdashers. Wednesdays, 20 l. per Annum, paid by the Church-wardens of the Parish. Fridays 25 l. three Quarters of the Year, paid by the Mercers Company; who also pay for a Sermon the last Saturday in every Month, 12 l. per Annum. No Organ. Two Bells.

THE Vestry is general.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are:

5 Auditors of Accounts, (besides the Common-Council Men)

2 Church-wardens

The WARD-OFFICERS are:

2 Common-Council-Men

2 Constables

2 Inquests

2 Scavengers.

The PARISH of St. CHRISTOPHERS.

ST. Christopher, to whom this Church is dedicated, by most Writers is held to have been a Champion, and faithful Martyr of CHRIST; he is reported to be of the Race of the Canaanites. He, being as yet a Pagan, came to the City of Samos, in the Time of King Dagnus; but being, by GOD's Power, converted himself, he also converted a great Multitude of People (by some Writers it is said 48000) to the Faith of JESUS CHRIST, to whom he constantly preached; and the believing People he often baptized. He brought to Repentance two Harlots, Nicea and Aquilina, (sent by King Dagnus to debauch him in the Prison) whom, with some Courtiers, he put to Death.

Christopher, after many Disputations with the King of the living GOD, against the vain Gods, &c. was tortured with exquisite Tortures, and at last beheaded, Anno 254, as some write, under Decius the Emperor.

St. Christopher (whose Pagan Name, before he was baptized, was Reprobos) was so named (as is vulgarly conceived) from his carrying of CHRIST upon his Shoulders over a River, and is usually pictured with a great Staff, or Pole in his Hand, so carrying our Saviour, as aforesaid. His Festival is annually celebrated on July 25.

How old the present Church is, is discovered by the following Words, which are engraved in a small Plate over the Vestry Door:

"THIS Church of St. Christovil was finished in the Year of our Lord 1462, as was found in an old Monument in a Glass Window of this Vestry, 1592.

Mr. Stow says, That in 1506, the Steeple was new built; and in 1621, it was repaired and beautified at the Charge of the Parish. The Walls were not burnt down by the terrible Flames of September 1666, but the Church was very much damnified, the Pillars and Arches, the Pews, Lead, and six Bells, being destroyed, but such Care was taken, that they had probably escaped much better, had not the Church been filled with Paper. All which Church immediately after the Fire, was repaired, as it was again in the Year 1696; and lastly, in a most neat and elegant Manner in the Year 1731.

THE old Part which the Fire left is Gothick, but the Pillars within are of the Tuscan Order. The Walls are built of old Stone and Brick. The Floor of the Chancel is three Steps above that of the Church. The Ornaments are as follow:

THE Roof of the Church is lined with Timber, divided into eight Quadrangles, and on the Key-stone of each Arch, is carved a Seraph. The Church is wainscotted round with Oak, near eight Feet high, and with the like Timber it is handsomely pewed; the Pulpit of the same, the sounding Board having the Ornaments of Cherubims, Festoons, &c.

THE Altar-piece is of the Tuscan Order, adorned with Pilasters and their Entablature. In the Middle are the Commandments, done in Gold on Blue, and the Lord's Prayer and Creed are done in Gold on Black, adorned with Cherubims, Fruit, Leaves, &c. carved in Relievo. And at each End, a Pine Apple on Acroters. Over the Commandments is a Glory, and above the Cornice, the King's Arms, carved, gilt, and coloured. The Communion-Table is inclosed with Rail and Ballister, and the Floor within is paved with white and black Marble.

ITS Dimensions are, Length 60 Feet, Breadth 52, Height 40, and the Altitude of the Tower is about 80 Feet.

BURIED in this Church.

Richard Sherrington, 1392, who gave Lands to the Church.

The Lady Margaret Norford, 1406.

John Clavering, 1421, who gave Lands thereto.

John Gidney, Draper, twice Mayor of LONDON, 1427.

This Gidney, in the Year 1444, wedded the Widow of Robert Large, late Mayor, which Widow had taken the Mantle and Ring, and the Vow to live chaste to GOD for the Term of her Life; for the Breach whereof, the Marriage done, they were troubled by the Church, and put to Penance, both he and she.

William Hampton, Mayor 1472, was a great Benefactor, and glazed some of the Church Windows.

Sir William Martin, Mayor 1492.

Roger Acheley, Mayor 1511. He dwelt in Cornhill Ward, in a House belonging to Cobham College, rented by the Year, 26 s. 8 d.

Robert Thorne, Merchant-Taylor, a Batchelor, 1522. He gave by his Testament, in Charity, more than 4445 l.

John Norroyholme, Margery Norford, Ralph Batte.

Alice Percivall, Jane Drew.

William Boresbie, John Beke.

Richard Sutton, William Batte.

James Well.

Henry Breecher, Alderman, 1570.

The following Inscription is on a very fair Tomb of pure Touch-stone in the South Side of the Choir:

THE Monuments and Grave-Stones that appear at present in this Church are these:

AT the North-East Angle of the Chancel is a Busto cast in Brass, in Armour, and gilt, which hath these Words under it. Petrus Le Maire, Eques Auratus Londinensis. Ætat suæ 38, 1631.

AGAINST the East Wall a Brass Plate in Memory of Daniel Brewster, Citizen and Grocer, 1697.

ON the North Side of the Chancel, a noble white Marble Monument, with a spacious Column erected in the Middle, on which is a large Urn; and on each Side the said Column two Figures finely carved, being those of his two Wives; the first having a Book, the latter an Anchor, in her Hand. And on the Dye of the Pedestal of the said Column, this Inscription:

NEAR this Place lyes interred the Body of Thomas Adrian, Esq; in his own Vault with his Ancestors. He was born in this Parish, the 28th of Dec. 1653, and died the 15th of April 1701. In November 1676, he took to Wife Anne Crisp, the third Daughter of Ellis Crisp, Esq; Merchant of this City, who died the 16th of August following, who also lieth buried in the same Vault, by whom he had one Daughter, who is still living. He also in Sept. 1685, took to Wife Catharine Reeves, only Daughter of Sir William Reeves, his now Widow, by whom this Monument is erected to his Memory, that was most exemplary for his Piety, Charity, and Justice, and was the best of Husbands to her that hopes to rise with him in Glory at the last Day. Amen.

UNDER are these Arms, but no Colours.
Party per Fess, a Lyon Rampant in Chief, and three Estoiles in Base impaled with on a Bend Collised three Lozenges.

ON the North Side the Church is a white Marble Monument, adorned with Mantling, Voluta's, Cherub, Urn, and this Inscription:

P. M. K. G.

HERE lieth the Body of Katharine Green, the most entirely and deservedly beloved Wife of John Green, Gent. who erected this Monument to perpetuate her Memory; she departed this Life, November 5, 1690.

HERE also lieth two of their Daughters, Angelet and Elizabeth.

HERE also lieth the Body of Susannah Green, his second, a most faithful, indulgent, loving Wife; of great Humility, Ingenuity, Industry, Piety and Virtue, and very charitable. She departed this Life the 29th of October, 1700.

ON the South Side the Church is a Hatchment, given by the Lady Robinson, in Memory of Mary, Queen to King William III. containing the Queen's Arms, and Imperial Crown, and this Inscription:

AMONG the Benefactors to the Church, Mr. John Kendrick was a very liberal one, whose last Will we shall give to our Readers at Length; as we find it in Mr. Monday's Edition of Stow, and likewise in Strype.

The last WILL and TESTAMENT of Mr. John Kendrick, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, who departed this Life the 30th Day of December, Anno 1624.

IN the Name of GOD, Amen. The 29th of December, Anno Domini 1624, and in the 22d Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord King James, &c.

I John Kendrick, of the City of LONDON, Draper, being Sick in Body, but of good and perfect Memory, (for which I give most humble and hearty Thanks to Almighty GOD) do make, ordain, and declare this my last Will and Testament, in Manner and Form following: That is to say,

First, And before all Things, I commend and commit my Soul to Almighty GOD, my Creator; trusting most assuredly to be saved by the Death, Passion, and only Merits of JESUS CHRIST, my Saviour and Redeemer.

AND I Will, that my Body be decently interred in Christian Burial, in the Parish-Church of St. Christopher; where I dwell; as mine Executor, hereafter named, shall Order and Appoint.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to sixty Poor Men, to every of them a Gown of Broad-cloth, to wear on the Day of my Burial; and 12 d. a-piece in Money to pay for their Dinners. The same poor Men to be such as my Executors shall appoint.

Item,

Item, I Give and Bequeath black Gowns and Cloaks, to be worn at my Burial, by my Kindred, Friends, and Servants, as my Executor shall think meet; not exceeding the Sum of 600 l. in the said Gowns and Cloaks, and the rest of the Charges of my Funeral.

Item, I Give and Bequeath the Sum of 60 l. to be bestowed upon a Dinner, provided for my Friends, and the Inhabitants of the Parish of St. Christopher, where I now dwell, upon the Day of my Burial, and in such Place as my Executor shall think meet and convenient.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Mayor and Burgeses of the Town of Reading, in the County of Berkshire, (I mean, to the Body-Corporate, or Corporation, of the said Town of Reading, by whatsoever Name, or Addition, the same is made known) the Sum of 7500 l. upon special Trust and Confidence, that they shall therewith perform the Uses following: That is to say,

THE said Mayor and Burgeses shall Buy and Purchase unto them, and their Successors, for ever, (I say, to the Body-Corporate of the said Town of Reading, by whatsoever Name, or Addition, the same is made or known) Lands and Hereditaments, of the clear Value of 50 l. by the Year, over and above all Charges and Repairs. Which Sum of 50 l. a Year, my Will and Meaning is, shall be paid by the said Mayor and Burgeses, and their Successors, unto my Sister Anne Newman, yearly, during her natural Life. And after her Decease, the same yearly Sum of 50 l. shall be paid by the said Mayor and Burgeses, and their Successors, to the Overseers of the Poor of the said Town of Reading (for the Time being) yearly, for ever: And by them, the said Overseers (for the Time being) shall be bestowed and distributed to and among the poor People of the said Town, for ever: To wit, the Moiety thereof, every half Year, in such Sums, and to such Persons, as the said Overseers (for the Time being) shall think meet, according to the Necessity and Desert of the same several Persons.

PROVIDED always, and my Meaning is, that this my yearly Gift shall not any Way abridge the said Poor of the ordinary Allowances, usually assessed and collected of the wealthier Sort of the Inhabitants of the said Town, towards the Relief of the said poor People, but shall be unto them as an Additament and clear Increase of Relief, yearly, for ever.

AND if this my Gift and Provision shall happen (which I trust it shall not) to be by the said Mayor and Burgeses, or by the said Overseers for the Time being, ordered and disposed contrary to my Meaning thus declared; or that my Will and Desire above expressed, touching the Bestowing and Distribution of the said Sum of 50 l. yearly, be omitted, neglected, or left unperformed by the Space of one whole Year, after, it is, by this my Will, appointed to be distributed and bestowed as aforesaid, then my Will and Meaning is, that the said Sum and Revenue of 50 l. a Year, shall be by the said Mayor and Burgeses, and their Successors, for the Time being, for ever, paid unto the Treasurer of Christ's Hospital: And by the Governors of the same Hospital, employed and bestowed in the Relief and Education of the poor Children, of the said Hospital. Or else, that the said Mayor, and Burgeses for the Time being, shall, by their Deed in Law, convey and make over the Lands and Hereditaments of the said yearly Value of 50 l. unto the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of the City of LONDON, and their Successors for ever, unto the Use of the said Hospital, to be employed as aforesaid.

VOL. I.

PROVIDED always, that the said 50 l. a Year, be yearly paid unto my said Sister Anne Newman, during her natural Life; and after her Decease, to the charitable Uses aforesaid.

MOREOVER, my Will and Meaning is, as also my Trust and Confidence in the said Mayor and Burgeses of the Town of Reading, that with another competent Part of the said Sum of 7500 l. so by me devised as aforesaid, they, the said Mayor and Burgeses, shall buy and purchase unto them, and their Successors for ever, a fair Plat of Ground, within the said Town of Reading, or the Liberties thereof; and thereupon shall erect and build a strong House of Brick, fit, and commodious, for setting the Poor on Work therein. Or else shall buy and purchase such an House, being already built, if they can find one already fitting; or that may with a reasonable Sum be made fit for the said Use. The same House to have a fair Garden adjoining, and to be from Time to Time kept in good and sufficient Reparations, by the said Mayor and Burgeses for the Time being, for ever; which House and Garden, my Will is, shall be used and occupied, by such as the said Mayor and Burgeses and their Successors, from Time to Time, for ever, shall appoint and ordain, for the employing and handling of the Stock of Money, by me hereby left and devised to that Purpose.

AND my Will and Meaning is, that the said Lands and Tenements of the yearly Value of 50 l. and also the said House and Garden, being bought and purchased as aforesaid, with Parcel of the said Sum of 7500 l. Then the Residue and Remainder of the same 7500 l. shall make and be a common Stock to be employed and bestowed in Trades of Cloathing, either in making of colour'd Cloaths, or Whites, as the Time shall require: And also in working of Wool, Hemp, Flax, Iron, grinding of Brazil Woods, and other Stuffs for Dying, or otherwise, as to the said Mayor and Burgeses aforesaid, and their Successors, for ever, shall seem meet and convenient for the Employment of poor People, and for the Preservation and Increase of the said common Stock.

AND the said Mayor and Burgeses, and their Successors, for ever, shall have Election, Placing and Ordering, as also the Displacing (if Cause be) of all and every Person and Persons, to be employed in the Handling and Husbanding of the common Stock in the House aforesaid, according to their, the said Mayor and Burgeses, good Discretion, from Time to Time, for ever.

WHEREIN yet my Desire is, that they shall prefer the Poor of the said Town to the said Work and Employment, before others of other Places.

AND for the Performancè of these Premises, my Will is, that the Sum of 7500 l. before, for this End by me bequeathed to the said Mayor and Burgeses, or their Successors, shall be paid unto them; or their Successors in Manner and Form following, that is to say, 2000 l. thereof at the End of one Year next after my Decease, other 2000 l. thereof at the End of two Years, next after the Day of my Decease: And the Residue of the whole Sum, being 3500 l. at the End of three Years next ensuing after, and from the Day of my Decease.

BUT if it shall happen (as my Trust is it will not) that the said Mayor and Burgeses, or their Successors shall neglect, omit, or fail to perform the Premises, according to my Will and Meaning above declared, or shall misemploy the said Stock, contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of this my Devise and Disposition, for the Good of the Poor and their honest Employment and Maintenance as aforesaid, and that such their Neglect shall continue at any Time by the Space of one whole Year together, then my Will and Meaning is, that my said whole Legacy of 7500 l. and every every Part and Parcel thereof, shall be thence utterly void, frustrate, and of none Effect, as to, for and concerning the said Mayor and Burgesſes and their Succeſſors, and as to, for and concerning the Uſes thereof before limited and expreſſed. And that the ſaid whole common Stock, ſhall be, by them, the ſaid Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the City of LONDON, to the Uſe of Chriſt's Hoſpital in LONDON, according as I have above deviſed and diſpoſed, touching the Revenue of 50 l. a Year, for ever, firſt bequeathed to the Uſe and Relief of the poor People of the Town of Reading.

As alſo my Will and Meaning is, that in this Caſe of Non-performance by the ſaid Mayor and Burgeſſes, the Houſe and Garden to be purchaſed in Reading, as aforeſaid, ſhall be by the ſaid Mayor and Burgeſſes, and their Succeſſors, conveyed and made over by their Deed ſufficient in Law, unto the ſaid Mayor and Commonalty of the City of LONDON, and their Succeſſors, for ever, to the like Uſe of Chriſt's Hoſpital in LONDON, as aforeſaid.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Mayor, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Town of Newbury, in the County of Berks, (I mean the Body-Corporate of the ſame Town) the Sum of 4000 l. to buy and purchaſe therewith a commodious Houſe and Garden within the ſame Town, or the Liberties thereof, to ſet the Poor on Work: And with the Reſidue of the ſame Sum, to make a common Stock for the Employment of the Poor in the ſaid Houſe, according to the good Diſcretion of the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeſſes, from Time to Time, for ever; and according to my Meaning before declared, in the Deviſing of the Sum of 7500 l. to the Mayor and Burgeſſes of the Town of Reading, to the like Uſe.

BUT my Will and Meaning is, that if it ſhall happen (which I truſt will not) that the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeſſes of the Town of Newbury, or their Succeſſors, ſhall neglect to perform my Truſt and Meaning, hereby committed unto them, or ſhall miſemploy the ſaid Stock, contrary to my good Intent to the Poor before declared, by the Space of one whole Year (at any Time) after my ſaid Legacy ſhall be paid unto them, then my Will and Meaning is, that my ſaid whole Legacy of 4000 l. and every Part and Parcel thereof, ſhall thenceforth be utterly void, and of none Effect, as to, for and concerning the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Town of Newbury, and their Succeſſors, for ever: And that the ſaid whole common Stock, be, by them, the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeſſes of the Town of Reading in the ſame County, to be by them and their Succeſſors, forever, employed, beſtowed and uſed in like manner as I have by this my Will deviſed and appointed another Stock common for the Poor in the ſame Town of Reading, as by my Deviſe and Diſpoſition (before herein more at large expreſſed) doth and may appear.

IN the like Manner alſo, my Will and Meaning is, that in caſe of ſuch Non-performance of my Will and Intent, by the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Town of Newbury, the Houſe and Garden by them ſo to be purchaſed and built, as aforeſaid, ſhall be by the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeſſes of the Town of Newbury, and their Succeſſors, conveyed and made over by their Deed ſufficient in Law, unto the Mayor and Burgeſſes of the ſaid Town of Reading, and their Succeſſors, for ever, to be by them ſold and converted into Money, and the ſame Money to be uſed and employed in their common Stock, for the Poor in the ſaid Town of Reading aforeſaid, in ſuch Sort, as I have formerly hereby expreſſed.

AND for the Performance of the ſaid Truſt and Uſes, by the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen and Burgeſſes of the Town of Newbury aforeſaid, my Will and Meaning is, That the ſaid Sum of 4000 l. ſo to them bequeathed and deviſed as aforeſaid, ſhall be paid unto them, or their Succeſſors, in Manner as followeth; that is to ſay, 1000 l. thereof at the End of one Year, next enſuing after the Day of my Deceafe: One other thouſand Pounds thereof at the End of two Years from and after my ſaid Deceafe. And the Reſidue (being 2000 l.) ſhall be paid them, at the End of three Years next after my Deceafe.

Item, I give and bequeath to the Company of Drapers of the City of LONDON (of which Company I am free) the Sum of 2400 l. to purchaſe Lands and Hereditaments, to the clear yearly Value of 100 l. for ever, over and above all Charges and Reprifes: And with the ſame to perform theſe good Uſes hereafter-mentioned; that is to ſay,

THE Sum of 24 l. thereof, yearly, for ever, to be beſtowed in the Month of December, for the Releaſing of ſix poor Priſoners, out of the Priſons in LONDON, to wit, the two Compters, Ludgate, Newgate, and the Fleet, by 4 l. for each Priſoner.

OR if ſuch cannot be found in the ſaid Priſons, or ſome of them to be releaſed for theſe Sums, then the ſame (or the Reſidue thereof) to be beſtowed in like releaſing of other Priſoners, out of ſome of the Priſons near LONDON, and out of the Liberties thereof; as to the Wardens of the ſaid Company (for the Time being) ſhall ſeem meet.

MORE, 20 l. yearly, for ever, to the Curate of the Pariſh of St. Chriſtopher, wherein I now dwell, to read divine Service in the ſaid Pariſh-Church at ſix o'Clock in the Morning, every Day of the Week, for ever, in like manner as is now uſed in the Chapel, at the great North Gate of St. Paul's Church in LONDON.

MORE, to the Clerk and Sexton of the ſaid Pariſh of St. Chriſtopher, to each of them 50 s. yearly, for ever, to do their ſeveral Attendance and Aſſiſtance at the Time of divine Service every Morning.

MORE, to the Church-wardens of the ſame Pariſh of St. Chriſtopher, 5 l. yearly, for ever, for the Maintenance of Lights in the Winter Time.

MORE, 3 l. yearly, for ever, to the Poor of the ſaid Pariſh of St. Chriſtopher.

MORE, to the poor Priſoners in LONDON, 10 l. yearly, for ever, namely, to the Priſoners of the Compters in the Poultry and Wood-ſtreet, and in Newgate; to each of theſe Priſons, 40 s. yearly, for ever.

To the poor Priſoners in Ludgate, and in the Fleet, to each Houſe, 30 s. for ever.

AND to the poor Priſoners in Bethlem, or Bedlam, 20 s. yearly, for ever.

MORE, to the Clerk of the Company of Drapers, for the Time being, for his Pains herein, 40 s. for ever.

MORE, to the Beadle of the ſaid Company, 30 s. for ever.

MORE to the Beadle of Yeomanry of the ſame Company, 10 s. yearly, for ever.

MORE, 25 l. yearly, for ever to be diſtributed by the ſaid Wardens, among poor and religious Men and Women in the City of LONDON; to ſome more and to ſome leſs, as the ſaid Wardens ſhall find their Neceſſity and Deſert to be: Wherein my Deſire is, that poor Clothworkers and their Widows ſhall be firſt preferred; and next, the Poor of the Drapers Company. The Reſidue of the ſame Sum of 100 l. a Year, being 4 l. yearly, for ever, I entreat the four Wardens of the ſaid Company, to accept for their Pains, to be equally divided between them by 20 s. to each of them, for the Time being, for ever.

AND if the ſaid Company of Drapers, do either of Purpoſe or Negligence, omit and not perform, perform the Premises, but shall leave the same unperformed one whole Year, after they shall have received this my Legacy of 2400 l. (which I Will shall be paid them at the End of one Year next after my Decease) then my Will and Mind is, that the Governors of Christ's Hospital, in LONDON, shall recover the 2400 l. before specified, or the Lands and the Hereditaments, that the said Company shall have bought with the same Money; and keep 20 l. yearly for ever of the same Rent, for the Maintenance of the poor Children in the said Hospital, as if the same had been first given them. And the Drapers Company to have nothing to do with it, or the rest of the said 100 l. yearly for ever.

AND that in this Case, the yearly Payment of 8 l. unto the Clerk, Beadles and Wardens of the said Company, as also 12 l. Parcel of the said 25 l. a Year before devised, to be paid and distributed by the said Company, among poor and religious Men and Women, in the City of LONDON, utterly and for ever to cease.

BUT this 20 l. a Year being so converted (as aforesaid) to the Use of the Hospital, the Residue of the said yearly Rent of 100 l. a Year, I Will that the Governors of the said Hospital, shall pay and distribute yearly for ever, in Manner and Form as the said Company of Drapers should have done.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the said Company of Drapers, 100 l. to be paid within a Year after my Decease, and by the Wardens of the said Company, to be bestowed in Plate: Such as they shall think good, for the Use of their common Hall in LONDON, at their Meetings and Dinners there.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Poor of Christ's Hospital in LONDON, 500 l. to be, by the Governors thereof, bestowed in Lands and Hereditaments; for and towards the yearly Maintenance of the Children of the said Hospital for ever. This Sum to be paid to the said Governor, or the Treasurer of the said Hospital, so soon as they shall have found out a fit Purchase to bestow it, and agreed on the Price of the same.

Item, I Give and Bequeath towards the curing of sick, sore and diseased Persons, in St. Bartholomew's Hospital, in LONDON, the Sum of 50 l.

Item, I Give and Bequeath towards the curing of sick, sore, and diseased Persons in St. Thomas's Hospital in Southwark, near LONDON, the Sum of 50 l.

Item, I Give and Bequeath towards the Repairing of the Parish Church of St. Christopher, where I now dwell, the Sum of 40 l. to be paid to the Church-wardens of the same Parish, within one Year after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath towards the Repairing of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul in LONDON, the Sum of 1000 l. to be paid to the Chamberlain of LONDON, at such Time as that Work of Repairing the same Church shall be ready to proceed with Effect; and to be disposed by the Direction and Appointment of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the said City.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to be given at the Marriages of poor Maids within the City of LONDON, 200 l. to be distributed by 40 s. a-piece upon the Days of their Marriage, to such as have served one Master or Mistress, by the Space of five Years together.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to be given and distributed to poor Maids in the Town of Reading, in the County of Berks, at their several Marriages, by 40 s. a-piece, at the Discretion of the Mayor and Burgeses of that Town, the Sum of 100 l. provided none enjoy the Benefit thereof, but such as have served Master, Mistress, or Dame, by the Space of seven Years together. This 100 l. to be paid to the said Mayor and Burgeses (for the Use aforesaid) within one Year next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeses of the Town of Newbury in Berkshire, the Sum of 50 l. to be by them bestowed and distributed to 25 Maids Marriages on their several Days of their Weddings in the same Town. None to enjoy this Gift, but such as have well and honestly served with one Master, Mistress, or Dame, by the Space of seven Years at the least: And this 50 l. to be paid to the said Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeses; within one Year next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath towards the setting on Work of 40 idle vagrant Boys, such as go up and down in the Streets in the City of LONDON, begging and pilfering, the Sum of 200 l. to be paid to the Treasurer for the Time being, of the House of Correction called Bridewell, in LONDON, in Manner and Form following: That is to say, When any such Boy is taken up by my Executor or his Assigns, in any Place within the Liberties of this City of LONDON, and by the Treasurer of the same House of Correction, and Governors there for the Time being, placed and bound Apprentice with a Master for the Term of seven Years at the least, with a Master or Art-Masters, as Glovers, Pinners, Shoe-makers, or any other Occupation or Art, which they shall be thought most fit for, to learn in the said House, whereby (in Time) they may prove good Members, and live like honest Men in the Common-wealth. I say, with every one of these Boys shall be paid to the Treasurer and Governors for the Time being, the Sum of 5 l. until the said Sum of 200 l. be fully paid for that Use.

Item, I Give and Bequeath towards the finishing of the Pinacles of the Steeple of St. Mary's in Reading in Berkshire, 50 l. to be paid to the Church-wardens of the same Parish, within one Month after the same Pinacles shall be finished.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Mayor and Burgeses of the Town of Reading, aforesaid, the Sum of 500 l. to be first lent to these Parties, and in the Sums here-after named for seven Years, gratis; that is, To James Winche, 200 l. and to Walter Rye, Richard Stampe, and William Blachnell, Clothiers, 100 l. a-piece; each of them giving Bond with sufficient Sureties, for Repayment thereof to the said Mayor and Burgeses, at the End of the said seven Years: And afterward the same 500 l. shall be lent to ten several honest industrious poor Clothiers, Freemen of the same Town by fifty Pounds a-piece, gratis, for three Years, upon like good Security. And no Man to have the Use of this Money twice. But if there shall not be Clothiers enough found in the said Town to enjoy this Loan in Manner aforesaid, that then the said Money shall be lent also unto other Tradesmen, free of the said Town by the Sums and Terms of Years last before appointed, to such as set most poor People to work, according to the Discretion of the said Mayor and Burgeses. And this said Sum of 500 l. shall be paid to the said Mayor and Burgeses (to the Use aforesaid) at the End of one Year next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeses of the Town of Newbury in the County of Berks, the Sum of 200 l. to be lent first for the Term of seven Years gratis, unto these several Clothiers here named, that is to say, to Thomas Newman, 100 l. to Richard Avery, 100 l. to Martin Broker, 50 l. to William Goodwin, the Elder, 50 l. to Timothy Avery, 50 l. to Robert Bacon, 50 l. and to Griffin Forster, 50 l. Every of the said several Parties entering into Bond, with two sufficient Sureties, for Repayment of the said Sums to the said Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeses, at the End of seven Years.

Years. And afterwards the same 500 l. shall be lent to ten several honest industrious poor Clothiers, free of the said Town of Newbury, 50 l. a-piece gratis, for three Years. And after that, in like Manner, from three Years to three Years, for ever; and no Man to have the same Money twice: But if there shall not be Clothiers enough found in the same Town of Newbury, to enjoy this Loan as aforesaid, then the same Money shall be lent also unto other Tradesmen, free of the same Town, by the Sums and Terms of Years last before appointed, to such as set most poor People on Work, according to the Discretion of the said Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgeses, to whom the said 500 l. shall be paid, to the Use aforesaid, at the End of one Year after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Governor, Assistants, and Fellowship of Merchant Adventurers of England, the Sum of 900 l. to be lent by 300 l. in a Parcel, for three Years gratis, unto three honest, industrious, and frugal young Men, free of that Company, none of them being Partners with each other, and every of them giving Bond, with two sufficient Sureties, to be tried and allowed by Balloting, and not otherwise, for Repayment of the same Money to the said Company. And so the same Money to be lent out by the said Company in this Manner from three Years for ever.

AND my Will and Desire is, that these my five present Servants, shall be (upon Security as aforesaid) first preferred to the enjoying of this Loan; to wit, William Powle, Thomas Newman, and Simon Gandy, the first three Years; and Andrew Kendricke and Christopher Pack, the next two Parcels that shall come in, and be received in, after they, shall be Freemen of that Company. And for the Performance hereof, the said 900 l. shall be paid unto the Treasurer of the said Company in LONDON, for the Time being, at the End of one Year next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Brother William Kendricke of Reading in the County of Berks, Clothier, and to his Children, now born and living, the Sum of 2000 l. whereof one third Part for himself, and the other two Parts for his said Children. The same two third Parts of the said Sum of 2000 l. to be equally divided to and amongst his said Children, Share and Share alike.

AND my Will is, that the said 2000 l. shall be paid to my said Brother, at the End of three Years, next after my Decease; and that he shall pay his said Children their several Shares thereof before limited; that is to say, to his Son his Share and Part, when he cometh to the Age of four and twenty Years; and to his Daughter, her Share and Part, when she cometh to the Age of one and twenty Years, or at the Day of her Marriage, which shall first happen.

AND if it Fortune either of my said Brother's Children to die or decease, before their respective Legacies aforesaid shall grow due, as above, that then the Part of such Child so deceasing, shall accrue and be paid to the Survivor of the said Children, at the Day and Time before appointed.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my said Brother William Kendricke; my Gold Ring, which was my Father's, with the Letters T. K. therein engraven, and a Knot between the same Letters.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Sister Anne Newman of Reading in the County of Berks, the Sum of one thousand Marks, to be paid at the End of one Year next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath unto the Children of my said Sister Anne Newman, the Sum of two thousand Marks, to be equally divided amongst them; Share and Share alike. And the Shares of such as are already married (if they be Daughters) or are 24 Years of Age, to be paid at the End of one Year after my Decease: And the Shares of the rest, to be paid to such as be Sons, when they shall be 24 Years of Age; and to the Daughters at their Day of Marriage, or when they shall come to 21 Years of Age respectively, which of these shall happen to be first.

AND if it shall happen any of the said Children of my said Sister to die, before the Age and Time so prefixed for Payment, as aforesaid (I mean those that be yet under that Age, and unmarried) then my Will is, that the Share and Part of such as shall so die, shall accrue and be paid unto the rest of the same Children then surviving, Share and Share alike; and at the Days and Times of Payment before appointed, for their own several Shares and Parts.

BUT my Will and Meaning is, that Thomas Newman, Son of my said Sister, shall not have any Part or Share of this said Legacy of 2000 Marks: Because I give him a large Legacy apart by this my Will. Therefore the said 2000 Marks is to be divided and shared among the rest of the Children of my said Sister, as aforesaid.

Item, I do hereby absolutely acquit and forgive my Brother-in-Law, Thomas Newman, of Reading aforesaid, Husband to my Sister Anne Newman, the Sum of 100 Marks, which he oweth me by his Bond, due the 2d Day of November, Ann. Dom. 1623, being all that he oweth me at the Date of this my Will.

Item, I give and bequeath to my Sister Alice Vignes of Exeter, in the County of Devon, the Sum of 500 l. to be paid her at the End of two Years next after my Decease.

Item, I give and bequeath to the Children of my said Sister Alice Vignes, the Sum of 1000 l. to be equally divided among them Share and Share alike: And if any of them being Sons be of the Age of 24 Years; or any of them (being Daughters) be of the Age of 21 Years, or married, then the Share and Parts of such respectively, shall be paid at the End of two Years next after my Decease: And the Shares and Parts of the rest, shall be paid to such as are Sons; at the Age of 24 Years: And to such as be Daughters, at their Age of 21 Years, or at the Days of their Marriage, which of them shall first happen to come respectively.

BUT my Will and Meaning is, that Simon Gandy, Son of my said Sister Alice Vignes, shall not have any Part or Share of this Legacy of 1000 l. because I give him a large Legacy apart by himself in this my Will. But my Meaning is, that this said Legacy of 1000 l. so given as aforesaid, shall be equally divided among the rest of the Children of my said Sister, excluding the said Simon Gandy from all Part and Share of the same: And if it shall happen any of the said Children of my said Sister Alice Gandy, to die before the Age and Time of Payment appointed as aforesaid (I mean, when they be under that Age, and unmarried,) then my Will and Meaning is, that the Share and Part of such as shall so die, shall be paid and accrue unto the rest of the same Children so surviving, to each of them equally, Share and Share alike: And at the Days and Times of Payment before appointed, for their own several Shares and Parts.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Brother James Wincke, of Parley, in the County of Berks, and to his Children, the Sum of 1000 l. whereof one third Part for himself, the other two third Parts for his said Children. The same two third Parts to be divided equally amongst the said Children of my said Brother, Share and Share alike.

AND my Will is, that this said Sum of 1000 l. shall be paid to my said Brother James Wincke, at the End of one Year next after my Decease, and that he shall pay forthwith unto such of his Children, Children, as (being Sons, and of the Age of 24 Years, or married) their several Shares and Proportions of the said two third Parts of this Sum of 1000*l.* The Shares and Parts of the rest of his Children, he shall retain in his own Hands until his said Children (being Sons) shall be at the Age of 24 Years; and being Daughters, shall be at the Age of 21 Years, or be married; and then he shall pay every of them their several Shares and Parts respectively.

AND if it shall happen any of the said younger Children to die, before the Time of Payment so limited as aforesaid, then my Will and Meaning is, that the Part and Share of such as shall so decease, shall accrue unto the rest of the said Children of my said Brother, that shall then survive; to be equally divided amongst them, Share and Share alike, and to be paid at the Days and Times before appointed.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to 30 of my poorest Kindred in the Town of Reading, in Berkshire, the Sum of 300*l.* to be paid unto my Brother, William Kendricke, within three Months after my Decease: And by him to be distributed by 10*l.* in every Parcel, as he in his Discretion shall think good: Wherein I pray him to be very careful, to bestow the same where there is most Need and best Desert.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to old Elizabeth Kendricke, of Reading, Daughter to my Father's Brother, William Kendricke (as I take it) the Sum of 50*l.* to be paid her within three Months after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Kinsman, Thomas Newman, now residing at Delft in Holland, the Sum of 1000*l.* to be paid him upon the 25th Day of October, which shall be in the Year of our Lord God, 1626, when his Time of Service expireth. Provided, that he remain with my Partner, Mr. Laurence Halstead, and serve him his said full Time.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Kinsman, and late Servant, Simon Gandy, the Sum of 1000*l.* to be paid him within one Year next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath unto Arthur Aynscombe, Merchant, now residing at Antwerp, who hath a Share with me in Trade, the Sum of 500*l.* to be paid him within two Years after my Decease. Provided, that he go forward in Trade with Mr. Laurence Halstead (if he the said Master Halstead shall desire it) unto the End of our Contract, which will be the 25th Day of October, Anno Dom. 1626.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Barney Reymer, Merchant, now residing at Delft, who hath also a Share with me in Trade, the Sum of 500*l.* to be paid him within two Years, next after my Decease. Provided, that he go forward in Trade with Mr. Laurence Halstead, (if he the said Master Halstead shall desire it) unto the End of our Contract, which will be the 25th Day of October, Anno Dom. 1626, as is aforesaid.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Master John Quarles, who was my Master, the Sum of 500*l.* to be paid him within a Year next after my Decease: And my earnest Request unto Mr. Laurence Halstead is, That unto the End of our Contract, of Partnership, (which will be the 25th Day of October, Anno Domini 1626,) the same Mr. Quarles may have his Diet, Lodging and Washing, in his the said Mr. Halstead's House, free, and without paying any thing therefore, as he now hath it with me; and my Desire also is, that he may continue to keep the Books of our partable Accompt, until the aforesaid 25th Day of October, 1626, and be paid his wonted yearly Allowance of 50*l.* for the same: And I do hereby freely and absolutely forgive the said Mr. John Quarles, the Sum of 300*l.* which he oweth me, payable at Pleasure, being lent him the last Day of March, Anno 1615, and being all that he oweth me at the Date of this my Will.

VOL. I.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Master George Lowe, heretofore my Partner, the Sum of 300*l.* to be paid him within one Year next after my Decease: And I do hereby absolutely forgive him; all that is due unto me for his Lodging, Diet, Firing, and Washing, which he hath had of me now six Years together.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Thomas Billingsley, Knt. Son of Henry Billingsley, Knt. and Alderman of LONDON, deceased, the Sum of 200*l.* to be paid him within one Year next after my Decease: And I do absolutely forgive him the Sum of 200*l.* which he oweth me by his Bond, due the 20th of December, Anno 1625, and lent him the 20th of this present Month, for a Year.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Executors of Thomas Jackson, of LONDON, Merchant, deceased, (whom I take to be Miles Jackson, the Son of the said Thomas) the Sum of 300*l.* to be paid at the End of one Year next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Lucas van Peenen of Middleburgh in Zealand, Son of Roger van Peenen of that Town, deceased, the Sum of 50*l.* Sterling, to be paid over by Exchange, within two Months after my Decease, payable at Ufance to John Mount Stephen, now residing in that Town, to be paid over to the said Lucas van Peenen, forthwith, after he hath received it; in the full Flemish Sum which the same shall produce.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Jeremias Poets, of the same Town of Middleburgh in Zealand; (if he be the Executor of his Brother Hance Poets, deceased) the Sum of 20*l.* Sterling; made over by Exchange within two Months after my Decease; payable at Ufance to John Mount Stephen aforesaid; and by him forthwith (after his Receipt thereof) to be paid over to the said Jeremias Poets, in the full Flemish Sum which the same shall produce.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to William Powle, my Covenant Servant, the Sum of 200*l.* to be paid him within six Months after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Andrew Kendricke, my Apprentice, the Sum of 300*l.* to be paid him when he shall have served seven Years, from the Commencement of the Term of his Indenture.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the said Andrew Kendricke, the Sum of 100*l.* more, in lieu of so much given me with him by his Father John Kendricke, to be paid him within three Months next after my Decease, upon Acquittance to be given by his said Father therefore.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Christopher Packe, my Apprentice, the Sum of 100*l.* to be paid him within three Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Thomas Mayle, my Horse-keeper, the Sum of 20*l.* to be paid him within two Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Maid Dorothy, the Sum of 20*l.* to be paid her within two Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Maid Margaret, the Sum of 20*l.* to be paid her within two Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath unto John Hutwith, my Drawer, the Sum of 50*l.* to be paid within three Months after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Walter Bird, my Drawer, 25*l.* to be paid him within three Months after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the present Men-Servants of John Hutwith, my Drawer; the Sum of 25*l.* whereof 10*l.* to Charles; and the other 15*l.* to be equally divided amongst the rest; as well well Apprentices as Journeymen; to be paid within two Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my twelve Cloth-workers, that usually row and sheer my Cloths, the Sum of 130 l. whereof 20 l. to Owen Dobbins, and 10 l. a-piece to the rest; to be payed within three Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to William Bigge and William Salisbury, that usually press and fold my Cloths, the Sum of 25 l. whereof 15 l. to William Bigge, and 10 l. to William Salisbury, to be paid them within three Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Porters at the Water-side, 10 l. to be equally divided among them. And 10 l. to my Porters, that usually pack in my House, to be paid within two Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Water-bearer 3 l. and to my Washer, Anthony, 5 l. to be paid them forthwith after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath William Beadle of Reading, Clothier, the Sum of 50 l. if he be yet living; and if he be dead, then to his Executors; to be paid within three Months next after my Decease. And I do hereby also forgive the said William Beadle the 10 l. he now oweth me.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Executors of Mark Snye, of Reading, Clothier, deceased, the Sum of 50 l. to be paid within three Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Thomas Newman of Newbury, Clothier, the Sum of 100 l. to be paid him within three Months after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to John Skinner, Secretary to the Merchants Adventurers, the Sum of 100 l. to be paid within three Months next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Widow Harrison, and her Daughter, dwelling in the Alley next to my Dwelling-house, 5 l. to be paid within one Month next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Mr. Richard Bennet, who was heretofore my Partner, the Sum of 300 l. to be paid at the End of one Year next after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to Mr. William Towerson, Skinner, Deputy of the Merchant Adventurers, 5 l. to make him a Ring. And to Mr. Thomas Smith, 5 l. to make him a Ring; to be paid them forthwith after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath unto Rafe Barnet, William Ellets, and John Southern, Officers of the Merchant Adventurers, 5 l. a-piece, to be paid them forthwith after my Decease.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Mayor and Burgesses of the Town of Reading, in the County of Berks, the Sum of 250 l. to be paid them at the End of one Year, next after my Decease; therewith to purchase Lands and Hereditaments, to the clear yearly Value of 10 l. for ever, to maintain Divine Service to be said in the Parish-Church of St. Mary, in that Town, by the Parson or his Curate every Morning of the Week at Six of the Clock for ever.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses, of the Town of Newbury, in the County of Berks, the Sum of 250 l. to be paid them at the End of one Year next after my Decease, therewith to purchase Lands or Hereditaments, of the clear yearly Value of 10 l. for ever, to maintain Divine Service to be said in the Parish Church of that Town, by the Parson, or his Curate, every Morning of the Week at Six of the Clock, to continue for ever.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to my Kinsman, William Bye, dwelling near the Allum Mines in Yorkshire, the Sum of 100 l. to be paid him within three Months after my Decease: And I do hereby forgive him the 10 l. which he oweth me by his Bond, due long since.

Item, I Give and Bequeath to the Company of Drapers, in LONDON, the Sum of 40 l. to be bestowed upon a Dinner, for the Livery of that Company, to be at their Hall upon the Day of my Burial; this to be paid forthwith after my Decease.

AND my Will and Meaning is, That in Case any of the Persons aforementioned, to whom I have bequeathed Legacies as aforesaid, and not especially disposed of in Case of their Decease, shall happen to die before the same Legacies grow due unto them, then the Legacy or Legacies so by me given to them as aforesaid, shall be paid unto their Executors or Administrators, at such Time as I have before severally appointed unto them my Legataries.

AND I do Make and Ordain my loving Friend and Partner, Master Laurence Halstead, my sole Executor, of this my last Will and Testament; charging him, as he will answer it before Almighty God at the last Day of Judgment, that he truly and punctually (in every Particular) perform this my said Last Will and Testament, as I nothing doubt but he will be careful to do. Hereby Giving and Bequeathing unto him my said Executor, all the Residue and Remainder of my Estate; my Legacies, before bequeathed, being first paid and discharged.

IN Witness of the Premises, I have unto this my last Will and Testament, contained in 18 several Sheets of Paper, put my Hand and Seal: That is, my Seal once at the Top, and my Name under every several Sheet, the Day and Year first above-written.

Sealed, Pronounced, and Delivered, by the said John Kendrick, as his Last Will and Testament, in the presence of us,

John Kendrick.

John Skinner,
Andrew Kendrick,
Thomas Singleton.

BESIDES what is given by Mr. Kendrick, in this Will, there are other Bequests and charitable Gifts to St. Christopher's, viz.

Benedict Harlewyn, gave certain Houses in Fleet-street, let for 61 Years from the Year 1699, at the Ground Rent of 42 l. out of which 20 l. per Annum is settled for reading Evening Prayers every Day in the Week.

Simon Horspool, gave 4 l. 4 s. per Annum, for Bread for the Poor, and other Uses, out of a House in Corbett's-Alley, in Gracechurch-street.

Thomas Forman, gave 5 l. per Annum to the Poor, issuing out of a House in Cornhill, within the said Parish.

Sir Peter la Maire, gave, by his Will, Anno 1631, 100 l. to the Poor of this Parish, to be settled as a Stock by the Executors.

THERE is a Register kept in the Parish, of the Benefactors and Sums given.

THERE was a Parsonage-House before the Fire, but burnt down; and Part of the Glebe is leased out to certain Trustees for the Parish, by Lease, dated in May 1672, at the Ground Rent of 5 l. per Annum: And the Trustees granted another Lease of the said House in May 1572, to Robert Grove, Clerk, in Trust for the Rector John Hall, and his Successors, at the Rent of 20 l. per Annum, if he the said Rector should reside and dwell therein. These Leases were let out for the Term of forty Years. There are other Leases of other Parts of the Glebe.

THIS Living is a Rectory, in the Gift of the Bishop of LONDON, Value 120 l. rated in the King's Books 14 l.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Bramston; and the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. James Cooper.

HERE are Prayers at six o'Clock in the Morning daily, and at the like Hour in the Evening. There are two Bells.

THE Vestry is general.

NUMBER of Houses 92.

REMARKABLE PLACES.

Bartholomew Compaine, a Merchant of Flanders, gave 140 l. paid to the Lord Treasurer of King Edward VI, for the Fee Simple of a large Messuage and Tenement in this Parish, formerly belonging to the Fraternity of our Lady in the Chapel of Barking, LONDON, being of the yearly Value of 14 l. to be held of free Burgage of the City of LONDON. (Perhaps this was that House which was the Post-house before the Fire, and is now Prince's-street.)

Sir John Houblon, Knight and Alderman, some Time Lord Mayor of LONDON, one of the Commissioners of the Admiralty, and one of the Members of Parliament for the City, lived in this Parish, in a large House, which being pulled down, there is now building in the Place where it stood, adjoining to St. Christopher's Church.

The new Bank.

THE New Bank of England, which is a most magnificent Structure; the Front next the Street is about eighty Feet in Length, adorned with Columns, Entablature, &c. of the Ionick Order. There is a handsome Court-yard between this and the main Building, which, like the other, is of Stone, and adorned with Pillars, Pilasters, Entablature, and triangular Pediment of the Corinthian Order. The Hall is 79 Feet in Length, and 40 in Breadth, is wainscotted about eight Feet high, has a fine Fretwork-Ceiling, and a large Venetian Window, at the West End of it. Beyond this is another Quadrangle, with an Archade on the East and West Sides of it; and on the North is the Accomptant's Office, which is 60 Feet long, and 28 Feet broad. There are handsome Apartments over this, and the other Sides of the Quadrangle, with a fine Stair-case, adorned with Fretwork; and under it are large Vaults, that have very strong Walls, and Iron Grates, for the Preservation of the Cash.

OF the Bank of England, and the Directors, we shall give a farther Account, when we come into Cheap Ward, where the Business of the Governor and Company is at present transacted.

Scalding-alley.

WEST of St. Christopher's Church is Scalding-alley, called antiently Scalding-house, or Scalding-wicke, because the Ground, for the most Part, was then employed by Poulterers, who dwelt in the High-street, from Stocks-market to the great Conduit. Their Poultry, which they sold at their Stalls, was scalded in this Place. The Street yet bears the Name of the Poultry, and the Poulterers, in Stow's Time, were but just departed from it into other Streets; as into Gracechurch-street, and to the Ends of St. Nicholas Flesh Shambles. This Scalding-alley is the farthest Part of Broad-street Ward, and was once parted by the Water of Walbrook from Cheap Ward.

THE Streets, Lanes, Courts, Alleys, and Places now contained in this Ward, are,

The modern State of Broad-street Ward.

Threadneedle-street, on both Sides of the Way, from the North West Corner of Cornhill, near St. Christopher's Church, to St. Martin's Outwich Church at the Corner of Bishopsgate-street; Bartholomew-lane, Prince's-street, almost as far as Catharine-court; the North End next to Lothbury, being in Coleman-street Ward; Lothbury, on both Sides from the Gate by St. Margaret's Church to Bartholomew-lane End. Throgmorton-street, on both Sides, unto Broad-street. Broad-street, on both Sides, from St. Bennet-Fink Church to London-wall. Winchester-street, Augustine-fryars, Wormwood-street, as far as Helmet-court in the East; London-wall-street, from a little Eastwards of Cross-keys-court, unto the Beginning of Wormwood-street, by Broad-street End.

IN the Streets and Lanes are several Courts and Places, in the Description of which we shall begin with London-wall-street, and so come Southward.

London-wall-street, so called, from having the City Wall running along the North Side. It is a Street of old Buildings, and they, for the most Part, but ordinary, and as ill inhabited, the Inhabitants being chiefly Curriers. This Street, extending beyond this Ward, is very long, taking its Beginning from Cripplegate: And in the Wall, besides Moorgate, and the Posterns Westwards toward Cripplegate, is another Postern, or Gate, opposite to Winchester-street, which gives a Passage into Moorfields. The Alleys, Courts, &c. beginning West, are these, Bell-alley, or Back-alley, but narrow, seated on the Back-side of Coleman-street: This Alley is very long, but the Part in this Ward begins on the East Side, at the Black-posts over-against Swan-alley; and from thence falls down into Thompson's-rents, which is very narrow, and an ill Passage, and so to London-wall; Three-pidgeon-alley, very ordinary; White-horse-Inn; a Place for Stabling; all these three fall into Bell-alley. Ball-alley, very ordinary. The Boarded-Entry, but indifferent. Threetun-alley, large and indifferently built and inhabited. Maidenhead-court, somewhat long, but narrow, except at the upper End, which is wider and better built, with a Free-stone Pavement. Wrestler's-court, very long, with only Houses on the West Side, the East being the Back-side of Carpenters Hall. White-hart-Inn, indifferent large, chiefly for Coaches, and Stabling for Livery Horses.

THIS Street to Broad-street is called Alhallows in the Wall, from the Church of that Name there seated.

HERE on the South is Winchester-street, the Great and the Little.

Great Winchester-street comes out of Broad-street on the East, and after some Space, turning Northwards falls into London-wall-street: It is an open broad Street, graced with good Buildings, which are well inhabited by Merchants and Persons of Repute: Where it looks Northward, it is called Little Winchester-street, and leadeth to London-wall, where Little Moorgate, or Postern, opens into Moorfields.

THIS Little Winchester-street is not so broad, nor so well inhabited as the Great: And at the End next to London-wall is Nag's-head Inn, of no great Account, only for Livery Horses. Out of Great Winchester-street on the South is a Passage lage to Bell-alley, which is paved with Free-Stone, but very narrow, and leads into St. Augustine-fryars. Along from the Wall Church is Wormwood-street, of small Account for Houses, or Inhabitants. In this Street are Alms-Houses for 12 poor Women, erected by Mr. Kemp, each having 12 d. a Week in Money, besides some other Perquisites: And in this Street are these Places, Hand-alley, but small; Queen's-head-alley, very ordinary, both as to its Houses and Inhabitants, this Alley with a turning Passage falls into a broad or open Place, out of which is a Passage into Bishopsgate-street; Helmet-court, but indifferent, which ascending up Steps comes into Sutton-court, which hath a Passage into Bishopsgate-street, it is a pretty handsome new built Court, with a Free-Stone Pavement, and well inhabited, but this Court is in Bishopsgate Ward; betwixt Helmet-court and Queen's-head-alley is Cock-yard, a Place of ordinary Account.

Now going back again, we turn South into Broad-street, very spacious, graced with good Buildings, which are well inhabited; which said Street from London-wall runs Southwards, till bending West, it falls into Throgmorton-street, and more South into Little Broad-street, and thence into Threadneedle-street; in this Broad-street are these Alleys, Courts, and Places of Name, beginning next to London-wall, First, White-horse-court, pretty large, with old Timber Houses, nigh unto which is White-horse-yard, only for Stablings; Vine-court, now built up into Houses Bull-alley, but narrow, and ordinary; the Pay-office, that which formerly was Winchester-place, a large House which has for many Years been made Use of as an Office for the Payment of Seamen's Wages, and for Stores, &c. belonging to the Royal Navy. The present Treasurer of the Navy, who is at the Head of this Office, is the Right Honourable the Lord Viscount Torrington.

By the Corner of this House South is Winchester-street, already mentioned; Pin-makers Hall, and Pin-makers-alley, a pretty handsome Place, with a Free-Stone Pavement; Crown-court, still more South, a handsome broad Place, with good Houses, well inhabited by Merchants and others.

ON the East Side of this Street, hereabout, is the back Part of Gresham College, which has some Part in this Ward, but is most of it in Bishopsgate Ward. Here stands Gresham's Alms-Houses, and near unto them is a Yard for Livery-Horses, but without a Name; having some Houses in it, and is a Thoroughfare into Bishopsgate-street. Next to this is the South-Sea House, spoken of before; the following is,

A LIST of the Names of the Governor, Sub-Governor, Deputy-Governor, and Directors of the said Company, Trading to the South-Seas, and other Parts of America, and for encouraging the Fishery, chosen in the present Year 1733.

Mr. Pinckney Wilkinson.

OPPOSITE to this Office is the Parish Church of St. Peter's Poor, with a Dial hanging over the Street. A little beyond the Church is a Place called Augustine-Fryars, now built into several large Houses partly inhabited by the Minister of the Dutch Church, standing here, and partly by Merchants.

OVER-AGAINST Augustine-Fryars, is Little Broad-street, much narrower than the other, wherein are these Places: Adam's-Court, pretty large, well built and inhabited, at the Upper End is one House larger than the rest, being the Habitation of a Merchant; Cushion-Court, pretty handsome, but small, containing only two good Houses; Britain's-Yard, but small, having but one House; French-Court, indifferent well inhabited, with a Free Stone Pavement. Now back to Throgmorton-street, very well built and inhabited; the chief Place here is the House and Garden belonging to the Drapers Company. In this Street are these Courts, and Places of Name, viz. Red-Lyon-Court, both small and ordinary; New-Court, a pretty handsome square Place with good Houses; Shorter's-Court, a very neat square Place, with open Passage, the Houses well built and inhabited: St. Bartholomew's-Court, but mean; Angel-Court, very large and handsome, with good Buildings, the Habitation of Merchants and People of Repute; Copt-Hall-Court, a large and handsome open Place, with Houses fit for good Inhabitants; Warnford-Court, a good large Place, very well built and inhabited; at the Upper End of which is a handsome large House, severed from the rest by a Wall which opens into a Court Yard with a Garden, which House the Royal African Company made Use of, until their Removal to their House in Leadenhall-street, and is now made Use of by the Managers of the Linnen Manufacture; Drapers-Hall, a very large and spacious Building, having a comely Quadrangle in the Entrance to it.

NEXT Throgmorton-street, West, is Lothbury, a Street of pretty good Trade, especially for Founders, for the making of Candlesticks, Bells, and divers Utensils of Brass and Copper; the Part of this Street, which is in this Ward, goeth but to the Corner of St. Margaret's Lothbury Church, which it takes in but a small Part of, the rest is in Coleman-street Ward: The Courts in this Part are, Green's-court, but ordinary; Prince's-court, likewise but ordinary; Faulcon-court, but small, with a Free-Stone Pavement; Token-house-yard, a large Place, with well built Houses, fit for good Inhabitants, especially the Row on the East Side, which have Court Yards, with Brick Walls before them; at the Upper End of this Yard is a small Passage down Steps into Bell-alley in Coleman-street Ward; this Place took its Name from an old House there standing, which antiently was the Office for delivering out of Farthings; Whale-bone-court, large, with a Free-Stone Pavement, hath good Houses, pretty well tenanted.

COMING back we pass up St. Bartholomew-lane, which runs up to the North Side of the Royal Exchange; a Place well built and inhabited, and of a good Trade, and the rather, for being so great a Thoroughfare to and from the Exchange. In this Lane are Ship-yard, which hath a wide Entrance, is replenished with good Buildings, which are well inhabited; and the Court, which is spacious, hath a Free-stone Pavement. Nag's-head-court, is large, pretty well built and tenanted, with a Free-stone Pavement.

THE N we come to St. Bartholomew's Church, already described.

OUR of Bartholomew-lane we come into Threadneedle-street; which takes its Beginning on the West in the Poultry, and passing by St. Bartholomew-lane, and leaving Little-Broad-street on the North Side, and Finch-lane on the South, falleth into Bishopsgate-street: In this Street are several good Buildings, well inhabited, with divers noted Places, with Taverns, Coffee-Houses, and other publick Places of Entertainment. At the West End of this Street is Prince's-street, which, with a turning Passage, falls into Lothbury; this Street is very well built and inhabited; but the Part next to Lothbury is in Coleman-street Ward; in the Part in this Ward is Draper's-court, which is pretty handsome, with a Free-stone Pavement, which, with a turning Passage leads into Lothbury. Also Catharine-court, which is but small and ordinary.

BUT to go back again into Threadneedle-street, wherein are these Courts and Places; at the West End Threem-nun-court, pretty large, and indifferent good, with a Free-stone Pavement.

NEXT Eastward is St. Christopher's Church. On the North Side it hath a good Church-yard, enclosed with a Wall, with Rows of Trees about it.

AT the East End of this Church is another narrow Alley, which bears the Name of St. Christopher's-alley: At the upper End whereof, going down Steps, is a handsome open Court, with good Houses, having also the same Name.

NEXT is Castle-alley on the other Side, which falls into Cornhill: And to that Ward some Part of it belongs.

THEN is there a Passage into Cornhill on the West Side of the Exchange: Then further on the East Side, are Sweeting's-Rents and Alley, both narrow Places, with Free-Stone Pavements; which also gives Passages into Cornhill, being Places taken up by Coffee-houses, Eating-houses and Shops.

A little further Eastward is the Parish-Church of St. Bennet-Fink, a very handsome Free-Stone Building, before treated of.

THEN still further East, on the same Side, is Finch, or Fink-lane, and falls into Cornhill; this Lane is of no great Trade; the Part next Cornhill is out of this Ward. On the West Side is Spread-eagle-court, but ordinary, which with a turning Passage falls into Threadneedle-street; against Little Broad-street.

ON the other Side of Fink-lane is the French Church new built, having been one of the Churches that felt the dreadful Effects of the Fire in 1666.

Hatton-court, a handsome square Place, well built and inhabited; Crown-court, small, and but indifferent; Merchant-Tailors Hall is on the South Side of the Street.

AT the very Corner of Threadneedle-street, Eastward, is St. Martin Outwich Church, already mentioned.

THERE are to watch at the several Stands in this Ward, every Night, a Constable, the Beadle, and 30 Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward, are to serve in the several Courts in Guild-hall, in the Month of August.

THIS Broad-street Ward hath an Alderman with his Deputy, 10 Common-Council Men, 10 Constables, eight Scavengers, 13 Men for the Wardmote Inquest, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen in LONDON, at 27*l.* and accounted in the Exchequer, after the Rate of 25*l.*

THE Alderman of this Ward is Sir Gerard Conyers, Knt.

C O R N H I L L W A R D.

Cornhill Ward.

THE next Ward towards the South is that of Cornhill; so called from a Corn Market, in antient Time, kept there, and is a Part of the principal High-street, Beginning at the West End of Leadenhall, stretching down West on both Sides, by the South End of Fink's, or Finch-lane, on the Right Hand, and by the North End of Birchover's-lane, on the Left, which Lanes, to the Middle of them, are in this Ward, and so down to Stocks-market; and these are the Bounds of this Ward. The upper or East Part of this Ward, and also a Part of Lime-street Ward, hath been a Market-place, as before said, especially for Corn, and since, for all Kind of Victuals, as is partly shewn in Lime-street Ward.

YET it appeareth on Record, that in the Year 1522, the Rippiers of Rye, and other Places, sold their fresh Fish in Leadenhall Market, on Cornhill; but Foreign Butchers were not admitted to sell Flesh there till the Year 1533.

AND shortly after it was enacted, That the said Butchers, and others, should sell their Beef and Mutton by Weight, to wit, Beef not above a Half-penny the Pound; and Mutton, Half-penny Half-farthing. Which Act being devised for the great Commodity of the Realm (as it was then thought) hath since proved far otherwise. For before that Time, a fat Ox was sold at LONDON for 26*s.* 8*d.* at the most; a fat

Weather for 3*s.* 4*d.* a fat Calf, the like Price; a fat Lamb for 12*d.* Pieces of Beef weighed two Pounds and a half at the least; some, three Pounds, or better, for a Penny, on every Butcher's Stall in the City; and of those Pieces of Beef, thirteen or fourteen for 12*d.* fat Mutton for 8*d.* the Quarter; and one hundred Weight of Beef for 4*s.* 8*d.* at the dearest.

THE Number of Butchers then in the City and Suburbs, was accounted six Score, of which every one killed six Oxen a-piece weekly, which is in forty six Weeks, allowing six Weeks for Lent, 33,120 Oxen, or 720 Oxen weekly.

THE Foreign Butchers (for a long Time) stood in the High-street of Lime-street Ward, viz. Wednesdays and Saturdays, and were some Gain to the Tenants, before whose Doors they stood, and into whose Houses they set their Blocks and Stalls, on the North Side of that Street: But that Advantage being espied, they were taken into Leadenhall, there to pay for their Standing to the Chamber of LONDON.

THUS much for the Market upon Cornhill.

THE chief Ornaments in Cornhill Ward, of old Time, were these: First, at the East End thereof, in the Middle of the High-street, and at the Parting of four Ways, was a Water Standard, placed there in the Year 1582, in Manner following: A certain German, or Dutchman, born, named Peter Morris, having made an artificial cial Forcier for that Purpose, conveyed Thames Water, in Pipes of Lead, over the Steeple of St. Magnus Church, at the North End of London-Bridge, and from thence into divers Houses in Thames-street, New Fish-street, and Grass-street, up to the West Corner of Leadenhall, the highest Ground of all the City; where the Waste of the main Pipe rising into this Standard (provided at the Charges of the City) with four Spouts, running four Ways, at every Tide, according to Covenant, plentifully serving the Commodity of the Inhabitants near adjoining in their Houses, and also cleansing the Channels of the Street towards Bishopsgate, Aldgate, the Bridge, and the Stocks-market.

NEXT to this was a handsome Conduit of sweet Water, castellated in the midst of that Ward and Street. This Conduit was first built of Stone in the Year 1282, by Henry Wallis, Mayor of LONDON, to be a Prison for Night-walkers, and other suspicious Persons, and was called The Tun upon Cornhill, because the same was built somewhat in Fashion of a Tun, standing on one End.

ALSO without the West Side of this Tun was a fair Well of springing Water, curbed round with hard Stone.

To this Prison of the Tun, the Night-Watches of this City committed not only Night-Walkers, but also other Persons, as well Spiritual as Temporal, whom they suspected of Incontinency, and punished them according to the Customs of this City; but Complaint thereof being made about the Year of Christ, 1297, King Edward I. writeth to his Citizens thus:

Edward, by the Grace of God, &c. "Whereas Richard Gravesend, Bishop of LONDON, hath shewed unto us, that by the great Charter of England, the Church hath a Privilege that no Clerk shall be imprisoned by a Layman, without our Commandment, and Breach of Peace, which notwithstanding some Citizens of LONDON, upon meer Spight do enter in their Watches in Clerks Chambers, and then (like Felons) carry them to the Tun, which Henry de Wallis, some Time Mayor, built for Night-Walkers. Wherefore we Will that this our Commandment be proclaimed in a full Hustings, and that no Watch hereafter enter into any Clerks Chamber, under the Forfeit of 30*l.* Dated at Carlisle, the 18th of March, in the 25th of our Reign.

ABOUT the Year of Christ 1299, the 27th of Edward I. certain principal Citizens of LONDON, to wit, J. Romane, Richard Gloucester, Nicholas Faringdon, Adam Helingbury, J. Saly, John Dunstable, Richard Ashby, John Wade, and William Strotford, broke up this Prison, called the Tun, and took out certain Prisoners, for which they were punished, by long Imprisonment, and great Fines, as in another Place is shewn. It cost the Citizens, as some have written, more than 20000 Marks, which they were amerced in, before William de March, Treasurer of the King's Exchequer, to purchase the King's Favour, and the Confirmation of their Liberties.

ALSO in the Year 1383, the 7th of Richard II. the Citizens of LONDON taking upon them the Rights that belonged to their Bishops, first imprisoned such Women that were taken in Fornication, or Adultery, in the said Tun, and after, bringing them forth to the Sight of the World, they caused their Heads to be shaven after the Manner of Thieves, whom they named Appellators, and so to be led about the City, in Sight of all the Inhabitants, with Trumpets and Pipes sounding before them, that their Persons might be the more largely known; neither did they spare such Kind of Men a whit the more, but used them as hardly, saying, they abhorred not only the Negligence of their Prelates, but also detested their Avarice, that studied for Money, omitted the Punishment limited by Law, and permitted those that were found guilty to live favourably by their Fine. Wherefore they would themselves, they said, purge their City from such Filthiness, lest through God's Vengeance, either the Pestilence or Sword should happen to them. Last of all to be noted in the Charge of the Wardmote Inquest in every Ward of the City were these Words: If there be any Priest in Service within the Ward, which before Time hath been set in the Tun, in Cornhill, for his Dishonesty, and hath forsworn the City, all such shall be presented.

Now for the Punishment of Priests, in my Youth, saith Stow, one Note and no more; and here he telleth the Story, already mentioned in his Life, B. II. p. 330, of one John Atwood, Draper, dwelling in the Parish of St. Michael in Cornhill, directly against the Church, who having a proper Woman to his Wife, such a one as seemed the holiest amongst a Thousand, had also a lusty Chantry Priest of the said Parish-Church, repairing to his House, with which Priest the said Atwood would some Time after Supper play a Game at Tables for a Pint of Ale. It chanced on a Time, having Haste of Work, and his Game proving long, he left his Wife to play it out, and went down to his Shop, but returning to fetch a pressing Iron, he found such Play (to his Misliking) that he forced the Priest to leap out of a Window over the Penthouse into the Street, and so run to his Lodging in the Church-yard. Atwood and his Wife were soon reconciled, so that he would not suffer her to be called in Question, but the Priest being apprehended and committed, his Punishment was thus: He was on three Market-Days conveyed through the high Street and Markets of the City, with a Paper on his Head, whereon was written his Trespass. The first Day he rode in a Carry; the second on a Horse, his Face to the Horse's Tail; the third, led betwixt two; and every Day rung with Basons, and Proclamations made of his Fact at every Turning of the Streets, and also before John Atwood's Stall and the Church Door of his Service, where he lost his Chantry of 20 Nobles the Year, and was banished the City for ever.

IN the Year 1401, the said Prison-House, called the Tun, was made a Cistern for sweet Water, conveyed by Pipes of Lead from Tyburn, and was from thenceforth called the Conduit upon Cornhill. Then was the Wall planked over, and a strong Prison made of Timber called a Cage, with a Pair of Stocks set upon it, and this for Night-walkers: On the Top of which Cage was placed a Pillory, for the Punishment of Bakers, offending in the Assize of Bread; for Millers stealing of Corn at the Mill; and for Bawds and Scolds, and other Offenders.

As in the Year 1468, the 7th of Edward IV. divers Persons, being common Jurors, such as at Assizes were forsworn for Rewards or Favour of Parties, were judged to ride from Newgate to the Pillory in Cornhill, with Mitres of Paper on their Heads, there to stand, and from thence again to Newgate. And this Judgment was given by the Mayor of LONDON.

IN the Year 1509, the first of Henry VIII. Darby Smith and Simpson, Ringleaders of false Inquests, in LONDON, rode about the City with their Faces to the Horses Tails, and Papers on their Heads, and were set on the Pillory in Cornhill, and after brought again to Newgate, where they died for very Shame, saith Robert Fabian.

THE aforesaid Conduit upon Cornhill, was in the Year 1475, enlarged by Robert Drope, Draper, per, Mayor, that then dwelt in that Ward; he enlarged the Cistern of this Conduit with an East End of Stone and Lead, and castellated it in a comely Manner.

IN the Year 1546, Sir Martin Bowes, Mayor, dwelling in Lombard-street, and having his Back Gate opening into Cornhill, against the said Conduit, minded to have enlarged the Cistern thereof with a West End, as Robert Drope before had done towards the East View; and Measure of the Plat was taken for this Work; but the Pillory and Cage being removed, they found the Ground planked, and the Well aforesaid worn out of Memory; which Well they revived and restored to Use, setting the Pillory somewhat West from the Well, and so this Work ceased.

ON the North Side of this Street, from the East unto the West, were good Houses for Merchants and others, amongst which one large House was called the Weigh-House, where Merchandizes, brought from beyond Seas, were to be weighed at the King's Beam. This House had a Maister, and under him four Master Porters, with Porters under them; they had a strong Cart, and were used to have four Horses, to draw and carry the Wares from the Merchants Houses to the Beam, and back again. Sir Thomas Lovel, Knt. built this House, with a handsome Front of Tenements towards the Street. All which he gave to the Grocers of LONDON, himself being free of the City, and a Brother of that Company.

DRAPERS, from antient Times, have had their Dwellings and Shops here in Cornhill. There was one John Olyver Pannarius de Cornhill; between three and four hundred Years ago we meet with Drapers of Cornhill, who were of the Fraternity of St. Mary of Bethlem, as appears by this Record. "On Honour, &c. To the Honour of our Lord JESU CHRIST, and his sweet Mother St. Mary, our Lady of Bethlem, in which most holy Place our said Lord JESU CHRIST was chosen to be born, in his Salvation of all his People; in which Place of Bethlem the Star appeared to the Shepherds, and gave and shewed Light to the three Kings of Coloyne, who offered in the same Place of Bethlem, three Gifts, Gold, Myrrh, and Incense; one Fraternity is begun, for the same Honour in Amendment of their Lives, by the Assent of the Fryar William Titte, Fryar of the Hospital of our Lady of Bethlem, of LONDON, which is a Cell of the Place of Bethlem; and for other good People, Drapers of Cornhill, and other good Men and Women, which will be Brothers and Sisters, and maintain the Fraternity, for the Term of their Lives, and all the Points that follow; and to pay 20 s. Entrance, and every Year 2 s. and every Quarter 6 d." which Fraternity was extant 1361, and their Feast was on the Purification of our Lady.

THEN have you the said Fink's-lane, the South End of which on both Sides is in Cornhill Ward.

THEN next is the Royal-Exchange, erected in the Year 1566, after this Order, viz. certain Houses upon Cornhill, and the like upon the Back thereof, in the Ward of Broad-street, with three Alleys; the first called Swan-alley, opening into Cornhill; the second, New-alley, passing thorow out of Cornhill into Broad-street Ward, over-against St. Bartholomew-lane; the third, St. Christopher's-alley, opening in Broad-street Ward, and into St. Christopher's Parish, containing in all fourscore Houses, were first purchased by the Citizens of LONDON, for more than 3532 l. as Mr. Stow saith; but the Mayor and Aldermen, in an Answer, set forth to the Lady Gresbam's Supplication, say, it was above 4000 l. all these Houses were sold for 478 l. to such as would take them down, and carry them thence. Also, the Ground or Plat was made plain at the Charge of the City, and then Possession thereof was by certain Aldermen (in the Name of the whole Citizens) given to Sir Thomas Gresbam, Knt. Agent to Queen Elizabeth, thereupon to build a Burse, or Place for Merchants to assemble in, at his own Charges: And he, on the 7th of June, laying the first Stone of the Foundation, being Brick, accompanied with some Aldermen, every of them laid a Piece of Gold, which the Workmen took up, and forthwith followed upon the same with such Diligence, that by the Month of November, in the Year 1567, the same was covered with Slate, and shortly after finished.

IN the Year 1570, on the 23d of January, the Queen's Majesty, attended with her Nobility, came from her House at the Strand, called Somerset-house, and entered the City by Temple-bar, through Fleet-street, Cheapside, and so by the North Side of the Burse, through Threadneedle-street, to Sir Thomas Gresbam's in Bishopsgate-street, where she dined. After Dinner, her Majesty returning through Cornhill, entered the Burse on the South Side; and after she had viewed every Part thereof above Ground, especially the Pawne, which was richly furnished with all Sorts of the finest Wares in the City, she caused the same Burse, by an Herald and a Trumpet, to be proclaimed The Royal Exchange, and to be so called from thenceforth, and by no other Name.

THE Rents of the Shops here brought in considerable Gains to Sir Thomas Gresbam the Builder. And about five or six Years after, the Shops being all furnished with Wares, Gresbam constrained all the Shopkeepers that had Shops above, to take Shops below, where was an equal Number; but these were in the lowest Vaults of the Exchange. At this Time each Person paid four Marks a Year for every Shop above, and he would have as much for every Shop below, or else they should not have one above: But after they had kept Shop below a little while, what with the Damp of the Vault, the Darknes of the Place, and the Unwillingness of Customers to buy their Wares there, they were so wearied, that they agreed among themselves to give 4 l. a Year for a Shop above, that they might be freed from keeping Shop below; and so Sir Thomas should turn the Vault to what other Use he would, either for Merchants Goods, or otherwise. Which Offer he accepted; and so the Tenants only furnished the Shops above, as they remain to this Day. And the Vaults have been used now a long Time for Stowing of Merchandizes, and chiefly Pepper.

BEFORE this Exchange was thus built and compleated, there had been many Thoughts and Counsels among the Citizens and Merchants about the effecting of it; it being a thing greatly needed by those that followed Merchandize, since it could not be carried on conveniently without such a Place for Meeting and Conference together. And among the rest, Richard Clough, Sir Thomas Gresbam's Correspondent in Antwerp, in the Year 1561, wrote a Letter to him, blaming the City of LONDON for neglecting so necessary a Thing; calling the Governors of the said City, a Company that did study for nothing else than their own private Profit: "Considering, added he, what a City LONDON is; and that in so many Years the same found not the Means to make a Burse, but Merchants must be content to stand and walk in the Rain, more like Pedlars than Merchants. In this Country, said he, (meaning Antwerp) and in all other, there is no kind of People that have Occasion to meet; but they have a Place for that Purpose. Indeed, and if your Business were done (here) and that I might have

“ have the leisure to go about it, and that I would “ be a Means to Mr. Secretary to have his Fa-
 “ your therein; I would not doubt but to make
 “ so fair a Burse in LONDON, as the great “ Burse is in Antwerp, without soliciting any “ Man more than he shall be well disposed to “ give, &c.” Whence one may conjecture that Gresham had it in his Thoughts some Time before, and wanted only a Contribution from some wealthy Citizens, to assist in so expensive a Work, which he obtained at last; the Citizens having purchased the Fee Simple of the Ground and Houses, by certain Trustees, conveyed it over to him to build the said Burse upon: And in the Conveyance he was to make a Re-assurance again to them, upon certain Conditions: But he dying before this was done, some Difference happened between the Lady Gresham and the City.

Sir Thomas Gresham got great Fame and Glory by this magnificent Work, and every one took Occasion to extol him. Thus one Hugh Gough, in a Book dedicated to him soon after his Finishing this Structure, entertained him with Words to this Tenor, “ That few had flourished in “ whom all these commendable Qualities had “ reigned; as both to be beneficial to their “ Country by safe Counsel, procuring of Safe“ guard for the same, and bestowing of their Sub“ stance, to the Building of such famous and “ magnificent Works as might serve for common “ Utility unto all Men. And by the Discretion
 “ of those Men that are learned and wise, if ever
 “ any Subject hath enjoyed them, they attribute
 “ it unto you. For what is he, which is igno“ rant of the Policies and Travails that your “ Works have used and sustained, to get Safe“ guard, and requisite Furniture to the Realm; “ beside the infinite Riches given to the Build“ ing of that princely Work, commonly called
 “ The Burse: Which already declareth, and in “ LONDON is openly to be seen, what Com“ modity generally it will bring to the Citizens “ thereof. To what End should I rehearse, or “ make mention of the great Diversity which “ Men account to be betwixt it and the huge “ Tower of Babylon, or the outrageous Buildings
 “ in Aegypt, named Pyramides; or of the ex“ ceeding Difference, wherein it excelleth the “ intricate Labyrinths, and monstrous Pillars e“ rected in divers Parts of the World? Consi“ dering that it is unknown unto few, that these “ were builded for a vain Ostentation; or frivo“ lous Memorial, without any profitable Use;
 “ or of Envy, because the Founders thereof
 “ would not leave such Store of worldly Trea“ sure unto their Successors. I need not make “ Rehearsal of your Courtesy, Gentleness, Friend“ ship and Liberality towards all Men; and,
 “ which deserveth no small Commendation, to“ wards the Unknown and Strangers, &c.

AFTER the Death of Sir Thomas Gresham,
 the Founder of the Exchange, in the Year 1592, Lady Gresham, his Widow, contended with the Mayor and Trustees for the Exchange; endeavouring to get an Act of Parliament to empower her and her Heirs to make Leases from Time to Time of 21 Years, or three Lives, of the Shops in the Exchange, keeping the Fines to herself, which was supposed to be against the Last Will of Sir Thomas, and contrary to an Act of Parliament made in the 23d Year of the Queen. She also complained, that the City did not, or would not, employ the Profits of the Exchange according to Sir Thomas's Will. This she exhibited by Way of Supplication to the Counsel, against the Lord Mayor and his Brethren, the Aldermen.

To which they subjoined this Answer; “ That “ whereas the Lady Gresham had desired to have “ an Act of Parliament to authorize her and her “ Heirs from Time to Time to make Leases of 21

Years, or three Lives, of the Shops in the Royal-Exchange, keeping the Fines thereof to herself,
 “ and reserving as many Rents as is now reserved “ to remain to the City of LONDON: It is “ thereunto answered, That the same her De“ mand is utterly against both the Last Will and “ Testament of Sir Thomas Gresham, her late “ Husband, as also expressly against an Act of “ Parliament made in the 23d Year of her Ma“ jesty's Reign. Unto which Act the said Lady “ Gresham was privy, and her Counsel was heard,
 “ what they could say, before the said Act “ passed; and they say also, the same Request of “ the Lady Gresham is against all Reason and “ Equity: For that the Citizens of the City of “ LONDON, purchased in Fee Simple, in “ the Name of Livers Feoffees, the Soil where“ upon the Royal-Exchange is built, and paid
 “ for the same above 4000*l.* and in the eighth “ Year of her Majesty's Reign, conveyed the “ same to Sir Thomas Gresham, upon Condition
 “ to have Re-assurance made according to certain “ Covenants, which was not done; and albeit
 “ the Citizens might lawfully have entered for “ Breach of the said Condition, and presently “ taken the Rents and Profits of the Whole;
 “ yet they have contented themselves to accept
 “ of the same according to the Last Will, and Act
 “ of Parliament, and have suffered the said Lady “ Gresham to take the whole Profits: And yet
 “ they have been at great Charges in the defend“ ing of Titles, made to some Part of the same,
 “ and in paying of Quit-Rents, Tithes, and Wi“ dows Dowers; which they continue to this “ Day.

“ TOUCHING the Employment of the Profits of the Exchange, according to the Purport “ of the Testament of Sir Thomas Gresham, it is “ thereunto answered, that it meant, and so it “ shall be performed, that the same, after the “ Death of the Lady Gresham, shall be employed “ justly and truly, according to the Trust and “ Confidence in them reposed; which if they “ should break, there are Courts of Equity that “ can take Order for Remedy thereof. But for-“ asmuch as the said Lady Gresham is to have the “ same during her Life, and the Employments
 “ are not to be made till after her Death; there“ fore this Complaint is now made, before any “ Injury be offered. And as it is now causeless,
 “ so the Lord Mayor and Aldermen do assuredly “ persuade themselves, there shall not at any “ Time be any Cause given, of their Parts, to “ complain against them. Wherefore their most “ humble Suit is, that the said Exchange may be “ by them enjoyed, according to the said Will,
 “ and Act of Parliament.

THIS Lady Gresham died Anno 1596, the Rents of the Royal-Exchange, which she enjoyed during her Life, with all Houses, Buildings, Vaults and Profits thereof, amounted to the yearly Value of 75*l.* 5*s.* per Ann. over all Charges and Reprizes.

THIS Royal-Exchange was burnt down in the great Fire, but rose again with more Splendor than before.

Its Ground-Plat is a Parallelogram, whose Length is 203 Feet, Breadth 171 Feet, Area, 127 Perch, Altitude of the Building, 56 Feet, and of the lofty Tower and Turret, or Lanthorn (whereon is the Figure of a Grasshopper, curiously done in polished Brass) 178 Feet, Length within, 144 Feet, Breadth, 117 Feet, Area, 61 square Perches.

THIS stately Fabrick was erected at the Charge of the City and Company of Mercers, and cost 80000*l.* between them. The Model was first shewn to King Charles II., who liked it well;
 but it was debated, whether they should build after this Model or not, for Fear of launching into

THE ROYAL EXCHANGE

too great an Expence; several therefore were against it, but the Majority prevailed, having their Eye to the Honour of the City, and supposing the Shops above and below Stairs would in Time reimburse them, which it appears now (too late) it will not; and so they are left in Debt for it.

THERE are Committees for this Exchange, and that other publick Building, called Gresham College, who manage the Rents and Payments thereof. These Committees consist of the Lord Mayor, for the Time being, and two Aldermen, and a certain Number of the Company of Mercers and the like of Citizens, commonly one of each of the other 11 Companies.

THIS curious Structure is thus built and adorned: The Walls are Portland Stone, Rustick Work, very strong and neat, round the four Sides above Stairs are Shops about 200 in Number, which have been let from 20*l.* to 60*l.* each, but are now the greatest Part unoccupied. There are Rails and Ballasters on the Roof, which is covered with Lead. The aforesaid Shops are elevated on 28 Columns or Pillars with Arches, whereby are constituted Ambulatories within the Exchange, for the Merchants to keep themselves from Rain and other offensive Weather; above which Arches is an Entablament and curious Enrichments, and on the Cornice another Range of Pilasters, with Entablature (extending round the Inside) and a curious Compass Pediment, in the Middle of the Cornice of each of the four Sides. Under the Pediment on the North Side are the King's Arms; on the South, those of the City; and on the East, the Arms of Sir Thomas Gresham: And under the Pediment on the West Side, the Arms of the Company of Mercers, with their respective Enrichments. The Intercolumns of the upper Range are 24 Niches, 19 of which are filled with the Statues of the Kings and Queens Regent of England, standing erect, with their Robes and Regalia, except that of King James II. and King George II. which are habited like the Cæsars.

ON the South Side are seven Niches, of which four are filled, viz.

I. The most Easterly Figure, which has this Inscription in Gold Letters, Edwardus Primus, Rex, Anno Dom. 1272. II. Westward, Edwardus III. Rex, Anno Dom. 1326. III. Henricus V. Rex, Anno Domini, 1412. IV. Henricus VI. Rex, Anno Domini, 1422.

ON the West Side five Niches, four of which are filled, viz.

I. Under the most Southerly Figure is subscribed in Gold Letters, Edwardus IV. Rex, Anno Domini 1460. II. Northward (the Crown pendant over his Head) Edwardus V. Rex, Anno Domini, 1483. III. Henricus VII. Rex, Anno Domini, 1487. IV. Henricus VIII. Rex, Anno Domini 1508.

ON the North Side seven Niches are filled viz.

I. THE most Westerly, subscribed in Gold Characters, Edwardus VI. Rex, Anno Domini 1547. II. Maria, Regina, Anno Domini 1553. III. Elizabetha, Regina, Anno Domini 1558. IV. Is subscribed Serenissimi & Potentissimi Princip. Jacobo Primo, Mag. Brit. Fran. & Hibern. Reg. Fid. Defensori, Societas Pannitionum posuit A. D. 1684. V. ΕΙΚΩΝ ΒΑΣΙΛΙΚΗ, Serenissimi & Religiosissimi Principis Caroli Primi Angliæ, Scotiæ, Franciæ, & Hiberniæ, Regis Fidei Defensoris; Bis Martyris (in Corpore & Effigie) Impiis Rebellium Manibus, ex hoc loco deturbata & Confracta, Anno Dom. 1647. Ref-
N<sup>o</sup> 27. VOL. I.

tituta & hic demum collocata, Anno Dom. 1683. Gloria Martyrii qui te fregere Rebelles non potuerunt ipsum quem voluit Deum. VI. Carolus secundus, Rex, Anno Domini 1648. VII. Jacobus II. Rex, Anno Domini 1685.

ON the East Side five Niches, one of which is vacant, the other fill'd, viz.

I. The most Northerly contains two Statues, viz. of King William and Queen Mary, subscrib'd Gulielmus III. Rex, & Maria II. Regina, A. D. 1688, S. P. Q. Londin. Optim. Principibus, P. C. 1695. II. Anna, Regina, Dei Gratia, Mag. Britan. Franciæ, & Hiberniæ, 1701. III. George I. inscribed Georgius, D. G. Magnæ Britan. Franciæ, & Hiberniæ, Rex, Anno Dom. 1714, S. P. Q. L. IV. Southerly, the Statue of King George II. in the Habiliments of a Cæsar, wreathed upon the Head, and a Battoon or Truncheon in his Hand, little differing from that of Charles II. in the Center of the Area, only in looking Northward, inscribed Georgius II. D. G. Mag. Brit. Fra. & Hib. Rex, Anno Dom. 1727, S. P. Q. L.

BESIDES the Niches wherein the Effigies of the aforesaid Kings are placed, the four that are vacant are the Places where Edward II., Richard II., Henry IV., and Richard III. should have been; but it seems the City had no Mind to shew any Respect to the said Kings, two of whom took away their Charter, and the other two were Usurpers. One Thing more is to be added concerning the Statue of King Charles I. which after the King had lost his Head, the Zealots of those Times, to shew their Rage and Malice, threw down and broke to Pieces, causing to be writ under the Place where it stood, Exit Tyrannorum Ultimus, &c. The present Statue of that unfortunate Prince, was set up by the Grocers, to vindicate his Memory.

IN the Walls of the four Sides under the Piazza's within the Exchange are 28 several Niches round the Building, all vacant, except one near the North West Angle, where is the Effigy of Sir Thomas Gresham, and the like is also (with Fret Work Cieling) above, where the Shops are; to which you ascend by two spacious Stair-Cases, having Black Marble Steps, one on the North, the other on the South Side: And the Area under the said Piazza is a Pavement of White and Black Marble, but that of the rest with fine Pebble, in the Center whereof is erected on a Marble Pedestal, about eight Foot high, the Statue of King Charles II. in Roman Habit; he is lively represented by the ingenious Hand of Mr. Gibbon, with a Battoon in his Hand, looking Southward: On this Side of the Pedestal, under an Imperial Crown, Wings, Trumpets of Fame, Sceptre, and Sword, Palm Branches, &c. these Words are inscribed;

Carolo II. Cæsari Britannico
Patriæ Patri,
Regum Optimo, Clementissimo, Augustissimo
Generis Humani deliciis,
Utriusq; fortunæ Victori,
Pacis Europæ Arbitro,
Mariæ Domino ac Vindici;
Societatis Mercatorum Adventur. Angliæ,
Quæ per CCCC jam prope Annos
Regia benignitate floret,
Fidei Intemeratæ & Gratiitudinis æternæ
Hoc Testimonium
Venerabunda posuit,
Anno Salutis Humanæ, M, DC, LXXXIV.

ON the West Side of the Pedestal is neatly cut in Relievo, the Figure of a Cupid repoling his Right Hand on a Shield containing the Arms of 5 I France

France and England quartered, and in his Left Hand a Rose.

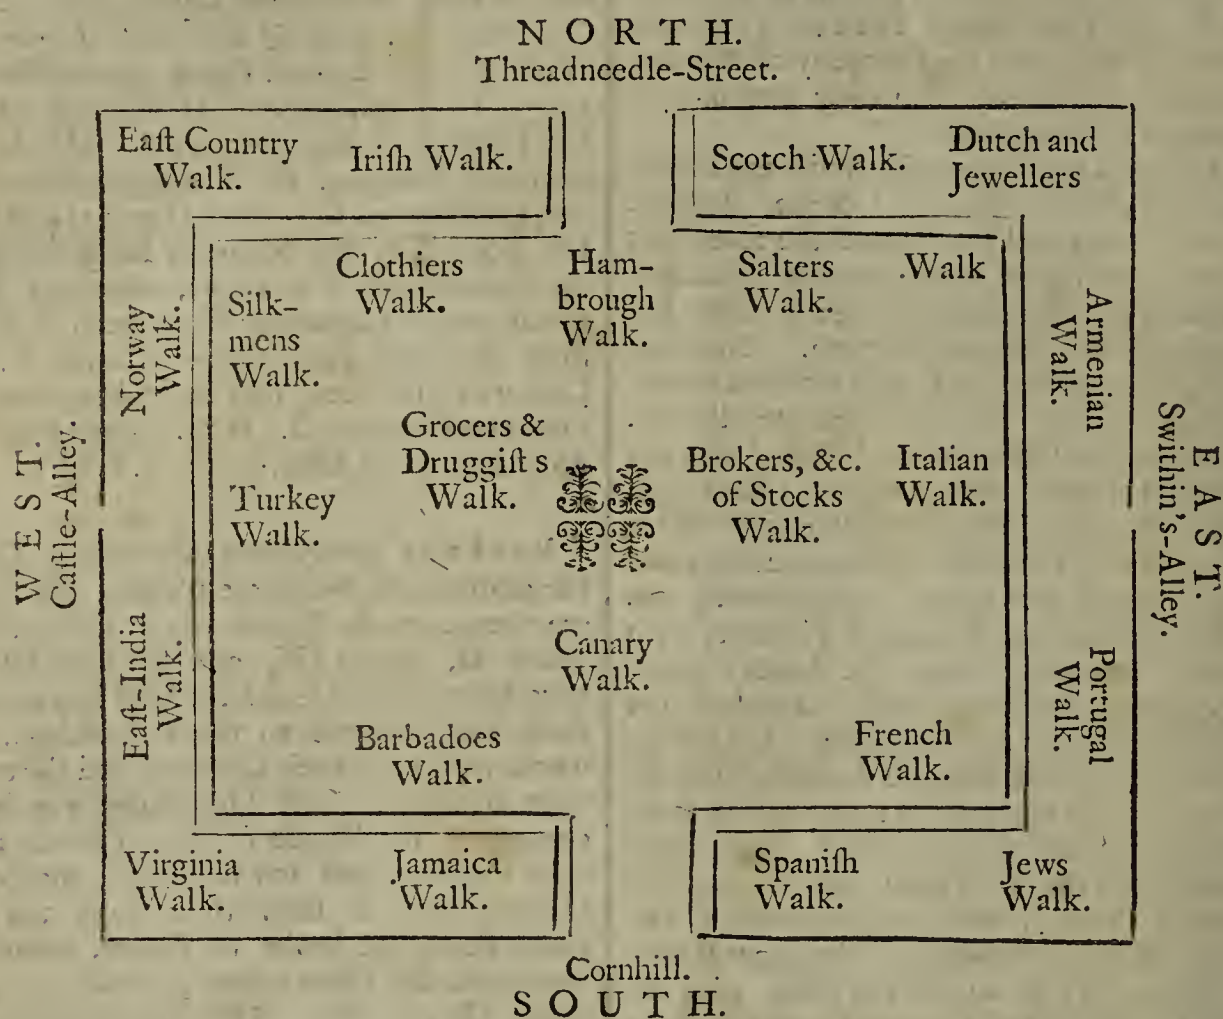

ON the North Side are the Arms of Ireland on a Shield supported by a Cupid.

ON the Base of the Pedestal in the South Side is this Inscription :

This Statue was repaired and beautified, by the Company of Merchant-Adventurers of England, Anno 1730. John Hanbury, Esq; Governor.

ON the East Side, the Arms of Scotland, with a Cupid holding a Thistle, curiously done (as the rest) all in Relievo.

AND for the more easy expediting their Affairs, the Merchants, dealing in the same Commodities, have by Custom fixed on these different Parts of the Exchange to meet one another, called their Walks, which may be seen at one View by the following Sketch or Plan.

The Outside of the Exchange described

THERE are 10 strong Pillars on the South Front, which support the South Side of the Shops on that Side of the Exchange, and as many on the North Side for the like Use there, by which there are two large Piazza's, one on the North, the other on the South Side; which South Front is adorned with Demy Columns and Pilasters of the Composite Order, and the Portico there with four spacious Columns, Entablature, and two Compaſs Pediments of the Corinthian Order, whose Intercolumns are two Niches, replenished with the Figures of King Charles I, and his Son Charles II. boldly carved, and over the Aperture on the Cornice between the Pediments are the King's Arms.

THE North Side of this Exchange is adorned with Pilasters, Entablature and a triangular Pediment of the said Composite Order, and with Columns of that Order, and an Acroteria; the lower Part of the Tower is adorned, the middle Part with more Columns, Entablament, and Acroteria, and the upper Part (or Lanthorn) with Columns of the Ionick Order, with Architrave, Frieze, Cornice, and four triangular Pediments fronting East, West, North and South, and the said two Acroteria's, as also that of the Roof of the Exchange are adorned with Dragons and Demy Virgins, the Supporters of the City Arms, and the Arms of the Mercers Company; and there are four Clock-Dials, fronting likewise the four Cardinal Points; and in this Tower are 12 tuneable Bells, which chime at nine, twelve, three, and six, daily

THE following Inscription was set upon the Exchange after it was rebuilt:

gustus e cinere resurrexit 1669, Will. Turnero, Milite Prætoro.

A Part of the Exchange above Stairs, over the Lord Mayor's Office, is let to the Royal Exchange Assurance Office, of which the following is a List of the Names of the Governors, and Directors, elected the last Year, 1732.

William Dunster, Esq; Governor.

John Phillips, Esq; Sub-Governor.

Richard Lockwood, Esq; Deputy-Governor.

Mr. John Baker,
Thomas Beckford, Esq;
Mr. John Bourne,
Mr. James Bradly,
Josiah Bullock, Esq;
Peter Burrell, Esq;
Capt. Jonathan Collet,
James Cooke, Esq;
Rob. Godschall, Esq;
Mr. George Tobias
Guiguer,
Mr. William Hunt,
Mr. Ralph Knox,

Mr. Henry March,
Capt. Tho. Panuwell,
Charles Phillipps, Esq;
Mr. Brearcliffe Stone-
hewer.
Capt. Patrick Trehee,
Mr. Thomas Tryon,
Thomas Allen, Esq;
Mr. Philip Cantillon,
Mr. Roger Drake,
Mr. John Giffard,
Alexander Hume, Esq;
Capt. George Newton.

THIS Corporation, and that of the London-Assurance, which we shall mention before we conclude the Account of this Ward, were established by Act of Parliament made in the Sixth of King George I. whereby it was enacted, that such as should be admitted as Members into the said Corporations, should be each a distinct and separate Body Politick, for 31 Years, for the Assurance of Ships, Goods, and Merchandizes at Sea, or for lending Money upon Bottomry.

AND that each of the said Corporations, in Consideration of the many Benefits which might accrue to them by their Charters, should pay into his Majesty's Exchequer, the Sum of 300,000 l. for discharging the Debts of the Civil Lists.

AND that no other Society should insure Ships, or lend Money on Bottomry for the Future, but any private Person might insure Ships, &c. as before; these Corporations however met with so little Encouragement, that the Crown was obliged to remit most Part of the Money they were to advance.

NEXT adjoining to the Royal Exchange, in Stow's Time, there remained Part of a large Stone House, called the Castle, from such a Sign at a Tavern Door; there was a Passage thro' this out of Cornhill into Threadneedle-street: The other Part of the said Stone House was taken down, for enlarging the Royal Exchange. This Stone House was said by some to have been a Church, whereof it had no Proportion; by others, a Jew's House, as tho' none but Jews had dwelt in Stone Houses: But that Opinion is without Warrant.

FOR, besides the strong Building of Stone Houses, against Invasion of Thieves in the Night, when no Watches were kept, in the First Year of Richard I. to prevent the Casualties of Fire, which often had happen'd in the City, when the Houses were built of Timber, and covered with Reed or Straw, (Henry Fitz Alwine being Mayor) it was decreed, That from thenceforth no Man should build within the City, but of Stone, until a certain Height, and to cover the same Building with Slate, or Brent Tiles.

The PARISH of St. PETER in CORNHILL.

St. Peter in Cornhill.

ST. Peter, to whom this Church, and four or five more in the Cities of LONDON and Westminster, are dedicated, was the Son of Joana, of the Province of Galilee, of the Town of Bethsaida, Brother of St. Andrew the Apostle, and the Prince of the Apostles. The particular Time of his Birth cannot be recovered, but probably he was at least ten Years older than his Master.

THE Name given him at his Circumcision was Symon, or Symeon, (to which our Saviour added the Title of Cephas, which in Syriac, the vulgar Language of the Jews at that Time) signifying a Stone or Rock, as derived into the Greek Πέτρος and by us Peter. In his Youth he was brought up to Fishing, which Trade he followed above a Year after he first saw our Saviour; but then, at our Saviour's Command, left all and followed him, and from this Time became his constant and inseparable Disciple.

HE was crucified at Rome, on the Top of the Vatican Mount near Tybur, Anno Christi 69, (says Eusebius) in the Fourth of Nero; in the Twelfth (says Epiphanius); but more probably in the Tenth, or in the Year 65, (says Dr. Cave). He desired not to be crucified the ordinary Way, but with his Head downwards, and Feet upwards, affirming, he was unworthy to suffer in the same Posture in which his Lord had suffered before him.

HIS Body was buried in the Vatican near the Triumphal Way; over his Grave a small Church was soon after erected, which being destroyed by Heliogabalus, his Body was removed to the Cœmetery, in the Appian Way, two Miles from Rome, from whence it was afterwards removed back to the Vatican, where it rested somewhat obscurely until the Reign of Constantine, who rebuilt and enlarged the Vatican, to the Honour of St. Peter, and infinitely enriched it with Gifts and Ornaments, which in every Age increased in Splendour and Riches, 'till it is become one of the Wonders of the World at this Day.

THIS our Apostle has written two Epistles, which have been received as Canonical. As to his Person, Authors give this following Account; That he was slender, and of a middle Size; his Complexion very pale, and his Hair curl'd and thick, but short; his Eyes black, but speckled with red, which, it is said, proceeded from his frequent Weeping. As to his Temper, he was naturally fervent and eager, which was common to the Galileans; his Humility and Lowliness of Mind was singular, and his Love and Zeal for his Master admirable; his Courage was undaunted, and his Diligence in his Apostleship very wonderful.

THE History of this our Apostle may be read in the four Evangelists, and in the Acts of the Apostles, and in Dr. Cave's Lives of the Apostles, where his Life is written at large.

THERE are three Festivals celebrated in Memory of St. Peter; the first called the Feast of St. Peter and St. Paul, June 29, in Memory of both their Passions, which fell on that Day together, and is by some called Bis festa Dies.

THE second is called the Feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, in Memory of St. Peter's Chains, which is annually kept on the Calends, or first Day of August. The original Institution of which hath been variously related, and the Truth of them very much suspected.

THE third Feast of St. Peter is called the Feast of St. Peter's Chair, kept on February 22, in Memory of St. Peter's See, or Chair, at Antioch, some say at Rome; which Feast having been of a long Time celebrated in the Church of Remes, being grown out of Use, and neglected, was, by Pope Paul IV. in 1556, restored.

THE Church of St. Peter is situated on the South Side, and towards the East End of Cornhill. Its Foundation is said to be of great Antiquity, if an Inscription on a South Pillar may be credited, which had the Author expected, he would have done well to have subscribed his Name, or told us what Authors of Note he extracted the Relation from; for indeed the Truth thereof may be liable to be called in Question, since in the same Inscription it is so positively affirmed, (though so uncertain, that many good Authors differ in their Opinions about it) i. e. That Brute reigned in England 1245 Years before Lucius, &c. But waving that, the Inscription sets forth, that this Church was founded an Archbishop's See by King Lucius, A. D. 179, where it continued the Metropolitan of this Kingdom 400 Years, when it was removed to Canterbury, by Austin the Monk, &c. But Mr. Stow (from Joceline) says, That Thean, Archbishop of LONDON, with the Assistance of Ciran, Chief Butler to King Lucius, built this Church of St. Peter, and that Elevanus, Archbishop of LONDON, built the Library formerly thereto belonging; and from Harrison's Description of Britain; that it is more probable, that the Metropolitan Church, founded by King Lucius, was St. Peter's Westminster, there appearing no such Name as Cornhill before the Norman Conquest; the Similitude of Sound between the Word Thorney, where St. Peter's Westminster stood, and Cornhill, might afterwards occasion the Mistake; but upon the whole it is evident, both from the Inscription and Joceline, that (whether Lucius or Thean were the Founders) this Church was founded in King Lucius's Reign above 1570 Years ago, tho' whether the Archbishop's See was here or at Westminster, or at the Place now St. Paul's (where the first Bishop's See was) is somewhat uncertain. The Steeple was repaired in 1629, and the whole Church repaired and beautified Anno 1633, at the Parish Charge, amounting to about 1000 l. but but in the unfortunate Year 1666, the Flames demolishing this Church, it was rebuilt Anno 1680, and finished 1681.

THIS Church is all built of Stone, except Part of the South Side, and the Tower, which is Brick; the rest of the Steeple, viz. the Dome and Spire, are Timber covered with Lead, and supported with square Pillars, adorned with Pilasters of the Corinthian Order; the Area of the Chancel is one Step higher than that of the rest of the Church, all which is paved with Stone; and there are three Isles.

As to the Finishing and Ornament, besides the Pilasters aforesaid, it is wainscotted round with Oak, ten Feet high, with which Kind of Timber the Chancel is separated from the Church, by a Screen of several small fluted Pillars and Arches, and four larger Pilasters, and single Cornice of the Corinthian Order, on which, over each of the said Isles is a Pediment, and a handsome Aperture out of the Middle Isle into the Chancel, adorned with the King's Arms between (tho' at a small Distance from) the Lion and Unicorn, and also a Cherub finely carved.

THE Altar-piece is also of Oak, having the Ornament of Pilasters of the Ionick Order; the Intercolumns are the Decalogue between the Pater Noster and the Creed, done in Gold Letters on Black, under a Glory between two Cherubims; the Foot-pace is Marble, inclosed with Rail and Ballaster; and the Outside of this End of the Church is also adorned with Pilasters, Entablature, and Pediment of the said Ionick Order, also Vases, Cartouches, &c.

At the West End of the Church is a neat Gallery, supported with Columns of the Tuscan Order; and the Inside of the Roof is divided into Pannels and Arches of Fret-work.

HERE are also four ornamental Wainscot Door-cases of the Corinthian Order, and Enrichments of Cherubims, Flowers, Cartouches, &c. and a pretty Marble Font; both Bason, Foot-pace, and Rails of the same.

DIMENSIONS of this Church are, Length 80 Feet, Breadth 47, Altitude 40, and that of the Steeple (wherein is only one Bell) is about 140 Feet.

MONUMENTS of the Dead in this Church, are as follow:

Orate pro Anima Johannis Beauchamp de la Holt, Militis. Qui obiit 1407. Cujus Anima propitiatur Deus, Amen. The Coat was a Fesse between six Billets, a Helmet for a Crest.

Hic jacet Johannes Sparke, Civis & Cheesman Lond. Qui ob. 29 Sept. 1425. Et Isabel Uxor ejus. Quæ ob. 24 Jan. 1428.

IN the South Isle of the Choir is an antient Monument for Sir William Bowyer, with this Inscription:

In the Year of JESUS CHRIST's Incarnation,

One Thousand Five Hundred Forty and Four,

The 22d Day of April, by just Computation,

In this Place was buried with great Honour,

Which proved a Man meet to be a Governor

For the Commonwealth of this high and famous City,

Called Sir William Bowyer, Lord of the Mayoralty,

Which departed not with finding great Calamity;

And pray we to GOD, to grant his Soul Mercy.

O LONDON! if you look to the Lacedemonies,

There to find Lycurgus, that noble and kind King;

Or if you seek for Ciceroes, Men most of Prize,

Or if thou apply thee to have all the whole desiring

Of Amphyon, Orpheus, or of Mæcenus demeaning,

Seek no further to find, for here he is buried,

Which had all their Properties for London's good ordering,

Be we then of his honourable Degree, well conceiving,

For his Acts for ever be register'd in London's Meaning.

UNDER

UNDER the Communion Table are two fair plated Stones with these Inscriptions:

Here lieth Sir Henry Huberthorne, some Time Lord Mayor and Merchant-Taylor of this City of LONDON, and Dame Elizabeth his Wife, &c. and the said Dame Elizabeth left this transitory Life Anno Dom. 1551.

Here under lieth buried
William Messe of this City, Whilst he lived, free
 of the Grocers Company;
 And Julian his Wife.
 To whom 24 Years married was he,
 By whom God sent him five Sons and Daughters three;
 And to God's Will his Heart was always bent,
 So did his Death
 shew a Life well spent.
 Here this is written that others may remember
 His godly Departure, from this World the 26th of September.

IN the same Vault with Sir William Bowyer's Body is Mr. Alderman Walthal's also laid, but no Monument for him, besides his Funeral Banners.

IN a Vault in the Chancel, upon the 18th Day of December, in the Year of our Lord 1625, was buried, the Body of Thomas Westrow, Alderman and Sheriff of LONDON, the Son of Timothy Westrow, some Time Citizen and Grocer in this Parish.

His Hatchments, and such Ensigns as were belonging to his Name and Degree, hanging over him.

NEAR to this in the Chancel, about a fair Marble Stone is this Inscription:

Here lieth buried the Body of Judith Fowler, with her new-born Son, deceased the 22d of November, Anno Dom. 1613, Stilo Angliæ.

Upon it thus:

She was born in Antwerp, the Daughter of John Schine, Merchant (Stranger) of Middleborough, and Wife of Jasper Fowler, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON. She died in Childbed in the Faith and Love of God: She left behind her living, one only Son, and one Daughter, Richard and Cornelia.

OF late, since the Rebuilding of this Church of St. Peter's, are Monuments for the following Persons buried here.

In the CHANCEL.

Colinge Bendy, Son of Nic. Bendy, of this Parish, Oct. 6, 1687; and Sarah his Wife, Daughter of Jeremiah Green, Esq; Mar. 12, 1691.

IN the Body of the Church, Middle Isle, Will. Hinton, Citizen and Ironmonger, of LONDON, died 1689, and Elizabeth Chewning, his first Wife, and Rebecca Leman his second Wife.

Robert Fowler, 1691.

AGAINST the West Wall an Inscription for James Buck, S. T. B. aged 89, died 1685.

IN the lower End of the Church, a Stone for eight Sons and five Daughters of Robert and Elizabeth Rowland, An. 1682.

VOL. I.

ROUND the Place where the Font stands are White Marble Ballasters. On which is thus writ:

HERE lies the Bodies of Margaret and Mary, Wives of Samuel Purchas, by whom he had eight Sons and seven Daughters. All which, except two Daughters lie here interred, who shall rise again and live for ever, An. Dom. CLXXXL. This Purchas gave this Font.

Mary Weston, 1694.

UPON a Grave-Stone in the Middle of the Chancel an Inscription, importing to lie there the Body of Martha, the Daughter of Francis Breerewood, Esq; by his first Wife, Martha Graves. She was married to Roger Burroughs, Citizen of LONDON, and deceased, without Issue, Jan. 24, 1698, aged 25 Years.

Here also resteth the Body of the abovenamed Francis Breerewood, Esq; who was the 4th Son of Sir Robert Breerewood, of Cheshire, and divers Years an Inhabitant of this Parish; he departed this Life the 25th of March 1707, in the 66th Year of his Age.

This Gentleman had been a Linen-Draper in Cornhill; and afterwards Treasurer of Christ's Hospital.

The CHARITIES of the Parish of St. Peter in Cornhill.

Launcelot Thompson, of LONDON, Draper, was buried in this Parish-Church, and gave 20 l. for the yearly preaching of five Sermons, until the Money should be fully run out, which Sermons were all preached by Dr. Ashbold, Parson there. Also he gave 100 l. to the Drapers Company, and they to allow 5 l. yearly, for ever, for Bread and Coals for the Poor of the said Parish.

Boniface Tatam, of LONDON, Vintner, buried in the said Parish the 3d of February, 1606, gave 40 s. yearly, to the Parson for preaching four Sermons every Year, so long as the Lease of the Mermaid in Cornhill, (a Tavern so called) shall endure. He gave also to the Poor of the Parish 13 Penny Loaves every Sunday; during the afore-said Lease.

William Walthall, Alderman of LONDON, about the Year 1608, gave 200 l. to be lent to 10 young Shopkeepers, 20 l. to each, with good Security, for four Years, at 13 s. 4 d. or a Mark; for each 20 l. per Ann. all which Marks to be distributed among the Poor in Bread, and Charcoal every Year.

Robert Warden, Anno 1609, gave 3 l. 12 s. of which 52 s. to the Poor in Bread, 12 d. every Sunday; and the other 20 s. to the Parson for preaching two Sermons, on Asb-Wednesday, and the 10th of March, every Year: Paid by the Company of Poulterers.

Thomas Symonds, 1625, gave a House (now two Houses) and a Garden in Coleman-street, valued at 6 l. per Ann. to the Poor of the Parish.

Thomas Hind, 1635, gave 6 l. per Ann. out of the Rent of the Black Bull in Leadenhall-street; whereof 5 l. to the Poor, and 20 s. to the Minister, for preaching a Sermon every Eve of Palm-Sunday.

Luce Edge, about 1630, gave 21 l. 10 s. per Ann. 20 l. to the Lecturer; 20 s. to the Poor, 6 s. 8 d. to the Clerk, and 3 s. 4 d. to the Sexton.

William Dwight, 1637, gave 1 l. 10 s. among the Poor, every Year in Sea-Coal, charged upon a House in Leadenhall-street.

Thomas Hawks, of Lincoln's-Inn, 1657, gave 50 l. to be put to Interest, or otherwise, as the Church.

5 K

Church-wardens shall think fit, for the Use of the Poor for ever : Which was not received till 1681, but then, with some Trouble, recovered and received. The Vestry ordered 50 s. per Ann. for ever, to be paid to the Poor, out of the Rents of a certain Messuage belonging to the Parish, every St. Thomas's Day, as the Gift of the said Thomas Hawks.

Sir Benjamin Thorowgood, Knight and Alderman 1682, built three Shops at the West End of the Church, and settled them upon the Parish, for the Maintenance of an Organ and an Organist, to Play in Time of Divine Service, on Sundays and Holidays.

ONE William Elliot, of this Parish, left large Gifts to the Rector, &c. for a Chantry to celebrate his Anniversary, and for procuring divers Ceremonies in this Church, as appeareth by the following :

An EXTRACT of the WILL of William, the Son of Henry Elliot, called William of Kingston, Citizen and Fishmonger of LONDON, in the Year 1375, 49 Edw. III.

PERCEIVING Death to be approaching on me, I Bequeath my Soul to Almighty God, and the blessed Virgin Mary his Mother, and to all Saints ; and my Body to be buried before the Altar of the Holy Trinity, in the Church of St. Peter upon Cornhill, LONDON, where my Tomb is now made.

Imprimis, I Bequeath unto Sir John Mansyn, Parson of the said Church, and to his Successors, Parsons of the said Church, and to four of the honestest and trustiest Men, Parishioners of the said Parish, all my Land, Tenements, &c. with all and singular their Appurtenances, situate in the Parish of St. Peter upon Cornhill, and St. Magnus the Martyr, of Brug-street, LONDON, to find two fit Chaplains, perpetually to celebrate Divine Rites at the Altar aforesaid, for my Soul, and the Souls of Sarah and Alynor my Wives, and the Souls of my Father and Mother, and all to whom I am deservedly bound ; and of all the Faithful deceased ; and to find two Torches, as often as shall be needful, to serve for the lifting of the Body of CHRIST every Day at the Mass of the two said Chaplains. To find one Lamp perpetually burning every Day and Night before the High Cross in the Church of St. Peter aforesaid ; and to pay yearly to the Parish-Clerk 2 s. Sterling, to keep and light the said Lamp, as often when it shall be needful. And also to pay yearly to the Fabrick of the Body of the said Church of St. Peter 10 s. 4 d. Sterling. And I Will, that the said Parson of the Church of St. Peter, and his Successors, shall have yearly to themselves of the Tenements aforesaid 10 s. and no more, per Ann. in Peril of their Souls in the Day of Judgment ; to say every Year Placebo and Dirige, and one solemn Mass in the Day of my Anniversary : And also to Pay unto three other Chaplains, on the said Day to pray for my Soul, and the Souls aforesaid ; that is to say, to every of them 4 d. Sterling.

OF which said Tenements, three do lie in the Street called Gracechurch-street ; whereof one is situated betwixt the Tenement of Gunner Horn, and the Tenement late of Sir John Nevyl, Knight, on the North Part of the Tenement ; on William Glover's on the South Part ; and extendeth itself from the King's-street towards the West, unto the Tenement of John Nevyl towards the East, &c.

Item, I Bequeath unto the said John Mansyn, and to his Successors, the Reversion of all the Tenements which were of William Bishop, in the same Parish, of the Shops, with the Appurtenances, &c. and eight Shops, &c. and four, &c. with Gardens, and with all their Appurtenances, to the Sustentation of the said two Chaplains, and to find Torches, and a Lamp ; and also to pay all other Things, as aforesaid and underwritten, to be done and found for ever.

Item, I Will that the said two Chaplains, which in Form aforesaid shall be celebrated, shall have yearly, and receive every of them 7 l.

Item, I Bequeath and Will, that all Rents and Profits whatsoever, coming of my Tenements aforesaid, and of the Reversion of the Tenements aforesaid, of the Shops and Gardens, when it shall happen, shall be collected and received by the four Trusty Men, Parishioners, and their Successors, Parishioners of the said Church ; so as they pay and perform the said Legacies, and my Will in this my Testament contained.

Item, I Bequeath to the four said Trusty Men, which for the Time shall be Collectors and Receivers of the Rents and Profits whatsoever, coming of the Tenements, &c. and of the Reversions, &c. shall be chosen immediately after my Decease, by the said Parson of the Church, and by eight of the better Sort of the Parishioners, and of my Executors. And that those Men so chosen, at the End of every Year, between the Feasts of St. Michael and All-Saints, shall render a faithful Account of the Receipts and Expences, in the Presence of the Parson, &c. and of my Executors, as long as they shall be living. And that at the same Time, every Year, one of the said four Collectors shall be chosen by the said Collectors, to be principal Labourer for the Year ensuing ; and so from Year to Year for ever. And that the principal Labourer shall have to himself, for his Labour about the Reparation of the Tenements, and in fulfilling my said Will, and for his Pains taken in that Year, 6 s. 8 d. And that every of the said three Collectors shall have 3 s. 4 d.

Item, I Will and Bequeath, that the like Assembly and Election, as is aforesaid, for the said four Collectors, by the said Parson and Parishioners, and their Successors, shall be made, as often and when it shall be needful, for ever ; to have and to hold always the aforesaid Lands and Tenements, together with the Reversion of the Land and Tenements, some Time of William Bishops, and with all and singular their Appurtenances, unto the said Sir John Mansyn, and his Successors, Parsons of the said Church : And to the four Collectors, and their Successors, which in Form aforesaid shall be, to fulfil all my Bequests of the same Lands and Tenements, in this my Will and Testament contained, of the chief Lord of the Fees thereof by the Services, which to the said Land and Tenements appertain for ever.

Item, I Bequeath 20 l. of Silver, to the Sustentation and Reparation of my Tenements aforesaid, when Need shall be. Which said Money I do Will shall remain in a Box in the Custody of the four Collectors, until my said Tenements shall happen to be repaired and amended. And in the mean Time the poor Parishioners shall have the Use of the said Money, by the Delivery of the four Collectors, upon sufficient Pledge, or other sufficient Security, &c.

AND if it shall happen my Tenements aforesaid, with the Appurtenance to be let to Farm for any Sum of Money, over and besides my Legacies, and the necessary Reparations of the said Tenements ; then I Will and Bequeath the said Sum of Money shall be put into the said Box, under the Custody of the four Collectors, to the Sustentation of my said Tenements, and to that Easement of the said Poor of the Parish in manner aforesaid.

Item, I Will that within one Month after my Decease, the said two Chaplains shall be chosen by by the Parson and Collectors, and to the Lord Bishop of LONDON, or the Official for the Time being, shall be presented, and by them into the said Chantry inducted, and Canonically instituted in Form of Law: And so as often, and when it shall be needful. And if it shall happen that the said Chaplains, or either of them, do behave themselves disorderly, and not to be of good Conversation, or of honest Life, or to be absent from the said Church of St. Peter on Sundays or Holidays at the Canonical Hours, unless they shall be hindered by some reasonable Cause; I Bequeath and Will, that after such Default, such Delinquent, unless he speedily reform himself, upon the Premunition of the said Parson and Collectors, shall be displaced; and another honest Chaplain shall be chosen in his Place.

Item, I Will and Bequeath, that the Keepers of London-bridge, for the Time being, and their Successors, yearly, viz. between the Feast of St. Michael and All Saints, shall oversee my said Tenements, and also for the Chantry of the Chaplains, as aforesaid, be duly maintained: And if all other Charges in this my Will bequeathed, be well and faithfully performed; and so successively from Year to Year, they shall oversee the said four Parishioners, Collectors of the said Rents: And if they shall find any Defaults they shall cause them to be amended by the Collectors: And that every of the Keepers of the said Bridge shall take for his Labour for overseeing the said Defaults, 3 s. 4 d. Sterling, yearly: And if they shall not come, yearly, for that Year wherein they shall fail, he or they, which so shall not come, shall have nothing saving unto him, notwithstanding his Right to take his Wages aforesaid, if he shall come, and perform this Charge.

AND if it shall happen, that the said two Chaplains, or either of them for one Year, at any Time after my Decease, to cease from the Chantry, that my Tenements aforesaid, with the Reversions, may not be holden, and kept back, because the two Chaplains cannot be sustained, and the Charges aforesaid paid and sustained, then I Bequeath and Will, that all my Lands and Tenements aforesaid (when it shall happen) and with all and singular their Appurtenances, shall wholly remain unto the Mayor and Commonalty, and to their Successors for the Time being, to find and sustain the said two Chaplains to celebrate Divine Rites in Form above-written, in the Chapel upon London-bridge, and for the Use and Sustentation of the said Bridge for ever.

The Table in St. Peter's
Church.

The following is a COPY of what is written in the Table before-mentioned, hanging up on a Pillar in this Church:

“ BE it knowne unto all Men, that the Yeeres
“ of our Lord God, a C, lxxix, Lucius, the first “ Christian King of this Land, then called Bry- “ taine, founded the first Church in LONDON,
“ that is to say, the Church of St. Peter upon “ Cornehill: And he founded there an Arch“ bishop's See, and made that Church the Me-

“ St. Francis standeth now.

THERE was formerly a very handsome Library belonging to this Parish-Church, which was first built of Stone, and afterwards repaired with Brick by the Executors of Sir John Crosby, Alderman: Mr. Stow says, 50 Years before he wrote his Survey, it had been well furnished with Books, which were viewed and commended by John Leyland; but in his Time were all gone, and the Place occupied by a Schoolmaster.

As for the Parsonage House and Glebe, the former was burnt down in the great Fire, and the Ground was let out by Dr. Hodges, then Rector to Samuel Purchase, Anno 1670, for 40 Years, at the Rent of 15 l. per Annum. It lies at the West End of the Church and Church-yard in St. Peter's-alley, and contains in Length about 70 Feet.

THE Rent of 15 l. per Annum, reserved upon this Lease for the Parsonage House Ground, was parted withal by the then Incumbent, Dr. Beveridge, upon Condition that the Parish would make it up so much as to purchase the Lease of the House where he then dwelt in Corbet-court, was assigned over by Purchase, in whose Hands it was; to Mr. Hinton and others, for the Parson of St. Peter's Cornehill, and Successors, by a Deed, dated Feb. 8, 1675, for the Term of 40 Years, commencing 1674, at a Pepper-corn per Ann.

THERE belonged to this Parsonage three Glebe Houses, joining to the North End of the Church, fronting Cornehill. The Ground of which Houses was leased by Dr. Hodges to the said Purchase for 56 Years, Anno 1668, at the old Rent of 50 l. per Annum, according to a Decree of the Judges at Clifford's-Inn.

THIS Living is a Rectory, in the Gift of the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, the Value 110 l. per Annum, besides Fees, and rated in the King's Books at 39 l. 5 s. 9 d. ob.

THE Rector is the Right Rev. Dr. Waugh, Lord Bishop of Carlisle, and the Lecturer, Mr. Stephen Unwin.

PRAYERS are daily at 11 and four; here is an Organ, and one Bell.

THE Vestry is Select, consisting of about 30, who are chose into the Vestry, and the Parish Officers are chosen out of the Vestry, 13 have Power to proceed to do Business, and a Majority of seven may carry any Vote.

The PARISH of
St. MICHAEL in CORNHILL.

St. Michael in Cornhill.

THIS Church is so called, being dedicated, as six more in this City are, to St. Michael the Archangel. The Word Michael signifies, Who is like God.

St. Michael the Archangel is mentioned in divers Places in the Holy Scripture, as Dan. x. 13, where he is stiled one of the Chief Princes, Dan. xii. 1. he is named the Great Prince. Jude, ver. 9. he contended with the Devil about the Body of Moses. And Rev. xii. 17. Michael and his Angels fought against the Dragon.

HE was the Protector of the Jews, as we read in the forecited Place in Dan. xii. 1. where it is said, At that Time shall Michael stand up, the Great Prince, who standeth for the Children of thy People. And it is believed that he represented God's Majesty in the Burning Bush, and in Mount Sinai. He has been more particularly consider'd as the Church's Protector, by the Roman Catholics, who relate many Apparitions of his, and chiefly one in Apuleia, in 403, in the Popedom of Gelasius I, whereof the Anniversary is kept the eighth of May. Pope Boniface III, built a Church at Rome, in his Honour, on the Top of Adrian's Sepulchre, therefore called Mount St. Angelo: He is also Protector of France in particular, where there is a famous Monastery, named Mount St. Michael, which was built on a Rock in the Middle of the Sea, after such an Apparition to St. Aubert, Bishop of Auranges in Normandy.

THE Festival of St. Michael, is yearly celebrated on the 29th of September.

THE Church of which we are to speak, situated on the South Side of Cornhill, is of an antient Foundation; for Alnothus, the Priest, gave it to the Abbot of Covesham, or rather Evesham, as Mr. Strype says, for there was no such Abbey as Covesham in England. Reynold, Abbot, and the Convent there, granted the same to Sparling, the Priest, to all Purposes, as he and his Predecessors before had held it; to the same Sparling they also granted all their Lands which they there had, except certain Lands, which Orgar le Prowde held of them, and paid 2 s. yearly. For this Grant Sparling was to pay one Mark Rent, yearly, to the said Abbot of Covesham, or Evesham, and find him his Lodging, Salt, Water, and Fire, when he came to LONDON: This was granted 1133, about the 34th of Henry I.

THE Steeple or Bell-Tower of the old Church here was begun to be built in the Year 1421, and had a good Ring of six Bells in it, one of which was called Rus, being the Gift of William Rus, or Rous, Alderman and Goldsmith, about the Year 1430; this Bell was to be rung nightly at Eight of the Clock, and otherwise for Knells, and in Peals, and was rung by one Man 100 Years and upwards, after whom it was overhalled by four or five at once, and thrice broken. The new Casting of it cost the Parish 100 Marks.

SPEAKING of this Steeple, Mr. Stow tells this unaccountable Story, which take in his own Words. "Upon St. James's Night, certain "Men in the Loft, next under the Bells, ringing of a Peal, a Tempest of Lightning and "Thunder did arise, and an ugly shapen Sight
"appeared to them, coming in at the South
"Window, and lighted on the North; for Fear
"whereof they all fell down, and lay as dead
"for the Time, letting the Bells ring and cease
"of their own Accord. When the Ringers came "to themselves, they found certain Stones of "the North Window to be raised and scrat, as "if they had been so much Butter printed with

"a Lyon's Claw: The same Stones were fastened
"there again, and so remain 'till this Day. I "have seen them oft, and put a Feather or small "Stick into the Holes where the Claws had "entered three or four Inches deep.

"At the same Time certain main Timber "Posts at Queen Hith were scrat and cleft from "Top to Bottom, and the Pulpit Cross in Paul's "Church-yard was likewise scrat, cleft, and "overturned. One of the Ringers lived in my "Youth, whom I have often heard to verifie the "same.

IN the Years 1618, 1619, and 1620, a Repair was made of this Church, which cost 644 l. and in Anno 1633 more, 300 l. at the Charge of the Parish; and being in the Year 1666 demolished by the great Fire; except the Tower, it was rebuilt and finished in 1672; it was again repaired in 1701; and lastly in the Year 1723, was repaired, beautified, and the Tower rebuilt.

THE Nature and Order of the Building is as follows: The Walls are mostly Stone, the Roof is cambered, having Groins and Imposts, covered with Lead, and supported with Columns of the Tuscan Order; and the Floor of the Church is four Steps above that of the Entrance, or nine above the Street. It is paved with Stone, and the Chancel most Part with Marble. It has three Isles; and on the South Side are six light Windows.

It is (tho' not large) a beautiful Church; the South Windows are adorned with Columns, Entablature, and Arches, which are enrich'd (on the Key-pieces) with Shields. The Pews are Oak, with which the Church is also wainscotted eight Feet high. The Pulpit is adorned with a Cornice, and has Enrichments of Cherubims, and a Lamp.

THE Altar-piece with two Columns, Entablature, and Pediment of the Corinthian Order, the Columns painted Blue and Gold, and the rest Olive Colour. The Inter-columns are the two Tables of the Decalogue between the Portraits of Moses and Aaron, finely painted under a Seraphim, between two Cherubims, and as many Festoons; and the Cornice and Pediment are adorned with Cantalivers, all which Enrichments are gilt with Gold. In the Window above this, are the King's-Arms painted on the Glass, which Aperture is adorned with a Scarlet Festoon Curtain, painted as edged with Gold Fringe. On the North and South Sides of the Altar is a spacious Piedroit, and another on the South Side, painted, and a Chalice Paten, Incense Pot, Aaron's budded Rod, and the Pot of Manna, &c. painted; and on the Roof over the Table, is a Glory appearing in Clouds, painted and gilt, some of whose Rays are about eight Feet in Length. At the East End of the South Isle are painted the Drapers Arms on the Glass of a Window there. At the West End of the Church is a handsome Wainscot Door-Case, adorn'd with two Columns and their Entablament, of the Corinthian Order, enriched with Festoons. This was done in the Year 1688, and over that an Organ Gallery.

THE Dimensions of the Church are 87 Feet, Breadth 60, Altitude 35; and that of the Tower, to the Top of the small ones at the four Angles, is about 130 Feet. It is built of old square Stone and Boulder, wherein were, before the Fire, ten, and now a fine Ring of twelve Bells.

TOWARDS the Charge of Re-building and Beautifying this Church, these were some of the Benefactors, whose Names hang up in a Table in the Church.

James Clitherow

Mary Scottow

William Rus, Alderman of LONDON, Goldsmith, and Sheriff 1429, was a special Benefactor to this Church; he was buried in the Chapel of St. Mary, and gave by his Will, dated June 5, 1433, to find all the Chaplains of the said Church Bread, called Synging Brede.

By a Codicil to his Will, dated July 5, 1433, he gave out of the Debt due to him by the Duke of Orleans, in Case it be received, 100 l. to be laid out, ad faciend. unum Dorsum Altaris, in the Chancel of the Church of St. Michael in Cornhill, after the Form of the Altar in Christ Church, Canterbury; and 40 l. out of the same Debt to be laid out about the Ornaments of the Altar in St. Mary's Chapel in the said Church of St. Michael. Also 20 l. more thence, to be laid out about the Building of the new Steeple of the said Church. Also he willed, That in case the Debt that was due to him, and Isabel his Wife, by the Executors of Richard Whittington were recovered, it be laid out about the Fabrick of the Chapel of the blessed Mary in the said Church.

He gave also by his said Will, Deo & Ecclesie St. Michaelis aforesaid, and to the Rector, Guardians and Keepers of the Work and Goods of the said Church for the Time being, all his Lands and Tenements, with their Appurtenances, which he had jointly with Isabel his Wife, for her Life, and his Heirs and Assigns, in the Parish of St. Michael; to have to them, the Rector and Guardians; for ever, on Condition that they find one Chaplain to celebrate Divine Offices in the Chapel of St. Mary aforesaid, in the said Church; to pray for his Soul, and his Wife Isabel's; and for the Souls of Humphrey Duke of Gloucester, Gerard Afflete, Knight, Robert Rus his Father, and Catharine his Mother, and John Whistwell his Master: And that the Chaplain receive for his Salary, out of the Profits of the said Lands, &c. eleven Marks Sterling at the four Terms of the Year.

AND willed further, That with 40 s. going out of the said Lands and Tenements yearly for ever, be bought Coals by the Rector and Keepers of the said Church: And that they distribute the said Coals among the Poor in Cornhill Ward.

THERE was an Augmentation made of the Stipend of the said Chaplain by the Will of John Lufkin, Citizen and Pasteler of LONDON, bearing Date 1453.

William Comerton, Symon Smith, Walter Belegbam were buried there, and founded Chantryes there.

Alice, some Time Wife of John Langborn, Citizen and Brazier of LONDON, willed by her Will, dated February 4, 1420, 6 Henry V, to be buried in this Church, under a Marble Stone, where the Body of her late Husband lay buried. Item, Lego Fabricæ ejusdem Ecclesiæ pro Sepultura mea ibm. habend. In Codicillo dat. 12 March 1420. Imprimis, Lego, in auxilium ad faciend. & construend. de novo Campanile Ecclesiæ, S. Mich. super Cornhill. Lond. 40 l. Sterl.

Peter Heynewic, Archdeacon of Colchester, buried in St. Michael Cornhill, LONDON. John Smal, Archdeacon of LONDON, Legatarius, Ann. 1425.

Thomas Lyffyn, Citizen and Draper, by Will 1482, gives to the Works of the Parish-Church of Thoydon Garnon in Essex, to the Intent the Parishioners pray for the Souls of William Storneft, and Margaret his Wife, and his Daughter, the Soul of Clement Lyffyn, and his Soul, five Marks: Which shall be taken of his Wode, called Colewode.

Item, He gives to the Masters of the Fraternity of our Lady St. Anne, founded in the Parish-Church of St. Michael Cornhill, for the Time, to the Use of the said Fraternity, his Tenement, Brewhouse, with the Appurtenances, called The Half-Moon, with the Garden, lying in the Parish of St. Botolph Bishopsgate, LONDON, for ever: That they keep the 8th of October an Obit, or Anniverfary, for the Soul of Clement Lyffyn, and Mary his Wife, and of him the said Thomas Lyffyn.

Elizabeth Smyth, by her Will, dated Feb. 9, 1540-1, ordered to be buried in St. Michael Cornhill, if she died in LONDON, and if she died in Essex, then in the Church of Thoydon Garnon, nigh the Place where Robert Fabian, some Time her Husband, lay buried: Gives to John Fabian, Son of Robert Fabian her Son, late of LONDON, Grocer, deceased, 40 l. &c. and all her Household Stuff, that shall be in her Mansion House, called Halsted in Thoydon Garnon: Gives to her Son Anthony Fabian her said Manor House called Halsted, and forty Acres of arable Ground and Meadow, lying in Thoydon Garnon, and Thoydon Mount.

Robert Drope, Mayor 1474, buried 1485, on the North Side the Choir, under a fair Tomb of grey Marble. He gave to poor Maids Marriages of that Parish 20 l. To the Poor of that Ward 10 l. Shirts and Smocks three hundred, and Gowns of Broad Cloth, one hundred; to Prisons, Hospitals, and Lazar-Houses, liberally. He also gave his House in Cornhill to be sold, and the Price thereof to be spent on the Amendment of Highways. And to the Poor at his Burial 10 l.

Jane his Wife, afterwards Viscountess Lisle, (matching with Edward Gray, Viscount Lisle) was also buried there by her first Husband, 1500: She gave 90 l. in Money to the beautifying of this Church, and her great Mesuage, with the Appurtenances, which was by her Executors, W. Caple, and others, 1517, the 9th of Henry VIII, assured to John Wardroper, Parson, T. Clarke, W. Dixson, and John Murdon, Wardens of the said Church, and their Successors for ever. They to keep yearly for her an Obit, or Anniverfary; to be spent on the Poor, and otherwise; in all 3 l. the rest of the Profits to be employed in Reparation of the Church.

IN the 34th Year of Henry VIII, Edward Stephan, Parson, T. Spencer, P. Guntar, and G. Crouch, Church-wardens, granted to T. Lodge, a Lease for threescore Years of the said great Mesuage, with the Appurtenances, which were called the Lady Lisle's Lands, for the Rent of 8 l. 13 s. 4 d. a Year. The Parishioners since gave it up as a Chantry Land, and wronged themselves.

THE said Jane, Viscountess Lisle, Widow, made her Will August 8, 1505, and therein bequeathed her Body to be buried within the Parish-Church of St. Michael in Cornhill, under the Sepulchre where Robert Drope, her Husband, lay buried. And she did heartily require her right, dear, and entirely beloved Son John Grey, Viscount Lisle, Son and Heir of her late loving Lord and Husband, and the three noble Sisters of the same her young Lord, to consider her honest Mind toward the Performance of the Will of her said Lord and Husband, &c.

HERE were also buried, tho' their Monuments are gone long since, these Persons following:

As Heart in Life with Love were linckt,

So here their Bodies lie,

Adjoining close, so are, I hope,

Their Souls with God on high.

Their Names as well of him as hers,

Before their Day of Death,

Were these; He Thomas Houghton, and

His Wife Elizabeth.

Behind him he hath left alive,

But Children (only) three;

Two Daughters, and one onely Son;

And I, alas! am he.

Robert Fabian, Alderman, who wrote and published a Chronicle of England and of France, was buried there, 1511, with this Epitaph:

Like as the day his course doth consume,

And the new morrow springeth again as fast,

So man and woman by nature's Custome,

This life to passe, at last on earth are cast,

In joy, and sorrow, which here their time do wast.

Never in one state, but in course Transitory.

So full of change, is of this world the glory.

His Monument is gone.

Elizabeth Peak, Widow, lieth buried in the Belfrey, 1518.

Richard Greneham, 1527.

Edmond Trindel, and Robert Smith, Mr. Stow's Godfathers.

THE Last Will of the former Thomas Stow shews his Trade, Ability and Devotion, according to the Superstitions of that Age; and likewise the divers Altars in that Church, and Guildes or Brotherhoods belonging to it in old Time, declaring also the Ancestors of John Stow the Author of the Survey of LONDON. Which Will, as taken out of the Bishop of LONDON's Register, and inserted by Mr. Strype in his Edition of Stow, may deserve to have a Place here.

IN the Name of God, Amen. In the Year of our Lord God MCCCCXXVI, the last Day of December, I Tho. Stow, Citizen and Tallowchandler of LONDON, in good and whole Mind, Thanks be to our Lord Ihu, make this my present Testament. First, I Bequeath my Soul to Ihu CHRIST, and to our blessed Lady Saint Mary the Virgin, &c. My Body to be buried in the little Green-church-yard of the Parish Church of Saint Michael in Cornhill, between the Cross and the Church-wall, nigh the Wall as may be, by my Father and Mother, Sisters and Brothers, and also my own Children.

Also, I Bequeath to the High Altar of the foresaid Church, for my Tythes forgotten, 12 d. Item, to Jesus's Brotherhood 12 d. I give to our Lady's and Saint Brotherhood 12 d. Probatum fuit superscriptum Testam. coram nobis Willielmo Clyff, &c. Commissario Generali, &c. iiii<sup>to</sup> April. An. Dom. MDXXVII, &c.

John Tolus, Alderman 1548, gave to John Willowby, Parson of that Church, to Thomas Lodge, G. Hind, and P. Bolde, Church-wardens, and to their Successors, (towards the Reparations of that Church, and Relief of the Poor; for ever) his Tenement, with the Appurtenances, in the Parish of St. Michael, which he had lately purchased of Alvery Randalph, of Badlesmeere in Kent: But the Parish never had the Gift, nor heard thereof by the Space of forty Years after; such was the Conscience of G. Barne, and other the Executors, to conceal it to themselves; and such was the Negligence of the Parishioners, that (being informed thereof) they laid no Claim unto it.

Philip Gunter, that was Alderman for a Time, and gave 400*l.* to be discharged thereof, was buried in the Cloister, about the Year 1582; and Anne his Wife, &c.

Francis Beneson, and William Towerson.

On the South Side the CHANCEL.

Philip Gunter, Skinner; some Time Alderman of this City, departed this Life the 15th Day of February 1582, and lieth buried in the Cloister of this Church: Who married Anne, Daughter of Henry Barley, of Albery, in the County of Hereford, Esq; and had Issue by her eleven Sons and four Daughters. He left good Maintenance for two Sermons, yearly, for ever, in this Church; the one on the 15th Day of March; the other on the 25th of December.

On the North Side the CHANCEL.

Here lieth buried the Body of Peter Houghton, of LONDON, Alderman. He was free of the Grocers Company, a Merchant of the Staple in England, and a Merchant-Adventurer. He was one of the Sheriffs of this City Anno 1593, and died the last Day of December 1596. He gave to the four Hospitals, (that is to say) St. Bartholomew's, Christ's Church, St. Thomas's and Bridewell, 600*l.* equally to be divided between them. He gave also to the Grocers Company 400*l.* to be lent to eight young Men of the same Company (gratis) from two Years to two Years, for ever: Which 1000*l.* was paid by John Vernon, Merchant-Taylor, accordingly. He had to Wife Mary Houghton, who since married with Sir Thomas Vavasor, Knight Marshal. He had Children by her, two Sons, named Hatton and Peter, who died young; and two Daughters, Mary and Elizabeth. Mary was married to Sir James Scudamore, Knight; and Elizabeth to Sir Henry Bedingsfield, Knight.

UNDER an Effigies, finely carved, in white Marble, is the following Inscription:

Here lieth buried (by a desired Promise made to Alderman Houghton, while he lived) the Body of John Vernon, Merchant-Taylor; who was Master of the said Company Anno 1609. And he was also a Merchant of the Staple in England. He died the Day of An. Dom.

Nemo ante obitum felix.

Here, in the Vault, lieth buried the Bodies of John Taylor, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, and Constance his Wife, one of the Daughters and Co-heirs of Reginald Wooddeson, of Alresford in Hampshire, Gent. They had Issue between them three Sons, John, who died young, Robert and John. He departed this Life the 4th Day of April 1597, being about the Age of 63 Years: And she, being the Age of 67, the 29th of October 1614. Votum S. Pauli Phil. i. Adepti.

In the same Wall is a handsome small Monument; thus inscribed:

In March 1588,
Was buried in this Place,
Alexander Every, Merchant,
But 40 Years of Age,
Whose godly Gifts, by Will;
Are Warrants of God's Grace
In him. By whom,
Think on thy selfe, and on the Stage
Thou stand'st, and measure it;
And other worldly Things:
As Streams that swiftly slide
Down from their Springs.
An. Dom. 1570. primo Feb.

ON the Ground is a handsome plated Stone, with this Inscription:

Here lieth Francis Beneson,
A Citizen was he;
A Merchant-Adventurer also,
And of the Mystery
Of Haberdashers Company.
A Man of honest Name,
Who here on Earth, to fear of God;
His vital Days did frame.
Two Wives he had, the first of them
In Antwerp born she was;
The other he a Widow left,
So God brought it to pass.
His Soul (no doubt) doth now remain
With God among the rest
Of other worthy Christians;
Who evermore are blest.

ON a handsome small Monument, on a Pillar right against the Pulpit, is this Inscription:

Hereunder lieth buried the Body of the worshipful John Harby, Citizen and Skinner of LONDON, and free of the Merchant-Adventurers Company, for Muscovia; Spain, and the East Indies: Who had two Wives, Anne Mording, Widow, by whom he had Issue four Sons, and one Daughter, viz. Thomas, Francis, John, William, and Emme. And lastly, he married with Anne Saltonstall, Daughter to Sir Richard Saltonstall, Knight, some Time Lord Mayor of this City; by whom he had two Sons, Richard and Daniel. Which John Harby after 74 Years, 74 Years, departed this Life the 15th Day of April 1610, expecting a joyful Resurrection by JESUS CHRIST.

ON a fair Monument in the Cloister South, is the following Inscription :

Hic dormivit in Christo Johannes Cowper, Armiger ; uxorem habuit Elizabeth Ironside ante se mortuam. Obiit 3 Junii. Anno Dom. 1609.

ON the North Side the Chancel, is a handsome Monument thus inscribed :

Memoriæ Sacrum.

Laurentio & Mariæ Caldwell conjugibus, facro fœdere junctis, & duodenæ Proles Parentibus. Quorum Uxor & Mater Maria obiit Octobris 20, Anno Dom. 1621. Maritus & Pater Laurentius, Novemb. 21, 1625. Septuagenariis utrisq; Liberalibus & suis, & de suis. Hoc sepulchrum posuere parentatis hæredes Bonitatis. Filii eorum observantissimi : Quos defunctos & Deus habet, & pauperes carendo lugent.

Omnia Offa justici custodit Dominus.

UNDER this, upon the Figure of a Tomb.

Here is lodged a loving Pair,
Sleeping, rest they free from Care.
Though their Journey from their Birth,
Had been tedious long on Earth,
He that freed them from their Sin,
Sent them to this holy Inn,
Joyful Requies for to Sing
Hallelujahs to their King.
Till the Summons, till the Day,
Till the Trump sound, Rise, Away.

Also since the Fire of LONDON, were these Monuments set up.

In a Vault lieth interred the Body of Mr. John Young, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, of this Parish, who departed this Life February 22, 1670 ; aged 43 Years.

On a flat Stone, near the Isle, lieth the Body of Mrs. Mary Culpepper, late Wife of Mr. Henry Culpepper, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor of LONDON, and of this Parish ; Daughter of Sir James Beverley of Gaines Park in Huntingtonshire, Knight ; who died the 21st of March, 1670 ; aged 24 Years.

On another flat Stone, here lieth the Body of Mrs. Elizabeth Ongley, buried the 26th of March 1694.

Sir William Cowper of Ratling-court in Kent, Knt. and Baronet, born the 7th of March, 1582, married Mrs. Martha Masters, of East Langdon, in the said County, and died the 26th of Dec. 1671. Both lie buried in the Cloisters. In the pious Memory of whom Spencer Cowper, Esq; 4th Son of the said Sir William and Martha, erected this Monument, and died a Batchelor, the 6th of November, 1676, in the 57th Year of his Age.

South-Isle.

M. S.

Near this Place in the Chancel lieth interred, in hope of a happy Resurrection, the Bodies of Francis Mosse and Henry his Son, both some Time antient Inhabitants of this Parish, Masters of the Company of Scriveners, and Deputies of the Ward ; And having served God faithfully in this Life, removed to a better, October the 20th, 1657, aged 36 Years. Henry, May the 28th, 1676, aged 62 Years.

Near this Place lieth the Body of Sir Edward Cowper, Knt. second Son of Sir William Cowper, who was born the 5th of August, 1614, and died a Batchelor the 10th of November, 1685, in the 71st Year of his Age, who having left many living Monuments of his most just and charitable Life, ordered this Tomb to be erected by his Nephew and sole Executor, Edward Cowper, in Remembrance of his much lamented Death.

In the North Isle.

Near this Place lieth interred the Bodies of Luke Nourse, late of Glocester, Esq; who died April the 25th, 1673, aged 89 Years.

And of Hugh Wells, late of this Parish, Citizen and Armourer of LONDON, who died Feb. 25, 1673, aged 84 Years.

And also of Edward Nourse, Citizen and Girdler of LONDON, Son to the said Luke Nourse. He married Mary, one of the Daughters of the said Hugh Wells. He died June 12, 1689, aged 65 Years.

In the Middle Isle, Edward Folkingham of this Parish Sept. 26, 1698.

North of the Communion Table, the Effigies of a Man half-way, and this Inscription :

To the pious Memory of Mr. John Vernon, late a worthy Member of the Worshipful Company of Merchant-Taylors, who by his Last Will gave many large Legacies towards the annual Relief of several Poor of that and other Companies of this City, amounting, yearly, to 200*l*. All which Charities are duly paid by the said Company ; who in Gratitude to that great Benefactor, erected this Monument at their Charge in the Place where one was ruined by the Fire, Anno 1666.

ON the South Side the Chancel, is a handsome Marble Table set up for Benjamin Howel, Goldsmith, who departed this Life the 25th of April, 1715.

THIS Parish-Church hath, on the South Side thereof, a neat Cloister, and a good Church-yard, in in which was formerly a Pulpit Cross, not much alike that which was in St. Paul's Church-yard.

Sir John Rudstone, Mayor, caused the said Pulpit Cross, in his Life-time, to be built, the Church-yard to be enlarged, by Ground purchased of the next Parish, and also good Houses to be raised for lodging the Choir Men, such as at that Time were Assistants to Divine Service, then daily sung by Note in that Church.

THE said John Rudstone died 1531, and was buried in a Vault under the said Pulpit Cross. He appointed Lands for Sermons to be preached there, but his Tomb was taken away before Mr. Stow's Time, among others, particularly one of Dr. Richard Yaxley, one of the Physicians to King Henry VIII, who was buried there, with his Wife, under a Tomb of Marble.

THE Choir of this Church being dissolved, the Lodgings of the Choir Men were, by the grave Fathers of that Time, charitably appointed for the Receipt of antient decayed Parishioners, chiefly Widows.

AMONG the other Benefactions to this Church we must not omit that which is thus expressed over an Almonry set up at the West End of the North Wall;

Spencer Cowper, Esq; gave, by Will, 5*l.* per Annum in Bread, to be distributed every first Sunday in the Month, among the Poor of this Parish for ever, A. D. 1678.

THIS Living is a Rectory; the Advowson is in the Drapers Company. Value per Act of Parliament 140*l.* per Annum, besides Perquisites, Glebes, &c. and is rated in the King's Books at 35*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Samuel Barker; and the Lecturer is the Rev. Mr. Warneford; the six o'Clock Lecturer, on Sundays, is the Reverend Mr. William Butler, Rector of St. Ann's Aldersgate.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays and Fridays, about ten o'Clock. Here is a very good Organ, and twelve Bells, as before mentioned.

THE Vestry is general.

ONE End of St. Michael's-alley comes into Birchover-lane, so called from one Birchover, the first Builder and Owner thereof; but now corruptly called Birchin-lane; one half of which is in this Ward, the other in Langborn Ward.

IN this Birchin-lane, in the latter Time of King Henry VIII. a certain great Man of the Court had his House; who practised a Disorder: And his Example was so prevalent, that no Proclamations or Laws could redress it; insomuch that a Writer of those Days could not but take Notice of it in these Words, "Not fully 24 Years since, (that was about 1540) when all Acts of Parliament, many good Proclamations, divers strict Commandments, fore Punishments openly, special Words privately, could not do so much, to take away one Misorder, as the Example of one big one of this Court did, still to keep up the same (perhaps it was the Excess of Apparel). The Memory whereof doth yet remain as a common Proverb of Birchin-lane.

THIS Lane, and the high Street, near adjoining, were inhabited in old Times, by wealthy Drapers, and from thence, on that Side the Street down to the Stocks, in the Reign of Henry VI, dwelt Fripperers, or Upholsters, who sold Apparel and old Household Stuff.

ABOUT the same Time a Pint of Wine was sold at the Pope's-Head Tavern for a Penny, and Bread given with it gratis.

THIS Pope's Head Tavern, with other Houses adjoining, strongly built of Stone, were formerly in one, belonging to some Person of great State, or rather to the King, as may be supposed by the Arms, viz. Three Lions Passant Gardant, which was the whole Arms of England, before the Reign of Edward III, who quarter'd them with the Arms of France. These Arms, supported by two Angels, were handsomely and largely carved in the Fore Front of this House towards the High Street.

IT has been said, that King John had his Court in the aforesaid House, which is not unlikely, for Matthew Paris saith, in his History, that, in the Year 1232, Henry III. sent Hubert de Burgho, Earl of Kent, to Cornhill, in LONDON, there to answer all Matters objected against him, where he wisely acquitted himself.

THE Pope's-Head Tavern hath a Foot-way through from Cornhill into Lombard-street; and down lower on the high Street of Cornhill, was another great Tavern, called the Cardinal's Hat, which had also a Thoroughfare into Lombard-street.

As to the modern State of this Ward: It is but small, having but one principal Street, which is Cornhill, from whence it takes its Name. This Street is very spacious, and replenished with lofty Houses, graced with good Fronts, and inhabited with Traders of Note, chiefly with Linen-Drapers on the North Side; there are several Upholsters and Woollen-Drapers on the South, and many many Booksellers about the Exchange, and by Reason of its Vicinity to which Place, not only this Street, but all the adjacent Parts are of great Resort, and crowded with Merchants and Tradesmen, infomuch that the Taverns, Coffee-Houses, Eating-Houses, and other such like Places of publick Reception; as they make considerable Gains, so they pay vast Rents.

THE Places of most note in this Street, beginning Westwardly on the South Side, are first, the Swan and Hoop Tavern, which hath a Passage into Lombard-street; next the Pope's-Head Tavern, with a narrow Passage also into Lombard-street, but well inhabited by Tradesmen, especially such as keep Toyshops, but is far short of what it was before the Building of Exchange-alley, which lies next Eastward, and hath two Passages out of Cornhill, one into Lombard-street, and the other bending East into Birchin-lane.

IT is a large Place vastly improved, chiefly out of an House of Alderman Backwel, a Goldsmith, before the great Fire, well built, inhabited by Tradesmen, especially that Passage into Lombard-street against the Exchange, and is a Place of a very considerable Concourse of Merchants, Seafaring Men and other Traders, occasioned by the great Coffee-Houses (Jonathan's, Garraway's, &c.) that stand there. Now Brokers, and such as deal in Buying and Selling of Stocks, do most frequent it. The Alley is broad and well paved with Free-Stone, neatly kept. The Fleece Tavern, seated in Cornhill, hath a Passage through the Jerusalem, another noted Coffee-House in this Alley, being a very large House and of great Resort.

GOING over on the North Side to the Street, most Westward, is the Globe Tavern.

Castle-Alley, adjoining Westward to the Exchange, being a great Thoroughfare. In this Alley is a small Court so called.

ADJOINING to the Exchange, Eastwards, is Sweeting's-Alley, or Rents, being two narrow Passages into Threadneedle-street, with Free-Stone Pavements, which Alleys are generally inhabited by Coffee-Houses, and other publick Houses; but the greatest Part of these Alleys, towards Threadneedle-street, are in Broad-street Ward.

NEXT Eastward, is Freeman's-yard, a large open Court, with a Free-Stone Pavement, well built and inhabited; Newman's-yard likewise, another open Place with good Houses.

Finch, or Fink-lane, comes out of Cornhill, and falls into Threadneedle-street, over-against the French Church. Of this Lane the Part from Spread-Eagle-court to the Corner by Cornhill, which is about 112 Feet on both Sides, is in this Ward. The rest in Broad-street Ward.

Weigh-house-yard, an open Place, with good Buildings: This was the Place where the Merchandizes, brought from beyond Seas, were to be weighed by the King's Beam. But now the said House is converted into other Uses, and there is a new Weigh-house built in Little East-cheap for the said Use; but little regarded, for that the Power doth not compel the Merchants to that great Trouble of sending their Goods so to be weighed.

Star-court, Eastwards of Weigh-house-yard, a large open Place, well built and inhabited; and on the West Side is a genteel House inclosed from the rest.

Birchin-lane, hath not above 170 Feet on both Sides of the Way in this Ward; the rest towards Lombard-street, being in Langborn Ward. It is a Place of a considerable Trade, especially for Mens Apparel; the greatest Part of the Shopkeepers being Salesmen. In this Lane are these Alleys, viz. Castle-alley, but ordinary; it falls into St. Michael's-alley; White-lion-alley, but ordinary; at the upper End is a Passage into George-yard, and in this Alley is Cock-court, which is but small, and on the other Side is a Passage into Castle-alley.

BEYOND Birchin-lane, is St. Michael's Cornhill Church, which is seated backwards, but its chief Door for Entrance is in Cornhill, and behind the Church is a handsome Church-yard, enclosed with a Brick Wall. Adjoining to this Church Westward, is a Passage out of Cornhill, called St. Michael's-alley, which runs by the Church-yard, and turning Eastwards falls into Bell-yard, which leadeth to Gracechurch-street; in this Alley the Houses stand on the West and South Sides, the other Sides lying open, and looking into the Church-yard. Out of this Alley is a Passage into George-yard, and another into Birchin-lane.

MORE Eastward, not far from the Church of St. Michael, and at the very Corner of Gracechurch-street, is the Parish-Church of St. Peter's Cornhill; adjoining to which is St. Peter's-alley, well inhabited, and hath a Passage with a Free-Stone Pavement into Gracechurch-street.

THERE are to watch in the several Stands in this Ward, every Night, one Constable with the Beadle, and 16 Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward, are to serve as Jurors in the several Courts in Guildhall, in January.

THIS Ward has an Alderman, his Deputy, and six Common Council Men, four Constables, four Scavengers, 16 Wardmote Inquest-Men, and a Beadle.

IT is charged to the Fifteen, at 161.

THE present Alderman of this Ward is John Salter, Esq;

LANGBORN WARD.

LANGBORN Ward is so called from a long Born of sweet Water, which, of old Time, breaking out into Fenchurch-street, ran down the same and Lombard-street, to the West End of St. Mary Woolnoth's Church, where turning South, and breaking into many small Shares, Rills, or Streams, it gave Name to Shareborn-lane, or Southborn-lane, as some have wrote it, because it ran South to the River Thames. This Ward beginneth at the West End of Aldgate Ward in Fenchurch-street, by Ironmongers Hall, which is on the North Side of that Street, at a Place called Culver-alley, where some Time was a Lane, thro' which was a Passage into Lime-street, but was long ago stopp'd up, on Account of Thieves that lurked there by Night; and in Stow's Time there was a Tennis-court in the said Alley.

Fenchurch-street took that Name from a Fenny Fenchurch; or Moorish Ground, so made by Means of this street. Born which passed through it; and therefore in the Guildhall of this City, this Ward is called by the Name of Langborn and Fenny about, and not not otherwise: Yet others are of Opinion that it took its Name from Fœnum, that is, Hay, sold there, as Grafs-street took its Name from Grafs or Herbs there sold. In the Midst of this Street stood a small Parish-Church called,

The P A R I S H of
St. GABRIEL FENCHURCH,

But Corruptly

F A N C H U R C H.

IN the LONDON Register it was recorded by the Name of St. Mary Fenchurch, till the Year 1517, afterwards by that of All Saints Fenchurch, and St. Gabriel Fenchurch, from whence it may be conjectured, that it was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary, to the Holy Angel Gabriel, and to all Saints.

THIS Church was enlarged in Length nine Feet, richly and very worthily beautified at the proper Cost and Charges of the Parish, in the Years 1631 and 1632, amounting to 537*l.* 7*s.* 10*d.*

THE King's Arms handsomely painted in the Chancel Window, was the free Gift of Thomas Clark, of this Parish, Glazier.

Over Head.

Touch not mine anointed.

Fœcundet florem, Carole magne, tuum.

Helming Legget, Esq; by Licence of Edw. III. in the 49th of his Reign, gave one Tenement, with a Curtelage thereto belonging, and a Garden with the Entry thereto leading, unto Sir John Harriot, Parson of Fenchurch, and to his Successors for ever; the House to be a Parsonage House, the Garden to be a Church-yard, or Burying-place for the Parish.

IN the 28th of Henry VIII. John Bayly, Clerk, Parson of this Church, with the Consent of the Bishop of LONDON, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, and the Lord Chancellor, Patron of this Church in Right of the King, let a Lease of certain Tenements, and Houses with a Garden adjoining to the same, belonging to the Rector of this Church, situated in Church-alley, for the Term of 61 Years, to Richard Caryndon, and his Wife, for the annual Rent of 40*s.*

IN 1636, the annual Profits of this Church were returned as followeth:

	l.	s.	d.
Tithes	83	03	6
Casualties	2	08	2
Glebe	16	00	0
A Parsonage House let for	30	00	0

THIS Church suffered the common Fate of a great many others in the late general Conflagration of this City; upon the new Building whereof, it was, by Act of Parliament, totally demolished, and the Site thereof laid into the Street, but yet united and annexed to the Parish-Church of St. Margaret Pattens, both which together are made of the yearly Value of 120*l.* in Lieu of Tithes to the Incumbent, as may be seen in St. Margaret's.

IN Fenchurch-street was an eminent House called Denmark House, where the Russian Ambassadors were lodged in the Time of Queen Mary.

THE next is Lombard-street, so called from the Longobards, and other Merchants, Strangers of divers Nations, assembling there twice every Day. King Edward II. in the 12th of his Reign, confirmed a Messuage, some Time belonging to Robert Turke, abutting on Lombard-street toward the South, and toward Cornhill on the North, for the Merchants of Florence, which proveth that Street to have had the Name of Lombard-street, before the Reign of Edward II.

As the Merchants formerly met here for Traffick, so the Pope's Merchants also chaffered here for their Commodities; and had good Markets for their Wafer Cakes, sanctified at Rome, their Pardons, &c. For in an old Book, printed Anno 1545, called, A Lamentation against the City of LONDON, are these Words: "This fine Flower have they made the chiefeft of all their Trish Trash. I pray thee, gentle Reader, where not his Pardoners Merchants to them? Yea, it is well known, that their Pardons, and other of their Trumpery, hath been bought and sold in Lombard-street, and other Places, as thou will buy and sell a Horse in Smithfield."

BEFORE the Building of the Exchange, it was by divers Common Councils, about the 26th Year of King Henry VIII. consulted upon, Whether there should be a Burse, or convenient Place of Meeting for Merchants, to treat of their Business. The same Year the King sent his Letters to the City, for making of a new Burse at Leadenhall: Whereupon it being put to Hands, whether the new Burse should be removed out of Lombard-street, it was agreed, that it should not. So that the Merchants Meeting continued there, till the Royal Exchange was built, that is, until the 22d of December, in the Year 1568, on which Day the said Merchants began to make their Meetings at the Burse, a Place then new built for that Purpose in the Ward of Cornhill, as is before described in our last Chapter of that Ward.

So that here antiently the Lombards or Bankers dwelt, and so they did to the Days of Queen Elizabeth, and so even do this Day. It was about the Middle of that Queen's Reign, that there was a Project for the Queen's Factors, (whereof Sir Thomas Gresham was Chief) to take up all the Money here in Lombard-street, and also in Antwerp (where the great Bank was) and so to make her own Benefit, and the Merchants Benefit thereof; by taking it up at the proper Juncture. That is to say, that her Majesty's Factor should take up all Money in Antwerp that might be gotten, when Store of Foreign Wares were there to be sold to the Queen's Subjects; that by Scarceness of Money they might be sold to them the cheaper, and for Time also. And that the said Factor should take up again all the Money in Lombard-street that might be gotten, when the same bought Foreign Wares came home, that her Subjects who bought them might be driven for Scantness of Money, to sell them here the cheaper, and for Time.

THAT the said Factor should take up all the Money in Lombard-street, that might be gotten, every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday; both to raise the Exchange, and to make Money scant, that the Clothiers weekly at Blackwell-hall, might sell the cheaper, and for Time also. That the said Factor should store the Burse of Antwerp so with Money again, when the same Cloths were come thither, that our Merchants might sell the same there the dearer, and for less Time also. The same Factor should by all possible fible Means get up the Money in Lombard-street, by Exchange from all the Merchants Strangers, that they might not buy weekly any great Quantity of Cloaths at the Clothiers Hands or ready Money, and to keep up the Price of Cloth; but buy at the second, the third, and fourth Hands of her Majesty's Merchants upon Credit. Her Majesty should deliver her Factor a Mass of Money on this Side the Sea, and beyond Sea, by his Travel and Skill, to employ about the Feats of Exchange; as to raise the Exchange of England with all Countries of the World; according to our Standard; to deliver out Money by Exchange to her Highness's Profit, to furnish herself with any Sum of Money of a sudden; to unfurnish her Majesty's Enemy (the Spaniard) of any Money he should seek; to bring Home any Prince's Money in the World there might be Gain by; to drive all Merchants Strangers, and her Majesty's own Merchants, from Exchange for England, that they might occupy Commodities, and so pay Custom and Subsidy to her, both inward and outward, and to do all other Feats of Exchange that are infinite, and offered daily to be travelled in, for the Benefit of the Realm, and her Majesty. This seems to have been Gresham's Device.

ON the North Side of this Ward is Lime-street; one half whereof, on both Sides, is of Langborn Ward; and therein, on the West Side, is Pewterers Hall; in which is a handsome large Hall, Parlour, and Court-Room; adorned with Fret-work, Wainscot, and Hangings; also the Picture of Mr. William Smallwood, Master of the Company in the second Year of King Henry VII, who gave the Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Company of Pewterers, LONDON, and their Successors, for ever, their Common--Hall, with a Garden, and six Tenements thereto adjoining, by Wills dated August 23, 1487.

The PARISH of St. DIONIS BACKCHURCH.

AT the South West Corner of Lime-street, standeth the Parish-Church of St. Dionis, called Backchurch.

St. Dionis, Dionysius, or Denis, (to whom this Church is conceived to be dedicated) was born at Athens in Greece, about Anno Christi 9, Ann. Augusti Imperatoris 50. His Parents were Gentiles; but we may safely conclude them to have been Persons of noble Quality, at least of a better Rank than ordinary, seeing none were admitted to be Areopagite Judges, as this our Saint afterwards was, unless they were nobly born, and eminently exemplary for a virtuous and sober Life.

BEING a Youth, he learned the liberal Sciences at Home in his own City; from thence he travelled into Egypt, being about the Age of 25 Years, where he enter'd into more abstruse Knowledge in Philosophy, Astrology, and the like; and here he was in the City of Heliopolis, at such Time as CHRIST was crucified: On which Day, observing the Eclipse of the Sun to be wonderful and preternatural, he said, "That either God suffered, or sympathiz'd and bore Part with him that did."

HAVING finished his Studies in Heliopolis, he returned to Athens, where he was advanced to be one of the Areopagus, which was a famous Senate-House built upon a Hill in Athens, and thence called Areopagita.

IN this grave and venerable Judicature set our St. Denis, when St. Paul, about the Year 49, or 54, came to Athens, where he resolutely asserted the Cause of Christianity against the Attempts of the Stoic and Epicurean Philosophers, upon which he was brought before the Areopagite Senate, where he gave an Account of his Doctrine which he preached, affirming the Resurrection of the Dead, and a Day wherein the World should be judged by CHRIST. His Discourse, however, entertained by some with Scorn and Laughter, yet others were convinced, adhered to him and believed; among whom was our Dionysius the Areopagite, and Damaris, who some Writers say was his Wife.

BEING baptized, he was made the First Bishop of Athens, and probably by St. Paul's own Hands. As to his being dispatched into France, and founding an Episcopal See at Paris, where he is said to suffer Martyrdom, and to carry his Head, after it was cut off, two Miles, we shall say no more, the Story being sufficiently made appear to be fabulous by Dr. Cave, Dr. Dupin, and others; but tell the Reader, that this St. Dionysius, after a most resolute and eminent Confession of the Faith; and after having undergone several of the severest Torments, gave the last and great Testimony to it, by laying down his Life at Athens, under the Reign (as is most probable) of Domitian.

THIS Church was new built (Mr. Stow says) in the Reign of Henry VI, to which one Mr. John Bugg, he thinks, contributed largely, by the Appearance of his Arms there; and John Darby the South Isle. It had the Fate of being demolished by that destructive Conflagration of 1666, but was soon re-built, being finished Anno 1674, and the Steeple in 1684.

As to the Order and Building, the latter is of Stone, the Tower and Pillars within are strong, but Part of the Walls are Brick finished over; the Columns, and also several Pilasters that strengthen the Walls within, and support the Roof, are of the Ionick Order; as is also the End fronting Lime-street; and at the West End is a small Gallery.

THE Church is wainscotted round about seven Feet high, and pewed with Oak.

THE Pulpit is carved, finnier'd, and adorned with Cherubims, Palm Branches, Festoons, &c. done in Basso Relievo, and at the West End there is a handsome inner Door-case of the Composite Order.

THE Altar-piece consists of four Columns of the Corinthian Order, each Couple having their Entablature, and arched Pediment, between which are the King's Arms carved. The Inter-columns are the Commandments, the Lord's Prayer and Creed, done in Gold on Black, having Enrichments of Festoons, Cherubims, &c. The Floor within the Rail and Ballaster, which incloses this, is paved with Marble.

AND here is a Marble Font and Cover, placed directly West, from the Communion Table, at the End of the Church.

THE Dimensions of this Church, are Length 66 Feet, Breadth 59, Altitude, about 34, and that of the Tower and Turret 90 Feet.

BENEFACTORS to this Church were:

Sir Thomas Cullum, The Marble Foot-pace and Steps for the Communion Table.

Sir Anthony Ingram, The Communion Table and the Rails.

Sir Henry Tulse, The Marble Font and the Pavement, and the Steps up to it.

Sir Robert Jeffreys, A Velvet Carpet for the Communion Table, with Silk and gold Fringe; a Common Prayer Book covered with the same Velvet, and a Pulpit Cushion of the same Velvet, with Silk and Gold Tassels.

Dame Elizabeth Clark, as the Gift of her late Husband Dr. Nathaniel Hardy, Dean of Rockester, St. Dionis Backchurch.

ter, some Time Parson of this Parish, 50*l.* And more for her own Gift, 30*l.* for the Pulpit, Reading Desk and Clerk's Pew, and for other Conveniences.

Tho. Turgis, Esq; gave the Gallery at the West End.

Philip Jackson gave the Commandments, Lord's Prayer, and the Creed, and the Pillars, Joiners Work and carved Work belonging to the same, and the King's Arms.

Elizabeth Jackson, Wife of the said Philip, a Damask Table Cloth, and a Damask Napkin.

A Friend of Mr. Philip Jackson, whose Name is concealed, a Silver Chalice, a Silver Patten, and a Silver Spoon, to be used at the Communion.

Peter Hoet, a Silver Bason, and a Silver Chalice for the Use of the Communion.

Dr. John Castillion, some Time Parson of this Parish, one Bible in Folio, and two Common Prayer Books.

Mr. Daniel Rawlinson, a Brass Branch containing 16 Sockets.

James Church, heretofore a Parishioner of this Parish, 10*l.* towards the Fitting up of the Church.

Robert Williams, Mercer 25*l.* towards a Bell.

BENEFACTORS, who lent Money gratis towards Building the Church.

Sir Edmund Turner.
Sir Robert Jefferys.
Mr. Philip Jackson.
Mr. Peter Hoet.
Mr. Jeffery Rowland.
Mr. Nathan Letton,
Mr. John Archer.

THESE lent 100*l.* each and more. Many others lent less Sums, and many more for Pewing the Church.

MONUMENTS.

John Master, Gent. was by his Children buried there, 1444.

Hugh Wick, Mayor 1462, and the Lady Wick, Widow to the said Hugh Wick, was there buried also, and gave Lands for Sermons, &c.

Thomas Britaine, Henry Travers of Maidstone in Kent, Merchant, 1501.

NEAR unto it is a very good Monument belonging to Sir James Harvey, but without any Inscription, or Epitaph.

IN the Wall, on the same Side, is a small Monument thus inscribed:

D. D. M. S.

Emanuel de Meteren, Mercatori Antwerpiensi, atque inter ordinis ejusdem Belgas Londini, quondam Cos. Def. viro pio, viro docto. Qui rerum in Belgia gest. Historiam, opus luculentum & fidei plenum, posteris reliquit.

Esther de Corput, conjux conjugii, liberique IX. parenti optimo P. P. Obiit die 8 Aprilis, Anni 1613, XII, cum vixisset An. LXXVI. Mens. 3

ON a Pillar in the midst of the Chancel, is this Inscription:

Animæ super Æthera vivunt.

Jacobo Colio C. F. Belgæ Regis Henrici VIII. munere Angl. indignæ Mercatori probo. Qui obiit Ann. Chri. 1613, XCI, suo LXXIX. Et Elizah Orteliæ. Qui obiit Anno Christi, 1613, XCI. Connubio nuper, nunc Tumulo junctis Jac. Colini parentibus pientiss.

THERE is a Monument in the South Side of the Choir with this Inscription:

M. H. F. C.

Christo duce, & ossa resurgent.

The Tomb of Sir Edward Osborne, Knt. some Time Lord Mayor of this noble City, who was buried An. Dom. 1591: And of Dame Margaret, his second Wife, who married after with M. Baron Clarke, (by whom this Tomb was erected,) and was buried, An. Dom. 1602.

AT the South West End of the Church are the following Monuments:

Mistress Katharine Woodward, Widow, having (in her Life-time) been a godly, religious, and virtuous Matron, charitable to the poor, and not sparing of her Purse to pious Uses; two worthy Gentlemen (her Executors) have here raised a comely Remembrance of her to all Posterity.

This Monument was erected for the Worshipful Mr. John Hewet, Gent. Citizen and Merchant of LONDON, and free of the Clothworkers Company; who in his Life-time was loving to all, and pitiful to the Poor: Witness the yearly Pension he hath given for ever, of 5 l. to the Poor of this Parish. He changed this mortal Habitation the third Day of July, Anno Dom. 1602.

A Monument in the North Isle, with this Inscription:

Cur quod partu obeas lachrymis
Rigat ora maritus,
Et quasi tu pereas
Se macerat per eas?
Dum cedis domino,
Discedis ab orbe scelesto,

FOR the finding of a Priest to celebrate Mass in this Church, for the Soul of somebody deceased, and here buried; (whether it were Darby, or some else) was appropriated a Messuage and Tenement in the Parish of St. Botolph Billingsgate, inhabited by one Peter Crowch.

MONUMENTS more modern in this Church are these:

ONE for Sir Robert Jeffreys, Knt. late eldest Alderman of the City; died Anno 1703, aged 91. He gave 20 l. a Year for Prayers to be said in this Church every Day in the Week half an Hour after Seven of the Clock in the Morning; which Dr. Gatford, the Rector, had done for some Time before voluntarily. The said Sir Robert hath a comely Monument erected for him with eight Penons and a Streamer hanging up near it.

HE was a most excellent Magistrate, of exemplary Charity, Virtue, and Goodness.

ALSO for Dame Percilla his Wife, Daughter of Luke Cropsey, Esq; who died the 26th of October, 1676, and in the 43d Year of her Age.

ON the North Side the Church, against a Pillar, fronting Southward, a handsome White Marble Monument of the Composite Order, adorned with Death's Head, a Cherub, &c. and this Inscription:

ON a very graceful polished Monument of Touch, at the North End of the Altar-Piece, adorned with Cartouches, and Branches of Palm, gilt with Gold, also with Frieze, Cornice, Pediment, and Urns, this Inscription :

Near this Place lies the Body of Sir Arthur Ingram, Knt. Spanish Merchant and Citizen of LONDON, descended from a Family in Lincolnshire. He died September 12, 1681.
Ætat. suæ 64; leaving behind him a mournful
Widow, Dame Anne Ingram, Daughter of William Lowfield, Citizen of LONDON, and four young Children, Robert, Arthur, Hannah, and Anne.

Also the Body of the abovesaid Hannah, who married Arthur Champney, of Raleigh, in Devon, Esq; and leaving one Daughter, died May 1, 1693.

Also the Body of the abovesaid Dame Anne Ingram, who continuing a Widow, performed all other Acts of Love and Tendernefs to her Children, died truly and heartily lamented by them, March 29, 1702. Ætat. suæ 59. To whose Memory her two Sons, Robert and Arthur, have erected this Monument.

HERE are these Arms. Ermin on a Fess Gule, three Escallop Shells Or. Impaled with Party per Fess Vert and Or. A pale counter-changed, every Piece of the Second charged, the First with a Buffler's Head coupé Sable, and the two in Base, with each a Garb Gules.

ON the South Side the Altar, is a white Marble Monument, with this Inscription :

Near this Place, in the Chancel, lieth interr'd the Body of Philip Lackson, of this Parish, Merchant, Son to Miles Lackson, of Cambebay, in the County of Somerset, Esq; He married Elizabeth, Daughter to John Brown, of Sutton St.
Clare, in the same County, Esq; by whom he had three Sons, Edward, and two Philips, and two Daughters, Elizabeth and Eleanor.

He was constantly devout in the Duties of Religion, according to the Church of England, truly loyal to the King, loving to his Relations, Neighbours, and Acquaintance; faithful in Friendship, just in all his Dealings, and charitable to the Poor. In Memory of whom Elizabeth, his Relict, caused this Monument to be set up, A. D. 1686.

Here are these Arms : Argent on a Chevron between three Eagle's Heads erased Sable, as many Cinquefoils of the first; impaled with Sable, a Chevron Per pale Argent and Or, between three Griffin's Heads, erased of the second.

ON the South Side the Chancel, a spacious white and black Marble Monument, adorned with Columns, Entablament, Pediment, two Urns, and as many Cupids; who each, with one of their Hands, support his Arms; and with their other, hold the one a Crown, the other a Chaplet, or Wreath of Laurel, having this Inscription :

Mors Janna Vitæ.

Underneath, in the Vault, resteth, in sure and certain Hope of a Resurrection to Eternal Life, the Body of Mrs. Elizabeth Wood, late Wife of Mr. James Wood, and of this Parish, who departed this Life the 17th of October 1690, in the 50th Year of her Age.

RESURGAM.

For if the Dead rise not, then is not Christ raised. 1 Cor. xv. 16.

Thus saith the Lord, behold, O my People! I will open your Graves, and cause you to come out of your Graves, and bring you into the Land of Israel; and ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your Graves, O my People! and brought ye up out of your Graves, and shall put my Spirit in you, and ye shall live. Ezekiel, Chap. xxxvii, Part of the 12th, 13th, and 14th Verses.

Here also resteth the Body of the said Mr.
James Wood, who departed this Life the 26th of July 1700, in the 63d Year of his Age.

The Arms are: Party per Pale Argent and Azure, on a Chevron between three Birds Sable, and the first Counterchange way; as many Cinquefoils of the First and Second.

ON the South Side of the Church, a handsome white Marble Monument for Mr. Nathaniel Lit-ten, of LONDON, Merchant; but nothing remarkable in the Inscription.

THERE are flat Stones for Richard Slany,
Merchant, 1678, and Mary Slany, his Wife,
1684; and John Slany, his Son, 1694.

Joanna Jacobs, late of this Parish, Widow, 1691, aged 77: And James Jacobs, her Son,
Merchant, 1701.

The PARISH of ALHALLOWS Lombard-Street.

Alhallows
Lombardstreet.

BY the Four Corners, formerly so called from Fenchurch-street in the East, Bridge-street on the South, Grass-street on the North, and Lombard-street on the West; and at the North East Corner of the last, viz. Lombard-street, is a handsome Parish Church, called Alhallows Grass-church in Lombard-street, in antient Records, because the Grass Market went down that Way, and was there kept; but the Street was far larger than at present, several Incroachments having been made upon it.

WHEN this Church was new built, John Warner, Armourer, and Grocer, Sheriff 1494, built the South Isle; his Son R. Warner, Esq; finished it in the Year 1516. The Pewterers Company were Benefactors towards the North Isle, &c. The Steeple, or Bell-Tower thereof was finished in the Year 1544, about the thirty sixth of Henry VIII. The Stone Porch of this Church was brought from the dissolved Priory of St. John of Jerusalem, by Smithfield: So was the Frame for their Bells. But the Bells being bought, were never brought thither, by Reason that one old Warner, Draper, of that Parish, dying, his Son Mark Warner, would not perform what his Father had begun and appointed; so that this handsome Steeple had but one Bell, which the Fryars were wont to use.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified in the Year 1622, and 1623; but being one of those destroyed by the great Fire in 1666, was the last that was rebuilt, being finished 1694.

IN this Church is only one Pillar, which, and also the Pilasters, are of the Tuscan Order.

THE Building is in Length 84 Feet, Breadth 52, and Height about 30. The Altitude of the Tower is about 85 Feet, built Square.

As to its Ornaments, the Walls are lined round nine Feet high, with right Wainscot: It is handsomely pewed, and has two very fine inner Door-cases of Wainscot.

A very spacious one on the North Side; and near the East End, of the Corinthian Order; the Pilasters fluted, and the Capitals, Frieze and Cornice, well carved; over which is a large circular Pediment, whereon stands the Image of Death: And within this Work, next the Door, are other small Pilasters, and an arching Pediment, the Space between which, and the Cornice under it, is replenished with a Piece of curious open Carving, the View whereof is intercepted by an artificial white Curtain, likewise carved, but so natural, that many have attempted to draw it on one Side, the better to see the Carving, which seems to be behind it.

THE other Door-case is at the West End, and near the South Side of the Church, which is in every Respect like that abovesaid, except that whereas the Figure over the other Door-case is that of Death, upon the Pediment of this is the Image of Time carved in Wood.

THE Pulpit is finely carved and finnier'd, as is also the Pillar and Sound-Board, which are of the Ionick Order, adorned with Palm-Branches, Flowers, Leaves, Fruit, Vases, &c.

AT the Roof is a Quandrangle of Fretwork, and between the Windows are Voluta's.

THE Altar-piece is spacious and finely carved. It is of right Wainscot, and consists of four Columns with their Entablature, all well cut with five Pediments of the Corinthian Order, viz. a Circular, and above it a Triangular, belonging to the two North Columns, and the like to the two Southward; the Intercolumns are the Commandments done in Gold Letters upon Black, and the Lord's Prayer and Creed is done in Black upon Gold: And in the Middle between the Arching Parts of the Frames for the Commandments, is a Pelican feeding her Young with her own Blood (an Emblem of our Saviour) and above the Cornice, over the Commandments, is a Glory finely painted, and adorned, with an Enrichment of Carving, as Flowers, Fruit, &c. above all which is a large Triangular Pediment and seven Candlesticks, representing the seven Golden Candlesticks we read of in the Revelations; which Altar-piece is said to have cost not less than 186 l.

THE Communion Table is finely finniered; under is the Holy Lamb on a Chalice, and at each of the four Feet of the Table is a Dove.

AT the West End is a handsome Gallery, the Front is Bolection Work, and therein are the Names of 42 Benefactors to the Organ, done in Gold Letters; all which Finishing within the Church, cost the Parish about 1000 l. Southward from the Altar-piece is the King's Arms, very Ornamental.

THIS Church of All Saints was given to the Church of Canterbury, by one Brightmer, Citizen of LONDON, with the Licence and Consent of Stigand the Archbishop, and Godrie the Dean. Witness, among others, Lieffstane, Portreve. This Gift was Anno 1053. This Brightmer gave also his Messuage at Gerschercke (Gass Church) to the same Church of Canterbury.

IN

IN Grafs-Church-street was a House with a Shop and Warehouse called Green-Acre, for which a Rent of 5 l. had been reserved Time out of Mind; but the Rent afterwards advancing (besides a Fine) to 30 l. Yearly, a great Suit was commenced for the Increase of the Tythe proportionable.

AND it came at last to a general Matter, wherein all the City Clergy were concerned, viz. for the Increase of the Tythe of Houses in LONDON, according to the Improvement of Rent: For, Dun, Parson of Grafs Church, petitioned the Lord Mayor in King James I. his Time, that whereas the Tythe of the said Green Acre was paid to him only according to the Rate of 5 l. whereas he ought to have Allowance according to the Rate of 30 l. by the Year, &c. But the Lord Mayor allowing the old Rate, Dun went into Chancery, Sir Francis Bacon being then Lord Chancellor; and the Case was found so difficult, that a Special Commission was granted unto the Archbishop of Canterbury and many others, both Great Officers of the King's Court and Chief Judges, having full Power given them for the hearing and determining of this Business, between the Citizens of LONDON, and the Parsons of the several Parishes, and to make an arbitrary End between them. They sat at York-House; but the main Question remained undetermined, and no Resolution was given. So the Case divided into six Parts, and is argued in Calthorp's Reports of Special Cases.

The MONUMENTS in this Church are these:

A fair Monument in the Wall, at the East End of the North Isle of the Choir with this Inscription:

Memoria Sacrum.

Spe certa in Christo resurgendi, hic requiescit Christopherus Tolderney, Armiger, Vir prudens, & optimis studiis inutritus: Atque Susanna Uxor, Filia Johannis Alnwici, Generos. Qui cum plures annos fide & amore conjugali concordissime vixissent; Obiit illa nono die Januarii, Anno Domini, M.D.CXII. Ille Martii sequentis die 20, Quatuor liberis superstitibus, Christophero & Joanne, Jana, (Roberto Darello de Calehil Militi nupta) & Elizabetha.

A very good Stone plated, on the Ground in the same Isle, thus inscribed:

Here under this Stone resteth (in assured Hope of a joyful Resurrection) the Body of Rebecca Crispe, Daughter to John Pake, of Broomefield, in Essex, Gent. and late Wife to Nicholas Crispe, of LONDON, Merchant. She departed this Life the 27th Day of April, An. Dom. 1616, and in the 37th Year of her Age; giving to the World (both in her Life and Death) undoubted Testimony of her Faith in Christ Jesus, having had Issue three Sons and eight Daughters.

IN the Chancel is a fair Stone plated, against his Pew Door, with this Inscription:

Here lieth buried the Body of Simon Horspool, free of the Drapers Company; also free of the ancient Wool-Staple; free of the Merchants-Adventurers of the old Hauunce and Muscovia. He was chosen Sheriff of LONDON, An. 1591. He married Elizabeth Smith, Daughter to John Smith, of Cosham, in the County of Wiltshire, Gent. and Sister to Thomas Smith, Customer of LONDON; and by her he had Issue three Sons and three Daughters, William, Simon, and Thomas; Elizabeth married with Alexander King, one of the Queen's Majesty's Auditors; Hawys, married with Francis Dorrington, Merchant of Tripoly; and Joan married with John Whitebrooke,
VOL. I.

Gent. He died the 14th Day of January, 1601, aged 75 Years.

HE dwelt in Grafs-Church-street in this Parish, 35 Years, and he appointed to this Parish of All-Saints, 4 l. 4 s. every Year for ever; and also 4 l. 4 s. to the Parish of St. Christopher's by Cornhill, where he was born, and where his Father John Horspoole, (also free of the Drapers Company, and born in Leicestershire) dwelt and lies buried. That every Sunday after Morning Service, there be given to 12 poor People of this Parish, to every one of them one Penny Loaf of Wheaten Bread, and also every Sunday to 12 poor People of St. Christopher's Parish to one of them one Penny Loaf of Wheaten Bread; and every Year upon St. Thomas the Apostle's Day, to every one of the said 24 poor People 1 s. in Money; and every Year upon the said St. Thomas's Day, to the two Parish Clerks of the said Parishes, and every of them for their Pains 13 s. 4 d. and to the two Sextons of the said Parishes, and to every of them for their Pains 6 s. 8 d.

IN Performance whereof William Horspoole, Son of the said Simon Horspoole, hath granted two several Annuities and Rents, Charge of 4 l. 4 s. a-piece out of an House in Corbet's-alley in Grace-church-street, in the Parish of St. Peter, to certain Parishioners of the said Parishes respectively, and their Heirs in Trust, to the aforesaid Uses for ever.

ON a fair plated Stone, lying by the other, is this Inscription:

Virtue is not dead.

The Soul in Heaven,
the Body here of Izan lies,
By her John Edwards good,
and by her Parents both:
She dear to all her three,
that living still she cries,
Lay me by them,
For other Grave I loath.
O God, that heard'st
the cry of this thy creature, Make Izans many,
in Virtue, Grace, and Feature.
As love (in Life)
conjoined us once,
And God (by death)
disjoin'd us twaine:
So love by death
rejoin'd our bones
And God (in joy)
join'd us again.

IN the South Isle of the Choir is a fair Monument erected for the same Person, with this Inscription:

Stand here firme (God permitting) ever, a Patterne as pure to sacred Virtue. In memory of a blessed Matrone here buried Rich in true piety, virtue and reverend modesty, from her Cradle to her Coffin: An ornament of her Sexe, for true constancy in both fortunes: The onely Mother and beauty of her Race, in her time, named Izan Wright, by her Father, Edwards by her first Husband, both of this Parish, and also here buried. Her shining to the vaine World (to whom Adversity is Vice, and Prosperity is Virtue) was eclipsed by a second marriage, wherein she deceased the fifth day of March, An. Dom. 1613, aged about 66 yeeres.

IN the same Isle, is a handsome small Monument with the following Inscription:

Hereunder this Place lieth buried the Body of Thomas Walker, Citizen and Vintner of LONDON,
5 O

DON, who deceased the 25th Day of January, 1599; which said Thomas Walker had two Wives, Joane and Mary; by Joane he had Issue eight Children, four Sons, and four Daughters: Joane his Wife lieth hereunder buried, who deceased the 29th Day of August, 1592. Ætatis sue 69.

Man's Life, betimes try it who shall,
Shall find no Time in it to trust:
Sometime to climb, sometime to fall,
Till Life of Man be brought to Dust.

The PARISH of St. EDMUND the KING.

ST. Edmund, the King and Martyr (to whom this Church is dedicated) was Nephew to Offa, King (at least in Right) of the East Angles, who adopted him his Successor in that Kingdom, which, when after King Offa's Death, he had governed Christian-like, 15 Years, he was, in the first Danish Persecution, under Hunguar and Hubba, being taken at Henglesdune (now Hoxton) in Suffolk, for his Confession of CHRIST, first whipp'd forely, then bound to a Tree, and Arrows shot at him, then beheaded, and his Head thrown into a thick Grove of Bushes and Briars, but afterwards, it being miraculously (as some will have it) found, it was, with the Body there buried, and a wooden Chapel erected over his Grave, but from thence, in Process of Time, translated to another Town in Suffolk, where, in Honour of him, a very great Church was built, wrought with a wonderful Frame of Timber, whence it began to be called St. Edmundi Burgus (now commonly, St. Edmund's-Bury, or more short, Bury;) and afterwards King Canutus to expiate the Sacrilegious Impiety of his Father Swenus, against this Church, being affrighted, with a Vision of St. Edmund's, built it again of a new Work, enrich'd it, offered his own Crown to the Holy Martyr, brought into it Monks, with their Abbots, and gave to it many fair and large Manors, and (inter alia) the Town itself full and whole. Here then this holy King and Martyr was laid in a goodly Shrine set with Jewels and precious Stones.

HE was beheaded on the 20th of November, Anno Dom. 866, according to some, as others 870. [x Scrip. 805] which Day is celebrated to his Memory.

TO this Parish is united, by Act of Parliament, the Parish of St. Nicholas Acons.

THE Church of St. Edmund the King is situated on the North Side of Lombard-street, against St. Clement's-lane End.

IT is built contrary to most others; the greatest Length being from North to South, and the Altar-piece is at the North End: This Building is of the Tuscan Order; the Roof is flat, and there are no Pillars within that help to support it. As to the Ornament and Finishing of this Church, the Roof has Enrichments of Quadrangles, and of Crocket Work within, and with Festoons, Vases, &c. without.

HERE is a neat little Gallery; and the Church is very well pewed, and wainscotted with Oak eight Foot high, and also two Door-cases of that Kind of Timber, adorned with Pilasters, &c. of the Corinthian Order, with Enrichments of Shields, Palm Branches, &c.

THE Pulpit is finely carved, the Sound-Board Canonical, with Festoons, Cherubims, &c.

THE Font is near the South West Corner of the Church of Marble; and the Type is Wainscot, well carved, having the Figures of the 12 Apostles in a standing Posture, in two Ranges extending round it, also Enrichments of Cherubims, &c.

THE Altar-piece is pretty spacious, the lower Part Bolection Wainscot, the upper Part carved and adorned with Frieze and Pediment, which has an Enrichment of Festoons, Fruit, &c. also three Cherubims, one under a Glory, which is between two others; above which is a neat Cornice and Circular or Compass Pediment. Here are the Commandments done in Gold Letters on Black, between the Portraits of Moses and Aaron, the latter latter holding an Incense Pot; and the Lord's Prayer and Creed are done as the Commandments.

IN the Window over the Communion Table, are the Arms of England painted on the Glass, and under them is written, This Window was set up in the memorable Year of the Union, 1707.

THIS Church was rebuilt after the Fire of LONDON. The Dimensions are as follow. Length 69 Feet, Breadth 39, Height 32, and that of the Steeple or Tower is about 90 Feet.

It was beautifully repaired in the Year 1727.

The MONUMENTS in this Church are these:

Sir John Milborne, Draper, Mayor, deceased, 1535, buried there by Dame Joan and Dame Margaret, his Wives, under a Tomb of Touch.

Humphrey Heyford, Goldsmith, Mayor, 1477.

Sir William Chester, Draper, Mayor, 1560, with his Wives, amongst his Predecessors.

Sir George Barne, Mayor, 1586, &c.

D. Johanni Milburno, vitrico.

D. Joanni Chestero, patri.

D. Roberto Tempesto, generoso.

Gulielmus Chesterus, posuit.

D. Joannæ Milburne, secundo marito matris suæ optimæ, Gulielmus Chesterus posuit, Anno Domini, 1561.

ON the other Side of the Chancel, North, is a handsome small Monument, with this Inscription:

This Monument declares, that here the Corpse do lie

Of him that fought in Science Sight,

to publish prudently,

(Among the rest of Things

the which he put in Ure)

That anient Practice and profound,

That Hight of Architecture.

A Knowledge meet for those,

that Buildings do erect,

As by his Works, at large set forth,

is shewn the full Effect.

All for the Love he bare

To this his Native Land:

Yet tho' he died, his Deeds do live,

and Fame in them doth stand.

Who likes therefore to win

Such fame as he hath won,

Let them take Care for Common-weal,

as here John Shute hath done:

Whose Soul, we hope to be in faithful Abraham's Breast,

With God's Elect and Chosen Flock, for ever there to rest.

Wisdom and Science,

above each other Thing,

Are Virtues, from the which all Fame doth spring.

John Shute, Painter-strainer, died the 25th of September, 1563.

IN this Church of late have been buried with Monumental Stones laid over them, these that follow:

In the Chancel.

Edward and Charles Mompeyson, Sons of Edward and Jane Mompeyson. Edward 1698, Charles 1700.

Edward Mompeyson, Goldsmith, January 23, 1704.

IN the Body of the Church, two Sons of Joseph and Judith Horneby, of this Parish, both which departed in the Year 1687.

R. White, the late Wife of Thomas White, 1686.

Frances; the Wife of William Wylls, Esq; Merchant, 1676, and William Wylls, his Son.

Queen Mary's Arms in a Table near the Pulpit inscribed: In Memoriam Augustissimæ & Exoptatissimæ Reginae Mariæ morte præmatura, Dec. 28, 1694, cælo redditæ.

AGAINST the West Wall almost at the North End is a neat Marble Table set up to the Memory of the Rev. Mr. Thomas Shepherd, Lecturer of this Parish, and Rebecca Shepherd his Wife: She died the 8th of October, 1721, and he the 28th of August 1724.

CHARITIES to the Poor in St. Edmund's Parish.

Mr. Richard Jaie, Serjeant of Law, hath given to the Poor of this Parish, yearly, for ever, 45 s. to be given in Bread, Coals, or otherwise.

Mrs. Joan Lowen, of Rainham, in the County of Essex, Widow, by her Will, dated in March 1569, hath given to the Poor of this Parish, 52 s. yearly, for ever, in Bread, with the Advantage, 13 Penny-Loaves every Sunday to 13 poor People, &c.

Mr. John Torkington, 40 s. yearly, for ever, in Bread, or otherwise, by his Will in the Year 1571, paid by the Master and Wardens of the Drapers Company, or out of his own House situated in the same Parish.

Sir Richard Champion, Knight, some Time Lord Mayor of this honourable City, by his Will the 23d Day of March, gave 54 s. yearly, for ever, in Bread, or otherwise; paid out of the Rent of a House then called the Beades in Birchen-lane; and 12 d. a-piece to each Churchwarden, for ever, to see his Will performed.

John Rois, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, by his Will, the 23d of August, 1568, to twelve poor People, six of this Parish, and six of the Parish of Whittington College, every Sunday, for ever, in Bread, hath given a Penny Loaf to each Person, payable out of his House, in the same Parish.

William Watson, by his Will the 19th Day of September, 1586, hath given his Dwelling-House in St. Clement's-lane, to have 40 s. paid yearly, for ever, to the Poor of the said Parish, in Bread, or otherwise.

Mr. Thomas Russel, by his Will the 7th Day of July 1593, hath given, yearly, for the Term of 37 Years, two Loads of Charcoal, to the Poor of this Parish, betwixt Albion-tide and Christ-

Christmas; paid by the Master and Wardens of the Drapers Company, out of certain Houses standing in Thames-street, in the Parish of St. Mary Somerfet.

Sir Nicholas Rainton, Knight, Haberdasher, gave to this Parish (where, as it seems, he lived) 1 l. 6 s. per Annum.

Mrs. Anne Whitmore, 5 l. per Annum.

HERE is an Organ in this Church, and a Table of the Names of the several Inhabitants of the united Parishes of St. Edmund the King, and St. Nicholas Acons, who were Contributors towards the Purchase of it, and Building a Gallery for the same, Anno Domini 1701; and the particular Sums of Money given by each. The first set down are Dr. Thomas Lynford, Rector, and Dr. Zacharias Isham, Lecturer, who gave 20 l. each; and others gave 10 l. others 5 l. the least a Guinea.

THIS Living is a Rectory, and the Presentation is said to be twice in the King, and once in the Bishop of LONDON; the Value, per Act of Parliament, is 180 l. per Annum, rated in the King's Books at 21 l. 14 s. 2 d. and St. Nicholas at 13 l.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Gordon, and the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Morgan.

PRAYERS are at eleven and seven o'Clock Daily; and the Gift Sermons are a Lecture Sermon every last Sunday in the Month, and one on Christmas Day in the Afternoon. Here are two Bells.

THE Vestries are General.

THE Ward-Officers are uncertain.

THE Officers for the Parish are:

- 2 Church-wardens.
- 2 Sidefmen.
- 2 Collectors.

Streets, Courts, Lanes, Alleys, &c. in this Parish are:

PART of Lombard-street, George-yard, George-alley, Plough-court, Three Kings-court; Part of Nag's-head-court; Part of St. Clement's-lane; Part of Birchin-lane; Part of Swan-alley, and Three Fox-court.

THE Number of Houses 104.

THE Church of St. Nicholas Acons stood on the West Side of Nicholas-lane, near Lombard-street. It was a Rectory subject to the Archdeacon of LONDON, saving only as to Wills and Administrations, which belonged to the Commissary.

Sir John Bridges, Brug, or Bruges, (for by all these Names he is written in Stow) Mayor of LONDON in 1520, repaired this Church, and embattled it, and was there buried.

THIS Church seemed to be very antient, for in the Reign of William the Conqueror, Anno 1084, Godwinus, with his Wife Turund, for the Redemption of their Souls, and the Remission of their Sins, and of all Christians, gave this Church of St. Nicholas, and all his Houses, with their Appurtenances, to St. Mary and St. Aldelme the Confessor, in the Church of Malmsbury, for ever: And afterwards Pope Innocent IV, by his Bull, bearing Date at Lyons 3 Ides of October, in the sixth of his Pontificate, confirmed (inter alia) to the said Monastery of Malmsbury, the Right of Patronage of this Church, and his Annual Rent of 5 s. usually paid out of it to the same; which Patronage continued in the said Abbot and Convent till their Suppression, upon which it came to the Crown.

THIS Parish Church was repaired and beautified in 1615, at the Cost of the Parishioners; but being burnt down by the dreadful Fire, was afterwards annex'd to that of St. Edmund Lombard-street, which is made the Parochial Church for the Inhabitants of both these Parishes, the Profits whereof, in lieu of Tithes, are made of the yearly Value of 180 l. to the Incumbent, as is above-mentioned. And the Site of this Church remains now only as a Burying-place for the Inhabitants of this Parish.

THERE was a Parsonage-house in the Churchyard of this St. Nicholas Acons, for which the Incumbent of St. Edmund the King receives 6 l. per Ann.

Streets, Lanes, &c. in the Parish of St. Nicholas Acons, are:

Part of Abchurch-lane, Part of St. Nicholas-lane, Fox-ordinary-court, Part of Boot-alley:

THE Number of Houses 50.

FROM this Church down Lombard-street, by Birchover, or Birchin-lane, one half of which Lane is of this Ward, were divers handsome Houses of old Time, especially one built by Sir Martin Bowes, Goldsmith, and some Time Lord Mayor of LONDON, and another belonging to Sir William de la Pole, Knight Bannaret, and yet, the King's Merchant, in the 14th of Edward III, and after him to Michael de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk, in the 24th of Richard II. and was his Merchant's House, and so down toward Stocks-market, lacking but three Houses thereof.

THE South Side of this Ward begins in the East; at the Chain to be drawn cross Mark-lane up into Fenchurch-street, and so West by the North End of Mincing-lane, to St. Margaret-Pattens-street, or Rood-lane, and down that Street to the Midway towards St. Margaret's Church; then by Philpot-lane (so called from Sir John Philpot, who dwelt there, and was Owner thereof) and down that Lane, six or eight Houses on each Side is all of this Ward.

TEN by Grace-church Corner into Lombard-street, to St. Clement's-lane, and down the same to St. Clement's Church; then down St. Nicholas's-lane, and down the same to St. Nicholas's Church, and the same Church is of this Ward.

TEN to Abchurch-lane, and down some small Portion thereof; then down Sherborn-lane, a Part thereof, and a Part of Bearbinder's-lane are of this Ward; and then down Lombard-street to the Sign of the Angel, almost to the Corner over-against Stocks-Market; and these are the Bounds of this Ward.

The PARISH of ALHALLOWS STAINING.

ON the South Side, somewhat within Mark-lane, is the Parish Church of Alhallows Staining, which is so called as dedicated to All Saints, and the Word Staining, or Stane Church, (or Stone Church) as Stow takes it, was only to distinguish it from other Churches, that were of old built of Timber.

THE Church was repaired in many Parts of it, and very neatly and decently beautified at the Cost of the Parishioners in the Year of our Lord 1630.

It escaped the great Fire, but some Years after fell all down, yet giving some Warning of its Fall to the Sexton that was then digging a Grave near the Foundation of the Wall, he conveyed himself hastily away, and saved his Life. The Church is now rebuilt, Sir John Fleet, Knt. and Alderman made the Vestry.

THE Building is very plain, as well within as without, having neither Pillar nor Gallery; the Front of Free Stone, but it is of the Tuscan Order, and is well wainscotted round with right Wainscot, seven Feet and a half high.

THE

THE Altar-piece is old Painting upon Cloth; here are the Commandments, Lord's-Prayer, and Creed, above which is a Window, whereon is painted the King's Arms, with the Supporters, Helmet, Crest and Mantling, very large, and in fine Colours, as blue, red, &c. neal'd. Here are also the Arms of the Grocers Company, and those of the Lady Margaret Slany, to whom they were Executors, and gave this Window, Anno 1664.

THE Height of this Church is 24 Feet, Breadth 32, and Length 78 Feet in the whole.

THE Altitude of the Tower is about 70 Feet, wherein are six Bells to ring in Peal, besides a small one.

MONUMENTS.

IN this Church have been divers fair Monuments of the Dead; namely;

John Costin, Girdler, a great Benefactor: He deceased 1244; his Name remaineth painted in the Church Roof. He gave out of certain Tenements to the Poor of that Parish, an hundred Quarters of Charcoals, yearly, for ever.

Sir Robert Test, Knight of the Holy Sepulchre, and Dame Joan, his Wife, by her Will, dated 1487.

Robert Stone.

Gilbert Prince, Alderman.

Oliver Chorly, Gent.

Sir John Writhe (or Writhefly) Garter, Principal King at Arms; some Time laid under a fair Tomb in the Choir, now broken down and gone.

Joane, Wife to Thomas Writhefly, Son to Sir John Writhefly, Garter, Daughter and Heir to William Hall, Esq;

John Writhefly, the younger; Son to Sir John Writhefly, and Eleanor.

Eleanor, second Wife to John Writhefly, Daughter and Heir to Thomas Arnold, and Agnes his second Wife.

John Writhefly, Son of Thomas.

Agnes Arnold, first married to William Writhefly, Daughter to Richard Warmeford.

Barbara Hungerford, Daughter to Sir John Writhefly, Wife to Anthony Hungerford, Son to Sir Thomas Hungerford, of Dennampney, in the County of Glocester.

ALL these Names stand in Stow's first Edition, but omitted in the After-Editions, and removed among the Monuments of St. Giles's Church without Cripplegate.

John Bostocke, Esq;

Christopher Holt.

Sir Richard Tate, Knt. Ambassador for Henry VIII, buried there, 1554. His Monument remaineth yet; the rest being all pulled down, and swept out of the Church, the Church-wardens were forced to make a large Account, 12 s. that Year for Brooms, besides the Carriage away of Stone and Brasses, at their own Charge.

ON a handsome Tomb in the South Wall of the Choir is this Inscription:

Our Holt (alas!) hath stint his hold,
By Death call'd hence in haste,
Whose Christen Name being Christopher,
With Christ is better plac'd.
In Swanton born of gentle Race,
In LONDON spent his Days,
A Clerke that serv'd in Custome-house,
In Credit many wayes.
So that altho' we feele the losse
Of this so deare a Friend,
His Life spent well while he was here,
Hath gain'd a better End.

John Mun, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, who deceased the third Day of June 1615, gave towards the Repairing of this Church 100 l.

Mary Benam, lying here buried, gave 10 l. 4 s. for ever, yearly, to this Parish, and the Parish of St. Olave in Hartstreet; which is, in Monney, performed every Sunday, 2 s. in each Place to the Poor.

IN the South Wall of this Church, is a Monument with this Inscription:

Before this Plate lieth the Body of Emmie Charleton, Wife to Robert Charleton, Citizen and Fishmonger of LONDON; by whom she had Issue three Sons and four Daughters, and died in Childbed the 23d of June 1622, having been married ten Years, ten Months, and thirteen Days; and lived thirty-one Years, four Months, and odd Days. She was the youngest Daughter of Thomas Harby of Adstone in the County of Northampton, Esq; by his last Wife Catharine Throgmorton, Daughter of Clement Throgmorton, of Haseley in the County of Warwick, Esq; and of Catharine Nevyl, Sister to the then Lord Aburghsenie.

This Gentleman gave for a Sermon	01	00
In Bread to the Poor	01	00
To the Vestry for a Treat	02	10
To the Clerk and Sexton	00	05

All to be on St. Mark's Day, yearly. The Company of Ironmongers are the Trustees, and have the Care of disposing of the said Gift.

ON the North Wall of the Chancel, near the Communion Table, is a neat Marble Monument with this Inscription:

To the pious Memory of the late Reverend and Learned Daniel Fogg, D. D. He died the 5th of May 1728, in the 71st Year of his Age.

He was Minister of this Parish forty Years. He had the best of Characters, and deserved it. His Body lies in this Chancel; but his Memory will be had in everlasting Remembrance.

HERE are interred Mary his Wife, three Sons, Jonathan, Daniel, Thomas and Anne his Daughter; and Daniel the Son of Jonathan aforesaid. The Doctor was survived upwards of four Years by his second Wife Elizabeth, Daughter of Mr. John Aylworth, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, and Relict of Mr. Thomas Allen of LONDON, Gent. She died the 31st of March 1732, in the 73d Year of her Age: And by her own Appointment lies here interred.

THIS Parish hath a Parsonage House, wherein the Minister doth dwell, or lately did. It is observable, in the Parochial Visitation, Anno 1636, there was no Parsonage House.

THE Living is a Lay Impropriation, but a Rectory in its Nature, the Tithes being paid according to Act of Parliament, to the Incumbent, for his own Use. The Advowson is in the worshipful Company of Grocers, as Executors of the Lady Slany; and the Value of the Tithes is 100*l.* per Annum; but it is not rated in the King's Books.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Duncomb Bristowe; and the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Phips.

PRAYERS are every Day throughout the Year at Eleven in the Morning, and Four in the Afternoon. Gift Sermons; one on St. Stephen's Day, the Gift of Mr. Beuly; and one on St. Luke's Day. Seven Bells.

THE Vestry is Select.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are:

2 Church-wardens
2 Sidefmen.
2 Collectors for the Poor.

The WARD-OFFICERS are:

1 Common-Council Man
2 Constables
1 Scavenger.

SIX Boys are Taught to Read and Write, and when qualified, are put out Apprentices; with each of whom the Sum of 10*l.* is given, pursuant to the Will of Mr. William Winter.

Streets, Lanes, Courts, &c. in this Parish, are: Part of Fenchurch-street, Part of Mark-lane, Star-alley, London-street, and Part of Billiter-lane.

THE Number of Houses 100.

THE most remarkable Places in this Parish are the Ironmongers Hall, situated in Fenchurch-street; and the House of the Hudson's Bay Company, in the same Street, which House was new built the last Year (1732) in a very handsome Manner with Brick. The present Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company is Sir Bibye Lake, Baronet, who is also Sub-Governor of the African Company, as before-mentioned in Aldgate Ward. The other Directors are, &c.

James Jones, Esq; Deputy Governor.

Capt. John Fullertine.	Thomas Thorpe, Esq;
Mr. William Elderton.	Doctor Edward Hulfe.
Mr. Benjamin Pitt.	Capt. James Winter.
Mr. Thomas Knapp.

The PARISH of
St. MARY WOOLNETH.

ON the South Side of Lombard-street, at the Corner of Sherborn-lane, is seated the Parish-Church of St. Mary Woolnoth; it had the Name of St. Mary,

Hudson's Bay Company House.

St. Mary Woolnoth.

St. Mary, being dedicated to the Virgin Mary; but for the additional Appellation of Woolnoth, neither Stow, nor any one else, gives any Reason.

THIS Church was new built about the Year 1438, from the very Foundation, as it seems, for there was a Commission dated March 24, that Year, granted by Robert Gilbert, then Bishop of LONDON, to the Bishop of Enachdun in Ireland (a Bishoprick now united to some other in that Kingdom) for the Consecration thereof. By which Commission he impowered the said Bishop to consecrate, not only the Church, but also two Altars in it; one to the Honour of the Blessed Virgins St. Mary and St. Anne, and the other to St. John Baptist, and St. John Evangelist: And further, to assign the Feast of the Dedication of this Church to be on Thursday next after the Feast of St. Anne, the Mother of the immaculate Virgin, which is Thursday next after July 26.

Sir Hugh Brice, Goldsmith, Mayor, in the first of Henry VII, Keeper of the King's Exchange at LONDON, and one of the Governors of the King's Mint in the Tower of LONDON, under William Lord Hastings, in the fifth of Edward IV, deceased, built in the Church a Chapel, called the Charnel; as also Part of the Body of the Church, and of the Steeple, and gave Money towards the Finishing thereof, besides the Stone that he had prepared.

Sir Simon Eyre, a famous Merchant, some Time an Upholster, then a Draper, and Mayor of LONDON in 1445, the Founder of Leaden-hall, and a fair Chapel there, gave the Cardinal's Hat Tavern, in Lombard-street, with a Tenement annex'd on the East Part of it, and a Mansion-House behind the East Tenement, together with an Alley from Lombard-street to Cornhill with the Appurtenances, all which were by him new built, towards a Brotherhood of our Lady in this Church.

George Lufken, some Time Taylor to the Prince, built the Chapel of St. George in this Church.

HERE was a perpetual Chantry founded for the Souls of Gregory de Rokesley and Amicia his Wife, of which the Parishioners were Patrons, which Gregory was the same, who was Mayor of LONDON, from the Year 1275 to the Year 1282, and dying not long after, was buried in the Grey-fryars Church, in which Priory he built Chambers, and gave Beds to them.

ANOTHER perpetual Chantry was founded here at the Altar of the Blessed Virgin, and St. Anne, about the Year 1400, for the Souls of Thomas Nocket, Gregory Norton, and their Wives, and others their Relations, of which the Priorefs and Convent of St. Mary Clerkenwell were Patrons. But these two Chantries, it seems, were afterwards united, by reason whereof the Rector, Church-wardens, and chief Parishioners presented some Times, and some Time the said Priorefs and Convent of St. Mary Clerkenwell, as appears by the LONDON Registry.

THE Advowson of this Church was all along in the Gift of the Priorefs and Convent of St. Helen's LONDON, till their Suppression in the Reign of Henry VIII, who soon after, viz. in the 31st of his Reign, granted it to Sir Martin Bowes, in whose Family the Right of Patronage hath continued ever since.

THIS Church was burnt down in the great Fire, 1666, but rebuilt. Sir Robert Viner, Goldsmith, and Alderman of LONDON, contributed largely towards the Building; as a Memorial whereof there were Vines painted about that Part of the Church that fronted his House and the Street. Infomuch that the Church was used to be called Sir Robert Viner's Church.

THIS Church, with the Steeple, was pulled down in the Year 1716, by an Act of Parliament, impowering the Commissioners for Building 50 Churches to advance so much Money as would rebuild the said Church, and to be repaired out of the Surplus Money arising from St. Paul's. This Church was rebuilding from the Date before-mentioned, and finished so as to be opened on Easter-day, 1727.

IT is a beautiful and strong Building of Stone, the Steeple or Tower is square, adorned with Pillars and Pilasters of the Corinthian Order, the Roof is likewise square, and supported by twelve magnificent fluted Columns, three at each Angle, with Architrave Frieze and Cornice of the Corinthian Order. The Pews, Pulpit, Galleries, and Wainscot are of Oak finely finished and carved. The Altar-piece is of the same Timber, and adorned with the Decalogue, under which are the Creed and the Lord's Prayer, all done in Gold Letters upon Black.

PERSONS buried here:

Sir Hugh Brice, before-mentioned, was buried in the Body of this Church.

And Guy Brice, or Boyce, was also buried there. Dame Joan, Wife to Sir William Peach.

George Lufken.

Hugh Atton, Taylor.

Thomas Nocket, Draper, 1396.

Simon Eyre, 1459.

Thomas Fairfax, who by his Will, made Oct. 1, 1490, bequeathed to the high Altar in the Parish Church of St. Mary Woolnoth, one Diaper Table Cloth, and one Towel, and one Covering of a Bed of the best within his House.

John Moager, Pewterer and Emme his Wife, in St. John's Chapel.

Thomas Roch, and Andrew Michael, Vintners, and Joan their Wife.

William Hilton, Merchant Taylor, and Taylor to King Henry VIII, was buried there 1519, under the Chapel of St. George.

Robert Amades, Goldsmith, Master of the King's Jewels.

George Hasken.

Sir Thomas Ramsay, late Mayor.

Sir John Percivall, Knt. about Ann. 1504, and Dame Thomasine his Wife, were worthy Benefactors to this Parish, and lie here both buried.

THE several Wills made by them both in ancient Writing, are (to the Parish's great Commendation) very carefully kept and preserved in this Church, in a good Enclosure made for the Purpose, and to be turned open like Folding-Tables.

THIS Man being one of the Mayor of LONDON's Officers, and Carver at his Table. And when the Mayor (as the Custom of LONDON is) doth elect one of the Sheriffs of LONDON for the Year ensuing, by taking and drinking a Cup of Wine to such a Man as he pleaseth to name, the Mayor at that Time (whose Name was Sir Henry Collett, Knt. free of the Mercers) took the Cup of Wine, and drank to the aforesaid John Percivall, his Carver, standing bare-headed, waiting before him, and called him Sheriff of LONDON for the Year ensuing: Forthwith the said Mayor caused the same Percival to sit down at his own Table, and to cover his Head; and the same Percivall took upon him the Office of Sheriffalty, and afterward was Lord Mayor of LONDON, and Knighted.

THERE is a handsome Marble close Tomb under the Communoin Table with this Inscription:

Here lieth buried the Body of Sir Martin Bowes, Knight, Alderman, and Lord Mayor of LONDON, and also free of the Goldsmiths Company, Company, with Cicilie, Dame Anne, and Dame Elizabeth, his Wives. The which Sir Martin Bowes deceased the 4th Day of August, A.D. 1566. His Will also is there kept in a fair Table.

At the East End of the Chancel are these Monuments.

Here lieth interred the Body of Sir Thomas Ramsey, Knight, a most worthy Citizen, and lately Lord Mayor of LONDON; being free of the Grocers Company: With whom (by Will) he hath left a perpetual Relief for poor young Men, Retailers of the said Company, which he saw performed in his Life-time. He was a most careful Magistrate; walked in the Fear of God, and loved Peace. He lived 79 Years; and died (without Issue) in the Faith of JESUS CHRIST, the 19th Day of May, Anno Dom. 1590, whose godly End was a true Testimony of his virtuous Life.

Here lieth buried also Dame Alice, the first Wife of the said Sir Thomas Ramsey, she being eldest Daughter to Bevis Lea of Endfield in the County of Stafford, Gent. unto whom he was married 37 Years; and having lived 85 Years, she departed this Life the 18th Day of January, Anno Dom. 1577.

Dame Mary, the second Wife to the said Sir Thomas Ramsey, was eldest Daughter to William Dale of Bristol, Merchant, unto whom he was married twelve Years. In regard therefore of so worthy a Knight, and his two virtuous Ladies, this Monument is here placed, by the Executors to the said Sir Thomas Ramsey, the 18th Day of November, Anno Dom. 1596.

The MONUMENTS, of later Times, in the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth, were:

ON the North Side of the Communion Table, the Effigies of a Man, in white Marble, leaning on his Left Arm, representing Thomas Viner, Esq; Son of Sir Robert Viner, Knight and Baronet, February 5, 1666.

ON the South Side of the Table over-against this was the like Effigies in white Marble, of one leaning on the Right Arm, in his Livery Gown, being the aforesaid Sir Robert Viner, Goldsmith, Alderman, Sheriff, and Mayor of this City, deceased May 11, 1665.

AGAINST the East Wall was a Monument for Sir William Phipps, Knight; who, in the Year 1687, by his great Industry, discovered among the Rocks, near the Bank of Bahama, on the North Side of Hispaniola, a Spanish Plate Ship, which had been under Water 44 Years; out of which he took in Gold and Silver to the Value of 300,000 l. Sterling; and with a Fidelity equal to his Conduct, brought it all to LONDON; where it was divided between himself, and the rest of the Adventurers. Died Feb. 18, 1694.

In the Middle Isle:

William Dunker, of LONDON, Merchant, July 19, 1685; and Mary his Wife, December 30, 1688.

Joseph Hornby; Son of Joseph Hornby, and Judith his Wife, 1670.

Edward Burton, M. A. of University College, Oxon; November 19, 1700.

IN this Church also, since the Fire of LONDON, was buried a very eminent Merchant of LONDON, and as eminent for his Plainness and Piety, Mr. James Houblon; the Father of two worthy Citizens, Knights, Sir John and Sir James Houblon, Aldermen of the City, and some Time the City's Representatives in Parliament, besides several other Sons, Men of Reputation, Wealth, and Integrity. His Family descended from Confessors on both Sides. He married the Daughter of Mr. Ducane. Died at the Age of ninety, being born July 2, 1592, and deceased 1682. He had no Monument; but as well for the Preservation of the Memory of so good a Man, as for the Composer, S. Pepys, Esq; some Time the expert Secretary of the Admiralty, let this be his lasting Epitaph:

JACOBUS HOUBLON,

Londinas PETRI Filius,

Ob fidem Flandria exulantis:

Ex C. nepotibus habuit LXX. superstites:

Filios V. videns Mercatores florentissimos;

Ipse Londinensis Bursæ Pater;

Piissime obiit Nonagenarius,

A. O. D. CIIICLXXXII.

THIS Parish of St. Mary Woolnoth is united by Act of Parliament to the Parish of St. Mary Woolchurch, which stood where Stocks-Market now is, and was called Woolchurch, because the Tronage of Wool was in the Church-yard, a Beam being there formerly set up for weighing of Wool.

Woolchurch-haw (or Yard) is mentioned in the Reign of King Edward II, above 400 Years ago.

THE Living of these united Parishes is a Rectory, in the Gift of Mr. Bowes, valued by Act of Parliament, at 150 l. per Ann. the first is rated in the King's Books at 25 l. the latter at 18 l. 13 s. 4 d.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Samuel Angier, and the Lecturer the Reverend Dr. James Finley.

PRAYERS are daily at 10 in the Morning, and three in the Afternoon during the Winter; and at four in the Afternoon, during the Summer Half-year: Here is a good Organ and three Bells.

THE Gift Sermons begin on St. Martin's Day, and continue commonly half the Year. Here is also a Preparation Sermon on the Friday preceding every first Sunday in the Month.

THE Vestry is General.

The PARISH OFFICERS of St. Mary Woolnoth, are,	The WARD OFFICERS are,
2 Church-Wardens.	2 Common-Council Men, sometimes but one.
2 Sidesmen.	2 Inquests.
2 Collectors for the Poor.	2 Constables.
	1 Scavenger.

THE Parish and Ward-Officers for St. Mary Woolchurch, are the like.

Streets, Lanes, &c. in the first Parish are:

PART of Lombard-street, Part of Sherborn-lane, Part of Dove-court, Part of Bearbinder-lane, Six Bell-alley, Exchange-alley, Pope's Head-alley, Swan and Hoop-alley, Part of Swithin-lane, Part of Abchurch-lane.

Number of Houses 89.

Streets, Lanes, &c. in St. Mary Woolchurch Parish, in this Ward, are:

Part of Stocks-Market, of Bearbinder-lane, of Dove-court, and of Lombard-street, with some Places in four other Wards, viz. in Cornhill, Walbrook, Cheap, and Broad-street Wards.

Number of Houses 64.

Present State of Langborn
Ward.

As to the present State of Langborn Ward, it consists of these following Streets, Lanes and Alleys, in Whole or in Part:

Lombard-street, on the North Side thereof, beginning 100 Feet from the West Corner thereof, and extending Eastward within 35 Feet of the West Side of Gracechurch-street: And on the South Side from within 125 Feet of the West Corner of the Street to Gracechurch-street. Fenchurch-street, on the North Side, from Gracechurch-street in the West, unto Smith's-buildings, on the North Side of the East End, and unto Mark-lane, on the South Side. Besides these two main Streets, these following: St. Swithin's-lane, Abchurch-lane, St. Nicholas-lane, St. Clement's-lane; all which are on the South Side of Lombard-street; and on the North Side are Pope's Head-alley, Exchange-alley, Birchin-lane, and George-yard. Then in Fenchurch-street on the North Side, Lime-street, Collum-street, and Smith's-buildings: And on the South Side Philpot-lane, Rood-lane, Mincing-lane, and Mark-lane: In all which said Streets, Lanes and Alleys, there are several Courts; and of these in Order.

Lombard-street, is throughout graced with good and lofty Buildings, among which are many that surpass those in other Streets, and is generally inhabited by Goldsmiths, Bankers, and other eminent Tradesmen. At the East End near Gracechurch-street, on the North Side, is the Church of Albhalows, already described, one of the Peculiars of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Ball-alley, not broad, but somewhat long, hath an Entrance by Albhalows Church, and with some Turnings falls into the Cross-keys Inn; from whence it hath a Passage into Gracechurch-street. Near this was the George Inn; since the Fire rebuilt with very good Houses, well inhabited; and Warehouses; being a large open Yard, and now called George-yard: At the farther End of which is the George and Vulture Tavern; which is a large House, and of great Trade, having a Passage into St. Michael's-alley, and so strait forward into Cornhill; on the Right Hand the Passage leads into Gracechurch-street; on the Left into Birchin-lane through Castle-alley, and also through White-lyon-court.

Then next on the North Side is the Church of St. Edmund Lombard-street, which fronts St. Clement's-lane on the South. It is another Peculiar of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

A little farther West on the same Side of the Way is Birchin-lane, which runs into Cornhill, a great Thoroughfare to and from the Exchange. It is well inhabited, especially by Salesmen for Mens Apparel. In this Lane are several Courts, and Alleys, viz. Exchange-alley, Castle-alley, and White Lyon-court, but are in Cornhill Ward.

But now for the South Side of Lombard-street, betwixt Gracechurch-street and St. Clement's-lane, are these Courts and Alleys, viz. White Hart-court, which hath a Passage through an Entry into another Court so called, which leadeth into Gracechurch-street, a Place well inhabited by Wholesale Dealers, and most by Quakers, where they have their Meeting-house; but of this Court the greatest Part is in Bridge Ward Within, that which is in this Ward being next to Lombard-street. Plough-yard, hath a good Free Stone Pavement, and the Houses well built and inhabited. Three Kings-court, well inhabited by Wholesale Dealers and others; out of this Court is a Passage into two others, the one leading into St. Clement's-lane, narrow and ordinary; but the other is large and open, and well Tenanted; and this Court hath a Passage into Nag's Head-court, which is long and large, and another Passage into St. Clement's-lane. George-alley, but small.

STEPPING over the Way again to the North Side, Westward of Birchin-lane, are these following Places. Exchange-alley, which passeth strait through into Cornhill. Pope's Head-alley hath a good Passage into Cornhill: Here is Bridge's Coffeehouse and Warehouse.

On the other Side the Way, is the General Post-Office. Post-Office, which was the Dwelling House of Sir Robert Viner, Goldsmith, Alderman of the City of LONDON, and built by him on the Ground where stood a great Tavern before the Fire in 1666. This is a large and strong brick Building, with good Rooms and convenient Offices in it: the first Entrance from Lombard-street is through a great Gate and broad Passage into a handsome Court-yard, paved with Free Stone, encompassed by the Buildings of the House; behind which is a Yard for Stabling and Coach-Houses; where there is a Back Gate into Sherborn-lane.

At this Office, Letters are received from; and sent abroad to most Parts of Europe, as;

To France, Spain, Italy, Flanders, Germany, Sweden, Denmark, Kent, and the Downs, every Monday.

To the United Provinces, Germany, Sweden, Denmark, and all Parts of England, Scotland and Ireland, every Tuesday.

To Kent and the Downs, every Wednesday.

To Spain, Italy, France, and all Parts of England and Scotland, every Thursday.

To Germany, Holland, Flanders, Denmark, Sweden, Kent, and the Downs every Friday; and on Saturday to all Parts of England, Scotland and Ireland.

And where-ever the Court is, the Post goes thither, and to the Downs, when the Fleet is there, every Day.

And Letters are received back from several Parts on these Days:

Tuesdays and Fridays from Holland and France.

Mondays and Thursdays from Flanders.

Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from Ireland; and once a Week from Portugal, and Spain.

For the Establishment of this Office, an Act of Parliament passed Anno 12 Car. II. Chap. 35. whereby the Rates in Proportion to the Distances and Bulk were settled. Mr. John Westgarth, 50 l.

Mr. John Woolfe, 40 l.

NEXT adjoining to this Office, on one Side, is St. Mary Woolnoth's Church, before described; and a little from it on the other is Dove-court, a handsome square Place, with a Free-stone Pavement, having a Passage into Bearbinder-lane, and another into the Upper End of Swithin-lane, near its falling into Sherborn-lane, and another into Lombard-street; but Part of this Court, as also Swithin-lane, and Bearbinder-lane, are in Walbrook Ward.

OUT of Lombard-street, on the South Side, Sherborn-lane, Abchurch-lane, St. Nicholas-lane, and St. Clement's-lane take their Rise, and run Southward into Cannon-street.

Sherborn-lane hath the greatest Part in Walbrook Ward, where it is taken Notice of.

Abchurch-lane hath the greatest Part in Candlewick Ward, where it is treated of; but in that Part of it, which is in this Ward, is the famous Tavern called Pontack's, from one of that Name, who formerly kept it. This House, now kept by Mrs. Austin, has been always so noted for its Elegance in Entertainments, that it is not only made Use of by the rich Merchants, among whom it is seated, but very frequently by Persons of the First Quality from the Court End of the Town.

THE next is St. Nicholas-lane, well built and inhabited by Merchants and Wholesale Dealers. The South End beyond Fox's Ordinary, is in Candlewick Ward. On the West Side, near Lombard-street, is a small Alley without a Name, and a little more Southwards, is the Churchyard of St. Nicholas Acons, which Church, as before-said, was not rebuilt after the Fire of L O N D O N, but the Parish united to St. Edmund the King's in Lombard-street.

MORE South, on the same Side of the Way, is Fox's-court, or Ordinary, so called from a public Eating-House formerly there kept; it is a handsome Place, with good built Houses, well inhabited by Merchants and Persons of Repute. Near this Court is the Bell Tavern, which hath a Passage through Bell-alley into Cannon-street.

MORE East from Nicholas-lane is St. Clement's-lane, well built and inhabited. The South Part, which is next Cannon-street, is in Candlewick Ward; viz. from the North Side of St. Clement's Eastcheap Church, which Church is described in Candlewick Ward.

ADJOINING to this is a handsome Place called Church-alley; the North Side having a Row of Houses, the South Side lying open to the Church and Church-yard.

A little more Northward, and on the same Side, is Nag's-head-court, a very large Place, well built and inhabited, having a Passage into Gracechurch-street. About the Middle of this Court is an open square Place, well built and inhabited also. Out of this Court is likewise a Passage into Three-king's-court, which is a good square Place, well tenanted; and out of this Court are two others, which bear the same Name of Nag's-head-court, the one leading to Lombard-street, and the other into St. Clement's-lane. And thus much for Lombard-street.

THEN farther East is Fenchurch-street, a Street of good Account, being large, well built, and inhabited by Merchants, and others. It is of a good Length, beginning near Aldgate, and running Westward into Gracechurch-street.

At the West Corner of this Street is the Church of St. Bennet Grafschurch; but not in this Ward.

THE Courts, Alleys, and Places of Name in the Part of the Street in this Ward, are as follow, beginning at the West End:

First, The Ram-head-Inn, but small and ordinary.

Ingram's-court, an open Place, with two good Houses on each Side, built in the Place of Sir Thomas Ingram's House, the Owner thereof.

Bell-yard, but small.

THE Mitre Tavern, a new, handsome built House, and well accustomed.

St. Dionis Backchurch, before-mentioned, by the Corner of which is the Turning into Lime-street, running Northwards into Leadenhall-street, against St. Mary Axe; at which End it is narrower than in the Midst. A Street taken up by several Merchants; but the Part in this Ward goeth not much farther than Collum-street, the greatest Part being in Lime-street Ward, where it is spoken of.

BUT to return to Fenchurch-street:

EASTWARD of Lime-street is St. Paul's-alley; at the upper End of which are two or three good Houses.

Hartford-court hath very handsome Houses, and a Free-stone Pavement.

Collum-street, very open and large, with good new built Houses, well inhabited, which, with a turning Passage Westward, falls into Lime-street: It takes its Name from Sir Collum, Knt. the Owner thereof. In this Street is the Ipswich-Arms-Inn, well built.

Fen-court, very handsome and broad, with a Free-stone Pavement; the Houses are large and gracefully built, fit for Merchants, &c. who there inhabit. It hath a good Air, as lying open to Gardens on the West Side.

Culver-court, but small.

Smith's-Buildings hath a narrow Entrance, with a Free-stone Pavement; but at the upper End, the Court maketh an open Square, with very good Buildings, well inhabited: And this Court hath a good handsome open Passage into Lime-street, West.

NEXT to Smith's-Rents, or Buildings, is Ironmonger's-Hall, an old Building. The Fire of LONDON stopping at this Part of Fenchurch-street, Billiter-lane, Leadenhall-street, and all the Eastern and Northern Parts from thence; all which want new Building. In this Hall the Turkey Company of Merchants have their Meetings, and keep their Courts.

IN the South Side of Fenchurch-street are these Places of Name, beginning Eastward:

Mark-lane, or Mart-lane, over-against Billiter-lane, a long Street: But the Part in this Ward begins Southward of St. Alkallow's Staining Church, which it takes in, and all the West Side to Fenchurch-street, the rest being in Tower-street Ward.

THIS Alkallows Staining is obscurely seated, lying backward from the Street, the Passage to it being through Star-alley, which hath a turning Passage into Fenchurch-street: This Alley hath old built Houses on the North Side, on the South whereof is the Church. The Parish is in the Diocese of LONDON, the Abbot of Tour-hill, in antient Times, was Patron.

WEST of Mark-lane, is Mincing, or Minchion-lane, which hath little or no Part in this Ward; it lieth in Tower-street Ward, where it must be sought for.

Mediford-court, a very handsome large Court, with graceful new built Houses of Brick, well inhabited, especially the upper Part, or End, where the Houses are more spacious, for the Reception of Merchants.

FROM this Court to Rood-lane, are several large Houses built backwards, with Court-yards before them, and great Gates to the Street to shut up, being the Seats of Merchants; as Sir Thomas Cook, Knt. Alderman, some Time Governor of the East India Company, and Sheriff of LONDON.

Rood-lane hath also but a small Part in this Ward, the greatest being in Billingsgate Ward, but in this Part is Collum's-court, which is but small.

WESTWARD of Rood-lane is Cradle-court, which is but small, with a Free-stone Pavement.

Philpot-lane; it falleth into Great Eastcheap, a Place pretty well supplied with Inhabitants: Amongst which are several Merchants.

THE South Part of this Ward, Northwards of Coopers Hall, is in Billingsgate Ward. On the West Side is Braben-court, which is large, well built and inhabited; and on the East Side is Moses-court, which is but narrow and ordinary.

THERE are to watch at the several Stands in this Ward every Night, a Constable, the Beadle, and 34 Watchmen.

THE Jury returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward, are to serve as Jurors in the several Courts in Guildhall, in the Month of November.

IT hath an Alderman, and his Deputy; Common Council-Men 8, Constables 15, Scavengers 9, Men of the Wardmote Inquest 17, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the 15, in the Exchequer at 20 l. 9 s. 8 d. In LONDON at 21 l.

THE Alderman is Sir Henry Hankey.

CHAP. IX.

BILLINGSGATE WARD.

Billingsgate Ward.

BILLINGSGATE Ward beginneth at the West End of Tower-street Ward in Thames-street, about Smart's-key, and runneth down along that Street, on the South Side, to St. Magnus Church, at the Bridge Foot, and on the North Side of the said Thames-street, from over-against Smart's-key, till over-against the North West Corner of St. Magnus Church afore said.

ON this North Side of Thames-street is St. Mary-hill-lane, up to St. Margaret's Church, and then Part of St. Margaret's Pattens-street, at the End of St. Mary-hill-lane. Next out of Thames-street is Lucas-lane, and then Botolph-lane; and at the North End thereof Philpot-lane. Then is there Rother-lane, of old Time so called; and cross the same Lane is Little Eastcheap; and these are the Bounds of this Billingsgate Ward.

TOUCHING the principal Ornaments within this Ward. On the South Side of Thames-street, beginning at the East End thereof, there is first the said Smart's-key, so called from one Smart some Time Owner thereof.

THE

Billingsgate.

THE next is Billingsgate, whereof the whole Ward taketh its Name, the which (leaving out the Fable thereof, faining it to be built by King Belin, a Briton, long before the Incarnation of CHRIST) is at this present a large Water-gate, Port, or Harbour for Ships and Boats, commonly arriving there with Fish, both Fresh and Salt, Shell-Fish, Salt, Oranges, Onions, and other Fruits and Roots.

TOUCHING the antient Customs of this Billingsgate, I have not read, saith Stow, in any Record, more than that in the Reign of Edward III. every great Ship landing there, paid for Standage two Pence; every little Ship with Orelocks, a Penny; the less Boat called a Battle, a Half-penny. Of two Quarters of Corn measured, the King was to have one Farthing; of a Comb of Corn, a Penny; of every Weight going out of the City, a Half-penny; of two Quarters of Sea Coals measured, a Farthing; and of every Tun of Ale going out of England beyond the Seas, by Merchant Strangers, four Pence; of every thousand Herrings, a Farthing, except the Franchises.

ALTHO' Stow saith these Payments were not made before the Reign of Edward III. yet it appears in Brompton's Chronicle, inter Leges Ethelredi, which was Ann. 1016, that Tolls were then paid at Billingsgate.

AN Act of Parliament was made (10 and 11 of William III.) to make Billingsgate a free Market for the Sale of Fish; when it was enacted, "That after the 10th of May 1699, Billingsgate Market should be every Day in the Week; (except Sunday) a free and open Market for all Sorts of Fish. And that it should be lawful for any Person to buy or sell any Sort of Fish without Disturbance.

THIS Act also settled the Tolls to be paid by the Fisher-Boats; enacting, "That after the said 10th of May, no Person selling any Sort of Fish in the said Market, should pay any other Toll, or Duty to any Person or Persons, for coming with his Boat or Vessel, or landing, standing, or selling, in, or at this Market, than it was hereafter expressed, viz. For every Vessel of Salt, Fish, for Groundage, 8 d. per Day, and 20 d. per Voyage, and no more, in full of all Duties and Demands, to be distributed and disposed of, as the Lord Mayor, &c. shall yearly order and direct, according to the Right of the respective Persons thereunto. For a Lobster-Boat for Groundage per Day 2 d. and per Voyage 13 d. and no more, in full as aforesaid. For every Vessel of fresh Sea-Fish, Groundage per Day, 2 d. and per Voyage 13 d. For every Dogger-Boat or Smack, with Sea-Fish, for Groundage per Day 2 d. and per Voyage 13 d. For every Oyster-Vessel, or Cock, per Day 2 d. for Meutage one Half-penny per Bushel.

"And that it should be lawful for any Person that bought any Fish in the said Market, to sell the same again in any other Market, Place, or Places in the City of LONDON, or elsewhere, by Retale, being sound and wholesome Fish, without any Disturbance or Molestation. AND that from and after the 10th of May, that Person that should take or demand any Toll or Sample, or any Imposition, or Set-price of Sea-Fish, of English catching, should forfeit the Sum of 10 l. the one Half to his Majesty, and the other Half to him that will sue for the same.

AND because the Fishmongers caused the greatest Part of the Fish to be bought up at Billingsgate, and then divided the same by Lot among themselves, in order to buy and sell at what Rate they pleased, it was also enacted, "That no Person whatsoever, should, after the said 10th of May, buy, or cause to be bought at the said Market of Billingsgate, any Quantity of Fish, to be divided by Lot, among any Fishmongers, or other Persons, with an Intent to be put afterwards to Sale by Retale, or otherwise. Nor any Fishmonger to engross or buy in the said Market, any Quantity of Fish, but what shall be for his own Sale or Use, and not on the Behalf of any other Fishmongers exposed to Sale, on Pain of forfeiting 20 l. for every such Offence, the one Half to the Use of the Poor of the Parish where he lives, the other Half to his own Use that shall sue for it, provided nothing contained in this Act should be construed to prohibit the Selling of Mackarel before or after Divine Service.

AFTERWARDS, upon the Ingrossing of great Quantities of Fish by some Persons, to the Violation of this Act; this Order came forth Anno 1707, Sir Robert Bedingfield, Lord Mayor.

WHEREAS in and by an Act of Parliament made in the 10th and 11th Years of the Reign of King William III. intituled, An Act to make Billingsgate a Free Market for Sale of Fish, It is enacted, That it shall, and may be lawful for any Person or Persons, to buy or sell any Sort of Fish, in the said Market, without any Disturbance or Molestation whatsoever, and to sell the same again in any other Market-place or Places within the City of LONDON, or elsewhere by Retale. But contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of the said Act, divers Persons do frequently buy and ingross to themselves great Quantities of Fish, in, or at Billingsgate Market, and sell the same again in the said Market; which Practice tends greatly to the Enhancing the Prices of Fish, and is punishable by the Statute made against Regrators, in the fifth and sixth Years of the Reign of King Edward VI. Chap. 14.

FOR Prevention whereof for the future, It is now ordered by this Court, That no Fishmonger, Fishwoman, or other Person or Persons whatsoever, do, or shall hereafter sell or expose to Sale any Fish, in, or at Billingsgate Market, which was then before bought in the same Market; and that none but Fishermen, their Wives, Apprentices or Servants, be permitted to stand, stay or remain there to sell by Retale the Fish by them taken, and brought to the said Market to be sold, so that the Citizens may have Fish at the first Hand for their own Use, according to the true Meaning of the Law: And it is further ordered by this Court, That the Hours limited for Beginning of the said Fish-Market at Billingsgate, shall hereafter be strictly observed, (that is to say) from Lady-day to Michaelmas, at four of the Clock in the Morning, and from Michaelmas to Lady-day, at six o'Clock in the Morning; and that before those Hours none do presume to buy or sell any Sort of Fish at the said Market, (except Herrings, Sprats, Mackarel and Shell-Fish) on Pain of being proceeded against as Foretallers of the Market: And the Yeomen of the Waterside are strictly enjoined and required to see this Order duly and constantly observed; and also, constantly to ring the Bell at Billingsgate precisely at the Times aforesaid, for the Beginning of the Market there; and that without fail they cause all Persons that shall buy or sell Fish there, before the said Hours, and Ringing of the said Bell, or shall regrate Fish, (that is to say, buy Fish, and sell the same again in the said Market) to be apprehended, and brought before the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor of this City, for the Time being, or some Justice of the Peace, to be bound over to

the

the Sessions, there to answer the same: And it is further ordered, That no Fish (except Herrings, Sprats, Mackarel and Shell-Fish) be sold aboard any Vessel or Boat at Billingsgate; which the said Yeomen of the Water-side, and the Under-Water-Bailiff are likewise carefully to see observed, as they will answer the contrary at their Perils.

G I B S O N.

NEXT to this is Somer's-key, which likewise took that Name from one Somer, who dwelt there, as did Lion-key from one Lion, Owner thereof, and since the Sign of the Lion.

Culver-key, juxta Billingsgate, is mentioned in the Bishop of LONDON's Register.

THEN is there a fair Wharf or Key, called Botolph's-gate, by that Name so called in the Times of William the Conqueror, and of Edward the Confessor, as is shewn already in the Description of the Gates.

Botolph-wharf was in the Crown in Edward I's Time, who granted it to Richard de Kingston in these Words: "Our common Key of St. Botolph "next Billingsgate, LONDON, with free going in and out to the same, in the East Head of "the same Place. Which Place hath Land contained from the Tenement of the said Richard "against the West, and to the Head of the said "Church, and the common Way which leadeth "to the Thames against the West, 18 Ells and "one Quarter of an Ell, of the Iron Ell of our "Sovereign Lord the King of England, without "Inches measured: And it containeth in both "Heads, from the Wall of the said Church unto "our common Key, in Breadth six Ells of the "Ell aforesaid, without Inches measured. To "have and to hold to the said Richard and his "Heirs, and to whom he will give, sell, bequeath, assign, or any other mannerwise alien, "and their Heirs, of us, our Successors, &c. "freely, quietly, well and in Peace, &c. yielding therefore a Silver Penny at the Feast of the "Nativity of St. John Baptist, for all Services, &c.

NEXT to this is:

The PARISH of St. BOTOLPH BILLINGSGATE.

The Parish of
St. Botolph
Billingsgate.

THE Church that belonged to this Parish stood over-against St. Botolph-lane End, on the South Side of Thames-street: Stow saith it was a proper Church, and seems to have been very antient; for, he saith, Botolph's-gate, which was known by that Name, in the Time of Edward the Confessor, was so called from the Parish-Church of St. Botolph near adjoining.

THIS Church of St. Botolph was given to the Canons of St. Paul's (as also the Church of St. Martin, juxta Candlewick-street) by Ordgarus or Ordgarus; for by the Register of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's it appears, That in the Reign of King Richard I. John Bocumter and Dionysia his Wife, sued the Canons of St. Paul's before the King's Justices for the aforesaid two Churches of St. Botolph and St. Martin: But upon Inspection of a Charter of the said Canons, whereby it appeared, that they had the said Churches by the Gift of the said Ordgarus, his Sons, and Christina the Mother of the said Dionysia, they renounced their Suit, and quitted all Claim to the said Churches under their Seals, and the said Canons thereupon promised yearly to celebrate the Obits of the said John and Dionysia, and also of the said Ordgarus; all which was done in pleno Hustingo per Concessionem & Licentiam Dom. Ranulphi de Glanvill, Dom. Regis Justic.

VOL. I.

IN the Year 1636, the Profits of this Church were returned as follows:

	l.	s.	d.
Tythes	120	00	0
Casualties	15	00	0
A Parsonage House	10	00	0

BUT being burnt down in the dreadful Fire of LONDON, Anno 1666, it was annex'd to that of St. George Botolph-lane, which is now made the Parochial-Church to the Inhabitants of both these Parishes; and the Site of the former Church remains now only as a Burying-Place for the Inhabitants of that Parish.

IN the Year 1693, the Church-wardens, in their Presentment, say, That most Part of the Ground whereon the Chancel stood was, since the Fire, taken by Sir Josiah Child into the Passage to Botolph-wharf; for which he was to pay 100*l.*

AND upon Part of that Ground where the Body of the Church stood, there is an House built by Lease from the Parish, which had 200*l.* Fine, and have a Ground Rent of 6*l.* per Ann.

ABOUT the Year 1677, a Vault was built for the Burial of their Dead in Part of their Church-yard; and, for the Benefit of the Poor, a Shop or Shed was built thereon, and leased out, Jan. 28, 1627, by the then Church-wardens, at 4*l.* per Ann. Rent.

ALSO upon a Faculty obtained from the Bishop of LONDON, another Vault was built in another Part of the said Church-yard, and the Church-wardens and Parishioners, having Power, by the said Faculty, to build or erect a Covering or Shed over this Vault, did, for the Benefit of their Poor, at a publick Vestry, on the 22d of March 1692-3, order the same Person who had the other Shop to be treated with, for building a Shop or Shed over the said Vault, and did thereupon agree with him and let him a Lease thereof for 61 Years, in Consideration of a Fine of 150*l.*

MONUMENTS in this Church were, for

Thomas Snodland, some Time Parson of the Parish; who gave certain Lands and Tenements by his Last Will, for the Maintenance of a Chaplain here, to celebrate for ever Divine Service, for the Soul of the said Thomas, and for all other Souls, & pro salubri statu fratrum fraternitatis Capellæ in Ecclesia prædict. i.e. and for the healthful Estate of the Brethren of the Guild of the Chapel in the Church aforesaid. This was confirmed by King Edward III. in the 44th of his Reign, about 1370.

Roger Cogger; 1384.

Andrew Pinkeman, and Joan his Wife, 1391.

Nicholas James; Ironmonger, one of the Sheriffs, 1423.

John Rainwell, Fishmonger, and William Rainwell, his Father. The said John Rainwell was Mayor, 1426, and dying 1445, was buried there, with this Epitaph:

Citizens of LONDON,
call to your Remembrance
The famous John Rainwell, some Time your Mayor,
Of the Staple of Callis,
so was his Chance.
Here lieth now his Corpse,
his Soul bright and fair,
Is taken to Heaven's Bliss, thereof is no Despair.

His Acts bear Witness,
by Matters of Record,
How charitable he was,
and of what Accord:
No Man hath been so beneficial as he,
Unto the City
in giving Liberally.

HE gave a Stone House to be a Revelry to that Church for ever: More, he gave Lands and Tenements to the Use of the Commonalty, that the Mayor and Chamberlain should satisfy, unto the Discharge of all Persons inhabiting within the Wards of Billingsgate, Downgate, and Aldgate, as oft as it shall happen any Fifteen, by Parliament to be granted. Also to the Exchequer, in Discharge of the Sheriffs, 10*l.* yearly, which the Sheriffs used to pay for the Farm of Southwark, so that all Men of the Realm, coming or passing with Carriage, should be free quitted and discharged of all Toll and other Payments, aforetime claimed by the Sheriffs.

FARTHER, That the Mayor and Chamberlain shall pay, yearly, to the Sheriffs, 8*l.* so that the said Sheriffs take no manner of Toll or Money of any Person of this Realm, for their Goods, Merchandizes, Victuals and Carriages, for their Passages at the great Gate of the Bridge of the City, nor at the Gate called the Draw-bridge, &c.

THE Overplus Money coming from the said Lands and Tenements, divided into even Portions, the one Part to be employed to store the Granaries of the City with Wheat, for the Relief of the poor Commonalty; and the other Moiety to clear and cleanse the Shelves and other Stoppages of the River Thames, &c.

Stephen Forster, Fishmonger, Mayor, in the Year 1454, and Dame Agnes his Wife, lie buried there.

William Bacon, Haberdasher, one of the Sheriffs 1480, was buried there; besides many other Persons of good Account, whose Monuments are all destroyed.

John Steward, Tallowchandler, and Sheriff of LONDON, 1456.

Cardina, Uxor Johannis Stroder, Mil. & Johanne, ejus filia, Ob. 1471.

Christopher Langton, Dr. of Physick, Ob. 1578.

IN the Wall of the South Isle, was a Monument, with this Inscription:

Anna Saris, nuper Uxor Johannis Saris, Armigeri, Filia Gulielmi Meggs, Armigeri, quam suscepit ex conjuge secunda Dorothea, filia venerabilis Dominæ Anne Cambel, adhuc superstitis, ex hac vita Migravit, Feb. 21, Ann. Dom. 1622.

For a Sermon on the 5th of November, 1*l.*

Somewhat to the Clerk and Sexton, and the rest to be disposed by the Parishioners.

THE Parish of St. Botolph, faith Stow, is no great Thing, notwithstanding divers Strangers were there harboured in his Time, as may appear by a Presentment then made, of Strangers Inhabitants in the Ward of Billingsgate, in these Words:

"IN Billingsgate Ward were one and fifty Households of Strangers; whereof thirty of these “ these Houſholds inhabited in the Pariſh of St.

 “ Botolph, in the chief and principal Houſes,
 “ where they give 20 l. a Year for a Houſe, late“ ly Let for four Marks: The nearer they dwell
 “ to the Water-ſide, the more they give for “ Houſes; and within thirty Years before, there “ was not in the whole Ward above three Ne- “ therlanders, at which Time, there was within
 “ the ſaid Pariſh levied for the Help of the Poor,
 “ 27 l. by the Year; but ſince they came ſo “ plentifully thither, there cannot be gathered “ above 11 l. for the Strangers will not contri“ bute to ſuch Charges as other Citizens do.

ON the North Side of this Ward is Boſſe- alley, ſo called from a Boſſe of Spring Water continually running, which ſtood by Billingsgate, againſt this Alley, and was ſome Time made by the Executors of Richard Whittington.

IN this Ward there was a Houſe called The Boar's Head, inhabited by William Sanderson, which came to King Edward VI. by the Statute about Chantries: Which, with the Shops, Cellars, Solers, and other Commodities and Easements, he ſold in the 2d of his Reign, (together with other Lands and Tenements) to John Sicklemore, and Walter Williams, for 2668 l. and upwards.

THEN is St. Mary-hill-lane, which runneth up North from Billingsgate, to the End of St.
Margaret-Pattens, commonly called Rood-lane;
 and the greateſt Half of that Lane is alſo of Bill- ingsgate Ward.

The P A R I S H of St. M A R Y - H I L L.

St. Mary-Hill. IN this St. Mary-hill-lane, is the Pariſh-Church of St. Mary, called on the Hill, becauſe of the Aſcent from Billingsgate.

It is ſo called in Memory of the bleſſed Vir- gin: The firſt Foundation of a Church here is uncertain; but the laſt Church before the Fire, (to the Charge of Building whereof Robert Re- vel, Eſq; Sheriff 1490, gave liberally) was built about the Year 1497, as Stow ſaith, from the firſt
 Hint given by Robert Fabian, in theſe Words:

“ IN the Year 1497, in the Month of April,
 “ as Labourers digged for the Foundation of a “ Wall, within the Church of St. Mary-Hill, “ near unto Billingsgate, they found a Coffin of “ rotten Timber, and therein the Corpſe of a “ Woman, whole of Skin, and of Bones undiſ-“ ſepered, and the Joints of her Arms pliable, “ without breaking of the Skin; upon whoſe
 “ Sepulchre this was engraven:

IN this Place lieth the Bodies of Richard Hackney, Fiſhmonger, and Alice his Wife. The which Richard was Sheriff in the 15th of Ed- ward II.

HER Body was kept above Ground three or four Days without Nuiſance; but then it waxed unfavoury, and ſo was again buried.

By the above Inſcription it appears that Body had lain in the Ground from the Year 1322, (the 15th of Edward II.) which was 175 Years before the Time of Rebuilding the Church, viz. in 1497, and conſequently ſo old the former Church muſt at leaſt have been.

THE laſt Church was by the fatal Flames of 1666, reduced to Rubbiſh, except Part of the Walls, which yet ſtand in this new Church, rebuilt at the Charge of the Publick, as the other Churches that had the ſame Fate were, and was finiſhed in the Year 1672.

THE Nature and Order of the Building is as follows: The Front, towards the Hill, is Stone;
 the reſt of the Walls Stone, cover'd with a Fi-niſhing. The Tower is alſo of Stone, and the Roof is cover'd with Lead: The Inſide thereof, over the Middle Iſle, is a little Arching, in the Middle whereof is a handſome Cupola. The Roofs of the Side Iſles are flat, and loweſt at the four Angles, ſupported by four Columns, which are properly of no Order at all, but of a Species compounded of the Dorick and Corinthian, as are two Pilasters at Each End of the Church.
 The Floor of the Chancel is one Step higher than that of the Church, and the Foot Pace of the Altar aſcends two Steps above that of the Chancel; the two former are paved with Pur- beck-Stone, the latter with white and black Marble; and the Windows on the North and South Sides are Gothick.

THE Ornament and Finiſhing is agreeably neat; the Roof of the Cupola adorned with Che- rubims, Arches, and Leaves, and the reſt of the Church Ceiling with Quadrangular Figures all of Fretwork; under which is a Cantaliver Cornice, extending almoſt round the Church.

It is well wainſcotted eight Feet high, and pewed with Oak; the Pulpit is of the ſame, and enriched with Cherubims, Feſtoons, and the Sound-Board finnier'd.

THE Altar-piece is of Norway Oak, with a Cornice and Cartouch Pediment, whereon is placed the King's Arms; and, at ſome Diſtance, the Supporters. The Commandments are done in Black on Gold, under a Seraphim between two Cherubims; and there are other Enrichments of Cartouches, Fruit, &c. and above all, near the Roof are the Pater Noſter, and Creed; but ſo high that they are not eaſily to be read. Here is likewiſe a ſpacious Window, adorned with Pilasters; but their Order is the Workman's Invention, as thoſe of the grand Pillars. Above this Window is a Glory, whoſe Rays iſſue out of an Equilateral Triangle, gilt with Gold.

THE South Door-Caſe is of Oak, adorned with Pilasters; their Entablature and Pediment of the Corinthian Order; and the like on the North Side, with Shields, Compartments, and Crown, between the Lion and Unicorn Seiant, and guarded with Shields.

THE Dimensions of this Church are, Length 96 Feet, Breadth 60, Altitude to the Ceiling of the Roof 26, and to the Center of the Cupola about 38 Feet; alſo that of the Steeple, conſiſting of a Tower and a Turret, about 96 Feet.

PERSONS buried here.

John Mordant, Stock-fiſhmonger, Anno 1387.

Nicholas Exton, Fiſhmonger, Mayor, 1387.

 Time Maſter of St. Catharine's, and one of the ordinary Maſters of Requeſts. She died June 30, 1574, and had Iſſue by the ſaid Thomas, Mary,
Lucreſe, and Frances.

Sir Thomas Blanke, Mayor, 1582.

William Holſtocke, Eſq; Comptroller of the King's Ships.

Sir Cuthbert Buckle, Mayor, 1594.

At the Eaſt End of the Chancel is a fair Tomb; for the aforeſaid Sir Thomas Blanke, with this Inſcription:

Here

Here lieth a Knight in LONDON born,
 Sir Thomas Blanke, by Name,
 Of honest Birth, of Merchants Trade,
 a Man of worthy Fame.
 Religious was his Life to God,
 to Men his Dealing just :
 The Poor and Hospitals can tell that Wealth was not his Trust.
 With gentle Heart, and Spirit mild,
 and Nature full of Pity,
 Both Sheriff, Lord Mayor, and Alderman,
 he ruled in this City.
 The good Knight was his common Name,
 so call'd of many Men,
 He lived long, and died of Years,
 twice seven, and six times ten.

Obijt 23 Octob. Ann. Dom. 1588.

ON the other Side of the Tomb, Southward, was the following Epitaph on Dame Margaret Blanke, who departed this Life the second of February, An. Dom. 1596.

Death was deceiv'd which thought these two to part :

For though this Knight first left this mortal Life,

Yet till she died, he still lived in her Heart.

What happier Husband or more kinder Wife?

Whom four and forty Changes of the Spring,

In sacred Wedlock mutual Love had linkt :

The dear Remembrance of so dear a Thing,

Was not by Death in her chaste Breast extinct.

Building this Tomb not long before she died,

Her latest Duty to his Funeral Rite,

Crown'd with her Virtues like an honest Bride,

Here lies at Rest by her beloved Knight.

Though worthy Blanke her Name it still endures,

Yet, Traves, boast, her Birth was only yours.

Beati qui moriuntur in Domino.

ON the South Wall of the Choir was a fair
 Monument with this Inscription :

Here lie intombed the Bodies of Sir Robert Hampson, Knight, Alderman of LONDON, who deceased the 2d of May 1607, in the 70th Year of his Age, and of Dame Catharine, his Wife, at whose Charge this Monument is erected.
 They had Issue, nine Children, whereof four are living.

THE following Monuments are in the Church at present, the old ones being taken away :

ON the South Side of the Chancel is a neat Elliptical white Marble Monument, enriched with Mantling, Voluta's, and a Cherub, with this Inscription :

Near this Place, in the Vault of his Ancestors, lieth the Body of John Harvey, Esq; the Son of Stephen Harvey, Esq; by Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter of Martin Freeman, Esq; all ancient Inhabitants of this Parish, and Benefactors to the same. Having passed this Life with Integrity and Honour, he changed for Eternity, October the 12th, 1700, in the 82d Year of his Age. Elizabeth his Wife, one of the Daughters and Coheirs of John Barnard, Esq; surviving, by whom he had five Sons and seven Daughters.

ALSO on a very neat Marble Monument, adorned with Pilasters and Entablature of the Composite Order, with curious Enrichments of Urn, Festoons, Mantling edg'd with Gold, and several Cherubims, is this Inscription :

In Memory of Thomas Davall, of LONDON,
 Merchant, and Anne his Wife, Daughter of Thomas Pots, Gent. by whom he had six Sons and six Daughters. He was survived by his Wife and nine Children, and she by her eldest Son Sir Thomas Davall, and five Daughters.

He departed this Life, in the 44th Year of his Age; and she lived a Widow to the 80th of hers, and died Anno 1700.

ON a Black and White Marble Monument, adorned with Columns, Entablature and Pediment of the Corinthian Order, enriched with Festoons, &c. placed on the North Side of the Chancel, is this Inscription :

Mors Janua Vitæ.

Underneath in the Vault resteth, in sure and
 certain Hope of a Resurrection to eternal Life,
 the Body of John Woods, Citizen and Distiller of LONDON, who was 40 Years an Inhabitant of this Parish. His first Wife was Anne, Daughter of Mr. John Burnet, Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, by whom he had two Sons and six Daughters. His Second was Mary, one of the Daughters of Mr. Samuel Gott, by whom he had Issue three Sons and four Daughters. He departed this Life, the 2d of November 1658, in the 52d Year of his Age.

Resurgemus.

For if the Dead rise not, then is not CHRIST raised. 1 Cor. 15, 16.

Thus saith the Lord, Behold, O my People, I will open your Graves, and bring you into the Land of Israel; and ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your Graves, O my People, and brought you up out of your Graves, and shall put my Spirit in you, and ye shall live, Ezek. Chap. 37. Part of the 12th, 13th, and 14th Verses.

WHILE he lived, Reason and Religion were his Rules, Justice and Temperance his Measures, Gravity and Discretion his Ornaments; and therefore very useful and serviceable in this City, wherein he spent the greatest Part of his last eight Years in advancing the Wealth and Prosperity of it, to its singular Advantage, and his own lasting Honour and Reputation.

UNDER a Grave-stone in the Middle Isle, is buried John Knap, Citizen and Vintner of LONDON, who died July the 5th, 1708, aged 57. He was Son of Robert Knap of Needham, in the County of Suffolk, Gent. and also Mary his Wife, Daughter of Robert Browrig of Willisham Hall in the same County, Gent. She died December 19, 1711.

UNDER a Grave-stone at the West Entrance, into the North Isle, Samuel Leadbeater, late of LONDON, Merchant; departed the 5th of January 1716, aged 67.

BENEFACTORS and BENEFITS of this Parish are as follow :

NUMBER of Houses 127.

IN this Parish of St. Mary-hill, there was a Place called Septem Camerae; which was either one House, or else so many Rooms or Chambers, which formerly belonged to some Chantry. The Rent whereof went towards the Maintaining of a Priest to pray superstitiously for the Soul of the deceased, who left those Septem Camerae for that Use. These, with other Lands and Tenements in the City, and elsewhere, were sold by King Edward VI, to Thomas Heybarn, and Thomas Brand, for the Sum of 988*l.* 8*s.* 1*d.*

The PARISH of
St. ANDREW HUBBARD.

RUNS by the West End of St. Mary-hill Church, up another Lane, of old Time called Rope-lane, since called Lucas's-lane, from one Lucas Owner of some Part thereof, and now corruptly called Love-lane. It runneth up by where the East End of the Parish-Church of St. Andrew Hubbard, or St. Andrew in Eastcheap stood.

THIS Church was repaired and richly beautified at the Cost and Charge of the Parishioners, in the Year of our Lord GOD 1630: The Charge of it amounting to 600*l.* and above.

THE Place where this Church stood, and all the whole Lane, called Lucas's-lane, is of this Billingsgate Ward.

THIS Church and Parish, since the Fire, is united to the Parish of St. Mary-hill, and the Ground of the Church and Church-yard disposed of by the City, for publick Uses, being partly laid into the Street, and the Money given for it, paid to St. Mary-hill, towards Pewing of the Church. On the rest the Lord Mayor and Aldermen have erected the King's Weigh-House; but had paid for no more, Anno 1693, (as it was presented that Year in a Parochial Visitation) than the Minister's Glebe-House, and the Parish's Vestry and Coal-House; allotting them Ground at the East End of their Weigh-House, with their Leave; on which the Parish have built their Vestry: Under which is a Piazza, publick Stocks and Cage, and a little Room.

THERE was a Parsonage-House belonging to the Incumbent before the Fire, but burnt down, and the Ground sold to the City for 75*l.* to be laid out to the Advantage of the Rector and his Successors: Which Sum was by Mr. Thomas White, the Incumbent of St. Mary-hill, transferred from the Coal-Money to the Chamber of LONDON; and so became a bad Debt.

The PARISH of St. MARGARET PATTENS.

St. Margaret
Pattens.

ST. Margaret, to whom this Church, and three more in the City are dedicated (called also by some Writers St. Marina and Macrina) was a holy Virgin and Martyr. She was born at Antioch in Pisidia, being the Daughter of Aedestus, by others nam'd Theodosius, a famous Priest of the Gentiles.

Olybrius, President of the Eastern Parts, was much enamour'd of her rare Beauty, and had a Desire to make her his Wife; but understanding that she was a Christian, when as by no means he could turn her from her Faith in CHRIST, nor mollify her Zeal by any fair Persuasions, he try'd her by many cruel and unheard of Torments; but these not prevailing, she was at last beheaded, on 31 Kal. Aug. or, as some write, on the 3 Id. Julii, Ann. Christi 292, under the Reign of the Emperor Decius.

THE Festival Day of her Commemoration is yearly celebrated on the 20th of July.

THERE are three other Margarets, which were Sainted; but being of a later Date, are none of them held to be the Margaret to whose Memory these Churches above-mentioned are dedicated; for that very few Churches have been founded, or newly erected, in this City of LONDON, since the Norman Conquest, since which Time the said three Margarets were living, as appears by the several Stories related of them.

St. Margaret
Pattens
Church.

IN the Year 1538, the old Church here was taken down, to be new built, during which Time the Oblations made to the Rood in the Church-yard, were employed towards carrying on the Work: But about the 23d of May, in the Morning, the said Rood was found to have been in the Night preceding, by People unknown, broken all to Pieces, together with the Tabernacle, wherein it had been placed.

ALSO on the 27th of the same Month, in the same Parish, amongst the Basket-makers, a great and sudden Fire happened in the Night-time, which within the Space of three Hours consumed more than a dozen Houses, and nine Persons were burnt to Death there. And thus ceased the Work of this Church, being at that Time nigh finished to the Steeple.

It was repaired and beautified at the Charge of the Parish, Anno 1614; and in the Year 1666, being burnt in the fatal Fire, it was again rebuilt, and finished, Anno Domini 1687.

It is a pleasant Church, the Walls at the West End of Stone, that fronting Southward is of Brick, covered with a Finishing, and there are Stone Quoins: The Tower is also of Stone, with Acroteria and Spire of the Dorick Order. The outer Door-case at the West End is of the Tuscan, and the Pillars and Pilasters within are of the Corinthian Order.

As to the Ornament, the Roof is flat, having a Quadrangle of Fret-work, and the Arches adorned with the like.

ON the North Side is a neat Gallery of Oak, and the Church is wainscotted about seven Feet and a half high, and pewed very well with the same Sort of Timber, of which also are two fine inner Door-cases; that at the West End of the Church being very spacious, and adorned with Pilasters, Entablature, and circular Pediment, whereon is placed the King's Arms, finely carved.

THE Altar-piece is likewise carved Wainscot, of the Corinthian Order, consisting of two Columns, Entablature, and Pediment; under which is a spacious Glory, and the Ten Commandments, done in Gold on Black, between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, done in Black Letters on Gold, with Enrichments of Fruit, Palm-Branches, &c. carved in Relievo, inclosed with Rail and Ballaster, within which the Foot-pace is Black and White Marble; the Bason also of the Font is of Marble, but has no Cover.

THE Dimensions of the Church are, Length 66 Feet, Breadth 52, Altitude 32, and that of the Steeple, which consists of a spacious Tower and Spire, is 198 Feet and two Inches.

BENEFACTORS to this Parish.

MONUMENTS in this Church are these following:

IN the Midst of the Chancel, under the Communion-Table, three fair plated Stones, thus inscribed:

Here lieth buried Mr. Reginald West, Bachelor in Divinity; and late Parson of this Parish, who deceased the 2d Day of October, Anno Domini, 1563. For whose sincere, pure and godly Doctrine, as also his virtuous End, the Lord be praised for evermore.

Hereunder lieth Thomas Gelson, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, who deceased the 16th Day of September, Anno Dom. 1563. And in the same Church also lieth buried Jane his Wife: For whose virtuous Lives and godly Departing, God be praised for ever.

Here lieth buried the Body of Richard Glover, Citizen and Pewterer of LONDON. Who was twice Master of his Company, and one of the Common-Council of this City, having two Wives, Elizabeth and Mary; and had Issue by his first Wife, three Sons; and by his second, he had eight Sons and four Daughters. He deceased the 16th Day of August, An. Dom. 1615, being aged 59 Years.

IN the middle Part of this Chancel lieth interred the Body of Mrs. Elizabeth Freeman, Wife to Mr. Thomas Freeman, of this Parish, Merchant; to whom she was espoused 16 Years, two Months, and eight Days. By whom she had Issue six Sons and three Daughters living; and died in Childhood of the last Son. She descended of worshipful Parents: And as she was virtuously bred, so lived and died, full of Faith, Hope, and Charity, as was known to many that had made Use thereof to their great Comfort in Time of Necessity. For her only Study was to serve God, and do good to others. She was of the Age of 35 Years, and departed this Life to a better the 21st of February, 1631.

Here

Here lieth buried Mrs. Anne Elkington, the beloved Wife of Mr. Thomas Elkington, Merchant. She was the Daughter of Mr. John Goodman, Merchant, likewise of this City. She lived and died in the Fear of God, and in the Faith of our Lord Jesus. She exchanged this Life for a better, the 27th Day of September, 1632, in the 23d Year of her Age, and in the 3d Year of her Marriage, leaving behind her Anne, her only Daughter, her Son is not.

The PARISH of St. GEORGE BOTOLPH-LANE.

ST. George, to whose Memory this Church is dedicated, was born in Cappadocia, of Christian Parents, by whom he was educated from his Infancy in the Christian Religion. He was trained up in the Wars under the Emperor Dioclesian, by whom, for his Dexterity in martial Affairs, (before he was discovered to be a Christian) he was made a Tribune, and then an Earl (Comes.) After his Parents Death, being of the Age of twenty Years, he took Part of his Estate left him, and desirous of Honour, repaired to the Emperor; but when he saw such savage Cruelty exercised against the Christians, he distributing all his Wealth and Apparel to the Poor, went of himself, without Fear, to the Emperor, assembled with his Council, and there boldly upbraided them for their Cruelty and profane Idolatry; professing himself a Christian; for which, when he would not be reclaimed, he was, by the Command of the Emperor, first cast into Prison, then tormented with the most cruel Tortures, as, torn with sharp Hooks, cast into burning Lime; rack'd with Cords, hack'd with sharp Bills, and cut and slash'd with Swords; and, yet, in all these Torments, he was not perceived to be of a dejected or abject Spirit, but retain'd a generous Constancy to the last Breath of his Life: At last he was beheaded, on the 23d Day of April, which is yearly celebrated in Memory of his Martyrdom.

THIS St. George is the Patron of the English Nation, and also of the Noble Order of the Garter; but the Story of his killing the Dragon is look'd upon to be a Fable, or Allegory.

THIS Church of St. George Botolph-lane, so called, because situate in Botolph-lane; a pretty Way up the Hill, on the West Side thereof, is call'd also sometimes St. George de Eastcheap because near that Place.

IT was repaired and beautified, at the Charge of the Parish, in 1627, and being consumed by the merciless Flames of 1666, it was again rebuilt, and finished in the Year 1674; being a pretty, tho' small Church, built of Stone. The Roof over the two Side Isles lies flat; but that over the middle Isle cammarated, and supported by Columns of the Composite Order; and here is a pretty Vestry at the South East Corner.

IT is very well as to Ornament and Finishing; the Outside of the East End is adorned with a Cornice and Pediment of Stone, and enrich'd with a Cherub and Festoon; the Roof with fretted Arches, and also several Quadrangular Figures, with an Entablament above the said Column.

AT the West End is a pretty Gallery of Bolection-Wainscot, and the Church is well pewed and and wainscotted with Oak about nine Feet high; also a pretty Pulpit, adorned with an Architrave, Frieze and Cornice with Compasses, Pediments, and Enrichments of Festoons, Cherubims, &c. and there are two Wainscot Door-cases.

THE Altar-piece is of right Norway Oak, adorned with two Columns, Entablature, and Pediment, of the Corinthian Order. The Inter-columns are the Commandments done in Gold Letters on Black; and just without the Columns are the Lord's-Prayer and Creed, done in Black on Gold. Over the Commandments is a Seraphim between two Cherubims gilt with Gold; and above the Cornice, in the Pediment, is the King's Arms, carved, gilt, and painted; and the whole has Enrichments of Fruit, Leaves, Cartouches, &c. carved in Basso Relievo. The Foot Pace for the Communion Table is Marble, and inclosed with Rail and Ballaster.

THE Dimensions of this Church are 54 Feet in Length, Breadth 36, Height 36, and the Altitude of the Steeple, wherein there are two Bells, is about 84 Feet to the Top of the Tower.

MONUMENTS in this Church are, for

Streets, Lanes, &c. in St. George's Parish are, PART of Pudding-lane; St. George's-lane; Part of Botolph-lane, and of Botolph-alley.

NUMBER of Houses, 48.

IN Pudding-lane, in this Parish, is seated Butchers Hall, in which are three handsome Rooms finely adorned with Fret-work and Wainscot, viz. an Upper and Lower Hall, and a Parlour.

Streets,

Streets, Lanes, &c. in St. Botolph's Parish are:

PART of Thames-street, and of Botolph-lane; Church-yard-court; Part of Pudding-lane; Fresh-wharf, Cox's-key, Botolph-wharf, Somer's-key, Somer's-key Gateway, Botolph-wharf Gateway, Vintners-alley, Cox's-key Gateway, and Fresh-wharf Gateway.

NUMBER of Houses, besides Warehouses, 56.

IN both Parishes 104.

THESE two Parishes in Conjunction with the other Part of Billingsgate Ward, maintain 40 Boys by Subscription.

Rother-lane, or Red-rose-lane, from such a Sign there, Stow says, was afterwards called Pudding-lane, because the Butchers of Eastcheap had their Scalding-House for Hogs there, and their Puddings with other Filth of Beasts, were voided down that Way to their Dung-Boats on the Thames.

THIS Lane stretcheth from Thames-street to Little-Eastcheap, chiefly inhabited by Basket-makers, Turners, and Butchers, and is all of Billingsgate Ward.

THE Garland in Little-Eastcheap, some Time a Brewhouse, with a Garden on the Backside, adjoining to the Garden of Sir John Philpot, was the chief House in this Eastcheap. It is now divided into sundry small Tenements, &c.

Now for the present State and Condition of this Ward:

IN this Ward the dreadful Fire of LONDON began, and in a few Hours it was wholly laid in Ashes. This Ward hath for its Western Bounds Bridge Ward Within; for its Northern Langborn Ward; for its Eastern Tower-street Ward; and for its Southern the River Thames.

THE chief Places in this Ward are, Thames-street, Little Eastcheap, Pudding-lane, Botolph's-lane, Love-lane, St. Mary-hill, Rood-lane, for about 200 Feet, and Philpot-lane, for about 150 Feet; the rest of these Lanes being in Langborn Ward: And in these Places are several Courts, and Places of Note; of which in order:

Thames-street is a Place of very considerable Trade, on Account of its convenient Situation near the Water, the Custom-house, Billingsgate, and the several Wharfs and Keys for lading and unlading Merchants Goods, &c.

THE Keys, Wharfs, and Docks, which are now assigned and allowed to be lawful by an Act of Parliament, for shipping, lading, and landing of Goods and Merchandizes, are these; 1 Brewer's-key, 2 Chester's-key; 3 Gally-key, 4 Wool-dock, 5 Custom-house-key, 6 Porter's-key, 7 Bear's-key, 8 Sab's-key, 9 Wiggin's-key, 10 Young's-key, 11 Rafe's-key, 12 Dice-key, 13 Smart's-key, 14 Billingsgate, 15 Somer's-key, 16 Lion's-key, 17 Botolph's-key, 18 Hamon's-key, 19 Gaunt's-key, 20 Cock's-key, and Fresh Wharf.

Billingsgate is that from which the Ward takes its Name, being a large Water-gate, Port, or Harbour for small Vessels, which here arrive with Fish, Salt, Oranges, Lemons, Onions, and several other Commodities; and in the Summer Season with abundance of Cherries from Kent. Likewise Wheat, and other Grain at Smart's-key. And these Stairs of Billingsgate are very much resorted unto by the Gravesend Watermen, this being the noted Place to Land and take Water at, for that and other Eastern Towns down the River. And here the Coalmen and Woodmongers meet every Morning about eight or nine o'Clock, this Place being their Exchange for the Coal Trade, which brings a great Resort of People, and occasions a great Trade to the Inhabitants. And this Place is now more frequented than in antient Time, when Queen-bith was made Use of for the said Purpose, this being more commodious. And therefore it was ordained to be the only Port for all such Sorts of Merchandizes. Boss-alley, being long, but very ordinary and narrow.

NEAR this Alley is St. Mary-hill, which runs Northwards to St. Margaret Pattens Church. This St. Mary-hill has very good Houses on it, inhabited by several Merchants. On the East Side is Cross-lane, which falls into Idle-lane, against St. Dunstan's Church. Austin's-court, but mean, lying Northwards of Cross-lane. Masse's-court, a little more Northwards, hath a dark Passage up Steps, and then is an open Court, but mean.

THE Church here Stow calls St. Mary on the Hill, but others have called it St. Mary at Hill, because it stands not on the Hill, but at, or about the Middle of the Ascent from Billingsgate to Little Eastcheap. The back Part of the Church stands in Love-lane, and adjoining to it is an Alley called Church-alley, which leadeth into Love-lane, and hath Buildings only on the South Side, pretty good, the other Side lying open to the Church-yard.

Love-lane, comes out of Little Eastcheap, and falls into Thames-street, where it hath but a narrow Entrance only for a Coach or Cart: In this Lane on the North West Corner, entering into Little Eastcheap, is the Weigh-house, built on the Ground, where the Church of St. Andrew Hubbard stood before the Fire of LONDON, 1666; which said Weigh-house was before in Cornhill. In this House are weighed Merchandizes brought from beyond the Seas by the King's Beam, to which doth belong a Master, and under him four Master Porters, with labouring Porters under them. They used to have Carts and Horses to fetch the Goods from the Merchants Warehouses to the Beam, and to carry them back. The House belongeth to the Company of Grocers, in whose Gift the several Porters, &c. Places were. But of late Years little is done in this Office, as wanting a compulsive Power to constrain Merchants to have their Goods weighed, they alledging it to be an unnecessary Trouble and Charge. Over this Office or Weigh-house is a large Room, now made use of as a Meeting-house for some Dissenters from the Church of England. On the Backside of this Building is a Passage into St. Botolph's-lane; but the chief Entrance into this Weigh-house is in Little Eastcheap.

St. Botolph's-lane. The Parish-Church here is already spoken of; adjoining to which is George's-lane on the North Side, which gives an Entrance into the Church, and this Lane hath a narrow Passage into Pudding-lane. Over-against this Church is St. Botolph's-alley, indifferently well inhabited, with a broad Free-stone Passage into Love-lane. More Southward is St. Botolph's Church-yard, at the Upper End of which is two or three ordinary Houses. This Lane, except the Part towards Thames-street, is broad and well inhabited by Merchants. This Church of St. George Botolph's is in the Diocese of LONDON, the Abbot of Bermondsey was antiently Patron.

Pudding-lane. In this Lane it was that the dreadful Fire of LONDON, on the 2d of September, 1666, first began, which consumed above 13000 Dwelling-Houses.

ON the House where this dismal Fire began is this Inscription, set up by Authority:

Here, by the Permission of Heaven, Hell brake loose upon this Protestant City, from the malicious Hearts of barbarous Papists, by the Hand of their Agent

Agent Hubert, who confessed, and on the Ruins of this Place declared his Fact, for which he was hanged, viz. That here began the dreadful Fire, which is described and perpetuated on and by the neighbouring Pillar, erected Anno 1680, in the Mayoralty of Sir Patience Ward, Knt.

It was then a Baker's, now a Cooper's House. And in Commemoration thereof, there is erected hard by, a stately Monument of Free-stone, of a vast Height, which taketh up a good Part of the East Side of Fish-street-hill; to the End it may be obvious to all that pass that Way, being a very great Thoroughfare to and from Southwark, of which more in Bridge Ward Within.

On the East Side of Pudding-lane is Fish-yard, a small Court with a Free-stone Pavement. On the West Side is a Passage to Fish-street-hill; by the Monument; and more Northwards on the East Side is Butchers Hall.

Little Eastcheap, severed from Great Eastcheap, by Gracechurch-street and Fish-street-hill. It is of chief Account for Butchers there inhabiting; on the North Side, and at the Corner of Rood-lane, stands St. Margaret Pattens Church, as aforesaid; and betwixt Rood-lane and Phil- pot-lane is Turner's-alley, small and narrow; at the upper End of which is a Garden, belonging to a Merchant's House.

Rood-lane. This Lane is well built and inhabited by Merchants, and others.

Philpot-lane hath the greatest Part in Langborn Ward.

Talbot-court, seated in Little Eastcheap, a large and well inhabited Place; out of which a narrow Passage leadeth into another handsome Court, which hath an Entrance into Gracechurch-street.

THERE are to Watch at the several Stands in this Ward every Night, besides a Constable and Beadle, 30 Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward, are to serve as Jurors in the Courts of Guildhall, in the Month of May.

THIS Ward hath an Alderman, and his Deputy, ten Common Council-Men, eleven Constables, six Scavengers, fourteen Men of the Wardmote Inquest, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen in LONDON at 32 l. and in the Exchequer at 31 l. 10 s.

THE Alderman of this Ward is Sir Edward Bellamy.

CHAP. X.

BRIDGE WARD WITHIN.

Bridge Ward.
Within.

BRIDGE Ward within, so called from London-Bridge, which is a principal Part of this Ward, and beginning on the South End by Southwark, runneth along the Bridge, and North up Bridge-street, commonly called, from the Fish-Market, New Fish-street, from Fish-street-hill up Gracechurch-street, to the End of Lombard-street.

IN New Fish-street, and on Fish-street-hill, live Persons of divers Trades, but chiefly Fishmongers.

THE Fishmongers who lived here upon Fish-street-hill, and those of Old-fish-street, in the Reign of King Edward II, were the topping rich Men and Merchants of the Trade, and would not suffer any others that kept Stalls to Trade (as it seems) by Wholesale with them. So that there was an Order issued out from John de Blund, Mayor, to forbid these Fishmongers to hinder the Trade. And it was enjoined by the said Mayor, and divers Aldermen, to the Fishmongers of Bridge-street, and of the Old Fishery then present, (viz. at a Court held on Thursday after the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, 34 Edward II.) that they, under a heavy Penalty, permit Fishmongers, Freemen of the City, standing at Stalls, to Merchandize together with them, and freely to obtain their Shares of Merchandizes sold, as it was fit and just, and the Freedom of the City required.

IN Gracechurch, or Grass-street, as it was then called, was a handsome Conduit of sweet Water, in old Times, castellated with Crest and Vent, madethere by the Appointment of Thomas Hill, Mayor 1484, who gave by his Testament an hundred Marks towards the Conveyance of Water to this Place. It was begun by his Executors in the Year 1491, and finished by his Goods, whatsoever it cost.

The PARISH of St. MAGNUS.

ST. Magnus the Martyr, (to whom this St. Magnus Church, probably, is dedicated; for there were divers other Martyrs of this Name, but none of whom such special Notice is taken) suffer'd in Cæsarea in Cappadocia, in the Time of Aurelian the Emperor, Ann. Dom. 276, under Alexander the Governor, who after he had exposed this holy Martyr, for refusing to sacrifice to the Pagan Gods, twice to the fiery Furnace to be consumed in the Flames; thrice to the wild Beasts to be devoured by them, but in vain; at last commanded him to be stoned; and when they had lain an Heap of Stones on him, and thought he was dead, on a sudden, in every one's Hearing, he prayed to the Lord, that he would take away his Soul in Peace, and presently gave up the Ghost. His Body was buried in that City, in a new Coffin on the 14th of the Kal. Decemb.

SOME observe the Festival of St. Magnus on the 19th of August, on which Day the Feast of St. Magnus the Martyr, Bishop of Anagnia, is celebrated.

THE Church of St. Magnus, in some Writings is called Ecclesia S. Magni Martyris Civitatis London, juxta Pedem, vel ad Pedem, Pontis London.

IN the Year 1433, (Sir John Brockle, then Mayor of LONDON) upon a Controversy that was then like to arise between the said Mayor and the Commonalty of LONDON, and the Bridge-masters on the one Part, and Richard Morysby, Archdeacon of LONDON, and Rector of this Church, on the other, about the Oblations, lations, and other spiritual Profits, which were made in a certain Chapel, called the Chapel of St. Thomas the Martyr upon the Bridge, within the Precincts of this Parish: There was a Composition or Agreement made and confirm'd by Robert (Fitzhugh) then Bishop of LONDON, whereby (inter alia) it was agreed, That the Chaplains of the said Chapel, and their Successors, should receive all the Profits of the said Chapel to the Use of the same, and the Bridge, and should pay yearly at Michaelmas the Sum of xxd. to the said Church of St. Magnus, and to the Rector of the same, and the Successors for ever.

IN this Church of St. Magnus, Hugh Pourt (one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, in the Year 1302) and Margaret his Wife founded a perpetual Chantry.

HERE was also another founded at the Altar of the Blessed Virgin for the Souls of Sir John Depeden, Knt. and Elizabeth his Wife, and Robert Ramsey, and Joan his Wife, and of their Parents and Benefactors, and all the Faithful deceased.

THE old Church of St. Magnus had 500 l. laid out in the Repairs thereof, in the Years 1623, 1624, and 1625, and was richly beautified in 1629; but being a Sharer in the Calamity by Fire in 1666; it was again re-edified, Anno 1676, and the Steeple, as it now appears in 1705, in which Year, and 1706, this Church was new beautified.

THE Church is very well built of Stone, that Part of the Roof over the Middle Isle cammèrated, over the two other Isles flat, supported by Columns, of the Ionick Order, with their Entablature; and the Steeple (which is adorned with Vases, &c.) consists of a Tower, a Lanthorn, a Cupola, and a spiry Turret.

THE Church is adorned on the Outside with a Door-case, of the Ionick Order, a curious Dial, having the Figures of Atlas and Hercules, St. Magnus and St. Margaret, (a strange Confusion of the Pagan and Christian Theology) and two Cupids, one with a Sun, the other holding an Hour-glass, as also two Eagles, and several Cherubims; the two first Figures are very spacious, and lie on the Pediment of the West Door-case, the rest are erect, richly carved and gilt with Gold. This Clock was new gilt and repaired the last Year (1732.)

AND the Inside of the Roof enrich'd with Arches of Fretwork; also an architrave Frieze and Cornice round the Walls of the Church. It is well pewed with Oak, and wainscotted about seven Feet high. The Pulpit is also Oak, well carved and finier'd.

THE West Inner Door-case is very spacious adorned with two Pilasters, and their Entablature, of the Corinthian Order, with Enrichments of Shield, Festoons, &c.

THE North Door-case is of the same Order adorned with two Columns and their Entablament with Cartouches, Flowers, Leaves, &c.

THE Altar-piece is also very neat, of the Corinthian Order, having the Ornament of four Columns, Entablaments and Pediments. The Intercolumns are the Commandments done in Gold on Black, between, the Lord's Prayer and Creed in Gold Letters on Green; under the the Upper Pediment is a Glory, and the whole is enrich'd with Cherubims, Palm Branches, &c.

THE Altar Cloth here is finely embroider'd, and so curious a Piece of Work, that a very large Sum of Money, we are informed, was once offered for it, by some Foreigners.

THE Benefactors towards the rebuilding, finishing, and furnishing the Church with Ornaments, are preserved in a Table hung up in the Church, viz.

Richard Spires, by Will, gave 25 l.

Anne Yeend, by Will, 100 l.

Edward Pitt 25 l.

Sir Peter Daniel, Knt. Alderman of the Ward, gave the great Branch Candlestick.

Robert Tainton, the King's Arms.

Sir Thomas Player, 10 l.

Sackford Gunston, wainscotted the Vestry.

Deputy Smith, and Deputy Collier, gave towards railing the Altar, 10 l.

William Richardson, Henry Freeman, and Thomas Passenger, gave the Font.

Thomas Powell, gave the great Bible.

Robert Dickins, gave two Statute Books, and the Works in Folio of the Author of the Whole Duty of Man: And likewise erected the Church-Wardens Pew.

Sir Charles Duncomb, Knt. and Alderman of this Ward, Anno 1700, gave the Clock and Dial: The whole Charge amounting to 485 l. 5 s. 4 d.

IN this Church have been buried many worthy Men, whose Monuments are now for the most Part utterly defaced; as,

John Blund, Mayor, 1307.

Henry Teuele, Free-Mason to Edward III., Richard II., and Henry IV., who deceased 1400. His Monument yet remaineth.

Henry Teuele, Citizen and Mason, was buried in the Chapel of St. Mary in this Church, where Margaret his former Wife was buried. He founded a Chantry in this Chapel for the Souls of him: Margaret and Catharine his Wives, Roger his Father, Marione his Mother, his Brothers and Sisters, and also of King Edward III., John de Bello Campo, &c. The Probat of his Will was Sept. 1400.

Richard Winter, Stock Fishmonger, by his last Will, Anno 1407, gave a Shop in the Parish of St. Magnus, to the Rector and Church-wardens of that Parish for his Anniversary in the said Church; and to lay out 20 s. the Remainder to be distributed to poor Housekeepers.

William Brampton.

John Mitchell, Mayor, 1436.

John French, Baker, Yeoman of the Crown to Henry VII., 1510.

Robert Clarke, Fishmonger, 1521.

Richard Turke, one of the Sheriffs, 1549.

William Steed, Alderman.

Richard Morgan, Knt. Chief Justice of the Common-Pleas, 1556.

Mauritius Griffith, Bishop of Rocheſter 1559.

Robert Branch, Girdler, 1567.

Robert Belgrave, Girdler,

William Brame.

John Couper, Fishmonger, Alderman, who was put by his Turn of Mayoralty, 1584.

Sir William Gerrard, Haberdasher, Mayor, 1555, a grave, sober, wise, and discreet Citizen, equal with the best, and inferior to none of our Time: Deceased 1571, in the Parish of St. Christopher, but was buried in this Church of St. Magnus, as in the Parish where he was born. A fair Monument is there raised on him.

Robert Harding, Salter, one of the Sheriffs, 1558.

Simon Low, Merchant Taylor, Esq;

Here lieth interred the Bodies of Sir John Gerrard, Knt. and Dame Jane his Wife, who was Daughter to Richard Patridge, Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, by whom he had thirteen Children, five whereof died young. They lived comfortably together 43 Years.

He was Lord Mayor of LONDON in the Year of our Lord God 1601.

She departed this Life the 24th of Jan. 1616, and he left this World the 7th of May, 1625, being 79 Years old; leaving two Sons and six Daughters behind him.

This Monument was erected at the Charges of Benedict Gerrard, Gent. his youngest Son, Anno 1629.

MONUMENTS since the Rebuilding of this Church are but few :

THERE are flat Stones laid over Benjamin Biddle, who died 1690, and Mary Preston, Wife of Josiah Preston, 1692.

IN the North Isle, against the East Wall, is a neat Monument, as it were a Tent; the Curtains opened, being held back by two Boys, with Torches in their other Hands. It is erected for Thomas Collet, who twenty Years honourably discharged the Office of Deputy of this Ward. A Person all his Life-Time exemplary in Piety, Temperance and Charity. Intermarried with Sarah, one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Humphrey Howland, Citizen and Draper of this City. By her he had Issue six Sons and one Daughter, deceased September 22, 1703, aged 71.

ON the East Wall in the South Isle is fixed a Monument with this Inscription :

Prope jacet Robertus Dickins, Civis nuper Londinensis, ex Familia æque honesta ac antiqua de Leaton in Agro Staffordien. Uxorem duxit amatam pariter ac amantem Franciscam, filiam Guillemi Goffe : Ex qua plures liberos suscepit ; at filiam superstitem solum reliquit. Vir humanioris indolis, Liberalis, vitæ integer Mercaturam cum facilius per atatem licebat, sedulus exercebat. In gravescentibus vero annis, Negotium & strepitum otio & Tranquillitate sapiens mutavit. Ob. 31 die Januarii, 1705-6.

A Memorial and Register of the Gifts to the Parish and Poor, is kept in the great Church Book : But this Account was brought in upon the Parochial Visitation, Anno 1693, viz.

Samuel Petty gave 600 l. to purchase 30 l. per Ann. Whereof to the Rector, for several Things he was to do, 24 l.

AND to the Poor the remaining 6 l.

BUT, as they were told, the Bonds were not good ; and so no more was got in but 250 l. which the Parish received Ann. 1649. Since the Year 1658 they have paid to the Minister per Ann. 10 l.

AND to the Poor, per Ann. 4 l.

A Perpetuity out of the Exchequer, 21 l. 4 s.

Thomas Hall gave 2 l.

John Wooller, to be received from the Merchant-Tailors, 1 l.

John Jennings, payable from the Fishmongers, 13 l.

Susanna Chambers, 17 l.

To the Parson for Preaching on the 12th of February, for God's Mercy in preserving the Church from the Fire that happened upon London-Bridge, 1 l.

To the Clerk and Sexton, 2 s.

Thomas Arnold, to be distributed in Bread 1 s. per Week ; charged upon the Sun Tavern in New Fish-street, 2 l. 12 s.

IN this Church (as most other Churches had theirs) was a famous Guild of our Lady de Salve Regina : An Account whereof was brought into the King, upon an Act of Parliament in King *Edward the III*d's Reign, when some special Cognizance was taken of these Guilds, or Fraternities, throughout England. And that we may see a little the Manner and Intent of these Devotions, here follows the Certificate thereof, offered by this Fraternity, as it is in the Tower Records.

Double*, Fishmonger ; Roger Lowber, Chancellor ; Henry Bosworth, Vintner ; Stephen Lucas, Stockfishmonger ; and other of the better of the Parish of St. Magnus, near the Bridge of LONDON, of their great Devotion, and to the Honour of God and his glorious Mother our Lady Mary the Virgin, began and caused to be made a Chantry, to sing an Anthem of our Lady called Salve Regina, every Evening. And thereupon ordained five burning Wax Lights at the Time of the said Anthem, in the Honour and Reverence of the five principal Joys of our Lady aforesaid ; and for exciting the People to Devotion at such an Hour, the more to merit to their Souls. And thereupon many other good People of the same Parish, seeing the great Honesty of the said Service and Devotion, proffered to be Aiders and Partners to support the said Lights and the said Anthem, to be continually sung ; paying to every Person every Week, an Half-penny. And so that hereafter, with the Gift that the People shall give to the Sustainment of the said Lights and Anthem, there shall be to find a Chaplain singing in the said Church, for all the Benefactors of the said Lights and Anthems. And after the said Rauf Chapelyn, by his Testament made the 18th of June, the Year of the said King the 23d, devised 3 s. by Quit Rent, issuing out of one Tenement in the Parish of St. Leonard of Eastcheap.

St. LEONARD in EASTCHEAP.

UP higher on this Hill, was the Parish- Church of St. Leonard Milk Church, so called from one William Melker, the Builder thereof, but more commonly St. Leonard's in Eastcheap, because it stood at the Corner of East-cheap. St. Leonard in Eastcheap.

IN the Year of our Lord, 1618, this Church, by a Casualty of Fire, happening by Whiting of Baskets, in the House of one Ferome Baynton, a Turner, (situate in Little Eastcheap, on the North Side of the said Church, whose House was burnt down, and in the Place thereof another built with Brick) was fired in the Steeple thereof, being a Spire covered with Lead; it was quenched, but not without great Pains and much Danger to some Persons, (who were not unrewarded by the Parish) before any great Hurt was done to it by the Fire, more than the Defacing of it, and other Parts of the Church; but for that the said Steeple was very old, much ruined and decayed in the Stone-work thereof, to prevent further Danger, it was pulled down, and all the West End of the Church thereto adjoining, a new Foundation laid, enlarged three Feet toward the East, and new built, not without great Charge to the Inhabitants of the Parish, who were all willing and ready to contribute towards the Rebuilding, Repairing, and Beautifying the House of God; and the better to set forward the Work, the Inhabitants of the Parish tax'd themselves towards the Charge, at 198l. 6s. 4d. but for that the Parish is but small, and the greater Part of the Inhabitants poor, they were enforced, by their Petition, to seek Help from his Majesty, (King James I.) who was graciously pleased to grant them his Letters Patents (for their Relief) to collect and gather in several Counties within this Kingdom towards the Charge of the Rebuilding the Steeple, and the Repairing of the Church.

The Steeple being finished, the South Wall towards the Church-yard, being much decayed, was also taken down and new built, and the Church in other Parts repaired, the Charge thereof amounting to above 850l. of which the Parish received by Way of Collection (toward their Charge) in LONDON, and other Places, the Sum of 170l. 1s. 9d. and of other Benefactors, 10l. 15s. they having one Patent for six Shires also; the Party that was employed to lay the Briefs, and gather the Collections, went away with all, and brought to the Parish neither Brief nor Money The Steeple of this Church, and the Wall on the South Side (towards the Church-yard) was built, and the Church, in other Parts, repaired and beautified, in the Years 1618, 1619, 1620, 1621.

MONUMENTS there were chiefly for the Doggets, namely,

Walter Dogget, Vintner, one of the Sheriffs, 1380.

John Dogget, Vintner, and Alice his Wife, about 1456.

This John Dogget gave Lands to that Church.

William Dogget, &c. And none else of Note.

By good Hap we are able to retrieve a Number of the antient Monuments in this Church of St. Leonard's (together with the Coats of Arms set on the Stones) from the Oblivion where-in they have lain for many Years. So much beholden are we to some in former Times, whose

St. BENNET GRACECHURCH.

St. Bennet
Gracechurch.

ST. Benedict, or Bennet, (to whose Memory this, and other Churches in the City, are dedicated) was born at Nursia, a Town in Umbria in Italy. He was Patriarch of a famous Order called after his Name Benedictines, and was the first who brought a Monastical Life to be esteemed in the West, where the most antient Monks are the Benedictines, who are also the most famous of the Roman Church. He founded twelve Monasteries in his own Country, the chief whereof is Mont-Cassin; and gave them a Rule, which was afterwards approved by Pope Gregory the Great, Anno Dom. 595. They were called also Black Monks, from the Colour of their Habit, which was a Black loose Coat of Stuff, reaching down to their Heels, with a Cowl, or Hood, of the same, and a Scapular, and under that Coat another white Habit as large as the former, made of white Flannel, and Boots on their Legs. Of this Order were all our Cathedral Priories, except Carliol, and most of the richest Abbies in the Kingdom.

IN the sixteenth Year after he had finished his illustrious Monastery of Cassino, as Bede writes, on March 21, about the 62d Year of his Age, as Trithemius writes, he gave up his Ghost to the Lord, and was buried with his Sister Scholastica at Cassino, where he died. His Festival is celebrated yearly on March 21.

THE Order of St. Benedict has been the Source of several others, who follow the Rule of the first Founder, and have made new Branches of Monks in the Church of Rome.

THIS Church of St. Bennet, formerly called Grass-church, from the Herb-Market kept there, but now Gracechurch stands in Fenchurch-street, at the South West Corner thereof, the West End fronts Gracechurch-street.

IT is uncertain when the last Church here was first built, but Mr. Stow says, it was repaired and beautified in the Year 1630; and had a new Clock, Dial and Chimes added, Anno 1633. In the Year 1666, it was consumed by the Fire of LONDON, and again re-edified and finished in the Year 1685; and it was afterwards beautified, Anno 1693.

THE Roof is arched, adorned with Fretwork of Cherubims, &c.

IT is very well wainscotted round, ten Feet high, with right Norway Oak, and handsomely pewed; and at the West End of the Church is a neat little Gallery.

THE Pulpit is of the aforesaid Timber, very well finnier'd, carved, and adorned with Cherubims, Leaves, Fruit, &c.

THE Altar-piece is spacious, consisting of four fine Columns, with the Entablament of the Corinthian Order; between the two Middle ones are the Commandments, well done in Gold on Black, immediately over which is a Glory, being the Word Jehovah in Hebrew Characters, within an Equilateral Triangle; and above that two Cherubims; over which is a Circular Pediment, and above that the King's Arms in their proper Colours, within a fine Compartment, over which is a large Crown carved and gilt, and on each Side the said Arms, at about two Feet Distance, are the Lion and Unicorn, on two Acroters. Over each of the Outer Columns, a fine spacious Lamp, and between the said Columns the Effigies of Moses and Aaron; North and South from which are the Lord's-Prayer and Creed, done in black Letters upon Gold; over which are Circular Pediments, upon each of which is a gilded Shield, with its Compartments: And the whole is curiously enrich'd with Cartouches, Fruit, Leaves, Festoons, &c. all carved in fine Norway Oak.

OVER this carved Work is a large Piece of Architecture, painted in Perspective, representing the arched Roof, and Pilasters of a Building, which appear from under a Purple Velvet Festoon Curtain, elevated by two Cupids. All which Altar-piece is inclosed with Rail and Baluster, and the Floor within is paved with black and white Marble.

HERE is also a curious Font, adorned with Cherubims, &c. and the Cover is fine carved Work, round which are these Words:

Suffer the little Children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of God.

THE Length of the Church within is about 60 Feet, Breadth 30, and Height about 32. It is mostly built with Stone; as is also the Tower or Steeple, whose Altitude is about 149 Feet, and where is a large gilded Clock-Dial, extending near as far as to the Middle of the Street.

Some old Monuments remained undefaced before the Fire; as of,

John Harding, Salter, 1576.

John Sturgeon, Haberdasher, Chamberlain of LONDON.

Philip Cusben, or Corfine, a Florentine, and a famous Merchant, 1600.

On a Tomb.

To the Memory of James Bunce, Esq; some Time Burgess of the Parliament for this City, married Mary, Daughter of George Holmedon of Kent, Gent: By whom he had seven Children, whereof living at the Time of his Decease, James his eldest Son, who married Sarah, Daughter of Thomas Gipps, Esq; Matthew, and Mary, Wife of Mr. John Langham, of this City, Merchant. He departed this Life the 26th of January, Anno 1631. Aged 68.

On a Gravestone there.

Here lieth James Bunce, Esq; that departed this Life the 26th of January, Anno 1631; and Mary his Wife, that died the 2d of October, 1612.

Queen ELIZABETH's Monument.

ELIZABETH, Queen of England, France, and Ireland, Daughter of King Henry VIII, by Anne Bullen his Wife. She died at Richmond the 24th of March 1602, being 69 Years, six Months, and 17 Days old; when she had reigned forty four Years, four Months, and seven Days.

As in the Figure of a Book, this written:

They that put their Trust in the Lord are even as the Mount of Sion, which may not be removed, but standeth firm for ever.

On the one Side, thus:

Britain's Blessing, England's Splendor, Religion's Nurse, the Faith's Defender.

On the other Side, thus:

Spain's Rod, Rome's Ruin, Netherland's Relief, Heaven's Gem, Earth's Joy, World's Wonder, Nature's Chief.

Under her.

If Royal Virtues ever crown'd a Queen,
If ever Mildness shined in Majesty,
If ever Honour honoured true Renown,
If ever Courage dwelt with Clemency,
If ever Princess put all Princes down,
For Temperance, Prowess, Prudence, Equity,
'This, this was she, that in despite of Death,
Lives still admir'd, ador'd ELIZABETH.

SOME few flat Stones with Inscriptions have been laid upon Persons buried here, since the Re-building of the Church. As in the Chancel upon Frances Rayney, only Daughter of Thomas Gibbes of Watergal in the County of Warwick, Esq; deceased 1690. She was the Wife of Sir John Rayney, Knt. and Bart. And some Children of Edward Rayney and Anne his Wife, Son of the said Dame Frances.

IN the Body of the Church, Roger Mingay, 1688, with his Mother Mary Badger, 1678: And two Daughters, Anne and Elizabeth.

UPON a Grave-stone at the North Side of the Chancel, is an Inscription, That underneath was buried Richard Bourne, late of Enfield in the County of Middlesex, Gent. who married Elizabeth, Daughter of George Young of the County of York, Gent. By whom he had Issue George, who married Mary, second Daughter of Erasmus Smith, Esq; and Elizabeth, who married Thomas Draper, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON; he departed July 4, 1707, aged 62.

Mr. Thomas Draper aforesaid, deceased Nov. 16, 1705, Ætat. 47.

CHARITIES.

THIS Parish of St. Bennet Gracechurch, enjoyeth these charitable Gifts.

IT hath 3 l. per Ann. out of certain Lands in Eastham.

AND 2 l. per Ann. out of the Cat and Fiddle in Gracechurch-street. This and the former Sum, to be laid out in Coals for the Poor.

A Gift of 50 l. to the Parish, to purchase 50 s. per Ann. to be given to the Poor in necessitous Times. The said 50 l. is laid out upon the Purchase of two Houses in Deptford.

Other small GIFTS to the Poor.

MONEY is given to the Parish for Payment of 40 s. per Ann. to a Lecturer: And 20 s. for a Sermon on Christmas-day, yearly.

THERE is a Register kept of the Benefactors Names and Gifts.

MOREOVER in an ancient Book; they found that Robert Offley, the Elder in 30 Eliz. granted a Tenement to Gracechurch, formerly belonging to the Chantry of the Lady Johan Rose, in the Church of St. Bennet Gracechurch, and is on the East Side of the said Church, to bestow the Rents and Profits thereof towards the Repairing of the Body of the said Church; and for Repairing and Defending the said House: And the Residue of the Rents to good and godly Uses as the Feoffees shall think fit.

ALSO Will. Jordan, by his Last Will, dated 1610, did give unto Will. More, the Rector, and the Church-wardens and their Successors, a Messuage in the same Parish. The Rents and Profits thereof to sustain and support the Works, Ornaments, and other Burthens of the Parish-Church. This Messuage adjoined to the Messuage aforementioned, were both burnt down in the Fire: rebuilt now, and made into one Messuage by John

Butts, Grocer, upon a Lease, and 17 l. per Ann. Ground Rent.

Mrs. Doxie, Widow, gave 50 l. for the Purchase of 50 s. yearly, to be paid to the Parson for his better Maintenance; supposing he be resident and preach every Sabbath in the Parish-Church. This Mr. Dan. Fogg, the Lecturer had, because Mr. Halstead, the Incumbent, did not reside nor preach.

Johan. Newton, Widow, Anno 1631, gave by Will 30 l. for Payment of 40 s. per Ann. to John Doon and Elizabeth his Wife, for their Lives. And afterwards for Maintenance of a Lecture in the said Church.

THE Lady Elizabeth Newton also gave to the Minister and Church-wardens, and unto the Antients of the Parish, the Sum of 40 l. to be paid to such Minister as her Husband Sir Robert Newton, and after his Decease as the Lady Elizabeth Baker, their Daughter; and after her Decease, as the Minister, Church-wardens and Vestrymen, shall chuse. To preach a Sermon upon every Christmas-day, and for a Chaldron of Coals, yearly to the most poor Men and Widows.

To the Incumbent of this Parish, belonged a Parsonage House before the Fire. Since it is leased out, and rebuilt at 40 s. per Ann. for 40 Years.

AT this St. Bennet's Gracechurch were the Pictures of the Nine Worthies; and amongst them King Henry VIII, standing with the Bible in his Hands and VERBUM DEI written upon it. All these Figures, Anno 1555, were new beautified and painted: But the Bible in King Henry's Hand gave great Offence, and Commandment was given immediately that it should be put out, and so it was, and a Pair of Gloves pictured in the Room of it.

To this Parish was annexed by Act of Parliament, 22, 23 Car. II. the Parish of St. Leonard Eastcheap. These united Parishes are a Rectory in the Gift of the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury, and the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, alternately, value per Act of Parliament, 140 l. per Ann. rated in the King's Books at 18 l. 1 s. 3 d.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Holcombe, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Thomas.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays at 11 o'Clock, one Charity Sermon, which is uncertain. No Organ, two Bells.

THE Vestry is Select.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are

2 Church-wardens, and they are Collectors for the Poor.

The WARD-OFFICERS are

5 Common-Council Men
2 Constables
2 Inquests.
2 Scavengers.

THE Vestry of St. Leonard Eastcheap is Select; the Parish and Ward Officers are the same with St. Bennet's.

Streets, Lanes, &c. in St. Bennet's Parish, are PART of Gracechurch-street, of Nag's-head-court, of Crown-court, of Jerusalem-court, of Talbot-court, and of Little Eastcheap, all in this Ward; and Part of Fenchurch-street, and Grace-court in Langborn Ward.

NUMBER of Houses 52.

Streets, Lanes, &c. in St. Leonard's Eastcheap, are PART of Gracechurch-street, of Little Eastcheap, and of Fish-street-hill in this Ward; Part of

Part of Little Eastcheap, and of Pudding-lane in Billingsgate Ward; and Part of Great Eastcheap in Candlewick Ward.

NUMBER of Houses 53 and a Half.

ON the West Side of this Ward, at the North End of London-Bridge, is a Part of Thames-street, which is also of this Ward; that is to say, so much as of old Time was called Stockfishmonger's-row, from the Stockfishmongers Dwelling there. Down West to a Water-gate, of old Time called Ebgate, since Ebgate-lane, and now the Old Swan; which is a noted Landing-place on the Thames, but the Passage is very narrow, by means of Encroachments.

ON the South Side of Thames-street, about the Midway betwixt the Bridge-foot and Ebgate-lane, standeth the Fishmongers-Hall, which is a spacious Building, with a handsome Front towards the Water-Side, and the North Side is adorned with a Piazza, with Columns and Arches of the Ionian Order. There are Galleries round the Inside, and the Figure of Sir William Walworth, Fishmonger, who, when Lord Mayor, slew Wat Tyler; also a Screen of the Composite Order, with a Golden Bust under the Pediment.

Fishmongers-hall.

THESE Fishmongers were sometimes of two several Companies, to wit, Stockfishmongers and Saltfishmongers; of whose Antiquity we find, that by the Name of the Fishmongers of LONDON, they were for forestalling, &c. contrary to the Laws and Constitutions of the City, fined to the King at 500 Marks the 8th of King Edward I. More, That the said Fishmongers hearing of the great Victory obtained by the same King against the Scots, in the 26th of his Reign, made a triumphant and solemn Shew through the City, with divers Pageants, and more than a thousand Horsemen, &c.

THESE two Companies of Stockfishmongers and Saltfishmongers, of old Time, had their several Halls; to wit, in Thames-street two; in New Fish-street two; and in Old Fish-street two, in each Place, one for either Company: In all, six several Halls, the Company was so great.

THESE Fishmongers have been famous Citizens, and have had six Mayors of their Company in twenty four Years; to wit, Walter Freke 1350, John Lofkin 1359, John Wroth 1361, John Pechie 1362, Simon Morden 1369, and William Walworth 1374. It followed, that in the Year 1382, through the Council of John Northampton, Draper, then being Mayor, William Essex, John More, Mercers, and Richard Northbury, the said Fishmongers were greatly troubled, hindered of their Liberties, and almost destroyed by Congregations made against them: So that in a Parliament at LONDON, the Controversy depending between the Mayor and Aldermen of LONDON, and the Fishmongers there, Nicholas Exton, Speaker for the Fishmongers, prayed the King to receive him and his Company into his Protection, for Fear of corporal Hurt. Whereupon it was commanded that each Party should keep the Peace, upon Pain of losing all they had: Hereupon a Fishmonger starting up, replied, That the Complaint brought against them by the Movers, &c. was but Matter of Malice; for that the Fishmongers, in the Reign of Edward III. being chief Officers of the City, had, for their Misdemeanors then done, committed the chief Exhibitors of those Petitions to Prison. In this Parliament the Fishmongers (by the King's Charter Patents) were restored to their Liberties. Notwithstanding, in the Year next following, to wit, 1383, John Cavendish, Fishmonger, craved the Peace against the Chancellor of England, which was granted; And he put in Sureties, the Earl of Stafford and Salisbury, Caven-

VOL. I.

disb challenging the Chancellor for taking a Bribe of 10 l. for favour of his Case; which the Chancellor, by Oath upon the Sacrament, avoideth. In farther Trial it was found, that the Chancellor's Man (without his Master's Privy) had taken it; whereupon Cavendish was adjudged to Prison, and to pay the Chancellor a thousand Marks for flandering him.

AFTER this, many of the Nobles assembled at Reading, to suppress the seditious Stirs of the said John Northampton, or Combarton, late Mayor, that had attempted great and heinous Enterprizes, of which he was Convict. And when he stood Mute, nor could utter one Word; it was decreed, That he should be committed to perpetual Prison, his Goods confiscate to the King's Use, and that he should not come within a hundred Miles of LONDON during his Life. He was therefore sent to the Castle of Tintegall, in the Confines of Cornwal, and in the mean Time the King's Servants plundered his Goods. John More, Richard Northbury, and others, were likewise there Convict, and condemned to perpetual Prison, and their Goods, Confiscate, for certain Congregations by them made against the Fishmongers in the City of LONDON, as is aforesaid; but they obtained and had the King's Pardon, in the 14th of his Reign, as appeareth by Record: And thus were all these Troubles quieted.

THOSE Stockfishmongers and Saltfishmongers were united in the Year 1536, the 28th of Henry VIII. their Hall to be but one, in the House given to them by Sir John Cornwall, Lord Franhope, and of Amptbull, in the Parish of St. Michael in Crooked-lane, in the Reign of Henry VI.

“ Thus much, saith Stow, have I thought good “ to Note of the Fishmongers, Men ignorant of “ their own Antiquities, and not able so much “ as to shew the Reason why, or when, they “ were joined in Amity with the Gold“ smiths, and do give Part of their Arms, &c.
“ Neither to say ought of Sir William Walworth
“ the Glory of their Company (more, than that “ he slew Jack Straw, which is meer Fable; for “ the said Jack Straw was, after the Overthrow “ of the Rebels, taken; and by Judgment of “ the Mayor, beheaded, which Confession at the “ Gallows is extant in my Annals. Where also “ is set down the most valiant and praise-worthy “ Act of Sir William Walworth, against the “ principal Rebel Walter Tyler.

ON that South Side of Thames-street, was, in Stow's Time, Drinkwater-wharf, and Fish-wharf, in the Parish of St. Magnus. On the South Side Thames-street, St. Martin's-lane; a Part of which Lane was also of this Ward; to wit, on one Side to a Well of Water; and on the other Side as far up as against the said Well. Then St. Michael's-lane, Part whereof also of this Ward, up to a Well there; &c.

THEN at the upper End of New Fish-street, is a Lane turning towards St. Michael's-lane, and is called Crooked-lane, from the crooked Windings thereof. Above this Lane's End, upon Fishstreet-hill, was one great House, for the most Part built of Stone, which pertained some Time to Edward the Black Prince, Son to Edward III. who was in his Life-time lodged there. It was afterwards a common Hostery, having the Black Bell for a Sign.

As to the present State of this Ward:

THE Streets and Places of Note, are London-bridge, New Fish-street, Gracechurch-street, as far as Fenchurch-street.

St. Michael's-lane, about a hundred and fifty Feet of the South End next to Thames-street.

Crooked-lane, about a hundred and twenty Feet of the East End of it.

WE begin with London-bridge; a Bridge not inferior to any in Europe for its Length, Breadth, and Buildings thereon, being sustained by nineteen great Stone Arches, secured by Piles of Timber drove to the Bottom of the River, having a Draw-bridge towards Southwark, as also strong Gates; and by the Houses built thereon on both Sides, it seemeth rather a Street than a Bridge, being now furnished with good Timber Buildings, which are very well inhabited by sufficient Tradesmen, who have very considerable Dealings, as being so great a Thoroughfare from Southwark into LONDON: And amongst these Buildings some are very large with curious Fronts in that Part near the Draw-bridge, where it hath an open Prospect on both Sides into the River Thames; but we cannot help being of the Opinion of a late Writer, that this Bridge would have been more convenient for Passage, and a greater Ornament to the City, if, instead of the Houses thereon, it had been only adorned with a strong Breastwork and Balustrade.

THE Rents of the Houses upon it belong to the City, for and towards the Maintenance of the said Bridge, the Bridge-house, and Officers thereunto belonging, which are very considerable; the greatest Part of the Land in St. George's-fields, Southwark, is also settled for the same Purpose: But of this Bridge see more in Book I, Chap. VII.

Fish-street-hill is a Street very well built, and inhabited by great Dealers, and the rather as being so great a Thoroughfare in and out of the City, Southwards.

ON the East Side near the Bridge is St. Magnus's Church, seated in the Corner going into Thames-street; it is in the Diocese of LONDON; the Abbots of Westminster and Bermondsey were Patrons. It was destroyed by the Fire of LONDON.

ON the West Side of the Bridge is the Water-house, being a lofty wooden Building, which by Wheels, Iron Chains, &c. drinketh, or rather forceth up Water through leaden Pipes to the Top, where there is a Cistern, and from thence descends in other leaden Pipes to the Bottom, and thence, received by other Pipes, is conveyed under the Pavements of the Streets, and so serveth many Families in this Part of the City with Water, of which we have spoken before.

THEN passing Thames-street, on the East Side of Fish-street-hill is the Hoop-tavern, which hath a Passage into Thames-street.

King's-Head-court, open with indifferent good Buildings, hath a Passage into Pudding-lane.

Globe-yard, an open and somewhat large Place, having several Turnings, with a Free-stone Pavement, and is indifferently well inhabited.

Crooked-lane, on the West Side, hath a turning Passage into St. Michael's-lane, but the greatest Part being in Candlewick Ward is there treated of.

ON the East Side stands the Monument, seated in a Square, open to the Street, erected to perpetuate the Remembrance of the dreadful Fire of LONDON, in the Year 1666. This fine Piece of Architecture is the Design of that great Genius Sir Christopher Wren; it is undoubtedly the finest modern Column in the World, and in some Respects may vie with the most famous of Antiquity, being 24 Feet higher than Trajan's Pillar at Rome.

THIS Column is of the Dorick Order, fluted; whose Altitude is 202 Feet from the Ground, the greatest Diameter of the Shaft (or Body) of the Column is 15 Feet, the Ground bounded by the Plinth, or lowest Part of the Pedestal, 28 Feet Square, and the Pedestal is in Altitude 40 Feet, all of Portland Stone; within is a large Stair-case of Black Marble, containing 345 Steps, 10 Inches and a half broad, and six Inches Risers, and a Balcony within 32 Feet of the very Top; where is a curious and spacious gilded Flame, very suitable to the Intent of the whole Column.

THE North and South Sides of the Pedestal have each a Latin Inscription, one describing the Desolation of this City laid in Ashes, and the other its glorious Restauration. That on the North Side runs thus:

Anno Christi C<sup>o</sup>DCLXVI. Die II. Nonis Septembris, hinc in Orientem; pedum CCII Intervallo (quæ est hujusce Columnæ Altitudo) erupit de media Nocte Incendium; quod vento spirante hausit etiam longinqua, &c. partes per omnes populabundum ferebatur cum impetu & fragore incredibili. Urbis Cadaver ad C<sup>o</sup>XXXVI. Jugera; hinc ab Arce per Thamesis Ripam ad Templariorum Fanum, illinc ab Euro Aquilonali Portus secundum Muros ad Fossæ Fletanæ Caput, perrexit; adversus Opes Civium, & Fortunas infestum; erga Viros innocuum, ut per omnia referret supremam illam mundi Exustionem velox Clades fuit; exiguum Tempus eandem vidit Civitatem florentissimam, & nullam Tertio die, cum jam evicerat humana Consilia; & Subsidia omnia, cœlitus, ut par est credere, jussus sterit fatalis Ignis & quaquaversum elanguit, &c.

In the Year of Christ 1666, the 2d Day of September, Eastward from hence, at the Distance of 202 Feet (the Height of this Column) about Midnight a most terrible Fire broke out, which, driven on by a high Wind, not only wasted the adjacent Parts, but also Places very remote, with incredible Noise and Fury: It consumed 89 Churches, the City Gates, Guildhall, many publick Structures, Hospitals, Schools, Libraries, a vast Number of stately Edifices, 13200 Dwelling-Houses, 400 Streets; of 26 Wards; it utterly destroyed 15, and left eight others shatter'd and half burnt; the Ruins of the City were 436 Acres, from the Tower by the Thames Side, to the Temple Church, and from the North East Gate along the City Wall to Holborn-bridge: To the Estates and Fortunes of the Citizens it was merciless, but to their Lives very favourable; that it might in all Things resemble the last Conflagration of the World.

The Destruction was sudden, for in a small Space of Time, the same City was seen most flourishing and reduced to nothing.

Three Days after, when this fatal Fire had baffled all human Counsels and Endeavours in the Opinion of all, as it were by the Will of Heaven, it stopp'd, and on every Side was extinguish'd.

THE South Side Inscription thus:

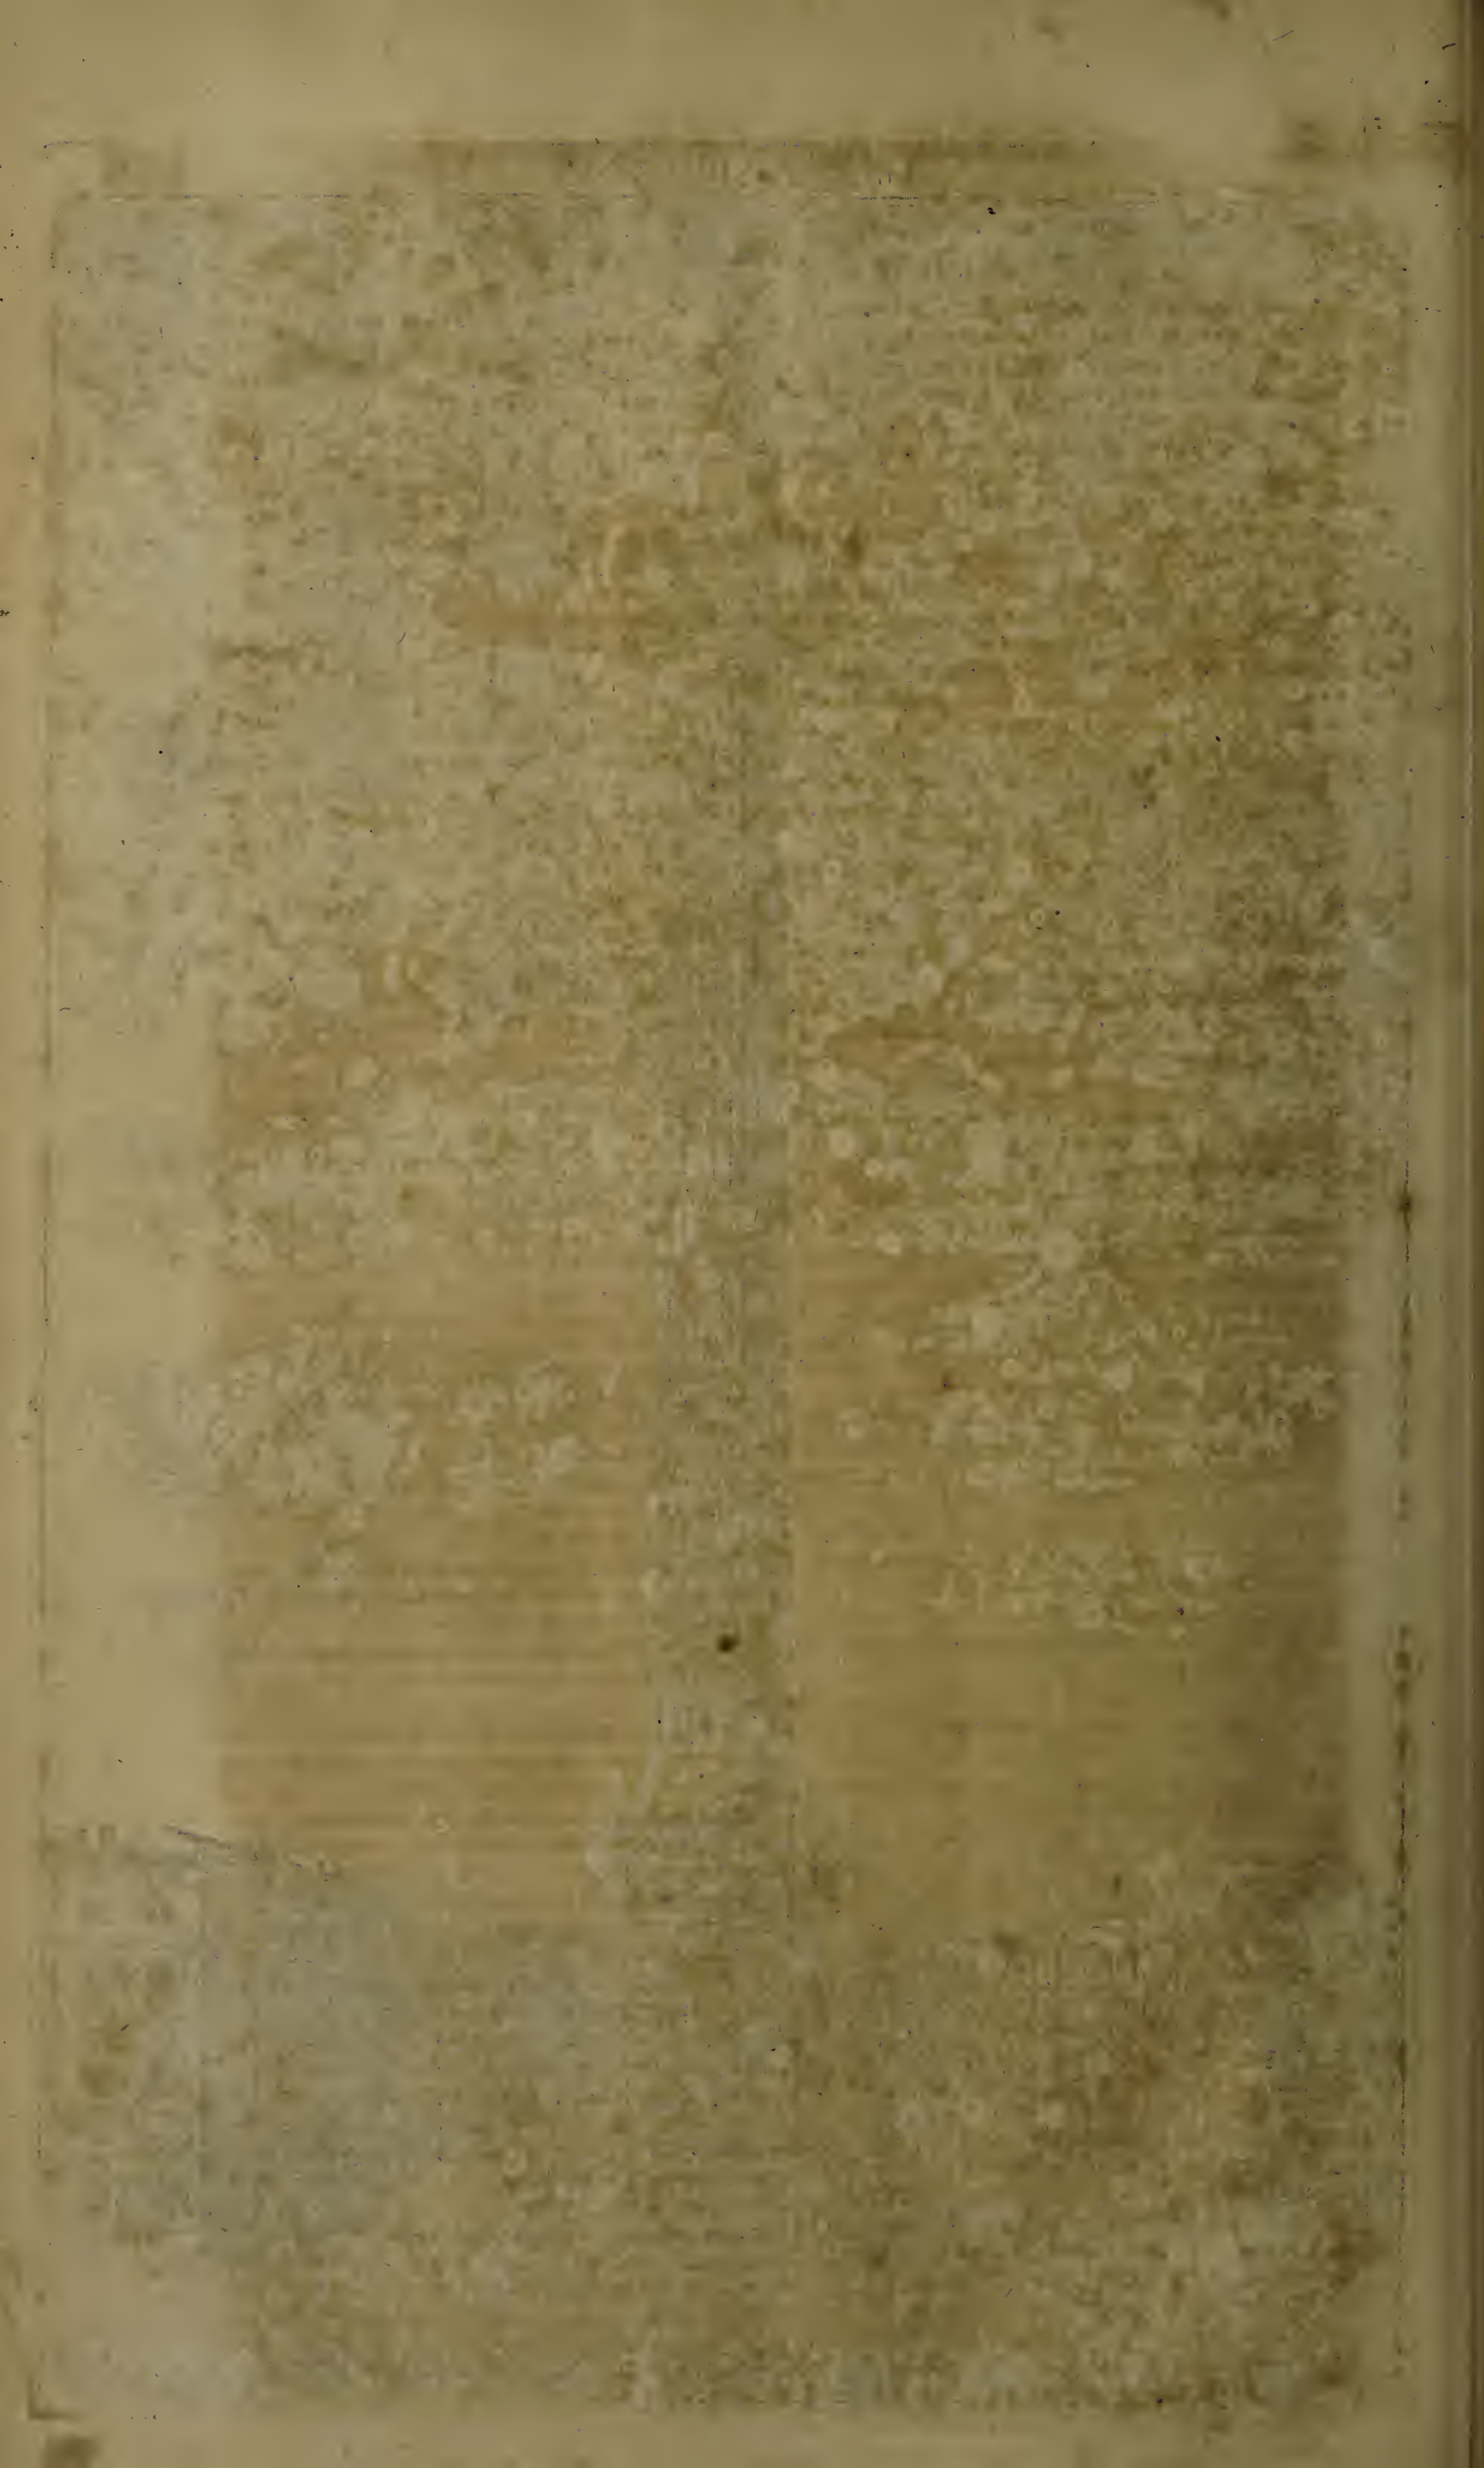

Carolus II. C. Mart. E. Mag. Brit. Franc. & Hib. Rex. Fid. D. Princeps clementissimus, miseratus luctuosam Rerum faciem, plurima humanibus, jam tum Ruinis, in solatium Civium & Urbis suæ Ornamentum providit, Tributum remisit. Preces Ordinis & Populi Londinensis retulit.

Charles II. Son of Charles the Martyr, King of Great Britain, France and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, a most gracious Prince, commiserating the deplorable State of Things, whilst the Ruins were yet smoaking, provided for the Comfort of his Citizens, and the Ornament of his City; remitted their Taxes, and referred the Petitions of the Magistrates and Inhabitants to the Parliament, who immediately passed an Act, that publick Works should be restored to greater Beauty with publick Money, to be raised by an Imposition on Coal; that Churches, and the Cathedral of St. Paul's, should be rebuilt from their Foundations, with all Magnificence; that Bridges, Gates and Prisons should be new made, the Sewers cleansed, the Streets made strait and regular, such as was steep levelled, and those too narrow made wider, Markets and Shambles removed to separate Places. They also enacted, that every House should be built with Party Walls, and all in Front raised of equal Height, and those Walls all of Square Stone or Brick; and that no Man should delay beyond the Space of seven Years. Moreover, Care was taken by Law, to prevent all Suits about their Bounds. Also, Anniversary Prayers were enjoined; and to perpetuate the Memory hereof to Posterity, they caused this Column to be erected. The Work was carried on with Diligence, and LONDON is restored; but whether with greater Speed or Beauty, may be made a Question. A three Years Time saw that finished, which was supposed to be the Business of an Age.

THE East Side of the Pedestal has also an Inscription, expressing the Times in which this Pillar was began, continued and brought to Perfection. The Words are these:

Sir Thomas Davis being Lord Mayor, in the Year 1677.

AND whereas upon Evidence, it was thought that this dreadful Fire was contrived and carried on by the Popish Faction, the same is expressed in English round the Base of the Pedestal, under the said Inscriptions, in these following Words:

This Pillar was set up in perpetual Remembrance of the most dreadful Burning of this antient City; begun and carried on by the Treachery and Malice of the Popish Faction, in the Beginning of September, in the Year of our Lord 1666, in order to the carrying on their horrid Plot for Extirpating the Protestant Religion, and old English Liberty, and Introducing Popery and Slavery:

ON the Front, or West Side, of the Die of the Pedestal of this magnificent Column, is finely carved, a curious Emblem of this Tragical Scene, by the Masterly Hand of Mr. Cibber, Father to the present King's Poet, who likewise carved the inimitable Figures on the Gate of Bethlem, already mentioned. The 11 principal Figures on this Pedestal are done in Alto, the rest in Basso Relievo, viz.

I. AT the North End of the said Plain, is represented in Basso Relievo, the City in Flames, and the Inhabitants in a Consternation, with their Arms extended upward, and crying out for Succour.

II. A little nearer the Horizon are the Arms, Cap of Maintenance, and other Ensigns of the City's Grandeur, partly buried under the Ruins.

III. On the Ruins lies the Figure of a Woman crowned with a Castle, her Breasts pregnant, and in her Hand a Sword; denoting the strong, plentiful, and well-govern'd City of LONDON in Distress.

IV. The Sovereign (King Charles II.) is represented standing on an Anabathrum, or Place ascended to by (three) Steps, in a Roman Habit, providing with his Power and prudent Directions (as is expressed by the Inscription on the South Side) for the Comfort of his Citizens, and Ornament of his City.

V. On the said Steps, stand, in the King's Presence, the Figures of three Women, that next his Majesty representing Liberty, having in her Right Hand a Hat, whereon is the Word Libertas, denoting the Freedom, or Liberty, given to those that engaged three Years in the Work.

VI. Another of the said three Women is Ich-nographia, with Rules and Compasses in one Hand (the Instruments whereby Plans and Designs are delineated in due Proportion) and a Scrol partly unrolled in the other Hand, whereon such Designs are to be drawn; and near this is a Bee-hive, the known Emblem of Industry.

VII. The third of the said Figures, represents Imagination, holding the Emblem of Invention, and having on her Head Wings, and small Children (as being swift and fruitful) and on the Border of her Garment these Words, Non aliunde; all which shew, that the speedy Re-erection of the City, is principally owing to Liberty, Imagination, Contrivance, Art, and Industry.

VIII. And farther, to encourage the said Citizens, here is the Figure of Time, elevating the Woman in Distress, and Providence with his winged Hand, containing an Eye, promising Peace and Plenty,

Plenty, by pointing towards those two Figures appearing above the Clouds.

IX. Behind the King (as it were Eastward) the Work is going forward, as Scaffolding, Labourers carrying Materials, &c.

X. Partly within a cambered Cell, under the Sovereign's Feet, appeareth Envy, diabolically enraged at the Measures concerted, and the great Prospect of Success. He is endeavouring to renew the Disaster, by blowing Flames out of his Mouth towards the distressed City.

XI. On the same Plain, South End from the King, is a Lion with one Fore Foot tied up and curbed by the Left Hand of Fortitude, in whose Right Hand is a Sword, under which Figures appears the Muzzle of a Cannon, which denotes this deplorable Loss and Misfortune to happen in Time of War.

XII. Between that and the King, is the Figure of Mars, with a Chaplet in his Hand, an Emblem, that an approaching honourable Peace would be the Consequence of the War.

AND above this, round the Cornice of the Pedestal, are noble Enrichments of Trophy Work, and the King's Arms; also of the Sword, Mace, Cap of Maintenance, &c. and at the Angles are four very large Dragons, the Supporters of the City Arms.

It will not be improper, we think, in this Place, to give a fuller Account of the terrible Fire, which was the Occasion of setting up this Column, than what is inscribed thereon: We shall begin with the Account of it, published by Authority in the Gazette, Monday, September the 10th, 1666.

An Account of the Fire of London.

ON the 2d Instant, at One o'Clock in the Morning, there happened to break out a sad and deplorable Fire in Pudding-lane, near New Fish-street; which falling out at that Hour of the Night, and in a Quarter of the Town so close built with Wooden Pitch'd Houses, spread itself so far before Day, and with such Distraction to the Inhabitants and Neighbours, that Care was not taken for the timely preventing the farther Diffusion of it, by pulling down Houses, as ought to have been; so that this lamentable Fire, in a short Time, became too big to be mastered by any Engines, or Working near it. It fell out most unhappily too, that a violent Easterly Wind fomented it, and kept it burning all that Day, and the Night following, spreading itself up to Gracechurch-street, and downwards from Cannon-street to the Water Side, as far as the Three Cranes in the Vintry.

THE People in all Parts about it, distracted by the Vastness of it, and their particular Care to carry away their Goods, many Attempts were made to prevent the spreading of it, by pulling down Houses, and making great Intervals, but all in vain, the Fire seizing upon the Timber and Rubbish; and so continuing itself, even through those Spaces, and raging in a bright Flame all Monday and Tuesday, notwithstanding his Majesty's own, and his Royal Highness the Duke of York's, indefatigable and personal Pains to apply all possible Remedies to prevent it, calling upon and helping the People with their Guards; and a great Number of Nobility and Gentry unweariedly assisted therein, for which they were requited with a thousand Blessings from the poor distressed People.

By the Favour of GOD the Wind slackened a little on Tuesday Night, and the Flames meeting with Brick Buildings at the Temple, by little and little it was observed to lose its Force on that Side; so that on Wednesday Morning we began to hope well, and his Royal Highness never despairing, or slackening his personal Care, wrought so well that Day, assisted in some Parts by the Lords of the Council, before and behind it, that a Stop was put to it at the Temple Church, near Holbourn-bridge, Pye-corner, Aldersgate, Cripplegate, near the lower End of Coleman-street, at the End of Basing-hall-street, by the Postern, at the upper End of Bishopsgate-street and Leaden-hall-street, at the Standard in Cornhill, at the Church in Fenchurch-street, near Clothworkers-hall in Mincing-lane, at the Middle of Mark-lane, and at the Tower-dock.

ON Thursday, by the Blessing of GOD, it was wholly beat down and extinguish'd; but so as that Evening it unhappily burst out again afresh at the Temple, by the falling of some Sparks, (as is supposed) upon a Pile of Wooden Buildings; but his Royal Highness, who watch'd there that Night in Person, by the great Labours and Diligence used, and especially by applying Powder to blow up the Houses about it, before Day, most happily master'd it.

DIVERS Strangers, Dutch and French, were, during the Fire, apprehended, upon Suspicion that they contributed mischievously to it, who are all imprisoned, and Informations prepared to make a severe Inquisition thereupon, by my Lord Chief Justice Keeling, assisted by some of the Lords of the Privy-Council, and some principal Members of the City; notwithstanding which Suspicions, the Manner of the Burning all along in a Train, and so blown forwards in all its Way by strong Winds, makes us conclude, the Whole was an Effect of an unhappy Chance; or, to speak better, the heavy Hand of GOD upon us for our Sins, shewing us the Terror of his Judgment in thus raising the Fire, and immediately after his miraculous and never enough to be acknowledged Mercy in putting a Stop to it, when we were in the last Despair, and that all Attempts for the quenching it, however industriously pursued, seemed insufficient. His Majesty then sat hourly in Council, and ever since hath continued making Rounds about the City in all Parts of it where the Danger and Mischief was greatest, 'till this Morning that he hath sent his Grace the Duke of Albemarle, whom he hath called for to assist him in this great Occasion, to put his happy and successful Hand to the finishing this memorable Deliverance.

ABOUT the Tower, the seasonable Orders given for plucking down Houses to secure the Magazines of Powder, was more especially successful, that Part being up the Wind, notwithstanding which it came almost to the very Gates of it, so as by this early Provision, the several Stores of War lodged in the Tower, were entirely saved: And we have further this infinite Cause particularly to give GOD Thanks, that the Fire did not happen in any of those Places where his Majesty's Naval Stores are kept, so as tho' it hath pleased GOD to visit us with his own Hand, he hath not, by disfurnishing us with the Means of carrying on the War, subjected us to our Enemies.

It must be observed, That this Fire happened in a Part of the Town, where, though the Commodities were not very rich, yet they were so bulky, that they could not well be removed; so that the Inhabitants of that Part where it first began, have sustained very great Loss; but by the best Enquiry we can make, the other Parts of the Town, where the Commodities were of greater Value, took the Alarm so early, that they saved most of their Goods of Value, which possibly may have diminished the Loss, though some think that if the whole Industry of the Inhabitants had been applied to the Stopping of the Fire, and not to the Saving of their particular Goods, the Success might have been much better, not only to the Publick, but to many of them in their own Particulars.

THRO' this sad Accident it is easy to be imagined how many Persons were necessitated to remove themselves and Goods into the open Fields, where they were forced to continue some Time, which could not but work Compassion in the Beholders; but his Majesty's Care was most signal on this Occasion, who, besides his Personal Pains, was frequent in consulting all Ways for relieving those distressed Persons, which produced so good Effect, as well by his Majesty's Proclamation, and the Orders issued to the Neighbouring Justices of the Peace, to encourage the sending in Provisions to the Markets, which are publickly known as by other Directions, that when his Majesty, fearing lest other Orders might not yet have been sufficient, had commanded the Victualler of his Navy to send Bread into Moor-fields for the Relief of the Poor, which for the more speedy Supply he sent in Bisket out of the Sea-Stores; it was found that the Markets had been already so well supplied, that the People being unaccustomed to that Kind of Bread, declined it, and so it was returned, in great Part, to his Majesty's Stores again, without any Use made of it.

AND we cannot but observe, to the Confutation of all his Majesty's Enemies, who endeavour to perswade the World Abroad of great Parties and Disaffection at Home against his Majesty's Government, that a greater Instance of the Affections of this City could never have been given, than hath been now given in this sad and deplorable Accident, when, if at any Time, Disorder might have been expected from the Losses, Distraction, and almost Desperation of some Persons in their private Fortunes; Thousands of People not having Habitations to cover them. And yet in all this Time there hath been so far from any Appearance of Designs, or Attempts, against his Majesty's Government, that his Majesty and his Royal Brother, out of their Care to stop and prevent the Fire, frequently exposing their Persons with very small Attendants, in all Parts of the Town; sometimes even to be intermixed with those who laboured in the Business, yet nevertheless there hath not been observed so much as a murmuring Word to fall from any; but on the contrary, even those Persons, whose Losses rendered their Conditions most desperate, and to be fit Objects of others Prayers, beholding those frequent Instances of his Majesty's Care of his People, forgot their own Misery, and filled the Streets with their Prayers for his Majesty, whose Trouble they seemed to compassionate before their own.

THE Damage done by this Fire is thus computed. Burned and consumed 12000 Houses, within the Walls of the City, and above 1000 more without the Walls, but all of them within the Freedom and Liberty of LONDON; that is, in all 13000, or as others 13200 Houses. There were also destroyed the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's, which at that Time was new building, and as to the Stone Work, almost finished: Also 87 Parish-Churches, and six consecrated Chapels; most of the principal and publick Edifices: As the great Guildhall, wherein were nine several Courts belonging to the City; the Royal-Exchange; the King's Custom-house; Justice-hall, where the Sessions were kept eight or nine Times in the Year for the Trial of Murderers, Felons and other Malefactors; the four Prisons; four of the principal Gates of the City; and fifty Halls of Companies, most of which were most magnificent Structures and Palaces. The whole Damage sustained by this Fire is almost incredible. Yet to make some Computation, that which follows is the Method that hath been taken.

An Account of the vast Damage and Spoil made by the aforementioned Conflagration.

THAT the Reader may the better judge of the Damages done by this Fire, some have computed the Thirteen thousand odd hundred Houses burnt and destroyed, to be worth one with another 25 l. yearly Rent; which at the low Rent of 12 Years Purchase, will in the whole amount unto 3,900,000 l. Sterling, and upwards.

AND for the other Work of publick Concern, they have been thus moderately estimated.

A TABLE of Estimates.

	l.
In Houses burnt as aforesaid	3,900,000
In Churches and other Publick Edifices as follow: The 87 Parish-Churches at 8000 l. each	696,000
Six Chappels, at 2000 l. each	12,000
The Royal-Exchange , at	50,000
The King's Custom-house , at	10,000
The 52 Halls of Companies, 1500 l.	78,000
Three of the City Gates, at 3000 l. each	9,000
The Jail of Newgate	15,000
Four Stone Bridges	6,000
The Sessions House	7,000
The Guildhall , and Courts and Offices belonging to it	40,000
Blackwell-hall .	3,000
Bridewell	5,000
Poultry Compter	5,000
Woodstreet Compter	3,000
	<hr/> 939,000 <hr/>

To which add,

	l.
Towards the Building of St. Paul's Cathedral	2,000,000
The Wares, Household-stuff, Monies, and other moveable Goods, lost and spoiled, may probably amount to	2,000,000
In the Hire of Porters, Cart, Waggon, Barges, Boats, &c. for Removing of Wares, Household-Stuff, and the like, during the Time of the Fire and some small Time after, may well be reckoned at	200,000
In printed Books and Paper in several Shops and Warehouses	150,000
In Wine, Tobacco, Sugar, Plumbs, &c. of which the City was at that Time very full.	1,500,000
	<hr/> 5,850,000 <hr/>

For publick Works enjoyed by Act of Parliament.

	l.
For cutting a Navigable Channel from the Thames to Holborn-bridge	27,000
For a Monument to be erected near to the Place where the Fire began	14,500
	<hr/> 41,500 <hr/>

Melioration Money paid to several Proprietors, who had their Ground taken away, for the Making of Wharfs, enlarging of Streets, making of new Streets and Market-Places, &c.

All which Particulars, viz.

	l.
For Houses burnt	3,900,000
For Publick Edifices burnt.	939,000
For Losses sustained in Monies, and in Goods burnt; and in Carriage and Removing, and by St. Paul's Church being then almost new built	5,850,000
For Publick Works enjoined to be done by Act of Parliament	41,500
For Melioration
The Sum of all,	10,730,500

Of the strange Concurrence of several Causes, (happening at the same Time) occasioning the Fire so vigorously to spread and increase.

BESIDES the supine Negligence of the People (whether Master or Servants) of the House, where this dreadful Conflagration began, next unto GOD's just Judgments for the heinous crying Sins of this Nation, and City in particular, some have made Enquiry into other natural Causes, which might Occasion such a geneal Ruin, from so small a Beginning: And,

First, They consider the Time of the Night when it first began, viz. between One and Two o'Clock, after Midnight, when all were in a dead Sleep.

Secondly, It was Saturday Night, when many of the most eminent Citizens, Merchants, and others, were retired into the Country, and none but Servants left to look to their City Houses.

Thirdly, It was in the long Vacation, being that particular Time of the Year, when many wealthy Citizens and Tradesmen are wont to be in the Country at Fairs, and getting in of Debts, and making up Accompts with their Chapmen.

Fourthly, The Closeness of the Building, and Narrowness of the Street where it began, did much facilitate the Progress of the Fire, by hindering of the Engines to be brought to play upon the Houses on Fire.

Fifthly, The Matter of which the Houses all thereabouts were, viz. Timber, and those very old.

Sixthly, The Dryness of the preceeding Season; there having been a great Drought even to that very Day, and all the Time that the Fire continued, which had so dried the Timber, that it was never more apt to take Fire.

Seventhly, The Nature of the Wares and Commodities stowed and vended in those Parts, were the most Combustible of any other sold in the whole City; as, Oil, Pitch, Tar, Cordage, Hemp, Flax, Rosin, Wax, Butter, Cheese, Wine, Brandy, Sugar, &c.

Eighthly, An Easterly Wind, (which is the driest of all others) had blown for several Days together before; and at that Time very strongly.

Ninthly, The unexpected failing of the Water thereabouts at that Time; for the Engine at the North End of London-bridge, called the Thames-water-Tower, (which supplied all that Part of the City with Thames Water) was out of Order, and in a few Hours was itself burnt down, so that the Water Pipes, which conveyed the Water from thence through the Streets, were soon empty.

Lastly, An unusual Negligence at first, and a Confidence of easily quenching it, and of its stopping at several Places afterwards, turned at length into a Confusion, Consternation, and Despair; People choosing rather by Flight to save their Goods, than by a vigorous Opposition to save their own Houses, and the whole City.

To all which Reasons must not be past over the general Suspicion, that most then had of Incendiaries laying combustible Stuff in many Places, having observed divers distant Houses to be on Fire together. And many were then taken up upon Suspicion.

HAVING now given the Reader this brief View and Account of the Condition the City of LONDON was in, until Anno 1666; and how in that Year, by this dreadful Conflagration, the greatest Part of it was buried in its own Ashes, let it rest in this ruinous Condition, till I acquaint you how, and by what Means, it came to be rebuilt in that magnificent, substantial and beautiful Manner, as now it is; with its Cathedral and Parochial Churches, Gates, Halls, Publick Edifices, &c. And of all such additional Buildings, new Streets, Markets, Courts, and other Ornaments enjoined, such as the like before were never erected: And this shall be our next Work.

Several Things Premised and Enacted before the Beginning of the Re-building of the City of LONDON, necessary thereunto, Anno 19 & 20 Caroli II. Regis.

I. For the Levelling of Hills, Streets, and Lanes.

FOR the preventing Inundations, and for easiness of Ascent, be it enacted, That the Street called Thames-street, and all the Ground between the same Street and the River Thames, shall be raised and made higher by three Feet, at the least, above the Surface of the Ground as now it lieth.

Now therefore, for the bringing of the Ground unto a nearer Level than formerly it was, At a Meeting of the Commissioners and Surveyors Anno 1667, appointed by Act of Parliament, there were by them made and issued out, these following:

RULES and DIRECTIONS prescribed and made for the Pitching and Levelling the Streets and Lands of the City of LONDON, and Liberties, for the more easy and convenient Current, and Conveyance of the Water thereof; as also for the easier Passing of Carts, Coaches, &c.

I. TOWER-DOCK in Thames-street, is to be raised 3 Feet. At 147 f. upwards from Thames-street to be raised 2 f. 10 Inches: At the highest Part in Tower-street, against the Middle of St. Albalow's-Barking Church-yard, to be sunk 6 Inches.

2. Beer-lane is to be raised at Thames-street 8 f. at 90 f. upwards 4 f. and to be abated at 192 f. upwards, 3 Inches; and at Tower-street 6 Inches.

3. Water-lane is to be raised at Thames-street 6 f. at 83 f. upwards nothing; and to be abated at 128 f. upwards, 1 f. 11 Inches: At Tower-street abate 2 f.

II. For the Opening and Enlarging of several Streets and Publick Passages.

WHEREAS many antient Streets and Passages within the City of LONDON, and Liberty thereof, were narrow and incommodious for Carriages and Passengers, and prejudicial to the Trade and Health of the Inhabitants; and are necessary to be enlarged, as well for the Convenience as Ornament of the City: It is therefore enacted by this present Parliament, (Caroli II. Decimo Nono) that these Streets and Places following shall be enlarged, viz.

1. The Street called Fleet-street, from the Place where the Greyhound Tavern stood, to Ludgate, and from thence to Paul's Churchyard.

2. The Street leading from the East End of St. Paul's Church into Cheapside.

3. The

3. The Street and Passage at the East End of Cheapside, leading into the Poultry.

4. The Street and Passage out of the Poultry leading into the West End of Cornhill, at or near the Place lately called the Stocks.

5. The Street called Blow-bladder-street, leading from the West End of Cheapside towards Newgate-market; and to enlarge the Street and Passage from thence towards Newgate-market, by laying the Ground where the Middle-Row in the Shambles there lately stood, into the said Street; and in like manner, to enlarge the Passage from Newgate-market towards Newgate, by laying the Ground of the four late Houses, between Warwick-lane End and Newgate-market, and the late Bell Inn there, into the Street.

6. The Lane, called Ave-mary-lane, leading from Pater-noster-row to Ludgate-street.

7. And the Street or Passage at the End of St. Martin's-le-Grand, towards Blow-bladder-street, aforesaid.

8. And also the Passage from St. Magnus's Church, to the Conduit in Gracechurch-street, and the North End of Gracechurch-street also.

9. Thames-street, from the West Corner of St. Magnus's Church, to the Tower-dock.

10. To enlarge Old Fish-street, by laying the Middle-Row there into the Street.

11. And whereas the Way, or Passage, of Holbourn-bridge, is now too strait and inconvenient for the many Carriages and Passengers daily using and frequenting the same; and is therefore necessary to be enlarged: Be it therefore enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commoners of the City of LONDON, so to enlarge and make wider the same, as that the said Way and Passage may run in a Level Line, from a certain Timber House on the North Side thereof, commonly called, or known, by the Name or Sign of the Cock; unto the Front of the Buildings of a certain Inn, called the Swan Inn, situate on the North Side of Holbourn-hill, as aforesaid.

12. That the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of LONDON, may, and shall open and enlarge a Street, or Passage, called Water-lane, leading from Fleet-street to White-fryar's-dock, by the River Thames.

13. And open and enlarge one other Street, or Passage, through Mincing-lane, by St. Dunstan's in the East, to Thames-street near the Custom-house. And to make the said Streets, or Passages, twenty four Feet in Breadth; for the Convenience of Trade, and better Passage of Carts, and other Carriages, to and from the River Thames.

14. That the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council, also shall and may, by Virtue of this present Act, enlarge and make wider any such strait and narrow Passages within the said City, as are less than fourteen Feet in Breadth.

AND of such there have been many enlarged; too many here to be enumerated.

III. For the making of new Streets and Wharfs, Market Places, and other Publick Monuments.

1. THAT the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen are by this Act enabled to make, or cause to be made, a new Street, leading and extending from the Guildhall of the said City, into Cheapside; the same Street to be of such Breadth and Wideness, as they shall judge meet and convenient.

2. That they should also open and enlarge a Street, or Passage, to the River Thames, from Cheapside through Soper-lane, and thence to Thames-street, and thenceforth to the River Thames: And from Three-cranes to the Thames aforesaid. And to make the same Streets and Passages four and twenty Feet in Breadth.

3. That they shall also cause a Street to be opened, fourteen Feet wide, from the West End of Threadneedle-street, down to Lothbury.

4. And it is enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That (for the better Benefit and Accommodation of Trade, and for other great Conveniences) there shall be left a convenient Tract of Ground, all along from the Tower-wharf to London-bridge, and from London-bridge to the Temple, of the Breadth of forty Feet, from the North Side of the River Thames; to be converted to a Key, or publick and open Wharf. And that (in Order thereunto) all Buildings, Sheds, Pales, Walls, Inclosures, and other Obstructions and Impediments whatsoever, now standing, or being within forty Feet Northward of the said River Thames, between the Places aforesaid, (Cranes, Stairs, and Docks only excepted) shall be taken down and removed, and the said Ground cleared and levelled: And that from henceforth there shall be no Building or Erection whatsoever, (except Cranes, Stairs, and Docks) placed or set within or upon the said forty Feet of Ground, or any Part thereof, between the Places aforesaid.

5. And that all Buildings that shall hereafter immediately border upon any Part of the said Ground, upon the North Side thereof, shall front and be placed in the Line that shall be set out for the Bounds of the Breadth of the said forty Feet of Ground Northward. And that the Buildings that shall be built upon that Line, and fronting the River Thames, shall be of the second or third Sort or Rate of Buildings, hereafter mentioned in the Act for the Rebuilding of the City of LONDON, except Common Halls for Companies, and other Buildings; which shall be otherwise allowed of by the King's Majesty.

6. And that all the said Tract of Ground of the Breadth of forty Feet from the said River, shall be open and at large, without any Division or Separation: And that the Bounds of each Proprietor's Ground therein, shall be distinguished only by Denter-stones, to be placed in the Pavement thereof.

7. And be it further enacted, That for the further Convenience of Trade, the Channel of Bridewell-dock, from the Channel of the River Thames to Holbourn-bridge, shall be sunk to a sufficient Level, whereby to make it Navigable: And that the Ground to be set out for the Breadth of the said Channel, and of the Wharfs on each Side thereof, shall not be less in Breadth than one hundred Feet; nor shall exceed one hundred and twenty Feet in Breadth.

8. And that the Line of the said Channel, and Wharfs and Levels thereof, together with the Cranes and Stairs to be placed thereon, shall be ascertained by the Lord Mayor, &c. And that all the said Wharf Ground on each Side the River, shall lie open and at large, (Cranes and Stairs only excepted) without any Division or Separation; and each Person's Propriety therein, to be distinguished only by Denter-stones in the Pavement thereof.

9. And that all Buildings bordering upon each Side of the said Wharfs, shall front and be placed in the Line, that shall be set out for the Bounds of the Breadth of the Wharfs from the Channel. And that the said Buildings shall be of the second Rate of Building, mentioned in the Act for Rebuilding the City, &c.

10. Whereas by a late Act of this present Parliament it was enacted, That the Parishes to be rebuilt within the said City of LONDON, in Lieu of those which were demolished by the late dreadful Fire, should not exceed the Number of thirty nine: But forasmuch as upon an exact Survey taken of the Number of Houses to be rebuilt, and of the Extent of the respective Parishes Parishes necessary to be settled and continued within the said City, it doth appear, That the Parishes to be settled and continued; and the Parish Churches to be rebuilt within the said City, in Lieu of those demolished or consumed by the said late Fire, cannot conveniently, by Union, or otherways, be reduced to a less Number than fifty one. Be it therefore enacted by the Authority aforesaid; That the Number of Parishes to be settled, and the Parish Churches to be rebuilt, within the said City of LONDON, shall be fifty one: The former Act, or any Thing therein contained to the contrary, notwithstanding.

11. And that the Citizens of LONDON, and their Successors, for all the Time to come, may retain the Memorial of so sad a Desolation, and reflect seriously upon their manifold Iniquities, which are the unhappy Causes of such Judgments: Be it therefore enacted, That the second Day of September (unless the same happen to be Sunday, and if so, then the next Day following) be yearly for ever hereafter observed, as a Day of Publick Fasting and Humiliation within the said City, and Liberties thereof; to implore the Mercy of Almighty God upon the said City; to make devout Prayers and Supplication unto him; to divert the like Calamity for the Time to come.

12. And the better to preserve the Memory of this dreadful Visitation: Be it further enacted, That a Column, or Pillar of Brass or Stone, be erected on, or as near unto the Place where the said Fire so unhappily began, as conveniently may be; in perpetual Remembrance thereof; with such Inscription thereon, as hereafter by the Mayor and Court of Aldermen, in that Behalf, be directed.

Of the Rebuilding of the City of LONDON so speedily, substantially, and splendidly effected.

NOTWITHSTANDING the extraordinary Losses by the fore-mentioned Fire, the devouring Pestilence in this City the Year preceding, and the chargeable War with the Dutch at that Time depending; yet, by the King's Grace, the Wisdom of the Parliament then sitting at Westminster, the Diligence and Activity of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commoners of the said City (who were almost the only Losers by that fatal Accident) it was in the Space of four or five Years, well nigh rebuilt. Divers Churches, the stately Guildhall, many Halls of Companies, and other Publick Edifices; all infinitely more Uniform, more Solid, and more Magnificent than before: So that no City in Europe, (nay, scarcely in the World) can stand in Competition with it, at least in many Particulars.

How the Alterations and Augmentations enjoined: As also the Rebuilding of fifty one Parochial Churches, and the Cathedral of St. Paul's should be accomplished.

THE fore-mentioned Alterations and Augmentations, to be made in the Rebuilding of the City of LONDON, being by Act of Parliament enjoined; they took it then into their Considerations, by what Means Money might be raised for the carrying on of those Works, by them prescribed and enacted. And in their Session, Anno 19 Caroli II. Regis, they enacted as followeth:

FOR the enabling of the Lord Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of the City of LONDON, and their Successors, to perform and accomplish the Works in this Act mentioned; be it enacted by the Authority hereof,

N<sup>o</sup> 31. VOL. I.

THAT for all Sorts of Coals, which from and after the 24th Day of June 1667, and before the 24th Day of June 1677, shall be imported and brought into the Port of the City of LONDON, or the River Thames, within the Liberty of the said City of LONDON, upon the same River to be sold by the Chaldron or Tun, there shall be paid, by Way of Imposition thereupon, (over and besides all other Impositions and Duties, due and payable for any Sort of the said Coals, by Virtue of any Law, or Statute, now in Force) according to the Rates hereafter mentioned. That is to say, For such Sorts of Coals as are usually sold by the Chaldron, for every Chaldron thereof, containing thirty six Bushels Winchester Measure, the Sum of 12 d. And for all such Sorts of Coals as are Sold by the Tun, for every Tun thereof, containing twenty hundred Weight, the like Sum of 12 d. which said Imposition of 12 d. for every Chaldron, or Tun, of Coals, shall, during the Time aforesaid, be answered and paid unto the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens, or their Deputy, or Deputies, by the Master, Owner, or Owners, or other Persons, taking Charge of the Vessel, before they shall break Bulk; or have a Meter assigned for the Measuring, or Weighing, of any Coals aforesaid. The which Imposition of 12 d. to be paid at such Place, or Places, as by the Lord Mayor, and Court of Aldermen, shall from Time to Time be appointed for the Receipt thereof.

2. THAT all and every such Sum and Sums of Money, which shall be raised upon the Receipt of the said Imposition of 12 d. for every Chaldron, or Tun, of Coals, shall, in the first Place, be applied and disposed unto, and for the Satisfaction of such Persons, whose Grounds shall be taken and employed for the enlarging of the Streets and narrow Passages within the City. And after Satisfaction given for the same, the Residue shall be applied and disposed unto, and for; the Satisfaction of such Persons, whose Grounds shall be employed for the making of Wharfs, or Keys, on the North Side of the River Thames; and upon each Side of the Shore, called by the Name; or Names, of Bridewell-dock, Fleet-ditch, and Turn-mill-brook. And also for the Building and Making of such Prisons within the said City, as shall be necessary for the safe Custody and Imprisonment of Felons, and other Malefactors.

Anno 22 Caroli II. Regis.

BUT forasmuch as it doth and will require far greater Sums of Money, to give Satisfaction for the Ground to be taken and employed for the enlarging of the Streets, by this and the foresaid Act appointed to be enlarged, and for Publick Market-Places, and other the Publick Uses and Purposes in this Act mentioned. Therefore

3. For the further enabling the said Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of the said City, and their Successors, to perform the Works in this and the said Act mentioned; and also for the Rebuilding of the Parish Churches, by this Act appointed; be it enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That for all Sorts of Coals, which (from and after the first Day of May 1670, and before the twenty ninth Day of September, which shall be in the Year of our Lord 1687) shall be imported and brought into the said Port of the City of LONDON, or River Thames, within the Liberties of the said City, upon the said River, there shall be paid, by Way of Imposition thereupon, according to the Rates hereafter mentioned. That is to say, For all such Coals as shall be there imported and brought in, from and after the said first Day of May 1670, and before the 24th Day of June 1677, there shall be paid for every Chaldron or Tun thereof, 2 s. over and besides the aforesaid Imposition of 12 d. the Chaldron, or Tun, by the former Act appointed to be paid. — And for all such Coals which shall be there imported and brought in, from and after the 24th Day of June 1677, and before the said 29th Day of September 1687, there shall be paid for every Chaldron or Tun thereof, 3 s. And the same shall, by Virtue of this Act, be collected, levied and paid, in such Sort and Manner, in all and every Respect, as in and by the said Act is limited and appointed, for the Collecting of the 12 d. upon the Chaldron or Tun. All which Monies so to be received upon Account of the respective Impositions, or either of them, shall from Time to Time be paid into the Receipt of the Chamber of LONDON; and from thence shall be issued and paid according to the Directions and Appointment of this present Act, and not otherwise.

4. And be it further enacted, that all and every Sum and Sums of Money, which shall be raised upon the Receipt of the several Impositions aforesaid, shall be employed and disposed in Manner and Form following. That is to say, Three Fourth Parts of all the Monies, which from and after the 1st Day of May 1670, and before the 24th Day of June 1677, shall be raised, or payable, upon the Receipt of the aforesaid Imposition of 2 s. for every Chaldron or Tun of Coals, shall be employed and disposed of, for and towards the Rebuilding, Erecting or Repairing of the Parish-Churches, according to such Order and Direction, as by the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Bishop and Lord Mayor of LONDON, or any two of them shall be given in that Behalf: And the same shall from Time to Time be issued out, and paid accordingly. And the other fourth Part; Residue thereof, shall be employed for and towards the giving Satisfaction for Grounds, set out and employed for the Enlarging of Streets, Making of Wharfs, Keys, Publick Market-places, and other Publick Uses, in this and the aforesaid Act mentioned and appointed. — And that one Moiety of all the Monies, which from and after the said 24th Day of June 1677, shall be raised, or payable upon the aforesaid Imposition of 3 s. the Chaldron or Tun, shall be employed and disposed, for and towards the Rebuilding, Erecting and Repairing of the Parish-Churches; by such Order and Direction, and to be issued and paid by such Warrant of the said Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Bishop and Lord Mayor of LONDON, for the Time being. And the other Moiety thereof shall be employed and disposed, for the giving of Satisfaction for Ground, set out and employed as aforesaid; and such other Publick Uses and Purposes, as in this and the aforesaid Acts are mentioned and appointed.

5. And be it enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Bishop of LONDON, and Lord Mayor of LONDON, or any two of them, as aforesaid, to employ or dispose, for and towards the Building and Repairing the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, One fourth Part of the Money by this Act given and appointed, for the Building, Erecting, or Repairing the Parish-Churches aforesaid.

For the avoiding of Suits of Law and other Differences that might arise between Landlords and Tenants, &c. after this General Calamity by the Fire.

FOR the avoiding of such Inconveniences, which would of Necessity arise concerning the Repairing and new Building of Houses, and

Payment of Rents; which, if they should not be determined with all Speed, and without Charge, would much obstruct the Rebuilding of the said City: Wherefore, the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in Parliament assembled, made an Act for the Reconciling of such Differences, entitled, An Act for Erecting a Judicature, for the Determination of Differences, touching Houses burned or demolished, by reason of the late Fire which happened in LONDON, wherein it was enacted;

1. That the Justices of the Courts of King's-Bench and Common-Pleas, and the Barons of the Coif of the Exchequer, or any three or more of them, are authorised to hear and determine all Differences and Demands whatsoever, which have or may arise between Landlords, Proprietors, Tenants, Lessees, Under-Tenants, or late Occupiers of any of the Buildings, or other Things by the said Fire demolished.

2. For or concerning the Payment, Defalcation, Apportioning, or Abatement of any Rent or Rents, other than Arrears of Rent only due before the first Day of September 1666, or for or touching any Covenant, Condition or Penalty relating thereunto; or for touching or concerning the Prefixing or Limiting of any Time for such Repairs or new Building; or any Rate or Contribution to be born, or paid thereunto by any Person or Persons, Bodies Politick or Corporate interested in the Premises, and all Incidents relating thereunto.

3. That they, without the Formalities of Proceedings in Courts of Law or Equity, shall and may, upon the Verdict or Inquisition of Jurors, Testimony of Witnesses upon Oath, Examination of Persons interested, or by all or any of the said Ways, or otherwise according to their Discretions, proceed to the Hearing and Determining of the Demands or Differences between the said Parties concerning the Premises. And that the Definitive Order of the said Justices and Barons shall be final; from which there shall be no Appeal, or Review. Nor shall any Writ of Error or Certiorari, lie for the Removal, or Reversal of the same.

4 The said Justices and Barons are hereby empowered, where they shall think it convenient, to order the Surrendering, Increasing, Abridging, Ceasing, Determining, or Charging of any Estates in the Premises, or to order new or longer Leases or Estates, not exceeding 40 Years, to be made of any of the Premises, by the Proprietors or Owners thereof, or other Persons interested therein, to any Tenant or Sub-Tenant, or late Occupiers of the same; their Heirs or Assigns, at such Rents and Fines, or without any Rent or Fine, as they shall think fit.

5. That all Orders made as aforesaid, according to the Tenors thereof, shall be obeyed by all Persons concerned therein respectively; and shall conclude and bind them, their Heirs, Successors, Executors, Administrators, and Assigns respectively.

6. That upon the Complaint or Request of any Person or Persons concerned, in any of the said Houses or Buildings, and other the Premises, shall issue out Notes or Warrants under their Hands, warning the Party or Parties therein named to appear before them at such Time and Place, as in such Note or Notes shall be specified; and upon Appearance, or Default of Appearance, the said Justices and Barons may proceed to make such finite and definite Orders as aforesaid.

7. That

7. That for the Matters, and according to the Powers herein before-mentioned, shall be, and shall be taken to be a Court of Records: And that the Judgments and Determinations that shall be made between Party and Party by Authority of this Act, shall be recorded in a Book provided for that Purpose; which Book, so recorded and signed, shall be placed and intrusted in the Custody of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City of LONDON, for the Time being, to be kept with the Records of the said City, and to remain as a perpetual and standing Record.

8. That none of the said Justices and Barons shall take any Fee or Reward whatsoever, directly or indirectly, for any Thing to be done by them, by Virtue or Colour of this present Act.

9. And for a Reward of the Officers to be employed herein, the said Justices and Barons, are to order and direct a Table of such reasonable Fees to be made, as may carry on and effect the Purport and Intent of this Act.

THIS Act was to continue in Force till the last Day of December, in the Year of our Lord, 1668, and no longer: But all Differences in that Time not being ended, the former Act was continued till the 29th of September, 1671, and afterwards till the 29th of September 1672.

Rules and Directions to be observed in the Re-building of the City of LONDON.

FOR the speedy Restoration, and for the better Regulation, Uniformity, and Gracefulness, of such new Buildings as shall be erected for Habitations; and to the Intent that all Encouragement and Expedition may be given unto, and all Impediments and Obstructions that may retard and protract the Undertaking, or carrying on a Work so necessary, and of so great Honour and Importance to his Majesty, this Kingdom, and this City in particular, may be removed;

BE it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the Authority of the same, That the Rules and Directions here prescribed be duly observed by all Persons therein concerned.

1. That no Buildings whatsoever be hereafter erected within the Limits of the said City and Liberties thereof, but such as shall be pursuant to such Rules and Orders of Building, and with such Materials as are hereby particularly appointed; and according to such Scantlings, as are set down in a Table in this present Act specified: And if any Person or Persons shall presume to build contrary thereunto; that then, and in such Case, the said House so irregularly built, shall be deemed a common Nuisance, and the Builder thereof shall enter into Recognizance, for Abatement, and Demolishing the same in convenient Time, or to amend the same according to such Rules and Orders as aforesaid; and in Default of either, the Offender to be committed to the common Jail of the City, there to abide without Bail or Mainprize, till he shall have demolished, or otherwise amend the same.

AND that such irregular Buildings may be the better prevented, the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, are authorised to nominate and appoint discreet and intelligent Persons in the Art of Building to be the Surveyors or Supervisors, to see the said Rules and Scantlings well and truly observed. Unto which Surveyors or Supervisors, the Mayor and Aldermen in their Court of Aldermen, are empowered to administer an Oath upon the Holy Evangelists for the true and impartial Execution of their Office in that Behalf.

2. That there shall be only four Sorts of Buildings and no more; and that all manner of Houses so to be erected shall be of one of those four Sorts of Building, and no other.

THE first and least Sort of Houses fronting Bye Streets or Lanes. The second Sort of Houses fronting Streets or Lanes of Note. The third Sort of Houses fronting high and principal Streets. The Fourth and last of Mansion-Houses for Merchants, Citizens, or other Persons of extraordinary Quality, not fronting either of the three former Ways. And the Roofs of each of the first three Sorts of Houses respectively shall be uniform.

3. That all the Outsidings of all Buildings in and about the said City be henceforth made of Brick or Stone, or of Brick and Stone together, except Door-cases and Window-frames, the Breast Summers, and other Parts of the first Story to the Front, to use substantial Oaken Timber instead of Brick or Stone, for Conveniency of Shops: And that the said Doors, Breast Summers, and Window-frames, be sufficiently discharged of the Burthen of the Fabrick, by Arch Work of Brick or Stone, either strait or circular.

4. That there shall be Party Walls, and Party Piers set out equally on their Builder's Ground, to be built upon by the first Beginner of such Building: And that convenient Tothing be left in the Front Wall by the said first Builder, for the better joining of the next House that shall be built to the same: And that no Man be permitted to build on the said Party Wall, or on his own contiguous Ground, until he hath fully reimbursed the said first Builder the full Moiety of the Charges of the said Party Wall and Piers; together with Interest for the same, after the Rate of 6 per Cent. per Annum, for Forbearance thereof; to be accounted from the Beginning of the said first Building.

5. That the Houses of the least Sort of Building, fronting Bye-Streets or Lanes, shall be of two Stories high, besides Cellars and Garrets; the Cellars thereof to be six Feet and a half high, the first Story nine Feet high from the Floor to the Ceiling; and the second Story Nine Feet. That all Walls in Front and Rear (so high as the first Story) be of the full Thickness of two Bricks at length; and upwards to the Garrets of the Thickness of one Brick and a half; and the Walls at the Eaves of the Garrets not to be less than one Brick.

6. That the Houses of the second Sort of Building, fronting Streets and Lanes of Note, and the River Thames, shall consist of three Stories high, besides Cellars and Garrets. That the Cellars thereof be six Feet and a half high, the first Story 10 Feet high; the second 10 Feet high; the third nine Feet from the Floor to the Ceiling; that all Walls in Front and Rear, as high as the first Story be two Bricks and an half thick; and upwards, to the Garret Floor, one Brick and a half thick; the Thickness of the Garret Walls at the Discretion of the Workman: And also, that the Thickness of the Party Walls be two Bricks thick so high as the first Story, and upwards to the Garrets one Brick and a half thick.

7. That the Houses of the third Sort of Buildings, fronting the High and Principal Streets, shall consist of four Stories high, besides Cellars and Garrets. The first Story to contain full 10 Feet from the Floor to the Ceiling. The second, 10 Feet and a half: The third, nine Feet; and the fourth, eight Feet and a half.—That all the Walls in Front and Rear, as high as the first Story, be two Bricks and a half thick; and from thence upwards to the Garret Floor, one Brick and a half thick. And that the Thickness of the Party Walls between every House, be two Bricks thick so high as the first Story, and thence upwards to the the Garrets, of the Thickness of one Brick and a half.—The Scantlings for Timber and Stone, to be as in the Table following is expressed.

8. That all Houses of the fourth Sort of Building, being Mansion-Houses, and of the greatest Bigness, not fronting any of the Streets, or Lanes, aforesaid, shall bear the same Scantlings of Timbers, as in the following Table are set down for the same; and that the Number of Stories, and the Heights of them be left to the Discretion of the Workman, or Builder, so as he exceed not four Stories.

9. And for the greater Grace and Uniformity of Buildings in the high and principal Streets, it is enacted, That all Houses hereafter to be erected in any of them, shall have Balconies four Feet Broad with Rails and Bars of Iron, equally distant from the Ground. Every of which Balconies shall contain in Length two Parts of the Front of the House on which it shall be placed, in three Parts to be divided; and the remaining Vacancy of the Front shall be supplied with a Pent-House, of the Breadth of the Balcony, to be covered with Lead, Slate, or Tile, and to be Ciel'd with Plastering underneath. And that the Water falling, as well from the Tops of the said Houses, as from the Balconies and Pent-Houses, be conveyed into the Channels, by Party-Pipes, on the Sides, or Fronts, of the said Houses: And that Pavements under every of the said Balconies and Pent-Houses, be made of good and sufficient broad Flat-stone, at the Charge of the Builder.

10. That no Builder of any of the Houses, fronting any of the High Streets, Streets, or Lanes of Note, be permitted to lay his first Floor over the Cellar, more than thirteen Inches above the said Street, or less than six, with one circular Step to lead up thereunto, to be placed without the Building. And that no Trap-Doors, or open Grates, be in any wise suffered to be made into any such Cellar, or Warehouse, without the Foundations of the Front; but that all Lights to be made into any of them be henceforth made upright, and not otherwise. And that no Bulks, Jetties, Windows, Posts, Seats, or any Thing of like Sort, shall be made or erected, in any Streets, Lanes, or Bye-Lanes, to extend beyond the antient Foundation of Houses: Nor that any House be set farther into the Street than the antient Foundation; saving only, that in the high and principal Streets, it shall be lawful for the Inhabitants to suffer their Stall-Boards (when their Shop-Windows are set open) to turn over and extend eleven Inches, and no more from the Foundation of their Houses into the Streets, for the better Conveniency of their Shop-Windows.

AND it is hereby further enacted and declared, that the said respective Churches, to be rebuilt within the said City of LONDON, and Liberty thereof, shall be built and erected according to such Models, and of such Dimensions, and in such Manner and Form in all respects, as by the said Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Bishop of LONDON, and Lord Mayor of LONDON, for the Time being, with his Majesty's Approbation thereof) shall direct and appoint.

AND the said respective Parishes herein before-mentioned and appointed to be united as aforesaid, shall, for ever, hereafter remain and continue so united, and consolidated and annexed unto the several and respective Parish-Churches, by this Act appointed to be rebuilt as aforesaid: And the respective Parishioners and the Inhabitants of the said several Parishes so to be united, shall hereafter resort to the said Churches respectively, as to their proper Parish-Church.

AND it is hereby enacted, That notwithstanding such Union as aforesaid, each and every of the Parishes so united, as to all Rates, Taxes, Parochial Rights, Charges and Duties, and all other Privileges, Liberties and Respects whatsoever, shall continue and remain distinct, and as heretofore they were.

THERE was further, for the Conveniency and Beauty of the Buildings of the City, an Order of Common Council made April 29, 1667, which was laid before the King and Council and by them approved; and is as followeth.

At the Court at Whitehall, the 8th of May 1667,

P R E S E N T

The King's most Excellent Majesty,

His Royal Highness
 the Duke of York,
 Lord Archbishop of Canterbury,
 Lord Chancellor,
 Lord Privy-Seal,
 Duke of Albemarle,
 Marqs. of Dorchester,
 Lord Chamberlain,
 Earl of Bridgewater,
 Earl of Berkshire,
 Earl of Bath,

Earl of Carlisle,
 Earl of Craven,
 Earl of Lauderdale,
 Earl of Middleton,
 Lord Arlington,
 Lord Ashley,
 Mr. Comptroller,
 Mr. Secretary Morice,
 Mr. Chancellor of the Dutchy.
 Sir William Coventry.

An

An ORDER made by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of the City of LONDON, of the 29th of April in the ensuing Words, viz.

IT is ordered, That the Surveyors take special Care, that the Breast Summers of all Houses do range of an equal Height, House with House, so far as shall be convenient, and there to make Breaks by their Directions.

AND that they do encourage and give Directions to all Builders for Ornament sake, that the Ornaments and Projections of the Front Buildings be of rubbed Bricks; and that all the naked Part of the Walls may be done of rough Bricks neatly Wrought, or all rubbed, at the Discretion of the Builder, or that the Builders may otherwise enrich their Fronts as they please.

THAT if any Person, or Persons, shall desire in any Street, or Lane, of Note, to Build on each Side of the Street, or Lane, (opposite one to the other) six, or more, Houses, of the third Rate, or that the upper Rooms, or Garrets, may be flat Roofs, encompassed with Battlements of Bricks, covered with Stone, or Table Ends, or Rails, and Ballisters of Iron, or Stone; or to vary their Roofs, for the greater Ornament of Building: The Surveyors, or one of them, shall certify their Opinions therein to the Committee for Rebuilding, who shall have Liberty to give Leave for the same, if they see Cause.

THAT in all the Streets no Sign-Posts shall hang cross, but the Signs shall be fixed against the Balconies, or some other convenient Part of the Side of the House.

IT is ordered, That a Postern shall be made on the North Side of Newgate, for Conveniency of Foot-Passengers; and that Holborn-bridge shall be enlarged to run strait on a bevil Line from the Timber-House, on the North Side thereof, known by the Sign of the Cock, to the Front of the Buildings at the Swan-Inn, on the said North Side of Holborn-hill.

FORASMUCH as it is provided in the late Act for Rebuilding, That the Surveyors shall take Care for the equal setting out of all Party-Walls, and Piers, and no Person be permitted to build till that be done; therefore, for Prevention of any Exaction in the taking of such Surveys, and of all Quarrels and Contentions that may arise between the Builders, it is ordered, That no Builder shall lay his Foundation, until the Surveyors, or one of them, (according to the Act) shall view it, and see the Party-Walls and Piers equally set out, and that all Persons observe the Surveyor's Directions concerning the Superstructure to be erected over the said Foundation.

AND that for the defraying that, and all other Charges of Measuring, staking out, taking the Level, and surveying the Streets and Ground, each Builder, before he lay his Foundation, or such Survey shall be taken, do repair to the Chamber of LONDON, and there enter his Name, with the Place where his Building is to be set out, and do pay to the Chamberlain the Sum of 6s. 8d. for every Foundation to be rebuilt; for which Mr. Chamberlain shall give Acquittances: Upon Receipt of which Acquittances the Surveyors shall proceed to set out such Persons Foundations.

AND it is ordered, That all Persons who have already laid any Foundations, shall forthwith pay into the Chamber of LONDON, 6s. 8d. for every Foundation.

AND this Court is consenting, and desirous that all strait and narrow Passages, which shall be found convenient for common Benefit and Accommodation, and shall receive his Majesty's Order and Approbation, shall and may be enlarged and made wider, and otherwise altered, before the 20th Day of May, now next ensuing, as shall be fitting for the Beauty, Ornament, and Conveniency thereof, and staked and set out accordingly.

SEVERAL late Inhabitants of Fleet-street, intending to rebuild their Houses, which did formerly stand backward of other Foundations near adjoining, and desiring Liberty to advance their Houses, that the whole Front may run on a strait Line, the Committee did agree to the same, if the Right Honourable the Lord High Chancellor of England, and the other Lords, shall approve thereof, and procure his Majesty's Approbation to the same: And the Committee do desire Liberty may be given for other Persons in other Places, where it shall be found convenient.

AND it is ordered, That the Committee for Rebuilding, do present the Particulars aforesaid to the Right Honourable the Lord High Chancellor of England, and the other Lords, and that the same (if they receive his Majesty's Approbation) shall be forthwith printed and published.

“ WHICH being this Day represented to the “ Board by the Right Honourable the Lord High “ Chancellor of England, the same was allowed “ and approved of; and it was ordered, that the “ same be punctually observed in every Part “ thereof. And all Persons concerned, are re“ quired and commanded to yield due Obedi“ ence, and conform themselves thereunto. And “ that the said Order be forthwith printed and “ published.

EDW. WALKER.

AND for the better preventing and suppressing any Fires for the Time to come, happening within the City of LONDON, and Liberties thereof, was this good Act of Common-Council made Anno 1667, Sir William Peake, Knight, Mayor, and re-printed 1677.

COMMUNE Concilium tenet in Camera Guilhald Civitatis LONDON, die Veneris, decimo quinto die Novembris, Anno Domini 1667, Annoque Regni Domini nostri Caroli secundum, Dei Gratia, Angliæ, Scotiæ, Franciæ, & Hiberniæ, Regis, Fidei Defensoris, &c. decimo nono, coram Willielmo Peak, Milite, Majore Civitatis LONDON, Thoma Aleyn, Milite &c. Baronetto, Aldermanno, Johanne Laurence, Thoma Bloudworth, Willielmo Bolton, Willielmo Turner, Willielmo Hooker, Militibus, Aldermannis, Francisco Asty, Armigero, Aldermanno, ac Dionysio Gauden, & Thoma Davies, Militibus, Aldermannis, & Vicecomitibus ejusdem Civitatis, necnon majore parte Communiariorum de Communi Concilio ejusdem Civitatis tunc & ibidem assemblat.

WHEREAS the late fierce and outrageous Fire which happened in this City (continuing violently, to the great Astonishment of all Beholders, more than the Space of four Days and four Nights) burnt, destroyed, and consumed, the greatest Part of the Churches and Dwelling-Houses, rendering very many of the Inhabitants calamitous, and much impoverished by the great Losses they sustained, and is by all justly resented as a most sad and dismal Judgment of Heaven: For the Prevention, avoiding, and suppressing (as much as human Prudence is capable of) the like deplorable (and still too visible) Events, and dreadful Danger of Fire for the future, within this City, and Liberties thereof, be it ordained, enacted, and established, by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen, his Brethren, and the Commons in this Common-Council

cil assembled, and by the Authority of the same, in Manner and Form following; that is to say,

I. Item, That the City, and the Liberties thereof, shall be divided and appointed into four equal Parts, or Quarters; and the East Part, or Quarter, to contain these Wards following, viz. Portoken, Aldgate, Tower, Billingsgate, Bridge, Langborn, and Lime-street. The West Part, or Quarter, to contain Farringdon within, Farringdon without, Castle-Baynard, Cheapside, and Aldersgate. The North Part, or Quarter, to contain Cornhill, Broad-street, Coleman-street, Bassishaw, Bishopsgate, and Cripplegate. And the South Part, or Quarter, to contain Queenhithe, Bread-street, Vintry, Cordwainer, Dowgate, Walbrook, and Candlewick-street.

II. Item, That every of the said Quarters shall be furnished and provided at or before the Feast of the Birth of our Lord God next ensuing, of 800 Leather Buckets, 50 Ladders, viz. 10, 42 Feet long; 10, 30 Feet long; 10, 20 Feet long; 10, 16 Feet long; and 10, 12 Feet long; as also of so many Hand-squirts of Brass, as will furnish two for every Parish, 24 Pickax Sledges, and 40 Shod Shovels.

III. Item, That every one of the 12 Companies provide and keep in Readiness 30 Buckets, one Engine, six Pickax Sledges, three Ladders, and two Hand-squirts of Brass.

IV. Item, That all the other inferior Companies provide and keep in Readiness Buckets and Engines, proportionable to their Abilities. Of which those least able, to provide portable Engines to carry up Stairs into any Rooms or Tops of Houses. The Number of which Buckets and Engines to be from Time to Time prescribed and allotted by the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen's Direction.

V. Item, That every Alderman who hath passed the Office of Shrievalty, provide 24 Buckets, and one Hand-Squirt of Brass; and all those who have not been Sheriff, 12 Buckets and one Hand-Squirt of Brass to be kept in their respective Dwellings: And all other principal Citizens and Inhabitants, and every other Person, being a Subsidy Man, or of the Degree of a Subsidy Man, shall provide and keep in their Houses a certain Number of Buckets, according to their Quality.

VI. Item, That the several Inhabitants and Furniture of each respective Quarter shall remain and abide within their own Quarters, and not go out farther; excepting only such serviceable Person, of other Quarters fit to take Pains in that Behalf, who may be called to yield their Help as Need shall require; and none other Persons or Furniture, without special Order of the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs for the Time being.

VII. Item, It is farther ordained by the Authority aforesaid, that in every of the said Quarters or Parts of this City, by the Advice of the Aldermen and Common Council of each several Ward within that Quarter, there shall be chosen, retained, and appointed for each Ward, one honest and sufficient Person, dwelling within the same, to be Bellman there, who shall from henceforth every Night, from the Feast of St. Michael, until the Annunciation of St. Mary, diligently walk up and down within the same Ward, from 10 o'Clock in the Night, till 5 o'Clock next Morning. Their Wages or Salaries to be levied within their respective Wards, according as the same shall be assessed by the Common Council of the same Ward, or the greatest Part of them.

VIII. Item, That every Householder, upon any Cry of Fire, shall place a sufficient Man at his Door well armed, and hang out a Light at his Door, if in the Night-time; upon Default whereof, every Party offending shall forfeit 20s.

IX. Item, That every Householder shall, during the Time of any Fire, have Water in a Vessel ready at his Door to quench and suppress all farther Increase of the Fire.

X. Item, That in every of the said four Quarters or Parts of the City a noted Bell be rung from Lady-day to Michaelmas at 10 o'Clock every Night, and at 5 o'Clock every Morning; and from Michaelmas to Lady-day, at 8 o'Clock every Night, and at 7 o'Clock every Morning. At which respective Hours the Watch shall punctually sit and rise, who as soon as they are met together, one out of every Watch shall be sent the Rounds into every Part of the Ward: And at his Return another shall be sent out, and so successively all Night long, without Intermission, for Prevention of Fire, Robbing, or other Inconvenience.

XI. Item, That every Inhabitant prepare some secure Place in their Dwellings (not under or near any Stair-case) to lay in their Seacoal-Ashes, Embers, or any other Sort of Fire-ashes; and that the said Ashes be quenched with Water every Night before they go to Bed: And that all Constables make Enquiry of the Security of Hearths, Ovens, and Stoves, and Places for laying Fire-ashes in, twice every Year.

XII. Item, That Plugs be put into the Pipes in the most convenient Places of every Street, whereof all Inhabitants may take Notice; that breaking of the Pipes in a disorderly Manner may be avoided.

XIII. Item, That as many Wells as can be found may be provided in every Street, with Pumps placed conveniently for furnishing of Water, especially in frosty Weather, when other Water may be scarce.

XIV. Item, That the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, as also the Deputies and Common Council Men of such Ward where any Fire shall happen, have speedy Notice thereof by several Messengers to be dispatched from the Constables upon the first Discovery.

XV. Item, That at all such Times the Lord Mayor be attended with all his Officers, with the Marshals and all their Men, as also the City Workmen, and their Labourers, the Bridge Master with the Officers and Workmen, and their Labourers, who are all, upon Notice of any Fire, forthwith to repair to the Lord Mayor, and to observe such Directions as shall be given them; the Sheriffs also to be attended with all their Officers upon Pain to them of forfeiting 3*l.* in Default of such their Attendance.

XVI. Item, That the several Companies of Carpenters, Bricklayers, Plaisterers, Painters, Masons, Smiths, Plumbers and Paviers, do yearly for each Company elect two Master-Workmen, four Journeymen, eight Apprentices, and 16 Labourers, to be ready upon all Occasions of Fire to attend the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, for quenching the same.

XVII. Item, That all Workmen and Labourers belonging to any publick Water-works within the City, the Sea-Coal-Meeters, Porters, Blackwell-hall Porters, Leadenhall Porters, Ticket-Porters, and Package Porters, do constantly attend the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs in such Services: And that a List of all the Names of the afore-mentioned Persons, with the Places of their Abode, be brought yearly in a Table to the Lord Mayor elect upon the 1st Day of October, to be placed in the Hall of the said Lord Mayor to publick View: And that henceforth the Admittances of all such Persons may be upon the same Condition.

XVIII. Item, That all Persons, unless such as are employed or allowed by the Lord Mayor or Sheriffs, Aldermen, Deputies, or Common Council Men, do keep (during the Time of any Fire)

Fire) within their own Dwellings, until they are summoned to give their Aid; that so Disorder and Confusion in the Streets may be prevented.

XIX. Item, That all the Constables and Watchmen of the Ward, where any Fire happens, assemble immediately at such a Place, and there attend on the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs and follow their Directions.

XX. Item, That all Brokers on the Exchange (according to their Obligation at their Admission) do attend, in Order to take Care for such Goods and Household-stuff as may be removed.

XXI. Item, That, yearly, there be chosen some able Citizen and skilful Engineer, to attend the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, or any of them, upon such Accident, who, by their Advice, is to give his Assistance, and to blow up by their Direction such Houses, whereby the Increase of the Fire may be most probably prevented; and that Labourers be appointed to attend such Engineer.

XXII. Item, That the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Sheriffs, Deputies, Common Council Men, Engineer, and all Persons appointed and required by the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, to be aiding in suppressing and extinguishing the Fire, by blowing up, or pulling down Houses, shall be indemnified by this Court.

XXIII. Item, That all Persons, whose Houses shall be blown up, or otherwise demolished, for the Prevention of the Increase of Fire, shall have such Damages as the Common Council shall award; and that all Persons labouring therein shall be rewarded, as by Order of the Court of Aldermen shall be appointed; and that a Rate be laid by the Common Council on the remaining Houses of the City and Liberties, for the satisfying thereof.

XXIV. Item, That once a Quarter the Deputy and Common Council of every Ward return Certificates to the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, of the Numbers and Condition of their Buckets, Engines, Ladders, and all other Necessaries of that Nature: And the Engineer to examine the same, that on all Occasions they may be found in Readiness; and that the Certificates of Michaelmas Quarter be returned as well to the Lord Mayor elect, as to the Lord Mayor.

XXV. Item, That such Quantities of Powder as shall be thought fit by the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, shall be provided by the several Wards, and the several Companies of this City respectively, and laid up in such convenient Places as the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen shall from Time to Time direct and appoint; and that the principal Engineer make Trial of all such Powder, that being satisfied of the Strength and Goodness thereof, he may the better use it accordingly.

XXVI. Item, That no Person whatsoever be henceforth permitted at any Time to make, or cause to be made any Sort of Fire-works, or to fire, or cause to be fired any such Fire-works within the City or Liberties thereof; except such Persons only as shall be thereunto appointed by his Majesty, or any lawful Authority under him.

XXVII. Item, That no Gunpowder be kept within the Walls of the City (except as aforesaid) but in such secure Places as shall be allowed and approved by the Court of Aldermen.

XXVIII. That no Person lay Hemp, Flax, Wax, Gunpowder, Pitch, Tar, Brimstone, Rosin, or the like combustible Commodities, in any Cellar, Warehouse, or other Place on that Side next the Street, which by the Shaking of Links, Torches, or casting in of other Fire at the Windows next the Street, may be in Danger of such Fire.

AND it is farther enacted and ordained by the Authority aforesaid, that all and singular the Pains, Penalties and Forfeitures, which shall be forfeited or incurred by Virtue of this Act, shall be obtained, levied and recovered, either by Action of Debt, Bill, Plaint, or Information in the Name of the Chamberlain of the said City, for the Time being, in the King's Majesty's Court, holden in the Chamber of Guildhall of the said City, before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the said City, for the Time being. In which no Essoign, Protection, or Wager of Law, shall be admitted or allowed for the Defendant: And the Chamberlain of the said City, for the Time being, in all Suits to be prosecuted by Virtue of this Act against any Offender or Offenders, shall recover the ordinary Costs of Suit, to be expended in or about the Prosecution of them, or any of them: And that all such Pains, Penalties and Forfeitures, (the Charges of Suit for Recovery thereof being first deducted) shall be divided into two equal Parts, one Moiety whereof to be paid unto the Treasurer of Christ's-Hospital, for the Time being, to be employed towards the Maintenance of the poor Children harboured and kept in the said Hospital; and the other Moiety to him or them that will sue for the same, any other Act or Ordinance to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

AVERY.

As to the Occasion of this dreadful Fire, whether it was wilful or accidental, it was for a long Time made a Party Dispute, which seems in some Degree to be just now revived. Mr. Pope, a Gentleman of great Genius, but a professed Roman Catholick, speaking of the Monument, in a Poem of his, not long since published, says,

Where London's Column pointing at the Skies,
Like a tall Bully, lifts the Head; and lies.

AND the Author of the Craftsman, a very popular Writer, has these remarkable Words, It seems almost wonderful that the Plague was not imputed to the Papists, as peremptorily as the Fire.

BUT notwithstanding what these Gentlemen and others have said, when we consider that several Depositions were made soon after the Fire, of its breaking out in many different Places at the same Time, and that one Man confessed his setting Fire to the House, where it began, when he was executed for the same, we cannot think Men will be easily convinced that it was entirely accidental: It has indeed been said that the Person executed for it was a Hugonot, and therefore not likely to be employed by the Papists: But might not all Frenchmen at that Time pass under the Name of Hugonots?

THE following is the Account given of this Man, by Bishop Kennet, in his History of England.

"Various were the Conjectures (saith he) how this Fire began. Most People did then look upon it to be the Hand of God, in a terrible Judgment, upon a wicked City; some said it was contrived and carried on by the Papists, which was offered to be made appear in the Popish Plot: Others did suspect it an insidious Way of the Dutch and French making War, their two Fleets being nearest to joining at that very Time. There was but one Man tried at the Old Bailey for being the Incendiary, who was convicted by his own Confession, and executed for it. His Name was Robert Hamdy, a French Hugonot, of Roban in Normandy. Some People sham'd away this Confession, and said he was Non compos Mentis, and had a Mind, it seems, to assume the Glory of being hang'd for the greatest Villain. Others say, he was sober and penitent; and being,

“ being, after Conviction, carry’d through the “ Ruins, to shew where he put Fire, he himself “ directed through the Ashes and Rubbish, and “ pointing at the Spot whereon the first Burning-“ House stood. It was soon after complain’d of,
 “ that Hubert was not sufficiently examined who “ set him to Work, or who joined with him. And “ Mr. Hawles, in his Remarks upon Fitz-Har- “ ris’s Trial, is bold to say, That the Commons
 “ resolving to examine Hubert upon that Matter
 “ next Day, Hubert was hang’d before the House
 “ sat, so could tell no farther Tales.

WHERE the Opinions of Men are so much divided, as upon this Point, we shall not pretend to determine on either Side of the Question; but beg Leave in this Place to take Notice of the great Advantages which have already, and might have, arose, to the City of LONDON, from this melancholy Occasion.

THE first from the Observations of that learned Antiquary Dr. Woodward, late Physick Professor at Gresham College, in a private Letter to Sir Christopher Wren, wherein he saith,

“ THAT the Fire of LONDON, how“ ever disastrous it might be to the then Inhabi“ tants, proved infinitely beneficial to their Po“ sterity, and to the Increase and vast Improve“ ment, as well of the Riches and Opulency, as “ of the Buildings. And how by the means of “ the Common Sewers, and other like Contriv-“ vances, such Provision was made for Sweetness,
 “ for Cleanness, and for Salubrity, that it is not “ only the finest and pleasanter, but the most “ healthy City in the World; insomuch, that
 “ for the Plague, and other infectious Distem“ pers, with which it was formerly so frequently “ annoyed; and by which so great Numbers of “ the Inhabitants were taken off, but the very “ Year before the Fire, (viz. Anno 1665) an Ex“ perience of above forty Years since hath shewn
 “ it so wholly freed from, that he thought it “ probable it was no longer obnoxious to, or “ ever again likely to be infested by those so fatal
 “ and malicious Maladies.

THE other from some little Weekly Essays on the Buildings of LONDON, in which the Author shews himself to be not only an elegant Writer, but a Connoisseur in Science treats of.

Sir Christopher Wren’s Scheme for rebuilding the City.

“ THE Fire of LONDON, saith he, fur“ nished the most perfect Occasion that can ever “ happen in any City, to rebuild it with Pomp “ and Regularity. This Wren foresaw, and, as “ we are told, offered a Scheme for that Pur“ pose, which would have made it the Wonder
 “ of the World. He proposed to have laid out
 “ one large Street from Aldgate to Temple-Bar,
 “ in the Middle of which was to have been a “ large Square, capable of containing the new “ Church of St. Paul, with a proper Distance
 “ for the View all round it; whereby that huge “ Building would not have been coop’d up, as “ ’tis at present in such a Manner, as no where “ to be seen to Advantage at all; but would “ have had a long and ample Vista at each End,
 “ to have reconcil’d it to a proper Point of View,
 “ and give it one great Benefit, which, in all “ Probability, it must now want for ever. He “ farther propos’d to rebuild all the Parish-“ Churches in such a Manner as to be seen at “ the End of every Vista of Houses, and dis“ pers’d in such Distances from each other, as “ to appear neither too thick, nor thin, in Pro“ port; but give a proper Hightning to the “ whole Bulk of the City, as it fill’d the Land“ scape: Lastly, he propos’d to build all the “ Houses uniform, and supported on a Piazza,

“ like that of Covent-Garden; and, by the Wa“ ter-Side, from the Bridge to the Temple, he “ had plann’d a long and broad Wharf, or Key,
 “ where he design’d to have rang’d all the Halls “ that belong to the several Companies of the “ City, with proper Warehouses for Merchants “ between, to vary the Edifices, and make it at “ once one of the most beautiful, and most use“ ful Ranges of Structure in the World. But “ the Hurry of Rebuilding, and the Disputes
 “ about Property, prevented this glorious Scheme
 “ from taking Place.

As the Government of LONDON had taken the best Orders they could for preventing and suppressing of Fires; so in the Year 1681, they set themselves upon contriving the Insurance of Houses in case of Fire. At a Meeting of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City, they declared, how they had, for many Years, under their Consideration, the better securing and insuring the Inhabitants of this City and Liberties from dangerous Accidents happening by Fire, and now were resolved forthwith to engage a sufficient Fund, and undoubted Security, by the Chamber, in Lands and good Ground Rent, for the Performance thereof. And that a Committee, thereunto appointed, should meet from Day to Day in Guildhall, every Afternoon, from three to six, to perfect the same Undertaking, to the good Satisfaction of all Persons, both Citizens and others, who have, or shall have, Interest in any Building there.

THIS Notice was published in Print; being dated at Guildhall the 15th of October 1681.

PURSUANT to this, at a Common-Council, Sir John Moore, Mayor, November 16, 1681, it was agreed, That Books should be prepared by the first of December following, and lodged in the Chamber of LONDON, for receiving and entering Subscriptions: And that Lands and Ground Rents belonging to the City, to the Value of one hundred thousand Pounds, should be forthwith settled as a Fund, to insure such Houses as should be subscribed for. And that hereafter, as Subscriptions should be made, a further additional Fund, by the Premium which should be received, should be made. The Premium for insuring Brick Houses, to be 4*l. per Cent.* and for Timber Houses, 8*l. per Cent.*

BUT this would not take; perhaps, because the Credit of the City, at this Time, was but low.

THESE sad Accidents in the City by Fire, occasioned oftentimes by the Negligence of Servants taking Tobacco, or not putting out their Candles, or putting live Embers in dangerous Places, or otherwise, moved the Parliament, in the seventh Year of Queen Anne, to make an Act; wherein was a Clause for the Punishment of such Servants. And by an Act of Common-Council, Sir William Withers, Mayor, it was thought fit to be printed and made publick, and to be sent into all the Wards of the City; that all Persons whatsoever might be the better acquainted with it. And was as followeth:

Martis, viij<sup>o</sup> Die Junij, Anno Dom. 1708, Annoque Regni Reginae ANNÆ, Magnae Britanniae, &c. Septimo.

IT is this Day ordered by this Court, That the Clause relating to Servants in a late Act of Parliament, entitled, An Act for the better preventing Mischiefs that may happen by Fire, be forthwith printed, and sent into the several Wards of this City, and by the Beadles delivered to every House-keeper, that all Servants may be acquainted with the same, and know the Penalties nalties therein contained: Which Clause hereafter follows, viz.

AND whereas Fires often happen by the Negligence and Carelessness of Servants, be it therefore enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if any Menial, or other Servant, or Servants, thro' Negligence or Carelessness, shall Fire, or cause to be fired, any Dwelling-House, or Out-House, or Houses; such Servant, or Servants, being thereof lawfully convicted, by the Oath of one or more credible Witnesses, made before two or more of her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, shall forfeit and pay the Sum of one hundred Pounds, unto the Church-wardens of such Parish where such Fire shall happen, to be distributed amongst the Sufferers by such Fire, in such Proportions as to the said Church-wardens shall seem just. And in case of Default, or Refusal, to pay the same immediately after such Conviction, the same being lawfully demanded by the said Church-wardens; that then, and in such Case, such Servant, or Servants, shall, by Warrant under the Hand of two or more of her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, be committed to some Workhouse, or House of Correction, as the said Justices shall think fit, for the Space of eighteen Months; there to be kept to hard Labour.

GIBSON.

A Statute was made, 7 Regin. Anne, Cap. 17. for preventing of Fires; that Engines should be provided and kept in every Parish, and Stock-blocks, and Fire-Cocks, and other Implements and Materials for that Use: But that if the Vestries within the weekly Bills of Mortality, shall think it necessary to have more than one great Engine, or Hand Engine, they may provide it at the Parish Charge, by Assessment to be made.

AND concerning Party-Walls, in the same Statute it was enacted, That they be wholly of Brick or Stone, excepting the Houses built upon London-bridge. And that all Houses to be built on old or new Foundations, within the Bills of Mortality, except on London-bridge, and on the River Thames below Bridge, shall have Party-Walls between House and House, wholly of Brick or Stone; except Door-Cases, Windows, Lentils, &c.

ALL Party-Walls to be built nine Inches on each Man's Ground, &c.

BUT now to proceed to the Description of the remaining Places in this Ward.

Star Inn, Northward of the Monument, is very large, and well accustomed, and hath a Passage into Pudding-lane.

Bell-yard, seated almost against the Monument, is a good open Court, containing three or four large Houses, well inhabited.

Gracechurch-street is a very handsome, spacious Street, graced with good Buildings, which are well inhabited by wealthy Tradesmen, being a Street of great Resort. In that Part of the Street lying in this Ward, are these Places; Talbot-court, with a wide Entrance for a Coach or Cart, being large and well inhabited.

OUT of this Court is a narrow Passage into another of the same Name, which leadeth into Little Eastcheap, there also taken Notice of. Crown-court, neat, with a Free-stone Pavement, well inhabited, but small.

Jerusalem-court, indifferent long, with an open Passage, a Free-stone Pavement, and good Houses.

ON the West Side of the Street White-hart-court; a pretty good open Place, well inhabited by Wholesale Dealers, hath a Passage into another Court so called, which leadeth into Lombard-street, mentioned in Langborn Ward. Near unto this is a small Court, with about two or three Houses, but without a Name.

Nag's-head-court, very long, well built and inhabited, hath a Passage into St. Clement's-lane, where it is mentioned; the greatest Part being in Langborn Ward.

Gracechurch. It is in the Diocese of LONDON, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's is Patron. It was destroyed by the great Fire; and since its Rebuilding, is a very handsome Free-stone Structure, with a Leaden Spire, and from the Steeple hangs a very curious Dial into the Street, on the Top of which is the Figure of Time, standing with the usual Emblems, viz. a Scythe and an Hour-glass, and on each Side the Figure of Fame, standing with a Trumpet all gilt with Gold.

Now back to Thames-street, a Place of great Trade; the Part thereof in this Ward begins on the East Side of the Old Swan-lane, and goeth Eastward to Fish-street-hill.

PLACES of Note in this Part of the Street, are Gully-hole, being a Passage to the Water-house, and so to the Thames Side, which lieth open to the Wharfs as far as the Stylliard in Dowgate Ward.

Three-tun-alley, on the North Side, which is but small.

Churchyard-alley, but narrow and indifferent, falls down into the new Passage, being the open Ground next the Thames; which said Passage leads to Old Swan Stairs Westward, and to the Water-house Eastward, as aforesaid.

Fishmongers-hall, before-mentioned, a curious large Building, with a handsome Passage paved with Free-stone, which leadeth into a large square Court, also paved, surrounded by the Hall, the Court Room, and other Apartments. The Front of this Hall, towards the Thames, is very graceful, giving a pleasant Prospect: And to it belongs a curious Pair of Stairs to take Water at.

NORTH from Thames-street is St. Michael's-lane; which hath the greatest Part in Candlewick Ward. In the Part of this Lane belonging to this Ward, is Fen-court, a handsome, open, and well built Place, with a Free-stone Pavement.

Three-tun-court, a good square Place, with an open Entrance for Carts.

Egbate-lane runs down to the Thames, and unto the Old-Swan Stairs, much resorted unto by Watermen, and is of good Note.

THE Old-Swan-lane also runs down to the Water Side, and leadeth to the said Stairs: The West Side of this Lane is in Dowgate Ward.

St. Martin's-lane, another Lane North from Thames-street, hath but a small Part in this Ward, the greatest being in Candlewick Ward, as it was said of St. Michael's-lane.

THERE are to Watch in this Ward, at the several Stands, every Night, besides the Constable and the Beadle, twenty five Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward, are to serve in the several Courts in Guildhall in the Month of July.

THIS Ward hath an Alderman and his Deputy, fifteen Common-Council Men, fifteen Constables, six Scavengers, sixteen Wardmote Inquest Men, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen in LONDON at 47 l. and in the Exchequer at 49 l. 10 s.

THE Alderman of this Ward is George Champion, Esq;

CANDLEWICK-STREET WARD.

Candlewick-
street Ward.

Candlewick-street, or Candlewright-street Ward, beginneth at the East End of Great Eastcheap, and passeth West through Eastcheap to Candlewright-street, and through the same down to the North End of Suffolk-lane, on the South Side, and down that Lane, by the West End of St. Laurence's Churchyard; and that is the farthest Part of this Ward. The Street of Great Eastcheap was so called from a Market there kept in the East Part of the City, as Westcheap was from another in the West Part of it.

Eastcheap was a Flesh Market for Butchers, and there were sometimes Cooks mixed among them; for, saith Stow, of old Time when Friends did meet, and were disposed to be merry, they went not to dine and sup in Taverns (for they dressed not Meats to be sold) but to the Cooks, where they call'd for what Meat they lik'd, which they always found ready dressed, at a reasonable Rate.

IN the Year 1410, the 11th of Henry IV, upon the Even of St. John Baptist, the King's Sons, Thomas and John, being in Eastcheap at Supper (or rather at Breakfast; for it was after the Watch was broken up, betwixt two and three o'Clock after Midnight) a great Quarrel happened between their Men, and other of the Court, which lasted an Hour, even till the Mayor and Sheriffs appeased the same; for which afterwards, the said Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs, were sent for to answer before the King; his Sons and divers Lords being highly moved against the City. At which Time, William Gascoigne, Chief Justice, required the Mayor and Aldermen, for the Citizens, to put them in the King's Grace. Whereunto they answered, that they had not offended, but (according to the Law) had done their best in stinting Debate, and maintaining of the Peace: Upon which Answer the King remitted all his Ire, and dismissed them.

AND to prove this Eastcheap to be a Place replenished with Cooks, it may appear by a Song, called London Lickpenny, made by Lidgate a Monk of Bury, in the Reign of Henry V. in the Person of a Countryman coming to LONDON, and travelling through the same. In Westcheap (saith the Song) he was called on to buy Lawn, Paris Thread, Cotton Umble, and other Linen Cloaths, and such like: (he speaketh of no Silks) In Cornhill, to buy old Apparel, and Household-stuff, where he was forced to buy his own Hood, which he had lost in Westminster-hall. In Candlewright-street, Drapers proffer'd him cheap Cloth. In Eastcheap, the Cooks cried Hot Ribs of Beef roasted, Pyes well-bak'd, and other Victuals: There was clattering of Pots, Harp, Pipe and Sawtrig; yea by cock, nay by cock, for other greater Oaths were spared: Some sang of Jenkin and Julian, &c. all which Melody liked well the Passenger, but he wanted Money to abide by it, and therefore got him into a Gravesend Barge, and home into Kent.

Candlewright, so called in old Records of the Guildhall of St. Mary Overies, and other, or Candlewick-street, took that Name (as may be supposed) either of the Chandlers, or Makers of Candles, both of Wax and Tallow; for Candlewright is a Maker of Candles, or of Weeke, which is the Cotton or Yarn thereof, or otherwise Wike, which is the Place where they used to work them; as Scalding-wike, by the Stocks-market, was so called from the Poulterers dressing and scalding their Poultry there: And in divers Countries, Dairy-houses, or Cottages, wherein they make Butter and Cheese, are usually call'd Wicks. There dwelled also of old Time divers Weavers of Woollen Cloth, brought in by Edward III; for in the 44th of his Reign, the Meetings of the Weavers, brought out of Flanders, were appointed to be in the Churchyard of St. Lawrence Poultney; and the Weavers of Brabant in the Churchyard of St. Mary Somerset. There were then in this City Weavers of divers Sorts, to wit, of Drapery, of Tapery, and Napery. These Weavers of Candlewright-street being, in short Time, worn out, there Place is now possessed by rich Drapers, Sellers of Woollen Cloth, &c.

The PARISH of St. CLEMENT EASTCHEAP.

ON the North Side of this Ward, at the West End of Eastcheap is St. Clement's-lane, a Part whereof, on both Sides, is of Candlewick-street Ward; to wit, somewhat North, beyond the Parish-Church of St. Clement in Eastcheap.

St. Clement, to whom this Church is dedicated, was born at Rome, upon Mount Caelius, his Father's Name was Faustinus; he was a Disciple of St. Peter, mentioned by St. Paul. Phil. iv. v. 3, As one of his Fellow-labourers; in the Gospel; ordained Bishop of Rome, in the Year of our Lord 93, and was (as most Writers agree) the fourth Bishop of that See, where (according to Dr. Cave) he sat sole Bishop of that whole Church, nine Years, 11 Months and 12 Days.

By his Piety and Learning he converted many to the Christian Faith, for which Cause he was banished by Trajan, the Emperor, to the Chersonesus, a disconsolate Place beyond the Pontick Sea, to dig in the Marble Quarries, and labour in the Mines, where he found vast Numbers of Christians condemned to the same miserable Fate, whose Minds were not a little elevated under all their Pressures, at the Sight of so good a Man, by whose constant Preaching, and the frequent Miracles he wrought, their Enemies were converted to a better Opinion of them and their Religion; the Inhabitants of those Countries daily flocking over to the Faith, so that in a little Time Christianity had beaten Paganism out of the Field, and all Monuments of Idolatry thereabouts were defaced and over-turned.

THE Fame whereof so incens'd the Emperor, that he caused great Numbers of them to be put to Death; but this not availing, but rather increasing the Number of Converts, St. Clement was pitched upon, as one of Note above the rest, whose exemplary Punishment might strike Dread and Terror into the rest, and therefore he was carried on board of Ship, and thrown into the Sea, with an Anchor about his Neck, where the Christians might despair to find him.

HIS Martyrdom happen'd on November 24, according to Baronius, and the ordinary Computation; but on the 9th of that Month, according to the Little Martyrology, published by Bucherius, and which, unquestionably, (saith Dr. Cave) was one of the true and genuine Calendars of the antient Church, in the third Year of Trajan, Anno Christi 100.

WE shall say nothing of the miraculous Discovery of his Body, because few would believe what is written of it. He is honour'd at Rome, by a Church erected to his Memory; and his Festival is yearly celebrated on the 23d of November.

As to the Time when this Church was first built, it is uncertain; but Stow saith, it was repaired at the Charge of the Parish, in the Year 1632; it was consumed in the Fire in 1666, and was again well built in the Year 1686, at the publick Charge, (as the rest were) of Brick and Stone.

IT is of the Composite Order, having a flat Roof, a Tower, and Pilasters round the Inside of it; and as to Ornament,

THE inside of the Roof, (or the Cieling) is adorned with a spacious Circle, whose Periphery is curious Fretwork.

IT is well wainscotted eight Feet and a half high; the Pews are uniform; four handsome inner Door-Cases, with Branches of Palm, Shields, with other Compartment, Cherubims, and Pilasters of the Corinthian Order.

THE Pulpit is also adorned with Finnierring, Cherubims, Festoons, and Cupids, all carved in right Norway Oak.

HERE is also a neat Marble Font, with a carved Cover finely embellish'd.

THE Altar-piece is spacious and beautiful, consisting of six Columns, with their Entablature, of the Corinthian Order, and seven Pediments; at each End of two Triangular ones, are Lamps on Acroters, above which is a large circular Pediment, and under that is a Glory in the Shape of a Dove in Relievo, with solid Rays gilt with Gold, between Cherubims. The inner Columns are the Commandments, done in Gold Letters on Black, and outward from these, the Lord's-Prayer and Creed, done in Gold on Blue, the whole having the Enrichment of Fruit, Palm, and Laurel Branches, &c. inclosed with Rail and Ballister, and the Ground paved with black and white Marble.

HERE is also a neat Wainscot Gallery on the South and West Sides of the Church, and the King's Arms on the North Side carved in Wood.

THE Dimensions of the Church are, Length 64 Feet, Breadth 40, Altitude 34, and that of the Tower 88.

MONUMENTS in this Church, before the Fire, were for,

Francis Barnam, Alderman, who deceased 1575, and of Benedict Barnam his Son, Alderman also 1598.

William Chantrey and William Overie, founded a Chantry there.

AT present there is only this notable Monument: It is of white Marble, adorned with Mantling, Cherubims, &c.

The Inscription is,

In this Vault reposes the Body of Mary, the beloved Wife of Mr. John Cater of this Parish, Merchant, who had by her one Daughter, named Ann, yet living: And one Son named John, who died at nineteen Days old, and lies buried by his Mother.

She was third Daughter of Mr. Abraham Wessell, a late eminent Merchant of this City. She departed this Life at Carshalton in Surrey, the 2d Day of March 1694-5, in the 25th Year of her Age; much lamented by her Husband, and all that knew her Piety, and other exemplary Virtues.

THERE was no Parsonage-House; but only one Room reserved to the Rector before the Fire. And since the Rebuilding of the City, the Rector receiveth 5 l. yearly, in Consideration of the said Room: But it appears by a Parochial Visitation, Ann. 1636, that there was a Parsonage-House, which was let for 10 l. per Ann.

THERE are several Gifts belonging to the Parish: A Memorial of which, with the Names of the Donors, is kept within the Parish.

THE Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Bishop of LONDON, Value per Act of Parliament 140 l. per Ann. for this Parish and that of St. Martin Orgars, which is united to it, and are both rated together in the King's Books at 32 l. 18 s. 4 d.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Thomas Gooch, and the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Butler.

The PARISH of St. MARTIN ORGARS.

THE Parish Church of St. Martin Orgars was very small.

IN the Year 1630, the Steeple of this Church was repaired: The East Window in the Chancel, and three great South Windows, were new glazed; which, with the Plumber's Work and Tiling, amounted to the Sum of 122 l. 6 s. 6 d.

IN this Parish Church of St. Martin's, in former Times, were two Tenements in the Tenure of Hopkins and Beck, which were Parcel of the Revenues of the Chantry, called Pultney's Chantry in St. Paul's Church, LONDON. But Chuntries coming in to the Crown under King
Edward VI, he granted these Tenements unto Henry Tanner and Thomas Becker.

THIS Church is now used by the French Protestants, who have a French Minister Episcopally ordained, and the Service is according to the Usage of the Church of England.

William Cromer, Mayor, built a proper Chapel on the South Side of this Church, and was buried there in 1533, (or rather 1433.)

Other Persons here buried.

John Matthew, Mayor 1490.

Sir William Huet, Mayor 1559; with his Lady and Daughter, Wife to Sir Edward Osburne.

Usher, and Quarter-Waiter to the said Queen;
and Edward, a Soldier. And four Daughters, viz. Elizabeth, Dorothy, Hester and Jane.

For Remembrance of whom, the said Peter
Franke, who lieth interred near unto this Place, bestowed the Charge of this Monument. And the said Robert (being his Executor) caused the same to be erected. And the which Peter died the 24th Day of October 1612.

A rich and beautiful Monument in the Chancel, with this Inscription:

M. S.

Sir Allen Cotten, Knight, and Alderman of LONDON, some Time Lord Mayor of this Honourable City, Son of Ralph Cotten, of Allington, in the Parish of Whitchurch, in the County of Salop, Gent. was espoused unto Ellinor, the Daughter of Edmund Moore, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, by whom he had Issue seven Sons and seven Daughters, and lived unto the Age of seventy Years, generally beloved; and died the 24th of September 1628. He left behind him three Sons, Edmond, John, and William; and two Daughters. Which Sons, in a filial Expression of their Duties, have caused this Monument to be erected, in the Memory of their dear deceased Father.

When he left Earth, rich Bounty dy'd,
Mild Courtesy gave Place to Pride,
Soft Mercy to bright Justice said,
O! Sister, we are both betray'd;
White Innocence lay on the Ground
By Truth, and wept at either's Wound.

The Sons of Levi did lament,
Their Lamps went out, their Oil was spent.
Heaven hath his Soul, and only we Spin out our Lives in Misery.
So Death, thou missest of thy Ends,
And kill'd not him, but kill'dst his Friends.

Of Arms, of Learning, Fate and Chance.
In brief, of Woman ne'er was seen,
So great a Prince, so good a Queen.
Sith Virtue her Immortal made,
Death (envying all that cannot die)
Her earthly Parts did so invade
As in it wrack'd self Majesty.
But so her Spirit inspir'd her Parts
That she still lives in loyal Hearts.

BENEFACCTIONS.

THIS Parish of St. Martin Orgars enjoyed many Benefactions. It had to bestow in Bread 52 s. per Ann. and other Gifts to the Use of the Poor, and for Ornaments and Repairs of the Church, viz.

DONORS

1421. Sir William Cromer, Knt. by Will gave his House or Tenement, standing in Sweetings (Swithens) Lane; and likewise his House and Garden in Crutched-friars, in St. Olave's Hart-street, in LONDON, for the Repair and Ornaments of the Church, and for the Use of the Poor.
1562. Sir Humfrey Browne, Knt. by Will gave six Messuages in Cow-lane, in the Parish of St. Sepulchre's, for the Use of the Poor.
1588. Benedict Barnham, by Will, gave 10 l. yearly, for Bread, to the Poor, duly paid by Sir Eliab Harvey, Knt. while he lived.
1592. Robert Cotton, by Will, 2 l. 10 s. to the Poor, payable by the Drapers Company.
1611. Thomas Nickolson, by Will, 5 l. per Ann. to the Poor: To be paid by the Carpenters Company.
1613. Sir Humfrey Walwyn, Knt. by Will, 5 l. per Ann. for the Poor, 10 s. whereof for a Sermon to be preached on the 5th of November.
1613. — Bensham, yearly, 8 s. to the Poor: To be paid by the Haberdashers.
1628. Samuel Middlemore, 3 l. yearly, by the Company of Clothworkers.
- James Hall gave by Will three Tenements situate in Lamb-alley, in St. Botolph's Parish without Bishopsgate, going at the yearly Value of 18 l. 10 s. or thereabouts, for a Lecture to be preached every Wednesday Afternoon, from Michaelmas to Lady-day.
1635. Sir Alwyn Cotton, by Will, 4 l. per Ann. to the Poor: To be paid by the Drapers.
1646. Mr. Henry Wollaston, 2 l. 12 s. per Ann. for Bread.
- A Gift called the King's Debenture, being the Sum of 2 l. 13 s. 4 d. for the Poor of the Parish: Paid by the King's Auditor.

THERE was a Parsonage-House here before the Fire; Mr. Sherwood the Minister, in the Year 1673, did let it out for 40 Years, reserving 5 l. per Ann. to the Incumbent.

A Bill in Parliament being engrossed for the Erecting a Church for the French Protestants, sojourning in LONDON, in the Church-yard of this Parish of St. Martin Orgars, after the great Fire; the Parishioners offered Reasons to the Parliament against it; declaring, nevertheless, that they were not against erecting a Church, but only against erecting it in the Place mentioned in the Bill: Since by the Act for Rebuilding the City, the Scite and Church-yard of St. Martins Orgars, was directed to be enclosed with a Wall, and laid open for a Burying-place for the Parish. The said Act was for confirming a Lease of the Church-yard, made from the Parson and Church-wardens of the said Parish, unto certain Trustees for 50 Years, to erect a Church there for French Protestants, with Liberty for the Parson and Church-wardens during the said Term, to renew the said Lease for 50 Years, and so on. This was agreed on at a Vestry: But many of the Parishioners not knowing of this that was done, and so without and contrary to their Assent, now put up their Reasons against passing the Bill: But notwithstanding the Bill passed; and there is a French Church there at this Time, where the Liturgy of the Church of England, being turned into French, is used.

NEXT is St. Nicholas-lane, for the most Part on both Sides of this Ward, almost to St. Nicholas Church.

The PARISH of St. MARY ABCHURCH.

THEN is Abchurch-lane, which is on both Sides, almost, wholly of this Ward. The Parish-Church here is called St. Mary Abchurch. Abchurch, to distinguish it from other Churches which are likewise dedicated to the same Saint.

THE blessed Virgin Mary was the Daughter of Joachim, a Galilean of Nazareth, and of Anne, his Wife, a Bethlehemite, both of the Tribe of Judah; the Time of her Birth was about Ann. Mund. 3956. Anne, the Mother of the Blessed Virgin, was barren till she had been married 20 Years, which, among the Jews, was accounted a Shame and Reproach; insomuch as Joachim coming to Jerusalem to offer Sacrifice, was repulsed by Isachar the High-Priest, for his Wife's Sterility; yet, after that he had been married 20 Years, God heard his Prayers, and by an Angel it was revealed unto him, that he should have a Child by his Wife Anne, which came to pass, she being in Time delivered of a Female Child, which was the Blessed Virgin Mary: The Day of whose Birth is yearly celebrated on September 8.

THIS Blessed Virgin was afterwards espoused to Joseph, a Carpenter; after which, the Angel Gabriel appearing to her, shewed her how she should conceive by the Holy Ghost and bear a Son, which should be called Jesus, and this was at Nazareth, 16 Miles from Jerusalem. The Day of which Annunciation is yearly celebrated on March 25, on which Day we begin our Year.

OUR Saviour Jesus Christ was afterwards, according to the Angel's Prediction, born at Bethlehem in Judea; after whose Birth, three Wise Men came from the East, by Direction of a Star to Jerusalem, to worship him that was born King of the Jews; which King Herod hearing, being much startled thereat, enquired of the Priests and Scribes where Christ should be born; they told him in Bethlehem; so he sent the Wise Men thither, requiring them to bring him Word at their Return, that he might go and worship him; but after they had been at Bethlehem, and worshipped the Child Jesus, and offer'd their Gifts, Gold, Frankincense, and Myrrh, being warned of God in a Dream, they returned Home another Way; and Joseph being warned in a Dream, took his Wife and Child, and fled into Egypt. Herod now being very angry that he was deluded by the Wise Men, slew all the Infants of two Years old, and under, in Bethlehem, and the Coasts thereof.

AFTER Herod's Death, Joseph and Mary return'd with the Child into Judea, by the Direction of God in a Dream, and seated themselves at Nazareth, where they lived together. It appears by the Evangelists, (Luke ii. 42) that the Parents of Jesus, when he was twelve Years old, went with him up to Jerusalem, and that as they returned, the Child Jesus tarried behind, and that after they had found him, he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject to them; but after this, how long Joseph lived is not set down in Holy Scripture, nor in any authentick Author; but we read, that the Virgin Mary was at the crucifying of her Son Jesus, standing by the Cross with other Women, to whom Jesus said (pointing to his Disciple John, whom he loved) Woman, behold thy Son; and then said to John, Behold thy Mother; and from that Hour that Disciple took her to his own Home. So that from hence it is likely Joseph was then dead, otherwise it is probable, that Christ would not have committed her to the Care of John: But how long the Blessed Virgin lived after Christ's Ascension, there is no Certainty.

CONCERNING her Assumption, the Commemoration whereof is celebrated on August 15, it is reported by Tradition only, that at the Time of her Death all the Apostles dispersed over all the World, were in a Moment lifted on high in the Air, and brought to Jerusalem, where they were present at her Death, and that her Body being laid in a Coffin, was carried to Gethsemane, where a Choir of Angels attended on her sacred Body three Days, with Angelical Harmony, which then being ended, the Apostles looking into the Coffin, found the Body gone, concluding thereupon, that she was assumed into Heaven.

WHEN this Church of St. Mary was first built is uncertain; but Simon de Wynchecombe, Citizen and Armorer, and one of the Sheriffs of LONDON in 1383, founded a perpetual Chantry in the Church, by Licence from Richard II, in the 19th of his Reign, at the Altar of the Holy Trinity, of which Chantry, the Rector and Church-wardens of this Parish were Patrons. After which (to wit) in 1437, the then Rector and Church-wardens, with the Consent of all the Parishioners, granted Licence to John Wall and John Skelton, two Chaplains of this Chantry, to build a House upon three or four Posts in the West Part of this Church-yard, near to the Tenement of the Abbot of Gerondon, containing in Length 27 Feet, and in Breadth 14, for themselves and their Successors for ever, which was confirmed by the then Bishop, and the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's.

IN 1526, by the Authority of Cuthbert Tunstall, then Bishop of LONDON, and Consent of the Rector and Church-wardens of this Parish, one Richard Rogers, of the same Parish, Citizen and Clothworker of LONDON, built a House consisting of two Chambers, in Length 25 Feet and a half, and in Breadth 12, and in Height nine and a half; at the West End also of this Church-yard, between the Chambers pertaining to Wynchecombe's Chantry, and the House of Thomas Roche, which he, by Indenture dated June 10, that Year, freely gave to the said Rector and Church-wardens, and their Successors for ever, to the Use of this Parish, with one half of the Profits thereof, to keep the said House in Repair, and with the other half to find the Paschal within the said Church, yearly, for ever; and what remained over, above the Charge of the Paschal, was to be distributed as Alms among the Poor of the Parish, on Good Friday, yearly, for ever, for the Souls of him the said Richard, his Wife, his Father and Mother, and all his Friends, and all Christian Souls: All which was to be done by the said Rector and Church-wardens, upon certain Penalties mentioned in the said Indenture.

John Littleton and Thomas Hondon (says Stow) founded also Chantries here. This Church was repaired and beautified at the Charge of the Parishioners, Ann. 1611, and being burnt down in the Fire of LONDON, was rebuilt Anno 1686.

It is a neat Church, well built of Brick, and Stone Quoins, Windows and Door-cases; the Tower is also of the like Materials, which Steeple has also a Cupola and Spire; the Roof is covered with Lead, and the Inside thereof is a Dome finely painted above a Cantaliver Cornice, supported by one Column, and several Pilasters and Membretto's of the Corinthian Order. In the Dome are four Port-hole Windows, opening East, West, North, and South.

As for Ornament and Finishing, besides that of Pillars and Pilasters, and Cornish abovesaid, this Church is wainscotted round with right Norway Oak, about eleven Feet high; and there is a very pretty Gallery at the West End, of the like Timber, having a Front of circular Pannels in carved Frames, with Enrichments of Cherubims; and under this Gallery a handsome Door-case, adorned with Architrave, Cornice, and Pediment, whereon are the King's Arms carved. The North Door-case is likewise adorned with Attick Pilasters and Arches; also two fluted Pilasters, Entablature, and Pediment, of the Corinthian Order, enrich'd with Cherubims, Fruit, Leaves, Cornutes, &c.

THE Altar-piece is a most magnificent Piece of carved Work. It consists of four Columns, their Entablature, and a spacious arched open Pediment, of the Corinthian Order; on which last is the Letter R: within a Garter, supported by two Cherubims. The Intercolumns are the Commandments, very neatly done in Gold Characters on Black; and the Lord's-Prayer and Creed are Gold on Blue; all the four Tables are within Frames, carved and gilt. Over the Columns are four Lamps on Acroters; and the whole has Enrichments, in great Variety, of spacious Festoons of Fruit, Leaves, Palm Branches, and a Pelican feeding her young, all curiously carved in Relievo.

THE Communion Table is finnier'd, and adorned with four Cherubims; it stands on a Foot-pace of black and white Marble.

The Pulpit is also carved Norway Oak, enrich'd with Cherubims, Vases, Festoons, &c.

HERE is a spacious Brass Branch Candlestick given by Mr. John Watson, as mentioned hereafter in the Table of Benefactors.

HERE are his Arms engraved; viz.

ON a Chevron engrailed between three Martlets Sable, as many Crescents Vert.

THE Dimensions of the Church are, Length 63 Feet; Breadth 60; Altitude 51; and that of the Steeple about 140.

MONUMENTS in the old Church, before the Fire, were for,

William Jawdrell, Taylor, 1440.

John Long, Esq; of Bedfordshire, 1442.

William Wilkinson, Alderman, 1519.

Sir James Hawes, Mayor 1574.

Sir John Branch, Mayor 1580.

John Minors.

William Kettle.

ON a comely Monument, in the South Wall of the Choir, was this Inscription:

versities, &c.

On a Monument in the Chancel, an Epitaph upon the Departure of the illustrious Precedent of Bounty and pious Industry, Master Roger Mountague, Esq;

In Life and Death thy Works did well pursue
The Honourable Name of Mountague.
Nobility of Birth ran in thy Blood:
Nobility of Action made that good.
Thy Charity, the Top of all thy Fame,
The Figure that thy Monument may claim
With Justice; 'tis thine own, fit to inrol
Thy Memory here, as Heaven adorns thy Soul.
Sum up all Virtues in Man ever known,
And set them to thy Actions, th'are thine own.
That's the near'st Way to make for thy Worth

[room;
Particular Praises would o'respread the Tomb.
Here's all in brief, who shall henceforth endite
A good Man's Epitaph, let him but write
The Copy of thy Life: It stands for all,
That ever made Man's Praise, or ever shall.

IN the Church since the Rebuilding; Sir Patience Ward, Knight, some Time Alderman and Lord Mayor, buried in the Chancel, hath a fair
Monument in the East Wall, near the South
Corner, with this Inscription:

Hereunder lies interred the Body of Sir Patience Ward, Knight, Alderman, and Lord Mayor of LONDON Anno 1681. He married Elizabeth, Daughter of William Hobson of Hackney, in the County of Middlesex, Esq; She departed this Life the 24th of December 1685, and lies buried in the great Church at Amsterdam.
He the 10th of July 1696, without Issue.

ANOTHER Monument in the South Wall of the Chancel for Mr. Edward Sherwood of St.
Laurence Pountney; who married Hannah, the Daughter of Mr. Abraham Foster of Alhallows the Less. He died January 5, 1690, aged 62.

died June 2, 1672, aged 61.

James Smith, died August 4, 1686, aged 30.

John Worth, Citizen and Merchant of LON-DON, who died Ann. 1693. These have flat
Stones laid over them.

AGAINST the South Wall, near the Door is a neat Marble Monument with this Inscription:

To the Memory of Mrs. Jane Tournay, Daughter of Robert Biddulph of Aldermanbury, Esq;
Hambrough Merchant, and late Wife of Anthony Tournay, Esq; Deputy of Dowgate Ward. She died the 10th of May, A. D. 1718, Ætat. 57;
she left three Sons and four Daughters.

At Home she lead an exemplary Life,
As Friend, and Neighbour, Parent, and as Wife:
Abroad, at Church a bright Example shown;
Of pure Devotion to her God alone.

Also of Anthony Tournay, Esq; descended of the ancient Family of Tournay of Cainby in Lincolnshire. He died October 26, A. D. 1726,

The PARISH of St. LAURENCE POULTNEY.

St. Laurence Poultney.

THE Parish-Church of St. Laurence, was increased with a Chapel of Jesus, by Thomas Cole, for a Master and Chaplain: The which Chapel and Parish-Church was made a College of Jesus, and of Corpus Christi, for a Master and seven Chaplains, by John Poultney, Mayor, and was confirmed by Edward III. the 20th of his Reign. Of him was this Church called St. Laurence Poultney in Candlewick-street. Which College was valued at 79 l. 17 s. 11 d. and was surrendered in the Reign of Edw. VI. who in the 2d of his Reign, granted and sold unto John Ckeke, his Schoolmaster, and Walter Moyle, the said College of Corpus Christi, which stood near the said St. Laurence's Church, with several Messuages and Tenements there, together with the Cottages, Shops, Cellars, Solars, Chambers, Stables, Courts, and Curtelages thereunto belonging. Also there belonged unto the same College, a Capital Messuage and Tenement called Catford, situate in Lewisbam in Kent; which, with other Things, was granted to Henry Polstede and William More, for 2034 l. odd Money.

It was also called the College of St. Laurence de Polteney. The Founder had an House called Polteney's Inn, which was exchanged for the Church of Napton in the County of Warwick, and laid to this College in 8 Richard II. And the Manor of Catford in the County of Kent, granted to the same College in 13 Edward III. To it also belonged Abchurch, and a Pension thence.

Robert Witherley, Magister Ecclesie Collegiatae Sti Laurentii de Pulteney, LONDON, An. 1385.

William Thorp, Magister Colleg. Sti. Laurentii Pountney, LONDON. Apr. 16, 1426.

THE Steeple of this Church was new leaded, five new Bells were hung, and the Frames they hung in new made. All the Isles were new raised and levelled, and the whole Church within and without repaired and beautified, at the Cost and Charge of the Parish, in the Years of our Lord God 1631 and 1632,

George Downes, }
Robert Mead, } Church-wardens.

ANTIENTLY through the Church-yard of St. Laurence Poultney Church, was a Way which the Rector once stopp'd up, or intended so to do, which caused a Precept directed to the Rector of St. Laurence in Candlewick-street Ward, that he shut not the Church-yard there; because it was a common Way.

Robert Radcliffe, Earl of Suffex, and Henry Radcliffe Earl of Suffex, were buried there.

Alderman Beswyke was buried there.

John Olyffe, Alderman.

Robert Browne, and others.

ON an antient Monument in the North Isle Eastward, was this Inscription:

Hereunder lieth the Body of William Beswyke of Beswyke, Citizen while he lived, and Draper, and some Time Alderman of LONDON, who deceased the 5th Day of May, An. Dom. 1567.

ON a fair Stone on the Ground in the same Isle,

John Olyffe, Alderman, lying under this Stone, died the 26th Day of June 1577, aged 65 Years: He was married forty Years to Joan his Wife: He had seven Children, Anne, John, Joan, John, Thomas, Matthew, and Edward, who died all without Issue, save only Joan; who married John Leigh, Esq; and Heir of Addington in Surrey, and had Issue Olyffe Leigh, now living.

ON another Stone, and fairly plated, in the South Isle and Body of the Church, was the following Epitaph on Elizabeth Lucar.

Every Christian Heart
seeketh to extol
The Glory of the Lord,
our only Redeemer;

Wherefore

Wherefore Dame Fame
must needs inroll
Paul Withypoll his Child;
by Love and Nature,
Elizabeth, the Wife
of Emanuel Lucar;
In whom was declared
the Goodness of the Lord,
With many high Virtues, which truly I will record.

She wrought all Needle-works that Women exercise,
With Pen, Frame, or Stool,
all Pictures artificial,
Curious Knots, or Trails,
what Fancy could devise,
Beasts, Birds, or Flowers,
even as Things natural.
Three manner Hands could she write, them fair all.
To speak of Algorisme, or Accounts, in every Fashion,
Of Women, few like
(I think) in all this Nation.

Dame Cunning her gave a Gift right excellent,
The goodly Practice
of her Science Musical,
In divers Tongues to Sing;
and play with Instrument,
Both Vial and Lute,
and also Virginal;
Nor only upon one,
but excellent in all.
For all other Virtues belonging to Nature,
God her appointed
a very perfect Creature.

Latin and Spanish, and also Italian,
She spake, writ, and read,
with perfect Utterance;
And for the English,
she the Garland won:
In Dame Prudence School
by Grace's Purveyance;
Which clothed her with Virtues,
from naked Ignorance.
Reading the Scriptures,
to judge Light from Dark,
Directing her Faith to Christ,
the only Mark.

THE said Elizabeth deceased the 29th Day of October, An. Dom. 1537, of Years not fully twenty seven. This Stone, and all herein contained, made at the Cost of the said Emanuel, Merchant-Taylor.

A Monument at the upper End of the North
Isle, with this Inscription:

Hoc est nescire, sine Christo plurima scire,
Si Christum bene scis,
fatis est, si cetera nescis.

This Monument was erected Anno Domini
1620, by the Lady Ann Bromley, late Wife unto Sir Henry Bromley of Holt, in the County of Worcester, Knight, Daughter of William Bes- wyke, of LONDON, Alderman, in Remembrance of her first Husband, William Offley, of LONDON, Merchant; who, being Free of the Merchant-Taylors, fined both for Sheriff and Alderman.

He had Issue by the said Anne, fifteen Children, whereof five are living; viz. William,

Elizabeth, Margaret, Robert, and Mary. The rest died Infants.

IN the last Parochial Visitation, the Churchwardens brought in, that they never knew or heard of any House belonging to the Minister, it having been an Impropriation.

THIS Parish, as is said before, was united to St. Mary Abchurch, after the Fire of LON-DON.

THE Vestry is General.

ON the South Side of this Ward, beginning again at the East, is St. Michael's-lane; which Lane is almost wholly of this Ward, on both Sides down towards Thames-street, to a Well or Pump there. On the East Side of this Lane is Crooked- lane afore said, by St. Michael's Church, toward New Fish-street. One of the most antient Houses in this Lane is called The Leaden Porch, and belonged, some Time, to Sir John Merston, Kt.
the first of Edward IV.

The PARISH of St. MICHAEL Crooked-lane.

THE Parish-Church of St. Michael's was St. Michael Crooked-lane.
some Time but a small and homely Thing, standing upon Part of that Ground, whereon now standeth the Parsonage-House: And the Ground thereabouts was a filthy Plat, by Reason of the Butchers in Eastcheap, who made the same their Layfall.

William de Burgo gave two Messuages to that Church, situate in Candlewick (now Cannon) street, Anno 1317. John Loveken, Stock-Fishmonger, four Times Lord Mayor of LON-DON (at last, Anno 1366) built St. Michael's Church there, and was buried in the Choir, under a fair marble Tomb.

His Arms were; a Chevron between three Falcons Volant.

THIS Church was afterwards increased with a new Choir and Side Chapel, by Sir William Wall- worth, Stock-Fishmonger, Lord Mayor of LON-DON, Anno 1374, who was Servant formerly to the said Loveken; and who (when Mayor) wounded the Rebel Wat Tyler in Smithfield, for which he was by the King Knighted; as was also John Philpot, Nicholas Brember, and Robert Laud, Aldermen; the Mayor was rewarded also with 100 l. per Ann. the other three with 40 l.
per Ann. to them and their Heirs for ever. This Sir William Wallworth afterwards founded in this Church a College of a Master and nine Priests; and deceasing, Anno 1385, he was here buried.

His Arms; a Bend Ragul'd between two Garbs.

BUT this Monument being, amongst others, defaced in the Reign of King Edward the VIth, was again since renewed by the Fish-mongers; who for Lack of Knowledge, whatsoever

ever before had been written in his Epitaph, followed a fabulous Book, and wrote Jack Straw, instead of Wat Tyler; a great Error, fit to be reformed there, and elsewhere.

THIS second Monument, after the demolishing of the first, was set up in June 1562, with his Effigies in Alabaster, in Armour gilt richly, by the Fishmongers, saith Stow; at the Cost of William Parvys, Fishmonger, that dwelt at the Castle in New Fish-street, saith a MS. in the Cotton Library: (Perhaps he was the Master of the Company at that Time.) The Epitaph of so memorable a Citizen, being omitted in Stow, is here set down:

Hereunder lyth a Man of Fame,
William Wallworth called by Name.
Fishmonger he was in Lyfetime here,
And twise Lord Mayor, as in Books appere;
Who with Courage stout and manly Myght
Slew Jack Straw in King Richard's Myght.
For which Act done and trewe Entent.
The King made hym Knight incontinent.
And gave hym Armes, as here you see,
To declare his fact and Chivaldrie.
He left this Lyf the Pere of our God.
Thirteen hundred fourscore and three odd.

It hath also been, and is now grown to a common Opinion, that in Reward of this Service done by the said William Wallworth against the Rebel; that King Richard added to the Arms of this City (which was Argent, a plain Cross Gules) a Sword, or Dagger, (for so they term it.) Whereof there is no such Record, but rather that which soundeth to the contrary. For in the fourth Year of Richard II, in a full Assembly made in the upper Chamber of the Guildhall, summoned by this William Wallworth, then Mayor, as well of Aldermen, as of the Common-Council in every Ward, for certain Affairs concerning the King, it was there by Common-Consent, agreed and ordained, that the old Seal of the Office of the Mayoralty of the City, being very small, old, unapt, and uncomely for the Honour of the City, should be broken, and one other new should be had. Which the said Mayor commanded to be made artificially, and honourably for the Exercise of the said Office thereafter, in place of the other. In which new Seal, besides the Images of Peter and Paul, which of old were rudely engraven, there should be under the Feet of the said Images, a Shield of the Arms of the said City perfectly graved with two Lions supporting the same, with two Serjeants of Arms on either Part, one, and two Tabernacles, in which, above, should stand two Angels, between whom (above the said Images of Peter and Paul) should be set the glorious Virgin. This being done, the old Seal of the Office was delivered to Richard Odiham Chamberlain, who broke it, and in Place thereof, was delivered the new Seal to the said Mayor, to use in his Office of Mayoralty as Occasion should require. This new Seal seemeth to be made before William Wallworth was Knighted; for he is not there intituled Sir, as afterwards he was: And certain it is, that the same new Seal then made, is now in Use, and none other in that Office of Mayoralty; which may suffice to answer the former Fable, without shewing of any Evidence sealed with the old Seal which was the Cross and Sword, as now, &c. of St. Paul, and not the Dagger of William Wallworth.

THIS Church of St. Michael's was new Roofed in 1621, Charge 500 l. and sharing in the common Calamity by Fire in the Year 1666, was reedified Anno 1688. The Church was beautified, and the Tower finished in 1698.

THE Building is in this Nature; the Walls of the Church and Steeple are Stone, the latter having four Pinnacles, on the Vertex whereof were many Vases, which are now broken off by the Wind, on the 27th of November 1703; being the most violent Storm known in the Memory of any one now living; it was a South Westerly Wind, attended with small Rain (and some say an Earthquake) beginning to blow very fierce about half an Hour past One; was at the highest from four to half an Hour past five: It much affected the South Part of the Nation, killing several Persons by Land and Sea, and destroying and damnifying a great many Houses and Shipping. It has a square Roof covered with Lead, the Floor mostly paved with Stone, that of the Chancel one Step higher than that of the rest of the Church, which is without Columns, but with Arches and Imposts.

It is adorned with a Cornice of Crocket-work, extending round the Church's Roof; pewed and wainscotted with Oak, the latter nine Feet high; the West and South Door-cases are of the same Sort of Timber, adorned with Pilasters and Entablature of the Corinthian Order; the Frieze, &c. enrich'd; and under the Arches are two artificial white Curtains carved very natural, as at Alhallows Lombard-street, and over the West Door are the King's Arms.

THE Altar-piece is of the same Species of Materials, adorned with four Columns and Entablature of the Corinthian Order. The Inter-columns are the Commandments done in gold Letters on Black, under a Glory; these between the Pater Noster and Creed, done in Black on Gold, each under a gilded Cherub, and has Enrichments of two Lamps, Fruit, Leaves, &c. and these Words of our Saviour, in St. John's Gospel, are under the Decalogue;

A new Commandment I give unto you, that you love one another.

DIMENSIONS are, Length 78 Feet, Breadth 46, Altitude 32, and that of the Tower to the Top of the Pinnacle about 100.

THERE has not been one Monument erected in this Church built since the Fire, but in the old one, besides that of Sir William Wallworth, were the following for,

Simon Mordon, Mayor, 1368.

Richard Radwel, Citizen and Stockfishmonger, who by his Will, 1415, gave two Marks, yearly, for ever, to the Minister and Church-wardens of the Parish, out of a House in Thames-street. He gave also a Part of his Estate at Radwel in Hertfordshire, for the Repair and Leading of the Church.

John Olney, Mayor, 1446.

Robert March, Stockfishmonger, gave two Pieces of Ground to be a Church-yard.

George Gowre, Esq; Son to Edward Gowre, Stockfishmonger, Esq; 1470.

Alexander Purpoynt, Stockfishmonger, 1373.

Andrew Burel, Gentleman, of Grays, 1487.

John Shrow, Stockfishmonger, 1487, with this Epitaph.

Farewell, my Friends,
the Tide abideth no Man
I am departed hence,
and so shall yee.
But in this Passage,
the best Song I can,

Is Requiem Aeternam,
now Jesu grant it me ;
When I have ended
all mine Adversity,
Grant me in Paradise
to have a Mansion,
That shedst thy Blood
for my Redemption.

John Finkell, one of the Sheriffs, 1487, was Knighted, and gave 40*l.* to this Church, the one half for his Monument.

John Pattlesley, Mayor, 1441.

Thomas Ewen, Grocer, bore half the Charges in Building of the Steeple, and was buried 1501.

William Combes, Gent. of Stoke by Guildford in Surrey, 1502.

Sir John Brudge, Mayor, 1530, gave 50*l.* for a House, called the College in Crooked-lane : He lieth buried in St. Nicholas Acon.

Walter Faireford, Robert Barre, Alexander Heybrand, John Motte, John Gramstone, John Brampton.

John Wood, Stockfishmonger, 1531.

Sir Henry Amcots, Mayor, 1548, &c.

Hic jacet Richardus Gurneyus, Civitatis LONDON. Aldermanus: Qui tam summis quam infirmis viris gratus, charusque semper fuit, tum ob integritatem vitæ ac humanitatem, tum propter curam Reipublicæ singularem: Vixit cum dulcissima Uxore sua Anna Annos . . . . . Suscepitque ex ea duodecim liberos; quorum septem superstites reliquit. Cum summo omnium dolore excessit e Vita quinto Die Martii, Anno Domini 1596, Ætatis suæ LXXII.

Queen ELIZABETH's Monument.

The Righteous shall be had in Remembrance.

Queen Elizabeth both was, and is alive,

What then can more be said?

In Heaven a Saint, in Earth a blessed Maid.

She ruled England, Years 44 and more

And then return'd to God,

At the Age of 70 Years, and somewhat odd.

Christ is to me Life; Death is to me Advantage,
Phil. i. 21.

I have fought a good Fight, and have finished my Course, &c.

In the new built Church are two flat Stones, that are laid over Benjamin Henshaw, that died 1688-9, aged 80: And Martha his Wife 1697. And Henry, Son of Richard Amy.

And under another, in the Body of the Church, lies the Body of Mr. Jacob Babington, departed the 25th of November 1708, aged 64. And near, his two Sons Thomas and John.

Adjacent lies the Body of John Stint, Vintner, who died the 20th of April 1709, in the 44th Year of his Age.

On the North Wall of the Church is a Table with the Names of ten Benefactors, one of which gave 20*l.* the others small Sums, the largest among them 2*l.* 18*s.*

THE Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Archbishop of Canterbury, Value per Act. of Parliament 100*l.* per Annum, and rated in the King's Books at 26*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. King; and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Reading.

PRAYERS are every Wednesday, Friday and Holidays, at eleven o'Clock, an Organ, and two Bells.

THE Gift Sermons are eight; one preached on St. John's-Day, and one on New-Years-Day; the other six at the Discretion of the Rector, being Preparation Sermons, preached on Fridays before the Sacrament Days.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

PART of Crooked-lane, St. Michael's-lane, Bell's-court, Moor's-court, Meeting-house-court, Three-tun-court, Money-court, Wheatheaf-alley; and Part of Great Eastcheap.

NUMBER of Houses 118, besides the Parsonage-House.

HARD by this St. Michael's Church, on the South Side thereof, in the Year 1560, on the 5th of July, through the shooting off a Gun, which broke into the House of one Adrian Arten, a Dutchman, and set Fire on a Firkin and Barrel of Gun-powder, four Houses were blown up, and divers others much shattered; eleven Men and Women were slain, and sixteen so hurt and bruised, that they hardly escaped with Life.

WEST from this St. Michael's-lane is St. Martin's Orgar-lane, by Candlewick-street, which Lane is, on both Sides down to a Well, replenished with fair and large Houses for Merchants, and it is of this Ward: One of which Houses was some Time called Beauchamp's-Inn, as pertaining unto them of that Family. Thomas Arundel, Archbishop of Canterbury, commonly for his Time was lodged there.

THE modern State of this Ward stands thus: The chief Streets and Lanes herein (whether the whole or greatest Part of them) are Great Eastcheap, the whole on both Sides, except a very small Part in the North Corner next to Grasschurch-street; Candlewick (now commonly called Cannon) street, from Green-Lettice-lane on both Sides to Great Eastcheap: Abchurch-lane, all, except 96 Feet on the West Side, and about 140 Feet on the East Side of the North End towards Lombard-street. St. Nicholas-lane, about 200 Feet, at the South End, on both Sides. St. Clement's-lane, the South End, and about 180 Feet on the West Side, and 150 Feet on the East Side. St. Michael's-lane, all but about 140 Feet at the South End on both Sides. Crooked-lane, the West End, about half. St. Martin's-lane, all on both Sides, except about 95 Feet at the South End. St. Laurence Poultney-lane, or Hill, from Cannon-street on both Sides, a little beyond St. Laurence Church-yard. Green Lettice-lane, the East Side. And all these Streets and Lanes have several Courts and Alleys, and small Passages, which shall be mentioned under each.

Great Eastcheap begins by the Corner of Fish-street-hill, and runs Westward unto St. Clement's-lane, where Cannon-street begins. It took its Name, Eastcheap, from a Market antiently there kept for the serving the East Part of the City: Which Market was afterwards removed to Leadenhall-street, and now is kept in Leadenhall. But still Eastcheap continues a Flesh Market, and is inhabited by a great many Butchers, as is Little Eastcheap also.

THIS Street is a great Thorough-fare from the Eastern Parts to those in the West. In this Street is the Boar's-head Tavern, under the Sign of which is wrote, This is the oldest Tavern in LONDON. It is in this Tavern where some of the Scenes of the Poet Shakespeare's Henry IV, are laid, in which he introduces Prince Henry, Falstaff, and his Companions. The Courts and Alleys are as followeth, beginning Eastwards, viz.

Small-alley, very ordinary, only for Stabling.

Maidenhead-court, but small, with a Meeting-House at the upper End.

Rat-alley, also narrow and very mean.

White Bell-alley, also small and ordinary.

Cannon-street begins at Eastcheap, and runs Westwards to Green Lettice-lane; a Street well built and inhabited by able Tradesmen: The Courts and Alleys are, Bell-alley, which hath a Passage into St. Nicholas-lane, through the Bell Tavern. Black Swan-alley, but indifferent. Artichoke-court, a pretty good Place, with a Free-stone Pavement.

St. Clement's-lane, on the North Side of Cannon-street, falls into Lombard-street, a Place well built and inhabited; the Part in this Ward goeth a little beyond St. Clement's Eastcheap Church. Which is a handsome Brick Building, with Free-stone Work at the Corners; adjoining to which Church is a good handsome Place called Church-alley, the North Side having a Row of Houses, and the South Side lying open to the Church and Church-yard. This Church is in the Diocese of LONDON; the Abbot of Westminster was Patron.

St. Nicholas-lane, spoken of in Langborn Ward, in which the greatest Part is seated.

Abchurch-lane comes out of Lombard-street, and runs up to Cannon-street, a Place well built and inhabited by Merchants and Persons of Repute. In this Lane are these Courts and Alleys.

St. Nicholas-alley, but narrow, with a Passage into St. Nicholas-lane.

Lamb-alley, but indifferently inhabited, and narrow, with a Passage into Sherborn-lane; and near unto this Alley is Lamb-court, which is but ordinary.

St. Mary Abchurch. It is a good Brick Building, with a Church-yard enclosed by a Brick Wall; and hath an open large Free-stone Pavement on the South Side.

THE Lanes on the South Side of Cannon-street, are St. Michael's-lane, and Crooked-lane, St. Martin's-lane, St. Laurence Poultney-lane, and Green Lettice-lane.

St. Michael's-lane goes out of Great Eastcheap, and runs down into Thames-street, which Lane is almost all in this Ward; that Part towards Thames-street being in Dowgate Ward. It is a Place well built and inhabited. On the East Side is seated St. Michael's Crooked-lane Church. This Church is a Peculiar of Canterbury, the Archbishop thereof being Patron. Crooked-lane comes out of St. Michael's-lane by St. Michael's Church, and falls into Fish-street-hill against the Monument: Which Part next Fish-street is in the Bridge Ward Within. It is a Place of some Note for the Tin Ware there made and sold; as also for Fishing Tackle.

ON the West Side of St. Michael's-lane, over-against the Church, is Hockins-court, which is but small, containing two Houses. And on the same Side is Meeting-house-yard, so called from a Meeting-House, which takes up the greatest Part. Fen-court hath pretty good Houses, and a Free-stone Pavement.

Three-tun-court, a good square Place, with an open Entrance for Carts.

St. Martin's-lane also falls into Thames-street, and is well built and inhabited by Merchants. On the East Side is St. Martin's Orgar Church-yard; the Church not being rebuilt since its burning down in the great Fire, the Parish is united unto unto St. Clement's Eastcheap. Part of the Steeple remains, where there is a Dial, which hangs over into the Street.

St. Laurence Poultney-lane, so called from the Parish-Church there formerly standing on the West Side, that was consumed by the Fire of LONDON, which is not since rebuilt; but the Parish is united unto St. Mary Abchurch. And the Place where the Church stood goes by the Name of St. Laurence Poultney-hill, which is an open Place, where, in the House which was formerly Sir John Ward's, who was the last Alderman of this Ward, is kept the Office belonging to the Charitable Corporation, a Company established on a very good Design, to assist the Poor with Money at small Interest; but thro' the Roguery of some employed by them, the Proprietors were defrauded of the greatest Part of their Capital Stock, amounting to near 400,000*l.* The Parliament taking the Matter into Consideration, passed an Act (in the last Session 1733) to raise 500,000*l.* by Way of Lottery, 100,000*l.* of which to go towards the Relief of the unhappy Sufferers, in this Corporation; whose Affairs being in other Hands, and better regulated, may yet answer the good Intention for which they obtained their Charter. Great Part of this Hill is in Dowgate Ward.

Green Lettice-lane comes out of Cannon-street, and falls into St. Laurence Poultney-hill; a Place well inhabited. The East Side is only in this Ward; the West in Wallbrook. Out of this Lane is a Passage into Suffolk-lane, which is also in Wallbrook Ward.

THERE are to watch at the several Stands in this Ward every Night a Constable, the Beadle, and 24 Watchmen. The Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest are to serve on Juries for this Ward in Guildhall, in the Month of December.

IT hath an Alderman, his Deputy, Common-Council-Men eight, Constables eight, Scavengers six, Wardmote Inquest Men 12, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen at 16*l.*

THE Alderman of this Ward is Sir John Thompson, Knt.

Wallbrook Ward.

Wallbrook Ward begins at the West End of Candlewick (now Cannon) Street, and runneth down the said Street, West towards Budge-row. It hath on the North Side of it St. Swithen's-lane, so called from St. Swithen's Parish-Church by London-stone. This Lane is replenished, on both Sides, with handsome Houses, and is wholly of this Ward.

St. Swithen's Church.

THE Parish-Church of St. Swithen stands at the South West Corner of this Lane. The Saint to whom this Church is dedicated, was born Anno 800, or thereabouts, bred up in Piety and Learning, by the Monks at Winchester, was ordained Priest by Helmstan, his Predecessor in that See, and afterwards became Prior of that Monastery.

Helmstan being dead, Swithen, from being Prior, was made Bishop of that See, consecrated thereto by Celnoth, Archbishop of Canterbury, by the Appointment of Ethelwolfe (or Adulph) King of the West Saxons, whose Tutor he had been in the Reign of Egbricht (or Egbert) his Father.

HE was a Person of exemplary Life, very charitable to the Poor, and had that Regard for Places consecrated to Religion, that he left Orders not to be buried in the Church, but without it, where his Corpse must be trampled over by Passengers, and subject to the Falling of the Rain from above. He died Anno 862, as some write, and others 863.

IT should seem, by long Continuance of Time, the Place where this Holy Bishop was buried was forgot; for in the Year 970 (near 110 Years after his Sepulture) it was discover'd to a poor labouring Man, by St. Swithen himself; which poor Man, by the Saint's own Direction, told Ethelwold, Bishop of Winchester, in what Place he was buried, who finding it accordingly, took up his Bones and Reliques, and put them up in a Shrine; where so many Miracles have been wrought, saith Malmsbury, as were never before in the Memory of Man.

THE Day of the Saint's Death is commemorated in the Roman Martyrology, July 2; but his Translation having been made July 15, his principal Feast is celebrated in the English Churches on that Day.

THIS Church of St. Swithen was new built, Anno 1420, which was done chiefly at the Charge of Sir John Hind, Lord Mayor of LONDON, in the Years 1391, and 1404. Mr. Stow says, the Building was then augmented, both of the Church and Steeple, which implies that a Church was here before, and consequently, that it is of a very ancient Foundation.

ARMS of Hind; Argent on a Chevron, three Escallop Shells, on a Chief Azure a Lion Passant of the first.

THIS Church was repaired in the Years 1607, and 1608; and last, a little before the Fire, when about 1000*l.* was laid out on it.

THIS Church and Tower are well built with Stone, the Roof covered with Lead, supported with Demy-Columns of the Composite Order; the Floor is paved with Stone, and pewed, with three Isles; the Roof and Cupola, and the whole is commodious and pleasant, tho' small.

IT is well wainscotted 10 Feet high, and pew'd with Oak, there is a neat Gallery on the North and North West Sides, also a Pulpit carv'd and finnier'd; all, as likewise two inner Door-cases, are of Wainscot. The Altar-piece is of the same Species of Timber, it is adorned with four fluted Pilasters, Entablature and Pediment of the Corinthian Order; in the Pediment the King Arms are carved, gilt and colour'd. The Intercolumns are the Decalogue depencil'd in Gold Letters on Black, within gilded Frames, under a Glory and two Cherubims, and all this between the Creed and Pater Noster, done in Black and Gold, each under a Cherubim, with Enrichment of Fruit and Leaves of various Kinds; and the Roof is adorned with Pannels, Circles and Festoons of Crocket-

Crocket-work, and the three Front Sides, outward with Cornice and circular Pediment; also a Clock-Dial, adorned with the Figure of St. Swithen, gilt with Gold, standing on a Pedestal between two Vases.

THE Dimensions are, Length 61 Feet, from North to South; from East to West, 42; Altitude about 40, and that of the Tower and Spire, about 150.

This Sir John Hart had two Wives; and one Daughter, married to Sir George Bolls, and another to Humphry Smith, Alderman.

In the South Wall is a handsome Monument, with the following Inscription:

Near this Place lieth the Body of the Worshipful Randal Manning, Esq; Merchant-Adventurer, Citizen and Skinner of LONDON, who had to Wife, Catharine, Daughter of Nicholas Dewren, Citizen and Goldsmith of LONDON, and had by her sundry Children, whereof eight married, and six of them were living at his Death. He departed this Life at the Age of 78 Years, on the 19th Day of January, Anno Domini 1611.

ON a Pillar in the Middle Isle.

Master Bartholomew Barnes, Citizen, Mercer, and Merchant-Adventurer, a worshipful and wise Gentleman, and a worthy Friend and Favourer of Religion. He had fined both for Sheriff and Alderman, and at last, being 61 Years old, sickened, died, and was buried at Bath, October the first, 1606, and left behind him Margaret his Wife; by whom he had Issue, Bartholomew, Elizabeth, Margaret and Mary.

No living Creature lives so long,
but once must needs give Place,
When doleful Death, that Champion strong, arrests them with his Mace.
Example take by me,
which did my Life enjoy
The Space of sixty Years, lack three, which Death did then destroy.
Like thee I was some Time,
but now am turn'd to Dust,
As thou at length (O Earth and Slime) return to Ashes must.
Of the Company of Clothworkers
a Brother I became,
A long Time in the Livery,
I lived of the same.

Then Death that deadly Stroke did give which now my Joys doth frame,
In Christ I died, by Christ to live,
John Rogers was my Name.
My loving Wife and Children two,

Near this Place lies interréd, the Body of Michael Godfrey, Merchant, late of this Parish,

Son of Mr. Michael Godfrey, Merchant, and Anne-Mary his Wife; he was born the 22d of Feb. 1658, being elected the first Deputy Governor of the Bank of England; he went for Flanders on some important Business relating to the Service of his Majesty, where attending his Royal Person, then encamped before Namure; he was slain by a Cannon-ball from the Works of the Besieged, July 17, 1695: He died a Bachelor, much lamented by all his Friends, Relations and Acquaintance, for his Integrity, his Knowledge, and the Sweetness of his Manners; his Body was brought over; and lies buried near his Father: His sorrowful Mother caused this Monument to be erected to the pious Memory of her beloved Son:

The God of Battel found in Foreign Parts,
The Son of Hermes form'd for peaceful Arts;
And thought it lawful Prize to take his Blood,
Because so near a Warrior King he stood.

A spacious Black Marble Grave-Stone before the Altar-Rails, lying North and South, inscribed:

Here lies the Body of Mrs. Agnes Reid, Daughter of the Honourable John Reid, Esq; one of his Majesty's Judges of the Island of Barbadoes, ob. 1 Jan. 1685.

Virtue and Beauty here doth lie,
Her Sex's sole Epitomy;
They must have Musick, all the Arts,
Judgment to use; or want her Parts,
When such vanish, then what can save
The most ingenious from the Grave?

ON the North Side, over the Communion-Table, hangs a Hatchment with the Arms of the Holworthy's.

ON the South, near the Communion-Table, another with this Inscription:

Sir John Bolle, Baronet, died March the third, 1685; he lies underneath in the Vault belonging to his Family.

CHARITIES belonging to this Parish are as follow:

THE Poor have 12 d. per Week in Bread, 50 s. per Ann. allowed them in Coal; the Gift of Henry Hobener.

A Weekly Lecture formerly 14 l. per Ann. now reduced to 10 l. 10 s. being the Gift of Tho. Wetnal, in the Reign of King James I; it is in the Hands of Trustees.

THERE was a Parsonage-House before the Fire, but burnt down; rebuilt by Henry Whistler of St. Mary Abchurch, on a Lease for forty Years, commencing March the 25th 1675; Ground-Rent 4 l. per Ann. The Dimensions in Front thirteen Feet, in Length thirty Feet, in Breadth backward ten Feet nine Inches, little more or less.

THIS Parish, after the Fire, was united to that of St. Mary Bothaw. The Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury, and the Salter's Company, who present alternately; Value 140 l. per Ann. St. Swithen's rated in the King's Books 15 l. 17 s. 11 d.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Ayers, one of the Prebends of Canterbury, presented by the Dean and Chapter; and the Lecturer is the Reverend Mr. Wells.

PRAYERS are at eleven and five, daily, at the Parish Charge: No Organ, one Bell. Here is a Lecture Sermon on Thursday Evenings, from Michaelmas to Midsummer.

THE Vestry is General in both Parishes.

THE Parish-Officers for each Parish are two Church-wardens.

The WARD-OFFICERS for St. Swithen are,

- 2 Common-Council-Men.
- 3 Inquests.
- 2 Constables.
- 1 Scavenger.

The WARD-OFFICERS for St. Mary's are uncertain, the Parish being in two Wards.

The PARISH of St. MARY BOTHAW.

ON the South Side of Wallbrook Ward, from Candlewick-street, in the Midway betwixt London-stone and Wallbrook Corner, was a little Lane with a Turnpike in the midst thereof, and in the same the Parish Church called St. Mary Bothaw, or Boat-haw, by the Erbar. This Church being near Downgate on the River Thames, had the Addition of Bothaw, or Boat-haw, from its near adjoining to a Haw, or Yard, wherein of old Time, Boats were made, and landed from Downgate to be mended, as may be supposed.

THIS seems of old to have been called also St. Mary de Bothache. Near which Church, on the North, were certain Land, and a Stone House, and other Houses, belonging to the Priory of Christ Church, Canterbury. The Prior Wibert (about Anno 1167) and the Convent granted to Ernis, and his Heirs, the Premises; paying 10 s. yearly, and giving on St. John Baptist's Day, a Towel (Manutergium) worth 8 d. to the Keeper of his House, and two Pitchers, worth six Pieces of Money, and a Saltsellar worth four.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified, at the Charge of the Parishioners, in the Year 1621.

MONUMENTS.

WITHIN this Church, and the small Cloister adjoining, several Noblemen, and Persons of Distinction, were buried; but their Monuments either torn away, or much defaced, before the Fire.

THERE remained that of John West, Esq; buried in the Year 1408.

Thomas Huntley, Esq; 1539; but his Monument defaced.

Lancelot Bathurst, with this Inscription:

Here lieth the Body of Lancelot Bathurst, Citizen, Grocer, and chosen Alderman of this honourable City: Who deceased the 27th Day of September 1594, &c.

BUT the most remarkable Monument was that of Henry Fitz-Alwine, Draper, the first Lord Mayor of LONDON that ever was; who continued, by several Elections, in the Mayoralty above twenty four Years: His Monument can be proved to have been in this Church, saith Anthony Monday, as his Arms in the Glass Windows and Gravestones do sufficiently shew. Besides, his Dwelling-house, divided into two or three, was given given by him to the Drapers Company, and they pay a Quit-Rent, in his Name, yearly, for ever. All which are sufficient to testify, that he was not buried in the Priory of the Holy Trinity within Aldgate, now called Duke's-Place, continueth Monday, as formerly hath been avouched by Mr. Stow.

BUT this is not Evidence enough against Stow's own Eyes; who, living in the Times before the Dissolution of that Priory, may be presumed to have seen Fitz-Alwine's Monument in that Church of the Priory, and so to have numbered him among the rest of the Persons that had Monuments there, in that Part of his Survey, where he speaks of this Priory in Aldgate Ward. Fitz-Alwine might have his Arms in some of the Glass Windows of St. Mary Bothaw's Church, being a Parishioner, being Lord Mayor, and having given or glazed those Windows; and his Coat of Arms might be upon some of the Grave-stones there, having some of his Children and Relations buried there. And it adds to the Probability that he was interred in that Priory, it being so usual for Persons of great Quality to be buried in such religious Places, however expensive it was, out of an Opinion then, that it would turn to their Souls Benefit.

IN this Church was Queen Elizabeth's Monument, with this Inscription:

ELIZABETH, Queen of England, France, and Ireland, &c. Daughter to King Henry VIII, and Grandchild to King Henry VII, by Elizabeth, eldest Daughter to Edward IV; having restored true Religion, reduced Coin to the just Value, assisted France and the Low-Countries, and overcame the Spanish invincible Navy, enriched all England, and administered most prudently the Imperial State thereof forty five Years, in true Piety. In the seventieth Year of her Age, in most happy and peaceable manner, she departed this Life; leaving her mortal Parts interred in the famous Church at Westminster.

I have fought a good Fight, I have finished my Course.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

PART of Cannon-street; Part of Oxford-court, and Turn-mill-lane; Part of Great Bush-lane; Part of Chequer-yard; and Part of Scotch-yard.

NUMBER of Houses 50.

ON the North Side of St. Swithen's Church and Church-yard was a large House, some Time pertaining to the Prior of Tortington in Suffex; since that to the Earls of Oxford, Anno 1598; to Sir John Hart, Alderman, (after him to Mr. Humphry Smith, Alderman of this City, who married a Daughter of the said Hart.) Which House hath a good Garden belonging thereunto, lying on the West Side thereof. On the Back-side two other good Houses in Wallbrook. In the Reign of King Henry VII, Sir Richard Empson, Knight, (Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaster) dwelled in one of them, and Edmond Dudley, Esq; in the other; each of them had a Door of Inter-course into this Garden, wherein they met, and consulted on Matters at their Pleasure. In this Oxford Place Sir Ambrose Nicolas kept his Mayoralty: Since him, the said Sir John Hart did likewise.

ON the South Side of this High Street, near the Channel, is pitched, upright, a great Stone, called London Stone, fixed in the Ground very deep, fastened with Bars of Iron, and otherwise so strongly set, that if Carts do run against it, through Negligence, the Wheels be broken, and the Stone itself unshaken.

THE Cause why this Stone was there set, the very Time when, or other Memory hereof, there is none: But that the same hath long continued there, is manifest, namely, since (or rather before) the Conquest. For in the End of a fair written Gospel Book, given to Christ's Church in Canterbury, by Ethelstane, King of the West Saxons, it is noted of Lands, or Rents, in LONDON, belonging to the said Church, whereof one Parcel is described to lie near unto London Stone. Of later Times we read, that in the Year of Christ 1135, the first of King Stephen, a Fire, which began in the House of one Ailward; near unto London Stone, consumed all East to Aldgate. In which Fire the Priory of the Holy Trinity was burnt, and West to St. Erkenwald's Shrine in St. Paul's Church.

SOME have said, this Stone was placed as a Mark in the Middle of the City within the Wall: But in Truth it standeth far nearer to the River of Thames, than to the Wall of the City.

SOME others have said, the same was set for the tendering and making of Payment by Debtors to their Creditors, at their appointed Days and Times, till of later Time, Payments were more usually made at the Font in Ponts Church (so writ in all the Editions of Stow, for Paul's undoubtedly) and now most commonly at the Royal Exchange. Some again, have imagined the same to be set up by one John or Thomas Londonstone, dwelling there against it. But more likely it is, that such Men have taken Name from the Stone, than the Stone from them; as did John at Noke, Thomas at Stile, William at Wall or Well, &c.

SOME of our Fore-fathers had a Conceit that London Stone was set up in Signification of the City's Devotion towards CHRIST, and his Care and Protection of the City; under the Notion of a Stone, on which it was founded, and by his Favour so long preserved: For that Way those Rhimes of Fabian, in Praise of LONDON, seem to look.

It is so sure a Stone that that is upon sette,
For though some have it thrette
With Manases grym and grette
Yet Hurte had none:
Cryste is the very Stone
That the Citie is set uppon,
Which from al hys foone
Hath ever preserved yt.

AND since others have cast in their Conjectures in a Matter so obscure, by Reason of the Antiquity, saith Mr. Strype, let me add one or two of mine. The Romans reckoned their Miles from all great Towns and Places, by Stones pitched; and so they did in Britain. And perhaps this might be the Stone for LONDON; from which precise Place to measure their Miles from this City towards the other Parts of the Land. And this Street, in former Times, being the chief Street of LONDON, as Cheapside now is, this London Stone seems to have been the Place (and likely enough upon this Stone) whence Proclamations and publick Notices of Things were given to the Citizens. There is a Passage in our Chronicles that favours this Conceit. In Henry the VI's Time, Anno 1450, when Jack Cade the Kentish Rebel, who feigned himself the Lord Mortimer, came through Southwark into LONDON, he marched to this Stone, where was a great Confluence of People, and the Lord Mayor among the rest: Here he struck his Sword upon it, and said, Now is Mortimer Lord of this City: And there making a formal, but lying Declaration to the Mayor, departed back again to Southwark.

PERHAPS

PERHAPS this Stone may be of greater Antiquity than the Times of the Romans, and was an Object, or Monument, of Heathen Worship: If any be moved so to think, from what an exquisite British Antiquarian asserts, that the Britons erected Stones for religious Worship, and that the Druids had Pillars of Stone in Veneration. Which Custom, he saith, they borrowed from the Greeks, who, as Pausanias writeth, adored rude and unpolished Stones.

DOWN West from London Stone is Wallbrook Corner, where was a Conduit, new built in the Year 1568, at the City's Charge; but not rebuilt after the Fire of LONDON. From whence runneth up North to Stocks-market, a Street called Wallbrook, because it stood on the East Side of a Brook by the Bank thereof: And the whole Ward taketh its Name from this Street.

THIS City, of old Time, from North to South, was not divided by a large Highway, or Street, as from East to West, but by a Brook of Water which came from out the North Fields, through the Wall and Midst of the City into the River Thames. This Water was called Wallbrook (not Gallus Brook, from a Roman Captain slain by Asclepiadotus, and thrown therein, as some have fabled, but) from running through and from the Wall of the City.

THE Course whereof, (to prosecute it particularly) was and is from the said Wall to St. Margaret's Church in Lothbury; from thence, beneath the lower Part of the Grocers Hall, about the East Part of their Kitchen, under St. Mildred's Church, somewhat West from the said Stocks-market: From thence through Bucklersbury, by one great House built of Stone and Timber, called the Old Barge, because Barges out of the River Thames were rowed up so far into this Brook, on the back Side of the Houses in Wallbrook-street, (which Street taketh Name of the said Brook) by the West End of St. John's Church upon Wallbrook, under Horscoe-bridge, by the West Side of Tallow-Chandlers Hall, and of the Skinners Hall, and so behind the other Houses to Elbow-lane, and by a Part thereof, down Greenwich-lane into the River Thames.

THIS is the Course of Wallbrook, which was (of old Time) bridged over in divers Places, for Passage of Horses and Men, as need required: But since, by means of Encroachment on the Banks thereof, the Channel being greatly straightened, and other Annoyances done thereunto; at length the same (by common Consent) was arched over with Brick, and paved with Stone, equal with the Ground where-through it passed, and is now in most Places built upon, that no Man may by the Eye discern it. And therefore the Trace thereof is hardly known to the common People.

ON the East Side of Wallbrook, and at the North Corner thereof, is Stocks-market, which had this Beginning:

Stocks-market. ABOUT the Year of CHRIST, 1282, Henry Wallis, Mayor, caused divers Houses in this City to be built towards the Maintenance of London-bridge; namely, one void Place unto the Parish-Church called Woolchurch, on the North Side thereof, where some Time (the Way being very large and broad) had stood a Pair of Stocks, for Punishment of Offenders. This Building took Name from those Stocks, and was appointed (by him) to be a Market-place for Fish and Flesh in the midst of the City. Other Houses were built in other Places, as by Patent of Edward the First doth appear, dated the Tenth of his Reign.

THIS Stocks-market was some Time belonging to the Keepers of the Bridge of LONDON, and they let the Shops for Term of their Lives to the Butchers and Fishmongers; at certain Rents which were appropriated for the Use of the said Bridge. But afterwards it was concluded, that no Keeper of the said Bridge should let the said Shops for Life, without the Concurrence of the Mayor and Commonalty, as appears by this Record:

JOHN de Gisors being Mayor [about the Year 1312 or 1313] there was a Congregation of honest Men of the Commonalty met, to treat concerning the State of the Butchers and Fishmongers holding Places at the Stocks. And it was agreed by the whole Commonalty, that all they who took their Places by the Demise of John le Bevere, and of other six honest Men, to whom Henry le Galeys, heretofore Mayor, and the whole Commonalty, granted and demised the same Places, viz. That whole House which is called the Stocks, for the Term of the Life of the said John le Bevere, and his Companions, for a certain Sum of Money, which they render'd yearly to London-bridge, that they may enjoy the same. And the same John and the others may demise those Places to the Butchers and Fishmongers, according to what was indented in a certain Writing between the said Henry, the Mayor and the Commonalty, on the one Part, and the said John &c. on the other, and enrolled in the Hustings. And it was likewise agreed, that other Butchers who have since taken Places by the Demise of other Keepers of the Bridge, and have paid certain Sums, to have for the Term of their Lives, and can shew it, may have and hold them. And that for the future, those Places which are not held in the aforesaid Market, be taken into the Hands of the Commonalty, and be demised by the Keepers of the Bridge, who are now Tenants yearly [the Bridge-Keepers being from that Time yearly chosen.] And it is agreed, that no such Keepers for the Time to come, have Power of letting any Places for Term of Life, without the Assent and Will of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty.

AFTER this, in the Year 1322, the 17th of Edw. II. a Decree was made by Hamond Chickwell, Mayor, that none should sell Fish or Flesh out of the Markets appointed, to wit, Bridge-street, Eastcheap, Old Fish-street, St. Nicholas Shambles, and the said Stocks, on Pain to forfeit such Fish or Flesh as were sold, for the first Time; and the second Time to lose their Freedoms. Which Act was made by Commandment of the King, under his Letters Patents, dated at the Tower the 17th of his Reign: And then was this Stocks let to Farm for 46*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* by Year. This Stocks-market was again begun to be built in the Year 1410, in the 11th of Henry IV. and was finished in the Year next following. In the Year 1507 the same was rented at 56*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.* And in the Year 1543, John Cotes being Mayor, there were in this Stocks-market, for Fishmongers, twenty five Boards or Stalls, rented yearly at 34*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* There were, for Butchers, eighteen Boards or Stalls, rented at 40*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*; and there were also Chambers above (sixteen) rented at 5*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* in all 82*l.* 3*s.*

BY the Stocks was a Stone Conduit set up by the Inhabitants, where before was only a Pipe of Lead, as appears by an Act of Common Council, viz.

AT a Common Council held on Tuesday November the 27th, 1 Hen. VIII. this Petition was preferred and granted.

To the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, and his Brethren the Aldermen, and to the discreet Persons of the Common-Council of this City of LONDON.

BESEECHING your good Lordship and Masterships, the Inhabitants dwelling about the Stocks, that by the Space of five or six Years past, a Vent of Water hath run by a Pipe of Lead beside the Stocks; which Pipe of Lead, by reason that it is not closed, is daily hurt with Horses and Carts: It may therefore please your good Lordships and Masterships, and all our Masters of the Common-Council, to grant and give Licence unto the said Inhabitants, upon their own proper Costs and Charges, to make, or cause to be made, a little Postern of Stone, with a Cistern of Lead therein: So that the said Water shall be therein preserved and conveyed; and so to be drawn out by Cocks, to the common Weal of all the said Inhabitants thereabout dwelling. Thus at the Reverence of God, and in the Way of Charity.

NEXT to this Stocks was the Parish-Church of St. Mary Woolchurch, so called, as before mentioned, from a Beam placed in the Church-yard to weigh Wool.

THIS Church was handsome and large, and rebuilt by Licence granted in the 20th of Henry VI. with Condition to be built fifteen Feet from the Stocks Market, for sparing of Light to the same. The Parson of this Church is to have four Marks the Year, for Tithe of the Stocks, paid him by the Masters of the Bridge-house, by a special Decree made the 2d of Henry VII.

It was richly repaired and beautified, at the Charge of the Parishioners, in the Year of our Lord 1629.

A handsome Skreen, at the Middle West Door of this Church, was the Gift of Captain Edward Dickfield, at the Time of his going out of his Office of Church-warden, in the Year 1620.

IN this Parish stood two Messuages and Tenements, in the several Tenures of William Franklyn and Fabian Withers, given for the Maintenance of one Priest, and an Anniversary in the said Church; which coming unto King Edward VI. by the Act that dissolved Chantries, he sold them, being the yearly Value of 8*l.* to Alice Withers, Widow, in the 3d of his Reign, for 44*l.*

William Bothe of LONDON, Grocer, made his Will June 12, 1434, to be buried in this Church, and bequeathed, Versus Fabricam Corporis ejusd. Eccles. de Maria de Woolchurch, ita ut Parochiani ejusd. habeant Animam meam in eorum precib. specialiter recommendat. 40 Mar. Sterlin.

ONE Elyn Fuller, an Inhabitant of this Parish, and buried in this Church, appointed the Rent of an House for the keeping her yearly Obiit, by her Will, bearing Date in Aug. 1521, in these Words:

“ Also, I give unto my Executor the Reversion of “ my House in Westminster, that is to say, to “ Mich. next, and five Years following, paying “ yearly for the same at the Feast of the Nati“ vity of St. John Baptist, for Quit-Rent 4*s.*
“ Farthermore, I Will, that my Executor shall “ keep, yearly, during the said Years, about the “ Time of my Departure an Obiit, that is to say, “ Dirige over Even, and Mass on the Morrow,
“ for my Soul, Mr. Knesworth’s Soul, my Lady’s “ Soul, and all Christian Souls: And in Default “ hereof so made, I Will that then, and from “ thenceforth, the Parson and Church-wardens of “ St. Mary Woolchurch for Time being, have and “ occupy the said House, to the Value of four “ Marks by Year, paying and keeping as is above-
“ said, an Anniversary.

ONE George Wyngar, by his Will, dated in Sept. 13, 1521. ordered to be buried in the Church of Woolchurch, beside the Stocks in LONDON, under a Stone lying at my Lady Wyngar’s Pew-Door, at the Step coming up to the Chapel.

“ Item, I Bequeath to poor Maids Marriages,
“ 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Item, I Bequeath to Highways,
“ where it is most needful, 4*l.* To every poor “ Householder of this my Parish, 4*d.* a-piece, to
VOL. I.

“ the Sum of 40*s.* Item, I Bequeath to the “ High Altar of St. Nicholas Chapel 10*l.* for “ an Altar-Cloth of Velvet, with my Name
“ embroider’d thereupon; with a Wing, and G.
“ and A. and R. closed in a Knot. Also, I
“ Will that a Subdeacon of White Damask,
“ be made to the High Altar with my Name “ embroider’d, to sing in, on our Lady-days, in “ the Honour of God and our Lady, to the Va“ lue of five Marks.

John Wingar, Grocer, Mayor, 1504, was a great Helper to the Rebuilding of this Church, and was there buried, 1505. He gave unto it by his Testament, two large Basons of Silver, and 20*l.* in Money.

Also Richard Shore, Draper, one of the Sheriffs, 1505, was a great Benefactor in his Life, and by his Testament gave 20*l.* to make a Porch at the West End thereof, and was there buried.

Richard Hatfield, of Steplemorden in Cambridge-shire, lieth entombed there, 1467.

Edward Deoly, Esq; 1467.

John Handford, Grocer, made the Font of that Church, very curiously wrought, painted and gilded, and was there buried.

John Archer, Fishmonger, 1487.

Anne Carwood founded a Chantry there, &c.

GIFTS.

OF the Gifts and Legacies belonging to this Parish, the Church-wardens in the Parochial Visitation, Anno 1693, brought in no other Account, but that they were too long to be inserted in their Presentment; and that a View might be had of them in their Parish Books.

AND they believed there was a Parsonage-House there formerly, before the same was burnt down. It appeared by the Visitation Book, Anno 1636, that the Glebe amounted to 22 l. 13 s. 4 d. But in the Year 1693, and the Years thereabouts, the Incumbent received but 16 l. 12 s. 4 d.

FROM Stock's-market East up into Lombard-street is Bearbinder-lane; then down lower in the Street called Wallbrook, is

The PARISH of
St. STEPHEN WALLBROOK.

The Parish of
St. Stephen
Wallbrook.

ST. Stephen, to whom this Church is dedicated, was one of the seven Deacons ordained by the twelve Apostles, to take Care of the Publick Stock, and justly to distribute the same among the Widows and Poor, leaving the Exercise of Prayer, and the Ministry of the Word, to the Apostles.

HE was the first of the seven that were chosen, and was a Man that was full of Faith, and of the HOLY GHOST; did great Wonders and Miracles among the People, and with great Wisdom confuted the erroneous Opinions among the Jews concerning the Messias; whose Wisdom and Spirit they being not able to resist, they suborned false Witnesses, who deposed, That he spake Blasphemy against the Temple and the Law, saying, That JESUS of Nazareth should destroy that Place, and change the Customs that Moses delivered them; and being brought before the Council to answer the Accusation, the High Priest gave him Leave to answer for himself, which he did with great Boldness and Courage, upbraided them as stiff-necked and uncircumcised in Heart and Ears, always resisting the HOLY GHOST, as their Fathers did; and how their Fathers persecuted and slew the Prophets, which shewed before of the Coming of the Just One, of whom they have now been the Betrayers and Murderers. Hereat the Jews being cut to the Heart, gnashed on him with their Teeth, and cast him out of the City, and stoned him, calling upon GOD, and saying, Lord Jesus receive my Spirit; and then Kneeling down, cried with a loud Voice, Lord, lay not this Sin to their Charge; and having so said he fell asleep (and died) and was buried by devout Men, making great Lamentation over him. Acts vi. 7, 8.

IN Commemoration of this Proto-martyr, St. Stephen, there were two Festivals instituted, the one of his Passion, the other of the Invention of his Body. That of his Passion is celebrated on the 26th Day of December, whereas he suffered on the third of August; and that of his Invention on the third of August, whereas the Invention of his Body was on the 26th of December. These Festivals, at first, were celebrated on their proper Days, but afterwards were changed, the one into the Place of the other, in Reverence to the Nativity of our Saviour CHRIST; and for that his Passion was more highly esteemed than his Invention. Therefore it was thought fit that his Passion should be more solemnly celebrated next to CHRIST's Nativity, and his Invention changed to be celebrated on the 3d of August.

WHAT is farther written of this first Martyr, St. Stephen, may be seen in Dr. Cave's Lives of the Fathers.

Robert Chickly, Mayor in the Year 1428, the sixth of Henry VI, gave to this Parish of St. Stephen, one Plat of Ground, containing 208 Feet and a half in Length, and sixty six Feet in Breadth, thereupon to build their new Church, and for their Church-yard. And in the seventh of Henry VI, the said Robert (one of the Founders) laid the first Stone for himself, the second for William Stondon, Mayor, with whose Goods the Ground that the Church standeth on, and the Houling, with the Ground of the Church-yard, was bought by the said Chickly for two hundred Marks from the Grocers, which had been let before for twenty six Marks the Year. Robert Whittingham, Draper, laid the third Stone; Henry Barton then Mayor, &c.

THE said Chickly gave 100 l. more to the said Work, and bore the Charges of all the Timber Work on the Procession Way, and laid the Lead upon it of his own Cost. He also gave all the Timber for the Roofing of the two Side Isles, and paid for the Carriage thereof.

THIS Church was finished in the Year 1439. The Breadth thereof was 67 Feet, and Length 125 Feet; the Church-yard 90 Feet in Length, and 37 in Breadth, and more. Robert Whittingham, (made Knight of the Bath) in the Year 1432, purchased the Patronage of this Church from John Duke of Bedford, Uncle to Henry VI, and Edward IV, in the second of his Reign, and gave it to Richard Lee, then Mayor.

THIS old Church of St. Stephen Wallbrook was repaired and beautified in the Years 1622, 1623, 1626, and 1632: The whole Cost amounting to 510 l. 15 s. 6 d.

IN this Church was a certain Anniversary founded to be celebrated; and a Messuage, in the Occupation of one Thomas Waghams, given for the Maintaining thereof. Which coming into King Edward the VIth's Hands, it was granted in the third of his Reign to John How and John Broxholm.

AT this Church of St. Stephen Wallbrook Dr. Feckenham, Dean of St. Paul's, and other Popish Priests of the best Eloquence, in the Beginning of Queen Mary's Reign, frequently preached up here their Papal Doctrines to the Citizens: And of this Church a remarkable Man was now Incumbent, namely, Dr. Pendleton the Turncoat, who forsook the Religion when Queen Mary came to the Crown, which he earnestly professed in King Edward's Days, notwithstanding his Protestations to the contrary.

AT a House within this Parish Dr. Story, and other Commissioners of Queen Mary, for Matters of Religion, came one Day to Dinner, and sent for Citizens charged with Heresy and Treason.

THIS Church, being burnt in the Fire of LONDON, was rebuilt Anno 1676, at the publick Charge, except the Wainscoting, which was done by the Grocers Company.

THIS Building is looked upon as the Master-piece of the great Sir Christopher Wren; it is a most exquisite Piece of Architecture, admired by every one who sees it, of any Taste, and talked of all over Europe; nay, one Author says, very justly, perhaps Italy itself can produce no modern Building that can vie with this in Taste and Proportion. There is not a Beauty, which the Plan would admit of, that is not to be found here in its greatest Perfection; and Foreigners call our Judgment in Question, for understanding its Graces no better, and allowing it no higher a Degree of Fame.

THE Building is in this Manner: The Walls and Tower are Stone; Roof within, over the Middle Isle, is arched; in the Center of which is a Cua Cupola, and a Lanthorn in the Middle of that ; and over the rest of the Church the Roof is flat, all covered with Lead, and supported by Columns and Pilasters of the Corinthian Order ; here are three Isles, and a cross Isle paved with Stone ; that of the Church and Chancel lying level, to which you ascend 15 Steps from the Street.

THE Roof and Cupola are adorned with an Entablature and Arches ; also with Enrichments of Shields, Palm-Branches and Roses, of Fret-work, and Pannels of Crocket-work. The Walls are wainscotted 10 Feet high, having Enrichments of the Grocers Arms within an handsome Compartment of Palm-Branches, &c. at the North End of the cross Isle is a Door-case, finely enriched with various Kinds of Fruit and Leaves ; at the North East Angle is another, and at the West End a third, very magnificent and ornamental, adorned with two Columns, Entablature and Pediment of the Corinthian Order, enriched with Cherubims, Festoons, and Arms of Chichly, all of right Wainscot, of which Species of Timber is also the Altar-piece, which is adorned with two Columns, their Architrave, Frise, and Cornice of the aforesaid Order ; on the Cornice are the King's Arms, with Supporters carved, gilt and painted between two Lamps, standing one at each End of the Pediment ; the Intercolumns are the Commandments done in Gold on Black (between the Portraits of Moses and Aaron) and under a Cherubim, and these under a Glory ; without the Columns, are the Creed and Lord's Prayer done in Black on Gold, each under the Figure of a Dove descending, above which are two Shields, with Compartment, and Festoons, with other Enrichments to the whole, of Fruit, Leaves, &c. gilt with Gold ; and on the Northerly Shield, are the Arms, Or a Chevron between three Cinquefoils Gules, intended, perhaps, for Chichley. The Communion-Table, which is a Semicircle finely finnier'd, and its Frame carved, is placed on a Foot-pace of Black and White Marble, inclosed with a circular Rail and Ballister, which are two Steps (of Black Marble) higher than the Chancel : The Pulpit is also finely carved and finnier'd, and has Enrichments of Cherubims, Cupids, Festoons, and a Lamp. Here is also a White Marble Font, whose Type is curiously carved.

THE Dimensions of this Church are, Length 75 Feet, Breadth 36, Altitude of the Middle Roof 34 Feet ; of the Cupola and Lanthorn 58 Feet ; and of the Tower to the Top of the Rail and Ballister, about 70 Feet.

Within this Grave entombed lies a Man of honest Fame,
A Grocer of this noble Town,
John Kirbie was his Name.
He lived forty Years and nine in Credit with the best :
He dy'd such Time as here you see,
his Soul in Heaven doth rest.

Obiit 17. die Julii An. Dom. 1578.

An antient Tomb in the North Isle of the Choir had this Inscription :

Hic jacet Thomas Pope, primus Thesaurarius
Augmentationum : Et domina Margareta uxor
ejus : Quæ quidem Margareta obiit 16 die Ja-

UNDER a Grave-stone in the middle Isle lies Mr. Jos. Williams, Gent. departed the 9th of January 1716. Aged 44.

G I F T S.

How it was with this Parish as to its charitable Endowments, may appear hence: That it hath an Income of about 100 l. per Annum, employed in repairing and adorning the Church, and towards the building an House for the Minister. And the Remainder goeth to the Relief of the Poor: But by whom, and to what Uses originally given, is unknown.

A Legacy was left in Trust to the Parish by one Dickenson, for charitable Uses, to the Value of 20 l. per Annum.

HERE also was a Parsonage-House before the great Fire; but burnt down and rebuilt by Jerome Rawstorne, upon a Lease of 40 Years, commencing 1674, Ground Rent 17 l. There is kept a Map, or Survey of the Dimensions of the Ground.

TO this Parish, after the Fire of LONDON, was united that of St. Bennet Sherehog, the old Church belonging to which having stood in Cheap Ward, is there taken Notice of.

THIS Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Grocers Company. The Value of the united Parishes, by Act of Parliament, is 100 l. per An. St. Stephen's is rated in the King's Books at 17 l. 13 s. 4 d. and St. Bennet's at 8 l. 13 s. 4 d.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Joseph Watson, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Biscoe.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays, at Eleven o'Clock; no Organ, two Bells. Here is a Sermon on every Good-Friday, the Gift of Mr. Dickenson.

THE Vestry is Select.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

NUMBER of Houses 76.

A Boy named Robert Fitz-Paine, 20 Hen. III. fell from an Horse in Wallbrook-street by a Fright which Rob. de Donstable put the Horse into, on which the said Robert rode; and within a Month after he died. For this the said Robert appeared at the Tower before the King's Justices that then sat there upon the Pleas of the Crown, and was not suspected to intend the Death of the other. Yet because he affrighted the Horse foolishly and ignorantly, it was judged an Accident; but he was committed to Jail for his Folly.

LOWER down from this Parish-Church are divers Houses, namely one, wherein Sir Richard Baker, a Knight of Kent, was lodged, and one wherein dwelled Mr. Thomas Gore, a Merchant, famous for Hospitality.

ON the West Side of this Wallbrook-street; over-against the Stocks-market, is a Part of the High Street, called the Poultry, on the South West Side, till over against St. Mildred's Church, and the Scaldingwike, is of this Ward.

THEN down again Wallbrook-street, some small Distance, is Bucklersbury, a Street so called from Buckle, that some Time was Owner thereof; Part of which Street on both Sides, three or four Houses, to the Course of the Brook, is of this Ward; and so down Wallbrook-street to the South Corner: From whence West, down Budge-row, a small Distance to an Alley, and thro' that Alley South, by the West End thereof, St. John's Church upon Wallbrook stood; by the South Side and East End of the same again to Wallbrook Corner, the Parish of St. John Upon Wallbrook, or St. John Baptist.

THIS Parish is united, since the Fire, to St. Antholin's, in Cordwainers-street Ward, where more will be said of it; but as to the Church, it was called St. John Upon Wallbrook, because the West End thereof was on the very Bank of Wallbrook, by Horshoe-bridge, a Bridge over the Brook in Horse-bridge-lane.

THIS Church was new built in the Year 1621, but had no Monuments; of any Account, in it, except these, for.

N<sup>o</sup> 33 VOL. I.

William Combarton, Skinner, who gave Lands to that Church, and was bury'd 1410.

John Stone, Taylor, one of the Sheriffs 1466, was likewise buried there.

THIS Church, burnt down by the great Fire, was not rebuilt, but remains now a Burying-place.

No Parsonage-House, or Sight of a Parsonage-House; nor any Garden belonging to the Parson; as it was given in at the Parochial Visitation, 1693; yet in the Visitation, 1636, there was a Parsonage-House.

AND now we proceed to the modern State of this Ward:

THE Streets and Lanes in this Ward are Wallbrook, as far as Bucklersbury on both Sides. The modern State of Wallbrook Ward.

Bucklersbury, the last End on both Sides, about eighty Feet.

Budge-row, the last End on both Sides, about seventy Feet.

Dowgate, the North End on the West Side, as far as Cloak-lane; and on the East Side as far as against Tallowchandlers-Hall.

Cannon-street, on both Sides; as far as Green-lettice-lane, on the South Side, and to Abchurch-lane on the North Side.

St. Swithen's-lane, on both Sides the Way, almost as far as Bearbinder-lane.

Bearbinder-lane, the Whole; except about thirty-five Feet at the last End.

Lombard-street, about 175 Feet on both Sides of the West End next Stocks-market, which this Ward also takes in.

Sherborn-lane, the South End on both Sides, for about 120 Feet.

Busb-lane, from Cannon-street Southwards on both Sides as far as Cross-lane; which hath the North Side in this Ward.

Suffolk-street, the West Side, at the North End, for about 85 Feet downwards.

Green-lettice-lane, only the West Side.

Abchurch-lane, the West Side, as far as the Church.

IN all these Streets and Lanes are several Courts and Places of Name which shall be taken Notice of in the respective Places; of which in Order.

Wallbrook. This Street of Wallbrook is well built, and inhabited by Merchants, and by Tradesmen, especially Furriers, for which it is of Note. On the East Side is Bond-court, which is large and open, the Turning at the upper End having good Houses, and Free-stone Pavement; and that Entrance into this Court is broad enough for a Coach; or a Cart. On the West Side is Bell-Inn, which is but indifferent.

St. Stephen's Wallbrook Church, seated on the East Side, and on the South Side of Stocks-market.

UP further North is Stocks-market: As to the present State of which, it is converted to a quite contrary Use: For, instead of Flesh and Fish sold there before the Fire, are now sold Fruits, Roots, and Herbs; for which it is very considerable; and much resorted to, being of Note for having the choicest in their Kind of all Sorts.

THIS Market is a large Tract of Ground, taking up not only all that which was the antient Flesh and Fish-markets, but also the Ground on which Woolchurch stood, and contains from North to South in Length, thro' the Midst, about 230 Feet; and in Breadth, from East to West in the Midst, about 108 Feet, beside the waste Ground on the East and West Sides, which serve as a Street for Passage of People. On the East Side were planted Rows of Trees; very pleasant to the Inhabitants, this Side being much better than the West.

West. About the Middle of this Row is an Entrance into a Court, in which is a good large House, within the Bounds of this Market-Place; and more towards the North Side, are twenty two Standing Stalls, covered over, for Shelter of Fruit there-fold, as well on Market-Days as at other Times. The rest of the Market-Place is taken up by Gardeners and others, for the Sale of Fruits, Roots, Herbs, and Flowers: But at the South West Corner there are two Ranges of Stalls for a few Butchers, under a Shelter, with Racks, Blocks, Scales, &c.

*The Statue of
K. Charles II.*
At the North End of this Market-place, by a Water-Conduit-Pipe, is erected the Statue of King Charles II, which was done at the sole Charge of Sir Robert Viner, Alderman, Knight and Baronet; of this clumsy Piece of Sculpture, we beg Leave to give the following Account, from an ingenious Author we have before quoted. "It is impossible to quit this Place, saith he, without taking Notice of the Equestrian Statue raised here in Honour of Charles II. A Thing in itself so exceedingly ridiculous and absurd, that 'tis not in one's Power to look upon it without reflecting on the Tastes of those who set it up: But, when we enquire into the History of it, the Farce improves upon our Hands, and, what was before contemptible, grows entertaining. This Statue was originally made for John Sobieski, King of Poland, but, by some Accident, was left upon the Workman's Hands: About the same Time the City was Loyal enough to pay their Devoirs to King Charles, immediately upon his Restoration; and, finding this Statue ready made to their Hands, resolved to do it the cheapest Way, and convert the Polander into a Briton; and the Turk underneath his Horse, into Oliver Cromwell, to make their Compliment compleat. In this very Manner it appears at present, and the Turbant upon the last mentioned Figure is yet an undeniable Proof of the Truth of the Story.

OUT of Stocks-Market is an Entrance into Lombard-street, which is but narrow, until it is past Pope's-head-alley, and then it widens and makes a good handsome Street, being also graced with lofty and good Buildings; for the generality taken up by Goldsmiths: But there is but little of the Street in this Ward, except towards this End, the rest being in Langborn Ward, is there treated of.

Bearbinder-lane, a Place of no great Account as to Trade; it comes out of Stocks-Market, and falls into St. Swithen's-lane; Part is in Langborn Ward.

St. Swithen's-lane, well inhabited by Merchants and others. This Lane comes out of Lombard-street by St. Mary Woolnoth Church, and passing by Dove-court and Bearbinder-lane, (both which have some small Part in this Ward, but the greatest in Langborn Ward, have been there mentioned) and falls into Cannon-street by St. Swithen's Church. In this Lane are the following Places;

Brite's-alley, formerly called Horsehoe-alley, is both narrow and small, having but one House with a Passage into Sherborn-lane.

New-court, a very handsome large Place, with an open Passage into it for Coach or Cart: Here are very good Buildings, with Inhabitants answerable; and at the upper End is a very good large House, inclosed from the rest by a handsome Pale.

Salters-hall, a large Building seated in a good Court, with a Free-stone Pavement and well built Houses: Adjoining to the said Hall, is a large Presbyterian Meeting-house, handsomely fitted within, as to the Pews, &c. Out of this Court is a Passage into the Back-side of St. Swithen's Church, which falls into Cannon-street. In this Passage is Whistler's-court, which is pretty large, well built and inhabited, having a Free-stone Pavement.

MORE towards Cannon-street, is Oxford-court, which is pretty large and open, especially the upper End, where are good Houses. And in this Place antiently stood the House of the Prior of Tortington in Suffex, which afterwards fell to the Earls of Oxford, and, in process of Time, from one to another, at length it was converted into Buildings, as now it is, and yet retains the Name of Oxford-court.

Sherborn-lane begins at the Corner of Swithen's-lane, by the Sign of the Cock against the back Gate of the Post-Office, and with a turning Passage by St. Mary Abchurch, falls into Cannon-street.

Cannon-street begins in the West by the Corner of Dowgate-hill on the South, and Wallbrook on the North, and runs Eastwards into Great Eastcheap, a Street well built, and inhabited by good Tradesmen, and is a great Thoroughfare; but the Part in this Ward goeth but to Green Lattice-lane, which hath the West Side in this Ward, the East being in Candlewick Ward, where it is spoken of. In this Street is St. Swithen's Church, seated on the West Side, and at the South East Corner of St. Swithen's-lane. It is in the Diocese of LONDON; the Prior of Tortington was Patron. It was destroyed in the Fire of LONDON, is rebuilt in a very handsome Manner of Free-stone, with a spired Steeple leaded, and hath a very fine Dial hanging over into the Street; and to this Church is united the Parish of St. Mary Bothaw; the Church whereof was burnt down and not rebuilt.

OVER against St. Swithen's Church is the famous old Stone called London Stone.

THIS Stone, before the Fire of LONDON, was much worn away; and, as it were, but a Stump remaining: But it is now, for the Preservation of it, cased over with a new Stone, handsomely wrought, cut hollow underneath, so as the old Stone may be seen, the new one being over it, to shelter and defend the old one.

ON the South Side of this Street, and almost against St. Swithen's Church, is Turn-wheel-lane, which runs up to Dowgate-hill, being a Place well inhabited.

THE Parish-Church of St. Mary Bothaw stood in these Parts, burnt in the great Fire, not rebuilt, but the Parish united to St. Swithen's, as was said before.

Bucklersbury falls into Wallbrook, almost against St. Stephen's Wallbrook Church. It is a Place well built and inhabited: But in this Ward there is no great Part, the most being in Cordwainers Ward, where it will be taken Notice of.

NEAR this Street more Southward, stood the Church of St. John Baptist, which being destroyed by the Fire, is now enclosed for a Church-yard, and the Parish united to St. Antholin's.

IN this Ward these following Lanes have some small Part, the greatest Part lying in other Wards, namely, Budge-row, and Cloak-lane, in Vintry Ward; Busb-lane, and Suffolk-street, in Downgate Ward; and Green Lettice-lane, in Langborn Ward.

THERE are to Watch at the several Places, or Stands, in this Ward, every Night, one Constable, a Beadle, and twenty Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward, are to serve in the several Courts holden at Guildhall, in the Month of October.

THIS Ward hath an Alderman, and his Deputy; eight Common-Council-Men; nine Constables; six Scavengers; thirteen Wardmote Inquest Men, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen in LONDON at 33 l. 5 s.

THE Alderman of this Ward is Sir John Tash.

Downgate Ward.

DOWNGATE, or Downgate, Ward, begins at the South End of Wallbrook Ward, over-against where the East End of St. John's Church upon Wallbrook stood, and descends on both Sides to where Downgate stood on the Thames, and is so called, from that Down-going, or descending, which there is to it; and from this Downgate the Ward took its Name. This Ward turneth into Thames-street Westward, about ten Houses on a Side, to the Course of Wallbrook; but East in Thames-street (on both Sides) to Ebgate-lane, or Old-Swan; and over-against Ebgate, the Land Side hath many Lanes turning up, as shall be shewed.

BUT first to begin with the High Street, called Downgate: At the upper End thereof was a handsome Conduit of Thames Water, castellated, and made in the Year 1568, at the Charge of the Citizens, and was called, The Conduit upon Downgate.

ON the West Side of this Street is the Tallow-Chandlers-hall low-Chandlers Hall, a large handsome Building, with Piazza's adorned with Columns and Arches of the Tuscan Order.

SOMEWHAT lower stands the Skimmers-hall Skinners Hall, a noble Structure built with fine Brick, and richly finished, the Hall with right Wainscot, and the great Parlour with odoriferous Cedar. It is said to have cost 18000 l. Building. This Hall was called Copped Hall by Downgate, in the Parish of St. John upon Wallbrook. In the 19th Year of Edward II, Ralph Cobham possessed it, with five Shops, &c.

THIS Company of Skinners in LONDON, was incorporated by Edward III, in the first of his Reign: They had two Brotherhoods of Corpus Christi, viz. one at St. Mary Spittle, the other at St. Mary Bethlem, without Bishopsgate. Richard II, in the 18th of his Reign, granted them to make their two Brotherhoods one, by the Name of the Fraternity of Corpus Christi of Skinners. Divers Royal Persons were named to be Founders and Brethren of this Fraternity; to wit, six Kings, nine Dukes, two Earls, and one Lord. Kings, Edward III, Richard II, Henry IV, Henry V, Henry VI, and Edward IV.

THIS Fraternity had also once every Year, on Corpus Christi Day, after Noon, a Procession, which passed through the principal Streets of the City; wherein was borne more than one hundred lighted Torches of Wax (costly garnished) and above two hundred Clerks and Priests, in Surplices and Copes, singing. After which was the Sheriffs Servants, the Clerks of the Compters, Chaplains for the Sheriffs, the Mayor's Serjeants, the Counsel of the City, the Mayor and Aldermen in Scarlet, and then the Skinners in their best Liveries.

THEN lower down, there was a College of Priests called Jesus Commons, a House well furnished with Brass, Pewter, Napery, Plate, &c. besides a large Library well stored with Books. All which, of old Time, were given to a Number of Priests that should keep Commons there; and as one left this Place (by Death, or otherwise) another should be admitted into his room. But this Order being discontinued, the said House was dissolved and turned to Tenements.

DOWN lower is Elbow-lane, and at the Corner thereof was one great Stone House, called Old Hall: It is now taken down, and divers Houses of Timber placed there. This was some Time pertaining to William de pont le Arch, and by him given to the Priory of St. Mary Overy in Southwark, in the Reign of Henry I. In this Elbow-lane is the Innholders-hall Innholders Hall, and other good Houses: This Lane runneth West, and turneth South into Thames-street; and therefore (from that Bending) is called Elbow-lane. On the East Side of this Downgate-street was the great old House called the Erbar, near to the Church of St. Mary Bothaw; Jefferey Scroope held it by the Gift of Edward III, in the fourteenth of his Reign. It belonged since to John Nevell, Lord of Raby, then to Richard Nevell, Earl of Warwick; Nevell, Earl of Salisbury, was lodged there, 1457. Then it came to George Duke of Clarence, and his Heirs Males, by the Gift of Edward IV, in the fourteenth of his Reign.

BUT to give a fuller (and that an authentic) Account of this antient Royal Messuage. The highest that Stow could go was, that Edward III, gave it to one of the honourable Family of the Scroopes. The last Possessor of that Name was William le Scroope, Knight, who lived in the Reign of Henry IV: He gave it for Term of Life to his Brother Ralph Earl of Westmoreland, who married Joan, Daughter of the Duke of Lancaster, who was his second Wife; from whom descended Richard Earl of Warwick, who possessed that House; and being slain at Barnet Field, after his Death, this was given to George Duke of Clarence, who married Isabel, Daughter of the said Earl of Warwick, by Parliament, and to his Heirs, so long as there was Issue Male of the Marquis Montacute's Body living. And if it chanced the said Issue Male to die, during the Life of the said Duke, then the said Duke to remain seized for Term of Life, saving the Right to all others, then then the Marquis and his Issue. Ralph Nevell Earl of Westmoreland, died seized thereof the 4th of Henry VI; Joan his Wife the 19th; Richard Earl of Sarum (Son to the said Earl, of Dame Joan) the 38th Year of the same King; and Richard Earl of Warwick (Son of the said Richard Earl of Sarum) the 10th of Edward IV; and George Duke of Clarence the 18th of the same King. After his Death, Edward his Son was seized of it. After, George Duke of Bedford (Son of John Nevell, Marquis Montacute, Son of Richard Earl of Sarum aforesaid) died without Issue Male, 1 Edward V, the Lands remaining in the Hands of Edward, Son to the Duke of Clarence, till 15 Henry VII, at which Time he was attainted. And so the Lands came to the Crown, and there remained till 3 Henry VIII, at which Time he gave it to John Earl of Oxford, and the Heirs Male of his Body. And Anno 4to, the King gave the Reversion to Sir Thomas Bulleyn, Knight, and the Heirs Male of his Body. Anno 5to. he restored, by his Letters Patents, Margaret, Daughter and Heir to George Duke of Clarence, and to all the Lands of Richard Earl of Sarum, who by Colour of Restitution entered, and was attainted 31 Henry VIII; so the Lands came back to the Crown, and was given the 32d of the same King, to Sir Philip Hoby, who the 36th sold it to one Doulphin a Draper, who Anno 1 Maria, sold it to the Company of Drapers.

BUT notwithstanding this Account, by some Lawyers and Historians in those Days, it appears by the Rolls Anno 6 Henry IV, that there was a Surrender of this Messuage of the Erbar from Ralph Earl of Westmoreland to the King, for the Use of John Darrel, and Walter de Arkham. And Richard III, possess'd this Erbar, called then, The King's Palace. And one Ralph Dewel, one of the Yeomen of the Crown, was Keeper of this Place to the said King Richard, who made divers Reparations, as well upon the said Place, as other Houses thereunto belonging; particularly a Brewhouse called the Chequer, belonging to the same, as appeareth by a Ledger-Book of that King's, wherein the Accompts of the said Ralph are said to be examined by John Herwyk one of the King's Auditors: And that Orders were given to Lethington, Bailiff of the Lordship of Clavering in Essex, to content him, 14l. 18s. 3d. ob. remaining behind in Arrears due to him for the said Reparations.

BUT it was built by Sir Thomas Pullison, Mayor, and was afterwards inhabited by Sir Fr. Drake, that famous Warrior and Navigator.

NEXT to this great House, is a Lane turning to Busb-lane (of old Time called Carter-lane from Carts and Carmen having Stables there) and now called Chequer-lane, or Chequer-alley, from an Inn called the Chequer.

IN Thames-street, on the Thames Side West from Dowgate, is Greenwich-lane, of old Time so called, and now Friar-lane, from such a Sign there set up. In this Lane is the Joiners Hall, which is remarkable for a curious and magnificent Screen at the Entrance into it, having Demy Savages and other Enrichments well carved in right Wainscot, and the great Parlour is wainscotted with Cedar.

THEN is Grantham-lane, so called from John Grantham, some Time Mayor and Owner thereof, whose House was very large and strong, built of Stone. Ralph Dodmer, first a Brewer, then a Mercer, Mayor 1529, dwelt there, and kept his Mayoralty in that House: It is now a Brewhouse, as it was before.

THEN was Dowgate, which is spoken of in another Place. East from this Place is Cosin-lane, named from one William Cosin that dwelt there, in the 4th of Richard II, as divers his Predecessors, Father, Grandfather, &c. had done before him. William Cosin dwelling there, was one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1306, the 34th of Edward I. That House stood at the South End of the Lane, having an old and artificial Conveyance of Thames Water into it, and was a Dyehouse, called Lombard's Messuage. Adjoining to that House was once erected an Engine to convey Thames Water to Dowgate Conduit aforesaid.

NEXT to this Lane on the East, is the Steel- The Steelyard. houfe, or Steelyard (as they term it) a Place for Merchants of Almain, that used to bring hither, as well Wheat, Rye, and other Grain, as Cables, Ropes, Masts, Pitch, Tar, Flax, Hemp, Linen Cloth, Wainscots, Wax, Steel, and other profitable Merchandizes. Unto these Merchants, in the Year 1259, Henry III. in the 44th of his Reign, at the Request of his Brother, Richard Earl of Cornwall, King of Almain, granted that all and singular the Merchants, having a House in the City of LONDON, commonly called Gilda Aula Teutonicorum, should be maintained and upholden through the whole Realm, by all such Freedom, and free Usages or Liberties, as by the King and in his noble Progenitors Time, they had, and enjoyed, &c. This Charter granted to the Teutonics, the King confirmed by this Letter directed to the Citizens of LONDON, in these Words:

Henricus Dei Gratia, &c.

" Henry, by the Grace of God, King of " England, Lord of Ireland, Duke of Aquitain,
" &c. To the Citizens of LONDON, to " whom these Presents shall come, greeting:
" Know ye that at the Instance of the most Sc-
" rene Prince of the Roman Empire, our Brother,
" we have granted to these Merchants of Almain,
" who have a House in our City of LONDON,
" which is called commonly Gyhall Teutonicorum,
" that we will maintain them all and every one,
" and preserve them through our whole Kingdom,
" in all their Liberties and free Customs, which " they have used in our Times, and in the Times
" of our Progenitors, and will not withdraw such " Liberties and free Customs from them, nor suf" fer them to be at all withdrawn from, &c.
" Witness myself at Westminster the 15th of June,
" in the 44th Year of our Reign.

Edward I. renewed and confirmed that Charter of Liberties granted by his Father. And in the 10th Year of the same Edward, Henry Wales being Mayor, a great Controversy did arise between the said Mayor and the Merchants of the Haunce of Almaine, about the Reparations of Bishopsgate, then likely to fall; for that the said Merchants enjoyed divers Privileges, in respect of maintaining the said Gate, which they now denied to repair. For the appeasing of which Controversy, the King sent his Writ to the Treasurer, and Barons of his Exchequer, commanding that they should make Inquisition thereof: Before whom, the Merchants being called, when they were not able to discharge themselves, since they enjoyed the Liberties to them granted for the same; a Precept was sent to the Mayor and Sheriffs, to restrain the said Merchants to make the Reparations, namely, Gerard Marbod, Alderman of the Haunce, Ralph de Cussarde, a Citizen of Colen, Ludero de Denovar, a Burgess of Trivon, John of Aras, a Burgess of Trivon, John de Dele, a Burgess of Munster, then remaining in the said City of LONDON, for themselves and all other Merchants of the Haunce: And so they granted 210 Marks Sterling to the Mayor and Citizens, and undertook that they and their Successors should from Time to Time repair the said Gate, Gate, and bear the third Part of the Charges in Money, and Men to defend it in Case of Need.

AND for this Agreement, the said Mayor and Citizens granted to the said Merchants their Liberties, which they long enjoyed; as namely, amongst the other Things, that they might lay up their Grain, which they brought into this Realm, in Inns, and sell it in their Garners, within the Space of 40 Days after they had laid it up; except by the Mayor and Citizens they were expressly forbidden; because of Dearth, or other reasonable Occasions. Also they might have their Alderman, as they had been accustomed, provided always he were of the City, and presented to the Mayor and Aldermen of the City, as often as any should be chosen, and should take the Oath before them to maintain Justice in their Courts, and to behave themselves in their Office according to Law, and as it stood with the Customs of the City.

THIS whole Matter between the City and the Merchants of the Haunce is thus related in an authentic Book in the Chamber of LONDON, which is thus translated from the Latin.

An Agreement between the Citizens of LONDON and the Teutons, Anno 10. Edw. Son of King Henry. Henry le Galeis, Mayor of LONDON. Ann. 1282.

THEN by Reason of the Decay of a certain Gate of the said City, which was called Bishopsgate, a Contention arose between the said Mayor and the Citizens of LONDON, on the one Part, and the Merchants of the Haunce of the Almains, then abiding in the said City; on the other, upon the Reparation of the said Gate, which threatned Ruin. To the Building and Repair of which, the said Merchants and others of the before-said Haunce of the Parts of Almain resorting to the same City, were obliged, for certain Liberties which the said Merchants have in the said City, and which they have long used, upon Account of such Building and Repairing, as the same Mayor and Citizens asserted, &c. The said Merchants denied it.

IN the mean Time, the Contention depending, the King, at the Suggestion of the said Mayor and Citizens, wrote to the Treasurer and Barons of his Exchequer, that if they should find the said Merchants were bound to the Repair of the said Gate, they should distrain upon them. At length the Parties, coming before the said Treasurer and Barons, when nothing was propounded, on their Parts, which might excuse them from the Reparation; especially when it appeared concerning the Liberty which they had in the said City; and for this Cause, it was commanded by the same Treasurer and Barons, that the Mayor and Sheriffs should distrain them to this Repair: The afore-said Merchants, viz. Gerard Marbod, Alderman of the said Haunce, Ludolphus de Cussa of the City of Coln, Luderus de Linnenare, a Burgefs of Trevir, Bertram of Hamburgh, Godeschalc de Hudendale, Burgher of Trevir, John de Dole, Burgefs of Munster, then being in the same City; for themselves and all other Merchants, and their Fellows of the Haunce afore-said, whosoever and whensoever resorting thither for the future, for the Good of Peace, yielded and promised to the said Mayor and Citizens of LONDON, to the Repair of the said Gate for the present, 240 Marks Sterling to be paid: And that then their Successors, Merchants of the Haunce, for all Time hereafter, will repair it, as often as there shall be need: And in Defence of the said Gate, as often as there shall be need to keep it, shall bear the third Part of the Custody thereof, at their Cost, and Men above; and the Mayor and Citizens two Parts of the said Custody below: And in Consideration of this Peace, Fine and Concord, the Mayor and Citizens have granted them their Liberties, which they have hitherto reasonably used; to have to them and their Successors, the Merchants of the Haunce for ever.

AND moreover, for the afore-said Reparation and Custody, that they be quit for ever of Murrage, i. e. the Charge of repairing the City Walls as much as in them is; and that they may house and sell their Corn, which shall be brought in by them to be sold, in their Houses and Granaries for 40 Days, for the Time of their afore-said Housing; unless the said Housing be expressly forbidden by the Lord the King, or the Mayor and Citizens, by Reason of the Dearth of Corn, or some other necessary Matter.

THEY granted also to them, that they might have their Alderman, as they had in former Times: Yet so, that that Alderman be of the Freedom of the said City: And as often as he shall be chosen of the said Merchants, he be presented to the Mayor and Aldermen of the City, and take an Oath before them to do Right and Justice in all his Courts, and to behave himself in his Office, as he ought, and hath been accustomed, saving to the City its Right and Custom.

AND the said Merchants promised, that they and their Successors, as often as there should be need, would be distrained for Reparation and Custody of the said Gate, to be performed in the Form afore-said by the same Merchants and Citizens. All these Things the Parties afore-said yielded and promised faithfully to keep: And for the greater Security to be made upon these Things by the Parties, together with the Seals appendant to this Writing between themselves, have procured the Seal of the Illustrious Lord King of England to be hung to it, for perpetual Memory of the Matter afore-said, dated at LONDON in the Month of June the Year above-said.

THUS much for their Privileges: Whereby it appeareth, that they were great Merchants of Corn, brought out of the East Parts hither, in so much, that the Occupiers of Husbandry in this Land were forced to complain of them, for bringing in such Abundance, when the Corn of this Realm was at an easy Price. Whereupon it was ordained by Parliament, that no Person should bring into any Part of this Realm, by Way of Merchandise, Wheat, Rye, or Barley, growing out of the said Realm at any Time, when the Quarter of Wheat exceeded not the Price of 6s. 8d. Rye 4s. the Quarter, and Barley 3s. the Quarter, upon Forfeiture the one Half to the King, the other Half to the Seizers thereof. These Merchants of the Haunce had their Guildhall in Thames-street, in Place afore-said, by the said Cosin-lane. Their Hall was large, built of Stone, with three arched Gates towards the Street.

AFTERWARDS, to wit, in the 6th of Richard II. they hired one House next adjoining to their old Hall, which some Time belonged to Richard Lions, a famous Lapidary, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON in the 49th of Edward III. and in the 4th of Richard II. by the Rebels of Kent drawn out of that House, and beheaded in West Cheap. This also was a great House, with a large Wharf on the Thames: And the Way thereunto was called Windgoose, or Wildgoose-lane, which is now called Windgoose-alley, for that the same Alley is (for the most Part) built on by the Stilyard Merchants.

ABOUT the Time of King Henry IV. the English began to trade themselves into the East Parts: At which the Easterlings, or Merchants of the Dutch Haunce, were so offended, that they took several of their Ships and Goods, and offered them several other Injuries: Which occasioned sioned great Complaints and Differences between the said King Henry IV; and Conradus de Junigen, then Master-General of the Dutch Order in Prussia with the Haunce Town. And divers Embassies passed betwixt them on that Account. The Result of which in short was this, That the said King Henry IV, finding by the said Privileges granted to Foreigners, his own Subjects, (to the great Prejudice of the Realm) very much crippled in their Trade, did revoke such Parts of the Privileges of the aforesaid Dutch Company, as were inconsistent with the Carrying on of a Trade by the Natives of this Realm: And for the better Encouragement of his own Subjects, did in the fifth Year of his Reign, grant his first Charter to the Merchants trading into the East Land: Containing many great Privileges and Immunities, as by the said Charter may appear. Which had a good Effect for the bringing of the Trade much more into the Hands of the Natives of this Realm, than was before. King Edward IV, for their more ample Encouragement, did, in the second Year of his Reign, grant another large Charter to the Merchants of England, especially to those residing in the Netherlands; with several additional Immunities and Privileges, as by the Charter at large may appear.

IN the first and second of Philip and Mary, was granted to the Russia Company. Afterwards confirmed by Act of Parliament in the eighth Year of Queen Elizabeth.

UNTIL whose Time, though the Trade of this Nation was carried on much more by the Natives thereof, than had been formerly, yet had the Society of the Dutch Haunce at the Steel-yard much the Advantage of them, by Means of their well regulated Societies, and the Privileges they enjoyed. Infomuch that almost the whole Trade was driven by them to that Degree, that Queen Elizabeth herself, when she came to have a War, was forced to buy the Hemp, Pitch, Tar, Powder, and other Naval Provisions, which she wanted, of Foreigners; and that too, at their Rates. Nor were there any Stores of either in the Land, to supply her Occasions on a sudden, but, what at great Rates, she prevailed with them to fetch for her, even in Time of War: Her own Subjects being then but very little Traders.

To remedy which, she fell upon the Consideration how she might at Home have a well-grounded Dependence, to have those necessary Commodities by her, that so she might not want them, when she most needed them: And after great Deliberation, no better Expedient could be found by the said Queen and her Council, than by encouraging her own Subjects to be Merchants, which she did by erecting out of them several Societies of Merchants; as that of the East Land Company, and other Companies. By which Means, and by cancelling many of the Privileges of the forementioned Dutch Haunce Society, the Trade in general, by Degrees, came to be managed by the Natives of this Realm. And consequently, the Profit of all those Trades accrued to the English Nation; Trade in general, and English Shipping was increased; her own Customs vastly augmented, and what was at first the great End of all, obtained, viz. That she had constantly lying at Home, in the Hands of her own Subjects, all Sorts of naval Provisions and Stores, which she could make use of, as her Occasions required them, without any Dependence on her Neighbours for the same.

AND thus, by Means of the erecting the forementioned Societies, and preserving and encouraging that of the Merchants Adventurers, was the Trade at first gained from Foreigners to the Natives of the Realm, to its inestimable Advantage.

THE Abbot of St. Albans had a Messuage here, with a Key given to him, in the 34th of Henry VI.

THEN was another great House, which some Time pertained to John Raynwell, Stockfishmonger, Mayor, and it was by him given to the Mayor and Commonalty, to the End that the Profits thereof should be disposed in Deeds of Piety: Which House, in the 15th of Edward IV, was confirmed to the said Merchants in Manner following, viz.

“ IT is ordained by our Sovereign Lord and his “ Parliament, that the said Merchants of Al- “ main, being of the Company called the “ Guildhall Teutonicorum, (or the Flemish Geld)
“ that now be, or hereafter shall be, shall have,
“ hold, and enjoy to them and their Successors
“ for ever, the said Place, called the Steel-house, “ yielding to the Mayor and Commonalty an “ annual Rent of 70 l. 3 s. 4 d. &c. and other “ Rents to others.

THERE were also Merchants of Coln Trafficking here, who seem to be the Beginners of this Haunce Trade. These formerly paid divers Duties and Customs to the Kings of this Land, and particularly 2 s. from their Guildhall; which King Henry III, in the Year 1235, took off by his Charter; which was to this Tenor:

“ KNOW ye, That we have quit claimed for “ us and our Heirs, our beloved Citizens of “ Coln; and their Merchandizes, of those 2 s.
“ which they were wont to give from their “ Guildhall, LONDON, and of all Customs
“ and Demands which belong to us in LON-“ DON, and throughout our whole Land in “ England: And we have granted them to go “ safe and come safe through all our Land, and
“ to buy and sell both in the Town of LON-“ DON, and elsewhere; saving the Liberty of “ our City of LONDON. Wherefore we “ Will and firmly Command, &c.” Witness the Venerable Father, William, Bishop of Carlisle,
William de Ferrariis, Gilbert Bassett, Walter Beau-
champ, &c. by the Hand of the Venerable Father, the Bishop of Chichester, our Chancellor, at Daintry, the 8th of Nov. An. Reg. 20.

WHICH Charter King Edward his Son confirmed Ann. 1290, by his Charter dated at Langley, the 18th of his Reign, July 28, which ran in this Tenor:

Archiepif. Epif. Abbatib. Priorib. Comitib.
Baronib. &c. “ To all Archbishops, Bishops,
“ &c. We have looked upon a Charter that Lord
“ Henry, of good Memory, the King, our Father, “ granted to the Citizens of Coln, &c. We also “ quit Claim, &c. Witness Bishop of Bath and “ Wells, our Chancellor, Edmund, Earl of Corn- “ wall, our Cousin, Walter de Beauchamp, “ Steward of our Household, &c.

IN the Year 1551, the 5th of Edward VI through Complaint of the English Merchants, the Liberty of the Steel-yard Merchants was seized into the King's Hands, and so it resteth.

The PARISH of ALHALLOWS the MORE, Or the GREAT.

THEN is Church-lane, at the West End of The Parish of Alhallows Church, called Alhallows the More in Thames-street, for a Difference from Al-
hallows the Great

ballows the Lefs, in the same Street. It is also called Alballows ad fœnum in the Roperie, because Hay (that Fœnum signifies) was sold near thereunto, at Hay-wharf, and Ropes of old Time made or sold in the High Street.

THIS was a good Church, with a large Cloister on the South Side thereof, about their Church-yard.

IT had much Cost bestowed on the Steeple; was in many Parts of it repaired, and throughout richly beautified, at the proper Cost and Charge of the Parishioners, in the Years of our Lord God 1627 and 1629.

THERE was at this Time a Gallery built at the West End of the Church: and in the North Isle a new Door made, almost at the Upper End.

IN the Year 1632, all the Isles, to the Chancel, were raised a Foot and a half, and the Pews a Foot above that: A Work much Gracing the Church, but especially done for a ready and more easy Hearing. All the Charge arising to 600 l. and upwards.

IN the dreadful Fire in 1666, it was burnt down, and was afterwards re-erected, being finished Anno 1683, designed by the great Architect, Sir Chr. Wren (as most other Churches that had the same Fate).

IT is of the Tuscan Order, supported and adorned with Pillars and Membretto's of that Order, and strong built of Stone.

ITS Length is about 87 Feet, Breadth 60, Height 33, and here is a square Tower built of Stone 86 Feet high, but no Bells, except a small one to ring to Prayers, &c.

As to the Ornaments; here is a large Quadrangle on the Inside of the Roof, and other Pieces of Fret-work, but no Galleries.

IT is well wainscotted round with right Oak eight Feet high, and well pewed.

THE Chancel is separated from the Body of the Church with a fine Piece of carved Work, consisting of small open twisted Columns with their Arches; in the Middle whereof, are two open carved Pilasters (on both Sides of the Door-case) with their Architrave, Frieze, Cornice and large open Pediment of the Composite Order; at the Upper Part of which Door-case is carved a large Eagle displayed, and over that the King's Arms, with Supporters, &c. and these (on the Cornice of this Partition) between two smaller Pediments; in the Middle whereof are two Shields with fine Compartments, all very well carved in right Wainscot.

THE Pulpit is also finnier'd, carved, and enrich'd with Eagles, Cupids, Festoons, &c.

HERE is a spacious Altar-piece of Stone of the Corinthian Order, and the Tables of the Ten Commandments, as also the Lord's Prayer and Creed, are on a Marble adorned with Lamps, Cartouches, Cherubims, and the solid Figures or Images of Moses and Aaron. The Communion-Table is a large Marble Slab, supported by a Figure in Stone of the Angel Gabriel, and its Foot-pace is also of Marble.

MONUMENTS.

THE old Church had some Monuments, and in the Choir some Plates on Grave-Stones, namely, of William Litchfield, Doctor of Divinity, who deceased the Year 1447; he was a great Student, and compiled many Books, both Moral and Divine, in Prose and in Verse; namely one, entitled, The Complaint of God unto sinful Man. He made 3083 Sermons; as appeared by his own Hand-writing, and were found when he was dead.

ONE other Plate there is of John Brickles, Draper, who deceased in the Year 1451. He was a great Benefactor to that Church, and gave by his Testament certain Tenements, to the Relief of the Poor.

Joan Bruyn, Wife of Richard Bruyn, de Eslingham, in the County of Kent, Esq; was probably buried here. For by her Will, dated in June 1462, she bequeathed her Body to be deposited in the Church of Great Alballows, LONDON.

Nicholas Loven, and William Preston, founded Chuntries there.

THERE was a Monument in this Church for Queen Elizabeth, with these Words:

If Royal Virtues ever crown'd a Crown;

If ever Mildness shin'd in Majesty;

If ever Honour honour'd true Renown;

If ever Courage dwelt with Clemency;

If ever Princess put all Princes down

For Temperance, Prowess, Prudence, Equity;

This, this was she, that in despite of Death

Lives still admired, ador'd Elizabeth.

Many Daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all.

IN the Figure of a Book over her these Words:

They that trust in the Lord shall be as Mount Sion, which shall be removed.

ON the one Side of her these Words:

Spain's Rod, Rome's Ruin,

Netherland's Relief,

Heaven's Jem, Earth's Joy,

World's Wonder, Nature's Chief.

ON the other Side of her.

Britain's Blessing, England's Splendor, Religion's Nurse and Faith's Defender.

UNDER her these Words:

I have fought a good Fight, I have finished my Course, &c.

ON the North Side of the Church is a White
Marble Monument, in the Memory of *James
Jacobson of Hamburgh. Arms. A Tree, on a Chief, an Increscent between two Essoiles.*

UNDER a Grave-stone, in the North Ile lieth
Rachael Hollier, Daughter of Mr. Will. Hollier, departed Nov. 4, 1704; and also the said William died Aug. 28, 1716, aged 58.

ON the West Side of the Church-yard is a raised Tomb of Stone with this Inscription:

Here lieth interred the Body of Mr. Francis Gibbs, who departed this Life the 26th Day of July 1713, in the 50th Year of his Age, and also eight of his Children; four Sons and four Daughters near this Place.

THIS Parish, after the Fire of LONDON, was united to that of Alballows the Less. It is a Rectory in the Gift of the Archbishop of Canterbury, Value per Act of Parliament 200 l. per Ann.

The Rector is the Reverend Dr. Hufsey, and the Lecturer is the Reverend Dr. Berriman.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays, at 11 o'Clock; no Organ, two Bells. A Gift Sermon every first Thursday in the Month from September to April.

THE Vestry of Alballows the Great is Select, consisting of 32; but the Vestry of Alballows the Less is General.

The PARISH-OFFICERS for Alballows the Great are,	The WARD-OFFICERS are,

NUMBER of Houses 140.

AT the East End of this Church goeth down a Lane, called Hay-Wharf-lane.

THEN was there another Lane, some Time called Woolsey's-gate, long since out of Use. For the lower Part thereof, upon the Bank of the Thames was built by the Earl of Shrewsbury, and the other End built on and stopped up by the Chamberlain of LONDON. John Butler, Draper, one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1420, dwelt there: He appointed his House to be sold, and the Amount thereof to be given to the Poor.

The PARISH of ALHALLOWS the LESS.

The Parish of Alballows
the Less.

THEN was there the Parish-Church of Al-ballows, called the Less; and by some,
Alballows on the Cellers, for it stood on Vaults.

It was said to be built by Sir John Poultney, some Time Mayor. The Steeple and Choir of this Church stood on an arched Gate, being the Entry to a great House called Cold Harbour: The Choir falling down, was, in the Year 1594, by the Parishioners new built.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified, within and without, at the Cost and Charge of the Parishioners, in the Year of our Lord 1616.
In the Year 1613, two fair Dormers were made on the South Side of this Church to enlighten it, being before very dark: The one at the Cost of Sir Thomas Glover, Knt. the other at the Cost of Mr. Thomas Jones, Gent.

IN the Year 1633, a handsome large Gallery was built on the North Side of the Church, and before nine or ten Years two other Galleries, which both in their Costs and Ends, (but especially the last) much commended their religious Founders.

IN this Church was also the Monument of Queen Elizabeth.

CHARITIES.

THE Charities that have been given to this Parish of Alballows the Less, and the Donors were these:

Elizabeth Banister, An. 1562, gave a Legacy, per Ann. of 5 l. Whereof 15 s. for a Sermon to be preached on Christmas-day every Year; and to the Clerk 3 s. and to the Sexton 2 s. The other 4 l. for Relief of the Poor.

Anne Hope, Anno 1649, gave for the Relief of the Poor, yearly, 5 l.

Roger Daniel, An. 1625, gave by his Last
Will, yearly, 8 l. Five Pounds whereof was allotted for 12 Sermons, yearly; one Sermon to be preached every first Saturday in the Month; and the other 3 l. to the Poor of the Parish.

Samuel Goldsmith, for Bread for the Poor, for ever, to be paid by the Company of Dyers, 6 l.

No House for the Minister, or Glebe.

PART of Thames-street; Part of Lawrence Poultney-lane; Part of George-alley, Cold Harbour, Red-bull-alley, Cuckhold's-court, and Angel-alley.

NUMBER of Houses, sixty six.

NEAR to the Church of Alballows, is *Cold
Harbour*, concerning which, it is said, that in 13 Edw. II. Sir John Abel. Kt. demised or let unto Henry Stow, Draper, all that his capital Messuage, called the Cold Harbour, in the Parish of All Saints ad Fænum, and all the Appurtenances within the Gate, with the Key which Robert Hartford, Citizen, Son to William Hartford, had, and ought; and the aforesaid Robert paid for it the Rent of 33 s. per Year. This Robert Hartford being Owner thereof, as also of other Lands in Surrey, deceasing without Issue Male, left two Daughters his Coheirs, to wit, Idonea, married to Sir Ralph Bigot; and Maud, married to Sir
Stephen Cosenten, Knts. between whom the said House and Lands were parted. After which,
John Bigot, Son to the said Sir Ralph, and Sir
John Cosenten, did sell their Moieties of Cold Harbour.

Cold Harbour.

bour unto John Poultney, Son of Adam Poultney, 8 Edw. III. This Sir John Poultney dwelling in this House, and being four Times Mayor, the said House took the Name of Poultney's Inn. Notwithstanding, this Sir John Poultney, 21 Edw. III. by his Charter gave and confirmed to Humphrey de Bohune, Earl of Hereford and Essex, his whole Tenement, call'd Cold Harbour, with all the Tenements and Key adjoining, and Appurtenances some Time pertaining to Robert de Hertford, on the Way called Hay-wharf-lane, &c. for one Rose at Midsummer, to him and his Heirs, for all Services, if the same were demanded. This Sir John Poultney deceased 1349, and left Issue by Margaret his Wife, William Poultney, who died without Issue: And Margaret his Mother was married to Sir Nicholas Lovel, Knt. &c. Philip St. Clear gave two Messuages pertaining to this Cold Harbour, in the Ropery, towards the enlarging of the Church and Church-yard of All Saints, called the Lefs, in the 20th of Richard II.

IN the Year 1397, 21 Richard II. John Holland, Earl of Huntington, was lodged there, and Richard II. his Brother, dined with him: It was then counted a stately House. But in the next Year following, Edmond, Earl of Cambridge, had this House, and was there lodged in the Year 1398. Notwithstanding, the said House still retained the Name of Poultney's Inn, in the Reign of Henry VI. the 26th of his Reign, and not otherwise. It belonged since to H. Holland, Duke of Exeter, and he was lodged there in the Year 1472. In the Year 1485, Richard III. by his Letters Patents, granted and gave to John Writh, alias Garter, Principal King of Arms of Englishmen, and to the rest of the King's Heralds and Pursuivants of Arms, all that Messuage, with the Appurtenances, called Cold Erbar, in the Parish of All Saints the Lefs, in LONDON, and their Successors, for ever. Dated at Westminster the second of March, Anno regni sui primo, without Fine or Fee. How the Heralds parted with this is not known, but in the Reign of King Henry VIII. the Bishop of Durham's House, near Charing-Cross, being taken into the King's Hand, Cuthbert Tunstal, Bishop of Durham, was lodged there: Since which Time it belonged to the Earls of Shrewsbury, by Composition (as is supposed) from the said Cuthbert Tunstal. One Earl took it down, and in Place thereof built a great Number of small Tenements, now let out for great Rents.

THIS great House Bishop Tunstal enjoyed even to the last Year of King Edward VI. that is, to the Year 1553; when the Bishop being under some Cloud, and deposed from his Bishoprick, they took from him this House also; which the King granted to the Earl of Shrewsbury, with the Appurtenances to the said Messuage belonging, together with six Houses, or Tenements, in the Parish of St. Dunstan's in the East, and divers other Lands in the County of York, to him and his Heirs, to the yearly Value of 66*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.* The Test of the Patent was the 30th of June, the King dying but six or seven Days after. For the Duke of Northumberland, who now did all at Court, practised to gain as many of the Nobility as he could to his Purpose: And so this Gratification was made to the Earl of Shrewsbury, as were divers others of the Nobility, in other Respects, gratified.

WHAT Title the Earls of Shrewsbury had in former Times to Cold Harbour, is uncertain; but it appears by Letters dated from thence, that that House was inhabited by them, and their Servants, long before, namely, not far from the Beginning of King Henry VIII's Reign.

ALSO near to Alballows Church was the Dyers Hall, which being burnt in the Fire of LONDON, hath not been again erected.

AT a Common-Council holden December 11, Anno 3 Henry VIII. a Bill was exhibited at this Court by the Warden of the Dyers Company; whereby they claimed a Lane in the Ward of Downgate, called Bretaske-lane, to be their several Ground: For this a Search was made in the Books and Records of the City, by which it appeared, that the said Lane was the common Lane of the City; and so they were answered by the Court.

THEN were several large Brewhouses, and others, to Ebgate-lane, where the Ward ends in the East. On the North Side of Thames-street are divers Lanes also. The first is at the South End of Elbow-lane, before spoken of, West from Downgate, over against Greenwich-lane: Then many Houses for Merchants, and others along that Side.

THE next Lane East from Downgate, is called Busb-lane, which turns up to Candlewick-street, and is of Downgate Ward. Next is Suffolk-lane, likewise turning up to Candlewick-street. In this Lane is the Famous Grammar-School, founded in the Year 1561, by the Master, Wardens, and Assistants of the Merchant-Taylors, in the Parish of St. Laurence Poultney; Richard Hills, some Time Master of that Company, having before given 500*l.* towards the Purchase of an House, called The Manor of the Rose; some Time belonging to the Duke of Buckingham, wherein the said School is kept; of which see more Book I, Chap. XIII.

THEN is there another Lane, which turns up to St. Laurence's Hill, and to the South West Corner of St. Laurence's Church-yard. Then another called Poultney-lane, that goeth up (of this Ward) to the South East Corner of St. Laurence's Church-yard; and so down again to the West Corner of St. Martin's Orgar-lane.

CONCERNING some one of these Lanes stopt up, there was an Order made; "That whereas certain private Persons had wrongfully set up a Door at the End of Lane in Downgate Ward, and had converted it to their private Use; it was ordered May 28, Anno Elizabeth. 4to, that the City Chamberlain should take down the Door, and leave the Lane common like other Streets in the City.

AND this is all of Downgate Ward, the thirteenth in Number, lying East from the Water-Course of Wallbrook, and hath not any one House on the West Side of the said Brook.

THIS for the Antiquities and antient State of this Ward. Now for the Ward as it stands at present, since the great Fire.

THE chief Streets and Lanes in this Ward, in Whole, or in Part, are Thames-street, from St. Martin's-lane in the East, to Cloak-lane on the North Side of the Way, and to 160 Feet on the South Side of the Way beyond Downgate-hill.

ON the South Side of Thames-street, between it and the Thames, are these Lanes in this Ward, viz. Old Swan-lane, Cold Harbour, Alballows-lane, Campion-lane, Fryars-lane, Cofins's-lane, Downgate-dock, and the Still-yard; St. Laurence Poultney-hill, almost as far as St. Laurence Poultney's Church-yard; Duxford-lane, as far as St. Laurence's Church-yard; Suffolk-lane, as far as the Passage into Busb-lane; Busb-lane, almost the whole; Downgate-hill, as far as Tallowchandlers Hall Northwards; Checquer-yard, Elbow-lane, so far as the Church-yard, only the South East Side of the Way Cloak-lane, the South Side.

Thames-street is a great Thorough-fare for Carts to the several Wharfs, which render it a Place of a considerable Trade, and to be well inhabited. The Part of Thames-street in this Ward, begins Westward at Little Elbow-lane, and reaches Eastward to the Old Swan-lane, taking in the West Side thereof. The Places on the South Side next the Thames, beginning Westward, are as followeth:

Fryars-lane, or Alley, very mean, narrow and long, having a Passage into Dowgate-dock, where there is a Lay-stall for the City Soil. In this Part is Joiners Hall, a pretty good Building, mentioned before.

Brewers-lane, also very ordinary, and runs down to Dowgate-dock, which is likewise as ordinary, chiefly serving for a Passage for Carts to the Lay-stall.

Cosins's-lane, near the Still-yard, hath an open Passage for Carts to the Thames Side. In this Place the Still-yard Merchants had a large Hall.

Wild-goose, or Wind-goose-alley, or Court, said to be built by the Still-yard Merchants.

THE Still-yard, or Steel-yard, a large open Place, with a wide Passage for Carts to the River Side, where there is a Crane, and Stairs for landing Iron, of which here are always large Quantities kept. In this Yard are some good Houses for Merchants who trade in Iron, for which it is of Note, but was formerly of greater, from the Merchants of Almain. Here are likewise, at present, large Warehouses for depositing Goods belonging to the East India Company.

Great Alhallows Church, before described; on the West of which is Alhallows-lane, pretty well built and inhabited, hath a Passage to the Thames, where there is a Pair of Stairs to land or take Water at. And on the East Side of the Church, was a Lane called Hay Wharf-lane, which fell down to the Thames; and near this Lane was another, formerly called Woolsey's Gate; but now there are no such Places.

Watermens-Hall.

Cold Harbour, at the lower End of which is seated Watermens Hall, fronting the River Thames. More Eastwards is Red-Bull-alley, but indifferent, hath a Passage to the Thames, and in it is one of the King's Roasting Houses, to which all Persons who deal in Coffee, are obliged, by Act of Parliament, to bring their Berries to be roasted; here is likewise a Coal Wharf.

Angel-alley, also but ordinary, the lower Part next the Thames, taken up by a Dyer.

Whitecock-alley, but narrow, the lower End falling into Dyers-Hall Ground: And here stood Dyers-Hall, which being burnt down in the Fire of LONDON, was not rebuilt; but the Company disposed of the Ground, which is converted to other Uses.

Fishermens-Hall.

NEAR this also stands a House, which was the Fishermens Hall; but is now let in Tenements.

George-alley, but narrow and ordinary, having at the lower End a Dye-House.

Ebgate-lane, or Old-swan-alley, indifferently large, and good, leading down to the Old Swan Stairs; a Place much used by Watermen, as being a noted Landing-place, and very commodious, having so good a Pair of Stairs. It is a Place well built and inhabited. The East Side of this Lane is in Bridge Ward Within.

ON the North side of Thames-street are these Places, viz. St. Laurence Poultney's-lane, comes out of Cannon-street, and falls down into Thames-street; a Place well built and inhabited by Merchants and other Traders. Of this Lane, see more in Candlewick Ward.

Duxford-lane comes out of St. Laurence Poultney's Hill, and falls into Thames-street, a Place of no great Account.

Suffolk-lane also goes out of Thames-street; and with a turning Passage by Cross-lane, which is but ordinary, comes into Green-lettice-lane, which is in Candlewick Ward, and so into Cannon-street.

IN this Suffolk-lane is Merchant-Tailors School, a large good Building, and of great Note and Repute. It was burnt down by the Great Fire, and rebuilt by the Company.

Merchant-Tailors School.

Great Bush-lane comes out of Cannon-street and falls into Thames-street; but the Part in this Ward goeth no farther than Scotch-yard, which is a good large open Place, well inhabited. This Lane is narrow, but well inhabited by Merchants and Persons of Repute. Out of this Lane, on the said Side, is Chequer-yard, which hath a Passage into Dowgate-hill, and is a good open Place; in which is seated Plumbers Hall, a good handsome Building. Likewise on the South Side is a Passage into Hand-yard, which is but ordinary, and falls into Thames-street. And on the same Side is the Chequer Inn, which hath a Gate or Passage into Dowgate-hill, an Inn of no great Account, being chiefly for Livery-Stables and Horses.

Plumbers-Hall.

Little Bush-lane, of small Account, comes out of Great Bush-lane, and with a turning Passage falls into Thames-street.

Double-hand-court; very ordinary.

Dowgate-hill is such a great Descent towards Thames-street, that in great and sudden Rains the Water here comes down from other Streets with that Swiftneſs, that it oftentimes causeth a Flood in the lower Part. This Street is large and open, the Houses well built, and inhabited. On the West Side, near Budge-row, is the Church-yard of St. John Evangelist, where formerly the Church stood, not being rebuilt since the Fire. Adjoining to the Church-yard Wall, is Cloak-lane, which runs Westward to College-hill. Of this Lane only the South Side is in this Ward, the other Part being in Vintry Ward. On this Hill is seated Tallowchandlers-Hall, a very neat Building: It hath a square Court with a Free-stone Pavement in the Midst, and cloistered round, the Rooms over being sustained by Stone Pillars, very neat.

Tallowchandlers-Hall.

A little more Southward, is seated Skinners-Hall, a large and graceful Building, with a spacious Court paved with Free-stone; at the Entrance is a large Gate, with the Company's Arms over it. The Hall is spacious, with several other good Rooms for Reception; insomuch, that this Hall is often made use of either by the Mayor or one of the Sheriffs, during their Office, as fit to entertain so great a Resort of People.

Skinners Hall.

Elbow-lane, so called from its bending from Dowgate with an Elbow to Thames-street. Out of this Great Elbow-lane, over-against St. Michael's Royal Church, is Little Elbow-lane, which is that Part that makes the Bending, and falls into Thames-street; a Place of no great Account.

THERE are to watch at the several Stands in this Ward every Night, a Constable, a Beadle, and thirty-six Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward, are to serve in the several Courts in Guildhall in the Month of October.

IT hath an Alderman, his Deputy, eight Common-Council-Men, eight Constables, five Scavengers, fourteen Wardmote Inquest-Men, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen at 28 l.

THE Alderman of this Ward is Sir John Barnard.

BOOK III.

Containing a particular Inspection into the Twelve Wards on the West of WALLBROOK.

CHAP. I.

VINTRY WARD.

Vintry Ward.

OW we are to speak of the other Wards, 12 in Number, all lying on the West Side of the Course of Wallbrook: And first of the Vintry Ward, so called from the Vintners, and of the Vintry, a Part of the Bank of the River Thames, where the Merchants of Bordeaux, cran'd their Wines out of Lighters, and other Vessels, and there landed and made Sale of them, within 40 Days after, until the 28th of Edward I. At which Time the said Merchants complained, that they could not sell their Wines, paying Poundage, neither hire Houses or Cellars to lay them in: And it was redressed by Virtue of the King's Writ, directed to the Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON, dated at Carlaveroke, or Carlisle. Since which Time, many large Houses (with Vaults and Cellars for Stowage of Wines, and Lodging of Wines, and Lodging of Bordeaux Merchants) have been built, in Place where before-time were Cooks Shops. For Fitz-Stephen, in the Reign of Henry II, writeth, that upon the River Side, between the Wine in Ships, and the Wine to be sold in Taverns, was a common Cookery, or Cooks Row, &c. as in another Place is set down.

THIS Ward beginneth in the East, at the West End of Dowgate Ward, as the Water-course of Wallbrook parteth them, to wit, at Grantham's-lane, on the Thames Side, and at Elbow-lane, on the Land Side; it runs along in Thames-street, West, about three Houses beyond the Old Swan, a Brewhouse, on the Thames Side, and on the Land Side, about three Houses West, beyond St. James's at Garlick-hithe.

IN Breadth, this Ward stretcheth from the Vintry North, to the Wall of the West Gate of the Tower Royal: The other North Part is of Cordwainer-street Ward.

OUT of this Royal-street, by where the South Gate of Tower-Royal stood, runneth a small Street, East to St. John's upon Wallbrook, which Street was called Horshee-bridge, from such a Bridge some Time over this Brook, which is now vaulted over.

THEN from the South Gate, West, ran another Street called Knightrider's-street, by St. Thomas Apostle's Church on the North Side, and Wringwren-lane, by the said Church, at the West End thereof; and to the East End of the Trinity Church in the said Knightrider's-street; where this Ward endeth on that South Side the Street; but on the North Side, it runneth no farther than the Corner, in a Plat of Ground, where some Time stood Ormond-place. Yet we have another Lane lower down in Royal-street, stretching forth from over-against St. Michael's Church, to and by the North Side of St. James's Church by Garlick-hithe. This is called Kerion-lane: And thus much for the Bounds of the Vintry Ward. Now on the Thames Side West from Grantham's-lane, was Herber-lane, or Brickle's-lane, so called of John Brickle, some Time Owner thereof.

THEN is Simson's-lane, from one Simson; or Emperor's-head-lane, from such a Sign; then the Three Cranes-lane, so called, not only of a Sign of Three Cranes at a Tavern-door, but rather of three strong Cranes of Timber, placed on the Vintry Wharf by the Thames Side, to crane up Wines there, as is before shewed. This Lane was of old Time, to wit, the 9th of Richard II. called the Painted Tavern-lane, from the Taverns being painted.

THEN next over-against St. Martin's Church, is a large House built of Stone and Timber, with Vaults for the Stowage of Wines, and is called the Vintry. There dwelt John Gisors, Mayor of LONDON, and Constable of the Tower. And then was Henry Picard, Vintner, Mayor: In this House Henry Picard feasted four Kings in one Day; as shewed in Stow's Summary.

THEN next is Vannar's-lane, so called from one Vannar, who was Owner thereof. It is now called Church-lane, from the coming up from the Wharf to St. Martin's Church.

NEXT is Broad-lane; for that the same is broader for the Passage of Carts from the Vintry Wharf, than the other Lanes. At the North West Corner of this Lane was the Parish-Clerks Hall, by them purchased, after they lost their old Hall in Bishopsgate-street; but their Hall is now in another Place, as will be mentioned hereafter. Next is Spittle-lane, of old Time so called, since Stodie's-lane, of the Owner thereof, named Stodie. Sir John Stodie, Vintner, Mayor in the Year 1357, gave it, with all the Quadrant wherein Vintners Hall now stands, with the Tenements round about, unto the Vintners. The Vintners built for themselves a handsome Hall there, and also 13 Alms-Houses for 13 poor People, which are kept of Charity Rent-free.

THIS Hall is well built of Brick, large and commodious, being three Sides of a Quadrangle. The Room called the Hall is paved with Marble, and the Walls richly wainscotted with right Wainscot, adorned with Fruit, Leaves, &c.

finely carved; as is especially the noble Screen at the East End, where the Aperture into the Hall is adorned with two Columns, their Entablature, and pitch'd Pediment; and on Acroters are placed the Figures of Bacchus between several Fames, and these between two Panthers. There are other carved Figures, as St. Martin their Patron, and the Cripple; and Pilasters, with Embellishments of Coats of Arms, &c.

THIS Place of Stodie was called in old Records, The Manor of the Vintry. This Manor the said Stodie, July the 3d, 2 Edward III. gave and granted to one John Tuke, Parson of that Parish-Church; "To have and to hold the said Manor to him and his Successors, to the Use and Behalf the said Church; the King's Licence thereof not had, nor obtained." By Force of which Feoffment the said John was seized thereof as of Fee, contrary to the Sense of the Statute of Lands and Tenements to be put into Mortmains, had and provided. Of this there was an Inquisition taken in 17 Edward IV. before Sir Ralph Josselyn; and there was likewise a Trial in the Exchequer about it. But King Richard III. granted it to the Company of Vintners.

THESE Vintners in LONDON were (of old Time) called Merchant Vintners of Gascoign, in the Records of Edward II. the 11th Year, and Edward III. the 9th Year; they were as well Englishmen as Strangers born beyond the Seas, but then Subjects to the Kings of England; great Bourdeaux Merchants of Gascoign and French Wines. Divers of them were Mayors of this City; namely, John Adrian, Vintner; Reginald at Conduit, John Oxenford, Hekry Picard, that feasted the Kings of England, France, Scotland, and Cyprus: John Stodie, that gave Stodie's-lane to the Vintners: The four last were Mayors in the Reign of Edward III. and yet Gascoign Wines were then to be sold at LONDON, at not above four Pence, nor Rhenish Wines at above 6 d. the Gallon.

William More, Vintner, Mayor, in the Reign of Richard II.

OF Sweet Wines, it is said, that in the 50th of Edward III. John Peachie, Fishmonger, was accused, for that he procured a Licence for the only Sale of them in LONDON; which, notwithstanding he justified it by Law, he was imprisoned and fined.

IN the 6th of Henry VI. the Lombards corrupting their Sweet Wines; when Knowledge thereof came to John Rainwell, Mayor of LONDON, he (in divers Places of the City) commanded the Heads of the Butts and other Vessels to be broken, to the Number of one hundred and fifty. So that the Liquor running out, passed thro' the City like a Stream of Rain Water, in the Sight of all the People; from whence there issued a most loathsome Savour.

IN the Reign of Henry VII. no Sweet Wines were brought into this Realm but Malmsey's, by the Longobards, or Lombards, paying to the King for his Licence 6 s. 8 d. for every Butt, besides 12 d. for a large Bottle. Stowe saith, he rememb'd Malmsey sold at Three-half-pence a Pint; for Proof whereof, it appeareth in the Church-Book of St. Andrew-Undershaft, that in the Year 1547, J. G. and S. K. then Church-wardens, for eighty Pints of Malmsey, spent in the Church, one Penny Half-penny the Pint, paid at the Year's End for the same, Ten Shillings.

MORE he saith, That no Sacks were sold but Rumney, and that for Medicine more than for Drink.

IN the Reign of Henry IV. the young Prince Henry, Thomas Duke of Clarence, John Duke of Bedford, and Humphrey Duke of Gloucester, the King's Sons, being at Supper amongst the Merchants chants of LONDON in the Vintry, in the House of Lewis John, Henry Scogan sent to them a Ballad beginning thus :

My Noble Sonnes,
and eke my Lords deare,
I, your Father,
called unworthily,
Send unto you
this Ballad following here;
Written with mine
owne Hand full rudely :
Although it be,
that I not reverently
Have written to your Estates, I you pray,
Mine uncunning
taketh benignely,
For God's Sake,
and hearken what I say.

THEN follow in like Metre 23 Staves, containing a Perswasion from losing of Time foolishly, in Lust and Vice, but to spend the same in Virtue and Godliness; as you may read in Geffery Chaucer's Works. The Successors of those Vintners and Wine-drawers, that retailed by the Pottle, Quart and Pint, were all incorporated by the Name of Wine-tunners, in the Reign of Edward III, and confirmed the 15th of Henry VI.

NEXT is Palmer's-lane, now called Anchor-lane. The Plummers have their Hall there, but are Tenants to the Vintners.

THEN is Worcester-house, sometimes belonging to the Earls of Worcester, now divided into many Tenements. The Fruiterers had their Hall there; but have none at present.

ON the Land Side, in the Royal-street, was Pater-Noster-lane, of old Time called Arches; for Robert de Suffolk gave to Walter Darford, his Tenement with the Appurtenance, in the Lane called Les Arches, in the Parish of St. Michael de Pater-Noster Church, between the Wall of the Field called Winchester-field, on the East, and the same Lane on the West, &c.

The PARISH of St. MICHAEL,

CALLED

Pater-Noster Church in the Royal.

THEN is the Parish-Church of St. Michael, called Pater-Noster Church in the Royal,

THIS Church was new bnilt, and made a College of St. Spirit, and St. Mary, founded by Richard Whittington, Mercer, four Times Mayor, for a Master, four Fellows, Masters of Art, Clerks, Conduets, Chorists, &c. and an Alms-House, called God's House or Hospital, for 13 poor Men. One of them to be Tutor, and to have 16*d.* the Week, the other 12, each of them to have 14*d.* the Week for ever, with other necessary Provision, a common Seal, &c.

THESE (as the Manner then was) were bound to pray for the good Estate of Richard Whittington, and Alice his Wife, their Founders; and for Sir William Whittington, Knt. and Dame Joan his Wife; and for Hugh Fitzwarren, and Dame Molde his Wife, the Fathers and Mothers of the said Richard Whittington, and Alice his Wife; for King Richard II, and Thomas of Woodstock, Duke of Glocester, special Lords and Promoters of the said Whittington, &c. It follows in the Will for Anne and Eleanor, the Wives of the said King and Duke: Furthermore, also for the good

VOL. I.

Health and State of our aforesaid Lord, King Henry VI, and Archbishop (Henry Chicheley) that now be, and the Conservators and Benefactors of the same House, while they live, and for our good State, while we live, and for their Souls and ours, when they and we be passed out of this World; and generally for them, to whom the said Richard Whittington and Alice were beho'den to, in any Manner of wise while we live, and for all Christian Souls.

THE Licence for this Foundation was granted by King Henry IV. the 11th of his Reign; and in the 12th of the same King's Reign, the Mayor and Commonalty of LONDON granted to Richard Whittington, a vacant Piece of Ground, thereon to build his College in the Royal; all which was confirmed by Henry VI, the third of his Reign, to John Coventry, Jenkin Carpenter, and William Grove, Executors to Richard Whittington.

THIS Foundation was again confirmed by Parliament, the 10th of Henry VI. and was suppressed by the Statute of Edward VI. The Alms-Houses, with the poor Men, do remain, and are paid by the Mercers.

THERE are extant in Custody of the Mercers the original Ordinances of Richard Whittington's Charity, made by his Executors, Coventry, Carpenter, and Grove, fairly written. Where on the first Page is curiously allumined the said Whittington lying on his Death-bed, a very lean consumed Meagre Body, and his three Executors and a Priest, and divers others standing by his Bed-side: Beginning, in the Black Character, thus,

TO alls the trew People of Cryft, that shalle se or here the Things which be conteyned within these present Letters, John Coventry, John Carpenter, and William Grove, &c. Executors of the Testament of the worthy and notable Merchant, Richard Whittington, late Citizin and Mercer of the Cite of LONDON, and oftentimes Mayor of the same Cite, send Greeting in our Lord God everlasting.

THE fervent Desire and besy Intention of a prudent Wyfe, and devout Man shal be to cast before and make seure the State and thende of the short Liffe with Dedys of Mercy and Pite; and namely, to provyde for such Pouer Persons, which grievous Penuere and cruel Fortune have oppressed, and be not of Power to gete their Lyvin either by Craft or by any other Bodily Labour; whereby that at the Day of the last Judgement, he may take his Part with hem that shal be saved. This considering the aforesaid worthy and notable Merchant Richard Whittington, the which while he leved had ryght liberal and large Hands to the Needy and poure People, charged strictly, in his Death-bed, us his aforesaid Executors, to ordeyne a House of Almes after his Deth, for perpetual Sustentacion of such poure People as is to fore reherfed; and thereupon fully he declared his Wyll unto us: And we Wylling after our Power to fullfil th' intent of his commendable Wille and holesome Desire in this Part, as we be bound.

First, Y founded by us, with sufficient Authority, in the Church of Seint Mighells, in the Royolle of LONDON, where the foresaid Richard and Dame Alice his Wife be biried, a commendable College of certain Priests and Clerkis; to do there every Day Divine Service for the aforesaid Richard and Alice.

WE have founded also, after the Wille above-said, a House of Almes for xiii pouere Folk successively for evermore: to dwell and to be sustein-ed in the same House; which House is situated and edified upon a certain Soyl that we bought therefore late in the Parish of Seinte Mighells above-said abovesaid: That is to say, Bytween the aforesaid Church and the Wall that closeth in the voyd Place, behind the heigh Auter of the same Church in the South Side, and our great Tenement, that was late the House of the aforesaid Richard Whittington in the North Side, and it stretcheth fro the Dwelling-place of the Master and the Prestis of the College abovesaid. The which also we did late to be now added in the East Side unto a great voyd Place of our Land. The which by the Help of God we purpose to do be hallowed lawfully for a Church-yard to the same Church within short Time in the West Side.

And in the more ful and clere Foundation and Ordinaunce, and also stablyng of the foresaid Alms-House for pouer Men, the Myght of the Fadre, the Wysdom of the Sonne, and the Goodness of the Holy Ghost, first of al yealled unto our Help, we procede in this wyse:

Fyrst, Both by Lycence, Graunt, and Authority of the right mighty Prince and Lord K. Henry VI, King of England, and of Fraunce, that now is; and also by the Will and Consent of the ryght worthy Lord and Fadre in Cryst, Henry by the Sufferaunce of God Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of al England, and Legate of the Sec of Rome; of whose Jurisdiction immediate be the Church and Parrishe abovesaid; and the Graunt and Consent of al and every Man, that had any Title or Interest in this Partie, before required and had.

The Ordinance of the College.

THEN the Ordinances follow: Which in short were these:

To be twelve pouer Folks alonely of Men or Women togiddre; after the sad Discretion and good Conscience of thOverseers underwrit, and Conservators of the same House, to be provided and admitted.

THE which every Day, when due and convenient Time is, shal pray for evermore, for al the now being alive, and also for the by-past, to God; whose Names of great Specialty been expressed in these Statutes underwrit.

To be one Principal, which shal pass al other in Power and Reverence, and be called Tutor. The Office and Charge of him shal be the Goods of the Almes-house, which shal come to his Hands, well and truly to minister. The Goods dislevered to gather again togiddre, to the Use of the Almes-house: And at the Husbandry of the same House, in as much as he may goodly oversee, dispose and ordain; inforcing himself to edifie and nourish Charity and Peace among his Fellowes.

THE pouer Folks unto the said Tutor evermore shal obey.

THE thirteen pouer Folke to be hable in Conversation, and honest in Living.

THE same House to be called for ever God's House, or Almes-house, or the Hospital of Richard Whittington.

THE Lord Mayor to be Overseer of the said Almes-house; and the Keepers of the Commonalty of the Craft or Mercers to be called for evermore Conservators of the foresaid House.

THE Tutor to have a Place by himself, that is to say, a Cell, or little House, with a Chimney and a Prevy, and other Necessaries; in the which he shall Lyege and rest. And that he may aloon and by himself, without Let of any other Persoon intend to the Contemplation of God, if he woll.

THAT the seid Tutor and pouer Folke, whan they be in the aforesaid Houses and Cells, and also in the Cloisters, and other Places of the foresaid Almes-houses, have themselves quietlie and pesably, without Noise, or Disturbance, of his Fellowes: And that they occupy themselves in Prayer, or Reading, or in Labour of her Hondes, or in some other Occupacion, &c.

It endeth thus:

IN Witness, we have put our Seals. Given at LONDON the xxi Day of Decemb. in the Yere of our Lord a Thousand CCCC xxiiii, and the Yere of K. Henry VI, after the Conquest the Thrydde.

Go litel Boke; go litel tregedic,
Thee lowly submytting to al Correction,
Of theym being Maisters now of the Mercery.
OLNEY, FELDING, BOLEYNE, and of BURTON:

Herteley theym beseyking with humble Salutation,
Thee to accept, and thus to take in gre,
For ever to be a Servant withyn yere Commualtie.

BUT further, for the Direction of their daily Devotion, of their Eating and their Habit, these were the Appointments and Ordinances.

EVERY Tutour and pouer Folk every Day first whan they rise fro their Bedds, kneeling upon their Knees, sey a Pater Noster and an Ave Maria, with special and herty Recommendacion making of the foresaid Richard Whittington and Alice, to God, and our Blessed Lady Maidyn Mary. And other Times of the Day, whan he may best and most commodly have Leisure thereto, for the Staat of al the Souls abovesaid, say three or two Sauters of our Lady at the least: That is to say, threies seaven Ave Marias, with xv Pater Nosters, and three Credes. But if he be letted with Febleness, or any other reasonable Cawse, one in the Day at the least, in case it may be; That is to say, after the Messe, or whan Complyn is don, they come togidder within the College about the Tomb of the aforesaid Rich. Whittington and Alice, and they that can sey, shal sey for the Soules of the seid Richard and Alice, and for the Soules of al Christen People, this Psalm de Profundis with the Versicles and Orisons that longeth thereto. And they that can shal sey three Pater Nosters, three Ave Marias, and oon Crede: And after this doon, the Tutour, or oon of the eldest Men of theym shal sey openly in English, God have Mercy on our Founders Souls and all Christen. And they that stond about shal aunswer and sey, Amen.

THAT they be bound to dwell and abide continually in the seid Almes-House, and Bounds thereof: And that every Day, booth at Meet and Sopier, they eet and be fed within the said Almes-House. And while they be at Meet, or Sopier, they absteyn thame from veyn and ydel Words: And if they wol any Thyng talk, that it be honest and profitable.

THAT the Overclothyng of the Tutour and pouer Folk be derk and Brown of Colour; and not Staring, ne Blaizing; and of esy prised, according to their Degree.

THESE Executors of the Will of Richard Whittington constituted five Chaplains in his College founded in this Church, which were confirmed by the King, 3 Henry VI.

THIS Richard Whittington was (in this Church) three Times buried: First, by his Executors, under a handsome Monument; then, in the Reign of Edward VI. the Parson of that Church, thinking some great Riches (as he said) to be buried with him, caused his Monument to be broken, his Body to be stript of his Leaden Sheet; and again the second Time to be buried. And in the Reign of Queen Mary, the Parishioners were forced to take him up, to wrap him in Lead, as before, to bury him the third Time, and to place his Monument, or the like, over him, again, which so remained, till the great Fire of LONDON violated his resting Place again.

THIS Church of St. Michael Pater Noster in the Vintry, the Capital House, and Site thereof, called Whittington-College; alias Whittington, and one Garden belonging to the same, of the yearly Value of 4*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* was sold to Armagill Waad, Clerk of the Council, in the 2d of Edward VI. for 92*l.* 2*s.*

EITHER in this College, or in the Parish, the Earl of Rutland had a Place in Edward VI's Time. Whither resorted to Dinner the Mourners at his Uncle Sir Richard Mannor's Funeral, after he had been buried at Cree-church.

St. Michael's Church was repaired and beautified at the proper Cost of the Parish in the Year of our Lord 1630,

THE Charge of it amounting to 120*l.* 9*s.*

THERE was a Chantry founded in this Church of St. Michael de Pater Noster in Riola; for maintaining which Richard II, in the 2d of his Reign, granted Licence, pro uno Cellario cum duobus Cellariis superedificatis: So that the Rent of one Vault, and two other Vaults or Warehouses built over it for Merchants Use, was for the Chantry Priest. The Right of presenting a Priest to this Chantry was granted to the Dean of St. Mary de Arcibus, 1 Richard II.

THIS Church being burnt in the Year 1666, was rebuilt and finished in the Year 1694, and the Parish of St. Martin Vintry annexed to it.

As to the Nature of the Building, the Walls are Stone, and at the East End some Brick; it has a flat square Roof covered with Lead; it has handsome five-light Windows, three Isles, and the Floor is paved with Purbeck, but within the Rails of the Communion-Table with Black and White Marble.

ORNAMENTS are as follow: The Roof is adorned with Fret and Crocket-work, the Walls lined nine Feet high, a handsome Gallery at the West End, supported by two Pillars and a Membretto of the Tuscan Order; this Gallery, the Pews, Pulpit and Door-cases, at the South Side and East End, are all of Oak; the Pulpit is neatly finnier'd and enriched with Fruit and Leaves; the latter adorned with Pilasters, Entablement and Pediment, of the Corinthian Order, and two Shields with Compartments. The Altar-piece is of the same Kind of Timber adorned with four fluted Columns, their Architrave, &c. and open Compass-Pediment, where are carved the King's Arms. The Intercolumns are the Decalogue, Creed, and Pater Noster; the former in Gold Letters on Black, under a Seraph and a Glory, and over two Cherubims; the two latter in Black on Gold, each under a Cherub; over the Columns are four Lamps, and the whole is also enriched with Fruit, and Corn-Ears, Flower, Leaves, and Cartouches.

THE Steeple here was erected and the Church new beautified in the Year 1713.

THE Church was again repaired and beautified the last Year (1732) at the Charge of the United Parishes.

MONUMENTS in the old Church were for,

Thomas Winford, Alderman, who was buried in this Church, 1448.

Arnold Macknam, Vintner, a Merchant of Bourdeaux, 1457.

Sir Heer Janke, or Hartancleux, Knight of the Garter, born in Almaine, a noble Warrior in Henry V, and Henry VI's Days.

NUMBER of Houses 60.

Tower-Royal.

AT the Upper-End of this Street was the Tower Royal, whereof that Street took its Name. This Tower, and great Place, was so called from appertaining to the Kings of this Realm; but by whom the same was built, or of what Antiquity continued, is uncertain, more than that in the Reign of King Edward I, the second, fourth, and seventh Years, it was the Tenement of Simon Bearwmes. Also, that in the 36th of Edward III, the same was called the Royal, in the Parish of Michael de Pater-noster; and that in the three and fortieth of his Reign, he gave it by the Name of his Inn, called the Royal, in his City of LONDON, in Value 20*l.* by the Year, unto his College of St. Stephen at Westminster. Notwithstanding, in the Reign of Richard II, it was called, The Queen's Wardrobe, as appeareth by this that followeth:

" KING Richard, having in Smithfield overcome and dispersed the Rebels, he, his Lords, and all his Company, entered the City of LONDON, with great Joy, and went to the Lady Princess his Mother, who was then lodged in the Tower Royal, called The Queen's Wardrobe, where she had remained three Days and two Nights, right sore abashed. But when she saw the King her Son, she was greatly rejoiced and said, Alas Son, what great sorrow have I suffered for you this Day! The King answered and said; Certainly, Madam, I know it well, but now rejoice, and thank God, for I have this Day recovered mine Heritage, and the Realm of England, which I had near hand lost.

THIS Tower seemeth to have been (at that Time) of good Defence, for when the Rebels had beset the Tower of LONDON, and got Possession thereof, taking from thence whom they listed; as Mr. Stow has shewn in his Annals, the Princess being forced to fly, came to this Tower Royal, where she was lodged, and remained safe, as has been mention'd. And it may belfo a supposed, that the King himself was at that Time lodged there; for in the Year 1386, Lion King of Armony, being chased out of his Realm by the Tartarians, received innumerable Gifts of the King and of his Nobles, the King then lying in the Royal; where he also granted to the said King of Armony, a Charter of 1000*l.* by the Year, during his Life. This, for Proof, may suffice, that Kings of England have been lodged in this Tower, though the same (of later Time) was neglected, and turned into Stabling for the King's Horses, and afterwards let out to divers Men, and divided into Tenements.

THIS great House, belonging antiently to the Kings of England, was inhabited by the first Duke of Norfolk, of the Family of the Howards; granted unto him by King Richard III. For in an old Ledger Book of that King's, it is said, " That the King granted unto John Duke of Norfolk, Messuagium cum Pertinenciis, voc. Le Tower infra Paroch. Sancti Thomæ Lond.

IN Horsebridge-street is the Cutlers Hall, Richard de Wilekale, 1295, confirmed to Paul Butelar, this House and the Edifices, in the Parish of St. Michael Pater Noster Church, and St. John's upon Wallbrook. Which some Time Lawrence Gisors, and his Son Peter Gisors did possess, and afterwards Hugo de Hingham; and lieth between the Tenement of the said Richard, towards the South, and the Lane called Horse-shoe-bridge towards the North, and between the Way called Pater Noster Church on the West, and the Course of Wallbrook on the East, paying yearly one Clove of Gilliflowers at Easter, and to the Prior and Convent of St. Mary Overy 6*s.* This House some Time belonged to Simon Dolefly, Grocer, Mayor in the Year 1359. They of this Company were (of old Time) three Arts, or Sorts of Workmen, to wit, the first were Smiths, Forgers of Blades, and therefore called Bladers, and divers of them proved wealthy Men, as namely, Walter Nele, Blader, one of the Sheriffs, the 12th of Edward III, deceased 1352, and buried in St. James's Garlickhithe. He left Lands to the mending of Highways about LONDON, between Newgate and Wicombe, Aldgate and Chelmsford, Bishopsgate and Ware, Southwark and Rochester, &c. The second were Makers of Hafts, and otherwise Garnishers of Blades. The third Sort were Sheathmakers for Swords, Daggers, and Knives. In the 10th of Henry IV, certain Ordinances were made betwixt the Bladers and other Cutlers; and in the 4th of Henry VI, they were all three drawn into one Haftmakers.

Sheathmakers.

one Fraternity, or Brotherhood, by the Name of Cutlers.

THEN is Knightrider's-street, so called (as is supposed) from Knights well armed and mounted at the Tower-Royal, riding from thence thro' that Street, West to Creed-lane, and so out at Ludgate, towards Smithfield; when they were there at Turney, Just, or otherwise to shew their Activities before the King and States of the Realm.

The PARISH of ### St. MARTIN's in the Vintry.

The Parish of
St. Martin's
in the Vintry.

AT the South Corner of Royal-street, was the Parish-Church of St. Martin, called in the Vintry, some Time called St. Martin de Beremand Church.

John Edrop, Citizen and Vintner of LONDON, in his Testament made the ninth of August 1385, willed his Body to be buried in this Church: To which he bequeathed a hundred Shillings. Item, Lego ad opus Campanarum in dict. Ecclesia faciend. 20 Marcas.

THIS Church was new built about the Year 1399, by the Executors of Matthew Columbars, a Stranger born, a Bourdeaux Merchant of Gascogne and French Wines: His Arms yet remain in the East Window, and is a Chevron, between three Columbines.

THIS Church was in Part re-edified, and in many Parts repaired and beautified at the Cost and Charges of the Parishioners, in the second Year of the Reign King James I.

THE Charge then amounting to the Sum of four hundred and sixty odd Pounds.

It was again repaired and beautified in the Year of our Lord 1632, as before, at the Cost of the Parish.

MONUMENTS.

THERE lay buried in this Church, Sir John Gisors, Mayor 1311. Henry Gisors, his Son 1343; and John Gisors, his Brother, 1350. He gave to his Son Thomas, his great Mansion called Gisor's Hall, in the Parish of St. Mildred in Bread-street. This Thomas had Issue John and Thomas; John made a Feoffment, and sold Gisor's Hall, and other his Lands in LONDON, about the Year 1386. Thomas deceased 1395, John Nicholls, Henry Venner, Sir Ralph Astry, and Margaret and Margery his Wives. Bartholomew de la Vauch, Thomas Cornwalleys, one of the Sheriffs 1384; John Cornwalleys, Esq; 1436, John Mustrel, Vintner 1424; William Hodson, William Castleton, John Gray, Robert Dalusse, Barber, in the Reign of Edward IV, with this Epitaph.

As Flowers in Field,

St. THOMAS APOSTLES.

*The Parish of
St. Thomas Apostles.*

NEXT was the Parish-Church of St Thomas the Apostle, by Wringwren-lane, a proper Church; and in the Years 1629 and 1630, well repaired, and finely garnished, at the Cost and Charge of the Parishioners.

THE Charge of it amounting to near 300 l. But the Monuments of Antiquity were all defaced in Stow's Time, except some Arms in the Windows, as also in the Stone-work, which some suppose to be the Arms of John Barnes, Mercer, Mayor of LONDON in the Year 1371, a great Builder thereof. Henry Causton, Merchant, was a Benefactor, and had a Chantry there about 1396. Thomas Romain, Mayor 1310, had also a Chantry there about 1319. Fitz-Williams, also a Benefactor, had a Chantry there. More, Sir William Littelsbury, alias Horn, (for King Edward IV. so named him) because he was a most excellent Blower in a Horn. He was a Salter, and Merchant of the Staple, Mayor of LONDON in the Year 1487, and was buried in this Church; having appointed (by his Testament) the Bells to be changed for four new ones, of good Tune and Sound; but that was not performed: He gave five hundred Marks towards the Repairing of Highways between LONDON and Cambridge. His Dwelling-house, with a Garden and Appurtenances in the said Parish, he devised to be sold, and bestowed in charitable Actions, as his Executors would answer before GOD.

HIS House called the George in Bread-street, he gave to the Salters, they to find a Priest in the said Church, to have 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. the Year. To every Preacher at Paul's Cross, and at the Spital, 4 d. for ever: To the in Prisoners Newgate, Ludgate, Marshalsea, and King's-Bench, in Victuals, 10 s. at Christmas, and 10 s. at Easter, for ever; which Legacies are not performed.

William Shipton, William Champnies, and John de Burford, had Chantries there. John Martin, Butcher, one of the Sheriffs, was buried there 1533. Those Monuments of latter Times were the following:

THERE lies buried near this Monument, Margaret, one of the Daughters of the Lord Broke, Chief Baron of the Exchequer, in the Reign of King Henry VIII. who lineally descended from the House of Broke in Cheshire; which said Margaret was first married to William Whorwood, second Son to John Whorwood of Compton, in the County of Stafford, Esq; which said William died Attorney General to the said King Henry VIII. After whose Death, she took to her second Husband, William Sheldin of Beeley in the County of Worcester, Esq; who also died, leaving her a Widow; and so she continued many Years after; and then died, being about the Age of eighty Years, and was buried in March 1589, in the 32d Year of Queen Elizabeth.

ON the South Side of the Chancel, a very fine, neat, and well contrived Monument, but without any Date, whereon these Verses are Insculpt:

NUMBER of Houses III.

IN this St. Thomas Apostles there was a Messuage, perhaps some Time the Dwelling of the Earls of Cornwal, called Ringed Hall. For in the Reign of Edward III. a Place so called, with four Shops and two Gardens in this Parish, was granted by Edmund Earl of Cornwal, to the Abbot of Beaulieu near Oxford. And regranted and a Plea thereupon in the Hustings, 2 Richard II.

THEN West from the said Church, on the same Side, was one great Messuage, sometimes called Ipres Inn, of William Ipres a Fleming, the first Builder thereof. This William was called out of Flanders, with a Number of Flemings, to the Aid of King Stephen, against Maude the Empress, in the Year 1138, and grew in Favour with the said King for his Service, so far, that he built this his House near Tower-Royal, in which Tower it seems the King was then lodged, as in the Heart of the City, for his most Safety.

Robert Earl of Gloucester, Brother to the Empress, being taken, was committed to the Custody of this William, to keep in the Castle of Rocheester, till King Stephen was also taken, and then one was deliver'd in Exchange for the other, and both set free. This William of Ipres gave Edrede's Hithe, now called Queen-hithe, to the Prior and Canons of the Holy Trinity in LONDON. He founded the Abbey of Foxley in Kent, &c. In the first of Henry II. the said William, with all the other Flemings (fearing the Indignation of the new King) departed the Land; but it seems the said William was shortly called back again, and restored both to the King's Favour, and to his old possessions here; so that the Name and Family continued long after in this Realm, as will appear by this which follows.

IN the Year 1377, the 51st of Edward III. the Citizens of LONDON minding to have destroyed John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, and Henry Percy, Marshal, (for Causes set forth in Mr. Stow's Annals) fought up and down, and could not find them; for they were that Day to dine with John of Ipres at his Inn, which the Londoners knew not of, but thought the Duke and Marshal had been at the Savoy, and therefore posted thither. But one of the Duke's Knights seeing these things, came in great Haste to the Place where the Duke was, and after he had knocked, and could not be let in, he said to Haveland the Porter, If thou love my Lord and thy Life, open the Gate: With which Words he got Entry, and with great Fear he tells the Duke, that without the Gate were infinite Numbers of armed Men, and unless he took great Heed, that Day would be his last: With which Words the Duke leapt so hastily (being eating Oysters) that he hurt both his Legs against the Form: Wine was offered, but he could not drink for Haste, and so fled with his Fellow, Henry Percy, out of a back Gate, and entering upon the Thames, never staid rowing, until they came to a House near the Manor of Kennington, where at that Time the Princess lay, with Richard the young Prince, before whom he made his Complaint, &c.

ON the other Side was a Messuage called Ringed Hall. King Henry VIII. the 32d of his Reign, gave the same, with four Tenements adjoining, to Morgan Philips, alias Wolfe, in the Parish of St. Thomas Apostles in LONDON, &c.

OVER against Ipres Inn, in Knightriders-street, at the Corner towards St. James at Garlick-hithe, was some Time a great House built of Stone, and called Ormond-place, for that it some Time belonged to the Earls of Ormond. Edward the IVth, in the 5th of his Reign, gave to Elizabeth his Wife, the Manor of Greenwich, with the Town and Park, in the County of Kent. He also gave this Tenement called Ormond-place, with all the Appurtenances to the same, situate in the Parish of Trinity in Knightriders-street in LONDON.

LOWER down, in Royal-street, was Kerion-lane, from one Kerion, some Time dwelling there. In this Lane was the Glasiers Hall; but they have had none since the Fire, but meet at Lorimers Hall.

The PARISH of St. JAMES GARLICK-HITHE.

THEN is the Parish-Church of St. James, call'd, at Garlick-hithe, or Garlick-hive; for that (of old Time) on the Bank of the River Thames, near to this Church, Garlick was usually sold. This was a handsome Church, whereof Richard Rothing, one of the Sheriffs, in 1326, is said to be the new Builder.

THE North Isle of this Church was new built, and the whole Church repaired and beautified at the the Charge of the Parishioners in the Year of our Lord 1624. The Charge of it amounting to 700*l.* and upwards.

THIS Church was burnt down in the great Fire of LONDON, but rebuilt, the Foundation being laid Anno 1676; built and opened 1682; compleatly finish'd 1683.

THE Church is well built of Stone, covered with Lead, with handsome outer Door-cases, of the Corinthian Order.

THE Roof within is flat, and supported with 12 Columns (besides several Pilasters) of the Ionick Order.

As to Ornament (besides the said Columns, and a large Cornice, as also the Fret-work Panels, &c. of the Roof) the Church is neatly pewed and wainscotted with right Wainscot nine Feet high; has two fine spacious inner Door-cases, of the Corinthian Order; and the Pulpit is finnier'd, and has Enrichments; all which are of Norway Oak.

THE Altar-piece is also of that Timber, adorned with two fluted Columns, Entablature, and Pediment of the last said Order; in the Middle of which Pediment are the King's Arms finely carved. Here are the Commandments done in Gold on Black, between the Lord's Prayer and Creed in Black Letters on Gold, the Whole being embellish'd with Enrichments of Cherubims, Shields, Festoons, Leaves, Fruit, &c. inclosed with Rail and Ballister, and within that Compass; the Foot-path for the Communion-Table is black and white Marble.

LENGTH of the Church is 75 Feet; Breadth 45; Height 40; and the Altitude of the Steeple (which is a Tower with Rail and Ballister, above the Cornice at the Top) is about 90 Feet high.

MONUMENTS in the old Church were for,

Richard Rothing before-mentioned who was buried there.

Walter Nele, Blader, one of the Sheriffs, 1337. John of Oxenford, Vintner, Mayor, 1341. In the first of Edward III, this John of Oxenford gave to the Priory of the Holy Trinity in LONDON, two Tofts of Land, one Mill, fifty Acres of Land, two Acres of Wood, with the Appurtenances in Kentish-Town, in Value 20*s.* and 3*d.* by Year.

Richard Goodcheap, John de Cressingham, and John Whitthorn: And before them, Galfred Moncley. 1281, founded a Chantry there.

MONUMENTS remaining there:

Ex qua Filios novem quatuor vero Filias suscepit. Quarum una Patre adhuc superstite Diem obiit. Hic cum varia Civitatis munia laudabiliter obisset, tandem in celebrem supremi Ordinis senatum, Aldermannorum scilicet, cooptatus est. Mox Eques ab illustrissimo Rege Jacobo creatus est. Et Paulo post Vicecomes Civitatis LONDON. est designatus. Quo magistratu nondum expleto, non sine magno bonorum Luctu, vicesimo quinto Die Mensis Julii, Anno Domini 1605, in Domino requiescit.

HIS Coat was, Azure, a Cross, Or, charged with five Estoilles, Sable, between four Pheons of the second.

Here lieth buried the Body of Richard Plat, Brewer, and some Time chosen Sheriff of LONDON, the Founder of a Free-School, and six Alms-Houses in Aldenham, in the County of Hertford; he died the 28th of November, 1600, having taken to Wife, Alice Bristles, the Daughter of John Bristles, Esq; and having Issue four Sons and one Daughter.

AGAINST the Wall in the South Isle was this Inscription:

Here Edmund Chapman, closed in Clay, undoubtedly doth rest,
Who to his Neighbours (while he lived)
the Fruits of Love exprest.
Fine Pews within this Church he made,
and with his Arms support,
The Table and the Seats in Choir
he set in comely sort.
To Pris'ners and to Hospitals
he living was a Friend,
And ever fought the Innocent from Danger to defend.
Esquire Joyner to our Queen
he in his Life-time was,
And Yeoman of her Armory
at Greenwich in like Case.
Wherein he like a Servant just for Duty duly done;
Unto himself of Prince and Peers
The Love and Favour won.
Threescore seven Years he lived here in Worship and good Name;
And left this Life to live with CHRIST,
to his eternal Fame.
His Soul the fourteenth Day of May
did from his Body fleet,
Which he with chearful Voice did yield to CHRIST his Saviour sweet.
And on the eighteenth of that Month
by Computation just,
A thousand five hundred eighty eight his Body was laid in Dust.
But Body and Soul at last, be sure,
through GOD's abundant Grace,
Shall rise and knit again in one,
and stand before his Face
Where with his Saints elect, we hope,
he shall receive a Crown,
And live for ever with sweet CHRIST,
in Glory and Renown.
Thus, Friends, by this dear Friend of ours,
let's learn to live and dye;
That after Death we may have Life,
above the starry Sky.

This with divers other Lands, of the yearly Va-lue of 168 l. 2 s. 2 d. ob. q. was made over and granted by King Edward VI, in the 4th of his Reign, to William Place, and Nicholas Spake-man, for 2551 l. 3 s. ob.

Now for the modern State of Vintry Ward.

THIS Ward is bounded on the East by Dow-gate Ward, on the South by the River Thames, on the West by Queen-hithe Ward, and on the North by Cordwainers Ward. The chief Streets in this Ward are Thames-street, and New Queen-street; then Garlick-hill, College-hill, and St. Thomas Apostles; in which said Streets and Hills, are several Lanes, Courts, and Alleys.

Thames-street runneth through the Heart of this Ward from East to West, being a Street, as before noted, well inhabited by able Trades-men: The Part in this Ward is from little Elbow-lane in the East, where Dowgate Ward joins un-to it, and to Townsend-lane in the West, where Queen-hithe Ward begins. In this Part of Thames-street, within this Ward, are these Places; Shepherd's-alley, long and narrow, but indiffe-rent good. Black-swan-alley, indifferent well built. Here was formerly a large House, call-ed Worcester-house, as belonging to the Earls of Worcester, and from thence so called; now converted into Tenements, and here the Fruit-ers had their Hall. Anchor-lane, long and narrow, running down to the Thames: It was formerly called Palmer's-lane; and here the Plumbers have their Hall. Vintners Hall, feat-ed in Thames-street, now a curious large Build-ing; which encloseth a large square Court, with a handsome Free-stone Pavement. The North Side Fronts the Street, where there is a curious Pair of Iron of Gates, with Free-stone Pillars on each Side, wreathed with Grapes and Leaves; and upon each of the Pillars are three Tuns; with a Bacchus sitting thereon; behind the Hall, and other Buildings, is a Garden, from which is a Passage to the Thames, where there is a Pair of Stairs: And being open, hath a curious Pros-pect.

New Queen-street, commonly called the Three Cranes in the Vintry, a good open Street, espe-cially that Part next Cheapside, which is best built and inhabited; but it hath no more in this Ward, than a little beyond St. Thomas Apostles, the rest of this Street being in Cordwainers Ward and Cheap Ward. At the lower End of the Street, next the Thames, is a Pair of Stairs, the usual Place for the Lord Mayor and Aldermen to take Water at, to go to Westminster-hall, for the new Lord Mayor to be sworn before the Barons of the Exchequer. This Place, with the Three Cranes, is now of some Account for the Coster-mongers, where they have their Warehouses for their Fruit.

Church-lane, so called, as seated over-against St. Martin's Vintry Church, a long and narrow Lane, which leadeth to the River Thames; out of this Place is a Passage into new New Queen-street.

Three Crane-court, long and narrow, running down to the Thames, where there is a Pair of Stairs; this Lane is also taken up by Coffer-mongers. About the Middle of the Lane is a Passage into Church-lane, as also into Brickhill-lane. Over-against this Lane was the Church of St. Martin in the Vintry; it is in the Diocese of LONDON: The Abbot of Glocester was Patron, and the Dismes 26 s. 8 d. This Church was consumed in the Fire of LONDON 1666, and not rebuilt, but the Parish united to St. Michael Royal.

Brickhill-lane, a pretty open Place, with good Buildings, and runneth down almost to the Thames. Near unto this Lane is a good handsome House, at present made Use of by the Royal Fishery Company of England.

Emperor's-head-lane, narrow and ordinary, with a Passage to the Thames. Tennis-court, or Fryar's-lane, runneth down almost to the Thames, where there is a Dyer's, and falls into Dowgate. In this Lane is the Entrance into Joiners Hall, a pretty neat Building, with a handsome, but small Court before it, having a Free-stone Pavement, and a Pair of Gates at the Entrance, with carved Figures, being Demy Savages, on the Top of the Piers; but this Hall is in Dowgate Ward.

THE North Side of Thames-street hath these Places: Little Elbow-lane, which falls into Great Elbow-lane, and so into College-hill by St. Michael Royal Church, both which Lanes are indifferent.

THE East Part of this Lane is in Dowgate Ward. This Church of St. Michael's Royal is a curious Free-stone Building, having Battlements with turned Pillars, with a lofty towered Steeple of Free-stone.

IT is a Peculiar of Canterbury, the Wardens of the Company of Mercers were the Patrons. The Church was destroyed in the general Conflagration, and is now rebuilt, as aforesaid: To which Parish is united that of St. Martin's in the Vintry.

College-hill comes out of St. Thomas Apostle's, and falls into Thames-street; a Place well built and inhabited by Merchants, and others. On the West Side is Maiden-lane, which crosseth New Queen-street, and falls into Garlick-hill, by St. James's Garlick-hithe Church. Out of this Lane is a Passage into Thames-street; and another into Maidenhead-court, which is but ordinary. On the East Side of College-hill is St. Michael's Royal Church; and almost over-against the said Church is Buckingham House, so called, as being bought by Villars, Duke of Buckingham, and where he some Time resided upon a particular Humour: It is a very large and graceful Building, late the Seat of Sir John Lethuillier, an eminent Merchant, some Time Sheriff and Alderman of LONDON, deceased.

St. Thomas Apostle's, of which there are two, viz. Great St. Thomas Apostle's, which is in this Ward, and little St. Thomas Apostle's, which is in Cordwainers Ward. This Great St. Thomas Apostle's is a good handsome Street, and well inhabited; on the North Side was seated the Church of St. Thomas Apostle's, which, before its being burnt in the general Fire of LONDON, stood in the Middle of New Queen-street, a Street made since the Fire out of Soper-lane, &c. for a strait Passage to the Water-Side from Guild-hall.

THIS Church not being built, the Parish is united unto St. Mary Aldermay.

IN this Street of Great St. Thomas Apostle's are these Places; Black-Lion-Inn, but indifferent.

Baldwin's-yard, a good handsome open Court, with good Buildings at the upper End. Blunderbus's-alley, on the East Side of St. Thomas's Church-yard, very small. Dodson's-court, a pretty large open Place, with a Free-stone Passage into Budge-row, well built and inhabited. Almost over-against this Court is Cutler's Hall, seated in Cloak-lane, which falleth into Dowgate-hill, a pretty good Building, as to its Bigness.

Garlick-hill takes its Beginning in the North from Bow-lane, and falls into Thames-street, a Place well built, and inhabited. In this Place are these Courts, Sugar-loaf-court, a large Place, but ordinarily inhabited; it hath a Passage down Steps into Thames-street thro' a Place called the Bowling-alley. Three-Shear-court, small and ordinary; over-against this Court is the Parish-Church of St. James Garlick-hithe: It is in the Diocese of LONDON; the Abbot of Westminster was Patron, and the Dismes are 9 s. 4 d. It was destroyed in the general Conflagration, and is rebuilt better than before.

Great Trinity-lane hath but a small Part in this Ward.

Bow-lane hath also some small Part in this Ward; but the greatest Share is in Cordwainers Ward.

THERE are to watch at the several Stands in this Ward every Night, a Constable, the Beadle, and 34 Watchmen.

THE Jury-men return'd by the Wardmote-Inquest for this Ward, are to serve in the several Courts held in the Guild-Hall in the Month of April.

THIS Ward hath an Alderman and Deputy, nine Common-Council-Men, nine Constables, four Scavengers, fourteen Wardmote Inquest-Men, and a Beadle: It is taxed to the Fifteen in LONDON, at 6 l. 13 s. 4 d.

THE Alderman of this Ward is Sir John Eyles, Bart.

Cordwainers-
street Ward.

THE next is Cordwainers-street Ward, so called from Cordwainers or Shoemakers, Curriers and Workers of Leather dwelling there. For it appears in the Records of Henry VI, the Ninth of his Reign, that an Order was taken then for Cordwainers and Curriers in Corney-street, and Sopers-lane.

THIS Ward begins in the East, on the West Side of Wallbrook, and runs West towards Budge-row (a Street so called from the Budge Furr, and Skinners dwelling there;) then up by St. Antholin's Church, thorough Aetheling (or Noble-street) as Leyland terms it, commonly called Watling-street, to the Red Lion, a Place so called, from a great Lion of Timber placed there, at a Gate entering to a large Court, wherein were divers handsome and large Shops, well furnish'd with Broad Cloths, and other Draperies of all Sorts to be sold: And this is the farthest West Part of this Ward.

ON the South Side of this Street from Budge-row, lyeth a Lane turning down by which the West Gate of the Tower Royal stood; and to the South End of the Stone Wall, beyond the said Gate; which is of this Ward, and is accounted a Part of the Royal Street.

AGAINST this West Gate of the Tower Royal was another Lane, that runs West to Cordwainers-street; and this is called Turnbase-lane; on the South Side whereof, was a Piece of Wringwren-lane, to the North West Corner of St. Thomas the Apostle's. Then again out of the High-street, call'd Watling, is another Street which runs cross the same; and this is Cordwainer-street; whereof the whole Ward takes its Name.

THIS Street begins by Westcheap; and St. Mary le Bow Church is the Head thereof on the West Side, and it runs down South thorough that Part, which of latter Time was called Hosier-lane, now Bow-lane; and then by the West End of Aldermary Church, to the new built Houses, in place of Ormond-House, and so to Garlick-hill or hithe to St. James's Church.

THE upper Part of this Street towards Cheap, was called Hosier-lane, from Hosiers dwelling there, in the Place of Shoemakers: But now those Hosiers being worn out by Men of other Trades, (as the Hosiers had worn out the Shoemakers) the same is called Bow-lane, from Bow Church.

ON the West Side of Cordwainers-street, is Basing-lane, right over-against Turnbase-lane. This Basing-lane, West, to the back Gate of the Red Lion in Watling-street, is of this Cordwainers-street Ward.

Now again on the North Side of the high Street, in Budge-row, by the East End of St. Anthony's Church, is St. Sithe's-lane, so called from St. Sithe's Church, (which stood against the North End of that Lane) and this Place is wholly of Cordwainers-street Ward: And also the South Side of Needlers-lane, which reacheth from the North End of St. Sithe's-lane, West to Soper's-lane; then somewhat West from St. Anthony's Church, is the South End of Soper's-lane, which took that Name, not from making Soap there, as some have supposed, but from one Alleyne le Soper, in the 9th of Edward II. Stow saith, he had read of no Soap making in this City, till within an hundred Years of his Time, that one John Lambe, dwelling in the Grass-street, set up a Boiling House. For this City, in former Times, was served with white Soap in hard Cakes, called Castile Soap, and other, from beyond Sea; and with Grey Soap, speckled with White from Bristol; sold here for a Penny a Pound, and never above a Penny Farthing, and Black Soap for an Halfpenny the Pound.

Vol. I.

IN this Soper's-lane the Pepperers antiently dwelt, wealthy Tradesmen, who dealt in Spices and Drugs: Two of this Trade were divers Times Mayors in the Reign of King Henry III. viz. Andrew Bockerel and John de Gisorcio, or Gisors. In the Reign of King Edward II, Anno 1315, they came to be governed by Rules and Orders, which are extant in one of the Books of the Chamber, under this Title, Ordinatio Piperarum de Soper's-lane; Beginning

Ces sont les Pointz que les bons Gentz de Soper-lane del mestier des peverers, &c. i. e. These are the Points which the good Men of Soper's-lane of the Mystery of Pepperers, by the Assent of Sir Stephen de Abyndone, Mayor of LONDON, John de Giforce, Nicholas de Farendone, John de Wengrave, Robert de Kelsobey, Will. le Leyre, &c. Aldermen; have made for the common Benefit of the whole People of the Land, &c.

THEN in Bow-lane (as they now call it) is Goose-lane, by Bow Church. William Essex, Mercer, had Tenements there, in the 26th of Edward III.

THEN from the South End of Bow-lane, up Watling-street, till over-against the Red Lion; and these are the Bounds of Cordwainers-street Ward.

The P A R I S H of
St. A N T H O N Y,
O R
St. A N T H O L I N E.

THIS Church, vulgarly called St. Antlin's, was dedicated to St. Anthony, as there were also a School and Hospital in this City.

St. Anthony was in his Time a famous and Holy Eremit, and Abbot of the Monks in Egypt, in the Time of the Emperor Constantine the Great, and of his Sons. He lived in the Country of Thebais, which St. Jerome takes to be the Land of Goshen, wherein Jacob, the Patriarch, with his Sons dwelt.

THIS Anthony was famous for his Holy Life and Miracles, whose Acts, written by Athanasius in Greek, were translated into Latin by Evagrius.

IN the 20th Year of his Age he sold all that he had, giving the one half to his Sister, and the rest to the Poor. At first he lived in a solitary Place not far distant from his own Town; when he was about 35 Years old, he withdrew himself into the Wilderness, living there a most austere Life; where after he had lived 20 Years solitarily, solitarily, he then came abroad and conversed with other Monks, to whom he often resorted; and he came into the Cities where he boldly preached Christ. At last, he retired again into a wild Desert, where he seated himself on the Top of a steep Hill, living with slender Fare and Provision, Ann. Christi 271.

FROM him are derived the Eremites of the Order of St. Anthony, who live only with Bread, and Wine, and Salt; St. Athanasius, with whom awhile he conversed and lived, wrote a Treatise of his Life, which, as Evagrius, so St. Jerome, also translated out of Greek into Latin, at the Request of Damachius.

IT is said, that God gave a Privilege to St. Anthony, or a Preservative against Fire; not only against the Disease called St. Anthony's Fire; but also from the Fire of Hell.

THE Monks of the Order of St. Anthony use a black Habit, with the Letter T, of a Blue Colour, on the Fore-Part of their Breast, in Imitation of St. Anthony, as they boast.

THESE Monks with their importunate begging, contrary to the Example of St. Anthony, are so troublesome, that, if Men give them nothing they will presently threaten them with St. Anthony's Fire; so that many simple People, out of Fear or blind Zeal, every Year used to bestow on them a fat Pig, or Porker, (which they have ordinarily painted on their Pictures of St. Anthony) whereby they might procure their good Will and Prayers, and be secure from their Menaces.

St. Anthony having lived a very devout Life 105 Years, died at Thebais, in Egypt, Jan. 17, Anno Christi 358. His Body (saith Ussuardus) was buried by two of his Disciples privately by his own Directions; so that it was unknown a long Time where it lay. At last, in the Time of the Emperor Justinian, it was found by Divine Revelation, and translated thence to Alexandria; as Sigebert saith, Ann. 522, Marianus Scotius saith, Ann. 531, Cospius, Ann. 541, others say at other Times, and laid there in the Church of St. John Baptist. It is said, That his Body was afterwards translated from Alexandria (Mirxus saith, from Constantinople) unto Vienna, in the Province of Narbon, in France, as some relate; and from thence he is otherwise stiled St. Anthony of Vienna.

THE Order of St. Anthony of Vienna was instituted by Ghaſton, and Girone, Noblemen of Vienna, under the Rule of Augustin, about the Year 1095, Pavin in Chron. Greſter de Feſt, p. 308.

MANY grave and credible Authors make Mention of St. Anthony, as St. Jerome, St. Austin, and others.

THE Commemoration of St. Anthony, is celebrated yearly on the 17th of January.

BESIDES this Holy Abbot Anthony, there was also St. Anthony of Padua, born at Lisbon in Portugal, called Malleus Hereticorum; by whom such Miracles have been reported to have been wrought as are almost incredible. He died June 13, Anno Domini 1231, being not above 36 Years old. He was canoniz'd a Saint by Pope Gregory IX. at Spoletum, next Year after his Death.

St. Antholianus also was an Holy Martyr, who suffered (with others) at Avergne in France, whose Commemoration is celebrated Feb. 9, of whom Mention is made by Bede, Cardinal Baronius, and others, whose Name coming near the vulgar Name of our Church St. Antlin's is here inserted, if any should fancy, that our Church of St. Antlin's might be so named from him: But, doubtless, this Church of St. Antlin's (corruptly so called from St. Anthony) was dedicated to the Memory of that famous Egyptian Abbot and Eremit St. Anthony, and to none other of that Name.

WHEN this Church was first founded is uncertain; but it is known that here was some Time a Cell of St. Anthony's of Vienna, founded by Henry II. and likewise the Church was re-edified by Thomas Knowles, Grocer, Mayor, and his Son, which must be about the Year 1399, whose Arms were Azure, Cruſuly a Croſs Moline voided and couped, Or, and

THAT John de Wells, Mayor, Anno 1431, built the South Isle of the Church.

AND that John Tate, Citizen and Mercer, rebuilt this Church, Anno 1513.

IT was repaired and beautified Anno 1616, which cost 1000*l.* towards which Mr. Henry Jay, Alderman, Sir William Craven, Mr. William Parker, Mr. Adrian Moor, Mr. Thomas Boothby, Mr. Cleophas Smith, and Mr. Frà. Dorrington contributed bountifully. It was one of those demolished by the Fire in 1666, and was re-erected not long after; being finished as it now appears in 1682.

IT is built of Stone, and covered with Lead, the Outside being of the Tuscan Order: But the Roof within (which is an Ecliptical Cupola, with four Port-hole Windows) is supported by eight Pillars of the Composite Order.

THE said Cupola is adorned with Fret-work of Festoons, &c. and the Walls lined round with Wainscot seven Feet high: And the Church is well pewed.

THERE is a fine Gallery at the West End, which is likewise right Wainscot Bolection Work swelling.

ALSO a Pulpit curiously finned and carved, being adorned with Cherubims, Fruit, &c.

THE Altar-piece is right Wainscot, consisting of four Columns of the Corinthian Order, fluted with their Entablature and two Pediments; the Inter columns are the Lord's Prayer, Creed, and in the Center the Commandments in Frames, carved and gilt, over which is a Glory and three gilt Cherubims, and above them the King's Arms; on each Side whereof are two Lamps, and a fine Cartouch on the North of this Altar-piece, and another on the South, the whole being beautifully enriched with Festoons, Fruit, Palm-Branches, &c.

THE Communion-Table (which is a large Marble Slab placed on a carved Frame) is inclosed with Rail and Ballister, and the Choir paved with Black and White Marbles, not far from which, on the North Side, stands the Marble Stone Font, with a carved Cover inclosed with handsome Iron Rails.

AND here is one large Branch.

THE Length of the Church is about 66 Feet, Breadth 54, and Height within 44 Feet.

HERE is also a neat Spire Steeple, in Altitude about 154 Feet, designed by Sir Chr. Wren, and built by Mr. Cartwright, wherein is one Bell.

MONUMENTS.

Thomas Knowles the Father, and Thomas Knowles the Son, before-mentioned, were both buried here, with Epitaphs. That of Knowles the Father was this:

Here lieth graven
under this Stone,
Thomas Knowles,
both Flesh and Bone,
Grocer and Alderman
years forty,
Sheriff, and twice
Mayor truly.
And for he should not lie alone,
Here lieth with him
his good Wife Joane:

They

They were together
sixty Year,
And nineteen Children
they had in Fear, &c.

Thomas Holland, Mercer, was there buried, 1456.

Thomas Windent, Mercer, Alderman, and Catharine his Wife.

Thomas Hind, 1528, he was a Benefactor to this Church, to Aldermary Church, and to Bow.

Hugh Atton, Merchant-Taylor, buried 1520. He gave 36 l. to the Repairing of the Steeple of this Church.

Simon Street, Grocer, lieth in the Church-Wall toward the South; his Arms three Colts, and his Epitaph thus:

Such as I am,
such shall you be:
Grocer of London,
some Time was I,
The King's Weigher,
more than Years twenty,
Simon Street
called in my Place,
And good Fellowship
fain would trace.
Therefore in Heaven
everlasting Life,
Jesu send me,
and Agnes my Wife.
Kerlie Merlie
my Words were tho',
And Deo Gratias
I coupled thereto.
I passed to God
in the Year of Grace,
A Thousand
four hundred it was, &c.

William Dauntsey, Mercer, one of the Sheriffs, buried 1542.

Henry Collet, Mercer, Mayor, a great Benefactor to this Church. The Pictures of him, his Wife, ten Sons, and ten Daughters, remain in the Glass Window, on the North Side of the Church: But the said Henry Collet was buried at Stebunhithe. Henry Halton, Grocer, one of the Sheriffs, deceased 1415. Thomas Spight, Merchant-Taylor, 1533: And Roger Martin, Mercer, Mayor 1573. John Grantham and Nicholas Bull had Chantries there.

Here lieth William Dauntsey, Mercer, and Alderman of this City, and Merchant of the Staple of Callis; and Agnes his Wife: The which William deceased the 23d Day of April, in the Year of our Lord God 1543.

Unto Sir Roger
Martin, Knight,
A Mercer and
a Merchant late;
By Wisdom, and
by Ways upright,
That so both Wealth
and Worship gate.
Well fam'd, belov'd
of each Estate,
Pleasant and sage
in Gravity,
Rose by Degrees
in Dignity
First Alderman elected here,
Then Shrieve, and then
Lord Mayor he was:

Pas'd all with Praise:
His faithful Peer,
Dame Elizabeth,
erected has
This Monument,
in Mind, that has
With him a while in Tomb to stay,
So afterwards in Bliss
to Joy always.

Ex D. Elizabeth. octo Prolum Parens, obiit in Christo, Die 20 Decemb. Ann. Dom. 1573 & Regni Eliz. 16.

Here lies the Lady
Martin eke,
Of Grecia soil,
and Castlyne's Race;
Both constant, virtuous,
wife and meek,
That shewed herself
in any Place.
And God endued her
so with grace,
That she both liv'd
and died with Praise.
Two Husbands had she
in her Days,
Whose Corpse are both inclosed here,
Together with the aforesaid Dame:
Her Love to them
was aye so dear,
Her Cost and Charge
sustain'd the same.
These three, their Deeds
will shew their Fame:
Who as she liv'd in Amity so here she sleeps in Unity.

Domina Elizab. cum Maritis. Credimus quod Redemptor noster vivit, & novissimo die videbimus Deum Salvatorem nostrum, Job xix.

And Thomas Knowles
is placed here,
Whose Bones from Bow
Were hither borne:
His godly Life
did well appear,
In helping those
that were forlorn:
And Virtue did
him so adorn,
That he beloved
was of all:
Mercer he was,
when Death did call,
In Prime of Years his Life away:
Who dying like a worthy Wight,
Did hope in Christ,
to live for aye,
His Wife him wailes
in woful Plight,
And for meer Love,
him here she pight,
With her second Spouse
to sleep in Peace;
And she with them,
when Life shall cease.

Ex eadem Domina Elizabetha trium prolium parens. Qui quidem Thomas obiit 11 die Julii An. a Messia nato, 1550.

OVER a little Door in the South Side of the Choit, at the Time of new repairing the Church, was was found an antient Figure of a Man, clothed in Scarlet, furred, holding open his Hands, as in Admiration, having Rings on the Thumb and Fingers of his Left Hand, and two Books before him, one closed, and the other lying open, with these Words to be read:

Recogitabo tibi omnes annos meos in amaritudine animæ meæ.

Mercy and Grace, and for ever Mercy, sweet Jesus, Ego Rogo.

SINCE the Rebuilding of this Church, in the Chancel, is a flat Stone laid over Daniel Herring-Hook, of LONDON, Merchant, that departed May 11, 1693, and his Sister Anne Herring, April 17, 1702.

THE Ground of the Parsonage or Vicarage is leased out, according to Act of Parliament.

Mr. Hotchkis, the Incumbent of this Parish, and the united Parish of St. John Baptist, in the Year 1693, when the Parochial Visitation of LONDON was held, gave in this Account of his Living, viz.

THAT he had 4 l. per Ann. a Ground Rent for the Parsonage House of St. Antholin's; as also had in his Possession, a Survey of the Dimensions of the Ground. The Lease he believed was only confirmed by the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, who is Patron of the Living.

THAT he had a Bequest of 10 l. per Ann. given by Mr. Parker, in King James, or King Charles I's Time; and paid on St. Thomas's Day, by the Merchant-Taylors Company.

THAT the same Person gave 5 l. per Ann. to the Clerk, and 5 l. per Ann. to the Poor. Both paid at the same Time, and by the aforesaid Company.

THAT great Encroachments were made on the unbuilt Church, and Church-yard. That the Parish had underhand consented to some, and received Rent for them; and that others were done by the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, without the Consent of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and Bishop of LONDON. And that the Chamberlain of LONDON, received the Rents for them. That there was also a Part of the Ground of his Parsonage House of St. Antholin's, taken in by the Lessee, to enlarge his own House and Yard.

THAT both Parishes had charitable Gifts to the Poor, (especially St. John Baptist) which he had great Reason to think were mis-employed, and put to other Uses.

THAT the Church-wardens of this Parish have 5 s. a-piece, and the Minister 3 s. 4 d. for receiving and paying a charitable Gift, to the Church-wardens of Friar Barnet, for the Poor in an Alms-house there.

A more modern Account of the State of the charitable Gifts belonging to this Parish of St. Antholin's, both towards the maintaining the Morning Lecture, and also for the relieving of the poorer Sort Yearly, standeth thus, as was drawn from the Account of Mr. *W. ## The PARISH of St. MARY ALDERMARY.

NEXT, on the South Side of Budge-row, by the West Corner thereof, and on the East of Cordwainers-street, or Bow-lane, is another Church, called St. Mary Aldermay, because the same was very old, and elder than any Church of St. Mary in the City.

IN St. Anthony's Parish aforesaid, Sir William Craven, the great and wealthy Alderman (from whence the Lords of that Name descended) had his Shop, though his Dwelling-house was in the Parish of St. Andrew Undershaft; which Shop, with the House, he left to his Partners, Robert and John Parker. For so his Will ran: "My Will and Mind is, that the said J. P. and R. P. shall have and enjoy the Lease of my House in the Parish of St. Antholin's in LONDON, which I hold of the Mercers Company; and the full Use and Occupation of the Shop, Ware-houses, Hall, Kitchen, Chambers, Parlours, and all other Rooms to the said Mese belonging, &c. for and during their natural Lives. &c. they keeping the said House in their own Possession, paying the Mercers Rent every half Year, maintaining the House in necessary Repairs, paying the Parson's Duties, and other Cessments, &c." And what his Trade and Calling was (which he continued to his Death) may appear in his said Will: Where ordering a Loan of some Money, he willed it to be Lent out of such Money, or Stock, as he had then going in Trade, or occupying in Woollen Cloth, or Clothes.

VOL. I.

THE old Church of St. Mary Aldermay, had its Foundation laid by Henry Keeble, Grocer, Mayor of LONDON in the Year 1510, who also gave 1000 l. to finish it, with a Steeple. This worthy Founder died Anno 1518, and was here buried.

His Arms: a Chevron engrailed on a Chief three Mulletts.

HE was free of the Company of Grocers, and Son of George Keeble, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON.

BUT that Church falling a Sacrifice to the deplorable Flames in 1666, the present Structure was built at the Charge of Henry Rogers, Esq; who gave 5000 l. to the like pious Use, as appears by the Inscription in Gold Letters, over the West Door; thus Englished:

"THIS Church (which was reduced to Ashes by the general Conflagration of the City, and is now rebuilt with much greater Magnificence, by the pious Liberality of one single, but very bountiful Hand, at the Expence of full 5000 l.) gratefully acknowledges in this comely Frontispiece, That this pious Benefaction is owing to Henry Rogers, Esq; the great Grandson of Edward Rogers, of Canington, Knight, who was a Confessor in Queen Mary's Days, and the Heir also of his Piety: In the Year of our Lord 1681.

The Memory of the Just shall be blessed.

(So far the Inscription.)

THIS Gentleman left the said Sum for rebuilding a Church; and his Executrix Mrs. Rogers was prevailed upon to apply it to that above-mentioned. The Donation was given before the publick Fund was settled by Parliament on Coals, for rebuilding Churches damnified and demolished by Fire.

IT was wainscotted and pewed at the Parish Charge; and the Altar-piece, with the Rails and Frame of the Communion-Table, were given by Dame Jane Smith, Relict of Sir John Smith, Knight, and Alderman of this City: So the Church was finished Anno 1682: And the Steeple was, about the Year 1701, built at the publick Charge, with Money arising by the Coal Duty, and was beautified, mostly paved, and a curious Vault made in the Year 1705.

As to the Order and Nature of the Building of this Church; the Walls are Stone, the Roof flattish, cover'd with Lead, and the Pillars that support it, as also the Tower and Windows, are of the modern Gothick Order. The Floor of the Chancel is one Step higher than the Nave of the Church.

IT is handsomely adorned and finished, the Roof with Circles, Gothick Arches, and Branches of Crocket-work and Fret-work; the grand Arches with the Arms of the Archbishop of Canterbury, i. e. that of the See, and these following; impaled with on a Chevron between three Crosses Formy as many Martlets.

ALSO with the Arms, in several Places, of the last Founder (which are likewise on a Hatchment on the South Side of the Church, and in the Glass of the East Window) viz. Argent, a Chevron between three Bucks Tripant Sable.

6 P

LIKEWISE

LIKEWISE there are Cherubims, Palm-Branches, &c. all done in Fret-work; and over the North-Isle are two small Cupola's.

It is well pewed with Oak, and wainscotted about 10 Feet high. The Pulpit is of the like Timber, carved and enriched with Cherubims, Fruit, &c.

THE Altar-piece is adorned with four Columns, their Entablature, and Compass Pediment, of the Corinthian Order; in the Middle of the Pediment, are the King's Arms carved, gilt, and painted. The Intercolumns, are the Commandments done in Gold on Black, and the Pater Noster and the Creed in Black Letters on Gold. Over the Decalogue, is a Glory between two Cherubims, with other Enrichments of Cartouches, &c. gilt, for the most Part with Gold.

THE Communion-Table is a Marble Slab on a carved Frame, resting on a Foot-pace of that Stone, Black and White, inclosed with Rail and Ballister.

THERE are also three inner Wainscot Door-cases; that at the West End is adorned with two fluted Pilasters, their Architrave, Frieze, Cornice and Pediment of the Corinthian Order, enrich'd with Leaves, Fruit, &c. and those on the North and South Sides are plain.

THE Dimensions of the Church, are Length 100 Feet, Breadth 63, Altitude about 45, and that of the Tower to the Vertex of the Pinnacles, near 135 Feet, wherein is one Bell.

MONUMENTS in this Church, were for

Henry Keeble, aforementioned, buried in a Vault by him prepared, with a fair Monument raised over him on the North Side of the Choir, now destroyed and gone; he gave by his Testament 1000*l.* towards the Building of the Church; and yet was not permitted a Resting-Place for his Bones there.

This noble Benefactor seemed to have no Monument set over his Body for divers Years, till the Year 1534, or 1535. But William Blount, Lord Mountjoy, who married Alice, the said Keeble's Daughter, by his Last Will, dated October 1534, ordered a Stone to be laid over him, upon this Consideration, that there was no Stone upon him, and for that he had been a special Benefactor to the Building of Aldermary Church, to the Value of 2000*l.* and above, which was a great Sum of Money in those Times.

Thomas Romaine, Mayor 1310, had a Chantry there.

Richard Chaucer, Vintner, (supposed to be Father to Sir Jeffrey Chaucer the Poet), gave to this Church his Tenement and Tavern, with the Appurtenances, in the Royal-street, the Corner of Kerion-lane, who was there buried 1348.

John Briton, Ralph Holland, Draper, one of the Sheriffs deceased 1452.

William Taylor, Grocer, Mayor, deceased 1483. He discharged that Ward of Fifteens, to be paid by the Poor.

Charles Blount, Lord Mountjoy, was there buried, about the Year 1545. He made or glazed the East Window, as appeareth by his Arms: His Epitaph was made by him in his Life-time thus:

Willingly have I fought,
and willingly have I found,
The fatal End that brought thither, as Duty bound:

Discharg'd I am of that I ought,
to my Country by honest Wound,
My Soul departed Christ hath bought,
the End of Man, is Ground.

Sir William Laxton, Grocer, Mayor, deceased 1556, was buried in the Vault, prepared by Henry Keeble, principal Founder of that Church, for himself, but his Bones were cast out, his Monument pulled down; and the Body of the said Sir William Laxton, as also of Sir Thomas Lodge, Grocer, Mayor, laid in their Place, with Monuments over them for the Time.

Keeble's Epitaph outlives his Monument, which was as follows:

Here is fixt the Epitaph of Sir Henry Keeble, Knight,
Who was some Time of London Mayor,
a famous worthy Wight,
Which did this Aldermary Church erect and set upright.
Though Death prevail with mortal Wight,
and hasten every Day,
Yet Virtue over-lives the Grave,
her Fame doth not decay:
As Memories do shew reviv'd,
of one that was alive,
Who being dead, of virtuous Fame,
none should seek to deprive;
Which so in Life deserv'd renowne,
for Facts of his to see,
That may encourage other now,
of like good Mind to be.
Sir Henry Keeble, Knight, Lord Mayor of London here he sate,
Of Grocers worthy Company,
the chieftest in his State,
Which in this City grew to Wealth,
and unto Worship came,
When Henry reign'd, who was the seventh of that redoubted Name;
But he to Honour did atchieve
the second Golden Year
Of Henry's Reign, so call'd the eighth, and made his Fact appear.
When he this Aldermary Church
gan build with great Expence,
Twice thirty Years agon, no doubt,
counting the Time from hence:
Which Work began the Year of Christ,
well known of Christen Men,
One thousand and five hundred just,
if ye will add but ten.
But lo, when Man purposeth most,
God doth dispose the best,
And so before this Work was done,
God call'd this Knight to Rest.
This Church as then not fully built,
he died about the Year,
When Ill May-day first took its Name,
which is down fixed here:
Whose Works became a Sepulchre,
to shrowd him in that Case,
God took his Soul, but Corpse of his was laid about this Place.
Who when he died, of this his Work
so mindful still he was,
That he bequeath'd one thousand Pounds to have it brought to pass.
The Execution of whose Gift, or where the Fault should be,
The Work as yet unfinished shall shew you all for me.
Which Church stands there, if any please to finish up the same,
As he hath well begun, no doubt,
and to his endless Fame;

They

They shall not only well bestow their Talent in this Life;
 But after Death, when Bones be rot, their Fame shall be most rife:
 With thankful Praise and good Report
 of our Parochians here,
 Which have of right Sir Henry's Fame,
 a-fresh renewed this Year.
 God move the Minds of wealthy Men, their Works so to bestow
 As he hath done, that though they die, their virtuous Fame may flow.

Inclita perpetuo durabit Tempore Virtus,
 Et floret fato non violanda truci.

ON a handsome Monument in the Chancel is
 this Inscription:

Sir William Laxton lies interred
 within this hollow Vault,
 That by good Life had happy Death,
 the End for which he fought.
 Of poor and rich he was belov'd,
 his Dealings they were just,
 God hath his Soul, his Body here consumed is to Dust.

Here lives by Fame, that lately died,
 Sir William Laxton's Wife,
 That ever was a Doe good,
 and liv'd a virtuous Life:
 A mindful Matron of the Poor,
 and to the learned Sort,
 A true and faithful Citizen,
 and died with good Report.

He died the 29th Day of July 1556.

ON a small Monument lying on the Ground is the following Inscription:

Here lieth buried Sir Thomas Lodge, Knight, and Dame Anne his Wife: He was Lord Mayor in the Year of our Lord God, 1563, when God did visit this City with a great Plague for our Sins.

For we are sure that our Redeemer liveth, and that we shall rise out of the Earth in the latter Day, &c. Job. 19.

Queen ELIZABETH'S Monument.

NEAR adjoining to this Church of Aldermary was a perpetual Chantry at the Altar of St. John Baptist, in the Chapel near the Parochial Church, over a Channel there, formerly called Export's Chantry: And for the Maintaining thereof were given three Messuages and Tenements, in the Tenure of Walter Yong, Will. May, and Will.
Campion, situate in the said Parish. These were by the King sold to Walter Yong, and Edmond
Yong, in the 2d of Edward VI.

Later MONUMENTS

LATE Monuments in this Church are these;
 against the South Wall a White Marble Monument of the Ionick Order, adorned with Columns, Festoons and Urns, with this Inscription:

Recordare novissimi.

Near this Place lies interred Elizabeth Han- son, Daughter of Sir Robert Hanson, Knt. some Time Lord Mayor of this City, by Dame Ca- tharine his Wife, one of the Coheirs of Michael Jones, Esq;

Sir Robert and his Lady are buried in this Church.

READER,

See how transient Human Nature is: There lies at your Feet, inclining to Dust, by the fatal Stroke of a Malignant Fever

Wit and Beauty, her celebrated Ornaments.

Ob. 24 Sept. 1690. Ætat suæ 23.

Edward Jordan, of the Middle-Temple, Gent. to whom she was espoused, has erected this Altar an Offering to her Memory.

Arms: Argent, three Mascles Sable on a Chief of the Second, three Lions Rampant of the First;
Borne on a Lozenge, as a Maiden.

ON a small white Marble Monument, adorned with Urn, &c. at the North-East Angle of the Chancel, this Inscription:

In Memory of Anne, Daughter of Charles and
Anne Perkins, late of this Parish.

READER,

Beneath this Marble, at thy Feet,
 within the Confines of a narrow Urn, Lyes humble Dust, a Blossom sweet once as thou art, now waits a blest Return:
 Her Life was holy, and her latest Breath
 Expir'd in Love to God, and patient Death.

March 16, 1697.

In the Middle of this Isle lie interred three others of their Children.

Arms here are: Gules on a Chevron between three Ostrich Feathers, Argent; as many Mullets Sable.

AGAINST a North Pillar, fronting South-East, on a small plain Marble Monument; is
 this Inscription:

In Memory of John Wats, fifth Son to Thomas and Elizabeth Wats, of this Parish, who died the 22d of July, 1705, aged 8 Years.

Peculiar Blessings bear the shortest Date,
 And wond'rous Birth early resign to Fate:
 They're made by Nature of superior Mould;
 Of too refin'd a Substance to grow old.

Near this Place also lie two Sons and two Daughters.

ON a spacious Marble Grave-stone, before the Rail of the Communion-Table, this Inscription:

Here lieth the Body of Sir John Smith, Knt.
 Alderman, and sometime Sheriff of LONDON;
 Son of James Smith, of Friday-street; Esq; He first married Anne, Daughter of William Ways, of Windsor, by whom he had one Son; afterwards he married Jane, Daughter of Robert Dean, of this Parish, by whom he had six Sons and three Daughters; three Sons and two Daughters only survived. He died the 17th of June, 1673.
 aged 46 Years.

Arms: Sable; a Lion Rampant Or, on a Chief
Argent, a Mullet Gules between two Torteaux.

GIFTS.

Thomas Hind, Mercer, buried in St. Anthony's, gave ten Fodder of Lead to the Covering of the Middle Isle of this Aldermary Church.

GIVEN

GIVEN to the Lecturer of this Church of St. Aldermary, 100*l.* by Mr. Garret, Merchant-Taylor, to endure as long as the Gospel should continue here; which, as Dr. Willet added, he trusted would be to the World's End.

THIS and divers other considerable Charities were given to this Parish; the Particulars whereof are not come to Hand. For the Security thereof, and for due and just Distribution of them, the Church-wardens formerly gave Bonds at their Entrance upon their Office. One of these Bonds, given by John Huet, Church-warden of St. Mary Aldermary, in the Year 1617, with two sufficient Persons bound with him, upon Penalty of 300*l.* ran as followeth:

THE Condition, &c. "That whereas the within bounden J. H. was of late elected and chosen by the Parishioners of the Parish of our Lady Aldermary, in the City of LONDON, to be one of the Church-wardens, or Keepers of the Goods, Ornaments, Writings and Rents of the said Parish for one Year, now next ensuing: If therefore the said J. H. his Executors, or Administrators, from Time to Time, when and as often, as he or they shall be reasonably required thereunto by the within named T. R. his Executors or Assignees, do make and yield up, or cause, &c. to such Auditors as shall be appointed by the said Parishioners in that Behalf, or to any of them, a true, just, plain, and perfect Account in Writing, as well of all and singular such Sum or Sums of Money, Plate, Writings, Debts, Rents, Arrerages of Rents, Duties, Profits, and other Goods, Thing and Things whatsoever, which hath, or from Time to Time, during the Time that he, the said J. H. shall continue Church-warden of the said Parish, shall come to the Hands or Possession, Rule, or Charge of the said J. H. as accident belonging or appertaining to the said Church, or to the Parishioners of the same, in Respect of the said Church. And also, of all Payment and Discharges, which shall be disbursed or laid out by the said J. H. or his Assignees, for, or concerning the said Church. As also, of all the disposing of all such Parts and Parcels of those several Sums of an Hundred Pounds, severally given and bequeathed by John Kemp, Draper, and William Garret, Merchant-Taylor, Citizens of LONDON, to the said Parish; to and for certain Uses and Purposes, mentioned in their several Testaments or last Wills, as shall likewise come to the Hands, or Disposition of the said J. H. during the Term aforesaid.

"AND upon the making, or giving up of such Acts, do well and truly pay and deliver, or cause to be paid and delivered, unto the said T. R. or to the Church-warden that shall next succeed, and come in the Room and Place of the said J. H. to and for the Use of the said Parish, all and singular such Sum or Sums of Money, Plate, Rents, Writings, Bonds, and other Goods, Thing and Things whatsoever, as by the same Account shall remain and be found to be due, and belonging to the said Parish and Church; or wherewith the said J. H. his Executors or Administrators, may then be charged with (all the said Payments and Charges disbursed, as aforesaid, allowed.) And also, if the said J. H. his Executors, or Administrators, do not at any Time hereafter, release, or otherwise acquit or discharge the said several Sums of 100*l.* or any Part thereof, delivered or lent out, or to be delivered or lent out, according to the Meaning and Intent of the said several Testaments, or any Bonds,

"as obligatory, or other Assurance made, or to be made, for the Payment thereof, or any Part thereof. Nor do any manner of Act, Deed, or Thing, that shall, or may, bar, avoid, hurt, or hinder the said Parish, for, touching, or concerning the said several Sums of 100*l.* or any Part or Parcel thereof: Or any Bond, or Assurance, had or taken, or to be had or taken for the same, or any Part or Parcel thereof; other than by or upon the Receipt of the said Sum, or Sums, growing due upon the said Bonds, or Assurances: Quod tunc, &c.

"Item, That if the within bounden J. H. Church-warden of, &c. during all the Time of his Churchwardenship, shall not commit, or do, or cause, &c. any Act, or Thing, or Acts, &c. touching or concerning the bargaining, selling, alienating, conveying, or assuring over the Church Lands, Tenements, or Possessions whatsoever, or any Part, &c. without the Consent and Agreement of eight other Persons, Parishioners of the said Parish; such as already have been Church-wardens, or Guardians of the said Church Land or Goods: Or in Default of them, such others as are or shall be most antient Parishioners, and of the best Reputation, in the said Parish of our Lady Aldermary, first had and obtained in Writing, under their Hands and Seals: Quod tunc, &c.

The PARISH of St. MARY LE BOW.

AT the upper End of Hosier-lane, as it was of old Time called, and in Cheap-side, is the Parish Church of St. Mary Le Bow, called de Arcubus,

Arcubus, from the Stone Arches, or Bows, that were on the Top of the Steeple, or Bell Tower thereof; for no other Part of the Church seemeth to have been arched at any Time. Yet hath the said Church never been known by any other Name than St. Mary Bow, or Le Bow. Neither is the said Church so called from the Court that was there kept, but the Court took its Name from the Place, and is called The Court of Arches, removed since to Doctors Commons.

THIS Church, in the Reign of William the Conqueror, being the first in this City built on Arches of Stone, was therefore called New Mary Church, or St. Mary de Arcubus, or Le Bow, in West Cheaping. As Stratford Bridge, being the first built (by Martilda, the Queen, Wife to Henry I.) with Arches of Stone, was called Stratford Le Bow; which Names to the said Church and Bridge, remain till this Day.

THE Chancel of this Church was raised, the Church new pewed, throughout repaired and beautified, in the Year of our Lord God 1620.

THIS Church, for divers Accidents happening there, hath been more famous than any other Parish Church of the whole City or Suburbs. First, we read, That in the Year 1090, and the third of William Rufus, by Tempest of Wind, the Roof of the Church of St. Mary Le Bow in Cheap, was overturned, wherewith some Persons were slain; and four of the Rafter, of six and twenty Feet in Length, with such Violence were pitched in the Ground of the High-street, that scarcely four Feet of them remained above the Ground; which were fain to be cut even with the Ground, because they could not be plucked out; for the City of LONDON was not then paved, but a moorish Ground.

IN the Year 1196, William Fitz-Osbert, a seditious Traitor, took the Steeple of Le Bow, and fortified it with Ammunition and Victuals; but it was assaulted, and William, with his Accomplices, were taken, (though not without Bloodshed) for he was forced by Fire and Smoak to forsake the Church; and then being by the Judges condemned, he was by the Heels drawn to the Elmes in Smithfield, and there hanged with nine of his Fellows, where, because his Favourers came not to deliver him, he forsook Mary's Son, (as he termed CHRIST our Saviour) and called upon the Devil to help and deliver him. Such was the End of this Deceiver, a Man of an evil Life, a secret Murtherer, a filthy Fornicator, a Polluter of Concubines, and (amongst other his detestable Facts) a false Accuser of his elder Brother, who had (in his Youth) brought him up in Learning, and done many Things for his Preferment.

IN the Year 1271, a great Part of the Steeple of Le Bow fell down, and slew many People, Men and Women. In the Year 1284, the 13th of Edward I., Lawrence Ducket, Goldsmith, having grievously wounded one Ralph Crepin, in West Cheap, fled into Le Bow Church; into which (in the Night Time) entered certain evil Persons, Friends unto the said Ralph, and slew the said Lawrence, lying in the Steeple, and then hanged him up; placing him so by the Window, as if he had hanged himself, and so was it found by Inquisition. For which Fact Lawrence Ducket, being drawn by the Feet, was buried in a Ditch without the City: But shortly after, (by Relation of a Boy who lay with the said Lawrence at the Time of his Death, and had hid him there for Fear) the Truth of the Matter was disclosed. For which Cause, Jordan Goodcheape, Ralph Crepin, Gilbert Clarke, and Jeffery Clarke, were attainted, and a certain Woman named Alice, that was chief Causer of the said Mischiefe, was burnt; and to the Number of sixteen Men, were drawn and hanged: Besides others, that being richer, after long Imprisonment, were made to suffer in the Purse.

THE Church was interdicted, the Doors and Windows were stopped up with Thorns; but Lawrence was taken up, and honestly buried in the Church-yard.

THE Parish Church of St. Mary Le Bow, by means of Incroachment, and Building of Houses, wanting Room in their Church-yard for Burial of their dead, John Rotkam, or Rodham, Citizen and Taylor, by his Testament, dated the Year 1465, gave to the Parson and Church-wardens there, for ever, a certain Garden in Hosier-lane, to be a Church-yard; which so continued near a hundred Years, but now is built on, and is a private Man's House. The old Steeple of this Church was by little and little re-edified, and new built up, at least so much as was fallen down; many Men giving Sums of Money to the Furtherance thereof. So that at length, to wit, in the Year 1469, it was ordained by a Common-Council, that the Bow Bell should be Nightly rung at nine of the Clock.

SHORTLY after, John Dunne, Mercer, by his Testament dated 1472, according to the Truith of Reginald Longdon, gave to the Parson and Church-wardens of St. Mary Le Bow, two Tenements, with the Appurtenances, since made into one, in Hosier-lane, then so called, to the Maintenance of Bow Bell: The same to be rung as aforesaid, and other Things to be observed, as by the Will appeareth.

THIS Bell being usually rung somewhat late, Mr. Stow says, in his Time, as it seemed to the young Men Apprentices, and others in Cheap, they made and set up a Rhime against the Clerk, as followeth:

Clerk of the Bow Bell,
With the yellow Locks,
For thy late ringing,
Thy Head shall have Knocks.

IN answer to which the Clerk wrote:

Children of Cheap,
Hold you all still,
For you shall have the
Bow Bell rung at your Will.

THE Parish Clerk's Office, belonging to this Church, was to ring the Curfew Bell, as it was to be rung at three other Churches in LONDON, at a good Distance from each other: That so at this Notice, all the Curfew Bells in other Parishes might be rung at the proper Time; viz. Barking Church, St. Brides, and St. Giles's without Cripplegate. And if any Parish Clerk rung after the Curfews were rung at these Places, he was to be presented by the 'Quest' of Ward-mote in every Ward.

Robert Harding, Goldsmith, one of the Sheriffs 1478, gave to the new Work of that Steeple 40*l.* John Haw, Mercer, 10*l.* Dr. Allen, 4*l.* Thomas Baldry, 4*l.* and more was given by others. So that the said Work of the Steeple was finished in the Year 1512. The Arches, or Bows, thereon, with the Lanthorns, five in Number, to wit, one at each Corner, and one at Top, in the Middle, upon the Arches, were also afterwards finished with Stone, brought from Caen in Normandy; delivered at the Customer's-key, for 4*s.* 6*d.* the Tun. William Copland, Taylor, the King's Merchant, and Andrew Fuller, Mercer, being Church-wardens 1515 and 1516. It is said that this Copland gave the great Bell, which made the fifth in the Ring, and to be called the Bow Bell, and to be rung nightly at Nine of the Clock.

It is said also, that this Bell was first rung as a Knell at the Burial of the said Copland. It seemeth, that the Lanthorns on the Top of this Steeple, were meant to have been glazed, and Lights in them to have been placed Nightly in the Winter; whereby Travellers to the City might have the better Sight thereof, and not to miss their Ways.

In this Parish, also, was a Grammar-School, by Commandment of King Henry VI, which School was (of old Time) kept in an House for that Purpose, prepared in the Church-yard. But that School being decayed, as others about this City; the School-house was let out for Rent, in the Reign of Henry VIII, for 4s. the Year; a Cellar belonging to the Parsonage, for 2s. the Year; and two Vaults under the Church, for 15s. both.

The Church in the Year 1620 was new pewed and beautified; but being a Sharer in the Ruins made by the fatal Flames, in the Year 1666, was rebuilt and finished Anno 1673; the Dial put up 1681.

Dame Dionis Williamson, of Haleshal, in the County of Norfolk, gave to the Inhabitants of this Parish, 2000*l.* towards the Rebuilding and splendid Furnishing of this Church and Steeple; and furnishing the same with Bells, &c. And surely, for the Number and Melody of the Bells, Bow, since the Fire, surpasseth former Times.

The Church was repaired and beautified, and the present Altar-piece set up, at the Beginning of the Year 1706.

The Church is well built of Brick, and some Stone, the Walls covered with a Finishing, the Roof is arched and supported with 10 Columns of the Corinthian Order, and covered with Lead. The Floor is paved with Stone; and there are three Isles; besides the Cross Isle at the West End, and several handsome Six-Light Windows.

ORNAMENTS and Finishing are as follow: The Roof is adorned with Pannels and Arches of Crocket-work, and some Fret-work; between the Columns are Arches, and above them an Entablament; on the Key-pieces of the Arches are Cherubims: It is pewed, and wainscotted nine Feet and an half high with Oak; the Pulpit of the same is finnier'd and carved, having Enrichments of Leaves, Coronets, Escalops, &c. Near the North West Angle, is a handsome inner Door-case of right Wainscot, adorned with four fluted Pilasters, of the Corinthian Order, and another inner Door-case at the West End, adorned with two such Pilasters and Entablature; where is also painted on the Glass of the West Window, the Arms of the pious and charitable Lady Williamson, viz.

Or, a Chevron, Gules, between three Trefoils slipt, Sable; impaled with Azure, a Chevron Counter embattell'd, Or, Quartered with Sable, a Chevron engrailed between three Talbots Passant, Argent.

THERE are handsome Galleries on the North and South Sides; at the West End of each are Seats for the Charity Children, the Boys on one Side, and the Girls on the other. The Altar-piece is very neat; it is adorned below with four fluted Pilasters and Entablature of the Corinthian Order, two on each Side of the Decalogue, done in Gold Letters on Black, under a Glory, all in one square Frame carved and gilt; and above are two Attick Pilasters, with Cornice and Compass Pediment, whereon are placed the Figures of seven Golden Candlesticks, with flaming Tapers. Under this Pediment is a spacious Glory, the Rays curiously finnier'd, replenishing a Circle about five Feet Diameter; in the Center whereof are these Words:

Glory be to God on high.

AND under, in one Line without the Circle, these Words:

In Earth Peace, Good-Will towards Men.

THIS upper Part of the Altar-piece is enriched with Palm-Branches, Leaves, and Voluta's, between two Lamps; and all the before-mentioned placed between spacious beautiful Columns, painted in Imitation of Lapis Lazuli; and their Entablature is painted like Porphyry, the Capitals and Enrichments hereof being gilt with Gold; and without these Columns are placed the Lord's Prayer Northward, and Creed Southward: And at the West End of the Church is a Marble Font standing on a Marble Foot-pace; and the King's Arms are placed on the Front of the North Gallery.

BUT the principal Ornament of this Church is Bow Steeple, the Steeple, erected near the North West Angle thereof, and made contiguous by a Lobby, between the Church and the Steeple. It is accounted by judicious Artists an admirable Piece of Architecture, not to be parallell'd by the Steeple of any Parochial Church in Europe.

THE Author of some Weekly Essays, whom we have mentioned on other Occasions, says, "This Steeple is a Master-piece in a peculiar Kind of Building, which has no fix'd Rules to direct it, nor is it to be reduced to any settled Laws of Beauty: Without doubt, if we consider it only as a Part of some other Building, it can be esteem'd no other than a delightful Absurdity: But if either considered in itself, or as a Decoration of a whole City in Prospect, not only to be justified, but admir'd. It is beyond Question as perfect as human Imagination can contrive, or execute, and, till we see it outdone, we shall hardly think it to be equalled."

THIS Building was designed by the incomparable Sir Christopher Wren; it is of Portland Stone, consisting of a Tower and Spire: The Tower is square; in the North Side thereof is a Door and beautiful Door-case; the Peers and Arch are of the Tuscan Order, and adorned with two Columns and Entablature of the Dorick Order; the Metops enriched with Cherubims; above the Cornice is an elliptical Aperture, on the Key a Cherub, whence by Way of Compartment, are extended two Festoons of large Fruit, sustained lower by two Cupids in a sitting Posture, their Feet resting on the Cornice; and the whole farther adorned with Rustick Work, and another Door-case of the same Form on the West Side; above which, on the North Side is another Aperture and Balcony, and a little higher a Modillion Cornice; above that are four Windows (on each Side one) each adorned with four Pilasters, with Entablament of the Ionick Order; on the Cornice an Acroteria, at each Angle four Cartouches erected tapering, and on the meeting of the upper Ends a spacious Vase, which terminates the Tower.

THE Spire begins with a circular Mure, and on that, a little higher than the Tops of the said Vases, is a Range of Columns, with Entablature and Acroteria, of the Corinthian Order. This Balcony is adorned with Bows or Arches, all which you pass under in walking round this Part of the Spire, which (a little higher) is adorned with Pedestals, their Columns and Entablature, of the Composite Order; so that here are the five Orders placed in the same Way they are commonly expressed.

ON the Cornice of this last Order stand several Cartouches, whereon is erected a Pyramidical Body of a considerable Altitude, and at the Vertex thereof a spacious Ball; and above that (as a Weather-cock) is the Figure of a Dragon of polished Brass, about 10 Feet long (with Wings somewhat expanded) and proportionably bulky; yet is turned by the least Wind, so as to shew from what Quarter it blows very exactly.

THE Dimensions of the Church within, are Length 65 Feet and a half, Breadth 63, Altitude 38, and that of the famous Steeple 225 Feet, wherein are eight large tuneable Bells.

The MONUMENTS in the old Church were these, viz.

Sir John Coventry, Mercer, Mayor, 1425. Richard Lambert, Alderman. Nicholas Alwine, Mercer, Mayor 1499, deceased 1505. Robert Harding, Goldsmith, one of the Sheriffs, 1478. John Loke, one of the Sheriffs, 1461. Edward Bankes, Alderman, Haberdasher, 1566. John Ward, William Pierston, Scrivener, and Attorney in the Common Pleas. In a Chapel, on the South Side of the Church, stood a Tomb, elevated and arched, of some unknown Founder. Ade de Buke, Hatter, glaz'd the Chapel, and most Part of the Church, and was there buried.

ON an antient Marble Tomb in the Chancel, on the North Side was the following Inscription:

Here lieth Richard Lambert, Grocer, late Alderman and Sheriff of LONDON; Merchant-Adventurer, and free of Muscovia and Russia, who deceased in the Time of his Shrievalty, the 4th Day of April, An. Dom. 1567, &c.

THE Monument of Sir John Coventry.

ON a Grave-stone in the Chancel was this Inscription:

Here lyeth the Body Humphrey Walcot, of Walcot, in the County of Salop, Esq; Merchant-Adventurer, and of the Company of Grocers in this City of LONDON. He died the 28th Day of August, 1616, being about the Age of 71, leaving behind him his Wife Alice, the Daughter of Richard Halsey, Esq; and by her he had ten Children, five Sons and five Daughters, having had by her eight more, who died young.

HERE was likewise a Monument in the Memory of Queen Elizabeth, with the Words in 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8, and a Representation of the Monument.

ERECTED by King James for Elizabeth, Queen of England, France, and Ireland, &c. Daughter of King Henry VIII, by Queen Anna

Bullen, Grandchild to King Henry VII, Great Grandchild to King Edward IV, and Sister to King Edward VI, and Queen Mary. She restored Religion to its primitive Sincerity; settled Peace thoroughly; reduced Coin to the old Standard; extinguish'd Rebellion at home; relieved France, near Ruin by intestine Mischiefs; supported the Netherlands; vanquish'd Spain's Armado; quieted Ireland with Spaniards Expulsion, and Traytors Coercion; augmented exceedingly both Universities Revenues by a Law of Provision; and enriched all England.

Was a Mother to this her Country; the Nurse of Religion and Learning, for perfect Skill of very many Languages; for glorious Endowments, as well of Mind as Body; and, for Regal Virtues, beyond her Sex.

A Princess incomparable.

And after 45 Years most prudent and happy Government, she died, in the 70th Year of her Age, A. D. 1602. Whose Corpse is interr'd in the famous Collegiate Church of Westminster.

On the other Side.

UNDER

UNDER a Grave-stone at the West End of the Church, lies Mrs. Julian Marshal, Relict of John Marshal, of St. Olave's Southwark, Wool-Merchant. Deceased the 25th of February, 1701. Aged about 89, and was here buried, according to her own Desire.

She was always faithful to the Doctrine and Discipline of the Church of England, even in the most difficult Times. And as a Testimony of her Affection to the Church, left the greatest Part of her Estate to such orthodox and indigent Clergymen, as are thoroughly and truly conformable to the Doctrine and Ceremonies thereof.

AT the same End of the Church is a handsome Monument, with both their Effigies in Relief, for Colonel Bainton and his Lady. He died 26 May 1712. Aged 47. She the 6th of October 1719. Æt. sue 49.

ALMOST close to the last is another handsome Monument, with a curious Marble Bust, under which is the following Inscription :

Near this Place lie interred Mr. James Cart of this Parish, who died the 8th of June 1706, aged 46; and six of his nine Children, viz. one Son and two Daughters, who died Infants. Jane marry'd to John Church Medcalf of London, Soap-maker, died the 10th of June 1717, aged 29 Years; buried at Windsor. William died the 19th of June 1717, aged 25 Years. Joseph dy'd the 8th of September 1717; aged 21 Years. John died the 13th of September 1720, aged 35 Years; buried at St. Sepulchre's. Thomas Chew died the 27th of March 1722, aged 28 Years; buried at Dunstable. James, late of St. John's-street, departed this Life the 9th of October 1731, aged 41 Years; lamented by the best of Mothers, to whom he paid a most extraordinary Duty to his last Moments.

ON the North Wall of the Church is a neat Marble Table hung up, thus inscribed :

Near this Place lies interred, under a black Marble, with an Inscription,

The Body of Thomas Gearing, Esq; who departed this Life the 24th of June, 1730, in the 62d Year of his Age.

GIFTS and CHARITIES.

OF the large and liberal Charities given to this Parish, some of the following were communicated to Mr. Strype by Dr. Bradford, the late Bishop of Rocheſter, who was formerly Incumbent there.

Samuel Lefe, Citizen and Clothworker, by his last Will, dated April 26, 1634, gave to the Company of Clothworkers two Houses near Holbourn-bridge, in the Parish of St. Andrew's Holbourn, for divers pious and charitable Uses; particularly, for a Sermon to be preached in the Parish of Bow, on the 1st of May yearly, 1 l. to the Clerk and Sexton 3 s. to the Church-wardens of the Parish of St. Andrew's Holbourn, for the use of the Poor yearly 2 l. To the Master and Wardens of the said Company of Clothworkers, for their Pains in seeing the same performed, five Shillings a-piece; that is, one Pound five Shillings; (which Company come to the Sermon.) To the Assistants of the Yeomanry, i. e. those not on the Livery, ten Shillings. To the Beadle, &c.

Theophilus Royle, Citizen and Draper of LONDON, by his last Will, dated Feb. 5, 1655, gave for a Sermon to be preached in St. Mary Le Bow, on the 5th of November, yearly, at five o'Clock, by the Rector of the said Parish, in Commemoration of our great Deliverance from the Gunpowder Treason, 1 l. appointing that a Number of poor People, whereof three of the Drapers Company, should be at the preaching of the same Sermon; and receive 5 s. a-piece, by the Hands of the Wardens.

DEPUTY Withers, formerly an Inhabitant of the Parish, who died in March, An. 1700, by his Will, gave to the Minister and Church-wardens of this Parish, an Annuity of 40 s. to be paid out of the House in which he dwelt, viz. at the Corner of Bow-lane in Cheapside, during the Lease of the said House; for a Sermon to be preached, yearly, on Good Friday in the Afternoon. Whereof to the Preacher 1 l. to the Reader of the Prayers of the Church of England, 5 s. to the Clerk and Sexton, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece. And to four of the poorest Inhabitants, that frequent the Prayers, 2 s. 6 d. a-piece.

THE following Sums were given by Will, for the Maintenance of a weekly Lecture in St. Mary Le Bow, by these Persons following :

	l.
By George Palin , buried Oct. 16, 1610.	100
By Mrs. Stone , buried May 28, 1612.	10
By Mr. Banton , paid Nov. 3, 1623.	50
By Gabriel Cumberland , by Will 1626.	10
By Sarah Cox , about 1635.	40
In all	210

IN January, An. 1621-2, on Thursday at five o'Clock, the Lecture was set up. The several Legacies before-mentioned, having been laid out by the Church-wardens, together with some Addition (as it seems) of the Parish-Stock, for the Purchase of two Tenements, and a Shop, in Abchurch-lane, which was put into the Hands of Trustees, of the same Parish; to employ the Rent of the said Tenement, for the Maintenance of the said Lecture.

THE Rent received, as appears by the Parish Books, for divers Years, until the great Fire, was 26 l. per Ann. The Lecturer received after the Rate of 30 l. per Ann. to the Year 1640. The Clerk and Sexton 20 s. a-piece, besides Candles. From the Year 1640, to the Fire, he received 32 l. 10 s. After the Fire, the Houses being burnt down, a Lease was made and signed by the Rector, Mr. Smalwood, and Church-wardens, July 16, 1668, granting to Thomas Bowes, Esq; the Ground of the said Houses, for ninety Years; paying 12 l. per Ann.

WHEN the Church was rebuilt, the said Mr. Smalwood, the then Rector, preached this Lecture once a Month, (viz. the Thursday before the Sacrament) and received in Consideration of it, the said Ground Rent of 12 l. per Ann. Since Mr. Smalwood's Death, the Lecture is discontinued: But of late, the Rector finding it in the Parish Books, hath set it up again; which is preached by the Reader, as it was before, and the Salary paid.

IN this Church, for many Years, has been preached one of the most notable metaphysical Lectures that ever was founded, viz. that instituted by the Honourable Robert Boyle, Esq; a Boyle's Gentleman famous for great Learning as well as Lectures. Piety, (which shews they are not incompatible.) He settled a Salary of 50 l. per Annum, and appointed Dr. Tennison, the late Archbishop of Canterbury, Sir Henry Ashurst, Sir John Rotheram, and John Evelyn, Esq; Trustees for applying the said Sum for the preaching of eight Sermons yearly, viz. on the first Mondays of January, February, March, April, May, September, October, and November, by such Minister, and at such Church, as the said Trustees should think proper; no one to exceed three Years as Preacher thereof. And by this Foundation these Sermons are are to prove and establish the Christian Religion against Pagans, Jews, Mahometans, Atheists, and Deists; but not to descend to Controversies among Christians; likewise to assist and encourage the Propagation of the Christian Religion; and to satisfy such Scruples, and answer such new Objections, as any may have or start, and which have not yet met with full Answers.

How well the Founder's End has been answered, appears from the many learned and rational Discourses which have come into the World through this Channel. To this Institution we owe some of the most admired Pieces of two of the greatest Divines, and most celebrated Names for Genius and Extent of Learning among the Moderns, and who, perhaps, never had their Superiors in some Parts of Knowledge, we mean the present Dr. Bentley, and the late Dr. Clarke. Although these Lectures have for many Years been preached at this Church, they were not indeed, by either of these great Men, but were preached at St. Martin's in the Fields, on the 7th of March 1691-2, by Dr. Bentley, who was the first that was appointed: This Gentleman's Discourses were wrote to the Capacities of all Men, and yet acquired the Admiration of Judges for Solidity of Argument and Beauty of Diction. Dr. Clarke has not wrote to the Numbers which Dr. Bentley has; some Parts of his Discourses requiring the Attention of the Philosopher to see thro' his Chain of Argument; which when discovered, the inseparable Connection appears to the Conviction and Delight of his Readers. This eminent Divine preached these Lectures in the Years 1704 and 1705, at St. Paul's Cathedral. The Benefits which arise to the World (for the Writings of a Bentley and a Clarke, are not confined to our own Island) from this wise and liberal Endowment of Mr. Boyle, should fire other opulent and considerate Men, with the same generous Disposition to do Honour to their Country, to profit the World, and do an Act grateful to the Divinity himself: And if her present Majesty, who has distinguished two of these Persons by a peculiar Mark of Esteem, was heartily disposed to deliberate and execute a Design similar to Mr. Boyle's, she would greatly add to the Fame which she has acquired by erecting Statues to the Memories of the illustrious Dead.

THESE Lectures have been preached this present Year 1733, in this Church by the Reverend Dr. Hayes, and for three Years before by the Reverend Dr. Berryman.

IN this Parish of St. Mary Le Bow, was a Parsonage-House, let out by Lease, to be built for forty Years, from Lady Day 1676, at 4*l.* per Ann. being the Woolpack, an Alehouse in Bow-lane.

THERE is also a Ground Rent of 40*s.* the Minister received for an House partly situated in the Church-yard; let by Lease to the Drapers, for sixty five Years; from May 1, Anno 1670.

AFTER the Fire of LONDON, this Parish was united to those of St. Pancras and Albhallows Honey-lane of which see farther in Cheap Ward.

THE Living is a Rectory; the Presentation is in the Archbishop of Canterbury, being a Peculiar. Value of united Parishes per Act of Parliament, is 200*l.* per Ann. St. Mary Le Bow is rated in the King's Books at 33*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* ob.

THE Rector is the Reverend Dr. Samuel Lisle, Archdeacon of Canterbury, and the Lecturer the Reverend Dr. Henry Stebbing.

PRAYERS are at eight in the Morning, and five in the Afternoon, daily. No Organ. Gift Sermons are two in the Month of August in the Morning at eight o'Clock Prayers, on Account of the Spanish Invasion in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth; one on the 25th of July, the Gift of

Thomas Chapman, Esq; one on Good Friday, the Gift of Mr. Withers, before-mentioned. Two Sermons on the fifth of November, one in the Morning, the other in the Evening. One of St. Mark's Day, the Gift of Mr. Hutchinson, Goldsmith, late of Cheapside: Each of the Charity Children receives then one Loaf of Bread, and 3*d.* in Money.

NUMBER of Houses 104.

WITHOUT the North Side of this Church of St. Mary Le Bow, towards West Cheap, stood a Building of Stone, called in Record Sildam, a Shed which greatly darkened the said Church: For by means thereof, all the Windows and Doors, on that Side were stopped up.

THIS Building was made by King Edw. III. upon this Occasion; In the Reign of the said King, divers Justings were made in LONDON, betwixt Soper's-lane and the Cross in Cheap; namely, one great Justing was there in the Year 1330, the 4th of Edward III., whereof is noted thus. About the Feast of St. Michael, there was a great and solemn Justing of all the stout Earls, Barons, and Nobles of the Realm, at LONDON, in West Cheap, betwixt the great Cross and the great Conduit, nigh Soper's-lane; which Justing lasted three Days: Where Queen Philippa, with many Ladies, fell from a Stage of Timber, notwithstanding, they were not hurt at all. Wherefore the Queen took great Care to save the Carpenters from Punishment: And through her Prayer, (which she made on her Knees) she pacified the King and Council; and thereby purchased great Love of the People.

AFTER which Time, the King caused this Silde or Shed, to be made, and strongly to be built of Stone, for himself, the Queen, and other Estates to stand in, there to behold the Justings, and other Shews at their Pleasures. And this House (for a long Time after) served to that Use: Namely, in the Reign of Edward III., and Richard II. But in the Year 1410, Henry IV., in the 12th of his Reign, confirmed the Shed, or Building, to Stephen Spilman, William Marchford, and John Wattel, Mercers; by the Name of the new Sildam, Shed, or Building, with all the Shops, Cellars, and Edifices whatsoever appertaining, called Crounsilde (and in the 8th of the said Henry, called Tamarfild) situate in the Mercery in West Cheap, and in the Parish of St. Mary de Arcubus in LONDON; and a certain Shop in the said Parish, between the same Shed, and the King's Highway of West Cheap, annexed to the said Shed, with two Shops, Cellars, and Edifices whatsoever; as well built, or any Way being over the said Shop, as over the Entry of the said Shed, which were holden of him in Priorgage, as all the City of LONDON is: And which were worth by Year, in all Issues, (according to the true Value of them) 7 l. 13 s. 4 d. as was found by Inquisition there, before Thomas Knowles, Mayor, and Escheter in the said City.

Notwithstanding which Grant, the Kings of England, and other great Estates; as well of Foreign Countries repairing to this Realm, as Inhabitants of the same, have usually repaired to this Place, therein to behold the Shews of this City, passing through West Ceap, namely, the great Watches accustomed in the Night, on the Even of St. John Baptist, and St. Peter, at Midsummer; the Examples whereof were too long to recite: Wherefore let it suffice briefly to touch one:

IN the Year 1510, the 2d of Henry VIII, on St. John's Even, at Night, the King came to this Place; then called the King's-head in Cheap, in the Livery of a Yeoman of the Guard, with an Halbert on his Shoulder; and there beholding the Watch, departed privily, when the Watch was done; and was not known to any but to whom it pleased him: But on St. Peter's Night, next following, he and the Queen came Royally riding to the said Place; and there, with their Nobles, beheld the Watch of the City, and returned in the Morning.

THIS Church of St. Mary, with the said Shed of Stone, all the Housing in and about Bow Church-yard, and without, on that Side the High-street of Cheap, to the Standard, are of Cordwainer-street Ward. These Houses were (of old Time) but Sheds; For no Housing was otherwise, on that Side the Street; but of divers Sheds from Soper's-lane to the Standard, &c. Amongst others, there were three Shops or Sheds by Soper's-lane, pertaining to the Prior of the Holy Trinity, within Aldgate. The one was let out for 28 s. one other for 20 s. and the third for 12 s. by the Year. Moreover, that Richard Goodcheape, Mercer, and Margery his Wife, Son to Jordan Goodcheape did let to John Dalinges the younger, Mercer, their Shed and Chamber in West Cheap, in the Parish of St. Mary de Arches, for 3 s. 4 d. by the Year. Also the Men of Bread-street Ward contended with the Men of Cordwainers-street Ward, for a Sild or Shed opposite to the Standard, on the South Side; and it was found to be of Cordwainers-street Ward, William Waldron being then Mayor, the 1st of Henry VI.

Now for the present State of this Ward:

Modern State of this Ward.

THE principal Streets and Lanes in it, are Bow-lane, new Queen-street, Budge-row, Little St. Thomas Apostle's, Pancras-lane, with a small Part of Watling-street, and Basing-lane.

Watling-street hath its greatest Part in Bread-street Ward; what lies in this Ward, begins on the East Side of Red-lion-court, and so goeth to Budge-row. This Court is square and large, well built and inhabited; having a Passage into Basing-lane. Cross-keys-court, a handsome Place, with a Free-Stone Pavement. St. Mary Aldermary Church-yard, a large Place with an open Passage for Coach or Cart, into Bow-lane; being a Place very well inhabited by Merchants, and Persons of good Repute. In this Church-yard, at the End towards Bow-lane, is seated St. Mary Aldermary Church; being large and well built, with a tower'd Steeple all of Free Stone.

Basing-lane hath but a small Part in this Ward.

Bow-lane begins at Trinity-lane, and falls into Cheap-side, by St. Mary-le-Bow Church. The Part of this Lane, in this Ward, begins about 50 Feet from Cheap-side, on both Sides the Way: and 60 Feet beyond Basing-lane: And then on the West Side, only to Trinity-lane. This was anciently called Cordwainers-street, being well inhabited and built. In this Lane are these Courts and Places of Name, viz. Half-moon-court, by some called Lugg-yard, a Place something open, but ordinary; it is likewise, by some, called Whalebone-court, from one that there boileth Whalebone. Taylor's-court, a handsome open Place. Robin-Hood-court, indifferent long, and well built. New-court, a handsome genteel Place, with a Door next the Street, to shut up at Night. St. Mary Aldermary Church, the West End seated in this Lane. Goose-alley, but ordinary; at the Upper End of which is Twelve Bell-court, which is but small and narrow. It hath a Passage through Compter's-alley into Bow Church-yard, both Places of small Account. George-alley, or Yard, but narrow, hath a Passage into New Queen-street, through Weld-court. Rose-court, but mean and ordinary. St. Mary-le-Bow Church, the Front seated in Cheap-side, but the Back Part in Bow-lane.

New Queen-street, built in the Place where Soper's-lane was, and now made an open Street, (before the great Fire very narrow) with very good Houses, well inhabited; it fronts King-street, which is opposite to Guildhall, and in a strait Line runneth down to the Thames, at the Three Cranes; but the Part of this Street, in this Ward, goeth no farther than St. Thomas Apostle's. In this Street is Weld-court, a handsome square Place, with well built and inhabited Houses: This Court hath a Passage into George-yard, which falls into Bow-lane.

Pancras-lane comes out of New Queen-street, and falls into Bucklersbury; the South Side is in this Ward, and the North in Cheap Ward. This Lane is but ordinarily built and inhabited, except one large House, the Dwelling of a Merchant, on the South Side; and on the North, before the Fire of LONDON, stood two Churches, viz. St. Pancras's Soper-lane, and St. Bennet's Sherehog; but these two Churches remain unbuilt; and united to others; viz. that of St. Pancras, to St. Mary le Bow; and that of St. Bennet Sherehog, to St. Stephen Wallbrook; but these two Churches were seated in Cheap Ward. Adjoining to St. Pancras's Church is a small Court, but no fixed Name is given to it.

St. Sithe's-lane comes out of Pancras-lane, and falls in Budge-row, by St. Anthony's Church, a Lane well built, and inhabited by Merchants.

Budge-row takes its Rise from Watling-street; and runs Eastwards to Cannon-street; from which it is severed by Wallbrook on the North, and Dowgate on the South. The Houses are good, and taken up by good Tradesmen, being so great a Thoroughfare. In this Street is Dodson's-court, a large Place, well built and inhabited, and hath a Passage into Cloak-lane: On the South Side, is a Passage into Tower-Royal-street.

St. Anthony's Church, a very neat Free-stone Building, with a curious wrought Spire, and a Golden Ball on the Tower. On the West Side of the Church is an open square Place, and on the South Side are several Free Stones placed in the Street, Pyramid Fashion, orderly along by the Church, the better to secure the Foot-Passengers from Carts and Coaches, this Part of the Street being very narrow.

Tower-Royal-street, but short, comes out of Budge-row, and falls into St. Thomas Apostle's. In this Street is a handsome small Court, which bears the Name of that Street: Strawberry-court but small. For what more relates to this Street, see in Vintry Ward.

St. Thomas Apostle's, the Fore Street, or Great St. Thomas Apostle's, or the Backside of St. Thomas

mas Apostle's; and both Streets run Westward, crossing New Queen-street, and falling into Bow-lane; but the Street of Great St. Thomas Apostle's is in Vintry Ward.

IN Little St. Thomas, are these Courts, Cross-Keys-court, which is but small; Key-court, open and indifferent, well built and inhabited, with a Free-Stone Pavement.

THERE are placed at the several Stands in this Ward, that watch every Night, a Constable, a Beadle, and 24 Watchmen.

THE Jurymen, returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward, are to serve in the several Courts in Guildhall, in the Month of December.

THIS Ward hath an Alderman, and his Deputy, eight Common-Council-Men, eight Constables, eight Scavengers, 14 Wardmote Inquest Men, and a Beadle. It stands taxed to the Fifteen in LONDON, at 52*l.* 16*s.* In the Exchequer, at 52*l.* 6*s.*

THE Alderman of this Ward is Sir William Billers; at this Time Lord Mayor.

C H E A P W A R D.

Cheap Ward.

NEXT adjoining is Cheap Ward, which took its Name from the Market that was there kept, called West-Cheaping. This Ward begins on the East, on the Course of Wallbrook in Bucklersbury, and runs up, on both Sides, to where the great Conduit stood in Cheapside. Also on the South Side of Bucklersbury, a Lane running up by where St. Sythe's, and near where St. Pancras Church stood, thro' Needler's-lane, on the North thereof; and then thro' a Piece of Soper's-lane, on both Sides up to the Cheap, are all of this Ward.

THEN to begin again in the East, upon the said Course of Wallbrook, is St. Mildred's Church in the Poultry, on the North Side; next to that is Grocer's-alley, called in old Times Coney-hope-lane; then about a Quarter Part of the Old Jury on the West Side, and something more on the East. Then is Ironmongers-lane, wholly on both Sides; and from the North End thereof, through Catton, or Cateaton-street, West, to the North End of St. Lawrence's-lane; and about four Houses West beyond the same on that Side, and over-against Ironmongers-lane End, on the North Side of Cateaton-street, up by Guildhall and St. Lawrence's Church in the Jury, is altogether of Cheap Ward.

THEN again in Cheapside, more towards the West, is St. Lawrence's-lane, before-named, which is wholly of this Ward; and last of all is Honey-lane, and so up to where the Standard stood on the North Side of the Cheap; and these are the Bounds of this Ward, and all the Places of antient Time; for King-street was not built till after the Fire.

NEXT for the Antiquities and Things worthy of Memory there: First, Is Bucklers, or more properly Bucklesbury, so called from a Manor and Tenements appertaining to one Buckle, who there dwelt and kept his Courts. This Manor was supposed to be the great Stone Building, Part of which was remaining when Monday published his Edition of Stow in 1633, and was then called the Old Barge, from such a Sign hanging out near the Gate of it. To this Place, it was commonly reported, that, when Wallbrook lay open, Barges were rowed, or towed up out of the Thames.

ALSO, on the North Side of this Street, directly over-against the said Bucklesbury, was one antient strong Tower of Stone: Which Tower, King Edward III., in the 18th of his Reign, by the Name of the King's House, called Cornet's Tower in LONDON, did appoint to be his Exchange of Money, there to be kept: In the 29th, he granted it to Frydus-Guynifane, and Landus Bardoile, Merchants of Luke, for 20*l.* the Year: And in the 32d of his Reign, he gave it to his College or Free Chapel of St. Stephen at Westminster, by the Name of his Tower, called Cornet's Tower at Bucklesbury in LONDON.

THIS Tower was taken down by one Buckle, a Grocer, meaning, in Place thereof, to have set up and built a Frame of Timber; But the said Buckle greedily labouring to pull down the old Tower, a Piece thereof fell upon him; which so bruised him, that his Life was thereby shortned; and another, that married his Widow, set up the new prepared Frame of Timber, and finished the Work.

THIS whole Street, called Bucklesbury, on both the Sides throughout, was possessed by Grocers and Apothecaries toward the West End thereof. On the South Side breaks out one other short Lane, called in Records, Peneritch-street: It reacheth but to St. Sythe's-lane, and St. Sythe's Church was the farthest Part thereof. For by the West End of the said Church beginneth Needler's-lane, which reacheth to Soper's lane, as aforesaid.

The PARISH of ### St. SYTHE, or BENNET SHEREHOG, or SHROG.

THE small Parish-Church of St. Sythe's had also an Addition of Bennet-Shorne, or Shrog, or Sherehog, for by all these Names it has been written; but the most antient is Shorne. Wherefore it seems to have taken that Name from one Benedict Shorne, some Time a Citizen and Stock-fishmonger of LONDON, a new Builder, Repairer, or Benefactor thereof, in the Reign of Edward II. So that Shorne is but corruptly called Shrog, and more corruptly Shorehog, or Sherehog.

John Fresh, by his Will dated Sept. 1327, gave to the Minister, Church-wardens, and Parishioners of this Parish, four Marks yearly Rent, issuing out of his House at the Corner of Do-little Lane, LONDON: In sustentacionem Capellani idonei Divina celebratur infra Capellani Sanctæ Sythæ, pro anima sua, & animabus Patris, Matris, Uxor. & Liberor. suor.

THIS Church being very much decay'd and perished, was amply repaired and beautified at the

the Cost of the Parishioners, in the Year of our Lord God 1628.

DIVERS fair Marble Stones, that formerly lay hidden under the Pews, were then removed, and placed in the Body of the Church, to add (as was most fit) to its further Grace and Beauty.

John Reyner,
William Parker, } Church-wardens.

THERE were buried in this Church, John Froysh, Mercer, Mayor, 1394. John Rockford, and Robert Rockford, John Hold, Alderman, Henry Froweke, Mercer, Mayor, 1435. Edward Warrington, John Morrice, John Huntley, Richard Lincoln, Felt-monger, 1548, Sir Ralph Warren, Mercer, Mayor, 1553; Sir John Lion, Grocer, Mayor, 1554. The two last had Monuments remaining till the Fire, in 1666,

Edward Hall, Gentleman, of Gray's Inn, Common Serjeant of the City, and then Under-Sheriff, who wrote the large Chronicle from Richard the IIId, to the End of the Reign of Henry the VIIIth, was buried in this Church.

ON a Monument in the East Wall of the Chancel, was this Inscription :

Grace and Religion,
with the best of Nature
All striving to excell,
yet all agreeing
To make one absolute and perfect Creature :
Would any see a Sight,
so worth the seeing ?
He comes too late :
Here she lies buried,
With whom they lately liv'd,
and now are dead.

In the Vault here by,
Lieth buried the Body of Anne, the Wife of John Farrar, Gentleman, and Merchant-Adventurer of this City, Daughter of William Shepheard, of Great Rowright, in the County of Oxford, Esq; She departed this Life the 12th Day of July, An. Dom. 1613, being then about the Age of 21 Years. To whose well-deserving Memory, this Monument is by her said Husband erected.

Here was a Bud,
beginning for her May :
Before her Flower,
Death took her hence away.
But for what Cause ?
That Friends might joy the more,
Where there Hope is,
she flourisheth now before.
She is not lost,
but in those Joys remains,
Where Friends may see,
and joy in her again.

ON an antient Marble Monument in the Chancel.

Here lyeth buried the Right Worshipful Sir Ralph Warren, Kt. Alderman, and twice Lord Mayor of this City of LONDON, Mercer, Merchant of the Staple at Calais; with his two Wives, Dame Christian, and Dame Joan. Which said Sir Ralph departed this Life the 11th Day of July, Anno Dom. 1553.

THE Lady Joan White, one of the Daughters and Heirs of John Lake, of LONDON, Gent. died October the 8th, buried in this Parish-Church, November the 4th, 1573. She deceased at the House of Sir Henry Williams, alias Crom- well, Kt. her Son-in-Law, called Hinchinbroke, in the County of Huntington. This Lady Joan was first marry'd to Sir Ralph Warren, Kt. Alderman, and twice Lord Mayor. By whom he had Issue Richard Warren, Esq; Son and Heir, and Joan Lady Cromwell, her Daughter. She was afterwards marry'd to Sir Thomas White, Kt. Alderman, and some Time of LONDON, Founder of the College of St. John Baptist, Oxon. by whom she had no Issue. The said Sir Henry Williams, alias Cromwell, had Issue by the said Lady Joan his Wife, Oliver Cromwell, Esq; his Son and Heir, with other Sons.

ON a fair plated Stone, in the Midst of the Chancel, was this Inscription :

Here lyeth Katharine Prettyman,
a Mayde of seventene yeeres,
In Suffolke borne, in London bred,
as by her Death appears.
With Nature's gifts she was adorn'd,
of honest birth and kin,
Her virtuous minde, with modest grace,
did love of many win.
But when she should with honest match
have liv'd a wedded life,
Stay there (quoth Jove) the World is nought,
for she shall be my wife.
And Death, since thou hast done thy due,
lay nuptial rites aside,
And follow her unto the grave,
that should have been your Bride :
Whose honest life, and faithful end,
her patience therewithall,
Doth plainly shew, that she with Christ
now lives, and ever shall.

She departed this Life the 11th Day of August 1594,

ON another plated Stone in the North Isle.

Now to shew the present State of this Parish, since the Demolishing of the Church by the great Fire, and what Charities belong to it :

IN the Parochial Visitation, An. 1693, the Church-wardens brought in no Revenues to belong to their Parish, nor any Legacies or Gifts, except 5 l. per Annum, left by Mr. Davison, for Keeping in Repair a Vault, belonging to that Family, which they did, and employed the Remainder for the Use of the Poor.

THE Plate, Bells, and other Ornaments of the Church, which they had before the Fire, were imbezzled by the Church-wardens many Years ago.

THIS Church is not built again, but the Parish is laid to St. Stephen Wallbrook; and that Ground on which the Church stood, is employed as a burying Place for the Parishioners.

THERE was a Parsonage-House before the Fire, rebuilt by Abraham Wooly, upon a Lease of 40 Years, paying the Parson 5 l. per Ann. and no other Glebe pertaining to the Parsonage. But in the Visitation Book, of the Parochial Visitation, An. 1636, the Glebe belonging to the Rector, was brought in at 6 l. per Ann.

The PARISH of St. Pancras, in Pancras-lane,

Formerly called

S O P E R ' s - L A N E .

ST. Pancras, to whom this Church was dedicated, was Son of Cledonius, a Nobleman of Phrygia. After his Father's Death he was committed to the Tuition of his Uncle Dionysius, with whom he went to Rome, being 14 Years old. After the Death of his said Uncle, he was apprehended for being a Christian, and brought to the Emperor Dioclesian, who, by fair Words and large Promises, sought to divert him from Christ, requiring him to offer Sacrifice to the Idol-Gods, which he refusing, when by no Persuasion he could be drawn thereunto, he was, by the Emperor's Command, beheaded at Rome. His Body being stolen away by Night, was by Octavia, a Woman of good Esteem, embalmed with Spices, and buried. This was acted An. Christi 286, or according to Baronius 303.

AT Rome there is a Church, not far from the City Wall, dedicated to this Saint, wherein is his Sepulchre. His Festival is kept on May 12.

THERE was another St. Pancras, Bishop of Tauromenium in Sicily, martyr'd by Anbaganus, a Pagan, whose Life was written by Evagrius, his Disciple. He was born at Antioch; and his Festival is the 3d of April.

THIS Parish-Church was small but had divers rich Parishioners belonging to it and many of them liberal Benefactors. It was repaired and beautified in the Year of our Lord 1621, towards which Reparation, Sir Thomas Bennet, Alderman, Dame Anne Soame, and Mr. Thomas Chapman, were free and bountiful Benefactors. The last of these, Mr. Thomas Chapman, having in the Year 1617, given a fair and very costly Table, bearing the Figure of a Monument of that ever famous, after Death, as in her Life, Queen Elizabeth.

IN the Year 1624, the Son of this worthy Gentleman, Mr. Thomas Chapman, the younger, to the further beautifying of this Church, for the more graceful Entrance into it, built a very fair Porch, at his own Cost and Charge: And a fair Communion-Table, with some other Repairs in the South Wall, was the Cost of Mr. William Doricke, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON.

IN this Church there are buried Sir — Aker, John Aker, John Bareus, Mercer, Mayor, 1370. John Beston and his Wife. Robert Rayland, John Hamber, John le Gage, John Rowley, John Lambe, John Hadley, Grocer, Mayor, 1370. Richard Gardener, Mercer, Mayor, 1478. John Stockton, Mercer, Mayor, 1470. John Dane, Mercer, John Parker, Robert Marshal, Alderman, 1439, and Elizabeth his Wife; Robert Corchford, Robert Hatfield and Robert Hatfield; Nicholas Wilfilde, and Thomas his Son; also,

Thomas Knowles, Mayor, and Thomas Knowles, his Son, twice Mayor.

Robert Burley, 1360, Richard Wilson, 1525, Robert Packenton, Mercer, kill'd with a Gun, as he was going to Mass, from his House in Cheap, to St. Thomas of Acres, in the Year 1536. The Murderer was never discovered, but by his own Confession, made when he came to the Gallows at Banbury, to be hanged for Felony. T. Warbury, Haberdasher, 1545. James Huysh, Grocer, 1590. Ambrose Smith, &c.

ON a Monument in the North Wall of the Choir was this Inscription:

Here under lieth buried James Huysh, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, third Son of John Huysh, of Beauford, in the County of Somerset, Esq; which James had to his first Wife, Margaret Bouchier, by whom he had Issue eleven Children; and to his second Wife, Mary Moffet, by whom he had Issue eighteen Children. He died the 20th Day of August, An. Dom. 1590.

Queen ELIZABETH'S Monument.

Mors mihi Lucrum. Spiritus Astra petit.

To the most happy, blessed, and precious Memory, of the late famous, renowned, and never to be forgotten Monarch, Queen Elizabeth,

The Restorer of true Religion, a tender nursing Mother of the Church of God, a powerful Protector (under Almighty God) of her own Dominions, a ready Helper of her neighbouring Princes, a hearty and unfeigned Lover, and beloved of her Subjects; who lived gloriously full of Days, and whom the eternal Jehovah blessed with the longest Life of any Prince of England, since the Conquest.

By Way of due Thankfulness to the most holy, sacred and individual Trinity, and her ever honoured honoured Royal Virtues, this Memorial of her's was here erected, set up, and consecrated, the 17th of November 1617.

CHARITIES.

THESE charitable Donations, among others, have been exhibited and settled upon the Parish of St. Pancras.

Thomas Chapman, Esq; an Inhabitant of this Parish, by his Will, dated May 11, 1615, gave to the Parson and Church-wardens, and their Successors, an Annuity of 3 l. 10 s. issuing out of three small Tenements in Whitcros-street, to the Purposes following: viz. That with 40 s. thereof, they cause three Sermons to be yearly made in the said Parish, (which are now preached in Bow Church) viz. One on the 10th or 12th of August, for the Deliverance of 88. One on the 5th of November, for the Deliverance from the Gunpowder Conspiracy. And the third on the 17th of November, for the Accession of Queen Elizabeth to the Throne. For each Sermon 13 s. 4 d. Of which Sermons, one to be preached by the Parson for the Time being; the other two Preachers to be chosen by the Parishioners.

THIS Benefaction is lost, but the Sermons are continued upon another Account, viz.

Thomas Chapman, Esq; his Son, Inhabitant also of the said Parish, by his Will dated September 6, 1626, gave to the Parson and the Church-wardens of the said Parish, an Annuity of 11 l. 3 s. 8 d. upon this special Trust, that they do pay 40 s. there, yearly, to the three Preachers appointed by his Father's Will, namely, 13 s. 4 d. a-piece, to make up his Father's Gift, 1 l. 6 s. 8 d. yearly, for each Sermon for ever; and do procure one godly and learned Sermon to be made, to the Glory of God, and the edifying of God's People every Year on St. James's Day, i. e. July 25, being his Birth-Day: And to give for every such Sermon to be made, 1 l. 6 s. 8 d.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

PART of Cheapside; Part of Queen-street; Part of Well-court; and Part of Pancras-lane.

NUMBER of Houses 32.

THEN is a Part of Soper's-lane, turning up to Cheap. By the Assent of Stephen Abunden, Mayor, the Pepperers in Soper's-lane were admitted to sell all such Spices, and other Wares, as Grocers use now to sell; retaining the old Name of Pepperers in Soper's-lane: 'Till at length, in the Reign of Henry VI, the said Soper's-lane was inhabited by Cordwainers and Curriers; after that, the Pepperers, or Grocers, had seated themselves in a more open Street, to wit, in Bucklesbury, where they yet remained in the Time of Mr. Stow.

By a Passage in an old Book, printed in Henry VIII's Reign, it appears that Soper's-lane was a noted Place where Pies were made, and set forth to be sold; when Spices were so near at hand. "Thou must, at Eastre, receive the God of Antichrist; and thou must buy it, and pay for it, as Men some Time bought Pies in Soper-lane, [Lamentation against the City of LONDON, printed 1505.]

CHAUNDLERS antiently had their Shops also hereabouts; the Smell of whose Trade, it seems, was so nauseous in the chief Street of the City, that they were appointed to remove thence, and remain elsewhere in the City.

AT the upper End of this Soper's-lane, in Cheapside, was the common Place of Standing in great Shows passing by: As when Kings and Queens, Princes, or Foreign Ambassadors, past along towards Westminster, or from Westminster through LONDON, towards the Tower. Here was a Parcel of Land called The great Field in the Street, some Time in the Tenure of the Lady Catharine Dormer, Widow. This, under that Name, together with other things, was sold to Sir Robert Cholmely, Knight, in the 2d of Edward VI. But it is a Doubt, whether it were a great Field in that King's Reign; but it seems antiently to have been so, though in Cheapside, or very near it. Thus much for the South Wing of Cheap Ward.

NOW to begin again on the Bank of the said Wallbrook, at the East End of the High Street, which is the main Body of this Ward. First, over against the Parish-Church of St. Mildred, on the South Side of the Poultrey, up to the great Conduit, were divers Houses, some times inhabited by Poulterers, afterwards by Grocers, Haberdashers, and Upholders. At the West End of this Poultrey, on the South Side, was the great Conduit, which was the beginning of West Cheap. This Conduit was the first sweet Water that was convey'd by Pipes of Lead, under Ground, to this Place in the City, from Paddington. It was castellated with Stone, and cesterne'd with Lead. Which was begun in the Year 1285, Henry Waleis being then Mayor. This Conduit was again new built by Thomas Hame, one of the Sheriffs, in the Year 1479.

BEYOND the Conduit, on the South Side of Cheap, in Stow's Time, were Houses, for the most Part, possess'd by Mercers, up to the North Corner of Cordwainers-street, which, he says, is corruptly called Bow-lane. These Houses, in former Times, were but Sheds, or Shops, with Solars over them, as one then remained at the End of Soper's-lane, wherein a Woman sold Seeds, Roots, and Herbs.

ON the North Side of the Poultrey is the Parish-Church of St. Mildred.

St. Mildred the Virgin, to whom this Church, and one more in the City, are dedicated, was Daughter to Merwaldus, a Prince (not King, as some call him) of West Mercia, who was Brother (saith Matth. Westminster) or Son, (saith Polidore Virgil) to Penda King of the Mercians. The Mother of Mildred, and Wife of Merwaldus, was named Dompneua (or Dompneva) saith Capgrave, (not naming her Husband) and Daughter to Ermenred, eldest Son of Eadbald, King of Kent, who died before his Father. But Matth. Westminster saith, that Mildred's Mother's Name was Emenburga, (Daughter of Prince Ermenred) so likewise saith Polidore Virgil. However, Writers agree, That the Daughter of Ermenred, called Ermenburga by some, and Dompneua by Capgrave, as above, founded the Minster Abby, in the Isle of Thanet, by Grant and Assistance of King Egbert, Son of her Uncle Ercombert, whereof she herself became the first Abbess, and her Daughter Mildred, who succeeded, was the second.

THIS Holy Virgin St. Mildred (says the Author of the English Martyrology) contemning the vain Pleasures of the World, went over, in her tender Years, into France, and there dedicated herself to GOD in a Monastery of Virgins at Kale; but afterwards returning into England, and gathering together seventy other Virgins, was consecrated Abbess of a new Monastery in the Isle of Thanet, by St. Theodore, Archbishop of Canterbury, where she died the third Day before the Ides of July, An. 676, and was buried: Her Body was afterwards translated, on July 13, to Canterbury, by Archbishop Lanfrank, with that of St. Edburga, and there placed in St. Gregory's Church, Anno Christi 1085. Part of her Reliques were translated to Daventer in Gelderland. Her Deposition was kept in Memory, Feb. 20, as her Translation was July 13.

IN the Monasticon it is said, the Translation of St. Mildred from the Isle of Thanet to Canterbury, was An. 1030, 15 Kal. of June, Elstan being then Abbot of Augustin, and there buried before the Altar of St. Peter, where she had an eminent Tomb and an Altar. It is there also said, That An. 1033, Abbot Ethelstan translated St. Mildred from Thanet to St. Augustine's.

Cressy tells us, That the determinate Year of her Death is uncertain; but certain it is, says he, That it is wrongfully ascribed by some Writers to the Year of Grace 664. For since the same Authors affirm, that her Sister Milburga and she were consecrated by St. Theodore, Archbishop of Canterbury, who came not into Britain till after that Year, it is evident, that in their Computation there is an Anachronism; we may therefore (says he) more commodiously ascribe it to the Year of our Lord's Incarnation 676.

HERE the Saint, to which this Church was dedicated, had her Shrine or Tabernacle, as it was called. And one Christopher Suliok, who willed his Body to be buried here, bequeathed to the gilding of the Tabernacle of St. Mildred, in the Church abovesaid, five Marks: And towards the Edifying and Reparation of Corpus Christi Chapel, in the Parish abovesaid, five Marks.

THIS Will was made August 11, 1500.

IN what Years this Church was first erected, or who was the first Founder of it, we find not.

But it appears by some antient Evidences of the said Church, that from the Beginning, it had not so much spare Ground about it as to make a Church-yard, until the Year of our Lord God 1420, and the 8th of King Henry V. Thomas Morsted, Esq. and Surgeon to the Kings Henry IV., Henry V., and Henry VI. (And afterward, in Anno Domini 1436, Sheriff and Alderman of London) gave unto the Church a Parcel of Ground, lying between his Dwelling-House and the said Church, (and adjoining to the said Church, toward the North) to make a Church-yard for the Burial of their Dead, containing in Length, from the Course of Wallbrook, toward the West, forty-five Feet; and in Breadth, from the Church, toward the North, thirty-five Feet.

WITHIN a short Time after, some-body of a religious and charitable Disposition, erected upon the Sides of the said Church-yard, upon Posts and Pillars, with Cloysters underneath, towards the West, a Parsonage or Mansion, and free Dwelling of the Ministers and Rectors of the said Church: And toward the East, four Chambers, then called the Priests Chambers, now converted into a Tenement or Dwelling-House, and demised for yearly Rent. But the Church-yard is much abridged, and, of late, foully defaced, and the Light of the said Parsonage hinder'd, by Addition of Pieces to the said antient Chambers; which ought not to be.

AFTER some Years were expired, the Parson and the Parishioners observing the Church to be very old, proposed to take it down, and rebuild it again: Which they began to do about the Year of our Lord God 1456. At which Time Robert Snell and John King were Church-wardens, and continued in the Office till the End of the Year 1467. Toward which Building, as it may appear by their Accounts, John Saxton, being Rector or Parson of the said Church, gave thirty-two Pounds towards the building of the new Choir, which now stands upon the Course of Wallbrook. And afterwards, Richard Bowyer, being Parson, gave Six Pounds Fifteen Shillings.

Lovel, Puery, and Richard Keston, had their Arms in the East Windows, as Benefactors. The Roofing of the Church was garnished with the Arms of Thomas Archebul, or Aschebul; one of the Church-wardens in the Year 1455, who was there buried.

IN After-times, to wit, Anno Domini 1594; the 35th of Queen Elizabeth, this Church-yard, and all the Buildings thereon, which had been thus long in the free Possession of the Ministers and Parishioners of the said Church, were, thro' the Information of an evil-minded Man, then Tenant in the Chambers, sold for concealed Land; whereby the said Tenement, Church-yard and Cloysters, were like to be lost from the Possession of the Church; and the Ministers of the Church to be charged with an yearly Rent of their Parsonage-House for ever. But the Parson and Parishioners, by a judicial Proceeding then, in her Majesty's Court of Exchequer, cleared all the whole Soil from that Incumbrance. The Tryal whereof was held by Nisi prius, in the Guild-hall of London; and the Record is kept in the Exchequer.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified at the proper Cost of the Parishioners, in the Year of our Lord God 1626.

THE Charge of it amounting to the Sum of 183 l. and upwards, Anno Dom. 1666, being demolished by the general Conflagration of the City, it was re-edified at the publick Charge, and finished by the Contributions of the Parishioners, Ann. Dom. 1676.

THE present Church is built of Stone, with a flat Roof quadrangular, that at the South West and North West Angles being a little lower than the

the rest, cover'd with Lead, and supported with a Column and two Pilasters, of the Ionick Order; the Floor is paved with Purbeck Stone; the Chancel with that and black Marble, being one Step higher than the Floor of the rest of the Church, which has three small Isles.

THE Ornament of this Church is as follows: The Roof has a Circle inscribed with a Quadrangle formed by fret-work and Crocket-work; the Outside fronting the Poultrey, adorned with a Cornice, Pediment, and Acroteria's, with Enrichments of Leaves, &c. all cut Stone. In the Church at the West End, is a handsome Gallery, and the Pews and Pulpit are all Oak, with which it is wainscotted about eight Feet and a half high. The Altar-piece is of the same Species of Timber, adorned with two Columns, Entablature and Pediment, of the Corinthian Order. The Intercolumns are the Decalogue, done in Gold Letters on Black, under a Glory and three Cherubims; above which are the King's Arms under a triangular Pediment, adorned with three Lamps. Without the Columns are the Creed and Pater Noster, and Enrichments of Cherubims, Shields, Festoons and Cartouches; and the Foot-path of the Communion-Table is black and white Marble enclosed with Rail and Ballister.

THE Dimensions are, Length 56 Feet, Breadth 42, Altitude 36, and that of the Stone Tower about 75 Feet.

MONUMENTS.

BESIDES Thomas Aschebull, above-mentioned, are buried in this Church,

John Saxton, of whom we heard before, with this Epitaph:

Hanc subtus Speciem Corpus jacet ecce Johannes Saxton qui fuerat vocitatus ejus in Annis:
Hunc qui plasmavit de Terra, supeditavit,
Nunc Pater & Flamen sibi dent cum Prole locamen.

Qui obiit ——— Die Mens.
Anno 14 ——— Cujus. &c.

Thomas Morsted, Esq; and Chirurgion to King Henry IV, V, and VI, and one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, who in the Year 1436, gave unto this Church a Parcel of Ground, containing in Length from the Course of Wallbrook toward the West, 45 Feet; and in Breadth, from the Church towards the North, 35 Feet, being within the Gate of the Scalding-house or Scalding-Wyke, in the said Parish, to make a Church-yard, wherein to bury their Dead.

Richard Shore, Draper, one of the Sheriffs 1505, (who gave 15 l. for making a Porch to this Church) was buried here, as by his Monument appeareth.

Solomon Lanuare had a Chantry there, in the 14th of Edward II, Hugh Game had one other.

John Hildie, Poulterer, 1416, John Kendall, 1468, John Garland, 1476, Robert Bois, 1485, and Simon Lee, Poulterers, 1487, Thomas Lee, of Essex, Gentleman, William Haclingridge, Christopher Feliocke, 1494, Robert Dreyton, Skinner, 1484, John Christopherfon, Doctor of Physick, 1524, William Turner, Skinner, 1536, Blase White, Grocer, 1558, Thomas Hobson, Haberdasher, 1559, William Hobson, Haberdasher, 1581, Thomas Tuffer, 1580, with this Epitaph:

Here Thomas Tuffer, clad in Earth doth lie,
That some Time made the Points of Husbandrie.

By him then learn thou maist,
here learn we must,
When all is done we sleep and turn to Dust.
And yet, through Christ,
to Heaven we hope to go;
Who reads his Books,
shall find his Faith was so.

ON the North Side of the Church-yard, remain two Tombs of Marble; but not known of whom, or otherwise, than by Tradition it is said they were of Thomas Monshampe, (perhaps Mus-champe) and William, Brothers, about 1547, &c.

Thomas Iken, Skinner, with this Epitaph:

In Hodnet and London
God blessed my Life
Till forty and six Years, with Children and Wife:
And God will raise me up to Life again,
Therefore have I thought
my Death no Pain.

Thomas Iken. Qui obiit 10 Die Martii, 1590.

And there also lieth buried Elizabeth his Wife, and divers of their Children: Where, on a Pillar in the Chancel, towards the South, is this Monument:

In this Chancel lieth the Body of Thomas Iken, Citizen and Skinner of LONDON, who was born in Hodnet in the County of Salop; and had to Wife Elizabeth, the Daughter of Roger Smith, of Newport Pagnell, in the County of Buckingham; by whom he had six Sons and eight Daughters, which Thomas departed this Life the tenth Day of March, Anno Dom. 1590.

ON the Wall in the North Isle was a Monument with this Inscription:

In this Isle lieth buried the Body of Susan Lewen, Daughter of Thomas Lewen, of Broxborn, in the County of Hertford; who had first to Husband, John Palmer, having Issue only one Son, which Husband deceased, Anno 1589: And after some Years, the said Susan married with John Kirby, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor, of this Parish, by whom she had four Sons and eight Daughters, who departed this Life, after 30 Years living, the 20th of September, 1624.

A Fair MONUMENT of Queen Elizabeth.

SINCE the building of this Church of St. Mildred, these Persons have been buried here, with monumental Grave-stones over them.

Ruth Hutchinson, Wife of William Hutchinson, of Newcastle, Merchant, 1688.

Thomas Hutchinson, his Grandson, 1695.

IN a Vault before the Communion-Table, John Lorimer, Esq; with two of his Children, Samuel and Sarah. Also Frances Lorimer, the Relict of the said John, 1674.

Dr. William Croune, one of the Fellows of the Royal Society, and of the College of Physicians, 1684. Also Mary his Widow, afterwards married to Sir Edwin Sadleir, died 1706.

Now for the Charities belonging to this Parish.

BEQUESTS.

1. To the Poor, for Coals; most of it is received, but not all; and that which is not, is little and uncertain.

2. 5 l. per Ann. was left, and is received for Bread and Wine at the Sacraments.

3. 3 l. per Ann. left, and applied to the Repair of the Church.

4. THERE were some Stocks, but lost.

5. THERE were Fifty Pounds left for Servant-Maids that continued seven Years in one Service, 5 l. for each. The most Part hath been already paid, and is paid, as Occasion comes.

6. THERE were 200 Pounds left by the Lady Allyngton, towards rebuilding the Church: The most Part of it left in Mr. Thomson's Hand, Church-warden, and lost.

7. THERE are two Houses left to the Parish of St. Mildred, on Condition they have, and continue a Select Vestry.

THEY have one Free-School, called the Mercers School, near Mercers Chapel.

THE Parsonage-House, before the great Fire, was built upon Pillars, and Cloisters under it for bearing; it remained unbuilt. There is a Map of it kept, shewing the Dimensions.

VOL. I.

No other House or Glebe; but there are several Gifts to the Ministers successively, viz.

A Preparation-Sermon for the Sacrament every Month; for which was left the Interest of 100 l. The Whole of that was not paid to the Parish. What was received was laid out by the Minister's and Parish's Consent; and the Thing purchased was burnt. The Parish also laid out 3 l. of their Stock.

SERMONS to be on Fast-Days in the Afternoon: The Monies given for that good Purpose lost.

A Sermon to be made on the 17th of November; for which the Minister hath 1 l. 5 s. payable by the Parish of St. Mary Colechurch.

OFFERTORIES in the Year 1692, came to Seventeen Pounds Eighteen Shillings and Tenpence Half-penny.

THIS was the Account given at the Parochial Visitation, Anno 1693; since which, a Table of Benefactors was made, and set up in the said Church of St. Mildred in the Poultry, viz. THIS Church of St. Mildred, was, after the great Fire, rebuilt at the publick Charge: But afterwards fully finished, in the Year 1676, by the joint Contribution of this Parish, and that of St. Mary Colechurch, united to it by Act of Parliament.

THE Living is a Rectory in the Gift of the Lord Chancellor, or the Lord Keeper, for the Time being, and the Company of Mercers; the Value per Act of Parliament 170 l. per Ann. besides Fees and Perquisites. St. Mildred is rated in the King's Books at 8 l. 13 s. 4 d.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Wallace, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Reynor.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays, at 11 o'Clock. No Organ, 2 Bells.

HERE is a Preparation-Sermon on the Wednesday before every first Sunday in the Month, and one on the 17th of November, at six in the Evening.

THE Vestry is Select.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

PART of the Poultry, Scalding-alley, Compter-alley, and Grocer's-alley.

NUMBER of Houses 155.

THE Name of this Street called the Poultry, has before been spoken of, as also of the Lane called Scalding-house, or Scalding-wyke, &c.

ON the North Side, about four Houses West from this Parish-Church of St. Mildred, is a Prison-house, pertaining to one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, and is called the Compter in the Poultry; and hath been there kept and continued Time out of Mind, for the Original thereof is not known. Somewhat West from this Compter, was a proper Chapel, called Corpus Christi, and St. Mary at Coney-hope-lane End, in the Parish of St. Mildred, founded by one named Fonyrunnes, a Citizen of LONDON, in the Reign of Edward III; in which Chapel was a Guild, or Fraternity, that might dispend in Lands better than 20 l. per Ann. It was suppressed by Henry VIII, and purchased by one Thomas Hobson, Haberdasher, who turned this Chapel into a Warehouse and Shops, towards the Street, with Lodgings over them.

THEN is Coney-hope-lane, as it was of old Time called, from the Sign of three Conies hanging over a Poulterer's Stall at the Lane's End. In this Lane antiently was a Chapel dedicated to the blessed Virgin: So in the Bishop of LONDON's Register of Wills; Capella Beata Mariæ de Conyng-hope-lane, LONDON, Marteley's-alley in Coney-hope-alley.

WITHIN this Lane standeth the Grocer's Hall, which Company were antiently called the Pepperers. In the Year 1411 the Custos, or Guardian, and the Brethren of this Company purchased of the Lord Robert Fitzwaters, a Plat of Ground, with the Buildings thereupon, in the said Coney-hope-lane, for 320 Marks; and then laid the Foundation of their new Common Hall.

AT this Hall is, at present, kept the Bank of England, till it is removed to the new House, built for that Purpose, in Thread-needle-street, which we have already mention'd in Broad-street Ward, where it is situated.

THE Bank was established by Act of Parliament, Anno 1693, 5 and 6 William and Mary, Chap. 20. for a Loan of 1,200,000 l. subscribed and paid into the Government, at several Times; which Act laid an additional Duty on Tonage, Excise, &c. which it was proposed would bring into the Exchequer 140,000 l. per Ann. of which 100,000 l. was secured to the Bank, as Interest, &c. for the said 1,200,000 l. viz. 96,000 l. Interest, at eight per Cent. per Ann. and the 4000 l. for Salaries and Incidents, upon which Basis the Governor and Company of the Bank of England were incorporated, with a Power to make Bye Laws, and Act in all other respects as a legal Corporation for thirteen Years.

By their Charter they were constituted a Governor, Deputy-Governor, and twenty four Directors, thirteen of whom, whereof the Governor, or Deputy-Governor, to be one, made a Court; who were invested with the Power of Management, except at General Courts, of all the Members, which were to be held four Times a Year, or oftner, if demanded by nine Members, who had then each 500 l. Stock. And the Sum of 4000 l. in Capital Stock, qualified a Member for Governor; 3000 l. for Deputy Governor; and 2000 l. for Director: And the Appointment of Officers, and their Salaries, was by the Majority of such Members as had in this Stock 500 l. and the Choice to be annually.

UPON this Foot the Bank continued till the Year 1696, when, by Reason of the ill State of the Coin, the selfish Practices of some Persons, &c. the Credit both of the Exchequer and Bank were low, greater Demands being made upon the latter than they were able to answer; and the Tallies going at 50, or upwards, per Cent. Discount, an Act was made Anno 1696, 8 and 9 Will. III. Chap. 20. for restoring Credit to both, whereby any Person might make new Subscriptions to the Bank, which was obliged to take them four Fifths in Tallies (upon a Par) and one Fifth in Bank Notes, by which Means the Capital Stock of the Bank was enlarged, the Demand on their Notes lessened, their Credit revived, and the Discount on Tallies reduced much lower, the Government allowing eight per Cent. for all subscribed, as abovesaid, until the Funds might come in which would pay off in Course such Tallies, and the Bank was to make a Dividend of the Principal to the Members, as those Tallies were from Time to Time paid off.

UPON these Establishments the Bank was restrained by the following Injunctions.

1. THAT no Person should subscribe above 10,000 l. before the first of July following, the opening opening of the Books, nor above 20,000 l. afterward.

II. They are not to borrow under their Seal more than 1,200,000 l. upon the first Establishment, nor above the Sum subscribed on the second, otherwise each private Member shall make good his Proportion of the Deficiency that may be occasioned thereby.

III. They are not to trade as a Corporation, but as hereafter-mentioned, nor empower any one to trade for them, under the Penalty of forfeiting Treble the Value of what they Trade for, of which the Informer shall have the 5th Part.

If they refuse to pay any of their just Debts, the Exchequer must pay them out of the 100,000 l. as it shall become due to the Bank.

The Privileges of this Bank are

- I. Their sealed Notes were by Law made transferable by Indorsement.
- II. They have Power to purchase Lands, (except those of the Crown) and to receive Goods as a Security for Money lent, to buy Gold or Silver Bullion, and to sell Goods, &c. forfeited to them.
- III. Their Stock shall not be taxable in any Cafe.
- IV. They may negotiate Bills of Exchange, and receive or take them for other Bills or Cash.
- V. The Government was to give them a Year's Notice upon paying them back their 1,200,000 l.
- VI. To counterfeit their Notes was made Felony.
- VII. No Person dealing in this Stock could be a Bankrupt thereby, nor the Stock liable to Foreign Attachment.
- VIII. During the Continuance of this Bank, the Time for which was enlarged, no other Bank shall be erected by Parliamentary Authority.

IN the Year 1707. Nathaniel Tench, Esq; a worthy and intelligent Citizen, wrote a Defence of this Bank; being a Reply to a Pamphlet, called, Remarks upon the Bank of England; also to two other Pamphlets, wrote against the Bank, one intituled, A short View of the apparent Danger and Mischiefs from the Bank of England: The other, Reasons offered against the Continuance of the Bank, in a Letter to a Member of Parliament. These Remarks and Pamphlets were thrown abroad, to prejudice the Parliament against granting a further Enlargement of Time to the Bank. The chief Purpose of this Defence, was to vindicate a Corporation, and the Management thereof; not so much from Crimes they had already been guilty of in the Experiment of Eleven or Twelve Years, as the fear of what they might do hereafter. For it was acknowledged by their bitterest Enemies, even in their Treatises wrote against it, That the Bank had been serviceable to the Government, and that the Managers thereof had not been guilty of those Villanies and Knaveries, which they supposed their Successors might be: But that it was a necessary Consequence, that by a further Enlargement of their Time (if any such they should have) either they, or their Successors, might, for Time, to come so prevaricate, as to be guilty of those Crimes, which they took upon them to suppose; though hereof was not the least Proof brought.

THIS Vindication of the Bank thus concludes, " That it might be with Truth concluded, that " since their first Establishment, (which was then " about 12 or 13 Years) they never bought one " Foot of Land, they never monopolized any " one Commodity; that they had been so far " from obstructing Trade, that they had very " much encouraged and enlarged it, by discountenancing Foreign and Inland Bills of Exchange; and by lending Money upon Notes, " to very great Sums, at very low Interest. That " they had never put any Hardships upon the " Government, as those Authors would insinuate; but had all Times served it to the utmost " of their Power. That they had been so far " from raising the Interest of Money, that they " were the great, if not the only, Cause of lowering it, That they had never concerned themselves in the Election of any one Member of " Parliament; nor never advanced a single Penny to influence any Election. Neither could " any Man complain, that he did not receive " his Money on Demand, that called for it. In " short, that notwithstanding the Clamour and " Noise their Adversaries made against them, they " had not brought any Instance, that they had " been guilty of any base, or unworthy Action, " in any one Fact committed by them, since " their first Establishment. So that all the Clamour of their Ill-Willers, had been raised up " on a bare Suspicion of what their Successors " might do hereafter.

WEST of this Coneyhope-lane, or Grocers-alley, is the Old Jury, whereof some small Part is in this Ward, as before shewed.

The PARISH of
St. MARY COLECHURCH.

AT the South End of the Old Jury was the Parish-Church of St. Mary Colechurch, named from one Cole, who built it. This Church was erected upon a Vault above Ground, so that People were forced to go to it by Steps.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified at the Charge of the Parishioners, in the Year 1623; but being consumed in the dreadful Fire of LONDON, was not rebuilt, but the Parish was united to that of St. Mildred in the Poultry, as is before-mentioned.

IN the last Summer (1733) a Vault being made before the House of Mr. Henry Chapman, Pastry-Cook, two Doors West of the Old Jury, several Bones were dug up, and large Stones, supposed to be Part of this Church, or the Foundation of it.

THERE are no Monuments of this Church, more than that Henry IV. granted Licence to William Marshal, and others, to found a Brotherhood of St. Catharine therein, because Thomas Becket, and St. Edmond were baptized there.

THUS expressed in the Record in the Tower: In Eccles. de S. Maria de Colechurch, juxta magnum Aqueduct. in qua Ecclesia S. Thomas de Cantuar. & S. Edmund. Rex baptizati fuerunt. This aforesaid Guild or Fraternity, was founded 1 Henry IV. and confirmed again 25 Henry VI.

THE Living of St. Mary Colechurch was but a Curacy. The Impropriators are the Mercers; who, before the Fire, gave the whole Benefit to the Incumbent. It had no Site, but was all vested in the Mercers by Act of Parliament.

To this Parish belonged a Gift-Sermon, to be preached on the 17th Day of November; the Benefit of which the Rector of St. Mildred enjoys.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

PART of King-street, Part of Cheapside, Part of the Poultry, Part of the Old Jury, Part of Bucklesbury, Part of Dove-court, and Bird and Hand-court.

NUMBER of Houses 75.

AT the West End of the Poultry, and also of Bucklesbury, begins the large Street called Cheapside, but formerly Westcheapen, from a Market-place there, and stretcheth to where the little Conduit stood by Paul's Gate, but is not all of Cheap Ward. In the East Part of this Street stood the great Conduit spoken of before.

ABOUT the Middle of this Street, without Honey-lane was the Standard in Cheap, which John Wells, Grocer, Mayor 1430, caused to be made with a small Cistern with fresh Water, having one Cock continually running, when the same was not turned or locked. This was finished by his Executors, Thomas Knowles and John Chickley, who purchased Licence of King Henry IV. to convey Water, to make the Conduit.

THE said King, by his Patent dated at Windsor, the 21st of his Reign, (which Patent was confirmed by Parliament 1442) granted Licence to Thomas Knowles, John Chickley, and others, Executors to the said John Wells, with his Goods to make new the Highway, which leadeth from the City of LONDON, towards the Palace of Westminster, before and nigh the Manor of Savoy, Parcel of the Dutchy of Lancaster; a Way then very ruinous, and the Pavement broken, to the Hurt and Mischief of the Subjects, " Which old Pavement, then remaining in that " Way, within the Length of five hundred Feet, " and all the Breadth of the same, before and " nigh the Site of the Manor aforesaid; they to " break up, and with Stone, Gravel, and other " Stuff, one other good and sufficient Way there " to make, for the Commodity of the Subjects. " And further, that the Standard in Cheap, " where divers Executions of the Law, before " Time, had been performed; which Standard, " at that present, was very ruinous with Age; " in which there was a Conduit, should be taken " down, and another competent Standard of " Stone, together with a Conduit in the same, " of new, strongly to be built, for the Commo- " dity and Honour of the City, with the Goods " of the said Testator, without Interrupti- " on, &c.

NOW, whether the Standard in West Cheap, so oft spoken of in former Time, be the same, and stood just in the same Place, or elsewhere; or that the same were removeable, were some question. For it is manifest, that in the Reign of Edward III. and at other Times, when the great Justings, and their Runnings on Horseback, were practised between the great Cross, and the great Conduit at Soper's-lane End, there was no such Standard, or other Obstacle between them; neither was that Street paved with hard Stone, as now it is. We read, that in the Year 1293, three Men had their Right Hands cut off at the Standard in Cheap, for rescuing a Prisoner arrested by an Officer of the City. It was very likely therefore, that the old Cross in Cheap (which was then newly built) was also the Standard.

BUT of the Executions at the Standard in Cheap, we read further; that in the Year 1326, the Burgesses of LONDON caused Walter Stapleton, Bishop of Exeter, Treasurer to Edward II. to be beheaded, with others, at the Standard in Cheap, but this was by Paul's Gate.

IN the Year 1351, the 26th of Edward III. two Fishmongers were beheaded at the Standard in Cheap. In the Year 1381, Wat Tyler beheaded Richard Lions, and others; there. In the Year 1399, Henry IV. caused the Blank Charters made by Richard II. to be burnt there. In the Year 1450, Jack Cade, Captain of the Kentish Rebels, beheaded the Lord Say there. In the Year 1461, John Davy had his Hand cut off there, because he had struck a Man before the Judges at Westminster, &c.

THEN next was the great Cross in West Cheap, (but in Faringdon Ward within) which Cross was there erected in the Year 1290, by Edward I. upon Occasion thus: Queen Eleanor, his Wife, died at Herdeby, (a Town near to the City of Lincoln) her Body was brought from thence to Westminster, and this King, in Memory of her, caused in every Place where her Body rested in the Way, a stately Cross of Stone to be made and erected, with the Queen's Image and Arms upon it; as at Grantham, Woborne, Northampton, Stony Stratford, Dunstable, St. Albans, Waltham, West Cheap, and at Charing; from whence she was conveyed to Westminster, and there buried.

THIS

THIS Cross being, by Length of Time, much decayed, John Hatherly being Mayor of LONDON, procured in the Year 1441, Licence of King Henry VI, in the 21st of his Reign, to re-edify the same in a more beautiful Manner, for the Honour of the City: And had a Licence also, to take up two hundred Fodder of Lead, for the Building thereof, and of certain Conduits, and a common Granary.

For there was now, not only a handsome Cross to be set up in West Cheap, but Conduits, with Standards, to be built, and Leaden-Pipes, that conveyed the Water above three Miles; and the Works about them to be looked after, and a common Granary to be erected a-new. For the authorizing and licensing the City in which Works, the said King Henry VI issued out Letters to this Tenor:

REX omnibus ad quos, &c. Salutem Sciatis, quod cum dilecti nobis Johannes Hatherly, Mayor & Cives London: pro communi Utilitatis & decencie totius ejusd. Civitat. (causa) & ad universale proficuum, necnon ad omnium Ligeorum nostrorum ibidem confluentium complacentiam, locis ibidem quamplurimis, prout decet, diversos aque recentis, conductus cum Standardis ceterisq; machinis & pipis plumbeis, quæ ultra tria millia sub & supra terram decurrerunt & decurrerunt construere & erigere, ac quandam communem Granariam de novo fabricare, & quandem Crucem spectabilem in West Chepe dict. Civitatis pro quadam augea eisdem conductibus tanquam mater deservitur. Quæ sine summa plumbe notabili, ac operariis eisd. operibus necessariis exequi non valet, construere & erigere proponant.

Nos utilitatem, decenciam & commodum predict. intime considerantes, de gra. nostra speciali concessimus, & licenciam dedimus, &c.

THIS common Garner, or Granary, spoken of in these Letters Patents, to be built a-new, was that which was built by Simon Eyre, or Eyre, Alderman, at Leadenhall, for the publick Use of the City. This Cross to be erected here at West Cheap, express'd in these Letters Patents to serve pro quadam Augea tanquam mater, seems to be for an Increase and Supply of Water, as the Mother Aqueduct to the rest of the Conduits; as though there were Pipes laid from hence to the Root.

THIS Cross was then curiously wrought at the Charges of divers Citizens, viz. John Fisher, Mercer, gave 600 Marks towards it; the same was begun to be set up 1484, and it was not finished before the Year 1486, the 2d of Henry VI. It was new gilt all over in the Year 1522, against the Coming in of Charles V, Emperor; and was new burnished against the Coronation of Edw. VI. and in 1553, against the Coronation of Queen Mary; and gilt again in the Year 1554, against the Coming in of King Philip. Since the which Time, the said Cross having been presented by divers Juries, (or Quests of Wardmote) to stand in the Highway, to the Let of Carriages, &c. as they alledged, but could not have it removed; it followed, that in the Year 1581, the 21st of June, in the Night, the lower Images round about the said Cross, (being of CHRIST's Resurrection, of the Virgin Mary, King Edward the Confessor, and such like) were broken and defaced; whereupon Proclamation was made, That whosoever would discover the Doers thereof, should have 40 Crowns; but nothing came to Light. The Image of the blessed Virgin, at that Time, robbed of her Son, and her Arms broken, by which she held him on her Knees; her whole Body was also haled with Ropes, and left ready to fall; but was, in the Year 1595, again fastened and repaired. And in the Year 1596, about Bartholomew-tide, a new Son, mishapen

(as born out of Time) all naked, was laid in her Arms; the other Images remaining broken as before. On the East Side of the same Cross, the Steps being taken thence, under the Image of CHRIST's Resurrection defaced, was then set up a curious wrought Tabernacle of grey Marble, and in the same, an Alabaster Image of Diana, a Woman (for the most Part naked) and Water conveyed from the Thames, prilling from her naked Breasts for a Time, but the same was oft-times dried up, and decayed.

IN the Year 1599, the Timber of the Cross at the Top being rotted within the Lead, the Arms thereof bending, were feared to have fallen; to the harming of some People; and therefore the whole Body of the Cross was scaffolded about, and the Top thereof taken down, meaning in Place thereof to set up a Pyramid; but some of her Majesty's honourable Counsellors directed their Letters to Sir Nicholas Mosley, then Mayor, by her Highness's express Commandment, concerning the Cross, forthwith to be repaired, and placed again as it formerly stood, &c. Notwithstanding, the said Cross stood heedless more than a Year after: Whereupon the said Counsellors, in great Number, meaning not any longer to permit the Continuance of such a Contempt, wrote to William Rider, then Mayor, requiring him, by Virtue of her Highness's said Direction and Commandment, without any further Delay, to accomplish her Majesty's most princely Care therein, respecting especially the Antiquity and Continuance of that Monument, and ancient Ensign of Christianity, &c. dated the 24th of December 1600. After this a Cross of Timber was framed, set up, covered with Lead, and gilded, the Body of the Cross downward cleansed from Dust, and the Scaffold carried thence: About twelve Nights following, the Image of our Lady was again defaced, by plucking off her Crown, and almost her Head, taking from her her naked Child, and stabbing her in the Breast, &c. Thus much for the Cross in West Cheap.

THEN at the West End of West Cheap-street, was some Time a Cross of Stone, called the Old Cross. Ralph Higden, in his Polycronicon saith, that Walter Stapleton, Bishop of Exeter, Treasurer to Edward II, was by the Burgesses of LONDON beheaded at this Cross, then called the Standard, without the North Door of St. Paul's Church, and so it is noted in other Writers that then lived. This old Cross stood and remained at the East End of the Parish Church, called St. Michael in the Corn, by St. Paul's Gate, near to the North End of the Old Exchange, till the Year 1390, the 13th of Richard II, in Place of which old Cross, then taken down, the said Church of St. Michael was enlarged, and also a Water-conduit about the 9th of Henry VI.

HERE in Cheapside in Bow Parish, formerly in the Time of King Henry VIII, and some Time after, lived a considerable Mercer, at the Sign of the Crown, and this, perhaps, was that Shop of which we have so odd a Story in our Chronicles, of the Master's being put to Death, for saying, in a jesting Manner, That he would make his Son Heir to the Crown. The Person who kept it in King Henry VIII's Reign, was Mr. John Hare, of an antient Family in Suffolk, who left a good Estate behind him to his Children, who were many, besides his charitable Legacies. He died Anno 1564. To Richard Hare, his fourth Son, (who, as it seems, continued his Father's Trade) he gave by his Will his said Dwelling-House at the Crown, with all the Shops, Cellars, Yards, and Ware-houses, thereunto belonging. He was also Owner of the Manor of Stow Bardolph in the County of Norfolk; which he purchased of Queen Mary; and also the Parsonage thereof, and other Lands and Tenements there, which he purchased of Richard Catlyn, Serjeant at Law: All which he gave by Will to his eldest Son and Heir, Nicholas Hare. He was likewise Owner of a great Mansion-place, (as it is called in his Will) with Gardens, Orchards, Houses, Lands, and Tenements in Whitcrofs-street in the Parish of St. Giles's Cripplegate: Another Tenement in More-lane in the said Parish, with Garden, Tenter-yards, and other Commodities and Profits thence arising, or occupied with the same.

HIS charitable Legacies were as follows: To the poor People of the Parish of our Lady of Bow, where he then dwelt, 40 s. to be divided among them. To the Poor of the Parish of our Lady in Homesfield in the County of Suffolk, where he was born, 20 s. To the two Hospitals, Christ's and St. Thomas's, to the Use of the Poor thereof, 40 l. to be equally divided. To St. Bartholomew's Hospital 10 l. To the five Lazar-Houses about LONDON, 10 s. to every House. To every Prisoner within Newgate, Ludgate, the Marshall-jae and the King's-Bench, 4 d. in Money, to every one that were Prisoners there at his Decease. And to every one that should be then Prisoners in the Compters of Woodstreet and the Poultrey 4 d. a-piece. To the 13 poor Men in Whittington College, 2 s. a-piece.

OTHER Liberalities by his Will were: To the worshipful Company of Mercers, to make Banquet withal after his Decease 12 l. to be paid within three Months after his Decease, to the Wardens of the Company then being. To every Man or Maid Servant, not afore-named (the rest having particular Legacies assigned them) being his present Servants at the Time of his Death, 40 s. a-piece. Item, To divers Persons of Quality, and Citizens of Rank, he bequeathed Rings to each, of fine Gold, weighing near the Weight of three Quarters of an Ounce every Ring. These were Sir Thomas Leigh, Alderman, and my Lady his Wife, Sir Roger Martin, Alderman, Edmund Jackman, Alderman, Sir Thomas Gresham, Knt. and my Lady his Wife, &c. to the Number of 35 in all. All this is extracted from Mr. Hare's Last Will; which is set down thus largely, to shew the Wealth accruing to the Citizens in former Times by their Trades and Diligence therein: and likewise their Charities and Generosities.

IN this Ward in Cheapside, the Mercers chiefly had their Shops and Warehouses in former Times, who were also great Merchants, and sometimes went abroad beyond Sea for Traffick, and especially in Italy. A Story relating to which happened in the Year 1450; an Italian Servant walking through Cheapside with a Dagger at his Girdle, a Mercer's Servant, that before had been in Italy, went to him, and blamed him for wearing a Dagger, being a Stranger, and out of his own Country; and knowing that in his Country no Stranger might do so. For this Englishman had done so abroad, and was checked for it. But the Stranger gave such Language to the Mercer, that they fell to quarrelling: And the Mercer at length by Force took his Dagger from him, and broke it upon his Head. The Stranger complained to the Mayor; and he, together with the Court of Aldermen, sent the Mercer to Ward; but the Mayor and Sheriffs walking homeward through Cheap, were met by a great Number of Mercers Servants, and others; who suffered them not to pass till they had delivered the young Man that was sent to Prison.

THIS Story is thus continued by another of our Historians: That this Tumult ran to the Houses of divers Venetians, Lucasians and Florentines, and spoiled and rifled them: But at length, the Mayor, with divers discreet and sober Citizens, having taken some of them, dispersed the rest, and persuaded them to go to their Houses; but upon this a Commission of Oyer and Terminer, was issued to the Dukes of Exeter and Bucks, and other Noblemen, for Enquiry and Punishment of these Disorders. But when they were set in Guildhall, a Number of light Persons in Armour came to rescue the Prisoners lately apprehended, as they were carried to their Arraignment, which made the two Dukes and other Commissioners quickly depart for that Time; yet certain discreet Citizens so handled the Matter, that no Disorder followed of that Jury: And the Mayor, the next Day called a Common-Council, who appointed all the Wardens of the Companies to assemble their Companies in their Halls, and they to exhort them to keep Peace; and that if they espied any ready to make a Stir, or to attempt the Deliverance of such as were in Prison, secretly to write their Names and deliver them to the Mayor. This Course appeased the Outrage; and Commissioners afterwards sat at Guildhall, where many of the Robbers were attainted and put to Execution; besides Fines set upon divers Merchants for winking at the Matter.

Richard Malory, a rich Citizen lived in West-Cheap in St. Peter's Parish (somewhat out of this Ward). The Messuage wherein he dwelt having been some religious, Possession, came into the Hands of King Edward VI, who in his 2d Year sold it to the said Malory, for 128 l. with all other Houses, Edifices, Shops, Cellars, Solars, Stables, and Gardens thereunto belonging, being of the yearly Value of 8 l. Thus much for the High Street of Cheapside.

MERCERS-CHAPEL,

CALLED

St. Thomas of Acars, or Acons.

ON the North Side of this Street, and on the Westward of where St. Mary Colechurch stood, is the Mercers-chapel, some Time an Hospital, intituled St. Thomas of Acons or Acars, near to the great Conduit in Cheap, for a Master and Brethren, Militia Hospitalis, &c. saith the Record of Edward III, the 14th Year. It was founded by Thomas Fitz-Theobald de Heily, and Agnes, his Wife, Sister to Thomas a Becket, in the Reign of Henry II. They gave to the Master and Brethren the Lands with the Appurtenances, that some Time were Gilbert a Becket's, Father of the said Thomas, in the which he was born; there to make a Church. There was a Charnel and a Chapel over it of St. Nicholas and St. Stephen.

THE Life of Thomas a Becket (to whom this Hospital or Chapel was probably dedicated) is written by divers Authors, and diversly, according to their Affection; we shall therefore say little of it, referring the Reader to such as have written of him; and only give a short Account of his Birth and Parentage, also of his Death, and why this Hospital was dedicated by the Name of St. Thomas of Acons or Acars.

THIS Thomas a Becket, was a Son of Gilbert Becket, a Citizen of LONDON, and of Matildis his Wife, who was the Daughter of a Pagan Prince, under whose Custody, Gilbert being taken Prisoner, when he travell'd into the Holy Land, was for a Year and a half kept Prisoner, and at last escaping, by the Help of this Matildis (who fell in Love with him, being converted by him to the Christian Religion) he came again safe into England, whom Matildis, not long after, for Love of him, adventured to follow, and getting

ting away from her Father, came at last to LONDON, where finding Gilbert, he married her, and of her begat this Thomas, who was born in his Father's House, which then was in the Place where Mercers Chapel in Cheapside now stands.

HE was murder'd in his own Cathedral Church at Canterbury, on Innocent's Day, at Even, Anno 1170, as he was going up the Steps towards the Choir, by four Knights, named Reynald Fitz-Urse, Hugh de Mortenill, William de Tracy, and Richard Briton, none of which (as the Report is) lived above three Years after, and then died very penitent. His Body was first buried in the Undercraft of his own Cathedral-Church; whence, shortly after, it was taken up, put into a goodly Shrine, beset with costly Jewels and precious Stones, and plac'd at the East End of the same Church, where it continued till the Time of Henry VIII, by whose Command his Monument was utterly destroy'd, and his Relicks burnt to Ashes, Anno Dom. 1538.

WHY this Chapel was dedicated to St. Thomas a Becket, by the Name of St. Thomas of Acons, is not perfectly known; but the following Account from the X. Scriptores, seems very probable: "When the City of Acars, or Acon, in the Holy Land, (called also Ptolematis) was besieged by the Christians, one William, an Englishman by Nation, being Chaplain to Radulphus de Dinceto, Dean of LONDON, when he went to Jerusalem, bound himself by a Vow, that if he should prosperously enter Acon, he would build a Chapel to St. Thomas the Martyr, at his own Charge, according to his Ability; and would procure there, to the Honour of the said Martyr, a Church-yard to be consecrated; which was done. Then many flocking from all Parts to serve in this Chapel, William himself, as a Token of his Christianity, took on him the Name of Prior; who, whilst he served Bodily, as a Soldier of CHRIST, had an especial Care of the Poor, and he freely bestowed all his Diligence and Labour, in burying of the Bodies of such as died, as well naturally as of others who were slain with the Sword, representing himself in Man's Sight, the next Successor of that great Tobias.

THERE is another Testimony out of the Theatre of Honour, Lib. 9. Cap. 11. where the Author repeating the military Orders of the Holy-Land, saith thus: "The Order of St. Thomas was instituted by the King of England, Richard, surnamed Cœur de Lyon, after the Surprizal of Acars, and being of the English Nation, they held the Rule of St. Augustine, wore a white Habit, and a full red Cross, charged in the Middle with a white Scallop; they took for their Patron the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Metropolitan of England, Thomas a Beckett, who suffered Martyrdom (as his Favourers say) under the King of England, Henry II, of that Name. Peter de Rupibus, Bishop of Winchester, who had been five Years in the Holy Land, removed the Church there of St. Thomas the Martyr, from an unfit Place to a more convenient, and caused the Patriarch of Jerusalem to take Order, that the Brethren of this Church, who were before Laymen, might be under the Order of the Templers, wearing a Cross on their Breast. He bequeathed also to this House of St. Thomas of Acons, 500 Marks". So much M. Paris in vita Hen. III. p. 472. sub Anno. 1238.

HEREBY it is clear, that the Dedication of this Hospital, or Chapel, to St. Thomas of Acons or Acar, must have relation to the like Dedication of the Chapel and Holy Order in the City of Acars, in the Holy Land, to the same Archbishop: All these three Dedications being near about one and the same Time, within few Years after the Archbishop's Death. And it is probable, that in Imitation of those Dedications at Acars, this in LONDON might do the like.

FROM this St. Thomas antiently was a solemn Procession used by the new Mayor; who, the Afternoon of the Day he was sworn at the Exchequer, met with the Aldermen here; whence they repaired together to St. Paul's, and there prayed for the Soul of the Bishop William at his Tomb; who was Bishop of LONDON in the Time of William the Conqueror. Then they went to the Church-yard, to a Place where Thomas a Becket's Parents lay; and there they prayed for all faithful Souls departed. And then they went all back to St. Thomas of Acons again; and both Mayor and Aldermen offered each a Penny.

William Bouyndon, Magister Domus Sancti Thomæ Martyris de Acon, March 1419. Johan Chadde, Civis & Cuttelar, LONDON, by his last Will dated June 13, 1482, gave to John Neet, Master of the House of St. Thomas the Martyr of Acons, and to the Brethren of the said Place, and their Successors, his Tenement in Bersbaw-lane, in the Parish of St. Mary de Cole Church.

THIS Hospital was valued to dispend 277 l. 3 s. 4 d. It was surrendered the 30th of Henry VIII, the 21st of October, and was since purchased by the Mercers, by means of Sir Richard Gresham, and was again set open on the Eve of St. Michael 1541, the 33d of Henry VIII; yet all was not sold by that King, that belonged to this Fraternity; for King Edward VI, had Mills in West Ham in Essex, called St. Thomas Milnes, being a Messuage and a Tenement, with two Mills, belonging to St. Thomas of Acars, which in that King's first Year he sold to Gerard Harmond, to the yearly Value of 6 l. 13 s. 4 d.

THE Image of Thomas a Becket, to which Papish Saint this Chapel was dedicated, stood over the Gate. But in the Month of January, the first of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, somebody threw it down and broke it; and set a Writing on the Church Door, reflecting on them that placed it there. It is now called the Mercer's Chapel; and therein is kept a free Grammar-School, as of old Time had been accustomed, and commanded by Parliament.

MONUMENTS.

THERE were several Monuments here for the following Persons:

James Butler, Earl of Ormond, and Dame Johan his Countess, 8 Henry VI; John Norton, Esq; Stephen Cavendish, Draper, Mayor 1362; Thomas Cavendish, and William Cavendish. The former, viz. Thomas Cavendish, bequeathed his Body to be laid here in these Words (by his Will, proved 1524.) "I Thomas Cavendish of the King's Exchequer, Bequeath my Body to be buried in the Church of Thomas Acars within LONDON, in the North Isle of the Choir, next my Grandfather William Cavendish."

Robert Soame, D. D. Brother of Stephen, died sine prole.

BEFORE this Hospital, towards the Street, was built a handsome and beautiful Chapel arch-ed over with Stone, and thereupon the Mercers Hall, a most curious Piece of Work. Sir John Allen, Mercer, being a Founder, was there buried; but afterwards his Tomb was removed into the Body of the Hospital Church, and the Chapel was made into Shops, and let out for Rents by his Successors the Mercers.

THESE Mercers were enabled by Richard II. (by whom they were made a Company) to purchase Lands to the Value of 20 l. per Ann. They had three Messuages and Shops in the Parish of St. Martin Outwich in Bishopsgate Ward, for the Sustainment of the Poor, and a Chantry the 22d of Richard II. Henry IV. in the 12th of his Reign, confirmed to Stephen Spelman, W. Marchford, and John Whatile, Mercers, by the Name of one new Seldam, Shed, or Building, with Shops, Cellars, and Edifices whatsoever appertaining; the Buildings called Crownfild, situate in the Mercery of West Cheap, in the Parish of St. Mary de Arcubus, in LONDON, &c. to be holden in Burgage, as all the City of LONDON is; and which were worth by Year, in all Issues, according to the true Value of them, 7 l. 13 s. 4 d. as was found by Inquisition before Thomas Knowles, Mayor, and Escheator in the said City. Henry the IVth, in the 3d of his Reign, at the Request of John Coventry, John Carpenter, and William Grove, granted to the Mercers to have a Chaplain, and a Brotherhood, for Relief of such of their Company as came to Decay by Misfortunes at Sea.

ON Tuesday, the 27th of April, Anno 10 Henry VIII. it was granted unto the Master and his Brethren of the Hospital of St. Thomas of Acons, in West Cheap, where St. Thomas the Martyr was born, (because they wanted Room in the Hospital) that for their more Ease they might make a Gallery in convenient Height and Breadth, from their said House overthwart the Street in the Old Jury, into a certain Garden and Buildings, which the Master and Brethren had then lately purchased. So as the said Gallery should be of such Height, as should not annoy Man, Horse, nor Cart: And to make a Window on either Side of the said Gallery; and therein, yearly, in the Winter, to have a sufficient Light, for the Comfort of them that passed by.

IN the Year 1536, on St. Peter's Night, King Henry VIII. and Queen Jane his Wife, stood in this Mercers Hall, then new built, and beheld the marching Watch of the City, most bravely set out, Sir John Allen, Mercer, one of the King's Council, being Mayor.

OF later Time, a famous learned Italian Archbishop, viz. the Archbishop of Spalatto, who had forsaken his Country Archbishopricks, for the Sake of the true Religion, came and dwelt in England, preached divers Sermons in the Italian Language, in the Mercers Chapel. The first Sermon, as it seems, he preached there, was in November, 1617, where were present, as his Auditors, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, the Earls of Arundel and Pembroke, the Lords Zouch and Compton, and many other of great Note. He preached there again upon Sunday, April 19, 1618: And so he did upon Sundays divers Years after. And from thence, even to our Remembrance, that Chapel was used for Italian Sermons, at which English Merchants, that had lived abroad, were present, and contributed to the Maintaining thereof.

THE Mercers Hall and Chapel were demolished by the great Fire, but new and magnificently built by the said Company. The Hall and great Parlour are finely wainscotted with right Oak, and adorned with Pilasters of the Ionick Order, the Ceiling with Fretwork, and the stately Piazzas are constituted by large Columns and Entablature of the Dorick Order. In the Hall are the King's Arms, those of the City, and others. The Front to Cheapside is very Ornamental; the Door-case is enrich'd with the Figures of two Cupids, mantling their Arms, Festoons, &c. and above the Balcony 'tis adorned with two Pilasters, their Entablature, and Pediment of the Ionick Order; the Inter columns are the Figures of Faith and Hope, and that of Charity, in a Nich under the Cornice of the Pediment, with other Enrichments.

THE Chapel is neatly wainscotted, and paved with black and white Marble: In the Ambulatory leading to it, against the North Wall, is a Marble Tomb, with the Effigies, lying at full Length, of Richard Fishborne, Mercer, a worthy Benefactor, who died the 8th of April 1625.

AND at the Entrance into the Chapel are two Marble Tables, hanging one on each Side the middle Door, with the following Inscriptions: On that on the North Side;

M. S.

NEAR this Place lieth interred the Body of Margaret, the Wife of John Effington, of Grossington Hall in the County of Glocester, Gent. She was a Person of great Virtue and excellent Accomplishment, acquired by extraordinary Education. After a languishing Sickness, she was called to a better Life, March the 18th 1701.

To whose pious Memory, her mournful Husband erected this Monument.

NEAR this Place also lie interred the Bodies of John Godfrey, Gent. the Father, and Thomas Godfrey, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, Brother to Mrs. Margaret Effington, of whom the former having served the Right Worshipful Company of Mercers, with known Integrity, as Clerk, near sixty Years, deceased June 21, 1697, aged 80; the other dying May 1, 1698, aged 46, left a plentiful Estate to his beloved Sister.

ON the other Table on the South Side of the Door:

In Memory of John Warner, Citizen, who departed this Life the 10th Day of January 1702, in the 73d Year of his Age, erected by Anne his Wife, Daughter of George Price, Esq; late of Westbury in the County of Bucks.

Near this Place lieth the Body of Anna Maria, the Wife of John Warner, his Nephew, being the Daughter and only Child of George Price, of the County of Glocester, who departed from this World the 21st Day of July 1704, and in the 21st Year of her Age.

NEXT beyond the Mercers Hall is Ironmonger-lane, so called from Ironmongers once dwelling there.

The PARISH of
St. MARTIN'S POMARY,
 OR
IRONMONGER-LANE.

THE Church of St. Martin in Ironmonger-lane, was small, and called St. Martin Pomary, upon what Occasion, Stow says, he knows not, but supposed it to be from Apples growing where Houses were afterwards built.

THIS Church was given to the Prior and Canons of St. Bartholomew in West Smithfield, by Ralph Triket (who was also a Benefactor to the Priors of the Holy Trinity, Christ-Church, and St. John of Jerusalem); for in a Charter of King Henry III., dated at Winchester, June 15, in the 37th of his Reign, are these Words, viz. Ex Dono Radulphi Triket Ecclesiam Sancti Martini in Pomario, confirmed (among others) to the said Prior and Convent of St. Bartholomew, and their Successors, for ever, in whom the Patronage thereof continued till the general Suppression, upon which it came to the Crown, and hath remained in it ever since.

Henry at Roth, Citizen and Chandler of LONDON, in 22 Edward III., founded a Chantry in this Church, and ordered six Marks to be paid yearly to a Priest to officiate there, and 40*d.* for a Torch, out of his great Inn in St. Ethelburgh's Parish, in Bishopsgate-street, which in 24 Hen. VIII., upon the then Tenants Refusal to pay the said respective Sums, out of the Rents thereof, was confirmed to the said Chantry by the King, with the Advice and Consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons assembled in Parliament, with Power to distrain for the said Sums and their Arrears.

HERE was likewise another perpetual Chantry founded for the Soul of William Forbour, to which the Bishop of LONDON, collated in 1391, as devolved to him by Lapse.

IN 1627, a great Part of the North Wall of this Church, being very much decayed, was rebuilt; and in 1629, the whole Church was repaired and beautified at the Charge of the Parishioners.

THIS Church, being burnt down in the late dreadful Fire, is since annex'd to that of St. Olave's Jewry, which is now the Parochial-Church for both Parishes, of which more will be said in Coleman-street Ward.

IN 1693, the Church-wardens presented the Parsonage-House, burnt down in the late dreadful Fire, but was with the Toft of Ground adjoining to it, demis'd and let out by Dr. Hibbert, the late Rector, on Aug. 21, 1673, to several of the Parishioners for 40 Years, at the reserved Rent of 8*l. per Ann.* to the said Parson and his Successors; in which Lease, and under the same Ground-Rent, is also contained a Shed or Ground-House, abutting on the West End of the Church-yard.

THEY presented likewise, that Mr. Stodder (besides 50*s.* yearly to the Use of the Poor of this Parish) left 40*s.* yearly for a Sermon, to be preached on St. James's Day, by an unbeneficed Minister, in the Commemoration of the Deliverance, in the Year 1588; both which Sums are to be paid by the Ironmongers Company.

MONUMENTS.

HERE were no Monuments of any Account till after Stow's Time; among the last were these:

A handsome Monument at the Upper End of the Chancel, with this Inscription:

Hereunder lieth buried Eleanor, Wife of Hamlet Clarke, Free of the worshipful Company of Fishmongers, LONDON, and one of the four Clerks of the Lord Mayor's Court, LONDON, afore said. She died on Sunday the 14th of January, 1626, and was buried on Friday the 19th of the same, after they had been married 33 Years, and about two Months. They had Issue only Mary, married to Ralph Latham, of Upminster in the County of Essex, Esq; Common-Serjeant at Law of this Honourable City: And the said Eleanor had also Elizabeth another Daughter, by Charles Barnard, a former Husband, married to Thomas Latham of Stilford in Essex, Gentleman.

ON a fair Stone in the North Isle was the following Inscription:

Here lieth interred the Body of Randal Pickering, late Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, born at Turvine, in the County of Chester, who put off this Mortality, March 10, 1629: And Alice his Wife, Daughter of William Maddox, and born in this Parish, who departed this Life the 20th of June 1618. By her he had Issue three Sons and three Daughters, William, Randal, Anne and Elizabeth surviving, John and Mary deceased.

FARTHER West is St. Lawrence's-lane, so called from St. Lawrence's Church, which standeth directly over-against the North End thereof. Antiquities in this Lane are no other, than that among many Houses, there is a large Inn for Receipt of Travellers, called Blossom's Inn, but corruptly Bosom's Inn, and hath the Sign of St. Lawrence the Deacon, in a Border of Blossoms, or Flowers.

THEN, near to where the Standard in Cheap stood, is Honey-lane.

The PARISH of
A L H A L L O W S
H O N E Y - L A N E.

THE Church which stood here was small. The Patronage of it was of old Time in the Gift of private Persons, Citizens of LONDON; the Last whereof, Thomas Knowles, who in 1399, was Mayor of LONDON, and being by Company a Grocer, in all Likelyhood, either he or his Heirs, gave the Advowson thereof to that Company: For it appears by what follows, that it has been in their Patronage ever since the Year 1471, and probably for some Years before. It is subject to the Archdeacon, saving only as to Wills and Administrations, which belong to the Commissary.

Sir John Norman, Draper, Mayor of LONDON in 1453, was buried in this Church. He was Son of John Norman, of Banbury in Oxfordshire; and was the first Mayor that was rowed by Water to Westminster, to take his Oath: He caused a Barge to be made at his own Charge, and every Company had small Barges, well decked and trimm'd, to pass along with him; for Joy whereof the Watermen made a Song in the Praise of him, beginning thus, Row thy Boat Norman, &c.

THIS Church being burnt down in the late dreadful Fire, was annex'd to St. Mary Le Bow; and and on the Site thereof, by Act of Parliament, is now Part of Honey-lane Market.

IN 1693, the Rector and Church-wardens presented a Parsonage-House before the late dreadful Fire, but then burnt down, and the Ground thereof since swallowed up by the Market: And the Parish of St. Mary Le Bow (to which this is united) hath received all the Monies paid for the Site of the Ground of the Church and Church-yard.

ALSO, that they had no Bequests or charitable Gifts to their Church or Poor, or to any publick Use within their Parish, that they knew of.

AND thus much for Cheap Ward, in the high Street of Cheap; for it stretcheth no farther.

NEXT on the North Side of this Ward, is Catte-street, so called in Record, 24 Henry VI. but now corruptly Cateaton-street; which begins at the North End of Ironmonger-lane, and runs to the West End of St. Lawrence's Church, as is aforesaid.

Guildhall.

ON the North Side of this Street is the Guildhall, wherein the nine Courts of the City are kept viz. 1. The Court of Common-Council. 2. The Court of the Lord Mayor, and his Brethren the Aldermen. 3. The Court of Hustings. 4. The Court of Orphans. 5. The two Courts of the Sheriffs. 6. The Court of the Wardmote. 7. The Court of Hallmote. 8. The Court of Requests, commonly called the Court of Conscience. 9. The Chamberlain's Court for Binding Apprentices, and making them Free.

THE Guildhall stood formerly in or near Aldermanbury, or Aldermens-court, from which Situation of this Hall, the Street is said to take its Denomination, and consequently the Hall must have been founded before the Year 1189; for then we find this Street to have had that Name, as will be mentioned in Cripplegate Ward. And it is not unlikely that Edward the Confessor, who began to reign 1042, had a considerable Share in the first Foundation, his Arms being in several Places of this present Hall, which Robert Fabian saith was begun to be new-built in the Year 1411, the 12th of Henry IV. by Thomas Knowles, then Mayor, and by his Brethren the Aldermen. The same was made, of a little Cottage, a large and great House, as it now stands. Towards the Charges whereof, the Companies gave great Benevolences. Also, Offences of Men were pardoned for Sums of Money, towards this Work: And extraordinary Fees were raised, Fines, Amercements, and other Things employed, during seven Years, and a Continuation thereof three Years more; all to be employed to this Building.

King Henry V. in the 3d Year of his Reign, which was about the Year 1415, granted the City free Passage for four Boats, by Water, and as many Carts by Land, with Servants to each, to bring Lime, Ragg-stone, and Free-stone, for the Work of Guildhall; as appears by these Letters Patents.

THE first Year of Henry VI. Joh. Coventry, and Joh. Carpenter, Executors to Richard Whittington, gave towards the Paving of this great Hall, 20 l. and the next Year 15 l. more to the said Pavement, with hard Stone of Purbecke. They also glazed some Windows thereof, and of the Mayor's Court; on every of which Windows, the Arms of Richard Whittington are placed. The Foundation of the Mayor's Court was laid in the 3d Year of the Reign of Henry VI.; and of the Porch, on the South Side of the Mayor's Court, in the 4th of the said King. Then was built the Mayor's Chamber, and the Council-Chamber, with other Rooms above Stairs.

ANOTHER new Council-Chamber, with a handsome Room over it, appointed for an Archive to preserve the Books and Records belonging to the City; and another under it, were began to be built the first Week after Easter, in the Time of the Mayoralty of Sir Tho. Middleton, Knight and Alderman, in the Year of our Lord 1614. It was fully finished shortly after Michaelmas 1615, at the latter End of the Mayoralty of Sir Thomas Hayes, Knight and Alderman: But the Lord Mayor, and the Aldermen his Brethren, kept their first Court in the said new Council-Chamber, on the 7th Day of November, in the Year of our Lord 1625, Sir Joh. Jolles, Knight and Alderman, being then Lord Mayor: By whose Order and Direction, the said Building was performed, from the first Beginning thereof, to the final Finishing of the same, amounting to the Charge of 1740 l.

Last of all, in the said King Henry VIth's Time, a stately Poreh, entering the great Hall, was erected; the Front thereof, towards the South, being beautified with Images of Stone; such as is shewed by these Verses following, (in Black Characters) made about Anno 1568, by William Elderton, at that Time an Attorney in the Sheriffs Courts there:

Though most Images be pulled downe
And none be thought
remaine in Towne,
I am sure there be in LONDON yet
Seven Images, such,
and in such Place,
As few or none,
I thinke, will hit:
Yet every Day
they shew their Face,
And thousands see them
every Yeere.
But few, I thinke,
can tell me where:

Where

Where JESU CHRIST
aloft doth stand,
Law and Learning
on either Hand:
Discipline in the Divel's Necke,
And hard by her
are three direct;
There Justice, Fortitude,
and Temperance stand.
Where finde ye the like in all this Land?

THERE are still remaining the Figures of Moses and Aaron, above the Balcony; and below are the four Figures, which some have called, The four Cardinal Virtues; but Mr. Strype says,

"THE four lesser Figures, two on each Side the Porch, shew them to be four noble Ladies; and, by their Dress and Habit, of great Nobility and Religion. Who they were, I do not pretend to assign, leaving it to the Conjecture of Antiquarians: But it is very probable they were some eminent Benefactresses, or Friends to the City. One of these might be Maud the Empress, who was born in LONDON; and another might be Queen Philippa, Wife to King Edward III., who gained great Love of the Citizens, by Reason of a Request she once made for some of them, on her Knees, before the King and his Council.

HE that made the former Verses, might, perhaps, have this crafty Design hereby; namely, the better to preserve these antient and curious Statues from the Violence of the People, by concealing them under these feigned Fancies of his, whereby they might escape the ignorant Zeal of the Vulgar, who were in those Times, wherein he wrote his Verses, viz. 1568, very busy in pulling down and defacing all the Images, as Papist Saints, and Monuments of Idolatry.

THESE Stone Statues are venerable for their Antiquity, and over-living the great Fire of LONDON; which, 'tis likely, were set up first when the Porch was built and finished, which was not far from the Beginning of K. Hen. VII.'s Reign; that is, by Computation, above three Hundred Years ago.

DIVERS Aldermen glazed the Windows of the great old Hall, and other Courts, which was to be seen by their Arms in each. William Harriot, Draper, Mayor Anno 1481, gave 40*l.* towards this Work. The Kitchens, and other Offices adjoining, were built afterwards, viz. about the Year 1501, by Procurement of Sir John Shaa, Goldsmith, Mayor, who was the first that kept his Feast there. The Mayors, before that, usually had their Feasts at the Merchant-Taylor's, or Grocers Hall.

TOWARDS the Charges of this last Work, the Mayor had of the Fellowships of the City, by their own Agreement, certain Sums of Money, as of the Mercers 40*l.* the Grocers 20*l.* the Drapers 30*l.* and so of the other Fellowships through the City, according to their Power.

ALSO Widows, and other well-disposed Persons, gave certain Sums of Money; as the Lady Hill, 10*l.* the Lady Austrie, 10*l.* and many others, till the Work was finished.

Nicholas Alwin, Grocer, Mayor Anno 1499, deceased 1505, gave by his Testament, for a Hanging of Tapestry, to serve for principal Days in the Guild-hall, 73*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* "How this Gift was performed, saith Stow, I have not heard; for Executors of our Time, having no Conscience, (I speak of my own Knowledge) prove more Testaments than they perform.

THIS stately Hall being much damaged by the unhappy Conflagration of the City in the Year 1666, was rebuilt Anno 1669, and extremely well beautified and repaired, both in and outside, which cost about 2500*l.* This Structure appears at present thus: The Portico is adorned with a stately Gothick Frontispiece, enriched with the King's Arms under a Cornice, Pediment, and Vase, and between two Cartouches, and the City Supporters, on Acroters, and these between two other Vases, under which are Niches; and in the Middle of this Front are depenciled in Gold, these Words:

Reparata & ornata Thoma Rawlinson, Milit. Majore, An. Dom. MDCCVI.

ABOVE the Balcony are the Figures of Moses and Aaron; and on the Sides beneath are the four Cardinal Virtues, already mentioned, over the Aperture; and below the Balcony are depicted the Arms of the twenty four Companies.

THE Roof of the Inside is flat, divided into Panels, the Walls on the North and South Sides adorned with four Gothick Demy Pillars, painted White, and veined with Blue, and the Capitals gilt with Gold, upon which are the Royal Arms, and those of Edward the Confessor. Going up nine or ten Steps to the Mayor's Court, on each Side, at some Height, are two Giants of an enormous Size, the one holding a Pole-ax, the other an Halbert, supposed by Mr. Strype to be an antient Briton and a Saxon.

BETWEEN these, and over the Steps and Aperture leading to the Mayor's Court, is a Balcony, supported at each End by four Iron Pillars in the Form of Palm-Trees, which compose something like two Arbours; and these are used, on some Occasions, as Offices for Clerks to write in: Under these are the following large capital Letters, S. P. Q. L. i. e. Senatus Populus Que Londinensis.

IN the Front of the Balcony is a very fine Clock and Dial, in a curious Frame of Oak, at the four Corners of which are carved the four Cardinal Virtues, on the Top the Figure of Time, with a Cock on each Side of him.

ROUND the Top of the Hall are Colours and Standards (all hereafter described.) On fourteen Demi-Pillars (above the Capitals) are the King's Arms on the North Eastward, and the Arms of LONDON on the South Eastward Pillar; and Westward from them are the Arms of the Twelve Companies; at the East End are the King's Arms, between the Portraits finely painted of their present Majesties King George II. and Queen Caroline; close by the first is the Picture of Queen Anne, at the Foot of an Anabathrum, under a rich Canopy; by the latter, his late Majesty King George I., and at the same End of the Hall, but on the North and South Sides, the Pictures of King William III. and Queen Mary, fronting each other. The Intercolumns are painted in Imitation of Porphyry, and embellish'd with the Pictures in full Proportion, of eighteen Judges, which were there put up by the City in Gratitude for their signal Services done in determining Differences between Landlord and Tenant (without the Expence of Law-Suits) in Re-building the City, pursuant to an Act of Parliament, after the Fire in 1666.

THOSE on the South Side are:

Sir Heneage Finch.	Sir William Morton.
Sir Orlando Bridgman.
Sir Matthew Hale.	On the North Side.
Sir Richard Rainsford.
Sir Edward Turner.	Sir Robert Atkins.
Sir Thomas Tyrrel.	Sir John Vaughan.
Sir John Archer.	Sir Francis North.

Sir Thomas Twisden.
Sir Christopher Turner.
Sir William Wyld.
Sir Hugh Windham.

At the West End:
Sir William Ellys.
Sir Edward Thurland.
Sir Timothy Littleton.

AND in the Lord Mayor's Court (which is adorned with Fleakstone, and other Painting and Gilding, and also the Figures of the four Cardinal Virtues) are the Portraits of Sir Samuel Brown, Sir John Kelynge, Sir Edward Atkins, and Sir William Windham, all (as those above) painted in full Proportion in their Scarlet Robes as Judges.

AND in December 1706, there were given by the Queen to the City, to be put up in this Hall, 26 Standards, or Guidons, and 63 Colours; but there was Room only for 46 Colours, 19 Standards, and one Trophy of a Kettle-Drum, of the late Elector of Bavaria, which is very rich. That Ensign over Queen Ann's Portrait is accounted a great Rarity, being taken from the first Battalion of the French Foot Guards. These were all taken by the Army of her Majesty and her Allies, under the Command of his late Grace the Duke of Marlborough, at the Battle of Ramellies in Flanders, fought on Whitsunday 1706, upon a total Defeat of the French and Bavarian Forces, who had 10,000 Men killed, 6000 taken Prisoners, among whom were two Major-Generals, one Brigadier-General of Horse, one of Foot, several others of Distinction, and 500 Officers of less Note; with all their Tents, Baggage and Ammunition; fifty one Pieces of Cannon, several Kettle-Drums, and upwards of 120 Standards and Colours; the Consequences whereof was the Reduction of all Brabant, gaining the Towns of Brussels, Antwerp, Ghent, Bruges, Menin, Ostend, Aeth, Dendermond, Mecklin, Louvain, Audenard, Courtray, Alost, &c. in the same Campaign.

THESE Colours, Standards, &c. were all brought in great Magnificence through Westminster and LONDON. A Detachment of her Majesty's Horse-Guards, and Horse-Grenadiers, and a Battalion drawn out of both Regiments of her Foot-Guards, drawn up on the Parade in St. James's, having received the said Colours and Standards, (which had been laid up in Whitehall) they proceeded; twenty-six of the Gentlemen, in the Century of the Horse-Guards, carrying each a Standard taken from the Enemy; and sixty-three of the Pike-Men, in a Battalion of Foot-Guards, instead of their Pikes, carrying one of the Enemy's Colours. They marched through the Park, and St. James's Meuse, where the Queen, from the Lady Fitzharding's Lodgings, saw them pass, the Guns being fired at the same Time. And so they proceeded down the Pall-mall, the Strand, &c. to Guildhall, where they were set up, to remain as Trophies of that signal Victory.

THE same Month the great Duke of Marlborough, to whom this Victory was owing, was invited to Dinner at the Charge of the City, Sir Robert Bedingfield being Lord Mayor, upon which Occasion a very grand Entertainment was made, at which a Song, wrote for the Purpose by Dursey the Poet, and set to Musick by Mr. Weldon, was perform'd by Mr. Elford, of the Queen's Chapel, and Mr. Leveridge.

THIS Hall is in Length 153 Feet, Breadth 48, and Altitude within 55 Feet. It is used by the City for the Session of the several Courts of Judicature before named; for feasting our Kings, Queens, and other Potentates, Foreign Ministers, &c. and lastly, for choosing the Lord Mayors, Sheriffs, Members of Parliament, &c. it being capacious enough to contain 7000 Persons.

VOL. I.

The CHAPEL of St. MARY MAGDALENE, by GUILDHALL.

THE Chapel, or College, of our Lady Mary Magdalene, and of All-saints, by the Guildhall, was called London-College; and built first in 1299. Peter Fanelore, Adam Francis, and Henry Frowicke, Citizens, gave one Messuage, with the Appurtenances; in the Parish of St. Foster, to William Brampton, Custos of the Chantry by them founded in the said Chapel, with four Chaplains, and one other House in the Parish of St. Giles without Cripplegate; in the 27th of Edward III, was given to them; which was about the Year 1353.

Richard II, in the 20th of his Reign, granted to Stephen Spilman, Mercer, Licence to give one Messuage, three Shops, and one Garden, with the Appurtenances belonging, in the Parish of St. Andrew Hubbard, to the Custos and Chaplains of the said Chapel, and to their Successors, for their better Relief and Maintenance for ever.

KING Henry VI, in the 8th of his Reign, gave Licence to John Barnard, Custos, and the Chaplains, to build a-new the said Chapel or College of Guildhall. And the same Henry, in the 27th of his Reign, granted to the Parish-Clerks in London, a Guild of St. Nicholas, for two Chaplains, by them to be kept in the said Chapel of St. Mary Magdalene, near Guildhall, and to keep seven Alms-People. Henry Barton, Skinner, Mayor, founded a Chaplain there. Roger Depham, Mercer, and Sir William Langford, Kt. had also Chaplains there. This Chapel or College had a Custos, seven Chaplains, three Clerks, and four Choiristers.

MONUMENTS.

THERE were several Marble Tombs remaining in Stow's Time, but most of them defaced. The uppermost in the Choir, on the South Side, above the Re-vestry Door, was the Tomb of John Wells, Groter, Mayor, Anno 1431. The Figure of the said Wells was carved on the Tomb, on the Door of the Re-vestry, and other Places on that Side the Choir. Also in the Window over the Tomb, and in the East Window, was his Image, with Hands elevated, holding Scrolls, wherein is written, Mercy: The Writing in the East Window being broken, yet remaineth Wells. His Arms were also in the South Glass Window. All which shew, that the East End, and the South Side of the Choir of this Chapel, and the Re-vestry, were by him both built and glazed.

HERE seems to have been buried Thomas Ryche, Citizen and Mercer of London: For, by his Will dated July 2, 1471, he bequeathed his Body to be buried in the Chapel of Guildhall, London. In which Will, he appointed Sir Re-lone Priest, by the Advice of his Father-in-Law, to pray for his Soul, &c. And that all such Sums as he owed to his Father, Richard Ryche, should be deliver'd to his Executrix Elizabeth his Wife. He bequeathed also to the Lady his Sister, Dame Margaret Walden, (a Lady Abbess as it seems) to pray for his Soul, a gilt Cup covered, called The Tubbe, &c. To the poor People of Hoxton, the Day of his Burial, 100 Shillings, to pray for his Soul. To the Nieces of John Ryche, his Son, 40 Shillings, &c.

ON the North Side of the Choir, the Tomb of Thomas Knesworth, Fishmonger, Mayor 1505, who deceased 1515; was defaced, and afterwards renewed

renewed by the Fishmongers. Two other Tombs there were, one of a Draper, the other of a Haberdasher; their Names not known. Richard Stomine was written in the Window by the Haberdashers. Under flat Stones do lie divers Custodes of the Chapel, Chaplains and Officers to the Chamber.

AMONGST others, John Clipstone, Priest, some Time Custos of the Library of the Guildhall, 1457. Another of Edmond Alison, Priest, one of the Custodes of the Library, 1510, &c. Sir John Langley, Goldsmith, Mayor, 1576, lieth buried in the Vault, under the Tomb of John Wells, before-named.

OF later Times, these following have been buried in Guildhall Chapel, under flat Stones.

Gulielmus Avery, dum vixit celeberrimæ huic Civitati a Commentariis, Ob. 1671.

William Fluellin, Esq; late Alderman of this City, 1675.

William Lightfoot, one of the four Attornies of the Lord Mayor's Court, and Register of Sutton's Hospital, 1699.

AGAINST the South Wall of the Cloister, a Monument for Catharine Lightfoot, Daughter of Rob. Abbot, Wife of the said Will. Lightfoot, died in Childbed, 1673.

THIS Chapel or College, valued to dispend 12 l. 8 s. 9 d. per Year, was surrender'd amongst others. The Chapel remaineth to the Mayor and Commonalty, wherein they have Service weekly; as also at the Election of the Mayor, and at the Mayor's Feast, &c.

IN the 4th Year of the Reign of King Edward VI, the said King sold to the Mayor and Commonalty of LONDON, the Site of the said College of Guildhall, in the Parish of Bassishaw, late dissolved, and the Chapel there; and divers other Messuages, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments in the City of LONDON, in other Parishes, for the Sum of 456 l. 13 s. 4 d. upon their Humble Petition, the yearly Value being computed to be 40 l. 6 s. 8 d. The Date of the Patent was April 10, to commence from the Feast of the Annunciation of the blessed Virgin, in the 3d of the said King's Reign.

UPON the Front of this Chapel, is set up, of latter Times, the Figures, in Stone, of the said King Edward VI, Queen Elizabeth, with a Phoenix under her, and King Charles I. treading upon a Globe.

ADJOINING to this Chapel, on the South Side, was some Time a fair and large Library, furnished with Books, pertaining to the Guildhall and College.

THESE Books (as it is said) were, in the Reign of Edward VI. sent for by Edward Duke of Somerset, Lord Protector, with Promise to be restored shortly. Men laded from thence three Carriages with them; but they were never returned. This Library was built by the Executors of Richard Whittington, and by William Bury. The Arms of Whittington are placed on the one Side in the Stone-work, and two Letters, to wit, W. and B. for William Bury, on the other Side. It is now lofted through, and made a Storehouse for Cloths.

The PARISH of St. LAURENCE JURY.

SOUTH West from this Guildhall is the Parish-Church of St. Laurence, called, In the Fury, because of old Time, since the Reign of William the Conqueror, (that first brought Jews from Roan into this Realm) many Jews inhabited thereabout, until the Year 1290, the 18th of Edward I. they were wholly, and for ever, by the said king banished this Realm, having of their own Goods to bear their Charges, till they were out of his Dominions. The Number of the Jews, at that Time banished, were 15060 Persons: Whose Houses being sold, the King made of them a mighty Mass of Money.

St. Laurence, to whom this Church was dedicated, was born at Huesca in the Kingdom of Arragon, and made Archdeacon of the Church of Rome by Pope Sixtus II. in 260, who trusted him with the Treasures of the Church. This was when the Emperor Valerian was putting forward a cruel Persecution of the Christians; in which, Pope Sixtus being taken among others, was visited by Laurence his Archdeacon, whom he charged to distribute the Church-Treasures he was intrusted with, to the poor Christians that hid themselves in subterraneous Caves, from the Fury of that Persecution. St. Laurence having perform'd this Command, the next Day saw them leading the Pope to his Martyrdom, to whom he said aloud, That he had, according to his Command, distributed the Church Treasures to the Poor. The Soldiers hearing him speak of Treasures, laid hold on him, who appearing before the Emperor, he charged him to declare where these Treasures were, which he had mentioned; St. Laurence demanded three Days Time to get them together, and present them to him; at the End thereof, he presented a great Number of poor People to the Emperor, and told him, that they were the Treasures of the Church he had spoken of. Valerian, incensed at this Disappointment, order'd his Skin to be torn in Pieces with Iron Scourges, and afterwards to be whipt with Rods, and Lashes that had Lead at the End of them, and then to be set on the wooden Horse, and have all his Limbs dislocated; and, last of all, order'd a Kind of Gridiron, with a slow Fire under it to be made ready, upon which the Tyrant caus'd him to be laid down and roasted, which Laurence endured with such Constancy and Unconcernedness, as astonished the Tyrant, and so chearfully render'd his Spirit to God, on the 10th of August 261, on which Day his Passion and Martyrdom are yearly celebrated.

WHEN this Church was first founded, is uncertain; but Stow saith it was repaired and beautified at the Charge of the Parishioners in the Year of our Lord 1618.

To this, in the Year 1631, they added the Cost of a new and very curious Pulpit, then also setting off their Font, and the Place in which it stood, with a great deal of Cost and Beauty.

IN the said Year 1618, the Time of this Repair, all the Windows in this Church were glazed by so many good Benefactors, with the Arms of the Company of every one of them.

UNDER the middle Window in the Chancel, a very rich and costly one, was thus written:

Sir William Fastfield, Kt. and Alderman of this Honourable City, and free of the Worshipful Company of Mercers, glazed this Window at his own proper Cost and Charges, in the Year of our Lord 1442. And it was afterward repaired at the Charge of the said Company, in the Year of our Lord 1618.

A fair Window on the North Side of it;

THE next Window upward ;

This Window was glazed at the Charge of Cecilia Cleyton, Widow to Mr. Richard Cleyton, Citizen and Salter, but Free of the Worshipful Company of Dyers of LONDON, and deceased the 23d of October, 1602. Glazed in October 1618.

THE uppermost Window on the North Side ;

This Window was glazed at the Charge of Edmond Wright, Grocer 1618.

THE old Church being destroyed by the raging Fire in 1666, this present Church was again edified, Anno 1677, the Charge of the Walls being defrayed out of the Parish Stock ; and the Finishing and Adorning within was done at the Charge of Sir John Langham, Bart. who gave 250*l.*

AND Edward Lord Bishop of Norwich gave 50*l.* and the Church was beautified and repaired, Ann. 1706.

THE Church is well built of Stone, the Roof is flat, covered with Lead, the Windows below uniform, as are also the superior, for the most Part (which are less) and its Order is the Corinthian.

As to Ornament, the Roof is adorned with Fret-work ; and the many Pilasters on the South Side, and the Columns on the North, that strengthen and support a handsome Gallery, are of the most beautiful Order last mentioned, as is an Entablament there.

THE Church is well wainscotted about eight Feet high with Oak, wherewith it is likewise pewed.

THE Pulpit is carved Wainscot, with Enrichments.

THE Altar-piece has the Commandments done in Gold on Black, placed between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, which are Black Letters upon Gold, each under a Cornice and Pediment ; and here are Enrichments of gilded Cherubims, and the Communion-Table is sustained by four Cupids, all which are carved in Oak.

HERE are three neat Wainscot Inner Door-cases, those at the West End having Columns, &c. and Pediments of the said Order, with each a spacious Angel thereon finely done ; and that on the South Side of the Church is of the same Order, adorned with Pilasters, Festoons, Palm-Branches, &c.

HERE is a pretty Marble Font placed in a large carved Pew ; also three spacious Brass Branches, and an Organ Gallery at the West End. The East End of the Church outwardly is adorned with four Stone Columns and two Pilasters, with their Entablature and Pediment of the Corinthian Order.

THE Dimensions are Length 81 Feet, Breadth 68, Altitude about 40 ; and that of the Steeple, which is a Tower, Lanthorn, and small Spire, about 130 Feet, wherein are eight fine Bells to ring in Peal ; and a Gridiron is placed at the Top for a Vane.

MONUMENTS.

THERE lie buried in this Church, Elizabeth, Wife to John Fortescue, Catharine Stoketon, John Stratton, Philip Albert, John Fleming, Philip Agmondesham, William Skywith, James Lialton, John Norlong, John Baker, Thomas Alleyne, William Barton, Mercer, 1410. William Melrith, Mercer, one of the Sheriffs, 1425. Simon Bartlet, Mercer, 1428. Walter Chartsey, Draper, one of the Sheriffs, 1430. Richard Rich, Esq; of LONDON, the Father, and Richard Rich, his Son, Mercer, one of the Sheriffs, 1441, deceased 1469, with this Epitaph :

Respice quod Opus est
præsentis Temporis Ævum, Omne quod est, nihil est,
præter amare Deum.

This Richard was Father to John, buried in St. Thomas Acars, which John was Father to Thomas, Father to Richard Lord Rich, &c.

Richard Rich, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, by his Will (made in 1463, and proved 1464) bequeathed his Body to be buried in the Cha.

Chapel of St. Mary, within the Church of St. Laurence in veteri Iudaismo. He appointed for Catharine his Wife, and Thomas his Son, and Robert Lone, Chaplain, and William Marewe, John Walden, and Thomas Urswick, (who had married his Daughters,) to be cloathed the Day of his Burial in black Cloth. And that all the Sons of his said Daughters, and one Servant of Marewe, Walden, and Urswick, and all his Servants in LONDON, be cloathed in Black Cloth. And that the aforesaid Thomas Urswick, have for himself, and his Wife, and all his Children, to the Buying of this Vesture, 40 s.

THIS Testator had Lands in Hoddesdon, Brokesborn, Stansted, and Henwel, in the County of Hertford, and in Hoxton in the Parish of Skoreditch. John Rich, Son of the Testator, and Isabel his Wife, had divers Lands in Hoddesdon for Life, as that called the George. The said Richard Rich, bequeathed to Thomas Rich his Son, all his Lands and Tenement in Isolden (Islington) and Ratcliffe, in Middlesex. Of this Richard, descended Richard Lord Rich, of Lee in Essex, some Time Lord Chancellor in the Reign of King Edward VI, and was the Raifer of the Noble Family of the Earls of Warwick.

John Pickering, honourable for Service of his Prince, and for the English Merchants beyond the Seas, who deceased 1448.

Godfrey Bolleyn, Mercer, Mayor 1457, but died about 1463, for that Year his Will bore Date. His Christian Name is set down Godfrey, by Stow, both in his Survey, and in his Chronicle, but amiss for Geoffrey; for so it appears his Name was, as by his Last Will: Wherein he desired to be buried in the Chapel of St. John, in the Church of St. Lawrence in Jury, of LONDON. He had Sons, William and Thomas; and Daughters, Isabel, Anne, and Alice. And had Lands in the Parishes of Blykling, Holtham, Stukey, Mulburton, Kemsing, and Sele, in Norfolk and other Counties.

FROM this Family descended the most incomparable and fortunate Princess Elizabeth, some Time Queen of England. Thomas Bolleyn, his Son, of Norfolk, Esq; 1471: He left Anne, his Mother, Executrix, Willing her to sell his Place in the Manor of Ingham, in Norfolk; and that she should have the Money to dispose of for his Soul's Health. He desired by his Last Will to be buried in this Church, beside his Father.

John Atkenston, Gentleman, Dame Mary St. Maure, John Waltham, Roger Bonifant, John Chakee, (Chayham) John Abbot, Geoffrey Feilding, Mayor, 1452, and Angel his Wife, 1517. Simon Benington, Draper, and Joan his Wife. John Marshal, Mercer, Mayor, 1493. William Purchat, Mayor, 1498. Thomas Burgoyne, Gentleman, Mercer, 1517, a Wife to a Master of Defence, Servant to the Prince of Wales. A Countess of Cornwall and Chester, but her Name and Time was not apparent; Sir Richard Greatham, Mayor, 1537.

Sir Michael Dormer, Mercer, Mayor, 1541, died about the Year 1545; for in that Year he made his Last Will, wherein he bequeathed his Body to be buried in the Church-yard of St. Laurence the Jury, LONDON, where Elizabeth his Wife lay.

IN this Church also was buried (as we may conclude by his Will) Roger Thorney, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, who deserves here to have a Remembrance for his good Will to Learning, founding a Fellowship in Jesus College in Cambridge, by certain his Lands and Tenements in Southwark. The Manner of establishing the same, and for what superstitious Ends, according to the Devotion of those Times, will appear by the Tenor of the said Will, made January 16, 1514, and in the 6th Year of King Henry VIII.

IN the Name of God, Amen, &c. First, I bequeath my Sowle to Almighty God, our Blessed Lady St. Mary, &c. And my Body to be beryd in the Chapell of our Lady, within the Church of St. Laurence in the Hold Jury, &c. under the same Stone where my Mayster John Pykeryng, lyethe beryd, or nere thereunto.

Item, where by my Dede of Ffeffement, beryng Date the 6th Day of September, in the 6th Yere of the Reign of King Henry VIII. I infeffed William Archbishop of Canterbury, and other, of and in al the Meses, Lands, and Tenements, Gardayns, with al and singular theyr Appurtinences, set and beyng in Southwark, within the County of Surrey, as in the foresayd Dede of Ffeffement more playnely doth appere; to the Entent that the feyd William Archbishop, and other his Fefees, within the feyd Dede namyd, and theyr Hayres, should stand and be seasy'd thereof, to the use and entent as hereafter ensuyeth: That is to say, That the feyd Fefys should stand and be Fefys to the Use and Behof of me the feyd Roger, and Eleonor my Wife, during our Tymes; and after the Decease of me the sayd Roger, and Eleonor my Wife, and the longest Lyver of us; I Will that the feyd Fefyes, and theyr Ayers, be thereof Fefyes to the Use and Entent ensuyng.

That is to say, to the use of the Maister and Fellowes, for the Tyme beyng, of the College of our Lady, Sainte John Evangelyst, and Saynte Radegund, commonly called Ihesus College in Cambridge, and of their Successors, from the Day of the Decease of me the feyd Roger and Eleonor my Wisse, unto the End and Terme of LXXXXIX Yeres then next ensueing, and fully to be complete and ended. And in case that the sayd Maister and Fellowes, or theyr Successor, provyd and obteyn a sufficient Licence of the Kyng our Sovereign Lord, or any of his Heyres, Kyngs of England; hereafter to receive and retayn in Mortmain, the said Mese, Londs, Tenements, and other the Premisses in Southwark. Then I Woll that the sayd Archbishop of Canterbury, and other of his Fefyes, and their Hayres, be thereof Fefyes, to the Use of the sayd Maister and Fellowes, and their Successors, from the Day of such sufficient Licence, had and obtained, &c. And also I Will, that the sayd Maister and Fellowes, make, or cause to be made, under their Common Seal, a sufficient Charter, or Graunt unto mine Executors, or to the Executor of mine Executors, &c. that they within a Yere after they shal have real Possession of, and in the sayd Lands, &c. shal find in the sayd College for evermore, one honest Prest Graduat, by the sayd Maister and Fellowes, &c. to be elect and chosen, and made Fellow of the said College, there to contynue his Learning in Arte or Divinitie, as his Degree and Tyme shal require in the same College, to syng and pray for the Sowles of me the foresayd Roger, and for the Sowles of Anne and Eleonor my Wiffes; Thomas Thorny, and Joan his Wiffe; my Fader and Moder; John Thorney, my Soon, John Pykeryng, Mercer, and ———, his Wiffe, and for the Sowls of all them whom he and I be bownd to pray for, and for al Christen Sowles, Gevyng to him such Exhibition and Ryght in the sayd College, as the Fellowes now beyng have, by the Reason of the first Foundation of the said College; and over that, to the feyd Prest, xx s. yerely for his Clothing.

Item,

Item, I Wol, that the sayd Maister and Fellows, as by theyr sayd Graunt and Charter shal be specified, shal observe and kepe yerely for evermore, the Day of my Deceasse, an Obyte, or an Anniversary, with Placebo and Dirige, by Note in the Evyn; and Masse and Requiem, by Note in the Morning; gevyng to every Fellow beyng present at the sayd Dirige and Masse, 12*d.* and to every Child and Chanter of the College Exhibition, 2*d.* and to the Scolemaister, 8*d.* and to the Usher 4*d.* to the Maister of the sayd College, 20*d.* &c.

Item, I Wol and Befeeche the Reverend Father in God, the Bishop of Ely, for the Tyme beyng, that there may be a Statute made in the sayd College, to the whiche any new Maister or Fellow may be sworne in his fyrst Admission, &c. to do their Diligence to performe and contynue this my Last Will and Testament, towching this Premys, to the best of theyr Powere.

Item, I Wol, that the sayd oon Priest found, and the sayd Obyte observyd, after the Rate before sayd, al the Surplus of the sayd Lands and Tenements in Southwarke, be put in a Purse by itself, and laid in the common Hutche of the sayd College, only to be spent for the Maintenance of the sayd Lands and Tenements, by the Discretion of the sayd Maister and Fellows, &c. and not to be applyed to any other Use, except in an extreme Cause of Necessity, &c.

Robert Chartsey, one of the Sheriffs, 1548.

Sir William Rowe, Ironmonger, Mayor, 1593.

Samuel Thornhill, 1597.

Walter Blundel had a Chantry there, the 14th of Edward II.

MONUMENTS.

ON an antient Tomb in the Chancel was this Inscription :

Lo here the Lady Margaret North,

A very fair Stone in the South Isle, with this Inscription about it:

Here lieth the Body of Anne Barker, the Wife of John Barker, of LONDON, Merchant, the Daughter of Thomas Westrow, Alderman of LONDON; she deceased the second of August, 1629.

IN the Middle of the Stone, with their Arms at the four Corners of it, these Words:

Though we are dead, yet our Lives are hid in Christ with God.

Christ is to me both in Life and Death Advantage.

Though my Flesh faileth, and my Heart also, yet God is the Strength of my Heart, and my Portion forever.

Queen ELIZABETH's Monument.

Here lies her Type, who was of late,
the Prop of Belgia, Stay of France,
Spain's Foil, Faith's Shield, and Queen of State,
of Arms, of Learning, Fate, and Chance :
In Brief, of Women ne're was seen
So great a Princess, so good a Queen.

Sithe Virtues her immortal made,
death (envying all that cannot die)
Her earthy Parts did so invade,
as in it wrack'd self Majesty.
But so her Spirit inspir'd her Parts,
That she still lives in loyal Hearts.

I have fought a good Fight, I have finished my Course, &c.

*Obiit 24 Die Martii 1602.
Anno Regni 45.
Ætatis suæ 70.*

Now for the Monuments of modern Date in this Church, (namely since the Rebuilding of it) there be these erected and set up, and Stones laid over the Dead.

IN the Chancel against the North Wall:

P. M.

Reverendissimi & Sanctissimi Præfulis JOHAN-
NIS TILLOTSON, Archiepiscopi Cantuariensis,
Concionatoris olim in hac Ecclesia per Annos XXX. celeberrimi. Qui obiit X<sup>o</sup> Kal. De-cembr. M,DC,LXXXIV. Ætatis suæ LXIV.
Hoc posuit Elizabetha Conjux ejus mœstissima.

So far the Inscription; and had it been very much longer, it could not have sufficiently set forth the Piety, Charity, Learning, and other excellent Qualifications of this Great Man; which are partly shewn in his elegant Sermons, and in that, at his Funeral, preach'd by Gilbert, late Lord Bishop of Sarum.

THE Monument is adorned with his Effigies, done in Basso Relievo; over his Head a Mitre,
and Enrichments of Palm-Branches, Cherubs,
Mantling, and the Arms of the Archiepiscopal See, i.e. Saphir, a Staff in Pale Topaz, and thereon a cross Pattee, Pearl, surmounted by a Pall of the last, charged with four Crosses, For-mee Fitchee, Diamond, fringed and edged of the second.

Impaled with his own Coat, viz. Saphir, a
Bend cottised between two Garbs, Topaz.

ANOTHER Monument against the East Wall of the North Isle, for the Reverend Benjamin Whitchcote, S.T.D. some Time Vicar of this Church; a most learned and excellent Preacher.
Obiit 1683, aged 74.

THE Inscription thereupon, is as followeth:

Infra Insulam Mediam in Cancellis, situs est
Reverend. BENJAMIN WHITCHCOTE, S.T.D. ex
antiqua Prosapia in Agro Salopien. oriundus:
Olim apud Cantrabrigienses.

Collegii { Emanuelensis Socius,
Regalis Præpositus Acceptissimus.

Tandem hujusce Ecclesiæ acceptissimus Vicarius.
Quæ (præter cætera sua Munia) quanta cum laude, quali cum fructu præstiterit, Fama magni Nomi-nis longe lateque divulgata, vocalius & diutius durantissimo Marmore, proclamabit. Venerabilis iste Theologus pro spectatissima Probitate, Prudentia singulari, & Eruditione optima, Doctrinâ perquam Divina, Vitaque pari Doctrinæ, Laude

omnimajor. (Quali, qualis, quantus, quantus fuit).
Post Valetudinem prosperam diu habitam, morbo, potius quam Senectâ, fractus (Annorum tam-men ac Famæ ac Opum satur) Vitam minus vi-talem, cum meliori commutavit; Anno post salutiferum Partum M,DC,LXXXIII. Ætatis suæ LXXIV.

UPON the same East Wall is a White Marble
Monument, with this Inscription:

To the Memory of Mrs. Mary Browning, Daughter of John Browning, Merchant, and
Elizabeth his Wife, who died the 6th of August
1697, aged 13 Years and six Months.

While here entomb'd the Virgin Ashes lie,
Her deathless Soul resides above the Sky:
To which calm Region of Eternal Day,
Her younger Sister kindly led the Way;
Where they their pious Father's Spirit meet,
And with transporting Joy each other greet.
How welcome must they be to Angels there,
Who were themselves so like to Angels here:
In Bliss they dwell, while, to their lasting Fame,
Their Mourning Mother raised this Marble (Frame :

Who second Nuptials for two Nymphs deccas'd,
With Recompence of two sweet Sons are blessed.
Long may those charming Birds on Earth be (heard,
And then to sing in Paradise prefer'd.

William Bird died the 2d of October 1698, aged four Years and a half.

One charming Bird to Paradise is flown;
Yet are we not of Comfort quite bereft,
Since one of this fair Brood is still our own,
And still to cheer our drooping Soul is left.
This stays with us, whilst that his Flight doth (take,
That Earth and Skies may one sweet Confort (make.

THE Monument is adorned with the Figure of the said Mary, as big as the Life, over whose Head are two Cherubs, and two weeping at her Feet. She has her Left Arm resting on an Urn, and placed under a gilded Curtain; also Death's
Head, &c. and these Arms:

ON a Lozenge Gules, two Bends wavy, the first Argent, second Or.

John Davis, Son of Richard Davis, 1681, and Richard, Son of the same Richard, 1691;
and Christian his Daughter, 1696.

James Ware, 1672, and Elizabeth, his Wife, 1699.

John Browning, 1687; by him lie his Daughters, Elizabeth and Mary.

Augustin Munford, 1666; also Richard his Son, 1695, and Anne his Wife, 1698; and Augustin his eldest Son, 1701.

AGAINST the West Wall of this North
Isle a fair Monument with three Effigies half Way, in Stone, of a Man and two Women; viz. William Haliday, Alderman of the City, died 1623, and Susanna his Wife, after married to Robert Earl of Warwick, died 1645, and Anne his eldest Daughter, married to Sir Henry Mildmay, Knt. died 1656.

UNDER the Man, is this Inscription: In or near this Place lieth interred the Body of William Haliday, Alderman of the City of LONDON, with his Wife, Sister of Sir Henry Row of Sha-kelwell,

kelwel in the County of Middlesex. By whom he had two Daughters, Anne, married to Sir Henry Mildmay, and Margaret, married to Sir Edward Hungerford, below mentioned: He died about the 14 of March, 1623, being a worthy Magistrate of this City. Who for his Piety, Charity and Prudence, deserveth immortal Fame.

IN this Church were two Fraternities, or Guilds, founded in the Reign of King Edward III; the one of the Holy Trinity, were bound to set up a Wax Light to burn before a certain Image of the Crucifix, and that all the Brethren and Sisters should come to the said Church in the Feast of the Exaltation of the Cross, and there be present at the Mass, and offer a Penny.

THE other Fraternity was founded in the Honour and Worship of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, of his Blessed Mother, our Lady St. Mary, and of St. Anne, whose Image stood in the Chapel of St. John in the Church of St. Lawrence in the Fewry, beginning on the Day of St. Anne in the Year of the Reign of King Edward III. After the Conquest, the 46th of Alexander Seyvyle, William Reymond, Thomas Adam, and William atte Brigge, were the Keepers of this Fraternity of St. Anne.

ONE of the Articles of this Guild was, "If any of the Company be of wicked Fame of his Body, and take other Wives than his own. Or if he be a single Man, and be hold a common Lecher, or Contehour, or Rebel of his Tongue, he shall be warned of the Warden three Times; and if he will not himself amend, he shall pay to the Wardens al his Arrerages that he oweth to the Company, and he shall be put off for evermore. So that the good Men of the Company be not flander'd because of him.

PROVISION also was here made, for such as fell under Misfortune by Sicknes, or by Robbery by Land or by Water, or by Fire, or by Old Age, or by Chance to lose Hand, Finger, or other Member of his Body, wherefore he may not work, and live of his Craft; so that it be not at his Fault, but at his Defence, by Record of his Neighbours: And if he have well and truly payd his Quarteridges and other Things, as the good Men of the Company do; he shall have of the Silver of the Quarteridges of the Box every Week, for Term of his Life, x Pence Half-penny in helping of his Sustenance, he prayug for all the Company: And at his dying shall have the Light and Masses, as is before-said.

AND if any Man be of good State, and use him to ly long in Bed; and at rising of his Bed, will not work, but win his Sustenance, and keep his House, and go to the Tavern, to the Wine, or to the Ale, to wrastring, to schetyng, (i. e. shooting) and in this Maner falleth poor, and left his Cattel in his Defaut for Succour; and trust to be holpen by the Fraternity; that Man shall never have Good, nor Help of the Companie, neither in his Life, nor at his Death; but he shall be put off for evermore of the Companie, &c.

THESE are some of the Articles of this and such like Guilds, which the Citizens were very fond of entering themselves Members of in the Reign of King Edward III; but were narrowly look'd into about the Middle of Richard II.

No

No Gifts, Legacies, or Bequests, are belonging to this Church or Parish, as it was given in at the Parochial Visitation, Anno 1693. But there are two Weekly Lectures, one preached on Tuesdays, at 30 l. per Annum Another on Thursdays, also at 30 l. per Annum.

THERE is one Grammar-School kept over the Vestry.

THERE was no Parsonage or Vicarage-House before the Fire. Since the Fire, the Parish took a Piece of Ground of the City of London, for a certain Number of Years, at the yearly Rent of 20 l. and there built an House for the Vicar.

THE Glebe does not now appear; but in the Parochial Visitation, An. 1636, in the Presentment, was brought in Rent for two Tenements at 8 l. per Annum.

THE Master and Scholars of Baliol College in Oxford are the Impropietors of this Church. And a Law-Suit arising between them and the Parish, for Arrears of the said impropriate Tithes in the Year 1694, both Parties referred themselves to the final Determination of Sir Nicholas Lechmere, and Sir John Powel, Knts. two of the Barons of the Exchequer, and bound themselves in the Penalty of 500 l. by Obligation, to stand to their Arbitrament; which was, to pay to John Sayer, Clerk, the Lessee, in full Discharge of all Arrears. The Inhabitants or Occupiers of Houses in the Parish to pay unto the Master and Scholars of the said College 150 l. free of all Taxes, at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin. And, hereafter, the said Parish to pay their Tithes for ever, unto the said Master and Scholars, or their Lessee, according to the Rate to which the Inhabitants were assessed, in a Schedule annexed. The Chancel, for ever hereafter, to be repaired by the Inhabitants, they receiving the Profits of the Burials there. The said Master and Scholars, to pay to the Vicar of the Parish, within 10 Days, 40 l. for two Years past, and 20 l. per Ann. for ever, to the said Vicar, and his Successors. Which said 20 l. had been always paid by the College to the Vicar. This Award to be confirmed by Act of Parliament, at the Charge of the College, within two Years after the Date of these Presents, being 20 Jan. 6. W. III. 1694. In which Act it appears, that the Rate of the Houses in the above-mention'd Schedule, amounted to 150 l. per Annum, free of all Taxes; and to be paid by Quarterly Payments; and was to be in full Discharge of all Tithes, and Ecclesiastical Dues whatsoever.

To this Parish is united that of St. Mary Magdalen Milk-street, which is mostly in the Ward of Cripplegate, but Part in Bread-street Ward.

THE Living is valued by Act of Parliament at 124 l. per Ann. rated in the King's Books at 18 l. 5 d.

THE Vicar is the Rev. Dr. William Best, and the Lecturer is the Rev. Mr. Shorey.

PRAYERS are at Eleven in the Morning, and Seven in the Evening daily. Here is a good Organ.

THE Gift Sermons are one on every Tuesday, by some of our most noted Ministers; the Rev. Dr. Trapp is the present Lecturer; it was given by the Lady Cambden above sixty Years ago; as also Thursday the same, by the Rev. Dr. Middleton; Friday Lecturer the Rev. Dr. Best the Vicar.

THE Vestry is General.

The PARISH-OFFICERS are,

2 Church-wardens

Streets, Lanes, &c.

PART of Cateaton-street, Blackwell-hall Passage; Part of Ironmonger-lane; Part of King-street; Part of Thrum-street, or Cross-street; Part of Lawrence-lane; Castle-court; Part of Mumford's-court, Guildhall-yard; Part of Aldermanbury, Fountain-court; Part of Lad-lane; Part of Milk-street.

NUMBER of Houses 167.

IN this Parish, a famous Man, Sir Nicholas Bacon, Lord Keeper to Queen Elizabeth, and the Father of Sir Francis Bacon, Lord Verulam, the great Philosopher, had a Messuage in King Edward's Reign, where he then lived; and in the 2d of the said King, purchased it of him, together with other Messuages and Tenements.

Now for the present State of this Ward. The Streets and Lanes in this Ward, are these following:

Cheap Ward, on the North Side, begins about 54 Feet from the East Corner of Milk-street, and runs-Eastward to the West End of the Poultry. And on the South Side, from about 33 Feet West of Bow-lane Corner, runs Eastward to the Entrance into Bucklersbury. Honey-lane Market hath the East Part of it, a little Westward of the Market-House. Old Jewry, the South Part on both Sides, as far as Baron Suasso's House, which is about 136 Feet. Bucklersbury, all the Street on both Sides, except about 80 Feet of the East End. Pancrafts-lane, on both Sides, for 60 Feet, and then on the North Side only to King-street. New Queen-street on both Sides, as far as Pancrafts-lane on the East Side, and George-yard on the West. The Poultry on the North Side from Cheapside, to the East Corner of St. Mildred's Church. And on the South Side, from Cheapside to the Corner of Stocks-market.

Ironmonger-lane, the Whole. New King-street, the Whole. St. Laurence-lane, the Whole. Cateaton-street, on the North Side, from the West Corner of St. Laurence Jewry Church, to within 25 Feet of Bassishaw-street; and on the South Side, from about 96 Feet West of St. Laurence Church, to about 40 Feet beyond Ironmonger-lane Eastwards.

Bow-lane hath not above 48 Feet on the West Side of the North End; and about 60 Feet on the East Side of the North End. All Guildhall, and the Fore-Court, is in this Ward, but not Blackwell-hall.

Cheapside is a very stately spacious Street, adorned with lofty Buildings, well inhabited by Goldsmiths, Linen-Drapers, Haberdashers, and other great Dealers. The Street (which is throughout of an equal Breadth) begins Westward at Pater-noster-row, by which the Conduit stood, and in a strait Line runs to the Poultry; and from thence to the Royal-Exchange in Cornhill. But the whole Street lying in several Wards, the Courts and Alleys will be taken Notice of as they lie in their respective Wards. And as this Street is yet esteemed the principal High Street in the City, so it was formerly graced with a great Conduit, a Standard, and a stately Cross; which last was pulled down in the Civil Wars. In the last Part, almost over-against Mercers Chapel, stood a great Conduit; but this Conduit standing almost in the Middle of the Street, being incommodious for Coaches and Carts, was thought fit by the Magistracy, after the great Fire, to be taken down, and not rebuilt.

ADJOINING to this Street, on the North Side, is Honey-lane Market, the former Lane, and other Buildings, being, since the Fire of LONDON, converted into this Market; among which Buildings, was the Parish-Church of Albhallows Honey-lane, which not being thought proper proper to be rebuilt. The Parish is united to St. Mary le Bow, as before taken Notice of.

THIS Market is well served every Week, on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, with Provisions. The Place taken up by this Market is spacious, being in Length, from East to West, 193 Feet; and from North to South, 97 Feet. In the Middle, is a large and square Market-house, standing on Pillars, with Rooms over it, and a Bell-Tower in the Midst. There is in the Market 135 standing Stalls for Butchers, with Racks, Blocks, and other Necessaries; all covered over, to shelter them from the Injury of Weather; and also, several Stalls for Fruiterers. The West-End of the Market lieth open to Milk-street, where there is a Cock of Conduit Water, for the Use of the Market. There are two other Passages unto it, that is, one out of St. Laurence-lane, besides that which comes out of Cheapside; which Passages are inhabited by Grocers, Fishmongers, Poulterers, Victuallers, and Cheesemongers. On the North-West Corner of this Market is Robin-Hood-alley, being a Passage into Milk-street. Trump-alley lieth against Bow Church, which, turning Eastward, falleth into St. Laurence-lane. This Alley is indifferent in the middle Part, but the Entrances are but narrow.

Mercers Chapel is a very handsome Building, containing, besides the Hall where the Company meets about their Affairs, several other Rooms and Apartments, running backwards, with a large Pair of Gates opening into Ironmonger-lane. The Front of this Chapel is in Cheapside; over the Portico is the Figure of a Maiden's-Head with a Coronet on, and her Hair dishevelled, as there is upon many Houses on each Side of it, between the End of Ironmonger-lane, and the Old Jewry, about 11 in Number, which, we suppose, to belong to the Company, that being their Arms.

THE Old Jewry, East of this Chapel, hath but a little Part in this Ward, as was shewed before; the rest is in Coleman-street Ward.

ON the South-End and West-Side of this Street, stood the Parish-Church of St. Mary Colechurch. In this Part of the Old Jewry is Dove-court, being but ordinary, and is a Passage into Grocers-alley.

THEN on the South-Side of Cheapside, and over-against Mercers Chapel is Bird-in-hand-alley, which is but indifferent. Feathers-court, which is also but ordinary. Golden-leg-court, or Leg-court, over-against St. Laurence-lane, but narrow, and none of the best. Crown-court, also opposite to St. Laurence-lane; a very handsome open Place, with good Houses, neatly kept and well inhabited.

Bluckersbury turneth out of Cheapside, and runs on the Back-Side of the Poultry unto Wallbrook; a Street very well built and inhabited.

Barge-yard, a handsome open Place, well inhabited, having some large Houses at the upper End.

TOWARDS the West End of this Street, and on the South Side, is Pancras-lane, which falleth into Queen-street. The North Side of which Lane is in this Ward; and the South in Cordwainers Ward. On this North Side of the Lane, were two Parish-Churches, viz. St. Pancras Soper-lane, and St. Bennet Sherehog. That of St. Pancras was consumed in the Fire of LONDON, and not rebuilt; but the Parish was united to St. Mary Le Bow: And the Place where the Church stood, is enclosed for a Burial Place for the Parishioners. And over Part of it, upon Columns, stands a Cistern to receive Water, which formerly came to the great Conduit at the East End of Cheapside.

THE Parish-Church of St. Bennet Sherehog, was seated also on the North Side of Pancras-lane, and formerly called St. Sithe's Church. The Prior of St. Mary Overies was Patron of this Church: It was burnt down in the great Fire, and not rebuilt. But the small Parish is united unto St. Stephen Wallbrook; and the Place where the Church stood, is severed with a Brick Wall, for a Burying Place for the Inhabitants.

New Queen-street, so called, as being a new Street since the Fire of LONDON, built in the Place of Soper-lane, but much broader. Which said Street fronts New King-street: which was also made so spacious for the Grace of Guildhall, that fronteth both.

THE Part of the Street in this Ward, goeth no further than Pancras-lane, on the East Side, and to Weld-court on the West Side; which is a very large Place, with an open Passage, and well inhabited, which falls into George-yard: This Yard hath a Passage into Bow-lane, and hath but a small Part in this Ward; the like hath George-yard, as hath also Weld-court, the greatest Part being in Cordwainers Ward, where they are taken Notice of.

THE Poultry, a very great Thoroughfare for Coaches, Carts, and Foot-Passengers, being seated in the Heart of the City, and leading to and from the Royal-Exchange; and from thence to Fleet-street, the Strand, Westminster, and the Western Parts: And therefore well inhabited by great Tradesmen. It begins on the West, by the Old Jewry, where Cheapside ends, and reaches to the Stocks Market by Cornhill. On the North Side is Scalding-alley; a large Place, containing two or three Allies, and a square Court with good Buildings, and well inhabited; but the greatest Part is in Bread-street Ward, where it is mentioned.

St. Mildred's Poultry: This Church is neatly built of Free-stone, with a graceful Dial hanging over into the Street. The Church was destroyed in the great Fire of LONDON, and rebuilt as now it is; and to this is united the Parish of St. Mary Colechurch.

SOMEWHAT West of this Church is the Poultry Compter, being the Prison belonging to one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, for all such as are arrested within the City and Liberties thereof. It has been a Prison for some Hundreds of Years past, and might possibly be called Compter, because those who are detained are obliged to accompt for the Cause of their Commitment before they are set at Liberty.

BESIDES this Prison, there is another in Wood-street, of the same Nature, for the other Sheriff.

THE Charge of these Prisons is committed to the Sheriffs, who always enter into their Office on the 28th of September, which is the Eve of St. Michael the Archangel, and are accordingly sworn to the Charge of the said Office.

UNDER the Sheriffs there are divers other Officers belonging alike to both Compters, who give Security to the Sheriffs for their true and faithful Execution of their several Offices.

I. The first and principal Officer, next to the Sheriff, is the Secondary, whose Office is to return Writs, mark Warrants, impanel Juries for the Courts both above and below, and also for the Sessions.

II. The Clerk of the Papers, whose Office is to impanel Juries for the Sheriffs Court; he enters up Judgment, and makes out all Processes for the Sheriffs Courts.

III. Four Clerk Sitters, who enter Actions, take Bails, receive Verdicts after Trials, &c.

IV. Eighteen

IV. Eighteen Serjeants at Mace, and every Serjeant hath his Yeoman. Their Office is to arrest, execute all Processes, serve Writs and Executions upon ACTIONS, and Summons from above, as well as from the Courts below; and each of the Serjeants give 400 l. Security to the Sheriff, for the due Execution of their Office. They wear blue coloured Cloth Gowns, which are allowed them by the Sheriffs, yearly, which they always wear upon their Waiting Days. Four of these Serjeants, and as many Yeomen out of each Compter, wait upon their respective Sheriffs daily, and during the Time of Sessions, double the Number. At which Time, in the Mornings, they bring the Prisoners down from Newgate to the Sessions-House, put them in the Dock, and wait there all Day, and return the Prisoners back to the Jail at Night; and upon the Execution-days see the condemned Prisoners executed.

UNTO each Compter also belongs a Master-Keeper, and under him two Turnkeys, and other Servitors.

THE poorer Sort of Prisoners, as well in this Compter as in that in Wood-street, receive daily Relief from the Sheriff's Table, of all the broken Meat and Bread; and there are divers Gifts given by several well disposed People, towards their Subsistence, of which the following Names are mentioned by Mr. Styke. And besides these, there are other Benevolences frequently sent to all the Prisoners in LONDON, by charitable Persons, many of which do conceal their Names, doing it only for Charity sake. And there are other Gifts, some for the Releasement of such as lie in only for Prison-Fees; and for others, for the Release of such whose Debts are small.

Grocers-alley. This Alley is ordinary, and generally inhabited by Alehouse-keepers, called Spunging-houses; for that the Serjeants belonging to the Poultry-Compter, bring their Prisoners to these Houses, and there lock them up, until such Time as they do make an Agreement with their Creditors, and not be run into the Prison; which sometimes is a great Convenience.

ON the West Side of this Alley is a Passage into the Old Jewry, through Dove-court. At the upper-End of this Alley is Grocers-hall, already mentioned.

THEN Westward is Old Jewry, and then Ironmonger-lane. This Lane cometh out of Cateaton-street, and falleth into Cheapside. 'Tis a Place well built, and inhabited by Wholesale Dealers. On the East Side is Church-alley, which hath an open Free-Stone Passage on the South Side of St. Olave's Church-yard into the Old Jewry. And on the West Side of this Lane is a Passage into New King-street. In this Lane was the Parish-Church of St. Martin's Ironmonger-lane, and being burnt down in the Fire of LONDON is not rebuilt, but the Parish is united to St. Olave Jewry.

MORE West is New King-street, built since the Fire of LONDON; a very spacious Street, garnished with very good Buildings, which are well inhabited by Norwich Factors, and other Wholesale Dealers.

IT comes out of Cheapside and falls into Cateaton-street, right against Guildhall. On the West Side of this Street is an open Passage, or rather a short Street, which goes into St. Laurence-lane, but hath, as yet, no Name given it.

STILL West the next Lane is St. Laurence-lane, so called from St. Laurence Church, seated at the lower End fronting the Lane, and standing in Cateaton-street. This Lane is well built, and inhabited by Wholesale Dealers. On the West Side is an open Passage, which leadeth to Honey-lane, viz. Duke-street. On the same Side is the old Inn called Blossom's Inn: It hath the Sign of St. Laurence upon a Grid-iron, in a Border of Flowers and Blossoms. This Inn is very large, and much resorted to by Carriers, &c. and has a Back Gate into Honey-lane Market.

MORE Westward and on the same Side is Castle-court, which is indifferent broad, with good Houses. It has a Passage into Montford's-court, which leads into Milk-street; but not in this Ward.

Cateaton-street comes from the Corner of Milk-street, and goes to Bassishaw-street. It is a Street of good Trade, and well inhabited. On the North Side, somewhat East from St. Laurence-lane, is Blackwell-hall-court, so called, as adjoining to Blackwell-hall, into which it hath an Entrance. This Blackwell-hall and the Lord Mayor's Chapel take up the East Side of Guildhall-court or Yard, which is very spacious; on the North Side is the Front of Guildhall; on the West Side are new Brick Buildings, supported by Pillars; the Rooms are for Offices, and under them the Place lies open for the convenient standing of the Coaches and Horses of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen.

As to the Power, Customs, and Practices of the several Courts kept in Guildhall, they will be treated of when we come to the Government of the City.

THERE are to watch at the several Stands in this Ward, every Night, one Constable and a Beadle, with 25 Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest are to serve in the several Courts in Guildhall, in the Month of February.

THIS Ward hath an Alderman, his Deputy, 12 Common-Council-Men, 11 Constables, nine Scavengers, 12 Men for the Wardmote Inquest, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen at 72 l. 16 s. and in the Exchequer at 72 l. 11 s.

The Alderman is Robert Kendall, Esq;

Coleman-
street Ward.

NEXT to Cheap Ward, on the North Side thereof is Coleman-street Ward, which begins also in the East, on the Course of Wallbrook, in Lothbury, and runs West, (on the South Side) to the End of Ironmonger-lane, and on the North Side to the West Corner of Basinghall-street. On the South Side of Lothbury is the Street called the Old Jewry, more than one half of which, on both Sides the Way, is of this Ward.

ON the North Side lies Coleman-street, whereof the Ward takes its Name, wholly on both Sides to London-wall; and from that North End along by the Wall and Moorgate, East, to the Course of Wallbrook. And again, from Coleman-street, West, to the Iron Grates, are the Bounds of this Ward.

ANTIQUITIES therein to be noted are these:

First, The Street of Lothbery, Lathbery, or Loadbery, (for by all these Names it has been written) took the Name (as it seems) of a Bery, or Court, of old Time there kept, but by whom, is now grown out of Memory. " This Street, " saith Stow, is possessed, for the most part, by " Founders, who cast Candlesticks, Chafing- " Dishes, Spice Mortars, and such like Copper " or Laten Works, and do afterwards turn them " with the Foot, and not with the Wheel, to " make them smooth and bright; which Turn- " ing and Scratching making a loathsome Noise " to the By-Passers, that have not been used to " the like, the Place was therefore by them dis- " dainfully called Lothbury.

ON the South Side of this Street, among the Founders, were some good Houses for Merchants; particularly one that had been the Jews Synagogue, which was defaced by the Citizens of LONDON, after they had slain 700 Jews, and spoiled the Residue of their Goods, in the Year 1262, the 47th of Henry III. And not long after, in the Year 1291, King Edward I. banished the Remnant of the Jews out of England, as aforesaid.

THE said Synagogue being so suppressed, certain Friars got Possession thereof. For in the Year 1257, (saith Matthew Paris) there was seen in LONDON a new Order of Friars, called, De Pœnitentia Jesu, or Fratres de Sacca, because they were apparalled in Sackcloth; who had their House in LONDON, near unto Aldersgate, without the Gate; and had Licence of Henry III. in the 54th of his Reign, to remove from thence to any other Place; and in the 56th, he gave unto them this Jews Synagogue. After which Time, Eleanor the Queen, Wife to Edward I. took into her Protection, and warranted unto the Prior and Brethren De Pœnitentia Jesu Christi, of LONDON, the said Land and Building in Colechurch-street, in the Parish of St. Olave in the Jewry, and St. Margaret in Lothbury; by her granted, with Consent of Stephen de Fulborn, Under-Warden of the Bridge-House, and other Brethren of that House, for Threescore Marks of Silver, which they received of the said Prior and Brethren of Repentance, towards the Building of the said Bridge.

QUEEN Eleanor's Charter is as follows, as it now remains in the Records of the Chamber of LONDON.

" Alianora, Dei Gra. &c. Alianor, by the " Grace of God, Queen of England, Lady
" of Ireland, Dutches of Aquitain, and by our " Lord King Henry; To al that shal se or hear
" this Writing, Greeting in the Lord. Know
" yee that we are bound and held for us and our " Heirs, to defend and warrant against al Men
" for ever to the Priors and Friars of the Re" pentance of Jesus Christ, abiding in LON-" DON, al their Tenements, with al their Ap" purtenances, which the Prior and Friars have
" in the Street called Colcherchstrate, in the

THIS Order of Friars gathered many good Scholars, and multiplied in Number exceedingly, until the Council of Lyons, by the which it was decreed, that (from that Time forth) there should be no more Orders of Begging Friars permitted, but only the four Orders; to wit, the Dominicks, or Preachers; the Minorites, or Grey Friars; the Carmelites, or White Friars, and the Augustines: And so, from that Time, the Begging Friars decreased, and fell to nothing.

IN the Year 1305, Robert Fitzwalter requested and obtained of the said King Edward I. that the same Friars of the Sacce, might assign to the said Robert, their Chapel or Church, of old Time called The Synagogue of the Jews, near adjoining to the Mansion-Place of the same Robert, where now stands Grocers-hall: And the said Synagogue was at the North Corner of the Old Jewry. Robert Large, Mercer, Mayor, in the Year 1439, kept his Mayoralty in this House, and dwelled there until his dying Day.

THIS House, which stood very probably where Mr. Gibson, the Money Scrivener's, now stands, was of two Parishes, of St. Margaret's, as opening into Lothbury, and of St. Olave, as opening into the Old Jewry. The aforesaid Rob. Large gave liberally to both Parishes, but was buried in St. Olave's.

Hugh Clopton, Mercer, Mayor, An. Dom. 1492. dwelt in this House, and kept his Mayoralty there; it was afterwards a Tavern, which had the Sign of the Wind-mill. And thus much for this House, some Time the Jews Synagogue, afterwards a House of Friars, then a Nobleman's House, after that a Merchant's, wherein Mayoralties have been kept; then a Tavern; and now again the House of a very wealthy and worthy Gentleman.

THEN is the Old Jewry, a Street so called of Jews some Time dwelling there, and near adjoining, in the Parishes of St. Olave, St. Michael Basing-hall, St. Martin Ironmonger-lane, St. Laurence, called the Jewry, and so West to Wood-street. William, Duke of Normandy, first brought them from Roan to inhabit here.

William Rufus favoured them so far, that he swore by Luke's Face, his common Oath, if they could overcome the Christians, he would be one of their Sect.

Henry II. grievously punished them for corrupting his Coin.

Richard I. forbade Jews and Women to be present at his Coronation, for Fear of Incantments. For breaking of which Commandment, many Jews were slain, who being assembled to present the King with some Gift, one of them was struck by a Christian; which some unruly People perceiving, fell upon them, beat them to their Houses, and burnt them therein, or slew them at their coming out;

Also the Jews at Norwich, St. Edmond's-bury, Lincoln, Stamford, and Lynn, were robbed and spoiled; and at York, to the Number of 500, besides Women and Children, enter'd a Tower of the Castle, offered Money to be in Surety of their Lives; but the Christians would not take it; whereupon they cut the Throats of their own Wives and Children, and cast them over the Walls on the Christians Heads; and then entering the King's Lodging, they burnt both the House and themselves.

King John, in the 11th of his Reign, commanded all the Jews, both Men and Women, to be imprisoned and grievously punished, because he would have all their Money. Some of them gave all they had, and promised more, to escape so many Kinds of Torments; for every one of them had one of their Eyes, at least, plucked out. Amongst whom there was one, which being tormented many Ways, would not ransom himself till the King had caused (every Day) one of his great Teeth to be plucked out, by the Space of seven Days; and then he gave the King 10,000 Marks of Silver, to the End they should pull out no more. The said King, at that Time, spoiled the Jews of 60,000 Marks.

THE 17th of this King, the Barons broke in to the Jews Houses, rifled their Coffers, and with the Stone of their Houses, repaired the Gates and Walls of LONDON.

KING Henry III. in the 11th of his Reign, granted to Semaine, or Ballaſter, the House of Benomye Mittun the Jew, in the Parish of St. Michael Basinghaughe, in which the said Benomye dwelt; with the fourth Part of all his Land in that Parish, which William Elie held of the Fee of Hugh Nevill; and all the Land in Coleman-street, belonging to the said Benomye; and the fourth Part of the Land in the Parish of St. Laurence, which was the Fee of Tho. Buckerell, and were escheated to the King, for the Murder which the said Benomye committed in the City of LONDON; to hold to the said Semaine, and his Heirs, of the King, paying at

VOL. I.

Easter a Pair of gilt Spurs, and to do the Service thereof due unto the Lord's Court.

IN like Manner, and for like Services, the King granted to Guso, for his Homage, the other Part of the Lands of the said Benomye in St. Michael's Parish; which Law the Painter held, and was the King's Escheat; and the Lands of the said Benomye, in the said Parish, which Walter Turner held, and 15 Feet of Land, which Hugh Harman held, with 15 Iron Ells of Land and an half in the Front of Ironmonger-lane, in the Parish of St. Martin; which were the said Benomye's, of the Fee of the Hospital of St. Giles; and which Adam the Smith held, with two Stone Houses, which were Moses the Jew of Canterbury's, in the Parish of St. Olave; and which are of the Fee of Arnold le Reus, and are the King's Escheats aforesaid.

THE 16th of the said Henry, the Jews in LONDON built a Synagogue; but the King commanded it should be dedicated to our Blessed Lady: And after gave it to the Brethren of St. Anthony of Vienna; and so it was called St. Anthony's Hospital.

THIS King Henry founded a Church and House for converted Jews, in a new Street by the Temple, whereby it came to pass, that (in short Time) there was gathered a great Number of Converts.

THE 20th of this King Henry, seven Jews were brought from Norwich, who had stolen a christened Child; had circumcised, and had a Design to have crucified him at Easter. Wherefore their Bodies and Goods were at the King's Pleasure. The 26th, the Jews were constrained to pay the King 20,000 Marks, at two Terms in the Year, or else to be kept in perpetual Prison.

THE 35th, he took inestimable Sums of all rich Men; namely, of Aaron, a Jew, born at York, 14,000 Marks for himself, and 10,000 Marks for the Queen. And before, he had taken of the same Jew as much as in all amounted to 30,000 Marks of Silver, and 200 Marks of Gold to the Queen.

IN the 40th Year were brought up to Westminster 202 Jews, from Lincoln, for crucifying a Child named Hugh; 18 of them were hanged.

THE 43d, a Jew at Tewksbury fell into a Privy on the Saturday, and would not that Day be taken out, for Reverence of his Sabbath: Wherefore Richard Clare, Earl of Gloceſter, kept him there the next Day, being the Christian Sabbath, and on Monday he was dead.

THE 47th, the Barons slew of the Jews, at LONDON, 700. The rest were spoiled, and their Synagogue defaced, because one Jew would have forced a Christian to have paid more than 2 s. for the Loan of 20 s. a Week.

THE 3d of Edward I. in a Parliament at LONDON, Usury was forbidden to the Jews: And that all Usurers might be known, the King commanded that every Usurer should wear a Table on his Breast, the Breadth of a Paveline, or else to quit the Realm.

THE 6th of the said King Edward, a Reformation was made for Clipping of the King's Coin; for which Offence, 267 Persons were drawn and hanged: Three were English Christians, the other were English Jews.

THE same Year the Jews crucified a Child at Northampton; for which Fact many Jews in LONDON were drawn at Horse-Tails and hanged.

THE 11th of Edward I. John Peckham, Archbishop of Canterbury, commanded the Bishop of LONDON to destroy all the Jews Synagogues in his Diocese.

THE 16th of the same Edward, all the Jews in England, were, in one Day, apprehended by Precept from the King; but they redeemed themselves for 12000 Pounds of Silver; notwithstanding, in the 19th of his Reign, he banished them all out of England; giving them something to bear their Charge till they were out of his Realm. The Number of Jews then expelled, were 15060 Persons. The King made a mighty Mass of Money of their Houses, which he sold; and yet the Commons of England had granted, and gave him a Fifteenth of all their Goods, to banish them.

THE said King Edward I., in the 19th and 20th of his Reign, after this Banishment of the Jews, seized all their Lands and Houses, and presently made several Grants of them: Whereof, in LONDON, these were some; (where it may be observed; that their Dwellings were chiefly in the Parts of the City about Wood-street, Lad-lane, Cateaton-street, Colechurch-street, Ironmonger-lane, St. Laurence, and St. Olave Jewry).

To Mattilda de Kellenden, those Houses, with the Appurtenances in Wood-street, and Lad-lane, LONDON; which were Gamaliel de Oxons, and Batamans, the Son of Cresset, late Jews of LONDON.

MANY Grants of Jews Houses, that were Leo de Cresset's, Son of Master Elias, the Jews of the Parish of St. Martin's de Pomer in Ironmonger-lane.

Benedict, the Son of Mayre the Jew; his House in the Parish of St. Laurence in the Jewry and Cateaton-street, granted to Will. King.

A void Place in the Corner of Colechurch-street, which was Master Elias's; Son of Moses; late Jew of LONDON.

Robert de Basinges had a Grant of the Houses which were Myriels, Son of Cresset, Son of Gente, lying in the Parish of St. Mary Magdalene Milk-street.

Alayn de Cordwayner, had a Grant of Houses, which were Aarons's, Son of Slemme, in the Parish of St. Olave in the Jewry, in Colechurch-street.

Johan. de Laufare had Houses which belonged to the Community of the Jews in Wood-street.

MORE in Cateaton-street: Houses granted to the Friars and Convent of Chicksand; which Houses were Elias le Evest's the Jew; and were situate between the Place of the Friars of the Sacke, and the King's-street, called Sporier-street.

John Vesty had a Grant of Houses which were Moses's, Son of Master Elias the Jew, standing in the Corner of Woodstreet.

CONCERNING a heavy yearly Tax, (called the King's Judaism) laid upon the Jews in general, this may be added here: That Anno 1271, 55 Henry III. Prince Edward, his eldest Son, going into the Holy Land, the King, his Father, gave him, to assist him in his Pilgrimage, 6000 Marks de Judaismo nostro; whereof 4000 were paid him, and 2000 upon the King's Desire, the King of Almayn, his dear Brother, lent the said Prince. And King Henry, pro predict. curialitate, granted the said King of Almayn, his Executors or Assigns, to have Judaismum nostrum. And a Grant of it to our Jews, of England, from the Feast of St. Michael, 1271, to Michaelmas next following, for one full Year, for the said 2000 Marks lent the King. That is to say, so that our Jews of England do pay, within the said Year, to our said Brother, the said 2000 Marks, at the Terms underwritten; and for Default of Payment, do forfeit 500 Marks, in the Name of a Pain. And upon the Payment of the 2000 Marks, the said Judaism to return to Us and our Heirs. Thus much for the Jews.

The PARISH of ### St. OLAVE in the JEWRY.

IN this Street, called the Old Jewry, or Jury, is the Parish-Church of St. Olave, called Upwel, in old Records; and a Well was here under the East End of this Church, now turned to a Pump.

THERE were several Kings and Noblemen of the Name of Olave, among the Danes, Swedes, and Norwegians; but St. Olave, to whose Memory this, and two more Churches in the City, and one in Southwark are dedicated, was St. Olave the Martyr, King of Norway, who was the Son of Herald Grinska, a great Man in that Country.

THIS Olave expelled the Swedes out of the Kingdom of Norway, and restored his Country to its pristine Liberty, and afterwards recovered Gotland; and departing thence he went into England to the Assistance of King Mildred, by the English called Etheldred, against the Danes for three Years together, where he performed many noble Exploits, expelling them out of the Cities, Towns, and Fortresses, and with a great Spoil return'd to Norway: But not long after he was recalled into England by the Widow of King Etheldred, deceased, to help her against Canutus, King of Denmark; but Canutus having made a Peace with the English, Olave return'd again speedily into Norway, where the Norwegians created him their King.

AFTER this he concluded a firm Peace with Olave King of Swethland, and married that King's Daughter, and thereby was so strengthened, that during the King of Swethland's Life, he had no Troubles with the Danes: But after the Death of King Olave of Swethland, this Olave King of Norway, as well at Home by his own Subjects, as abroad by the Danes, was continually molested with Wars; the Cause whereof chiefly was his taking upon him a strict Course for the Defence of the Christian Religion, which they affected not; for he professed, that he had rather lose his Life and Kingdom, than his Faith in Christ.

HIS Subjects, the Norwegians, complained to Canutus, King of Denmark, against their King Olave, charging him with altering their Laws and Customs, desired Canutus to assist them against their King; and, in fine, made Canutus their King. But Olave being assisted by Amandus King of Swethland (Son and Successor to their late King Olave, deceased, and who had been bred up under this Olave, King of Norway) overthrew King Canutus in a great Sea-Fight. Yet Canutus, afterwards, having got 300 of Olave's Ships by Bribery to revolt to him, set upon Olave a-fresh, and vanquish'd him; so that he was forc'd to fly first into his own Country, where he was no otherwise entertain'd by his own Subjects, than as an Enemy. Thence he fled to Feristlaus, King of Russia (who had married his Sister) where he abode till the Norwegians being at Discord among themselves concerning their Government, sent for him to return to his Kingdom; which he did. But no sooner was he come, but he was opposed in open Arms by one Part of his Subjects there, whom Canutus had stirr'd up against him, who in a disloyal Battle overcame him, and murdered this Holy Friend of Christ, this most innocent King, which was done Anno 1028.

It may be presumed, that this good King Olave had well deserved, and was well beloved, of

of our English Nation, as well for his Friendship for assisting them against the Danes, as for his Holy and Christian Life, by the Erecting of so many Churches to his Memory.

THE Day of his Festival is celebrated, annually, on July 29.

John Brian, Parson of this Church, founded a Chantry in it, and gave two Messuages to this Parish, 16 Edward II. which Gift was confirmed by the said King.

AFTER this, upon some Contest that arose between the Chanter of this Chantry, and the Vicar and Church-Wardens of the Parish, about the Right and Disposing of this Chantry, and the Lands and Tenements thereunto belonging, there was an Award made between them, April 26, 1531, by John Stokesley, then Bishop of LONDON; whereby (inter alia) it was awarded, that the said Vicar and Church-Wardens should give up their pretended Right of Patronage to the said Chantry, to the Prior and Convent of Butley, to whom the said Right of Patronage did originally belong.

Thomas Morsted, Esq; (mentioned before in St. Mildred Poultry) built a new fair Isle to the Enlargement of this Church, on the North Side thereof, wherein he was buried, 1450.

THE Church was repaired in 1608, and again repaired and beautified in 1628; but suffering the common Fate with many others, in the dreadful Fire of LONDON, is since rebuilt, and made the Parochial-Church for this and the Parish of St. Martin Ironmonger-lane; which is annexed to it.

It was re-edified and finished in the Year 1673, in this Manner: The Walls are partly Brick, with Stone Facio's, Windows, and Door-Cases, fronting towards the South; the East End is Stone; the Roof whereof is flat, covered with Lead; the Steeple (consisting of a handsome Tower with Pinnacles) is also of Stone, the Floor paved with Purbeck; there are two Isles, a very large Chancel, the Area whereof (paved with Stone) is one Step higher toward the West End; and that of the Altar is three Steps raised above that of the Chancel.

THE Ornaments are as follow: The Outside of the East Side is adorned with Pilasters, Cornices, and a spacious pitched Pediment; the upper Part of the Walls, at the meeting with the Roof round the Church, is enriched with Cherubims, Festoons, and Cartouches. At the West End is a handsome Gallery, extending also a little Eastward on both Ends, fronted with Oak, and supported with Columns, of the Tuscan Order; the Church is pewed with Oak, and the Walls wainscotted about eight Feet and a half high. The South outer Door-Case is adorned with Pilasters and Entablament, of the Dorick Order; and there are two handsome inner Door-Cases opening towards the North and South (having Enrichments;) and a third in a fine Wainscot Partition at the West End of the Church. The Pulpit is placed on the North Side, made of Oak, enriched with Cherubims and Fruit. The Altar-Piece is of the same Species of Timber; adorned with Pilasters, Entablature, and an open arched Pediment of the Corinthian Order; in which Pediment are placed the King's Arms, and these between two Lamps, or Vases. The Intercolumns are the Decalogue, under a Glory and three Cherubims, and placed between the Portraits of Moses and Aaron, and these between the Pater Noster and Creed; the Whole being enriched with Palm-Branches, Fruit, Leaves, Cartouches, &c.

THE Communion-Table is posited on an Anabathrum of Black and White Marble, inclosed with Rail and Ballister.

IN this Church, as a farther Ornament, there are three spacious Pieces of Painting, viz:

I. That on the North Side of the Chancel, is Queen Elizabeth lying on a fine Tomb; adorned with Columns of the Corinthian Order, with the Regalia, and under an arched Canopy, on which is placed her Arms between two Cherubs; but no Inscription.

II. THE Picture of King Charles I.

III. At the West End of the Church is a very spacious and curious Piece of Painting, in a strong Black Frame, being the Figure of Time, with Wings displayed, a Scythe in his Right, and an Hour-Glass in his Left Hand: At his Right Foot is a Cupid dormant, its Head reposing on lovely Fruit, and another near his Left Arm. Under the Feet of Time lieth the Portrait of a Skeleton, about eight Feet in Length. And here are depencilled the Words in Proverbs xxvii. 1. of Job xvii. 11. and those of Deut. xxxii. 29.

MONUMENTS.

IN the old Church were buried William Dickman, Ferrou, or Ironmonger, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, 1367. Robert Havelocke, Ironmonger, 1390. John Organ, Mercer, one of the Sheriffs, 1385. John Forrest, Vicar of St. Olave, and of St. Stephen, which at that Time was as a Chapel annexed to St. Olave's, 1399. Henry Friole, Taylor, 1400. Thomas Morsted, Esq; Chirurgeon to Henry IV, V, and VI. one of the Sheriffs, 1436. Adam Breakspeare, Chaplain, 1411. William Kirkbie, Mercer, 1465. Robert Large, Mercer, Mayor, 1440; he gave to that Church 200 l. John Belwin, Founder, 1467. Gabriel Rave, Fuller, 1511. — Wentworth, Esq; 1510. Thomas Mitchell, Ironmonger, 1527. Giles Dewes, Servant to Henry VII. and to Henry VIII. Clerk of the Libraries, and School-Master for the French Tongue to Prince Arthur, and to the Lady Mary, 1535. Richard Chamberlain, Ironmonger, one of the Sheriffs, 1562. Edm. Burlacy, Mercer, 1583. John Brian, &c.

ON the North Side of this Church was a Monument with this Inscription:

Here lyeth under this Tombe, the Body of Richard Chamberlaine, Ironmonger, Alderman and late Sheriffe of LONDON, Merchant-Adventurer, and Free of Russia, who had two Wives, Anne, the first; of whom he had Issue eight Sons and five Daughters; of Margaret, his last Wife, no Issue; which Richard dyed the 19th Day of November, An. Dom. 1566.

To the Poore he was liberall,

And gave for God's sake;

But now his Fame is plentifull,

And he an heavenly Make;

He was like one of us,

According to our Mould;

But now he is unlike us

In Heaven where he would.

His Time was short, in Sicknes rare,

As to all is knowne:

But now his Time shall long endure,

And never be cast downe.

On a plated Stone on the Ground in the South Isle was the following Inscription:

Hic requiescit in Gratia & Misericordia Dei, Robertus Large, quondam Mercerus, & Major. istius Civitatis. Qui obiit 24 die Aprilis, 1441. Et Elizabetha uxor ejus, ac pueri eorundem. Cujus, &c.

Also Edward Borias, of LONDON, Mercer, lay buried here, with his Wife, Daughter of Henry Isham, Mercer; they had Issue four Sons and one Daughter.

THE following Inscription was on a Monument put up to the Memory of Sir Humphrey Weld, some Time Lord Mayor of LONDON.

Humfrido Weld, Militi, & nuper Majori Civitatis LONDON. viro integerrimo, sanctissimo, summa in Deum Pietate, in Homines Fide ac Comitatu prædicto: Johannes Weld unicus Filius & Hæres, hoc Monumentum Pietatis ergo mœrens posuit.

Margareta Uxor, Thomas & Robertus Filii ejus, ac ultimi Testamenti Executores, Pietatis, & Observantiæ ergo, mœrentes posuerunt.

Under this Tome
the sacred Ashes hold,
The droffie Part of more Celestial Gold;
The Body of a Man,
a Man of Men,
Whose Worth to write at large would loose my Pen.
Then do thy worst, Death,
glut thyself with Dust,
The precious Soul,
is mounted to the Just.
Yet, Reader, when thou read'st,
both read and weep;
That Men so good, so grave,
so wise do sleep.

N. S. mœrens posuit.

Modern MONUMENTS since the Fire, are these:

ON the South Side of the Church a Black and White Marble Monument, of the Composite Order, with this Inscription:

Near this Place lieth the Body of Ephraim Skinner, Merchant, some Time his Majesty's Consul at Livorne, whose exemplary Piety towards God, Integrity towards Men, Charity to the Poor, and Humility towards all, made him live desired, and die lamented by all that knew him. He was born in the Town of Barnstaple, in Devon, on St. Andrew's Day, An. 1637. died at Islington, May 6, 1678, in the 44th Year of his Age.

HIS ARMS; a Chevron between three Griffons Heads erased, with a Crescent for a Difference, impaled with quartered with a Fret.

ANOTHER Marble Monument, like the last, a little Eastward from it, with this Inscription:

Here lyeth, in Hope of a glorious Resurrection, the Body of Sir Nathaniel Herne, Knight, late Sheriff, and at his Death Alderman of this famous City, and Governor of the East-India Company; Son to Nicholas, and Grandson to Richard Herne, some Time Alderman also of this City. A Person of great Prudence and indefatigable Industry in the Management of all publick Affairs; of exemplary Piety, spotless Integrity, and diffusive Charity; having with his own Hand dispensed very considerable Sums to many charitable Uses, particularly to the Relief of poor Seamen, and educating of their Children. He took to Wife Judith, eldest Daughter of Sir John Frederick, Knt. Alderman, and some Time Lord Mayor of LONDON, his now sorrowful Widow, by whom he had divers Children, and left three hopeful Sons surviving, viz. Frederick, Nathaniel, and Thomas, to whose, and this City's and Nation's great Loss; as also to the Grief of all them that knew him; he departed this Life the 10th of August, 1679. Ætat. 50.

ARMS; Sable, a Chevron, Ermin between three Hurons, Argent.

CHANCEL; South Isle, Sir John Frederick's Vault.

NORTH Isle; Dr. Hibbert's Vault.

FLAT Stones, in the North Isle; for George Hatton, an Inhabitant of this Parish, 1699.

Anne, Daughter of Joseph and Mary Brooksbank, 1697. Also Sarah and Anne, who died in their Infancy.

ON the North Wall is an handsome Marble Table with this Inscription:

Near this Place are deposited the Remains of William Barnsley, late of this Parish, Esq; who died the 20th Day of October, 1730, in the 80th Year of his Age, and of Jane, his beloved Wife, Daughter of Giles Sussex, of LONDON, Merchant, by whom he had 11 Children, viz. two Sons and nine Daughters. William, his eldest Son, died in the Year 1703, aged 25. Giles, Margaret, Margaret, Jane, and Elizabeth died young; all lye buried with him in the same Place. His five Daughters, who survived the last mentioned, were married into the respective Families following, viz.

Mary, his eldest Daughter, to Roger Pocock, of Turwill-court, in the County of Bucks, Esq;

Jane, his second Daughter, to John Vannam, of this Parish, Gent.

Elizabeth, his third Daughter, to Weedon Perry, of Turwill-beath, in the County of Bucks, Esq;

Catharine, his fourth Daughter, to William Kingscote, of Kingscote, in the County of Glocester, Esq;

And Martha, his youngest Daughter, to Rich. Owen, of Little-Brampton, of the County of Hereford, Esq;

Which Mary Pocock, Weedon Perry, and Elizabeth his Wife are interred also in the same Place.

In grateful Remembrance of the said William Barnsley, and his Wife, and of those their Children, who lye interred with them, the present Survivors of his Family have erected this Monument, Ann. Dom. 1733.

Mark the perfect Man, and behold the upright, for the End of that Man is Peace, Psalm xxxvii. 37.

NUMBER of Houses 40.

FROM the Parish-Church of St. Olave, to the North End of the Old Jewry, and from thence West to the North End of Ironmonger-lane; and from the said Corner into Ironmonger-lane, almost to the Parish-Church of St. Martin, was (of old Time) one large Building of Stone, very antient, made in the Place of Jews Houses; but of what Antiquity, or by whom the same was built, or for what Use, is uncertain; more than that, King Henry VI, in the 16th of his Reign, gave the Office of being Porter or Keeper thereof, to

John Stent, for Term of his Life, by the Name of his Principal Palace in the Old Jewry. "This was (in my Youth saith Stow) called the Old Wardrobe: But of latter Time, the outward Stone Wall hath been by little and little taken down, and divers fair Houses built thereupon, even round about.

KING Richard III. committed the Keeping of the Prince's Wardrobe, for so it was afterwards called, to his trusty Servant John Kendall, his Secretary, by his Patent, dated Decemb. 12, 1483, and left him to dwell in the same.

IN Edward VI's Reign, it was alienated from the Crown, being called a great Messuage, under the Name of the Prince's Wardrobe; to which belonged divers Houses, Edifices, Gardens, &c. being sold to Sir Anthony Cope, a Privy Counsellor in 3 Edward VI, for 60*l.* And in Consideration of Services, the yearly Value being reckoned at 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

The PARISH of St. MARGARET in LOTHBURY.

St. Margaret's
Lothbury
Church.

THIS Church of St. Margaret stands on the North Side of the Street, call'd Lothbury, upon the Water-course of Wallbrook in Coleman-street Ward. It is subject to the Archdeacon.

It seems, saith Stow, to have been new built in 1440; for Robert Large, then Mayor of LONDON, gave to the Choir of this Church 100*s.* and 20*l.* for Ornaments; more to the Vaulting over the Water-course of Wallbrook, by the said Church, for enlarging thereof, 200 Marks.

It was repaired and beautified at the Cost and Charge of the Parishioners in 1621, and having been demolished in the Conflagration in 1666, it was began to be re-edified in the Year 1686, and was compleatly finished, Anno 1690, and beautified again in 1706, and lastly Anno 1727.

It is built of fine Stone with a Steeple, consisting of a spacious Tower, on which is a small Dome, and on that a Spire. It has a flat Roof leaded over, and on the Inside supported with Columns on the South, and Pilasters on the North, of the Corinthian Order; and the Chancel is one Step higher than the Church.

THE Inside Roof has a large quadrangular Cornice of Fret-work, and on the South Side of the Church is a neat Wainscot Gallery, with which Kind of Timber the Walls are lined round the Church about eight Feet high from the Ground; also the Pulpit is finnier'd, and enrich'd with Fruit, Leaves, Trumpets, &c. The Stairs of the Gallery were re-built by a voluntary Subscription of several of the Inhabitants of the Parish, An. Dom. 1717.

THE Altar-piece is ornamental, having four Columns with their Entablature of the Corinthian Order; also two Compass Pediments, whereon are four Lamps placed on Acroters. The Inter-columns are the Commandments, Lord's Prayer and Creed, the first done in Gold Letters on Black, the two last in Black on Gold. Just over the Commandments is a Glory on a Shield between two Cherubims gilt with Gold; over which, above the Cornice, and under the triangular Pediment, are the King's Arms, well carved in Relievo; and the whole is between two noble Pilasters of the Corinthian Order, painted in Imitation of Lapis Lazuli, and has Enrichments of Cartouches and Festoons, inclosed with Rail and Ballaster; and within that, the Foot-pace is paved with Black and White Marble.

THE Font (which is placed at the West End of the Church, and directly so from the Communion-Table) is very pretty.

THE Basson has these Histories cut in Bass Relievo on the Convexity.

I. The Garden of Eden, and the Fall of Man.
II. The Salvation of Noah, and his Family in the Ark.

III. John the Baptist baptizing our Saviour in the River Jordan.

IV. St. Philip Christening the Eunuch.

THE Type or Cover is also adorned with Figures of St. Margaret and Faith round the lower Part; above them, the Figures of Hope and Charity; and above these, are those of a Choir of Angels constituting a Coronet; and above all, is a Glory.

THERE are also several handsome Branch Candlesticks; and the South East inner Door-case is of Oak, adorned with Pilasters of the Corinthian Order, and Enrichments of Cherubims, &c. and the South West outer Door-case, with Columns and Entablature of the Corinthian Order.

HERE are also several Sentences of Holy Scripture in carved Frames, hung round the Church, above the Wainscot.

AND near the North East Corner, the Table of Fees and Duties are finely done in Gold Letters on Black, in a Frame neatly carved, and thereon the Figure of St. Margaret.

THERE is also a pretty Vestry, wainscotted at the Charge of Mr. James Boddington.

THE Dimensions are, Length 66 Feet, Breadth 54, Altitude 36; and that of the Steeple, which consists of a handsome Tower, with Acroteria and a Spire, is about 140 Feet, wherein are two Bells.

MONUMENTS in the old Church were, for

Reginald Coleman, Son to Robert Coleman, buried there 1383. This said R. Coleman, Stow supposed to be the first Builder or Owner of Coleman-street; and that St. Stephen's Church, then built in Coleman-street, was but a Chapel belonging to the Parish-Church of St. Olave in the Jewry. For we read (saith he) that John Forest, Vicar of St. Olave's, and of the Chapel annexed of St. Stephen, deceased in the Year 1399.

Hugh Clopton, Mercer, Mayor, deceased 1496. Anselme Becket, John Julian, and William Ilford, had Chancies there. Sir Brian Tuke, Knt. Treasurer of the Chamber to King Henry VIII, 1536, and Dame Grisilde his Wife, (that died after him) were there buried 1538. John Fetiplace, Draper, Esq; 1464, and Joan his Wife. Sir Hugh Witch, Mercer, Mayor, Son to Rich. Witch, intombed there, 1466. He gave to his third Wife 3000*l.* and to Maids Marriages 500 Marks.

John Merchaunt, Citizen of LONDON, and Common Clerk of the City, buried in the Church of the Convent of the Holy Trinity, gave by his Will, An. 1419, an annual Rent of five Marks, to the Rector and Parishioners of St. Margaret Lothbury, Ad inveniend. singulis Annis in perpetuum Capellanum idoneum, divina in Capella Beate Mariæ Virginis infra dict. Eccles. celebratur. pro Anima sua, &c. An. 1420.

ONE John Bennet was Parson of this Parish, who made his Will in December 1497, as followeth.

eth: "I John Bennett, Parson and Curate of the " Parish Church of St. Margaret's in Lothbury,
 " in LONDON, make this my present Testa" ment, &c. My Body to be buried where God
 " wil dispose for it, &c. The Residue of al my " principal Goods, both Gould and Silver, and
 " my Plate, such as it is, to be sold and make " Money thereof, to be divided in three Parts:
 " One to the Provost and Fellowship of King's-
 " College at Eaton: The second Part, to the " Vice-Provost and the Fellowship, and Scholars,
 " of the King's College of Cambridge. The third
 " Part amongst my most needy and poor Pa" rishioners; and especially to them that have " charge of Children, and most principallie to " them that have bene long dwelling in my Pa" rish in my Tyme, of whom I have had Tythes
 " and Offerings. Provyded, that al Vacabonds,
 " Scowldars, and Brawlers, be rewarded after
 " the Mind and Discretion, and good Consci" ence, of mine Executors, &c. I make Sir Wil.
 " Pecock, Chantry-Priest of St. Peter's in " Cornhill, Executor, &c.

Sir John Leigh, 1564, with this Epitaph.

No Wealth; no Praise,
 No bright Renowne, no Skill,
 No Force, no Fame,
 No Princes Love, no Toyle,
 Though Forraine Lands,
 By travels Search you will,
 No faithfull Service
 Of thy Country Soyle,
 Can Life prolong
 One Minute of an Houre:
 But Death at length
 Will execute his Power.
 For Sir John Leigh,
 To sundry Countries knowne,
 A worthy Knight,
 Well of his Prince esteem'd;
 By seeing much,
 To great Experience growne:
 Though safe on Seas,
 Though sure on Land he seem'd;
 Yet here he lyes,
 Too soone by Death opprest,
 His Fame yet lives,
 His Soule in Heaven hath rest.

ON a handsome Tomb in the North Isle of the Choir, was this Inscription:

Here lyeth buried Dame Grisilde Tuke, late Wife of Sir Brian Tuke, Knt. Treasurer of the Chamber to King Henry VIII. She dyed the 28th Day of December, 1538.

ON a plated Stone by the Communion-Table:

Under this Stone lyeth George Beaumont, Clerk, and Doctor in Divinity, who departed this Life the 29th Day of April, An. Dom. 1571. A Man merciful and good to the Poor; and born in Kinnegal in Cumberland. Whose Body and Soul God grant a joyfull Resurrection.

Se piū si puote.

ON another fair plated Stone, before the ascending to the Communion-Table:

Here lyeth John Dimocke, Sonne to John Dimocke, Esq; some Time Citizen and Draper of LONDON: He married Anne, his first Wife, by whom he had one Son; which Anne dyed in the Yeere of Christ, 1558. After whom he married his second Wife, Mary, by whom he had a Daughter. He served the Princes of famous Memory, King Henry VIII. and King Edward VI. For his faithfull and good Service he was well esteemed; and for his upright Dealing he was well beloved of his Equals; for his Benevolence, to the Poore hee was both praised and prayed for. Hee lived 100 Years, lacking seven, very commendably, and the 14th of July, 1585, he dyed Christianly.

Anne, Wife of Roger Walrond, of LONDON, Daughter of Ansel Becket. They had Issue, James, Rose, and Anne.

ON a Pyramid erected against the South Wall:

Here lyeth the Body of Christian Towerson, Wife of William Towerson, of LONDON, Merchant, who lived together 21 Yeeres and six Monethes, and had Issue 10 Children, leaving behind her John, William, Robert, Elizabeth, and Mary. She left this Life the 19th Day of February, 1611.

ON a small Monument at the East End of the Choir:

Here resteth, in Hope of a joyfull Resurrection, the Body of Nicholas Style, late Alderman of LONDON, who was borne at Langley, in the Parish of Beckingham, in the County of Kent; the Son of Humfrey Style, Knt. and of Dame Bridget, his Wife. He married Gertrude, the Daughter of Thomas Bright, of LONDON, Ironmonger, with whom he lived most lovingly and faithfully, the Space of 40 Yeeres. And by her had three Sonnes and foure Daughters; of whom remained living at his Decease, one Sonne, Humfrey, and one Daughter, Mary. He dyed the 16th Day of November, An. Dom. 1615.

ON a fair Monument in the South Isle, at the upper End:

Quid diurnare Magnos invides Parca?
 Heu!
 Robertus Jerminorum à Rushbrooke
 Nobile Germen
 Hic situs est:
 Flos juvenum, sub Ævi flore raptus:
 Qui virtutum utriusq; Ætatis Apicibus potitus,
 Ingenio & Indole Juventutis,
 Necnon senili Pietate ac Prudentia,
 Infra se turbam coetaneam reliquit,
 Impubes senex;
 Et quod negavit sæculo, Cælo dedit,
 Sic sapere ante annos nocuit, nam maxime virtus
 Persuasit morti, ut crederet esse senem.

In Broad-street Ward.

Whalebone-court; Part of Token-house-yard; Falcon-court, and Princes-court.

NUMBER of Houses, about 150.

By the West End of this Parish-Church was a handsome Water-Conduit, built at the Charge of the City, in the Year 1546, Sir Martin Bowes being Mayor: Two Fifteens were levied of the Citizens, towards the Charges thereof. This Water was conveyed in great Abundance, from divers Springs, lying between Hoxton and Islington.

NEXT is the Founders Hall, which is remarkable for having a Scotch Kirk over it, there being but one more in England. Then along West to the South West Corner of Basinghall-street, are many good Houses for Merchants, Tradesmen, &c. and at this Corner was antiently an old Building of Stone, belonging some Time to a certain Jew, named Mansere, the Son of Aaron, the Son of Coke the Jew, in the 7th of Edward I. afterwards to Rahere de Sopars-lane; then to Simon Francis; Thomas Bradbury, Mercer, kept his Mayoralty there, who died An. Dom. 1509.

ON this North Side, against the Old Jewry, is Coleman-street, so called from Coleman, the first Builder and Owner thereof: As also of Colechurch, or Coleman-church, which was against the great Conduit in Cheap. This is a handsome large Street, replenished on both Sides with several handsome Houses, besides Alleys, with small Tenements in great Number. On the East Side of this Street, almost at the North End thereof is Armourers Hall, which Company of Armourers were made a Fraternity or Guild of St. George, with a Chantry in the Chapel of St. Thomas, in St. Paul's Church, in 1 Henry VI.

ON the same Side is King's-alley, and Love-alley, both containing many Tenements.

AT the North End of this Street, facing it, and against London-wall, is a handsome new Watch-house, built at the Expence of Sir Harcourt Master, Anno 1719.

The PARISH of St. STEPHEN COLEMAN-STREET.

ON the West Side, towards the South End, is the Parish-Church of St. Stephen, which Stow supposed to be a Chapel to St. Olave's; because, as is beforementioned, Forrest, the Vicar, is called the Vicar of St. Olave's, and of the Chapel of St. Stephen annexed; and this in the Year 1399: But it was called long before, viz. 15 Edward II. An. 1321, the Parish of St. Stephen: When a Licence was granted by that King, for five Marks Rent to be taken (for a Chantry founded in the Chapel of St. Margaret's Lothbury) of the Tenement of John Botener, in the Parish of St. Stephen Coleman-street.

THIS Church was in many Parts of it, carefully repaired, and throughout, fairly and commendably beautified at the proper Cost and Charge

Charge of the Parishioners, in the Year of our Lord 1622.

AND further enriched and beautified with a very fair Gallery in the South Isle, in the Year 1629; but being, by that unhappy Disaster of Fire in 1666, reduced to Ruins, it was begun to be re-edified in 1674, and was finished in 1676, and the Gallery in 1691.

It is handfomly rebuilt (of Stone for the most Part;) the Roof is flat, having no Pillars to support it; 'tis covered with Lead, and the Floor paved with Stone; that of the Chancel one Step higher than that of the Church, which has but two Isles.

IN this Church are the following Ornaments: On the Outside, the Front of the East End is adorned with Cornice and circular Pediment, between two Pine Apples; and under the Pediment the Figure of a Cock, carved within a handsome Compartment, between two large Festoons, and two Windows environed with Enrichments. This is all (as the Steeple is) well done in Stone; and on the South Door into the Church-Yard, is finely carved, an Emblem of the Resurrection, consisting of a Multitude of Figures, in various Postures, of Angels, Men, and Devils. The Roof within, adorned with a Cornice, and below Cartouches, Arches and Imposts, enriched with Cherubims of Fret-Work. It is wainscotted eight Feet high, and pewed with Oak; of which Species of Timber, there are four handsome inner Door-Cases, two on the North, and two on the South Sides, each adorned with two Pilasters, Entablature and Pediment of the Corinthian Order, with Enrichments. The Pulpit is neatly carved, and the Altar-Piece has the Ornament of two Columns, between six Pilasters of the Corinthian Order; and to the former is a Pediment, where are placed the King's Arms carved, gilt and depicted. The Inter-columns are the Commandments done in Gold on Black, under a Glory between three Cherubims; these between the Portraits of Moses and Aaron, and all these between the Pater Noster and Creed; with Enrichments, Festoons, Cartouches, &c. and the Foot-Pace of the Communion-Table is Black and White Marble (two Steps higher than the rest of the Chancel,) inclosed with neat Rail and Ballaster. At the West End is a handsome Wainscot Gallery, extending a litte Eastward on the North and South Sides.

Length of this Church 75 Feet, Breadth 35, Altitude about 24; and that of the Tower (besides the Turret) 65; in which Tower there are eight Bells to ring in Peal.

MONUMENTS in the old Church were, for

William Craybag, who founded a Chantry there in the Reign of Edward II. and was there buried. Also John Essex, the 35th of Edw. III. Adam Goodman, the 37th of Edward III. William King, Draper, some Time Owner of King's-Alley, the 18th of Richard II. John Sokeling, the 10th of Henry VI. John Arnold, Leather-seller, the 17th of Henry VI.

THERE was a Tomb on the South Side of the Choir, but without Inscription. Thomas Bradbury, Mercer, Mayor, in the Year 1509, is said to be buried there, but his Tomb was on the North Side of the Choir. As also one Edward Hurlock, Currier, to be a great Benefactor. Sir John-Garme Skirringham, 1468. Richard Hamney, 1418. Richard Colfel, &c.

Thomas Eyer, by his Will made the 9th of June, 1493, bequeathed to our Lady's Altar, and to the Brotherhood of the same, held in the N<sup>o</sup> 38. VOL. I.

Church of St. Stephen Coleman-street, a Frontal for an Altar, powdered with Gold, containing about three Yards in Length, and a quarter of a Yard in Breadth, with a Fringe.

ON a handsome Monument, in the Chancel, was this Inscription:

Here lyeth in Peace, the Body of the Right Worshipful Sir William Glover, Knt. late Citizen and Alderman of LONDON, who, for the many good Gifts, both in sincere Religion, Wisedome, and Gravity, wherewith he was very plentifully graced, was elected Sheriffe of LONDON, and served the same, Anno Domini, 1601. He had lived in good Name and Fame 58 Yeeres, and very blessedly departed this transitory Life the 17th Day of December, 1603, leaving two Sonnes, viz. Thomas and William; and five Daughters, viz. Anne, married to Barne Roberts, of Willesden, in the County of Middlesex, Esq; Susan, Elizabeth, Mary, and Alice, behinde him to condole the Want of so kind and loving a Father.

To whose dearest Memory, the Lady Anne Glover, the most sorrowful Widow of the said Sir William, lamenting his Death, and her own irrecoverable Loss, at her own Charge erected this Monument, in Testification both of her Love and Duty.

Here lyeth the Body of Barne Roberts, eldest Son of Francis Roberts, of Willesden, in the County of Middlesex, Esq; who took to Wife, Anne, eldest Daughter of Sir William Glover, Knt. and Alderman of LONDON; by whom he had Issue three Sonnes, and five Daughters. The said Barne Roberts dyed the 30th Day of January, 1610, being of the Age of 34 Yeeres and five Moneths. In Remembrance of whom, his seid Wife, (of her very kind and loving Affection) at her own proper Cost and Charges, hath caused this Monument to be made and erected, Ann. Dom. 1611.

ON another, close by the last:

If humane Worth
Could have preserv'd him still,
He had beene much
Too strong for Death to kill.
Yet being conquered,
Got by the Strife,
A better Being,
In a better Life:
So that great Victor
Over Nature, left him
More Happineffe tenfold
Than he bereft him.

ON a handsome Tomb on the East Side of the South Isle, was a long Epitaph in Latin Verse, to the Memory of Sir William Daniel, there buried.

ON a handsome small Monument in the Wall, by the last mentioned, was this Inscription:

In this Isle lye the Bodies of George Golding, Esq; buried the 27th Day of November, 1584, and of Anne Bartelet, Widdow, buried the 12th Day of June, 1596, and of Mary Golding, Widdow, late Wife of the said George, and Daughter of the said Anne, buried the 29th of April, 1612, by her said Husband and Mother, according to her owne Desire. She lived a Widdow 28 Yeeres, religiously to God, hospitably to her Friends, and charitably to All, especially to poore Widdowes; and deceased the 25th Day of April, 1612, being then 79 Yeeres of Age.

ON another Monument, likewise on the South Wall :

An honest Heart,
Religiously affected,
A zealous Soule,
A charitable Mind,
True dealing Conscience,
All Untruth rejected,
All these in one
Are hard and far to find :
Yet in this Course,
Both Time and Truth have tryed,
In Youth and Age,
John Taylor liv'd and dyed.
His honest Heart,
His honest Friends have found ;
His Zeal to GOD,
GOD and the Godly know ;
His Charity,
His true Relief may found,
That on the poore
His Bounty did bestow :
His heavenly Rest,
Upon this Point resolved,
To be with CHRIST
I wish to be dissolved.

Here lyeth buried the Body of John Taylor, Esq; Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, who married Berseba, Daughter of Edward Hall, late Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, deceased, and had by her one only Daughter, named Elizabeth; first married to Francis Smith, Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, deceased, by whom she had one Son, named Francis Smith; and since married to Thomas Freake, of Serne, in the County of Dorset, Esq; by whom she hath five Sons and Daughters, now living. He hath given by his Will, 200 l. in Money, to be delivered and lent to young Men of the Company of Haberdashers, to distribute every Sunday (weekly, for ever) 2 s. in Bread, and the Advantage, to poore Householders of this Parish. And also 20 l. more for a Stocke, to be yeerly employed for ever, in buying and providing of Fuell for the same Poore.

The blessed Token of
The Daughter's Love,
Unto the Father's kinde
And loving Care,
May to the World
This Monument approve,
How blessed Parents
In their Children are :
And blessed GOD, that
So his Love expresseth,
Who thus both Parents
And the Children blesteth.

ON a Grave-Stone, in this Isle, was this Inscription :

Sepelitur hic corpus Philippi Paskin, qui obiit 12 Calend. Junii, Anno Dom. 1580. Anno Ætat. 52. duos post se reliquit fil. Thomam & Ricardum, & unigenitam filiam Joannam ex charissima sibi Conjuga Anna.

ON a comely Monument, on a Pillar in the Choir :

Here lyeth Dame Jane, Daughter and sole Heire of John White, of this Parish, Esq; first married to Samuel Thornehill, of Bromley in the County of Kent, Esq; by whom she had Issue two Sonnes, Timothy and John, and one Daughter, named Elizabeth. She secondly married Sir Richard Smith, Knt. Son of Thomas Smith, of Oestenhanger, in the County of Kent, Esq; and had Issue by him but one Daughter, named Mary. The said Dame Jane died the 13th of October, 1607, being about the Age of 33 Yeeres; in whose Remembrance her said Husband caused this Monument to be made, 1608.

ON the South Side of the Chancel is a fair Grave-Stone, with this Epitaph, in Brasse :

Georgius heu ! quondam jacet
Hic Skeffingtonus humatus,
Mercatur Stapulæ
Clarus in urbe fuit.
Quæ spes divitiis
Bona quam fallacia mundi,
Quam subito pereunt,
Quæ valere, vide ?
Ast qui terram olim
Vano fragilem pede preffit,
Æterna hic petiit
Firmiter astra fide

Obiit An. Dom. 1581. die 1 Julii. Anno vero ætatis suæ 43.

ON the lower End of the Chancel is a fair Grave-Stone, with this Epitaph in Brasse :

Our Life is all but Death,
Time that insueth
Is but the Death of Time
That went before.
Youth is the Death of Childhood, Age of Youth,
Die once to GOD, and
Then thou diest no more.
Agnes, the Wife of
Leonard Darr, whose Sight
By Sicknes much impair'd,
In heavenly Light
Lookt, liv'd and died ;
As Dimnesse her were given,
That her Soules Eyes might Better looke to Heaven.

Leonardus Darr, nuper Maior Villæ de Totnes, posuit in mortem Agnetæ charissimæ conjugis suæ. Obiit 29 Januarii 1596.

To the Memory

Of that antient Servant to the City with his Pen, in divers Employments, especially, The SURVEY of LONDON, Master Anthony Munday, Citizen and Draper of LONDON.

He that hath many an antient Tomb-Stone read,
(Ith' Labour seeming more among the Dead
To live, than with the Living) that survaied
Abstruse Antiquities, and o're them laid
Such vive and beauteous Colours with his Pen,
That (Spite of Time) those Old are new agen,
Under this Marble lies interred : His Tomb
Claiming (as worthily it may) this Room ;
Among those many Monuments, his Quill
Has so revived, helping now to fill
A Place with those in his SURVEY, in which
He has a Monument more fair, more rich,
Than polisht Stones could make him, where he (lyes,
Though dead, still living, and in that ne'er dies.
Obiit Anno Ætatis suæ 80. Domini 1633.
Augusti 10.

IN the Chancel lies buried the Body of Mr. Samuel Aldersey, Merchant, Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, July 25, 1633. His Atcheivements and Ensigns proper to his Name and Estate, hung over him.

MONUMENTS in the new built Church, are these :

ON the South Wall is a handsome Monument in Memory of Robert Vernon, Esq; it is composed of White Marble, adorned with a Mantling, above which are two Cherubims ; and under it are his Arms, two Finals, and this Inscription :

In Memory of Henry Vernon, Esq; (Son of Sir Thomas Vernon, Knt. of this Parish) who died the 7th Day of November, 1691, in the 31st Year of his Age, and lies buried at Aleppo, in Syria. He was a Person of strict Virtue and exemplary Piety, just in his Dealings, dutiful to his Parents, and kind to his Relations ; beloved, respected, and honoured in his Life, and lamented at his Death by Foreigners, as well as his own Countrymen. His Death was an inexpressible Affliction to his sorrowful Father, who, out of a tender Sence of his own and the publick Loss, dedicates this Monument to preserve his Memory, and to recommend him as a Pattern worthy the Imitation of our young Merchants, who either remain in their own, or design for Foreign Countries.

ARMS here are ; Argent, a Fret Sable, a Canton Gules.

NUMBER of Houses 461.

THE modern State of this Ward,

THE principal Streets and Places in this Ward are, the Old Jewry, which is all in this Ward, except 136 Feet, at the South End thereof. Lothbury, from Coleman-street, Eastward, as far as St. Margaret's Lothbury Church on the North Side ; and unto about 27 Feet beyond Princes-street, on the South Side. Cateaton-street, from Bassishaw-street to Coleman-street on the North Side, Side, and from Ironmonger-lane on the South Side; all Coleman-street wholly. In which Street there are divers Courts and Alleys, which shall be mentioned in Order.

THE Old Jewry is a very good open Street, well inhabited by Merchants and Persons of Repute. On the West Side of this Street, about the Middle, is the Parish-Church of St. Olave Jewry, before described; with a Church-yard adjoining, where there is a Passage, with a Free-Stone Payment, leading to Ironmonger-lane.

IN this Street is Windmill-court, over-against which is a handsome well built House with a fine Pair of Gates. Over-against the East End of the Church are the Gates leading to the House of Sir Thomas Lombe, Alderman; and on the same Side of the Way, more to the South, is the fine House that was formerly Sir Robert Clayton's, Knight and Alderman, now inhabited by Baron Suasso, a very wealthy Jew. Over-against this is the House that was Sir John Frederick's, now let to the Government for the Office of Excise.

Excise Office. The following is a LIST of the Commissioners of his Majesty's Revenue of Excise, and other Officers employed in the said Revenue, who execute their Offices at the General Excise Office in the Old Jewry, LONDON, together with their respective Salaries, January 1734.

BESIDES these Officers in the House, there are employed by the Commissioners of Excise, within the Bills of Mortality, several Surveyors, Officers, Warehouse-Keepers, Permit-Writers, &c. on the LONDON Brewery, Distillery and new Duties, with handsome Salaries; notwithstanding which, this great Revenue is said to be managed at less than 2 s. in the Pound Expence; that is to say, above 18 s. Net Money in every every Pound is paid into the Exchequer, after all Charges of Management are deducted.

Lothbury, a Street well built and inhabited; in which stands St. Margaret's Church before-mentioned.

Founders Hall.

ON the South Side of this Street is Prince's-street, which, with two turning Passages falls into Threadneedle-street: It is well built and inhabited. On the West Side is Draper's-court, a handsome large Place, with good Houses well inhabited; having a Free-Stone Pavement out of this Court, is a narrow Passage into Lothbury. West to St. Margaret's Church, is Founders Hall, seated at the upper End of Founders-court, which is indifferent good. Almost over-against this Hall, is a large and well built House, with an open Yard before it, inclosed from the Street by a Pair of Gates.

Cateaton-street has no more in this Ward than from Basinghall-street, the rest is in Cheap Ward; a Street well inhabited by Tradesmen. In this Part of the Street is Golden-cross-court, small but well built, and inhabited by Wholesale Dealers.

Coleman-street. This Street is large and long, and runs Northward to London-wall, very well inhabited by divers noted Merchants and Shopkeepers. In this Street are divers Courts and Alleys, some of which are very good, and others as mean and ordinary. We shall begin at the South End, and then the first is Windmill-court, which is but ordinary. Packer's-court is a pretty open Place, with indifferent good Buildings.

St. Stephen Coleman-street Church; a very fine Free-Stone Building, with a square Steeple: It has a Church-Yard to it, with Doors curiously carved with Figures representing the Resurrection; and a handsome Clock hanging over into the Street, with the Figures at the Top of St. Stephen and two Persons throwing Stones at him, curiously carved and gilt with Gold.

OTHER Places in this Street. King's-arms-court, or rather Street; for the Largeness and Goodness, being graced with good large Houses, inhabited by Merchants, and Persons of good Repute.

George-alley, long, and indifferently well built. White-rose-court, but indifferent, falls into Mafs-alley, which is also but mean, and so into Basinghall-street. Bell-alley, very long, goes out of Coleman-street, and runs Eastward to the Passage into Token-house-yard; and then it turns Northward, and runs as far as London-Wall. The Part of this Alley, from Coleman-street to Mulberry-court, is broad, and indifferent well built and inhabited; but the Part running Northward, is more narrow, and hath some good Houses, especially on the East Side. In this Alley are several small Courts, viz. Mulberry-court, goes up Steps, very narrow and dark, but after the Entrance it is a handsome Court. On the West Side it has a Passage into White's-alley. Whalebone-court, handsome, with a Free-Stone Pavement. Pitcher's-court, a large square Place, with good Buildings, has a Passage into White's-alley. Bluehart-court, a handsome Place, with a Free-Stone Pavement, has a Passage down Steps into Swan-alley. White's-alley, very long, but narrow, comes out of Coleman-street, and falls into Pitcher's-court, which is a handsome Place, having a Door into Bell-alley, and a Passage thereunto upon Sufferance. On the North Side, and about the Middle of the Alley is a Place called Alms-house-yard, containing six Houses, for so many poor Men and their Wives, or the Survivors of them, belonging to the Company of Leather-sellers. Pump-court, but small and ordinary. Carpenter's-yard, being only a large Timber-Yard. White-hind-court, a handsome Place, but narrow.

Swan-alley also goes out of Coleman-street, and with a turning Passage runs into Bell-alley, and, with another turning Passage, falls into another Alley, also called Swan-alley, which is better built, with Gardens to the Houses. More Northward this Alley runs into a Place called Jones's-Rents, which is a ruinous Place, the Houses ready to fall down. Out of this Place, with a little narrow Turning, the Way leads into Cross-Keys-court, which is indifferent good: And out of this Court is a Passage to London-wall. That Part of Swan-alley next to Coleman-street is wide enough for Carts, and is indifferent good.

Crown Inn, only for Livery-Horses. White-horse Inn, the like. Coach-and-horses-yard, good for Stabling and Coaches. Brickenton-court, indifferent; at the upper End is a Merchant's House. Nun's-court, a handsome Place, with a large House at the upper End, inhabited by a Merchant. White-hart Inn, but small and ordinary. Green's-court, indifferent long, but narrow and ordinary. Bishop's-court, small and narrow. George Inn, but indifferent. Chimney-alley, very ordinary, with mean Houses. Bell Inn, indifferent good, chiefly for Stabling. Armourers Hall, a handsome Brick Building.

Armourers Hall.

London-wall, being a Street so called, which in the Whole is very long, beginning at Cripplegate, and running to Winchester-street, but in several Wards, as hath been taken Notice of. The Part in this, and Basinghall Ward, begins a little Eastward of Basinghall-street, and runs to Cross-Keys-court. The Houses are on the South Side, which commonly are but old Timber Houses: A Place of no great Account, only some few Carriers dwell there. Its greatest Ornament is Sion College, already treated of; and New Bethlem, seated on the other Side of London-wall, in Moorfields.

IN this Part of the Street are these Courts and Places; Star-court, a small Place. White-lion-court, indifferent good. Red-lion-court, likewise good, with a Free-Stone Pavement. Black-swan-alley, very ordinary, and nastily kept.

THE Part of this Ward without the City Walls, takes in all the lower Walks, or four Quarters of Moorfields; but none of the Houses on the East and North Side. On the South Side is Bedlem, or Bedlam, for the Lunatics, which is in this Ward; as likewise the new Row of good Houses, not named, with Part of the Street called Fore-street, which runs to Cripplegate. And adjoining to Moorfields is the Swan Inn, well built, and indifferent for Stabling.

THIS Hospital of Bethlem, or Bedlam, is pleasantly seated, with its Front regarding Moor-fields. It is a very long Building, extending itself almost the Breadth of the Field. It is stately and graceful to behold, and tends much to the Honour of the City: The Charge of which Building cost about 17000 l. It is inclosed with a Wall, and hath an Iron-Gate for Entrance, in the Middle, with a fine Free-Stone Pavement, which has a Garden on each Side of it; and at the Ends of this Garden is a large open Place for those who are coming to their Senses again to walk and air themselves in: But of this Hospital see more in Book I. Chap. XIV.

THERE are to watch at Moorgate, and at the several Stands in this Ward, every Night, a Constable, a Beadle, and 32 Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest for this Ward are to serve in the several Courts in Guildhall, in the Month of August.

THIS Ward has an Alderman, his Deputy, six Common-Council-Men, four Constables, four Scavengers, 13 Wardmote Inquest-Men, and a Beadle. It is taxed to the Fifteen at 15 l. 16 s. 9 d.

THE Alderman of this Ward is Sir Harcourt Master, Knt.

BASINGSHALL, or BASSISHAW WARD.

THE next adjoining to Coleman-street Ward, on the West Side thereof, is Basinghall Ward, very small, consisting of one Street, called Basinghall-street, from Basinghall, which was the principal House in it. This Ward begins in the South at Bakewell-hall, which is the last of Coleman-street Ward, and runs from thence North down to London-wall, and some little Distance, both East and West, against the said Wall; and these are the Bounds of the Ward.

Masons Hall. AMONG several good Houses in this Street, on the East Side, are three Halls of Companies; first, Masons Hall; this Company were once called Free-Masons; but that Denomination seems now to belong to another Fraternity.

Weavers Hall. The next is Weavers Hall, which is nearly adorned on the Inside with Hangings, Fret-Work, and a Screen of the Ionick Order. The Company is of great Antiquity, as appears by a Charter of Henry II. in these Words, Rex omnibus, ad quos, &c.

HENRY, King of England, Duke of Normandy, and of Guian, Earl of Anjou, to the Bishop, Justices, Sheriffs, Barons, Ministers, and all his true Lieges of LONDON, sendeth greeting. Know ye, that we have granted to the Weavers in LONDON, their Guild to be had in LONDON, with all the Freedoms and Customs that they had in the Time of King Henry, my Grandfather. So that none but they intromit within the City of their Craft, but he be of their Guild; neither in Southwark, or other Places pertaining to LONDON, otherwise than it was done in the Time of King Henry, my Grandfather. Wherefore I will and straightly command, that over all lawfully they may treat, and have all afore said; as well in Peace, free, worshipful, and wholly, as they had it, freer, better, worshipfuller, and whollier, than in the Time of King Henry, my Grandfather. So that they yield yearly to me two Marks of Gold; at the Feast of St. Michael. And I forbid, that any Man to them do any Unright, or Disease, upon Pain of ten Pounds. Witness Thomas of Canterbury, Warwick fil. Gar. Chamberlaine, at Winchester.

Also the same Henry II. in the 31st of his Reign, made a Confirmation to the Weavers, that had a Guild, or Fraternity in LONDON; wherein it appeareth, that the said Weavers made Woollen Cloth, and that they had the Correction thereof. But amongst other Articles in that Patent, it was decreed, That if any Man made Cloth of Spanish Wool, mixed with English Wool, the Portgrave, or Principal Magistrate of LONDON, ought to burn it.

MOREOVER, in the Year 1197, King Richard I. at the Instance of Hubert, Archbishop of Canterbury, and Justiciary of England, ordained, That the Woollen Cloths, in every Part of this Realm, should be in Breadth two Yards within the Lifts, and as good in the Middle, as in the Sides, &c. King Henry III. granted to the Citizens of LONDON, that they should not be vexed for the Burrels, or Cloth-listed, according to the Constitution made for Breadth of Cloth the 9th of his Reign. Rich. II. in the 3<sup>d</sup> of his Reign, granted an Order of Agreement between the Weavers of LONDON, Englishmen, and Aliens or Strangers born, brought in by Edward III.

ALMOST at the North End of the Street is Girdlers Hall, well wainscotted within, and adorned with a beautiful Screen of the Composite Order. So far for the East Side of this Ward.

ON the West Side, almost at the South End of the Street, is Bakewell Hall, corruptly called Blackwell Hall, and antiently Bassings Hall. Concerning the Original whereof, there have been divers Opinions, which are to be passed over as Fables; for though it is a Building of great Antiquity, yet the Foundation thereof was certainly first laid since the Conquest of William Duke of Normandy; for the same was built upon Vaults of Stone, which Stone was brought from Caen in Normandy. The like of that of St. Paul's Church, built by Mauritius and his Successors, Bishops of LONDON. But that this House has been a Temple, or Jewish Synagogue, (as some have fancied) Mr. Stow will not allow, seeing that it had no such Form of Roundness, or other Likeness; neither had it the Form of a Church, for the Assembly of Christians, which Fabricks are built East and West; but contrariwise, the same was built North and in Form of a Nobleman's House. And therefore the best Opinion is, that it was (of old Time) belonging to the Family of Bassings, which was in this Realm, a Name of great Antiquity and Renown: And that it bore also the Name of that Family, and was called therefore Bassings Haugh, or Hall. The Arms of that Family were (of old Time) abundantly placed in sundry Parts of that House, even in the Stone-Work, but more especially on the Walls of the Hall; which carried a continual Painting of them on every Side, so close together as one Escutcheon could be placed to another, which Stow had often seen and noted, before the old Building was taken down. These Arms were, a Gerond of twelve Points, Or, and Azure. Of the Bassings therefore, Builders of this House, and Owners of the Ground near adjoining, that Ward takes the Name; as Coleman-street Ward, of Coleman, and Faringdon Ward, of William and Nicholas Faringdon; Men that were principal Owners of those Places.

AND of old Time, the most noble Persons that inhabited this City, were appointed to be principal Magistrates there; as was Godfrey de Magun (or Magnaville) Portgrave, or Sheriff, in the Reign of William the Conqueror, and of William Rufus. Hugh de Buck, in the Reign of Henry I. Aubrey de Vere, Earl of Oxford. After him Gilbert Becket, in the Reign of King Stephen. After that, Godfrey de Magnaville, the Son

Son of William, the Son of Godfrey de Magnaville, Earls of Essex, were Portgraves, or Sheriffs of LONDON and Middlesex. In the Reign of Henry II. Peter Fitzwalter; after him, John Fitznigel, &c. So likewise in the Reign of King John, the 16th of his Reign, a Time of great Troubles, in the Year 1214. Solomon Bassing, and Hugh Bassing, Barons of this Realm, as may be supposed, were Sheriffs; and the said Solomon Bassing was Mayor in the Year 1216, which was the 1st of Henry III. Also Adam Bassing, Son of Solomon (as it seems) was one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1243, the 28th of Henry III.

UNTIL this Adam de Bassing, King Henry III. in the 31st of his Reign, gave and confirmed certain Messuages in Aldermanbury, and in Milkstreet (Places not far from Bassings-hall) and the Advowson of the Church at Bassings-hall, with sundry Liberties and Privileges.

THIS Man was afterwards Mayor, in the Year 1251, the 36th of Henry III. Moreover, Thomas Bassing was one of the Sheriffs, Anno 1269.

Robert Bassing, Sheriff, 1279, and William Bassing, 1308; more of this Family need not be noted, only that one Branch of it spread itself in Cambridgeshire, near to a Water, or Bourn, and was therefore, for a Difference, called Bassing at the Bourn, and, more shortly, Bassing-bourn, which gave the same Arms, as is afore shewed, to be painted about this old Hall. But this Family was quite worn out in Stow's Time, but had left their Name to the Place where they dwelt.

Now, how Bakewell-hall took that Name, is another Question. It is said that Thomas Bakewell dwelt in this House in the 36th of Edward III. and that in the 20th of Richard II. the said King, for the Sum of 50 l. which the Mayor and Commonalty had paid into the Hanapar, granted Licence, so much as was in him, to John Frosh, William Parker, and Stephen Spilman, Citizens and Mercers, that they, the said Messuage, called Bakewell-hall, and one Garden, with the Appurtenances, in the Parish of St. Michael of Bassings-haugh, and of St. Laurence in the Jewry of LONDON, and one Messuage, two Shops and one Garden, in the said Parish of St. Michael, which they held of the King in Burgage, might give and assign to the Mayor and Commonalty for ever, ad opus Communitatis.

THIS Bakewell-hall, thus established, has been long since employed as a weekly Market-Place for Woollen Cloths, broad and narrow, brought from all Parts of this Realm there to be sold. In the 21st of Richard II. Richard Whittington, Mayor; and in the 22d, Drew Baringtine being Mayor, it was decreed, That no Foreigner or Stranger should sell any Woollen Cloth, but in Bakewell-hall, upon Pain of Forfeiture thereof.

AN Act of Common-Council, held August the 1st, in the 8th of Henry VIII. concerning Blackwell-hall.

“ WHEREAS by an Act of Common-“ Council, in the 22d Year of the “ Reign of King Richard II. it was ordained
“ and established, That no Manner of Person “ should bring or convey any Woollen Cloths
“ to the said City, to be sold, except they “ were first brought, harboured, and discharged,
“ at the common Market of Blackwell-hall;
“ therefore ordained and provided, and of old “ Time accustomed, upon Pain of Forfeiture of “ all the said Cloths so harboured and laid, “ contrary to the said Ordinance, was, by an“ other Act of Common-Council, held at the
“ VOL. I.

“ Guildhall afore said, the Day and Year above“ said, ratified, approved, and confirmed. And “ over that, it is now at this present ordained, “ established, and enacted, That no Manner of “ Person, being Freeman of this City, after the “ Feast of the Nativity of our Lady, next “ coming, suffer any Manner of Person whatso“ ever, be he Free, or Foreign, to buy or sell “ any Manner of Woollen Cloths, harboured, or “ lodged, contrary to the said Ordinance: As “ Broad-cloth, Kerseys, Cottons, Bridgewater “ Frizes, Dossleins, or any other Manner of “ Cloth made of Wool, within his Shop, Cham“ ber, or other Place within his House, unless “ the said Cloths were first brought to Black- “ well-hall afore said, and there bought and “ sold: Or else the said Freeman, the said
“ Cloths lawfully brought in the Country, out “ of the said City; upon Pain to forfeit and to “ pay, to the Use of the Commonalty of this “ City, for the first Offence, for every Broad“ cloth so sold, harboured, or lodged, contrary “ to the said Ordinance, 6 s. 8 d. for every “ Kersey, 3 s. 4 d. for every Dosslein, Bridge- “ water, and other Pieces of Cloth made of “ Wool, 20 d. And for the second Offence,
“ the said Pains to be doubled. And for the “ third Offence, the Party so offending, to be “ disfranchised, and deprived clearly from the “ Liberties of this City for ever.

THIS House afterwards growing ruinous, and in Danger of falling, Richard May, Merchant-Taylor, at his Decease, gave towards the new building of the outward Part thereof, 300 l. upon Condition that the same should be performed within three Years after his Decease. Whereupon the old Blackwell-hall was taken down, and in the Month of February next following, the Foundation of a new, strong, and beautiful Store-House being laid, the Work thereof was diligently applied, that within the Space of 10 Months after, to the Charges of 2500 l. the same was finished in the Year 1558; but being demolished in the Flames of 1666, it was re-erected Anno 1672. The Door-Case in the Front, next Guildhall, is of Stone, adorned with two Columns, Entablature and Pediment of the Dorick Order; in the Pediment are the King's Arms, and the Arms of the City are lower, enriched with Cupids, &c.

THE City gave to Christ's Hospital the Profits arising from Lodging and Pitching of Cloth in the several Warehouses, or Halls; for here is the Devonshire, Glocester, Worcester, Kentish, Medley, Spanish and Blanket Halls, besides the like Profits of the Bays at Leadenhall. Cloths pay 1 d. each Pitching, and a Half-Penny per Week Resting; and, to avoid Trouble, every Factor has a Rest, or one certain Number, for which he pays, as admit a Rest to be 180 Cloths.

And the next Week there are Cloths pitched } 90.

STOCKINGS and Blankets pay by the Pack; all which, it is said, amounts to about 1100 l. per Ann. clear. There are also several Statutes relating to the Regulation of this Market, as to Factors, and others concerned; and the whole Management is under the Inspection of the Governors of Christ's Hospital, as is before said, Book I. Chap. XIV.

Coopers-hall.

NEXT beyond this House, are several good Houses, to the Back-gate of Guildhall, which Gate, and Part of the Building within the same, are of this Ward. Some small Distance from this Gate the Coopers have their Common Hall: It is well built of Brick, and the Hall is a handsome Room, wainscotted about 14 Feet high, paved with Marble, adorned with several Coats of Arms in the Glass, and the Portraiture, at full Length, of Sir John Fleet, Lord Mayor, 1693, and that of Mr. Henry Stroud, another worthy Member, who at his Decease, An. 1704, when he died Master of the Company, gave 6500 l. to build and endow a Free-School and Alms-Houses at Egham. And under the King's Arms is the Bust of King William III.

The P A R I S H of
St. MICHAEL BASSI-
SHAW.

St. Michael Bassishaw.

THE last Church before the Fire, was built (as may be gathered from Mr. Stow, &c.) about the Year 1450; and that being then rebuilding, and not a new Foundation, implies, that at least one Church was, before that, worn out by Time; whence we may conclude, that a Church has been here near 500 Years; and we find Mr. Richard Sarich Rector here, Anno 1359. Toward the said old Church, Mr. John Burton, and Agnes his Wife, were great Benefactors: It was repaired at the Parish Charge, in the Year 1630; and being reduced to Rubbish by the Flames in 1666, it was begun to be re-edified Anno 1676, and carried on in 1677, and 1678, and finished in 1679; and in the Year 1697 was repaired and beautified.

As to the Nature of the Structure, the Roof is cambered, Walls of Brick, the Tower of Stone, the Floor paved with Stone, that of the Chancel being a Step higher than the rest; three Isles; the Apertures of each Side similar to those of their Opposites in Number and Model; Pillars, &c. of the Corinthian Order.

It is ornamentally finished. The Roof divided into quadrangular Pannels of Crocket-work; that next the Altar having at each Angle a Cherub, and the like on the Key-pieces of each of the upper Windows; also a Cantaliever, Cornice, Frieze, &c. enrich'd with Leaves, &c. and at the West End, the King's Arms are magnificently done with Enrichments of two Cupids, and as many Shields and Mantling; all of Fret-work.

It is wainscotted round about eight Feet high, having a handsome Pulpit and spacious Door-case at the West End; also one at the North, and another at the South Side, all of fine Oak, of the Corinthian Order.

THE Altar-piece is of the same Order, adorned with four Pilasters, and Entablament; above which are two Attick Pilasters, and an open arching Pediment, under which is painted a Curtain, sustained in Festoons by two Cupids, between them a Glory appearing in Clouds; under which are two Tables of the Decalogue done in Golden Letters on Black, between the Portraits of Moses and Aaron, and these between the Pater Noster, and Credo done in Black Characters on Gold, adorned with Cartouches.

UNDER Moses are these Words: The Law was given by Moses. And under Aaron these: But Grace and Truth came by JESUS CHRIST. Under the Lord's-Prayer these Words: This is my Commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you. And the Credo is thus subscribed: I came not to destroy the Law, but to fulfil.

At the West End is a neat Table of the customary Offerings (as it is expressed there.) The Outside of the East End of this Church is adorned with a large circular Pediment between two Cartouches, the other End with Pine Apples.

THE Dimensions are, Length 70 Feet, Breadth 50, Altitude 42, and that of the Tower about 75 Feet; wherein is only one Bell.

ON the South Side of the Church, on a fine japann'd Table, these Benefactors Names are placed, done in Golden Letters.

Part of Basinghall-street, Basinghall-court, Evans's-court, Shooler's-court, Porter's-alley, Mason's-court, King's-arms-court, South-alley, North-alley, and Young's-court.

NUMBER of Houses 146.

NOW for the present State of this Ward.

Basinghall-street, of which this little Ward consists, is of no great Uniformity, as not running strait, nor of an equal Breadth. But it is graced with good Buildings, and well inhabited by Merchants; and namely, among others, lately deceased, Sir Rowland Aynsworth, Knt. who traded to the East-Indies, Hamburg, Holland, and other Parts, inhabiting a very spacious well built House, with a Court in the middle; where Sir Christopher Pack some Time kept his Mayoralty.

ON the West Side stands Bakewell, or Blackwell, Hall, before-mentioned.

King's-arms Tavern, a House of a very good Trade; hath a Passage into Cateaton-street. Masons-alley, hath a Passage into Coleman-street, through White-Rose-alley; in which is seated Masons Hall, a small Building. Cat-Throat-alley, hath a Passage up Steps into Guildhall-court, by the Chapel. At the Upper End of this Court, are Buildings made Use of by the City Officers. And here the Chamberlain of this City hath his Residence. Weavers Hall, a handsome large Building, with a Garden behind it. Next is Coopers Hall, a large Building.

THEN is St. Michael Bassingbaw Church.

ON both Sides this Church, is an Alley, and both called Church-alley; which encompasseth it, and falls into Three-nuns-alley; and that leads into Aldermanbury: But this in Cripplegate Ward.

ON each Side of this Alley, is a Row of good Buildings, especially that on the South Side; and in that on the North, is Young's-court, which is but small.

White-Bear Inn, much resorted unto by Carriers.

Potter's-court, but small. Girdlers Hall, a handsome Building, with an open Court-yard; and Free-stone Pavement, and a Garden behind it. Shooter's-court, but small, with a Free-stone Pavement. Guildhall-court, long, but narrow. Bassingbaw-court, large, and indifferent good, hath a Passage to London-wall.

THIS Street of Basinghall, is all, on both Sides, in this Ward; except 72 Feet, on the East Side of the South End.

OF London-wall-street, there is in this Ward, 54 Feet West, and 88 Feet East, on either Side of the North End of Basinghall-street.

Cateaton-street hath only 25 Feet West from Basinghall-street, on the North Side, in this Ward.

THERE are to Watch at the several Stands in this Ward, every Night, a Constable, a Beadle, and 12 Watchmen.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest, for this Ward, are to serve in the several Courts in Guildhall, in the Month of March.

THIS Ward hath an Alderman, his Deputy, four Common-Council-Men, two Constables, 17 Wardmote Inquest Men, and a Beadle.

IT is taxed to the Fifteen in LONDON, at 7 l. and likewise in the Exchequer at 7 l.

THE Alderman is Sir Thomas Lombe, Knt.

C H A P. VI.

C R I P P L E G A T E W A R D.

THE next Ward is Cripplegate, consisting of several Streets and Lanes, lying as well without the Gate and Wall of the City, as within: For, first, within the Wall on the East Part thereof, toward the North, it runs to the West Side of Basing-hall Ward; and towards the South it joins to the Ward of Cheap. It begins at the West End of St. Laurence's Church in the Fewry, on the North Side, and runs West to a Pump, where, some Time, was a Well with two Buckets, at the South-Corner of Aldermanbury-street; which Street runs down North to Gayspur-lane, and so to London-wall; which Street and Lane are wholly (on both Sides) of this Ward; and so are some few Houses (on both Sides) from Gayspur-lane, by and against the Wall of the City, East to the Grates, made for the Water-Course of the Channels, and West to Cripplegate.

Now on the South Side, from over-against the West End of St. Laurence's Church, to the Pump, and then up Milk-street, South to Cheap; which Milk-street is wholly (on both Sides) of Cripplegate Ward; as also, without the South End of Milk-street, a Part of West Cheap, viz. from the Place where the Standard stood, to where the Cross was set. Then down great Wood-street, which is wholly of this Ward, on both Sides thereof; so is Little Wood-street, which runs down to Cripplegate.

Out of this Wood-street are divers Lanes, namely, on the East Side is Lad-lane, which runs East to Milk-street Corner. Down lower in Wood-street, is Love-lane, which lies by the South Side of St. Alban's Church, in Wood-street, and runs down to the Conduit in Aldermanbury-street. Lower down in Wood-street, is Addle-street; out of which runs Philip-lane down to London-wall. These are the Lanes on the East Side.

On the West Side of Wood-street, is Hugen-lane, by the South Side of St. Michael's Church, and goes through to Gutheron's-lane. Then lower is Maiden-lane, which runs West to the North End of Gutheron's-lane; and up to the said Lane, on the East Side thereof, 'till against Kery-lane, and back again. Then the said Maiden-lane, on the North Side, goes up to Staining-lane, and up a Part thereof, on the East Side, to the farthest North Part of Haberdashers Hall, and back again to Wood-street. And there, lower down, is Silver-street, which is of this Ward, till you come to the East End of St. Olave's Church on the South Side, and to Monkwell-street on the North Side. Then down the said Monkwell-street, on the East Side thereof, and so to Cripplegate, do make the Bound of this Ward within the Walls.

Without Cripplegate, Fore-street runs a-cross before the Gate, from against the North Side of St. Giles's Church, along to Moor-lane End, and almost to Moorgate. The Houses on that Side of Moorfields, and Alleys to Finshury-court, are all of Cripplegate Ward.

JOINING to Moorfields is the New Artillery-Ground, so called, in Distinction from another

Artillery-garden, near St. Mary-Spital, where formerly the Artillery Company exercised; who, about the latter End of King James I's Reign, were determined to remove thence; and to hold their Trainings and Practice of Arms here, being the third Field from Moorgate, next to the Six Windmills; which Field, Mr. Leat, one of the 20 Captains, with great Pains, was divers Years preparing to that Purpose. The Reason of this their Remove, was, because now their Meetings and Number consisted of many more Soldiers than the old Ground could well contain, being sometimes six thousand. Though, sometimes, they went to the Old Artillery, and continued so to do, Mr. Strype says, in his Memory.

THEN to turn back again through the afore-said Moor-lane, the next is Grub-street; more than half of it is in this Ward. The next is Whitcross-street, up to the End of Beech-lane; and then Redcross-street wholly, with a Part of Golden-lane, to the Posts there placed as a Boundary.

THEN is Beech-lane, before spoken of, on the East Side of the Redcross and the Barbican-street, more than half thereof, towards Aldersgate-street; and so have you the Bounds of Cripplegate Ward without the Walls.

Now for Antiquities and Ornaments in this Ward, to be noted. First, at the meeting of the Corners of the Old-Fewry, Milk-street, Lad-lane, and Aldermanbury, there was (of old Time) a fair Well with two Buckets, of late Years converted to a Pump. How Aldermanbury-street took that Name, many Fables have been reported, not worth relating. But to be short, this Street took the Name of Aldermanbury; which is to say, a Court there kept in their Bury, or Court-Hall, now called the Guildhall. Which Hall (of old Time) stood in the East Side of the same Street, not far from the West End of Guildhall, now used.

TOUCHING the Antiquity of this old Aldermanbury, or Court, is said that Richard Renery, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, in the 1st of Richard I. which was in the Year of Christ, 1189, gave to the Church of St. Mary at Osney, by Oxford, certain Ground and Rents in Aldermanbury, of LONDON, as appeareth by the Register of that Church, as is also entered into the Hustings of the Guildhall in LONDON.

THIS old Bury, Court, or Hall, continued; and the Courts of the Mayor and Aldermen were continually held there, 'till the new Bury, Court, or Guildhall, that now is, was built and finished; which Hall was first begun to be founded in the Year 1411, and was not fully finished in 20 Years after,

IN this Aldermanbury-street are divers handsome Houses on both Sides, for Merchants others: And in the Middle thereof is a fair Conduit, made at the Charge of William Eastfield, some Time Mayor, who took Order, as well for Water to be conveyed from Tyburn, and for the Building of this Conduit not far distant from his Dwelling-House: As also, for a Standard of sweet Water to be erected in Fleet-street; all which was done by his Executors, as in another Place is shewed.

The PARISH of ### St. MARY ALDERMANBURY.

S. Mary Aldermanbury.

THE first Building of a Church here is not easily discover'd, but Sir William Estfield, Mr. Stow says, was a great Benefactor to it: He also built the Steeple of the old Church, changed their Bells to five tuneable ones, and gave 100 l. to other Works of that Church, doing other Things for the Parish. This Sir William was Knight of the Bath, and Lord Mayor of LONDON, in the Year 1437.

THIS Church was almost new built at the Parish Charge, Anno 1633, and being demolished by the raging Flames in 1666, was again erected and finished, in the Year 1677.

It is a Structure well built of Stone, as the Steeple is, consisting of a Tower and Turret. The Roof within is cambered and covered with Lead, which is supported with 12 Pillars of the Composite Order; it is paved with Stone: The Floor of the Chancel is one Step higher than that of the Body of the Church; and the Apertures are numerous and well placed, rendering it very pleasant.

THE ornamental Part is handsome. At the East End, fronting Aldermanbury, is a large Cornice and Triangular Pediment; also two large Cartouches, and as many Pine-Apples of Stone carved.

THE Inside of the Roof is adorned with Arches of Fret-Work, and the said Columns with Entablament, the Cornice being Cantalivier.

It is wainscotted near nine Feet high, and pewed with Oak; the Pulpit is also of that Timber, with Enrichments of Cherubims. Here are also three plain but Wainscot Inner Door-cases.

THE Altar-Piece is adorned with two fluted Pilasters, Entablature, and open circular Pediment, of the Corinthian Order. The Inter-Columns are the Commandments, between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, done in Gold Letters on Black: Above the Commandments, is a Seraphim between two Cherubims; and over them, above the Cornice, are the King's Arms, all carved and embellish'd, with Enrichments of Fruit, Leaves, &c. The Communion-Table is finnish'd, and its Footpace paved with Marble, enclosed with Rail and Ballister.

HERE is also a spacious gilt Branch.

THE Dimensions are, Length 72 Feet, Breadth 45, Altitude 38, and that of the Steeple, consisting of a Tower and Turret, about 90 Feet, wherein are two Bells.

MONUMENTS in the old Church were, for

Simon Winchcombe, Esq; deceased 1391. Robert Combarton, 1422. John Wheatly, 1428. Sir William Estfield, before-mentioned, John Middleton, Mercer, Mayor, 1472. John Tomes, Draper, 1486. William Bucke, Taylor, 1501. Sir William Browne, Mayor, 1507. His fourth, Lovyson, bore Argent, a Fesse Sable, between three Wolves, or Talbots, Passant of the second.

ON a fair plated Stone by the Communion-Table, was this Inscription:

Elizabeth, whose Husband Davy hight,
Lieth buried here till
Time the Trumpet blow:
But sure the Heavens
Possesse her sacred sprite,
Her vertuous Life and
Godly End did show.

And

And they that knew her
Pathes of perfect Love,
The fundry Gifts that Garnished her Life,
Can witnesse well, and
By her End approve,
There seldome hath been
Seene a better Wife.
Give GOD the Praise for Such her happy Race,
And pray that we
Like Virtues may embrace.

She died the 12th Day of August, 1569.

ON a handsome Tomb, at the upper End of the South Side of the Chancel, was the following Inscription :

Mary Briggs, the Daughter of Thomas Crofts, deceased the 8th Day of August, Anno Domini 1610, being of the Age of 31 Years.

Philip-lane, Addle-street, Aldermanbury; Dyer's-court, Carpenter's-court, Three Nun-alley, Miller's-court, Rose-court; Part of London-wall; Part of Love-lane, and Bury-court.

NUMBER of Houses 135.

BELOW this Church is a Lane called Gay-spur, now Philip-lane, which runs down to London-wall. In this Lane, at the North End thereof, was (of old Time) a House of Nuns; which House being in great Decay, William Elsing, Mercer, in the Year of Christ 1329, the 3d of Edw. III. began, in Place thereof, the Foundation of an Hospital, for Suttentation of 100 blind Men. Towards the Erektion whereof, he gave his two Houses in the Parishes of St. Alphage, and our Blessed Lady in Aldermanbury, near Cripplegate; obtaining first the King's Letter of Mortmain, under the Great Seal of England,

THIS House was afterwards called a Priory, or Hospital, of St. Mary, the Virgin, founded in the Year 1332, by William Elsing, for Canons regular; which William became the first Prior thereof.

Robert Elsing, Son to the said William, gave to the said Hospital, 12 l. by the Year, for the finding of three Priests. He also gave 5 l. towards the inclosing of the new Church-Yard without Aldgate, and 5 l. to the inclosing of the new Church-Yard without Aldersgate. To Thomas Elsing, his Son, 80 l. The rest of his Goods to be sold, and given to the Poor. This House, valued at 193 l. 15 s. 5 d. was surrendered the 11th of May, the 22d of Henry VIII.

IN the same Place, where the aforefaid Elsing's Spital and Priory were formerly situated, there is now erected a College for the Clergy of LONDON, and Liberties thereof, called by the Name of Sion College; and Alms-Houses for 20 poor People, 10 Men and 10 Women. The Particulars whereof were shewn in the first Book, Chap. XI.

THERE were Monuments in Elsing Spital for,

Thomas Cheyne, Son to William Cheyne; Thomas, John and William, Sons of Sir Will. Cheyne. John Northampton, Draper, Mayor, 1381. Edmond Hungerford, Henry Frowicke, Joan, Daughter to Sir Will. Cheyne, Wife to William Stokes. Robert Elderbroke, Esq; 1460. Dame Joan Ratcliffe, Wife of William Fowler; William Kingston, Thomas Swineley, and Helen his Wife, &c.

THE principal Isle of this Church, towards the North, was pulled down, and a Frame of four Houses set up in the Place. The other Part of this Church, (from the Steeple upward) was converted into the Parish Church of St. Alphage. And the Parish Church which stood near unto the Wall of the City, by Cripplegate, was pulled down, and the Plat thereof made a Carpenter's Yard with Saw-Pits.

THE Hospital itself, the Prior, and Canons House, with other Lodgings, were made a Dwelling-House; the Church-Yard is a Garden-Plat, and a fair Gallery on the Cloister. The Lodgings for the Poor are translated into Stabling for Horses.

IN the Year 1541, Sir John Williams, Master of the King's Jewels, dwelling in this House, on Christmas Eve, at Night, about Seven of the Clock, a great Fire began in the Gallery thereof, which burnt so fiercely, that the Flame firing the whole House, and consuming it, was seen all the City over, and not easily quenched.

Whereby many of the King's Jewels were burnt, and more imbezelled, as was said.

The PARISH of St. ALPHAGE.

THERE is only this one Church in LONDON dedicated to this Saint, of whom take the following Account.

St. Alphage, or Elphege, was born of great Parentage, and spent his younger Years in the Monastery of Hirst, where he first entered into Religion; after his Departure thence, he became Prior of Glastenbury (as Malmsbury saith) which Place, after a Season, he left, and gave himself to a very strict Kind of Life at Bath, for which he was so much admired (the rather because he was a Person of great Lineage) as many went about to imitate him, and joining themselves to him, made him their Governor, by the Name of Abbot. Having lived so a certain Space, he was called to the Bishoprick of Winchester, Anno 984, where he continued 22 Years, and Anno 1006, was removed to Canterbury. He was a Man of wonderful Abstinence, spent his Time altogether in Prayer, Study, and other necessary Business, and what with Preaching, and Example of Holy Life, he converted many unto CHRIST. At length in the Year 1012, it happened the Danes to be disappointed of certain Tributes, for want whereof, they spoil'd and burnt the City and Church of Canterbury; of the Monks and People thereof, they put nine in ten to the Sword. As for the Archbishop, they kept him in Prison seven Months, tormented him, and at last put him to Death at Greenwich on 13 Kal. of May (where afterwards that Parish-Church was built and dedicated to his Memory.) His Body was first buried in St. Paul's Church in LONDON; afterwards carried to Canterbury, by the Command of King Knute, and interr'd. He sat six Years Archbishop, was afterwards made a Saint, and allowed the 19th of April for the Celebration of his Memory.

THE old Church of St. Alphage being much decayed in the Year of our Lord 1535, the Parishioners petitioned the Government for Licence to rebuild the said Church; but they could only obtain a Grant for using the old Materials, as Stones, Lead, and Timber, in Order to repair and make good an old Chapel belonging to Elsing Spital. It was began to be repaired in the Year of our Lord 1624. The Repair continuing the two following Years. In which Time, the Masons Work amounted to 400 l. The Reparations went on in the Years 1627, and 1628, in which last it was finished; arising to 100 l. more, at the sole Cost and Charge of the Parish.

THIS Church was again repaired and beautified, 1701; it is a Gothick Building, both Windows and Pillars.

THE Length of the Church is 78 Feet, Breadth 42, and Altitude 22, the Tower is inconsiderable, being only about 40 Feet high, but there are in it six Bells that ring in Peal.

THE Ornament in this Church are not notable, nor the Wainscot considerable, the Pews are pretty well, but mostly of antient Form.

THE Pulpit is plain, and the Altar-Piece has the Commandments, Lord's Prayer and Creed, MONU-

done in an old Character, Gold upon Black, painted on Cloth, over each of which is a carved Cherub.

ON the North Side of the Choir is the King's Arms painted in a Frame.

MONUMENTS.

MONUMENTS in St. Alphage, and Persons buried here:

Mr. Francis Williams, Brother's Son to the Lord Williams of Thame, was (Feb. 15, 1559.) brought from Fleet-street, and buried here: And three Days after, was the Corpse of Mr. John Williams, Heir to the Lord of Thame, conducted hither from St. Paul's Chain, to be buried, with a Penon of Arms, and his Coat Armour, an Herald and Mourners attending; and 12 Gentlemen bore him; 20 Clerks before singing. The Funeral Sermon preached by Mr. Veron, a Frenchman.

The Lord Williams of Thame, was likewise buried in this Church; and so was his Successor in that House, viz. Sir Rowland Haywood, Mayor, dwelling in this Spital, 1593. Richard Lee, alias Clarencieux, King of Arms, 1597, &c.

Here lieth the Body of Sir Rowland Hayward, Kt. twice Lord Mayor of this City of LONDON, and living an Alderman the Space of 30 Years; and (at his Death) the antientest Alderman in the said City. He lived beloved of all good Men, and died (in great Credit and Reputation) the 5th Day of December, Ann. Dom. 1593. and the 36th Yeere of the Reigne of our Sovereigne Lady Queene Elizabeth. He had two virtuous Wives, and by them many happy Children.

Joan, Daughter of William Tillesworth, Esq; was the first Wife to Sir Rowland Hayward, by whom he had Issue, three Sons and five Daughters; which three Sons, and two of the Daughters, died in their Infancy. The eldest of the surviving Daughters, named Elizabeth, was first married to Richard Warren, Esq; and (after his Decease) to Thomas Knevet, Esq; one of her Majesty's Privy-Chamber. Susanna, the second Daughter, was married to Henry Townsend, Esq; Joan, the third Daughter, was married to John Thinne, Esq;

Katharine, the second Wife of Sir Rowland Hayward, was Daughter to Thomas Smith, Esq; by whom he had likewise three Sonnes and five Daughters; whereof one Sonne and one Daughter died Infants. The two Sons and four Daughters, yet living, are George, John, Alice, Katharine, Mary, and Anne; all young, and unmarried at their Father's Death.

Decus vitæ, est honorata mors.

This Tombe was erected by the Appointment of Edward Pilsforth, and William Cotton, Citizens of London, and Executors of the said Sir Rowland.

ON a Grave-Stone at the Entrance into the Choir Door:

HERE lieth buried under this Stone, the Body of Robert Hodgson, Esq; one of the Auditors of the Queen's Majesty's Court of Exchequer, who died the 26th Day of May, in the Year of our Lord 1577.

No 39. VOL. I.

IN the South Isle, upon a Marble Stone:

ON another Stone in the same Isle:

In Christ alone I onely trust,
To rise in Number of the Just.

Hereunder lyeth buried the Body of Katharine Edwards, some Time beloved Wife of John Edwards, of this Parish of St. Alphage; she departed this transitory Life on the 6th Day of January, 1628, and in the 45th Yeere of her Age; having had issue by her said Husband, five Sonnes and seven Daughters.

My Body here in Dust doth rest,
Sin caus'd that Earth claimes it as due,
My Soule's in Heaven for ever blest,
Yet both in one, Christ will renew.

MONUMENTS of later Times, set up for Persons buried in St. Alphage's Church, are these:

IN the Chancel; flat Stones, for Samuel Brewer of the Inner Temple, Gent. 1684. This Samuel Brewer gave a Farm at Tyler's Cawsey, lying in Hatfield and Barkhamsted in Hertfordshire, by Will, An. 1684, valued at 27 l. per An. for the Alms-House in Sion College.

James Halsey, D. D. formerly Rector of this Parish, An. 1640.

Thomas Wright, 1700.

Thomas Dawson, Doctor in Physick, 1682.

The Children of Jerom and Mary Clutterbuck.

IN the Body of the Church:

Streets, Lanes, &c.

Part of Aldermanbury; Part of London-wall, Currier's-court; Part of Philip-lane, Sion-Court, Hand-court, Cock-court, Bird's-court; Part of Wood-street; Part of Fell-street, Fell-court, Ship-yard; Part of Hart-street; Part of Monkwell-street, vulgarly called Mugwell-street; and Bowyer's-court, vulgarly called Baker's-alley.

NUMBER of Houses 162.

NOW to return to Milk-street, so called, it is supposed, from Milk being sold there. In this Street are many good Houses, for Merchants, wholesale Traders and others, among which was the House of Gregory Rokeby, chief Assay-Master of the King's Mints, and Mayor of LONDON in the Year 1275, the 3d of Edward I. This House belonged to the Priory of Lewes in Sussex, to whom he was Tenant, and paid the Rent of 20*s.* a Year, without being bound to Reparations; such were the Rates of Houses in those Days.

The PARISH of ## St. MARY MAGDALEN MILK-STREET.

IN this Milk-street, was a small Parish-Church of St. Mary Magdalen, which was repaired and beautified at the Charge of the Parish, in the Year of Lord 1619.

ALL the Chancel Windows were built at the proper Cost of Mr. Benjamin Henshaw, Merchant-Taylor, and one of the City Captains, the Charge amounting to 60*l.* and upwards.

IN the Year 1633, there was added to this a handsome Communion-Table, with a decent Frame about it; but in the fatal Flames of 1666, this Church being consumed was not rebuilt, but the Parish united to that of St. Laurence Jewry, as is before taken Notice of in the 3d Chapter of this Book.

MONUMENTS in this Church were, for

William Browne, Mayor, 1513, who gave 40*l.* to it, and was there buried. Thomas Exmew, Mayor, 1528, gave 40*l.* and was buried there. So was John Mitford, one of the Sheriffs, 1375. John Olney, Mayor, 1375. Richard Rawson, one of the Sheriffs, 1476. Henry Kelsey. Sir John Browne, Mayor, 1497. Thomas Muschampe, one of the Sheriffs, 1463. Sir William Cantlow, Knt. Mercer, 1462. Henry Cantlow, Mercer, Merchant of the Staple; who built a Chapel, and was buried therein, 1495. John West, Mercer, Alderman, 1517. John Machel, Alderman, 1558. Thomas Skinner, Clothworker, Mayor, 1596.

ON a comely Monument in the South Isle of the Choir was this Inscription:

HERE lieth the Corpse of Thomas Skinner, late Citizen and Alderman of LONDON; born at Saffron Walden, in Essex, who in the 63d Year of his Age, and on the 5th Day of December, Anno Dom. 1596, being then Lord Mayor of this City, departed this Life, leaving behind three Sons, John, Thomas, and Richard; and three Daughters, Anne, Julian, and Elizabeth.

Here lieth interred the Body of Mrs. Mary Collet, Wife of Mr. John Collet, Citizen and Salter of LONDON; who deceased the 22d of December, An. Dom. 1613, being aged 35 Years.

ON a fair Stone in the same Isle before the Monument aforementioned:

This Marble Witnesse
Dew dropt with the Eyes
Of grieved Niobe, tels
Thee, that here lies
Her second Huband's Joy,
Her first's Content,
Her Parents comfort,
Her Friends Ornament;
Her Neighbours welcome
Her dear Kindred's Losse
Her own Health's Foe,
deeming all Pleasure Drosse;
The World a Jayle, whence,
through much Paine we see,
Her Soule at length
hath purchast Liberty;
And soar'd on high where
Her Redeemer lives;
Who (for her Torment)
Rest and Glory gives.

ON an antient Tomb in the Chancel was this Inscription:

Here lie the Bodies of Gerard Gore, Citizen, Merchant-Taylor, and Alderman of LONDON, and of Helen his Wife, who lived together married 57 Years. The said Gerard died the 11th Day of December 1607, in the 91st Year of his Age. And she departed this Life the 13th Day of February, in the foresaid Year, being 75 Years old.

ON

ON a fair Stone at the Entrance into the Choir :

Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Henshaw, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor of LONDON, who had to Wife Flower Henshaw, and had Issue by her, nine Sons and four Daughters. He deceased the 11th Day of January 1611, aged 76 Yeeres; and she died the 6th of March, 1615, aged about 60 Yeeres.

ON a handsome Monument on the North Side of the Chancel :

Here lieth the Body of Sir William Stone, Knt. Free of the Clothworkers and Turky Companies, some Time Alderman of this City. He was the Sonne of Reynold Stone, Citizen and Fishmonger of LONDON. The said Sir William departed this Life the 14th of September, 1609, aged 63 Years, &c.

As the Earth, the Earth doth cover,
So under this Stone
Lyes another ;
Sir William Stone,
Who long deceased,
E're the World's Love
Him released ;
So much it lov'd him ;
For, they say,
He answered Death
Before his Day ;
But 'tis not so ;
For he was fought
Of one that both him
Made and bought.
He remain'd
The great Lord's Treasure,
Who called for him
At his Pleasure,
And receiv'd him.
Yet be it said,
Earth grieved that Heaven
So soon was paid.

Here likewise lyes
Inhumed in one Bed
Dame Barbara,
The wel beloved Wife
Of this remembred Knight ;
Whose Soules are fled
From this dimme Vale
To everlasting Life.
Where no more Change,
Nor no more Separation
Shall make them flye
From their blest Habitation,

Grasse of Levitie,
Span in Brevity,
Flowers Felicity,
Fire of Misery,
Winds Stability,
Is Mortality.

Their Riches were Like Corne lent to the Fieldes,
What it receiv'd,
It manifold did yeeld.
Their Bodies have a Grave,
Their Virtues none,
But shall, with Time, grow Greene,
When they are gone.
Stone Walls, Brasse Towers,
Decay as Flowers :
One gone, their Good
Is, Lo ! here they stood.
So transitory
Is our Glory.

ON a Monument at the East End of the South Ile :

This Stone, this Verse,
Two Mountfords doe present,
The Corps of one,
The other's Monument :
Two lovely Brethren,
By their Virtues knowne,
Whom Cambridge, and
King's Colledge call'd their own.
Osbert and Richard,
Of which worthy Paire,
The first imployed
By Sea in great Affaire ;
Made Heaven his Haven,
And at that Port the other
(By Land) did overtake
His elder Brother.
So now the Bones
Of both are laid asleepe,
These in this Church,
Those in the Easterne Deep :
'Till all the Dead
Shall wake from Sea and Land,
Before the Judge
Of Quicke and Dead to stand.

Amen.

We Sonne-lesse Parents ;
Yet not Childlesse left,
Bewaile (as Men)
Our Seed untimely rest.
As Christians, we hope,
And joy and say,
Heaven is our Home,
And thither, Death the Way.
By Sea or Land,
It skills not, so we minde
The faithful Pilgrims
Narrow Path to finde.

Mort. Osbert, Mense Decemb. 1614.
      Richard, Mense Jan. 1615.

Queen Elizabeth's Monument in this Church.

Streets, Lanes, &c. in this Parish are,
PART of Milk-street ; Part of Clement's- court, Godfrey's-court, Feathers-court, Sun- passage, King's-court, and Part of Cheapside.

NUMBER of Houses 70.

NEXT to this is Wood-street ; for what Reason it was so called, is uncertain ; but true it is, that, of old Time, according to a Decree made in the Reign of Richard I. the Houses of LONDON were built of Stone, to prevent Fire. Which Kind of Building was used for 200 Years or more : But of later Time, to gain Ground, these Houses have been taken down, and Houses of Timber set up in their Places. It seems therefore, that this Street hath been of later Building, all of Timber, (for not one House of Stone hath been known there) and therefore called Wood-street : Otherwise it might take the Name of some Builder, or Owner thereof.

Thomas Wood, one of the Sheriffs, in the Year 1491, dwelled there : He was an especial Benefactor towards the building of St. Peter's Church at Wood-street End. He also built a beautiful Front of the Houses in Cheap, over-against Wood-street End, which was called Goldsmiths-Row, garnished with the Likeness of Woodmen. His Predecessors might be the first Builders, Owners and Namers of this Street, after their own Name.

ON the East Side of this Street is one of the Prison-Houses, pertaining to the Sheriffs of LONDON, and is called the Compter in Wood-street ; which was prepared to be a Prison-House

House in the Year 1555; and, on the Eve of St. Michael the Archangel, the Prisoners that lay in the Compter in Bread-street, were removed to this Compter in Wood-street. Beneath this Compter is Lad-lane, or Ladle-hall; for so it is named on Record in the Parish of St. Michael in Wood-street; and beneath that is Love-lane, so called, says Stow, of Wantons.

By the last mentioned Lane is the Parish-Church of St. Alban's.

The P A R I S H of
St. ALBAN WOOD-STREET.

ONE Note of the great Antiquity of this Church is the Name, by which it was first dedicated to St. Alban, the first Martyr of England. Another Character of the Antiquity of it is to be seen in the Manner of the turning of the Arches in the Windows, and Heads of the Pillars. A third Note appears in the Roman Bricks, here and there inlaid amongst the Stones of the Building. Very probable it is, that this Church is, at least, of as ancient a Standing, as King Adelstane, the Saxon; who, as Tradition says, had his House at the East End of this Church. This King's House having a Door also into Adel-street, in this Parish, gave Name, as 'tis thought, to the said Adel-street: Which, in all Evidences, to this Day, is written King Adel-street. One great square Tower of this King's House seem'd, in Stow's Time, to be then remaining, and to be seen at the North Corner of Love-lane, as you come from Aldermanbury: Which Tower was of the very same Stone and Manner of Building with St. Alban's Church.

THIS Church, being wonderfully decayed and perished, was by these Gentlemen, Sir Henry Spiller, Inigo Jones, Esq; Captain Leake, and Captain Williams, surveyed, to see what Repair might help it. But by these Gentlemen, and Workmen appointed with them, it was found to be too far gone for Repair. Neither would any Workman put himself into Hazard upon it; affirming it to be, in every Part of it, so spent, decayed, and feeble, that they must suddenly pluck it down, or it would prevent that Labour, and fall to the Ground of itself; which Failings every Day increasing (and more and more growing and appearing) did most evidently seem to threaten.

FOR this Cause, many of the Parishioners refused to go to it; many that went, went unwillingly, but all with much Fear, where they fate with more; their Danger, all the Time, much troubling and disturbing their Devotion.

THIS great Necessity enforcing, it was taken down in the Year 1632, and was rebuilt, Anno 1634; but perishing in the Flames of 1666, it was re-erected, and as it now appears, finished in the Year 1685.

THE Building, both of the Inside and out, of this Church is Gothick, as it was before the Fire.

It is wainscotted round with Norway Oak, seven Feet and a half from the Ground.

THERE is a Gallery at the West End of the Church, in the Front of which is a fine Organ erected by Subscription, An. Dom. 1728; also a Door-Case, and a spacious Arch under the Gallery, opening into the Nave of the Church.

THE Pulpit is finely carved, with an Enrichment, in Imitation of Fruit and Leaves; and the Sound-Board is a Hexagon, having round it a fine Cornice, adorned with Cherubims and other Embellishments, and the Inside is neatly finniere.

THE Altar-Piece is very ornamental, consisting of four Columns, fluted with their Bases, Pedestals, Entablature, and open Pediment of the Corinthian Order; and over each Column, upon Acroters, is a Lamp with a gilded Taper. Between the Inner Columns are the Ten Commandments, done in Gold Letters, upon Black. Between the two Northward, is the Lord's Prayer; and the two Southward, the Creed, done in Gold, upon Blue. Over the Commandments is a Glory between two Cherubims, and above the Cornice, the King's Arms with the Supporters, Helmet, and Crest, richly carved under a Triangular Pediment; and on the North and South Side of the above described Ornaments, are two large Cartouches; all which Parts are carved in fine Wainscot.

THE Church is well paved with Oak; and here are two large Brass Branches, and a Marble Front, having Enrichments of Cherubims, &c.

MONUMENTS in the old Church were, for

Sir Richard Illingworth, Baron of the Exchequer. Thomas Chatworth, Grocer, Mayor, 1443. John Woodcock, Mayor, 1465. John Collet, and Alice his Wife. UPON the Wall by the North Door, a fair Monument in Stone, with these Inscriptions :

Misericordiam Dei per Jesum Christum Obtinuimus.

Here lye the Bodies of Anne, the Wife of Laurence Gibson, Gent. and of their three Sonnes. She was a most faithful and loving Wife, and a right religious, Wise, virtuous, and modest Woman ; and adorned with many other such excellent and commendable Gifts and Qualities, that she is worthy of perpetual Memory. She was of the antient Family of the Bamfords in Lincolnshire : And the 29th Day of December, 1611, she patiently and christianly ended this mortal Life.

Spe resurgendi ad vitam æternam requiescimus.

Hoc mœstissimus ejus maritus, in piam memoriam Uxoris suæ, talis, tamque charissimæ, construi fecit : eandemque hic cum illa sepulturam spectat & exoptat.

In Christo filii summus Dei, & heredes æternæ vitæ.

Mentis vis magna.

What ! Is she dead ?

Doth he survive ?

No : Both are dead,

And both alive.

She lives, he's dead,

By Love, though grieving,

In him, for her,

Yet dead, yet living.

Both dead, and living,

Then what is gone ?

One halfe of both,

Not any one.

One Mind, one Faith,
One Hope, one Grave,
In Life, in Death,
They had, and still they have.
Amor conjugalis æternus.

Hic jacet in requie

Cum x bis - - -

This John Woodcocke was Maior, 1405.

Hic jacet Tom Short-hose,
Sine Tombe, sine Sheets, sine Riches ;
Qui vixit sine Gowne,
Sine Cloake, sine Shirt, sine Breeches.

IN the Vestry South Window there is the Figure of Thomas Heritagh, in a Red Mantle : Right before him, in another Pane, is the Mercers Arms, of which Company (it seems) he was Free. This Man was the Builder of this Vestry House.

AT the East End of the Chancel, on the Right Hand, is a fair Monument, with this Inscription :

To the sacred Memory of Thomas Shelley, eldest Sonne and Heire of Henry Shelley, of Patcham, in the County of Suffex, Esq; departed this Life the 2d Day of Decemb. 1620, being 23 Yeeres of Age. By his most sorrowful Wife, Mary Shelley, eldest Daughter of Thomas Stevens, of the Middle-Temple, Esq; Attorney-General to Prince Henry.

If Youth, Religion,
Virtue, and the rest
Of Graces that
In frail Men are blest,
Could have conferr'd long Life,
This Funeral Verse
Had not so soone
Offered at thy Herse,
By thy sad Widow :
Whose Fate did allow
Her onely three Weeks
Happinesse to know
How good thou wert :
And what Remaines of Life,
To her yeelds Sorrow :
She was once a Wife
To such an Husband,
Whose like 'twere in vaine,
And Flattery to her Greife,
To hope againe.
But thou wert Flesh,
And that to Earth must turne,
Thy pure Soule blest ;
She only left to mourne.

ADJOINING to this, on the Right Hand, is a fair Marble Monument in Oval.

CHARITIES.

THE Bequests and charitable Gifts to this Parish, amount to about 20 l. per Annum. Of which a Register is kept. A Particular follows.

DONORS.

William Peel, of St. Mary Savoy, Gent. bequeathed Anno 1623, an Annuity of 20 l. for the Use of the Poor of the Parish.

Gilbert Keat, of London, Esq; by Will dated 1657, gave, to put out two young Men Apprentices, 40 l.

AND so from four Years to four Years, giving Security to the Parish.

Susan Ibel, by Will dated 16 Jac. I. gave 40 l. being her Gift, and of her deceased Husband's, Thomas Roberts, for three Chaldrons and four Sacks of Seacoal, among the honest poor People; to each one Sack of Seacoal, as far as the same will extend.

THE Church-wardens, with the Consent of the Executors, paid the said 40 l. into the Hands of the Mystery of Tallow-chandlers, who covenanted with the said Parish, to deliver to them the said Coals.

Richard Wynne, Esq; Anno 1677, gave 20 l. for ever, to be distributed to Eight poor People of the said Parish, at 2 s. 6 d. a-piece. And the said 20 l. is to be put forth at Interest.

Thomas Savage, Citizen and Goldsmith, by Will dated 1611, gave a Messuage call'd The George at Holbourn-Bridge, with four other Messuages, for the Use and Benefit of the Poor. Which Premises, many Years before the Reign of King Edward VI, belonged to the Parish; but taken away in that King's Reign, by the Statute about Superstitious Uses. And 8 Jac I. the Title being in Suit between the Parish, and one Robert Pepper, it was awarded, that Pepper and his Son should convey the said Premises to the said Parish in Fee; which was done, but upon Condition, that the said Parish, or their Trustees, should grant a Lease back to Pepper, for 150 Years, at 5 l. per Annum Rent. (And the said Savage, the Donor, purchased the Fee of the Premises.)

THE Company of Embroiderers pay yearly for Bread, 1 l. 6 s. being the Gift of Mr. Londson.

THERE was a Parsonage-House belonging to this Living, before the great Fire, but burnt down then. The Ground is leased out at 4 l. per Annum, for 41 Years; and the Premises rebuilt into two Houses.

THE Living is a Rectory in the Gift of Eaton College, and in the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, who present alternately. Value per Act of Parliament, 170 l. and rated in the King's Books 16 l. 8 s. 1 d. and the Parish of St. Olave at 7 l. 7 s. 11 d.

THE Rector is the Reverend Mr. Richard Sear, and the Lecturer the Reverend Mr. Smith.

PRAYERS are Wednesdays, Fridays, and Holidays, at 11 o'Clock; here is an Organ, as before said, which plays only on Sundays, excepting the 29th of May, and the Day on which the Company of Barber-Surgeons elect a Master, Wardens, &c. Here are only two Bells. A Sermon is preached in this Church on the 3d Thursday in August, being the Election Day before mentioned; and the Company allows 10 s. to the Rector for the Use of the Pulpit, when they chuse any other Person to preach; they give also to the Reader on that Day 4 s. to the Clerk 3 s. and to the Sexton 1 s. 6 d. and they are all handsomely entertain'd at the Company's Feast.

THE Vestry is General.

The WARD-OFFICERS are,

1 Common-Council-Man, who is the same that serves for St. Olave's.

2 Constables for four Years, and one for two Years, alternately.

2 Inquests.

2 Scavengers.

Streets, Lanes, &c.

PART of Great Wood-street, Maidenhead-court; Part of Coach-and-four-horses-yard; Part of Crooked-frying-pan-alley; Part of Strait-frying-pan-alley, [on Sufferance] Part of Silver-street, Winston's-court; Part of Little Wood-street, Addle-street, Little Love-lane; Part of Great Love-lane, and Coach-and-six-horses-yard.

NUMBER of Houses 112.

THIS Parish, after the Fire of LONDON, was united by Act of Parliament to St. Olave's Silver-street; of which see more in the next Chapter on Aldersgate Ward.

THEN

Plasterers-hall. THEN is Adle-street; the Reason of which Name is unknown; only, that in old Evidences it is written King-Adel-street; and so called from King Adelstane the Saxon. At this Time it is replenished with good Buildings on both Sides, among which is the Plasterers-Hall, handsome, but small; it was formerly the Pinners-Hall; but that Company decaying, and not being worth a Pin, saith Stow, it came to the Plasterers.

Brewers-hall.

Not far from that, is the Brewers-Hall, a spacious and curious Building; with a graceful Appearance at the Entrance, of Columns and Arches of the Tuscan Order; and Enrichments of Fruit, Leaves, &c. the Walls are Brick, the Window-Cases, &c. Stone.

From the West End of Adle-street, Little Wood-street runs down to Cripplegate; and somewhat East of the End of this Street, and facing London-wall, is the Carriers-Hall.

Carriers-hall.

Now on the West Side of Wood-street is Huggen-lane, which is but narrow, on Account of some Encroachments to Gutter-lane.

The PARISH of St. MICHAEL WOOD- STREET.

THIS Church of St. Michael, with the Addition of Wood-street, from its Situation on the West Side of that Street, hath been sometimes called St. Michael in Hogge-lane, or Huggen-lane, of one Hugan, that of old Time dwelt in that Lane, and was call'd Hugan in the Lane, which Lane runs down by the South Side of this Church; and it is at this Day call'd Huggen-lane.

Richard de Basingstoke, in 33 Edw. III. 1359, by his last Will and Testament, gave all his Tenements in the Parish of St. Laurence Jewry, to the Rector of this Church, and four of the Parishioners, to find two Chaplains to say Mass daily in this Church for the Souls of himself and Relations, &c. out of which, they were to pay them for so doing, eight Marks each per Annum; which Chaplains, after the Death of his Executors, were to be presented from Time to Time by the Rector of this Church for the Time being, and four Parishioners, who were to have half a Mark yearly for their Pains, and with the Overplus of the Rent of the said Tenements, were to keep the Chantry (which he had here) in good Repair.

In the 16th of Richard II. Joh. Ive, Parson of this Church, Joh. Forster, Goldsmith, and Peter Fikeldon, Taylor, gave two Messuages and Shops, with Sollars, Cellars, &c. in this Parish and Street, and in Ladle (or Lad) Lane, to the Reparations of this Church and Chancel, and other Works of Charity.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified at the Cost of the Parishioners, in the Year 1620.

BUT being burnt down in the late dreadful Fire, in 1666, is rebuilt, and made the Parochial Church for this and the Parish of St. Mary Staining, which is annexed to it.

THE Walls of the Structure are built of Stone, and of the Ionick Order; the Roof flat and quadrangular, covered with Lead; the Windows are only on the South Side and East End; the Floor is paved with Stone; that of the Chancel a Step higher than that of the rest of the Church; and here are three Isles.

THE Roof is adorned with Fret-Work and Crocket-Work, the Walls with Arches and Imposts; the Front towards Wood-street, with spacious Stone Pilasters, their Entablature and pitched Pediment of the Ionick Order. The Church is wainscotted round eight Feet high, and pewed with Oak, of which also the Pulpit is made, being finned, and having Enrichments of Cherubims, Festoons, &c. The Altar-Piece is of the same Species of Timber, adorned with a single Cornice and Compass Pediment, where the King's Arms are carved; above which is a Triangular Pediment, with a Glory; and below all this, are the Decalogue between the Lord's Prayer and Creed; the first done in Gold, on Black, the latter the contrary. These are placed between the Portraiture of Moses and Aaron, painted in their proper Habits; the latter holding an Incense-Pot.

THE Length of the Church within, is 63 Feet, Breadth 42, Altitude 31, and that of the Tower (wherein are two Bells) is about 90 Feet.

MONUMENTS in the old Church were, for

William Bambrugh, the Son of Henry Bambrugh, of Skardborough, 1392.

William Turner, Wax-Chandler, 1400.

John Allen, Timbermonger, 1441.

John Peke, Goldsmith, 1441.

William Taverner, Girdler, 1454.

William Mancer, Ironmonger, 1465.

John Nash, 1466.

Robert Draper, 1500.

John Coraunt.

John Lambard, Draper, Alderman, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, who deceased 1554, and was Father to William Lambard, Esq; well known by sundry learned Books by him published.

John Medley, Chamberlain of LONDON.

John Marsh, Esq; Mercer, and Common-Serjeant of LONDON.

ON a comely small Monument, at the East End of the Choir, in the Wall, was this Inscription:

Here lyeth John Blount, Citizen and Clothworker of LONDON, eldest Son of W. Blount, of Mauggarefield, in the County of Glocester, Esq; who had to Wife Anne Layton, of whom he had Issue six Sonnes and eight Daughters; and lived together Man and Wife 29 Yeeres, in worshipfull and good Reputation, and dyed at the Age of 63 Yeeres, the 1st Day of May, 1599.

ON a less Monument in the same Isle and Wall:

Here lyeth the Body of Nicholas Warren, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, borne at Whitby in Yorkshire, who had to Wife Margaret Crome, who lived together married 22 Yeeres and 11 Moneths. He dyed in Joy and Peace of a faithfull Confession, the 10th Day of April, 1614, being about the Age of 52 Yeeres.

JOB xvii. 1.

My Breath is corrupt, my Days are cut off, the Grave for me.

ON another:

The Body of William Harvie, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, and Deputy to the Alderman

Alderman of Creplegate Within, was buried the 20th Day of March, Anno Domini 1597, of the Age of 58 Yeeres. Maudlin, his first Wife, by whom he had Issue foure Sonnes and one Daughter, was buried the 16th Day of November, 1581. Margaret, his second Wife, by whom he had Issue one Son, was buried the 14th of January, 1593. Joan, his third Wife, survived.

Robert Harvie, his eldest Sonne, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, was buried in his Father's Grave, the 9th of November, 1608, out of his House in the Old Jewry, being of the Age of 47 Yeeres, 5 Moneths, and 10 Days; when he had served his Prince, Comptroller of the Custom-House, and Warden of the Grocers. Hee had to Wife Sarah Audley, of whom hee had Issue three Sonnes and three Daughters, &c.

HERE was also Queen Elizabeth's Monument, with this Inscription:

Here lyes her Type, who was of late
The Prop of Belgia, Stay of France,
Spain's Foile, Faith's Shield, and Queen of (State,

Of Arms, of Learning, Fate and Chance.
In brief, of Women ne'er was seen,
So great a Prince, so good a Queen.

Sith Vertue her Immortal made,
Death (envying all that cannot dye)
Her earthly Parts did so invade,
As in it wrackt Self-Majesty.
But so her Spirits inspir'd her Parts,
That she still lives in Loyal Hearts.

THERE is also, but without any outward Monument, the Head of James, the fourth King of the Scots of that Name, slain at Flodden-field, and buried here by this Occasion. After the Battle, the Body of that King being found, was closed in Lead, and conveyed from thence to LONDON, and so to the Monastery of Sheen in Surrey, where it remained for a Time. But after the Dissolution of that House, in the Reign of Edward VI. Henry Gray, Duke of Suffolk, being lodged, and keeping House there; Stow says, he was shewed the same Body, so wrapped in Lead; which Body was thrown into a Waste-Room amongst old Timber, Lead, and other Rubbish. Since which Time, Workmen there (for their foolish Pleasure) hewed off his Head. And Lancelot Young, Master-Glasier to Queen Elizabeth, smelling a sweet Savor to come from thence; and seeing the same dried from Moisture, and yet the Form remaining, with the Hair of the Head and Beard red, brought it to LONDON, to his House in Wood-street, where (for a Time) he kept it for the Sweetness: But in the End, caused the Sexton of that Church to bury it amongst other Bones taken out of their Charnel, &c.

BUT Mr. Speed relates, that (for all John Stow's fair Tale) Lesley, Bishop of Ross, says, this was the Head of the Laird Bonehard; and that King James was seen alive that Night the Battle happened, at Kelso, whence he passed to Jerusalem, and there ended his Days.

John Johnston, in his Historical Inscriptions of the Scottish Kings, makes the Place of this King's Burial uncertain: But from Lib. Monasterii de Walley, in Com. Lanc. it appears, that he was interred among the Carthusians, in the Priory of Sheen, at Richmond, from the Testimony of one who saw his Sepulchre there the same Year of his Death. And Wever says, this was, no doubt, the Place of his Burial (notwithstanding what the Scottish Authors say.)

VOL. I.

THERE are these Monuments in St. Michael's Wood-street Church, since the Fire:

Against the North Wall, two Monuments for the Harveys.

William Harvey, second Son of Robert Harvey, and Sarah Audley, his Wife. He fined for Alderman and Sheriff; had Issue three Sons, Robert, Hugh, and Benjamin, departed An. 1677. Also Hugh, his second Son, 1679.

OTHER antient Monuments of the Harveys, set up for William Harvey, and Robert, and their Wives, still remain, or are renewed since the firing of this Church.

MENTION

MENTION is made in divers Records, of a House in Wood-street, then called Black-hall; but no Man, at this Day, call tell in what Part.

IN the Time of King Richard II, Sir Henry Percy, the Son and Heir of Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, had a House in Wood-street in London, (whether this Black-hall or no, it is hard to trace) wherein he treated King Richard, the Duke of Lancaster, the Duke of York, the Earl Marshal, and his Father, the Earl of Northumberland, with others at Supper.

ON the North Side of this St. Michael's Church, is Maiden-lane, now so called; but (of old Time) Ingene-lane, or Inglane. In this Lane, the Waxchandlers-hall. Waxchandlers have their Common Hall on the South Side thereof, which is a handsome, tho' not spacious Building: And on the North Side, at Stayning-lane End, the Haberdashers-hall. Haberdashers have their Hall. It is a good Brick Building, particularly that Room called the Hall, is very neat and lofty, paved with Marble and Purbeck, wainscotted about 12 Feet high, and the Screen at the West End, where are two arched Apertures, is adorned with Pilasters of the Corinthian Order, with Enrichments; and round the Hall are several Coats of Arms, as the King's, those of LONDON, this Company's, and others. The Company of the Haberdashers, or Hurrers, of old Time so called, were incorporated a Brotherhood of St. Catharine, the 26th of Henry VI, and so confirmed by Henry VII, the 17th of his Reign; the Cappers and Hat-makers, or Hurrers, being one Company of Haberdashers.

DOWN lower, in Wood-street, is Silver-street, in which are divers good Houses.

AND, on the North Side thereof, is Monks-well-street, so called from a Well at the North End thereof; where the Abbot of Garendon had an House or Cell, called St. James in the Wall, by Cripplegate, and certain Monks of their House, were the Chaplains there. Wherefore the Well (belonging to that Cell or Hermitage) was called Monks-well, and the Street, from the Well, Monks-well-street.

IN this Street, on the West Side, is the Barber-Surgeons-hall. Barber-Surgeons-Hall, a magnificent Building, consisting of a spacious Hall, a Court-Room, a Theatre, Library, and other commodious Offices. The grand Entrance, from Monks-well-street, is enriched with the Company's Arms, Cartouches, large Fruit, &c. The Court-Room is adorned with a Fret-work Ceiling, and the Pictures of King Henry VIII, and the Court of Assistants, in one fine Piece; the Pictures of K. Charles II, Sir Charles Scarborough, and Alderman Arris, who gave the Muscle-Lecture, Dr. Grew, Reader of Anatomy, and Mr. Lisle, Barber to King Charles II. The Theatre contains four Degrees of Cedar Seats, one above another in elliptical Form, adorned with the Figures of the Seven Liberal Sciences, the twelve Signs of the Zodiac, and the Skeleton of an Ostrich, put up by Dr. Hobbes 1682, with a Bust of K. Charles I; two human Skins on wooden Frames, of a Man and a Woman, in Imitation of Adam and Eve, put up in 1645; a Mummy's Skull, given by Mr. Loveday 1655; the Skeleton of Etherton, with Copper Joints, (he was executed) given by Mr. Knowles in 1693; the Figure of a Man flea'd, where all the Muscles appear in due Place and Proportion, done after the Life; the Skeletons of Cambery Bess and Country Tom, (as they there call them) 1638; and three other Skeletons of human Bodies. The Roof of this Theatre is an elliptical Cupola. Here is also a Library, which is open on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

THERE are two publick and two private Lectures annually in this Theatre, upon the Bodies of executed Malefactors.

THE East Side of this Street, down against London-wall, and the South Side thereof to Cripplegate, are of Cripplegate Ward, as is afore shewed.

IN this Street, by the Corner of Monks-well-street, is the Bowyers Hall.

ON the East Side of Monks-well-street, are Alms-houses, Twelve in Number, founded by Sir Ambrose Nicholas, Salter, Mayor, 1575. Wherein he placed twelve poor and aged People Rent-free, having each of them Seven Pence a Week, and once a Year, each of them five Sacks of Charcoal, and one Quarter of a Hundred of Faggots, of his Gift for ever.

ON the North Side of the Way, turning towards Cripplegate, and even upon, or close to London-wall as it were, are certain new erected Alms-houses, six in Number, of the Cost and Gift of Mr. Robert Rogers, Leather-seller; and very good Maintenance allowed, for ever, to such People as are appointed to dwell in them.

THEY stand in Hart-street, and are for six antient Couple, with a Room below, and another above, for each. The Founder, and the Qualifications of such as are admitted, will appear in the Inscription on the said House, viz.

THE Gift of Robert Rogers, Merchant-Adventurer, and free of the Leather-sellers Company. Who, among other good Deeds, gave 600 l. to build and lay out upon these Alms-houses, for the Relief of such six aged Couples, being Freemen and Freewomen, as have no Charge of Children. He died in the Year 1601. Erected Anno Dom. 1612.

IT is in the Disposal of the City. Each receive 4 l. a Year.

THEN in Little Wood-street were seven Chambers in an Alley on the West Side, founded for seven poor People, therein to dwell Rent-free; by Henry Barton, Skinner, Mayor, 1416.

THUS much for the Monuments of this Ward within the Walls.

The PARISH of St. GILES CRIPPLE- GATE.

ST. Giles (to whom this Church, and one in the Out-Parishes in Middlesex call'd St. Giles in the Fields are dedicated) was born at Athens in Greece, of a Royal Progeny; his Father's Name was Theodorus, and his Mother Pelagia. He was of a singular Charity, and gave much to the Poor. After his Parents Death, who left him a plentiful Estate, he distributed his Patrimony among the Poor. He gave away the very Coat from his Back, to cover a poor sick Man, who, so soon as he put it on, was perfectly well. From his Infancy he was so addicted to Divine Learning, and to Charity, that he seemed to have care of nothing else.

HE went into France to Cæsareus, Bishop of Arles in Provence, where having staid about two Years with the Bishop, and having a Desire to live more solitary from the Pleasures of the World, and Concourse of People, he privily departed thence into a Wilderness, where he obscured himself in a horrid Cave, unto which Place Charles Martel, King of France (as my Author calls him) following his Hounds in Hunting, pursuing an Hind, accidentally came; which Hind gave Milk to nourish this Giles, and flying from the Hounds for Succour to the Cave, the Hounds, by the Prayers of Giles, were not able to pursue her further than a Stone's Cast from the Cave, but there making a Stand, return'd howling howling to the Hunters; which being reported to Charles, he, with his Retinue, came in Person to the Cave, where Charles finding this Giles, and wondering to see so grave and holy Man in such an uncouth Place, demanded of Giles what he was, and what he did there? who answered, That he hid himself there for Religion, and for Piety's sake. Upon which Answer and Conference with him, admiring his Sanctity, he took such an Affection to him, that this Charles Martel caused a Monastery to be erected in that Place, with much Intreaty for Giles's Consent; over which, not without great Importunity, he made this Giles the Governor, or Abbot, who was very unwilling to accept thereof. This was at the City of Nismes, near to Roan, says Radulph Cestrensis (Lib. 5. Chap. 28.) This Relation is also written by Peter de Natalibus in Catal. Sanctorum, and others.

BESIDES Theology, this Giles professed Physick, and wrote in Verse de Paralyfi. He died in his Abbey at Nismes, as some write, Anno Christi 700, and was afterwards canonized for a Saint.

THERE is a Church in Rome dedicated to St. Giles, which, on his Festival, is much frequented by Women for the Help of this Holy Abbot Giles. For they are confident, that St. Giles having been nourished by the Milk of an Hind, can help such as have Fevers, or which are in Danger of Child-Birth, or want Milk, or are Barren. So (Mirabilia Romæ, Edit. 1618. P. 38.)

HIS Festival is commonly celebrated Sept. 1. The Date of this Church's Foundation is very antient: It is said to be built by Alfune, Bishop of LONDON, about the Year of our Lord 1030, before the Reign of William the Conqueror, and though it was demolished by Fire, in the Year 1545, yet it providentially had not the same Fate by the Flames in 1666, when many of its neighbour Churches suffered so much. The South Gallery was built at the Charge of William Worral, Anno 1682, and the Church was adorned and beautified at the latter End of the Year 1704, the new Altar-Piece, Pulpit and Pews (hereafter described) being then put up at the Parish Charge.

IT is built of old Stone, Boulder, and some Brick, finished over. The Church is spacious, and (within) pleasant. The Pillars, Arches, and Windows are Gothick, and the Columns supporting the Organ-Gallery are of the Tuscan Order.

THE Roof of the Church is flat; that Part over the Middle Isle is neatly cieled with Timber; that Part over the Altar is painted nebulous, and another Part between the two former is painted in Pannels, or Quadrangles, of white and veined Marble.

IT has handsome Bolection-Work Galleries on the North West and South Sides. It is well pewed with Oak, and wainscotted seven Feet high.

THE Pulpit is of fine Wainscot, neatly carved and finiered, adorned with an Entablature and Pediments, and having Enrichments of Vases, Cherubims, Palm-Branches, Fruit, &c. done in Relievo.

AND the Font stands at the West End of the Church, directly so from the Communion-Table; it is fine, blue, veined Marble, enriched with Cherubims, and has a Wainscot Cover, of the Corinthian Order, adorned with Columns and Entablature; which Font is placed in the Centre of a Quadrangle, formed by Rail and Baluster.

THE Altar-Piece is very ornamental, being as the Pews and Pulpit, of right Oak; it is finely carved, being adorned with six Pilasters and Entablaments of the Corinthian Order. The Inter-columns, are the Commandments done in Gold Letters on Black; and the Lord's Prayer and Creed, are in Black, on Gold. Between the Arches of the Tables of the Commandments, and under the Cornice is a Pelican, with her Wings displayed, and feeding her Young with her own Blood: And above that is, God spake these Words. Over the Lord's Prayer are the Words, When ye pray, say; and over the other, The Apostle's Creed, in large Characters. And on Pediments over these, are Moses and Aaron; the first holding a Rod, the second an Incense-Pot.

AND on Acroters upon the Cornice, are seven Golden Candlesticks, with flaming Tapers; and in the Centre is a Book displayed, above which is a Cushion and Mitre, supported by two Cupids. Here is also painted a Crimson-Velvet Festoon Curtain, edged with Gold Fringe.

THE carved Work has curious Enrichments, and the Foot-Pace of the Communion-Table is paved with fine polished Black and White Marble, fenced and adorned with Rail and Baluster; and on the Roof over this, is a very spacious Glory, gilt with Gold, whose Rays dart through the Clouds at a great Distance.

FRONTING Westward, between the Chancel and the Nave of the Church, are the King's Arms painted, within a carved Frame, having Enrichments gilt with Gold.

THE Dimensions of the Church are, Length 114 Feet, Breadth 63, Height 42, and the Altitude of the Steeple (consisting of a Tower and Turret) is 122 Feet, wherein are 10 Bells to ring in Peal.

INTERMENTS.

By the Mischance of firing this Church, Anno 1545, Stow says, the Monuments of the Dead were few; but he had read of the following Persons there buried, viz.

Agnes Arnold, who was first married to William Writhefley Daughter of Richard Warmfeld.

Barbara Hungerford, Daughter of Sir John Writhefley, Wife to Anthony Hungerford, Son of Sir Thomas Hungerford, of Downampney in Glocestershire.

MONUMENTS.

ON an antient Marble Tomb on the North Side of the Chancel is this Inscription:

Johannis Hamberi, Armigeri caro hoc in Tumulo repulverescit, sicut & Janæ charissimæ Conjugis, qui dum vixit, Edwardo sexto, Mariæ & Elizabethæ Angliæ Regibus, in variis calculorum & rationum generibus, tam præstitorum & exterorum, quam Decimarum & Primitiarum, ratiocinator dignissimus extiterat. Obiit Autem Johannes 8 Calend. Aprilis, Anno Salutis a Christo, 1573. Quem Jana Secundo post Mense insequuta est, 16, Scilicet Calend. Junii. Quorum Spiritus ad Cælum reversi reassumptionem Carnis expectant.

ON another fair Marble Tomb close adjoining:

Francisco Barono, nobilissimo Mediolanensi, & Annæ Baptistæ Baroni Uxori, necnon & Filio; Quorum ossa hoc clauduntur Tumulo: Idem Baptistæ Baronus, Francisci Frater, ac Annæ Maritus, in eorum Memoriam hanc posuit Scriptorem. Obiit Franciscus Londinensis, 16 Die Aprilis, Anno Domini, MDXXXIII. Ætatis suæ XXXI. Anna vero & Filius, ultimo Die Octobris, MDXLVI.

ON a small Monument at the South Wall of the Chancel:

Hic jacet Henricus Giffard, Filius tertio-genitus Johannis Giffard, nuper de North Hall, in Comitatu Middleff. Armigeri. Qui cum Corporis Castitatem quadraginta trium Annorum calibatu comprobasset, Animam Sponso suo Jesu Christo piam Sanctamque tradidit, 15 Die Julii, Anno Domini 1602.

THE Body of Mr. John Fox the English Martyrologist lies buried here, and hath a very fair Marble Stone, as a Monument for him set up on End on the South Wall of the Chancel, with this following Inscription:

Christo, S. S.

Johanni Foxo Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ Martyrologo Fidelissimo, Antiquitatis Historica Indagatori sagacissimo, Evangelicæ Veritatis propugnatori acerrimo Thaumaturgo admirabili; qui Martyres Marianos, tanquam Phænices ex Cineribus redivivos præstitit. Patri suo omni Pietatis Officio imprimis colendo, Samuel Foxus, illius primogenitus hoc Monumentum posuit, non sine Lachrimis.

Obiit Die 18 Mensis April, An. Dom. 1587. jam Septuagenarius.

Vita Vitæ mortalis est, Spes Vitæ immortalis.

THIS Inscription is mostly in Mr. Fuller's Church History, who also remarks, That Mr. Fox was so large a Reliever of the Poor in his Life-time, that no wonder he left no Legacies at his Death.

THAT whereas there passeth a Tradition grounded on good Authority, That he foretold the Ruin of the Invincible Armada in 1588; the Story is true in itself, tho' he surviv'd not to see the Performance of his own Prediction.

ON a fair plated Stone on the Ground in the Chancel is this Inscription:

Here lieth the Body of Robert Crowley, Clerk, late Vicar of this Parish, who departed this Life the 18th Day of June, An. Dom. 1588.

ON a Plate engraven on a Stone near to the other.

Roger Mason, of this Parish, Citizen and Vintner of LONDON, gave to the Poore of the Freedome of this Parish, 200 l. wherewith an yeerely Rent of 16 l. or thereabout, is purchased for ever ; to be bestowed on 10 Gownes of blacke Cloth, lined ; to be distributed yeerely upon 10 poore Men of the Freedome of this Parish, upon All Saints Day, at the Discretion of the Vicar and Church-Wardens, for the Time being. He died the 3d Day of September, 1603. Ætates suæ, 37, leaving his Wife Jane, by whom he had three Sons and three Daughters, whereof one only now liveth, named Katharine ; which Jane truly paid the above-mentioned 200 l.

VOL. I.

and joined the Erection of this Monument, set up, An. Domini 1606, May the 8th Day ; John Buckeridge, Doctor of Divinity, being Vicar ; Edward Sickling, Richard May, David Jones, and Roger Webbe, then Church-Wardens.

ON another small Monument in the Wall of the South Isle is the following Inscription :

William Day, Citizen and Vintner of LONDON, the Sonne of Thomas Day, of Boseham in Suffex, Gentleman, and Elizabeth his Wife, gave to the Poore of this Parish 80 l. which was payed by his Brother George Day ; wherewith an yeerely Rent of 6 l. or thereabout, is purchased for ever, to be bestowed on 12 Coats of Greene Cloth, to be distributed yearly upon 12 poore Orphans, upon All Saints Day ; at the Discretion of the Vicar and Church-Wardens for the Time being. He lyeth buried in his Parish Church of St. Michael in Cornhill, and dyed the 22d Day of September, 1603. Ætatis suæ 32. Set up Anno Domini, 1606, May the 8th Day. John Buckeridge, Doctor of Divinity, being Vicar, and the foure remembred Church-Wardens.

ON a very fair Monument on the North Wall :

Here lyeth the Body of Edward Harvist, Citizen and Brewer of LONDON, Alderman's Deputy of this Parish, and one of his Majesty's Gunners ; and Anne his beloved Wife. They were both very charitable Persons, as in giving Lands to this Parish perpetually, for the Reliefe of poore Widdows ; as also, Land to the Company whereof he was Free, for mending of the Highway between Edgworth and Paddington. He gave great Legacies to his poor Kindred ; and departed this Life the 14th Day of March, 1610. She departed this Life the 24th Day of May, Anno Domini, 1610, both expecting a glorious Resurrection in Jesus Christ.

ON a handsome Monument by the other :

A Remembrance of Thomas Busbie, Citizen and Cooper of LONDON, who departed this Life in the Year 1575, and was buried the 11th Day of July.

This Busbie, willing to relieve the poore,
With Fire, and with Bread,

Did give the House wherein he dwelt,
Then called the Queene's Head.

Four full Loads of the best Charcoales

He would have bought each Yeere,
And forty dozen of Wheaten Bread,

For poore Householdiers here.

To see these Things distributed,

This Busbie put in Trust

The Vicar and Church-Wardens,

Thinking them to be just.

God grant that poore Householdiers here,

May thankfull be for such ;

So God will move the Minds of more,

To do for them as much :

And let this good Example move

Such Men as God hath blest,

To doe the like before they goe,

With Busbie to their Rest.

Within this Chappel, Busbie's Bones,

In Dust a while must stay,

'Till he that made them, raise them up,

To live with Christ for aye.

ON

ON an engraven Plate fixed in the Wall :
 A Remembrance of Master Richard Roper, &c.
 If you on Earth that live, did know
 What Rest the Dead possesse,
 You would not wish to wander here,
 In Vale of Wretchednesse.
 Good Helen, Wife to me that was,
 Prepare thyselfe with Speed,
 That Thou and I, with this young Maid,
 A Plant of both our Seed,
 May rest in One, and rise in Three,
 By Power of Godheads Might,
 When we with Angels shall assemble,
 To everlasting Light.

Richard Roper lived 70 Yeeres, and dyed the 28th Day of September, Anno Domini, 1578.

Helen Roper lived 65 Yeeres.

Joan Roper lived the Age of two Yeeres.

Within this Isle lyeth buried the Body of
Charles Langley, some Time of this Parish, Ale-Brewer, who was buried the 8th Day of June, Anno Domini 1602, and did give bountifully to the Poore of this Parish.

ON a handsome Monument in the Wall beneath the Choir :

If Langley's Life you list to know,
 Read on, and take a View,
 Of Faith and Hope I will not speake,
 His Workes shall shew them true :
 Who whilst he liv'd, with Counsell grave,
 The better Sort did guide,
 A Stay to Weake, a Staffe to Poore,
 Without Back-bite or Pride :
 And when he dyed, he gave his Mite,
 All that did him befall,
 For ever (once a Yeere) to cloath
 St. Giles his Poore withall.
 All Saints he pointed for the Day,
 Gownes twenty ready made,
 With twenty Shirts, and twenty Smocks,
 As they may best be had.
 A Sermon eke he hath ordain'd,
 That God may have his Praise,
 And others might be won thereby,
 To follow Langley's Wayes.
 On Vicar and Church-Wardens then,
 His Trust he hath repos'd,
 As they will answer him one Day.
 When all shall be disclos'd.
 Thus being dead, yet still he lives,
 Lives, never for to dye,
 In Heaven's Blisse, in the World's Fame ;
 And so I trust shall I.

Lancelot Andrews, Vicar.

John Taylor,

William Hewet,

Edward Sickling,

Richard May,

} Church-Wardens.

IN the Middle Isle is a very fair Table, with a rich Coat of Arms, hanging on a Pillar, with
 this Inscription :

The sacred Corps of Sarah, Wife of Henry
Goodericke, Daughter of William Bodenham, Knt. was interred at the South End of this Seat, towards the Pulpit.

Buried the 6th of June, Anno 1616.

The Bearer's Sorrow, fable Lions show,
 Like to that Lion which did overthrow
 The Man of God ; and charg'd alike, do stand,
 Grand Guardants here to check the upheav'd Hand,

Unweeting Wights, or ignorant shall lay
 Upon her hallow'd Corps, that here did pray,
 A sacred Temple 'twas wherein did shine
 Her Maker's Glory, human and divine.
 Sweet Commerce, sanctify'd with Zeal, mov'd
 there,
 In Beauty's Fabric, its own proper Sphere,
 For which it tow'rs above the Sight of Eye,
 God's Temples must ly low, that tower so high.

UNDER it are two Hands joined, one out of a Cloud, the other out of a Globe ; these Words ;
 'Till then farewell.

ON a fair Stone in the South Isle :

Here lyeth buried the Body of Ellen Moyns, who dyed the 29th of April, in the Year of our Lord 1632.

Here also lyeth buried the Body of her Sister, Mrs. Frances Moyns, who dyed the 17th of June,
 in the same Year.

They were the Daughters of Sir William
Moyns, of Waldershaw, in the County of Kent, Bart. and of the Lady Jane, his Wife, the Daughter of Roger Twisden, of Royden Hall, in the same County, Esq; They lived religious and vir-tuous Lives, and in their Youths departed this Life in the true Faith of Jesus Christ.

Here lyeth the Body of Matthew Palmer, Esq; who dyed the 18th of May, 1605, together with Anne, his Wife, who dyed the last of June, 1630, by whom he had four Sons and one Daughter, viz. Thomas Palmer, his eldest Son, deceased
 the 5th of May, 1631, and here also buried.
Elizabeth, Edward, Andrew, and Ralph ; who, when it so pleaseth God, desire this Place for the Custody of their Bodies likewise, 'till their assured and glorious Resurrection.

(To which lately is added as follows ;)

This is a very antient Family, and originally of were, Argent, a Raven rising, Proper ; by whom he had Issue the Children above-mentioned.

Edward lies here interred ; as also does Matthew Palmer, Esq; of the Middle-Temple, the Son of that Edward. Andrew Palmer, Esq; (a Person of approved Loyalty) of Hertford, was buried here too ; who, by Elizabeth, Sister to Baldwin
Hamey, M. D. left one Son, Ralph Palmer, Esq; of Little Chelsea, in the County of Mid- dlesex ; who, by Alice White, (of the Family of that Learned Prelate, Dr. Francis White, some Time Lord Bishop of Ely) had Issue Ralph Pal- mer, Esq; of the Middle-Temple, who repaired this Monument of his Ancestors, An. Dom. 1712, having at that Time a Son born, Ralph Palmer,
 by Catharine, sole Issue of Sir John Ernle, Knt.
 (some Time Chancellor of the Exchequer) by his second Lady Elizabeth, Relict of Charles, Lord
Seymour. His youngest Son, Ralph Palmer, died a Bachelor, and lies interred in a Porch of his own erecting, at Bromborn Church, in the County of Hertford.

ABOVE Mr. Fox's, on the South Side of the Choir, is a very ſpacious fine White Marble Monument, adorned with Entablature, a Pediment, the Figure of a young Woman riſing from a Black Coffin, with her Winding-Sheet about her (as an Emblem of the Reſurrection) and two Cherubs; one offering her a Crown, the other a Chaplet, with the following Inſcription, partly on the Side of the Coffin, the reſt under it:

To the Memory

Of Conſtance Whitney, eldeſt Daughter to Sir Rob. Whitney, of Whitney, the proper Poſſeſſion of him and his Anceſtors, in Herefordſhire, for above 500 Yeeres paſt. Her Mother was the fourth Daughter of Sir Tho. Lucy, of Charlecote in Warwickſhire, by Conſtance Kingſmell, Daughter and Heire of Richard Kingſmell, Surveyor of the Court of Wards. This Lady Lucy, her Grandmother, ſo bred her ſince ſhe was eight Yeeres old.

As ſhe excelled in all noble Qualities becoming a Virgin of ſo ſweet Proportion of Beauty, and Harmony of Parts, ſhe had all Sweetneſſe of Manners answerable:

A delightfull Sharpneſſe of Wit;

An offenceleſſe Modeſty of Converſation;

A ſingular Reſpect and Piety to her Parents; but Religious even to Example.

She departed this Life moſt Chriſtianly; at Seventeen, dying the Grief of all, but to her Grandmother an unrecoverable Loſs, ſave in her Expectation, ſhe ſhall not itay long after her, and the Comfort of knowing who ſhe is; and where, in the Reſurrection, to meet her.

HERE is no Date to this Monument, but it is probably very old, and is that, which from the Figure of the Lady riſing out of a Coffin, has occaſioned many fabulous Relations of a Woman buried here, who was afterwards, when the Sexton came to rob her Corpſe of a Ring, taken up alive, and became the Mother of ſeveral Children; beſides it is plain, not only from the Inſcription, but the Arms over it; that ſhe died a ſingle Woman.

THE Arms are: Sable, a Croſs Chequy; Or and Gules, born in a Lozenge.

AT the North Eaſt Angle of the Chancel, is a ſmall white Marble Monument, with this Inſcription:

Here lies Margaret Lucy, the ſecond Daughter of Sir Thomas Lucy of Charlecote, in the County of Warwick, (the Third by immediate Deſcent of the Name of Thomas) by Alice, ſole Daughter and Heir of Thomas Spenſer, of Clarendon, in the ſame County, Eſq; and Cuſtos Brevium of the Court of Common-Pleas at Weſtmiſter; who departed this Life the 18th of November, 1634, and about the 19th Year of her Age.

For Diſcretion and Sweetneſs of Converſation; not many excelled, and for Piety and Patience in her Sickneſs and Death, few equalled her. Which is the Comfort of her neereſt Friends; to every of whom ſhe was dear, but eſpecially to her old Grandmother, the Lady Conſtance Lucy; under whoſe Government ſhe died. Who having long expected, every Day, to have gone before her, doth now truſt by Faith and Hope in the precious Blood of Chriſt Jeſus, ſhortly to follow after; and be made Partaker, together with her and others, of the unſpeakable and eternal Joys in his bleſſed Kingdom. To whom be all Honour, and Laud, and Praise, now and ever, Amen.

ON the ſecond Pillar, North of the Middle Iſle, is a Monument for Mr. Richard Smith, a very learned Antiquarian: Who left a moſt noble Collection of choice Books and MSS. behind him.

Hrs

HIS Wife also hath this Inscription.

Neer this Place lyes interred Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, the Wife of Mr. Richard Smith, some Time Secondary of the Poultry Compter. By whom she had five Sons and three Daughters: whereof two only survived her. Her Life was pious and religious toward God, blameless toward Men, exceeding pitiful and charitable to the Poor and Distressed: Prudent and Provident in the ordering her Family. Having a great Care and tender Affection to her Husband, and to the Instruction of her Children, and Childrens Children, in the Fear of the Lord. She died the 25th of May, 1664. Aged 64.

Here also lye buried two of her Sons, John Smith, the eldest; beloved of all Men for his affable Deportment: Admired for his more than ordinary Gifts of Nature. He dyed (to the great Grief of his Parents and Friends) the 6th of May, 1655, aged 32 Years. And Richard, the younger, by him, in the 17th Year of his Age, the 10th of August 1653. In Commemoration of whom, their tender and loving Mother, willed this Monument to be erected. Which after her Death, was, by her Appointment, at her own pious Cost, (by her Friends) performed.

SOUTH Ile of the Chancel against the Wall.

In Memory of Mary, the Daughter of Robert Compton, of Elvestoe, in the County of Bedford, Esq; the pious, charitable, chaste, and most beloved Wife of Captain John Pery, of this Parish. She was born the 20th of November, 1651, died the 21st of February 1676; she had two Daughters, Margaret and Mary, both here buried in their Infancy. Whose Death she too much lamenting, hastened her own.

Here to the Word of God she did attend:
Hence at the Call of God she shall ascend.
Parents, take heed, whilst ye your Children love,
You do not him forget, who is above, &c.

Neer this Pillar lyes interred the Body of Edmund Harrison, Esq; late of this Parish. Who (having lived about 40 Years a Batchelour) had to Wife Jane, the eldest Daughter of Thomas Godfrey, late of Hodiford, in the County of Kent, Esq; by whom he had Issue twelve Sons and nine Daughters; of which, at the Time of his Death, were only living three Sons, Godfrey, Edmund, and Peter; and two Daughters, Sarah and Jane.

He was Embroiderer to three Kings, viz. King James I., King Charles I., and King Charles II. Left the Troubles of this World, the 9th of January, 1666, in the 77th Year of his Age, in a Christian Assurance of a Resurrection unto Life Eternal. To whose Memory, his eldest Son Godfrey erected this Monument.

Suis & sibi constans. Deo, Regi & Legi fidus obtemperator. Etate Civis & Prudentia vere venerandus: Prole multæ spei numerosa, ut conjugio fœlix, dives rem suis bene partam & liberam reliquit. Patriæ non minus indulgens, quam familiæ. Pater senio fessus & confectus tandem occubuit; ut resectus resurgat.

FLAT Stones for Mary Norwich, 1686. Robert Pearson, 1699. Matthew Tyndal, 1676. Sarah Stevens, 1698, and seven Sons; and Joseph Stevens her Husband, 1698, a Minister of the Gospel.

ON a spacious Marble Tomb-stone on the South Side, and near the East End of the Church in the Cemetery.

Here lyes interred the Body of John Wythens, Gent. of an antient Family in Kent, who was buried the 2d of October 1693. And Elizabeth his well-beloved Wife, who was buried July 6, 1701. They lived very happily together in this Parish 40 Years, having had nine Children.

Also the Body of Tho. Wythens, their Son.

Also of William Rowe, Son of George Rowe.

Within this Tomb's enclos'd the sacred Dust
Of them, whose Souls now placed among the Just;
Beloved by all while in this World they stay'd,
Lamented more when in the Grave were laid.
But now they're gone into those Joys above,
To their Redeemer, and their God of Love.

ON a Stone in the Wall of the Vestry fronting Southward, this Inscription:

ON the well-disposed of Women, Jone Wilson, Wife of Dr. John Wilson, who left his Life, to those that loved it, the 16th of July 1624. She had Issue by him five Sons and four Daughters.

Reader, Do not with hasty Folly
Presume to tread, this Ground is holy;
Here underneath lies one so pure,
Rome's Faction could not her allure;
On her Redeemer's only Merit
She did rely by him t'inherit.
Long Sickness did her Body pine;
At last drawn up, where she doth shine
With her four little Saints, where now they sing
Eternal Anthems unto Heaven's high King.

UNDER a Grave-stone at the South Side of the Chancel, lies William Whitfield, D. D. Vicar of this Parish, died the 10th of March 1716.

WE must here acquaint our Readers, that in the Chancel of this Church lies interred the Body of that Prince of our English Poets, Mr. John Milton; but, as the Author of his Life says, neither has, nor wants a Monument to perpetuate his Memory. He died of the Gout, A. D. 1674, in the 67th Year of his Age. Mr. Dryden has wrote the best Epitaph upon him.

Three Poets in three distant Ages born,
Greece, Italy, and England, did adorn;
The First in Loftiness of Thought surpass'd;
The Next, in Majesty; in both the Last.
The Force of Nature could no farther go;
To make a Third, she join'd the former Two.

NUMBER of Houses, 1800.

THIS Parish was much larger, but hath lately had another taken out of it, call'd St. Luke, in Middlesex, of which we shall speak in another Place.

THERE was in Cripplegate Church, of old Time, a Fraternity or Brotherhood of our blessed Lady, or Corpus Christi, and St. Giles; founded by John Bellancer, in the Reign of King Edward III, the 35th Year of his Reign.

SOME small Distance from the East End of this Church was a Water-Conduit, brought in Pipes of Lead from Highbury, by John Middleton, one of the Executors to Sir William Eastfield. The Inhabitants adjoining castellated it at their own Costs and Charges, about the Year 1483.

AT a Common-Council afterwards held, it was agreed, That the Chamberlain should, at the Costs of the Chamber, cause the common Well and Spring at St. Giles's, to be cover'd with a House of Brick.

THERE was also a Bos of clear Water, in the Wall of the Church-Yard, made at the Charges of Richard Whittington, sometimes Mayor, and was like to that of Billinggate. The same was afterwards turned into a Pump, and so quite decayed.

THERE was also a Pool of clear Water, near the Parsonage on the West Side thereof; which was filled up in the Reign of Henry VI. The Spring was cooped in, and arched over with hard Stone; and Stairs of Stone to go down to the Spring, on the Bank of the Town-Ditch. And this was also done of the Goods, and by the Executors of Richard Whittington.

IN Whitecross-street, King Henry V. built one fair House; and founded there a Brotherhood of St. Giles, to be kept. Which House had some Time been an Hospital of the French Order, by the Name of St. Giles without Cripplegate, in the Reign of Edward I. The King having the Jurisdiction, and appointing a Custos thereof, for the Precinct of St. Giles, &c. Which Hospital being suppressed, the Lands were given to the Brotherhood, for Relief of the Poor.

IN this Street was a White Cross, and near it was built an Arch of Stone, under which ran a Course of Water down to the Moor, called now Moorfields. Which being too narrow for the free Course of the Water, and so an Annoyance to the Inhabitants, the 12 Men presented it at an Inquisition of the King's Justices, 3 Edw. I. And they presented the Abbot of Ramsay, and the Prior of St. Trinity; whose Predecessors, six Years past, had built (as the Inquisition ran) a certain Stone Arch at White Cross, in the Ward of Cripplegate; beyond the Course of a certain Water coming down from Smethfield del Barbican, in that Ward, towards the Moor. Which Arch the aforesaid Abbot and Prior, and their Successors, ought to maintain and repair: And which was so strait, that the Water there could not have its full Course, to the Annoyance of the Inhabitants. Hereupon it was commanded the Sheriffs, to distrain the said Abbot and Convent to mend the said Arch.

ONE Alley, of divers Tenements, over-against the North Wall of St. Giles's Church-Yard, was appointed to be Alms-Houses for the Poor, wherein they dwelt Rent-Free, and otherwise were relieved: But the said Brotherhood was suppressed by Henry VIII. Since which Time, Sir John Gresham, Mayor, purchased the Lands thereof, and gave it to the Maintenance of a Free-School; which he had founded at Holt, a Market-Town in Norfolk.

IN Redcross-street, on the West Side from St. Giles's Church-Yard, up to the Cross, were many good Houses, built outward, with divers Alleys, turning into a large Plat of Ground, of old Time called the Jews Garden; as being the only Place appointed them in England, wherein to bury their Dead; 'till the Year 1177, the 24th of Henry II. that it was permitted them (after long Suit to the King and Parliament at Oxford) to have special Place assigned them in every Quarter where they dwelt.

Tenementum & Terras, situat. in Parochia Sti. Botbi. extra Aldrichgate, int. Tenement. nuper Ricci. Odikam ex parte Australi, ac Gardinum vocat. Jewyn Garden ex parte orien.

THE Plat Ground remained to the said Jews, 'till the Time of their final Banishment out of England, and was afterwards turned into fair Garden Plats, and Summer Houses for Pleasure.

IT is now called Jewen-street, being a continued Street of Houses on each Side of the Way, and leads into Aldersgate-street. This Place, with the Appurtenances, was antiently called Leyrestowe; which King Edw. I. granted to William de Monte Forte, Dean of St. Paul's, LONDON. Being a Place (as it is expressed in a Record) without Cripplegate, and the Suburbs of LONDON, called Leyrestowe: And which was the burying Place of the Jews of LONDON; which was valued at 40 s. per Annum.

ON the East Side of this Redcross-street is Beech-lane, perhaps so called of Nicholas de la Beech, Lieutenant of the Tower of LONDON, put out of that Office in the 13th of Edward III. This Lane stretches from Redcross-street to Whitecross-street, and is replenished, not with Beech Trees, but with ordinary Houses of Brick and Timber; amongst which was (of old Time) a great House, belonging to the Abbot of Ramsay, for his Lodging, when he repaired to the City.

ON the North Side of this Beech-lane, towards Whitecross-street, the Drapers of LONDON built eight Alms-Houses of Brick and Timber, for eight poor Widows of their own Company, whom they placed there Rent-Free, according to the Gift of the Lady Askew, Widow to Sir Christopher Askew, some Time Draper, and Mayor, 1533.

THEN in Golden-lane, Richard Gallard, of Islington, Esq; Citizen and Painter-Stainer of LONDON, founded 13 Alms-Houses for so many poor People placed in them Rent-Free. He gave to the Poor of the same Alms-Houses, 2 d. a-piece, weekly; and a Load of Charcoal amongst them, yearly, for ever. He left Lands about Islington, to maintain his Foundation.

ON the West Side of Redcross-street, is a Street called Barbican; because, some Time, there stood on the North Side thereof a Burghkenning, or Watch Tower of the City; called in some Language, a Barbican, as a Bikening is called a Beacon. This Burghkenning, by the Name of the Manor of Base-court, was given by Edward III. to Robert Ufford, Earl of Suffolk; and was after that pertaining to Peregrine Bertie, Lord Willoughby of Eresby.

THIS Barbican, and some Land about it, belonged to the Crown, in Edward I's Time. For in an Inquisition made 3 Edward I., concerning Purprestures in the City, one Thomas Juvenal, about 12 Years before, appropriated to himself of the King's Soil, without Le Barbeken, a certain Place, containing 40 Feet in Length, and four Feet in Breadth, and inclosed the same Place with an Earth Wall: And Nicholas Brabanzoun then held it. Upon this Presentment made by the Jurats, the King's Justices commanded the Sheriffs of LONDON to summon him the said Nicholas; who said, That he had nothing to do with, nor laid any Claim to the said Purpresture; but that he was Tenant to Thomas Fitz Simon de Burgh. He, the said Thomas, came and prayed, that he might rent the same of the King, for 3 d. per Ann. which was granted, because the 12 sworn Men witnessed, that the said Inclosure was no Annoyance. And it was adjudged, that the King might recover the Arrearages of the said Purpresture, viz. 3 s. but no Forfeiture, because it was of the said Thomas's doing.

NEXT adjoining to this, was another great House, called Garter-House, or Place. Some Time built by Sir Thomas Writhe, or Writheles, Knt. alias Garter, Principal King of Arms, second Son of Sir John Writhe, Knt. alias Garter, and was Uncle to the first Thomas, Earl of Southampton, Knight of the Garter, and Chancellor of England. He built this House, and in the Top thereof, a Chapel, which he dedicated by the Name of St. Trinitatis in Alto.

THUS much for that Part of Cripplegate Ward without the Wall, whereof more hereafter.

NOW we proceed to give an Account of the present State of this Ward.

THE Part of this Ward within the Wall, by which it is severed from that without, contains several Streets and Lanes, some in Whole, others in Part, viz. Milk-street, on both Sides, and the greater Part of Honey-lane Market; Cateaton-street, so far as to St. Laurence's Church, Lad-lane, Aldermanbury, Love-lane, Addle-street, London-wall-street, from Little Wood-street to beyond the Postern; Philip-lane, Great Wood-street; all about 70 Feet on the West Side, towards Cheapside; Little Wood-street, Hart-street, the South Side thereof; Monkswell-street the East Side, Fell-street, Silver-street; Maiden-lane, the East Part thereof; Hugen-lane, Goldsmiths-street, the Whole, except 25 Feet on the West Side; Gutter-lane, the West Side from Maiden-lane, to over-against the End of Carey-street, on the East Side of the Way only; and Cheapside, on the North Side, 170 Feet from the Corner of Wood-street, Eastward. In all which said Places are several Courts and Places of Note.

LIKEWISE the Places in this Ward, without the Wall, are Fore-street, and the Postern leading to Moorfields, Back-street in the Little Moorfields, Moor-lane, Grub-street, the South Part to the Posts and Chain; Whitcross-street, the South Side, so far as the Posts and Chain; Redcross-street, about 450 Feet on both Sides; Beech-lane, Golden-lane, the South Part to the Post and Chain; Barbican, the East Part thereof, on both Sides, for about 450 Feet from the Corner of Golden-lane; Fewen-street, the East Part thereof, and on both Sides to Redcross-street, for about 450 Feet, Brackley-street, Bridgewater-street, and Letton-street; all of them built in the Place where Bridgewater House stood before, let to be thus built into Tenements.

AND of these Places in Order; and first, for those within the Wall:

Milk-street comes out of Cheapside, and falls into Lad-lane; this Street is well built and inhabited by Wholesale Traders; and that Part that lies open to Honey-lane Market is the best.

Here in this Street, towards Cheapside, stood the Parish Church of St. Magdalen's, Milk-street. It was destroyed in the dreadful Fire of LONDON, and not rebuilt; but the Parish is united to St. Laurence Jewry, and the Ground converted into the Market.

THE Courts and Alleys in this Street are, Castle-tavern-court, so called from the Castle Tavern therein seated. It hath a narrow Passage into Wood-street. Feathers-court, long and open, with a Free-Stone Pavement. Robin-hood-alley, has a Passage into Honey-lane Market. Crown-court, but small. Mumford's-court, a large Place, well built, with a Free-Stone Pavement. About the Middle is a Passage into Castle-court, or Alley; which is likewise long, falling into St. Laurence-lane, and well inhabited. Clement-court, a handsome open Place, with good Houses, and has a Passage up Steps into Fryars-court, which leads into Wood-street.

Cateaton-street, has but a small Part in this Ward, viz. from the Corner of Aldermanbury to St. Laurence Jewry Church; the rest is in Cheap Ward, and is a Street of good Trade.

Lad-lane lies betwixt Wood-street in the West, and Milk-street and Aldermanbury in the East. It is likewise a Street of good Trade, and well inhabited. Here is the Swan Inn with two

Necks; which is large, and of a considerable Trade for Northern Carriers. More towards Wood-street, are two small Courts, or Alleys, but without Name.

Aldermanbury, an handsome Street, graced with good Buildings, which are well inhabited by Merchants Wholesale Dealers, &c.

IN this Street are these Courts, viz. Fountain-court, on the East Side, a large square Place, well inhabited and built; has a Passage into St. Laurence Church-alley, which leads into Cateaton-street; as also to Guildhall-court, or Yard. This Court was built out of a large House, formerly the Seat of Sir Erasmus de la Fontaine, Knt. deceased.

Dyer's-court, large, and well inhabited by Persons of Repute, having an open Entrance for Coach or Cart. Carpenter's-court, a handsome Place, with a Free-Stone Pavement, well inhabited.

St. Mary Aldermanbury Church, a large Building, with a good Front; adjoining to which is a neat Church-Yard, adorned with Trees, within Side of the Wall, and a handsome Pair of Iron-Grates; on the Top of which is a small Image of the Blessed Virgin, gilt with Gold.

NEAR unto this Church, on the South Side, is a handsome Conduit, built Tower-wise; and on the North Side is Hadley's-court, but small, with a Free-Stone Pavement. Church-alley has a Passage into Basinghall-street, by the Church. Axe Inn has a good Trade. George Inn is large, chiefly for Stabling and Coaches. Miller's-court, indifferent large, but with a narrow Passage.

Love-lane comes out of Aldermanbury, and falls into Wood-street, by St. Alban's Wood-street Church, where it divides, and one Part incompasses the Church, except the Front in Wood-street. In this Lane is Berry-court, which is handsome, and well built.

Addle-street, which also lies betwixt Aldermanbury and Wood-street, is yet much inhabited by Joiners, for the making of Bed-steds, Chests of Drawers, Scrutores, Tables, and such like Joinery Wares. Here is the Plasterers Hall, a handsome Building. Not far from this Hall, and on the same Side of the Way, is Brewers Hall, which is a large and handsome Building, with a graceful Entrance into a large Court; the Pavement of Free-Stone, cloistered, and the Building over it sustained by handsome Pillars.

London-wall is a long Street, coming out of Little Wood-street, by Cripplegate, and runs Eastward as far as Winchester-street, but goes no further in this Ward, than the Checquer Inn, which is a little beyond Coleman-street. This Street is but of little Trade, and chiefly for Curriers, and the Buildings old and ordinary; the North Side having only the City Wall, which gives a Passage into Moorfields, and the Parts adjacent by Moorgate, and two Posterns, on each Side of the Gate one. The Places of Name in that Part of this Street within this Ward, are Checquer Inn, Fox and Goose Inn, Catharine Wheel Inn; all three of small Account, only for Stablings.

St. Alphage Church, very old, seated over-against London-wall, and in the Street, at the upper End of Aldermanbury, called Giltspur-street. This Church was not burnt in the late Fire of LONDON.

NEAR to this Church, somewhat more Westward over-against London-wall, is seated Sion College, a handsome Building, erected for the Clergy of this City and Liberties, where there is a considerable Library of excellent Books for their Use, and a long Library Room to keep them in, one Story high. Having underneath it 20 Rooms or Chambers, for so many poor People; of which, ten within the College are for so many Men; and ten without, which have their Doors in Philip-lane, for so many poor Women. But of this College, Notice hath been taken already.

MORE Westward of this College, is Philip-lane, which goes from London-wall, and falls into Addle-street, a Place indifferently built and inhabited. In this Place is Sion-court, indifferent large, with a Free-stone Pavement; Burge-court hath a Passage into Wood-street; the middle Part is open, with a Free-stone Pavement. Cook's-court, but small, also with a Free-stone Pavement. Hand-alley, small and narrow. Carriers-court, seated in London-wall-street, Westwards of Sion-College, a Place but ordinary. At the upper end of which, is Carriers-Hall, an indifferent good Building, with a handsome Entrance to it, with Free-stone.

Hart-street, adjoining to Cripplegate, falls into Monks-well-street, a Place but of mean Account. The North Side of this Street, as also the West Side of Monks-well-street, belongs to Farringdon Ward within. On the North Side of Hart-street, are the City Alms-houses, for six poor Women. On the South Side is Bowyers-court, which is but small; and here was, formerly, Bowyers-Hall.

Monks-well, or Mugwell-street, is a Place of no Trade, but indifferently well built, and inhabited by private House-keepers. The Courts and Places of Name, are Lamb's-chapel-court, somewhat large, and Lamb's-alley, narrow and ordinary; Gilbert's-court, small and mean; Dobin's-court, but ordinary; Windsor-court, the same; Winchester-court, a large open Place, well built.

Lamb's-chapel. - Lamb's-chapel, at the North West Corner of Monks-well-street, is so call'd being founded by one Lamb a Clothworker.

IN this Chapel, the Worshipful Company of Clothworkers have four Sermons preached to them, upon four principal Festivals in the Year, viz. upon the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, March 25. on the Feast of St. John Baptist, June 24; on the Feast of St. Michael the Archangel, September 29; and on the Feast of St. Thomas the Apostle, Decemb. 21. Upon which Days, the Master, Wardens, and Livery of the Company, meet at some convenient Place, near unto the Chapel, whence they go in their Gowns and Hoods to the Chapel, and hear the Sermon: After which, they relieve twelve poor Men, and as many Women, with 12 d. a-piece in Money; and once a Year, viz. at Michaelmas, to each of them a Frieze Gown, a Lockram Shift, and a good Pair of Winter Shoes, fit for their wearing.

THIS Chapel is now commonly called Lamb's-Chapel, and the Inhabitants of the Tenements belonging to the said Chapel, till the Year 1660, stood in Competition with the Parishioners of the Parish of St. Olave's Silver-street, who would have had those Inhabitants to have been of their Parish, which indeed they are, as may appear by this following Deed.

A very antient DEED to prove Lamb's-chapel to have antiently been in the Parish of St. Olave Silver-street.

KNOW all Men present and to come, That I Laurence de Frowick, have granted and demised, and by this present Charter of mine, have confirmed unto Richard of Clarkenwell, Chaplain, all that Land of mine, with the Houses, Buildings, and Appurtenances, which I have in London, in Monks-well-street, in the Parish of St. Olave's, lying between that Land which William Throtegos held of me, towards the South, and the Land of the Fryars of the New Hostell, towards the North, and which extendeth itself in Length from the King's Highway, even unto the Wall of the City, towards the West, &c. he paying me twenty Shillings a Year, &c. and giving unto the Church of St. Olave's, aforesaid, one Wax Candle, of a Pound Weight, at the Feast of St. Thomas the Apostle, yearly. And unto the Chapel (de inclusorio) in the Close or Cloister within Cripplegate, at the upper End of Muckwell-street, towards the North, one other Wax Taper, of three Quarters Weight; upon the Feast of St. James, yearly, &c.

Witness, Nicholas Bat, then Mayor of London.

John of Northampton; and Richard Pycard, then Sheriffs, &c. Anno 1253.

NOTES upon this Deed.

Out of this so antient a Deed, may we observe,

I. THAT by the bounding of the Land, between the Street and the City Wall, towards the West, that this is the Ground which is now Lamb's-chapel-yard.

II. BY the assigning the latter Candle to be paid to the Chapel on St. James's Day, that it was meant to this Lamb's-chapel, which was antiently call'd, The Chapel of St. James in the Wall; upon whose Festival this Chapel seems to have been dedicated. And, to honour the Solemnity of which, Frowick, the Gentleman, directed this Candle to be yearly paid:

THE Original of this Deed in Latin, was in the Hands of that most learned Antiquary Sir Henry Spelman, Kt.

UPON the 8th of July, 1625. I Arthur Jackson, Rector of St. Michael Hogen-lane Wood-street, was chosen by the Worshipful Company of Clothworkers, to be Minister of this Church or Chapel of St. James in the Wall, commonly call'd Lamb's-chapel. This J. Bagford transcribed out of the Register-Book of the Parish-Church or Chapel of St. James in the Wall, with this that follows:

MARRIAGES.

August 18, 1586, (being the first Register). Nicholas Bestney, of Gray's-Inn in Holbourn, in the County of Middlesex, Esq; and Bridget Mitchel, sole Daughter and Heir of John Mitchel, of Warham, in the County of Sussex.

THE 28th of July, 1608, Henry Hudson, of the Inner Temple, London, Gent. and Sibyll Bestney, &c.

THUS far these Marriages were taken out of several Paper Registers, by me Arthur Jackson. And then from this Mr. Jackson's Register-Book, were enter'd the Marriages in that Chapel celebrated, unto the Year 1632, and no further.

BURIALS enter'd in the same Register.

1592. Eleanor Bestney, Daughter of Nicholas Bestney, and Bridget his Wife.

1604. May 29, Catharine Bestney, Daughter of Nicholas Bestney, Esq; and Bridget his Wife; Aug. 29, Ursula Bestney, Daughter of the said Nicholas and Bridget, &c.

1632. March 22, Mrs. Bridget Bestney; Widow, late Wife of Nicholas Bestney, Esq;

THE next is Fell-street, seated betwixt Monks-well-street and Little Wood-street, a Place of no great great Account, and but narrow. Here is Fell-court, square and well built, but hath a narrow Passage into it; Black-horse and Hare-Inn, only for Stabling

Silver-street goes from Little Wood-street unto Noble-street, a handsome broad Street, with well built Houses, supposed to be so called from the Silversmiths, then there dwelling; which are now removed into Foster-lane, and other Places.

IN this Street are these Places; Winton-court, handsome, with a Free-stone Pavement; Red-lyon-court, indifferent good and large; over-against which, is a large Presbyterian Meeting-House, being a very good Building, in a Yard.

Westmoreland-court, an open large Place, but ordinarily built; and fronts Noble-street.

Wood-street, of which there is the Great and the Little; Great Wood-street beginning on the South, at Cheapside, and falling into Little Wood-street, runs up to Cripplegate. Both Streets in this Ward, except a small Part next to Cheapside, as already taken Notice of. Great Wood-street is a Street well built and inhabited, and was formerly noted for good Cakes there made, which were wont to be bought here for Weddings, Christenings, and Twelfth-Nights; tho' now there is but one Pastry-Cook's Shop left in the whole Street.

ON the East Side of Great Wood-street, is one of the Prisons belonging to the Sheriffs, and called Wood-street-compter.

THE Officers of this Compter at present are:

Francis Cooper, Esq; Secondary.

Mr. Myers, and Mr. Dann, Prothonotaries of both Compters.

Clerk of the Papers.

Mr. William Brotherton.

Four Clerks Sitters.

Mr. George Grew.

Mr. Edm. Newton.

Mr. Thomas Shephard.

Mr. Calvert.

Keeper.

Mr. Thomas Rigby.

NEAR Wood-street Compter is Lad-lane, which falleth into Cateaton-street, betwixt Aldermanbury, on the North Side, and Milk-street on the South.

IN Wood-street, are a great many Courts, Alleys, and Places of Name. We shall begin with that Part next Cheapside.

Cross-keys-Inn, large, and of a good Trade. Goldsmiths-street, handsome, and falls into Foster-lane; hath some Part in the Ward of Farringdon Within, where it is mentioned. Paul's Alley, good, with a Free-stone Pavement.

Fryras-alley, or court, but ordinary, hath a Passage into Clement's-court, which leads into Milk-street. Shovel-alley, good, with a Free-stone Pavement.

St. Michael Wood-street Church, seated at the Corner of Huggen-lane, against Lad-lane, a handsome Free-stone Building, since its being burnt in the Fire of LONDON, and built again. To which Church, is now united the Parish of St. Mary Staining, having lost its Church by that Fire.

Huggen-lane; this Lane comes out of Wood-street, by the South Side of St. Michael's Church, where it is broad, well built, and inhabited. But further, where it runneth into Gutter-lane, thro' the Encroachments of Buildings, it becomes very narrow, and but ordinary.

OTHER Courts and Places in Wood-street; Castle-Inn, very large, and of a great Resort and Trade. Coach-and-horses-Inn, or Yard, large, but taken up for Livery-Stables and Coaches. Maidenhead-court, a handsome square open Place, with good Buildings, having a wide Entrance for Cart or Coach, with a Gate to shut up at Nights. Nigh to this Court, is a large Yard for Livery-Horses. Paved-alley, long and ordinary, runs up into Staining-street, by the Church-yard Wall of Staining Church; and thence into Lilly-pot-lane, which leads into Noble-street.

ON the East Side of the Street, is St. Alban's Wood-street Church, fronting the Street; but all the Body of it is in Love-lane, which encompasses the other three Sides; and on the North Side is the Church-yard. It was burnt in the Fire of LONDON, and now rebuilt very handsome of Free-stone, and a very graceful Entrance to it.

TO this Church, is now united the Parish of St. Olave's Silver-street, burnt, but not rebuilt.

Frying-pan-alley, but indifferent, and hath a turning Passage into Paved-alley. Bell-Inn, large, and well resorted to. Clerks-hall, a tolerable good Building. Livery-stable-yard, a handsome Place, well built, but small for that Use. Bird's, or Burges-court, indifferent good, the Middle being more open, with a Free-stone Pavement, and hath a Passage into Philip-lane.

IN Little Wood-street, in an Alley, are seven Rooms, for so many poor People to live Rent-free; the Gift of Henry Barton, Skinner, and Mayor, 1516.

Maiden-lane, a Street well inhabited and built, it comes out of Woodstreet, and falls into Foster-lane; but the Part in this Ward, goeth but to Staining-lane. Here is Haberdashers-Hall, a large and well-built House, with a good Court before the Hall, and a Free-stone Pavement. In this Hall the present Lord Mayor, Sir William Billers, keeps his Mayoralty.

Flying-horse-court, which is but ordinary, is in this Street; and Mutton-court, likewise narrow and mean.

Gutter-lane hath some Part in this Ward.

Cripplegate Ward without the Wall.

THIS is a large Tract of Ground, containing several Streets, and all crowded with Courts and Alleys; the Chief are Fore-street, the Postern-street, Back-street in Little Moorfields, Moor-lane, Grub-street, White-cross-street, Red-cross-street, Beech-lane, Golden-lane, Barbican, and Jewen-street; of these in Order.

Fore-street, broad, and well inhabited, runs from the North End of St. Giles's Cripplegate Church to Moor-lane, Eastward, and then falls into Postern-street, which leads to Little Moorfields, against New Bethlem; and about the Middle of this Street is a Passage through Cripplegate, in which is a short Street well built and inhabited, where is White Horse Inn, good.

IN this Street are a great many Courts and Alleys, which shall be taken Notice of, beginning next to St. Giles's Church.

St. Giles's Cripplegate Church, seated opposite to Redcross-street, and in Fore-street. The Church is large, as indeed it ought to be, belonging to so large and populous a Parish; with a spacious Church-Yard adjoining to it. It has a handsome Towered Steeple, with Spires at each Corner, and a Lanthorn in the Middle, with a good Ring of Bells.

IN the Church-Yard is a very handsome Parsonage-House, which was first built at the Charge of the Parish, for Dr. Fowler, Bishop of Glocester, then Vicar.

SOME small Distance from this Church, Eastward, and opposite to Cripplegate, was a Water Conduit.

Wood-street
Compter.

Little Cock-alley, ordinary. Great Cock-alley, or Yard, a large Place, indifferent Building, and has a Passage into Whitcrosse-street. Grasshopper-alley, long, narrow, and ordinary. White Hart Inn, good, chiefly for Livery Stables. Adjoining to this Inn is the Crown Tavern, of good Resort and Trade. Three Dagger-court, both ordinary and meanly inhabited. Black-horse-alley, long, but mean. Unicorn-alley, long and ordinary. Betwixt this and Black-horse-alley, is an ordinary Court, only for the Parish Alms-People. Red-hart-court, handsome, with new built Houses, and a Free-Stone Pavement; well inhabited. Day's-court, indifferent good: Opposite to this Court, are two long Carpenters, or Timber-Yards. Founder's-court, but ordinary. Red-bull-court, good. Aldermanbury-postern, a handsome short Street, well built and inhabited, has a Passage through London-wall, over-against Aldermanbury, and therefore so called.

THE Postern-street begins at the Corner of Moor-lane, and runs into Little Moorfields; a Place well built and inhabited, and of some Trade. Maul's-court, a handsome neat Place, with Garden-Plats before the Houses. The Postern, a well built and inhabited Street, has a Passage into London-wall-street. Here is Lorimers Hall. Lorimers-hall, a neat Building, adjoining to London-wall. This Hall is let to the Glasiers, and for a Meeting-House.

THE Green-yard, which is large, and made Use of by the City as a Pound, for such Cars and Coaches, whose Drivers commit any Offence in the Streets, contrary to Rules or Orders to be observed by them. Cradle-court, indifferent good, nigh to which is a Carpenter's Yard. Moor-court, small and ordinary.

Little Moorfields, or the Back-street, now so called, to distinguish it from the new double Row of Houses, now finished, which is called the Fore-street; which said new Row of Buildings is in Coleman-street Ward, are good, and well inhabited. Out of this Back-street, are several Courts and Alleys, viz. Crown-court, long, and indifferent. Hind-alley, likewise long and good. Half-moon-alley, long and narrow, and but indifferently built and inhabited, as are most of these Alleys. At the Upper-end it divides itself into two Parts, one of which falls into Vine-court, and the other into Angel-alley, and thence into Moor-lane. Angel-alley is long and good, and at the upper End falls into Moor-lane, and has a Passage into Half-moon-alley. Hartshorn-alley, likewise long and mean, runs into Moor-lane. Butler's-alley, long and narrow, but indifferent, also falls into Moor-lane, where it is broadest. And about the upper End, on the South Side, is Oystershell-court, which is good. Gun-alley, narrow but well built, at the upper End falls into Sugar-loaf-court, and so into Moor-lane. White's-alley, a handsome open Place, well built; some of the Houses having Gardens to them. Rope-makers-court, broad, with several Garden Houses, which are well built and inhabited. This Alley falls into Butler's-alley, which, with several Turnings, falls into Grub-street.

Moor-lane, for the Generality, but meanly built and inhabited, especially the upper End, which is narrow, and leads into a Place called Back-alley, mean; having a Passage upon Suffrance into Ropemakers-alley; likewise another Passage into Butler's-alley, and so into Grub-street. Rams-head-court, but ordinary, taken up by Carmen, for Stabling for their Horses. Sugar-loaf-court, long and ordinary, has a Passage into Gun-alley, and so into Little Moorfields. Seven-star-court, mean. Sugar-loaf-alley, small and ordinary. Butler's-alley leads into Moor-fields, already treated of. Car-yard, a large

Place for Stabling. Cock-alley, small and mean. Vine-court, and Maidenhead-court, both which are lately built, with good Houses, having each a Passage into Little Moorfields, through Half-moon-alley.

Grub-street, long, coming out of Fore-street, and running Northward into Chiswel-street, but some small Part, viz. from Sun-alley to Chiswel-street, is not in the Ward, but in the Liberty of Finsbury. This Street, taking in the Whole, is but indifferent, as to its Houses and Inhabitants, and sufficiently pestered with Courts and Alleys, the Names of which are as follow:

Lund's-alley, long and ordinary, falls into Moor-lane. Honeysuckle-court, good, with new built Houses. Flower-de-lis-court, small and ordinary. Little Bell-alley, but mean. Flying-horse-court, long, but ordinarily built. George Inn, for Livery Horses. Nag's-head Inn, lately rebuilt, and fitted up handsome, with good Stables, both for Livery Horses, and a Horse-Courser; being built out of a Place called Soldiers-court, which was before old and decayed.

OVER-AGAINST the Pump is a Court without a Name. Oakley-court, large and open, the greatest Part, at present, unbuilt, and lying West. Butler's-alley, narrow and ordinary, giving a Passage into Moor-lane, where it is broad. Cross-keys-court, indifferent large, and old built, leads into Half-moon-alley, and so into Whitcrosse-street. Maidenhead-court, handsome, and indifferent well built and inhabited. Great Bell-alley, small, but indifferent good.

Haberdashers-square, genteel, with new well built Houses; the Court is square, and inclosed in with Pallisade Pales, except a handsome Passage to the Houses round about, and in the Middle a Dial. This Court was made out of two old ones, viz. Paviors-court and Robin Hood-court. Sun-alley, but small.

Whitcrosse-street, a Place well built and inhabited; it begins in Fore-street, and runs Northward into Old-street, which is of a great Length. But the Part within the Ward goes but a little beyond Beech-lane, where the City Posts are set up, as they are in Grub-street, and in Golden-lane, being the Circuits of the Freedom.

IN this Street are these Courts and Alleys, viz. Cross-keys Inn, large, and of an indifferent Trade, with some private Houses in it. Cock-alley leads into Redcrosse-street, as also into Fore-street; where it is mentioned under the Name of Great Cock-alley. Three Leg-court, or Yard, being long and open, with good Houses. King's Arms-yard, large, with ordinary old Buildings, chiefly for Carmen. Peacock-brewhouse, a handsome convenient Building, and of a considerable Trade. King's-head-court, well built, with a Free Stone Pavement. Cross-keys-court, large, and falls into Grub-street, where it is spoken of. Half-moon-alley, but ordinary, falls into Cross-keys-court, and thence into Grub-street, by a Passage newly made by the Consent of the Landlords. This Alley also falls into Horsehoe-alley, which is very mean. Bowling-alley, an open Place, containing some Courts within it; as George-yard, &c. which is but mean; and this Alley, by a Passage, falls into Cradle-court, seated in Red-crosse-street. Anabaptist-court, long, but ordinary. Castle-Court, a pretty Yard, but small. Red Rose-court, small and ordinary. Fern's-yard, a Place only for refining of Lead.

Beech-lane, comes out of White-crosse-street, and falls into Redcrosse-street, over-against Barbican; a Place of slender Account, as to Trade or Resort, and but indifferent as to its Inhabitants.

Ship-yard, but ordinary, having a long Passage into a small Court. Glovers-hall-court, a large Place. King's-head-court, large, and well built, hath hath a Passage into Red-lion-court, lying in the Manor of Finsbury.

Golden-lane, of no great Account, either for Buildings or Inhabitants. It comes out of Red-crofs-street, and runs up into Old-street; but the Part in this Ward, goeth no further than Angel-alley, which is by the City Posts.

THE Courts and Alleys in this Lane, are Jacob's Well-alley, very mean. Cock's-head-court, large, and well built; hath a Door and Passage, by Sufferance, into the Red-crofs Alehouse in Barbican. Black-raven-court, handsome, but small. Crown-court an open Place. Sun-court, long and in some Places broad; it runs in Red-lion-market, which is in the Lordship. Near to this Place is the Sun Brewhouse; as also Three Arrows Brew-house, both of good Trade. Dixon's-Rents, small and ordinary. Vine-court, indifferent.

Litton-street, being made out of Bridgewater House and Garden; which said Street runs into Brackley-street, and thence into Bridgewater-street; all built out of Bridgewater House and Ground. Bell-alley, very ordinary.

Barbican, a broad Street, well inhabited by Tradesmen, especially Salesmen for Apparel both new and old; it comes out of Aldersgate-street, against Long-lane, and falls into Red-crofs-street, but the Part in this Ward, goeth but to the City Posts. And fronting Red-crofs-street, is the Watch-house, where formerly stood a Watch-Tower, called Burghkenning, i. e. Barbican, for the Security of the City in those Parts.

IN this Street are these Places of Name; Garter-court, large, containing two Courts, and both so called, which are good. Bridgewater-square, an open Place, with good Buildings, well inhabited. The Middle is neatly inclosed with Palisado Pales, and set round with Trees, which renders the Place very delightful. At the North West Corner is a Passage into Bridgewater-street, and in the South East Corner of the Square, is another Passage into Charles-street; and from thence into Brackley-street; out of which Place, is a Passage through Litton-street into Golden-lane. And on the East Side of Charles-street is a short Street, which has the Name of Silver-street; being a Place of no great Account; and where this Square is, stood the House of the Earl of Bridgewater.

Three Pigeons-court, both small and ordinary. Plough-alley, long and mean. Blue Boars-head-court, also long and ordinary. Fox and Crown-court, long and mean. Fig-tree-court, good, and well inhabited. Play-house-yard, long, with old Buildings; so called, for that here was a Play-house in former Days.

Red-crofs-street, wide, well built and inhabited; it comes out of Barbican, and runs up to Cripplegate Church.

IN this Street, on the East Side is a large and handsome House, belonging to Mr. Calvert, the Brewer. Somewhat higher is the Frame-work-Knitters, or Stocking-Weavers-Hall, but is seated Backwards, and hath no Front to the Street. In this Hall is the Portrait of the Author of this Ingenious Art, pointing towards one of those Iron Frames, and discoursing to a Woman who is knitting with Needles and her Fingers. These Words are on the Picture, viz. In the Year MDLXXXIX, the ingenious William Lee, Master of Arts of St. John's College, Cambridge, devised this profitable Art for Stockings (but being despised went to France) yet of Iron to himself, but to us and others of Gold; in Memory of whom this is here painted.

ADJOINING to this Hall is a magnificent Building, erected in the Year 1727, for a publick

Library for the Dissenting Clergy of LONDON, and was the Gift of the late Dr. Williams of Hoxton. Close to this on the North Side is a Charity School, which has this Inscription on the Front of it.

This Schoole and Dwelling-House were erected by voluntary Subscriptions for the Educating and Cloathing of an hundred Poor Boys of this Parish, the Ground was purchased by a Legacy of Mr. Thomas Moore, Merchant, Anno Domini 1709.

IN this Street are the several Courts and Alleys hereafter-mentioned. Three Herring-court, large, but ordinary. Red-lion and Axe-Inn, but indifferent. Three Falcon-court, good, and well built, with a Free-Stone Pavement. Cradle-court, large, and falls into the Bowling-alley in White-crofs-street. Paul's-alley, long, with some handsome Houses fit for good Inhabitants, and runs into Aldersgate-street, by the Half-moon Tavern. The Crown Brewhouse, of a considerable Trade. Bear and Ragged-staff-alley, ordinary. Frying-pan-alley, very mean. Ship-yard, but ordinary.

Jewen-street, comes out of Red-crofs-street, and falls into Aldersgate-street, a Place well built and inhabited, and of some Trade for Button-mould-makers.

IN this Street are these Places; Crowder's-well-alley, long, running into Aldersgate-street, through an Inn-Yard. It has good Buildings, which are well inhabited. This Place is of some Note for its Well, which gives Name to the Alley. The Water of this Well is esteemed very good for sore Eyes, to wash them with; and is said to be also very good to drink for several Distempers. And, some say, it is very good for Men in Drink to take of this Water, for it will allay the Fumes, and bring them to be sober.

HERE is likewise a new Building in this Street, called Redcrofs-square. Bull-head-court, a handsome Place, with good Buildings, and well inhabited; behind this is a Place new built, called Nixon's-square, and by some, Charles's-square. Three-pidgeon-court, square and good. Cock-pit-court, but ordinary, and leads into Horn-alley; but this is in Aldersgate-street Ward. Lauderdale-court, a large Place, well built and inhabited, being built out of the Garden belonging to Lauderdale House, seated in Aldersgate-street. And on the East Side of the Entrance into this Court, going up Steps, is Goldsmiths-court, which is but ordinary.

THERE are to watch at Cripplegate, and at several other Stands, in divers Places of this Ward, every Night, a Constable, a Beadle, and 40 Watchmen, within the Walls; and one Constable, a Beadle, and 90 Watchmen, in several Places without the Walls; being for the whole Ward, 130.

THE Jurymen returned by the Wardmote Inquest, are to serve in the several Courts in Guildhall, in the Month of March.

THIS Ward has an Alderman and his Deputy; within the Gate are eight Common-Council-Men, nine Constables, 12 Scavengers, 15 Wardmote Inquest-Men, and a Beadle. Without the Gate are also a Deputy, four Common-Council-Men, four Constables, four Scavengers, 17 Wardmote Inquest-Men, and a Beadle.

It is taxed in LONDON, to the Fifteen, at 40 l. and in the Exchequer, at 39 l. 10 s.

The Alderman of this Ward, is Sir John Williams.

C H A P. VII.

ALDERSGATE WARD.

Aldersgate Ward.

THE next is Aldersgate Ward, which takes its Name from that North Gate of the City: This Ward also consists of divers Streets and Lanes, lying as well within the Gate and Wall, as without: And first, to speak of that Part within the Gate. The East Part thereof joins unto the West Part of Cripplegate Ward, in Engain-lane, or Maiden-lane. It begins on the North Side of that Lane, at Staining-lane End, and runs up that Lane from Haberdashers Hall, to where St. Mary Staining Church stood; and by thence East, winding almost to Wood-street, and West through Oat-lane, and then by the South Side of Bacon-house to Noble-street, and back again by Lillypot-lane, (which is also of that Ward) to Maiden-lane; so on that North Side, West to where St. John Zachary's Church stood, and to Foster-lane.

Now on the South Side of Engain-lane, or Maiden-lane, is the West Side of Gutter-lane, to Carey-lane; and Carey-lane itself (which is of this Ward) and back again into Engain-lane, by the North Side of Goldsmiths Hall, to Foster-lane; and this is the East Wing of this Ward. Then is Foster-lane, almost wholly in this Ward, and begins in the South toward Cheapside, on the East, by the North Side of St. Foster's Church; and runs down North West by the West End of Maiden-lane, by Lillypot-lane and Oat-lane, to Noble-street; and through that by Shelly-House, (of old Time so called, as belonging to the Shelleyes.) For Sir Thomas Shelly, Knt. was Owner thereof in the 1st of Henry IV. It was afterwards called Bacon-house, because the same was new built by Sir Nicholas Bacon, Lord Keeper of the Great Seal. Then down on that Side, to where St. Olave's Church stood in Silver-street, which was by the North West End of Noble-street.

THEN again in Foster-lane, this Ward begins on the West Side thereof, over-against the South West Corner of St. Foster's Church, and runs down by where St. Leonard's Church stood, by Pope-lane End, and by St. Anne's-lane End; which Lane is also of this Ward.

THEN is the main Street of the Ward, which is called St. Martin's, and which includes St. Martin on the East Side thereof, and so down on both Sides to Aldersgate; and these are the Bounds of this Ward within the Wall and Gate.

OF the Gate we have already spoken in Book I. Chap. IV.

WITHOUT the Gate, the main Street, called Aldersgate-street, runs up North, on the East Side, to the West End of Houndsditch, or Barbican-street; a Part of which Street is also of this Ward. And on the West Side of Long-lane, a Part whereof is likewise of this Ward. Beyond which Aldersgate-street, is Goswel-street up to the Bars.

AND on this West Side of Aldersgate-street, by St. Botolph's Church, is Little-Britain, or Briton-street, as it was antiently called, which runs West to the Pump, and then North to the Gate, which enters the Church-Yard, some Time pertaining to the Priory of St. Bartholomew, on the East Side: And on the West Side, towards St. Bartholomew's Hospital, to two Posts there fixed; and these are the Bounds of this Aldersgate Ward Without.

THE Antiquities are these: First, in Staining-lane, of old Time so called, as may be supposed, of Painters-Stainers dwelling there.

ON the East Side thereof, adjoining to Haberdashers Hall, are 10 Alms-Houses, pertaining to the Haberdashers, wherein are placed 10 Alms-People of that Company; every one of them having 8d. a-piece, every Friday, for ever, by the Gift of Thomas Huntlow, Haberdasher, one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1539.

And Sir George Burton gave them 10 l. a Year for ever.

The PARISH of St. MARY STAINING.

THEN was the small Parish Church of St. Mary, called Staining, because it stood at the North End of Staining-lane.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified at the Cost of the Parish, in the Year of our Lord 1630.

MONUMENTS.

THE following Monuments were in the said Church.

ON a handsome Table in the South Wall of the Chancel was this Inscription:

Here lyes the Body of George Smithes, Goldsmith, and Alderman of LONDON, who took to Wife, Sarah, the Daughter of Anthony Wolhouse, Citizen and Haberdasher of LONDON, by whom hee had Issue foure Sonnes and five Daughters. He departed this Life the 11th Day of July, Anno Domini 1615, being 52 Yeers of Age.

To whose Memory, Sarah, his Wife, being sole Executrix of his last Will and Testament, at her own proper Cost and Charges, caused this Monument to be erected.

THERE were also the Armorial Achievements of Sir Arthur Savage, Knt. and this Inscription:

IN the Vault underneath lyeth the Body of the Honourable Sir Arthur Savage, knighted at Cadiz in Spain, 1596, General of her Majesty's Forces in the Kingdom of France, at the Siege of of Amiens, the 39th of Queen Elizabeth; Colonel, Vice-Treasurer, Receiver-General, and Counsellour of Estate in Ireland. He had Issue by his second Wife, Sarah, Daughter of Sir Anthony Woolhouse, of Chapwel, in the County of Darby, (Widow of George Smithes, Sheriff and Alderman of LONDON, 1611,) one onely Daughter, named Jane. He dyed the 13th of March, 1632.

THERE was a certain Tenement in the Parish of St. Mary Staining-lane, pertaining to King Edward II. situate in Breadth between the Land of Robert Buriene, on the South, and a Lane, which led from the said Church to Wood-street. This House the King granted formerly to C. de Burgalia; and afterwards, in the 14th. of his Reign, An. 1320, to Ralph Basset de Draiton.

The PARISH of
St. JOHN ZACHARY.

THEN is Engain-lane, or Maiden-lane, and at the North West Corner thereof was the Parish-Church of St. John Zachary.

INTERMENTS.

THE Monuments in this Church were well preserved; of Thomas Litchfield, who founded a Chantry in 14 Edward II. Of Sir Nicholas Twiford, Goldsmith, Mayor, 1388, and Dame Margery, his Wife; of whose Goods the Church was made and new built, with a Tomb for them, and others of their Race, 1390.

This Sir Nicholas Twiford, was buried in St. John Zachary's, between the two South Pillars next the high Altar. His last Will was proved December, 1390, wherein he bequeathed certain Legacies, to his Sword-Bearer, &c. in these Words. Item, Lego Armigero meo, bajulanti Gladium meum, Clerico meo de servientibus, Clavas bajulantibus, & ad Personam & Domum sive Hospitium meos attendant. sive spectantib. tempore Majoratus mei, xiii s. iv d.

Henry de Spondon, Rector of the Church of St. John Zachary, Lond. by his Will made December 12, 1382, order'd that his Body should be buried in the Middle of the Church aforesaid, and a Marble Stone laid over his Grave, with his Image thereon of Brass, from the Breast upwards, and the following Inscription :

Hic jacet Henricus de Spondon, quondam Rector istius Ecclesiæ; qui plura bona contulit isti Ecclesiæ. Cujus animæ propitiatur Deus. Amen.

Drugo Barentine, Mayor, 1398, he gave Lands to the Goldsmiths; he dwelled right against the Goldsmiths-Hall; between which Hall, and his Dwelling-House, he built a Gallery across the Street, whereby he might go from one to the other. He was buried in this Church, and Christian his Wife, 1427. John Adis, Goldsmith, 1400, and Margaret his Wife. John Francis, Goldsmith, Mayor, 1400, and Elizabeth his Wife, 1450. John Sutton, Goldsmith, one of the Sheriffs, 1413. Bartholomew Seman, Gold-beater, Master of the King's Mints; within the Tower of LONDON, and the Town of Calice, 1430. John Hewet, Esq; 1500. William Breakspeare, Goldsmith, 1461. Christopher Eliot, Goldsmith, 1005. Bartholomew Read, Goldsmith, Mayor, 1502, was buried in the Charter-house, and gave to this his Parish, 100 l. His Wife was buried here with a fair Monument, her Picture in Habit of a Widow. Thomas Keyton, Citizen and Lorimer, 1522. William Potken, Esq; 1537. John Cornish, with an Epitaph, 1470. Robert Fenruther, Goldsmith, one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1512.

MONUMENTS.

THESE Words were engraven on an antient Plate in the Chancel :

'Tis not Inſcriptions make
Then more or leſſe;
In Chriſt I hope to riſe
Amongſt the Juſt,
Man is but Graſs, all muſt
To Wormes and Duſt.

Vertue and Death being Both enamoured
On worthy Pemberton,
In Heat of Love;
To be poſſeſt of
That each coveted,
Thus did they dialogue,
And thus they ſtrove:

Vertue. WHAT Vertue challengeth, is but her Right.

Death. What Death layes claime to,
Who can contradict?

Vert. Vertue, whoſe Power Exceeds all other Might.

Death. Where's Vertue's Power,
When Death makes all ſubmit?

Vert. I gave him Life;
And therefore he is mine.

Death. That Life he held
No longer than I liſt.

Vert. I made him more than Mortall, meere Divine.

Death. How hapt he could not Then Death's Stroke reſiſt?

Vert. Becauſe (by Nature)
All are borne to dye.

Death. Then thine owne Tongue
Yeelds Death the Victory.

Vert. No, Death, thou art deceiv'd
Thy envious Stroke
Hath given him Life
Immortal, 'gainſt thy Will:

Death. What Life can be, but Vanisheth as Smoake?

Vert. A Life that all thy Darts
Can never kill.

Death. Have I not lock'd his Body in my Grave?

Vert. That was but Duſt, and
That I pray thee keepe.

Death. That is as much
As I deſire to have,
His comely Shape in
My eternal Sleepe.

Vert. But where's his honourable Life, Renowne, and Fame?

Death. They are but Breath,
Them I reſigne to thee.

Vert. Them I moſt covet.

Death. I preferre my Claime,
His Body mine.

Vert. Mine his Eternity.

And ſo they ceaſt,
Death triumphs o'er his Grave,
Vertue o'er that which
Death can never have.

And as fair Trophees,

Among the Bleſſed
In Eternity
Whereto fair Vertue now
Hath brought her Son,
Worthily honour'd,
Sir James Pemberton.

ON a handſome Monument, in the South Iſle,
was this Inſcription:

Hereunder lyes interred the Body of Philip Strelley, late of LONDON, Goldſmith, who gave to the Poor of this Pariſh, 40 s. a Year for ever, out of the Revenues of the Manour of Ulkerthorpe, lying in the Pariſh of South Winfield, in the County of Derby, to be paid to them by the Hands of the Warden and Renters of the Worſhipful Company of Goldſmiths, whom he left in Truſt, to ſee it and other Gifts diſpoſed, as may appear by his Will, dated September 6. Anno Dom. 1603. Though this Monument was erected but in the Year 1630.

In the Incloſure where the Church ſtood, againſt the Eaſt Wall, is an handſome Monument, with two half Figures, for Sir James Drax, and his Lady; but very much impaired, by being expoſed to the Weather. His ſaid Wife was named Meliora, Daughter to John Horton, of Wolverſton, in the County of Somerſet, Eſq; who brought him ſix Sons and four Daughters, viz. Sir James, Henry, John, Samuel, — and Joſeph; Meliora, Mary, Elizabeth, and Pelathia. His ſecond Wife was Margaret, Daughter of Edward Campfield, of Hardington, in the ſame County, Eſq; by whom he had four Sons. He died March the 8th, 1663.

Here

HERE likewise was buried Henry Drax, his second Son, Esq; who had two Wives. The first, the Lady Francis Tufton, Daughter of the Earl of Thanet; who died without Issue. His second, Lady Dorothy Lovelace, Daughter to the Lord Lovelace, of Hurley, in the County of Berks; by whom he had four Children. He deceased An. 1682.

Colonel Henry Drax, in his Last Will and Testament, gave the Poor of this Parish 20*l*. and his second Wife, the Lady Dorothy Drax, Sister to the Lord Lovelace, in her Life-time gave 20*l*. more, and 10*l*. more at her Death. The Interest of all which, to be given half-yearly to the Poor. In grateful Memory of which charitable Benefactors, the Parish set up a Plate of Brass.

THERE are some small Legacies belonging to this Parish, disposed of by the Minister and Church-wardens. The Donors Names are registered.

THERE was a Parsonage-House, which the Rector had free to himself, without paying any Ground-Rent.

IN the Visitation, An. 1636, was given in by Presentment, 20*l*. Glebe, per Ann.

THIS Church of St. John Zachary being consumed in the Fire of LONDON, the Parish is united to that of St. Anne's within Aldersgate.

Goldsmiths-Hall.

ON the East Side of this Foster-lane, at the End of Maiden-lane, is the Goldsmiths Hall, which, since the Fire of LONDON, is made a stately Structure of Brick and Stone, having in it several spacious Apartments and a noble Hall well finished and wainscotted: This Hall has, of late Years, been more used than any other for the Lord Mayors to keep their Mayoralties in; but Stow saith, in his Time, It was neat but not large, and "therefore to say, continues he, that Bartholomew Read, Goldsmith, Mayor in the "Year 1502, kept such a Feast in this Hall, as "some have fabuled, is far incredible, and altogether impossible, considering the Smallness of "the Hall, and Number of the Guests; which, "as they say, were more than 100 Persons of great "Estate. For the Messes and Dishes of Meats "to them served, the pale Park in the same "Hall, furnished with fruitful Trees, Beasts of "Venery, and other Circumstances of that pretended Feast well weighed, Westminster-hall "would hardly have sufficed. And therefore I "will overpass it, and note somewhat of principal Goldsmiths.

"First, I read, that Leafstane, Goldsmith, "was Provost of this City, in the Reign of Henry I. Also, that Henry Fitz Alewin, Fitz

Leafstane, Goldsmith, was Mayor of LONDON in Richard I, and continued Mayor 24 Years. Also, that Gregory Rockly, chief Saymaker of all the King's Mints within England, (and therefore, by my Conjecture, a Goldsmith) was Mayor in 3 Edward I, and continued Mayor seven Years together. Then William Farrington, Goldsmith, Alderman of Farringdon Ward, one of the Sheriffs, 1281, 9 Edward I, who was a Goldsmith, as appears on Record; as shall be shewed in Farringdon Ward. Then Nicholas Farrington his Son, Goldsmith, Alderman of Farringdon Ward, four Times Mayor in the Reign of Edward II.

The PARISH of ## St. OLAVE in SILVER-STREET.

THEN at the North End of Noble-street was the small Parish-Church of St. Olave in Silver-street.

THIS Church being greatly decayed and perished was, in the Year of our Lord 1609, new built, and enlarged in the Breadth, seven Feet and above. In the Year of our Lord 1619, it was again repaired and beautified: And in the Year 1632, enriched with a very handsome Gallery, with this Inscription in the several Parts or Panes thus:

Deo Patri Filio Spiritui Sancto
Trino & uni Gloria in Aeternum.

Richardus Turner, & Johannes Morrel hanc Porticum suis sumptibus erexerunt.

It was without any notable Monuments, but these following.

MONUMENTS.

ON a fair plated Stone in the Chancel was this Inscription:

Here under this Stone lieth buried the Body of John Darcy, second Son to John Lord Darcy, of Ebie, who died in Anno 1593, aged 33 Years.

ON another Stone near to it:

Here lieth Griffilde Windfore, Daughter of Henry Lord Windfore, and Lady Anne his Wife, Daughter and Heir of Sir Thomas Rivet, Knt. who departed this Life the seven and twentieth Day of June, and in the Year of our Lord God 1600.

A Remembrance of Master John Banester, Chirurgion, and Licentiate in Physicke.

Great Men that ne'er did
Good in all their Days,
But at the very instant
Of their Death,
Finde yet no meane
Commenders of their Praise,
Although it lasts no longer than a Breath.
Shall then good Men,
Though lesser in Degree,
Finde none to give Them Right and Equity?

If one shall say, the great Man's Life was such,
So good, so full.
Of Hospitality:
When God doth know,
He nec'r did half so much,
Though thus he must
Be grac'd with Flattery:
Shall mean Men then who
Such Works truly did,
Be nothing spoken of?
Oh! God forbid.

Not then, as equalling
With any Great,
My fatherly good
Friend, John Banester:
No more but Truth of Thee let me repeate,
A Sonnes Love-teares,
Thy Body to interre.
That such as knew thee
Better farre than I,
May say, Thy Virtues
Did not with thee dyc.

Thy Skill and Practice,
That itself commends,
Some of the best have
Truly found the same;
Nor partially employed
To wealthy Friends,
But even the poorest Wretch,
The Sick and Lane
Felt of the best. Some Difference there might be:
The Rich payd somewhat,
Poore Men had it free.

Thy Care and Cost layd out
For common Good,
In greater Measure
Than came in againe:
But that Heaven's Blessing
With thy Bounty stood,
Hardly had stretcht
So many to sustaine.
But it is true: The Liberal Heart God loves,
And from him still all
Cause of Lacke removes.

Thy weekly Charity
Given to the Poore
In Bread, beside, in Money from thy Purse:
Even in the hardest Yeeres
Dealt at thy Doore,
When some repin'd that
Every Day did worse;
Makes poor Men say,
Our good Reliefe is gone,
Let them goe to thy
Find-faults, and have none,

Poor maymed Soldiers
Sore-sick hearted Men,
That under Miseries
Hard Crouch did bow,
Were freely cur'd, methinkes
They cry: Lord, When,
Where shall we finde
Our good Physician no
I doubt not, but some Others will as much:
Yet (in these Dayes) we Find not many such.

Sleepe then thou happy
Soule, in endlesse rest,

All good Mens Groanes
Be powred on thy Grave:
Live thou in Abraham's
Bosome with the blest;
Where Faith and Workes
Due Recompence shall have.
My Sight growes dimme,
Sighing my Heart makes fore,
Tears blot my Paper,
I can write no more.

CHARITIES.

THE Charities that have been given to this Parish, are these:

DONORS.

Roger James, Brewer, in Trust and Confidence reposed in him by Jerome Lambrose, Testator, purchased a Messuage for 58*l.* (whereof 8*l.* was the proper Money of the said Parish.) And he the said James, in 32 Eliz. did grant and enfeoffe unto severall of the most substantial Inhabitants of the said Parish, the said Messuage, with the Appurtenances, to and for the Use of the Poor,
Lame, and Impotent, of the Parish.

Bernard Hyde, Esq; by his Last Will, appointed the Company of Salters, to pay to the Churchwardens, 5*l.* 10*s.* every tenth Year; to be distributed to 18 poor Widows.

THERE was a Parsonage-House, burnt down, rebuilt, and leased out. In the Year 1636, and before, there was a Parsonage-House and Glebe, that went at 15*l.* per Annum.

The PARISH of St. ANNE Within ALDERS- GATE.

THEN is St. Anne's-lane, formerly called
Pope-lane, from one Pope, who was Owner thereof; on the North Side of which is St. Anne's Church, once called St. Anne in the Willows; upon what Occasion, Stow says, he knows not;
but, some have said, from Willows growing thereabouts, but even in his Time there was no void Place for Willows to grow, more than in the Church-Yard.

St. Anne, to whose Memory this Church is dedicated, was Mother of the Virgin Mary. She was Daughter of Matthan, a Priest of Bethlehem, of the Tribe of Aaron. She was married to Joachim, and after 20 or 22 Years Barrenness, bore Mary the 8th of September, in the 739th
Year of Rome. Some great Authors are of Opinion, that St. Anne had three Daughters by Joachim; others, with Gerson, say, that she had them by three several Husbands: This Opinion they confirm by St. John, xix. 25. mentioning, that the Mother of Jesus, her Sister Mary, Wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalen, stood near the Cross; yet Baronius, and other modern Authors assert, that these pretended Daughters were Anne's Sisters; saying, that she did not marry after she bore the Virgin Mary; and answer the Words of St. John thus, That in Scripture near Kinsfolks are often termed Brothers and Sisters.

Haræus, in vitis Sanctorum, tells us, That Anne, the Mother of the blessed Virgin Mary, was the Daughter of Gazirus, of the Tribe of Juda, and born in the Town of Bethlehem; that she was the Wife of Joachim, who was of the same Tribe, and a Galilean of the Town of Nazareth; that she died on the 7th Kal. of August, (on which Day her Festival is celebrated) and was buried in Bethlehem, in the Sepulchre of her Father.

BUT after all these, Bayle says, this Anne is no where spoken of in the Scriptures, nor in the Writings of the three first Centuries, and that

that St. Epiphanius is the first who mentions her.

St. Anne's within Alder-gate.

THERE is a constant received Tradition in the Parish; that St. Anne and St. Agnes were Sisters, who first built this Church at their own Charge, whence it was denominated St. Anne and Agnes within Aldersgate.

WHEN the old Church was first founded is uncertain; but we read of it in about 1400; and Stow saith it was burnt accidentally by Fire in the Year 1548, as far as it was combustible. It was beautifully repaired in 1624, but being again burnt in the dreadful Fire of 1666, was re-erected and finished in the Year 1680, and stands in a Church-yard planted with Lime Trees, that flourish there; so that, Strype says, as it was formerly called St. Anne in the Willows, it may now be named St. Anne in the Limes. It was beautified and repaired Anno Domini 1703.

To this Parish, by Act of Parliament, 22, 23 Carol. II. was united that of St. John Zachary, already taken Notice of.

THE Church is square, and the Roof is supported by four handsome Pillars of the Corinthian Order, which are posited in a Geometrical Square from each other.

THE Ornament of the Roof consists of four Arches of Fret-work, with Flowers, Fruit, Leaves, Cherubims, &c. at the four Angles the Roof is lower, and consists of four Quadrangles, within each of which is a Circle formed by a Circumference of very rich Fret-work.

THE Church is well wainscotted round with right Norway Oak, eight Feet and a half high. There is also a good Gallery at the West End, with a beautiful Font, having Piedroits and Panels of Bolection Work.

ALSO a handsome Pulpit finely carved. The Altar-piece is likewise of fine Wainscot, consisting of two fluted Pilasters, with their Architrave, Frieze and Cornice; between the Pilasters are the Commandments done in Gold on Black, and without the Pilasters are the Lord's Prayer and Creed done in Black upon Gold; and to the North and South thereof are large Cartouches, and other Enrichments of Leaves, Flowers, &c. carved. Under the Commandments are Palm-Branches, and between the Arches of the Tables is a spacious gilt Seraphim, and a Facio-piece, whereon is the Word GOD done in Hebrew, Greek, Latin, and English; and above this, upon the Cornice, is the King's Arms, with Supporters well carved within a Scrole Pediment, and two Lamps having gilt Tapers. It is inclosed with handsome strong Rail and Ballister, and within that well paved with Black and White Marble.

THE Church is 53 Feet Square, the Altitude about 35 Feet, and that of the Tower to the Top of the Turret about 84 Feet.

MONUMENTS in the old Church were, for

Thomas Bekhemton, Clerk of the Pipe, who was buried there, 1429. Ralph Caldwell, Gentleman of Gray's-Inn, 1527. John Lord Sheffield, John Herenden, Mercer, Esq; 1572.

ON a Table in the North Isle of the Chancel were these Verses :

St. MARTIN's Le GRAND

THEN in St. Martin's-lane, was (of old Time) a fair and large College, of a Dean and Secular Canons, or Priests ; which have had great Privilege, both of Sanctuary and otherwise, and was called St. Martin's Le-graund, founded by Ingelricus, and Edwardus, his Brother, in the Year of Christ, 1056, and confirmed by William the Conqueror, as appears by his Charter, dated 1068.

THAT Endowment this House enjoyed, with all the Lands the Founders gave, was confirmed to it by William the Conqueror ; who, also gave all the Moor Land without Cripplegate ; and freed this Church, and the Canons, from all Disturbance and Exaction of any Bishops, Archdeacons, or their Ministers, and from all Regal Services. And granted them Soc and Sac, Tol and Theam, with all those antient Liberties, in the fullest Manner that any Church in England had. That Charter bears Date 1068, the 2d of his Reign, confirmed by John and Peter, Cardinals of Rome, and Legates of Pope Alexander.

IN former Times, the Deans and Canons of St. Martin's were great Men. One William Mulse, in the Reign of Edward III. was Dean of St. Martin's, who was chief Chamberlain of the Exchequer, Receiver and Keeper of the King's Treasure and Jewels. Then William Dighton, a Prebendary of St. Martin's, was Clerk of the Privy-Seal. Peter de Savoy was Dean in the Reign of Edward I.

AMONG other Franchises, antiently granted by the Kings of the Realm to the City of LONDON, one was, That all Inquisitions to be taken taken by Justices and Ministers of the King, of the Citizens of LONDON, should be taken at St. Martin's le Grand, or at the Guild Hall of the said City, and not elsewhere, except Inquisitions of the Justice in Eyre, at the Tower of LONDON, Act of Parliament 37 Henry VIII. Cap. 5.

THE 22d of Edw. I. 1293, when the Custos and Sheriffs had removed a Cause from the Court Christian, about a Will, to their Court of Hustings, that King appointed Gilbert de Thornton, his Chief Justice, and others, to come at a certain Day, for that Purpose appointed, unto St. Martin's the Great, LONDON; and there diligently to examine that Record and Process, in the Presence of the aforesaid Custos and Sheriffs. And signifying withal that he had likewise commanded the said Custos and Sheriffs, on a certain Day, which they, the Judges, should certify them of, to bring before them that Record and Process, with all Things pertaining to it, at St. Martin's the Great, LONDON.

ANTIENLY, the Kings of England have sometimes lodged here. A Writ of King Edw. I. was dated hence. Thomas de Clirowe de Bleckweth Captus & detent. in Prisons North. pro Transgr. Forrest. habet Literas Rogero de Clifford Justic. Forrest. citra Trentam, quod ponatur per Ballium. Dat. apud S. Martinum Magnum, LONDON. 20 Die Octobris.

Rex (Edw. I.) granted the Deanary of St. Martin's the Great, LONDON, Galfrido de Newband, by the Resignation of Lodowick de Sabaudia, 20 Jan. 8. Edw. I.

THIS Church of St. Martin's, antiently was free from Episcopal Visitation; nay, and from Papal Exactions: And peculiarly belonged to the King, as appears by the Record. Eccl'ia S. Martin's le Grand, LONDON. Libera ab Inspectione Epali; spectat Regi; & de Jurisdictione papali ib'm amovend. Pro qua Rex appellat Papam diste Exactionis. Exiguntur ab Eccl'ia Newport Comitatus. S. . . . . que Pars ejusdem Decanatus, &c. And King Henry III. brought the Pope into Suit, for taking some Payments from the Church of Newport, that belonged to his Deanary.

IN the Bishop of LONDON's Register of old Wills, it is stiled a Parish.

Arthur Capel, late of the Parish of St. Martin's le Grand. The Administration of his Goods granted to his Brother William Capel, Anno 1542.

Nicholas Young, of the said Parish of St. Martin's le Grand, Anno 1542.

THIS College claimed great Privileges of Sanctuary, and otherwise, as appeareth in a Book written by a Notary of that House, about the Year 1442, the 19th of Henry VI. wherein, amongst other Things is set down and declared; That on the 1st of September, in the Year aforesaid, a Soldier, Prisoner in Newgate, as he was led by an Officer towards the Guildhall of LONDON, there came out of Panyer-alley five of his Fellowship, and took him from the Officer; brought him into Sanctuary at the West Door of St. Martin's Church, and took Girth of that Place. But the same Day Philip Malpas, and Robert Marshall, then Sheriffs of LONDON, with many others entered the said Church, and forcibly took out with them the said five Men, thither fled, led them fetter'd to the Compter, and from thence, chained by the Necks to Newgate. Of which violent-taking the Dean and Chapter in large manner complained to the King; and required him, as their Patron, to defend their Privileges, like as his Predecessors had done, &c. All which Complaint and Suit, the Citizens by their Counsel, Markham, Serjeant at Law, John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City, and others, learnedly answered; offering to prove, that the said Place of St. Martin had no such Immunity or Liberty as was pretended: Namely, Carpenter offered to lose his Place, if that Church had more Immunity than the least Church in LONDON. Notwithstanding, after long debating of this Controversy, by the King's Commandment and Assent of his Council in the Star-Chamber, the Chancellor and Treasurer sent a Writ unto the Sheriffs of LONDON, charging them to bring the said five Persons, with the Cause of their taking and with-holding, afore the King in his Chancery, on the Vigil of Allhallows. On which Day, the said Sheriffs, with the Recorder, and Counsel of the City, brought and delivered them accordingly, afore the said Lords; whereas the Chancellor, after he had declared the King's Commandment, sent them to St. Martin's, there to abide freely, as in a Place having Franchises, &c.

THUS much out of that Book is noted, concerning the Privileges of that Place, challenged in those Days: Since which Time, to wit, in the Year 1457, the 36th of the said Henry VI. an Ordinance was made by the King and his Council, concerning the said Sanctuary Men in St. Martin's le Grand; whereof the Articles are set down in the Book of K. within the Chamber of the Guildhall, in the Leaf 299, and is in the English then used, as it stands in the Record.

Henricus Dei Gratia, Rex Angliæ & Franciæ; Dominus Hyberniæ: Omnibus ad quos presentes Literæ perveniunt, Salutem. Inspeximus Tenorem quendam Ordinationis, Concessionis, & stabilimenti certorum Articulorum infra Sanctuaria Libere Capelle nostre, St. Martini infra Civitatem nostram LONDON. observandum & custodiendum, coram nobis, & Concilio nostro, 5 Die Februarii ultimo præterito, apud Westmon. in Camera Stellata, ordinatorum & stabilitorum, nobis in Cancellar. nostram de mandato nostro missum factum, in hæc Verba.

THE fifth of Fevever, the Yeere of the Reigne of our Sovereigne Lord King Henry VI, thirty-fifth: At Westminster, in the Sterre-Chamber, our said Sovereigne Lord, calling to high Remembrance, the good and blessed entent that his full noble Progenitors have at all Times had, to the Honour, Worship, Conservation and Wele of the Free Chapel of St. Martin's, within the City of LONDON; of the which, the King our Sovereign Lord, is Founder and Patron: Desiring to do all that may serve to the Ease and restful Roule of the same; and Conservation of the Sanctuary, Immunity, Privileges and Liberties, as appertain to the said Chapel and Place; willing, that hereafter none occasion be yeven to the Breach or hurting them: Remembring also, the great Complaints, Grudging, and Displeasure, that his Subjects have taken, and specially the Citizens and Commonalty of the said City of LONDON; of the demeaning of misruled Persons coming and abiding in the said Place, under Umbre and Colour of the Sanctuary there: the which have, at divers Times, issued out of the Sanctuary and committed many Ryots, Robberies, Manslaughters, and other Mischiefs; were through the said Sanctuary hath been greatly dislaundered, and (over that) great Inconvenience like to ensue.

AFTER great Deliberation and Communication had, as well with Doctors of Divinity, as of Law, Civil and Canonically; called also thereto the Judges of this our Land, and their Advices had in that Behalfe; other Men also of great Wisedome and Experience, for the Weale and Conservation of the said Sanctuary, and to eschew the said Misgovernance and Mischiefe, called also before our said Sovereigne Lord and his his Councill, the Maior and the Aldermen of the said City, and Master Richard Carewre, Dean of the said Place of St. Martin's: Our Sovereigne Lord (by the Advice of his Councill abovesaid) ordained, granted, and established certain Articles under-written, to bee kept and observed within the said Sanctuary, from this Time forth, without any Interruption of them: Willing and ordaining, that the said Deane that now is, promit by his Oath the Observance of the same, for the Time that hee shall bee Deane there. And that every Deane after him, in his Admission to the said Deanery, be sworne to keepe the said Articles in semblable wise, and make them to bee kept within the said Sanctuary: The which Articles beene such as follow:

1. First, That every Person Fugitive coming unto the said Sanctuary for Tuition, and challenge to enjoy the Immunities and Privileges thereof; at his Entrie, as soone as hee commodiously and reasonably may; shall now present himselfe unto the said Deane, his Commissarie, or Depute in that Behalfe; and before him declare the Cause of the Feare moving him to come to the said Sanctuary; be it for Treason, Felony furnished upon him, or for other Causes. And that the said Declaration and Cause bee registered in the common Register, ordained therefore in the said Sanctuary, and the Name of the said Fugitive.

2. Item, That hee at his first Entree, present and deliver unto the said Deane, Commissary, or Depute, all Manner of Weapon and Armour that hee bringeth with him, as well invasive as defensive; and that he be not suffered to weare or use any such Weapon or Armour, or it to have in his keeping within the Sanctuary in any wise, except a reasonable Knife, to kerve withall his Meate; and that the said Knife be pointlesse.

3. Item, That every erraunt and open Theefe, Robber, Murderer, and Felon, notoriously noised by the common Fame of the People; or if the said Deane, Commissary, or Depute, be credibly informed, or due Proove be yoven or made, that he is such one, repairing to the said Sanctuary, to the Intent that he shall not (under Colour of the said Sanctuary) intend to doe further Mischiefe; finde sufficient Seurte to bee made unto the King, as well by his own Obligation; as by the Obligations of other, of his good Bearing, for the Time of his Abode within the said Sanctuary, and for a quarter of a Yeere after his departing out of the same. And that hee bee kept in Ward into the Time hee have found and made the said Seurte: And if it so bee, that it be complained or shewed unto the King's Highnessee, that the said Seurte bee not sufficient, that then, at the Commandment of the said Councill, (if it bee thought necessary) the said Deane, Commissary, or Depute, shall take other and better Seurte; or else commit them to Ward, unto the Time better Seurte bee found. Foreseene alway, that if the said Fugitive will depart out of the said Sanctuary, that hee may so doe when hee will.

4. Item, That all the Out-gates, as well Posternes, Doores, as all other Issues outward whatsoever they be, of the said Sanctuary, bee surely closed and shut nightly at Nine of the Clocke. And so remaine shut from the same Houre, unto Sixe of the Clocke in the Morning, from the Feast of Alballowes, unto the Feast of Candlemasse. And the Remanent of the Yeere, nightly, from the said Houre of Nine, unto Foure of the Clocke in the Morning, or unto the Time the first Masse beginneth within the said Place. And that all those that been fled to the said Sanctuary, for Treason or Felony, be within the Closure on Night's Time.

5. Item, If any such Theefe, Murderer, or Felon, resort to the said Sanctuary for Tuition of the same, with any manner Robbery, or stolen Goods, if the Party robbed make fresh Sute therefore, and prove by open Evidence, that the same Felon hath brought into the said Sanctuary the said Goods so stolen thence, the said Deane, Commissary, or Depute, shall put in true Devoire, withouten any Dissimulation, Fraud, or Malengyne, to make full Restitution unto the Party so grieved, of the said stolen Goods, if they can bee had: And semblably, if any Fugitive come to the said Sanctuary with other Mens Goods, Merchandize, or Things, intending there to live with the same, and the Owner of the said Goods, Merchandize, or Things, make Proove that they be his, and verifie that they bee brought into the said Sanctuary, the said Deane, Commissary, or Depute, shall put him in full Devoire, to make Restitution to the Party so proving that the same Goods, Merchandizes, or Things were his. And no Fugitive; nor none dwelling within the said Sanctuary, shall receive, conceale, nor buy any such Goods; but that they bee brought to the said Deane, Commissary, or Depute, to the Intent that the Owners may have the sooner Knowledge of them. And if the said Goods, so stolne and brought to the said Sanctuary, be concealed from the said Deane, Commissary, or Depute, and bought by any Dwelling in the said Sanctuary; that then the Buyer (abiding there) make Restitution or Satisfaction to the Party grieved, proving the said Goods so stolne to bee his, and so sold in the same Sanctuary.

6. Item, If any Person having Tuition of the said Sanctuary, from thence issue out by Day or by Night, and commit or do any Robbery, Murder, Treason, or Felony, or Battery so done (withouten forth) commit the same Misdoer to Ward, there to remaine as long as he will abide in the Sanctuary. And if so bee hee will depart from thence, he shall depart at an Hour to be assigned unto him by Day, betwixt Sunne and Sunne.

7. Item, That subtle Pickers of Locks, Counterfeitours of Keys, Contrivers, of Seals, Forgers of false Evidences, Workers of counterfeit Chaines, Beades, Brouches, Ouches, Rings, Cups, Spoons silvered, and Plates of Copper gilt, uttered for Gold, unto the common Hurt of the People, be not suffered in the said Sanctuary. And if any, being within the said Sanctuary, be holden suspect of the Things abovesaid, let him be committed to Ward, till he find sufficient Surety, as in the third Article abovesaid.

8. Item, That common Putuers, Strumpets, and Bawdes, be not suspected in the Sanctuary: And if they claime the Tuition of the said Sanctuary, that they bee set in open Ward on Day times, till Shame cause them to depart, or to amend their vicious living.

9. Item, That deceitfull Games, as Playes at Hazzard, the Dice, the Guck, the Kayelles, the Cloysh, and other such unlesfull and reproveable Games bee not used, supported nor cherished within the said Sanctuary.

10. Item, That all Artificers dwelling within the said Sanctuary (as well Barbours as other) keepe holy the Sundayes, and other great Festival Dayes, without Breach, or exercising of their Craft, in such wise as done the Inhabitants of the said City of LONDON. And if they doe the contrary, to bee committed to Ward, till they finde sufficient Surety, as in the third Article abovesaid, to use their Crafts in Manner and Forme as doe the Inhabitants of the said City,

City, and according to the Ordinances of the same City.

11. Item, That every Person coming to the said Sanctuary for Immunity and Tuition of the same, that hee, at his Admission to the said Sanctuary, be sworne on a Booke, to obey, keepe, and observe the Articles abovesaid, and every each of them, with their Pains and Rules appertaining to the same. And the King, by the Advice abovesaid, would, granted and ordained, that this Act be exemplified under his Great Seale, and be enrolled in his Chancellery; to the Intent, that the Ordinance abovesaid remaine of Record, and that his Subjects may have Knowledge thereof.

FROM these Regulations and Articles aforementioned, this St. Martin's appears to have been a Sanctuary for great Disorders, and a Shelter for the loosest sort of People; Rogues and Ruffians, Thieves, Felons, and Murtherers. From hence used to rush violent Persons, Committers of Riots, Robberies, and Manslaughters: Hither they brought in their Preys and stolen Goods, and concealed them here, and shared or sold them to those that dwelt here. Here were also harboured Picklocks, Counterfeiters of Keys and Seals, Forgers of false Evidences, such as made counterfeit Chains, Beads, Ouches, Plate, Copper gilt for Gold; nay, common Strumpets and Bawds, Gamesters, and Players at Hazard and Dice, and other unlawful Games. And lastly, Prophaners of Sundays, and other Festival Days, exercising their Crafts thereon.

AND again, to this Licentiousness was this Sanctuary grown in these Times, that in Henry VII. his Reign, one coming hither for Sanctuary, the Sheriffs took him thence by Violence, and brought him away. But observe what followed: The Abbot of Westminster, (to whom this College now belonged) exhibited a Bill to the King against these Sheriffs, for arresting and drawing out with Force, a privileged Person, out of the Sanctuary of St. Martin's, belonging to the said Abbey. Which Matter was heard in the Court or Star-Chamber, before the Lords, and others of the King's Council, and Hody and Newton, Chief Justices. Which Justices determined, that by Law, the Party ought to enjoy the Privilege of Sanctuary: And the Sheriffs were grievously fined by particular Name. Which Sentence the Lord Dyer saw, as he reported under his own Hand. (And the Lord Coke saw in M. S. not printed) upon a Reference to him and Justice Southcote, out of the Star-Chamber, Trin. 11 Eliz. concerning the Sanctuary of Westminster, for Hampton and Whitacres being in for Debt.

CONCERNING the Patron, Privilege, and exempt Jurisdiction of this Church, we may understand by an Inquisition of the King's Justices, at the Tower, in the Reign of King Edward II. when the Jury made this Presentment of it: That the Church of Great St. Martin's, LONDON, was in the Donation of the King; and that Richard de Ellefeld then held it, and was Dean there; they knew not by what Warrant, therefore the Sheriff was commanded to cause him to appear; who came, and said, That he held the foresaid Church of St. Martin's, as a Free Chapel of the Lord the King, by the Donation and Concession of him, the present King; exempted from all ordinary Jurisdiction, and free by the Letters of the same King, which he produced, in these Words, Edwardus Dei gratia, &c. and by that Warrant he held that Church.

BEFORE this Church there was a Solar, that is, a large airy Room, or Chamber, somewhat like the Galleries in some great Houses, being Places of Entertainment and Pleasure. This Solar was towards the Street, and had a Jetty outwards, which was so low that it annoyed the People passing along. It was presented at the aforesaid Inquisition, in these Words: "That the Dean and Canons of St. Martin's the Great, held a certain Solar against the said Church, containing in Length 29 Feet, and in Breadth 11 Feet; Cujus Gertificium est nimis bassum de tribus pedibus, i. e. Whose Jetty was too low by three Feet. The Sheriff was commanded to summon them. Afterwards the Dean and Canons appeared by their Attorney, and yielded to take away what was an Annoyance by the View of the Jury. And therefore it was commanded the Sheriff to throw down whatsoever was an Annoyance: But the Dean was not fined, because it was not his proper Deed.

ANTIENTLY when this College flourished, a Curfew Bell was rung here; as was at Bow, St. Giles's Cripplegate, and Barking. It was a great Bell to be heard at a Distance, to give the Citizens Warning of the Time of Night; and to keep within Doors. King Edward I. in his Reign, in Orders sent to the City for keeping the Peace, against many Mischiefs and Murders, Robberies, and beating down of People by certain Hectors, walking armed in the Streets a-Nights, commanded, that henceforth none should be so hardy to be found wandering in the Streets, after Curfew Bell sounded at St. Martin's Le Grand.

THIS College was surrendered to King Edward VI. the 2d. of his Reign, in the Year of Christ, 1548; and the same Year, the College-Church was pulled down, many Houses built, highly prized, and let to Strangers born; and such others as claimed Benefit of the Privileges granted to the Canons, serving God Day and Night; (for so are the Words in the Charter of William the Conqueror) which may hardly be wrested to Artificers, Buyers and Sellers, otherwise than is mentioned in the 21st of St. Matthew's Gospel.

IN the East Part, where the College Church stood, was afterwards a large Tavern built: And down to the West, and so throughout the whole Precinct of that College, it was new built upon.

THIS Deanary, together with the Sanctuary and Privileges, was, after, put to the Abbey of St. Peter's in Westminster; as appeareth by what follows:

A DECLARATION of William, Abbot of the Monastery of St. Peter of Westminster, concerning his Title to the Privilege and Sanctuary of St. Martin's le Grand, in LONDON; with the Precincts, Circuit, and Bounds of the same.

FIRST, the said Abbot saith, That the Free Chapel of St. Martin's le Grand in LONDON, and the Precincts of St. Martin's aforesaid, is a Place privileged; and was founded and endowed long Time before the Conquest, as well of Possessions as of Immunities, Franchises, and Liberties. And corroborate and enlarged by King William the Conqueror, like as it appeareth, as well by the Charter of the said King William the Conqueror, as by divers other Charters, Writings, and Records.

Item, The said King William the Conqueror, granted by his Charter to the same Place of St. Martin's, divers Liberties and Franchises, by special and general Words; as well in the Latin Tongue, as Saxon. And over that, granted to the said Place of St. Martin's, all other Liberties, Immunities, and Customs, which any Church of this Realm best had. Which Grant importeth, and includeth in itself, as great Privileges, Franchises, and Immunities, as Westminster, Beverlay, or any other Place privileged, hath within this Realm. And also the said Words in Saxon, importeth such Sentence. That the said Place should be franchised, privileged, and have Tuition and Immunities of all those Persons, which for Treason, Felonies, Trespasses, or any other Cause, should flee to the same, or abide therein. Which Franchises, Privilege, Tuition, and Immunities, the said Place hath always peaceably had and enjoyed, from the said Conqueror's Days, unto this present Time.

Item, The said Franchises, Immunities, and Privileges of St. Martin's, have been corroborate, confirmed, allowed, and enlarged, by King Henry I. King Stephen, Henry II. King John, King Henry III. King Edward II. King Edward III. Richard II. Henry V. Henry VI. and in all other Kings Times since the Conquest. As by divers Charters, and Allowances before Justices of Oyer and Determiner, Writings and Records, more plainly at large is shewed, and may appear.

Item, It appeareth by divers Returns made by the Sheriffs of LONDON, as well in the King's-Bench, Common-Pleas, and all other the King's Courts, that the said Place of St. Martin's is a Place privileged and Sanctuary. As by the same Returns, remaining of Record, more plainly may appear.

Item, The said Abbot saith, That the Precinct, Circuit, and Bounds, of the Privilege and Sanctuary aforesaid, be and extend, as hereafter followeth.

Imprimis, Beginning at a Wall lying directly against a Post that standeth in the Middle of one Roger Wright's, a Grocer's House, which standeth on the East Side of the South Gate of St. Martin's: And from the Wall in the said Grocer's House, with the Half Deal of the Street, unto the Channel of the same Side that House standeth upon, Sanctuary. And so forth from the East, Westward, unto the Middle of St. Martin's-lane, next to the Chapel of St. Martin's, against the Tenement of the Bull's-head; which Tenement lieth at the South End of the said Lane, on the West Part.

Item, Half Part of the Street of St. Martin's-lane Sanctuary, from the South unto the North, as far forth, as the Houses appertaining to the Bull-head do extend Northwards.

Item, From the said Place of the Bull's-head, then the whole Lane of St. Martin's, Sanctuary on both Sides, unto a Post or Stoop that standeth on the North Side, or End of the two Tenements, standing by the great Gate next going into the Dean's-court.

Item, From the said St. Martin's-lane, at the aforesaid Bull's-head, turning by a Wall that divideth the said Tenement of the Bull's-head, and St. Martin's Ground. Which Wall turneth and extendeth from the East Westwards, unto a back Wall that closeth in St. Martin's Ground of the West Side; all within the said Wall, Sanctuary.

Item, Along by the same back Wall that closeth in the West Part of St. Martin's Ground, from the South End of the said Wall into the North, unto a Wall that divideth my Lord of Northumberland's Ground, and St. Martin's Ground from the South End; all within the aforesaid Walls, Sanctuary. And so forth, from the South Side, into the North of my Lord of Northumberland's Ground, Sanctuary. Along by a back Wall of the Grey Friars; which back Wall closeth in my Lord of Northumberland's Ground of the West Part, unto the North Part of Angel-alley, abutting Northwards, upon the South Side of Robert Bowman's House, into the Street-wards. And so Sanctuary still, from the said back Wall of Grey-Friars, along by the Angel-alley, and by the South Part of the said Robert Bowman's House, from the West unto the East, until you come to a Post or Stoop standing on the North Part of the two Tenements next lying on the North Side of a great Gate entering into the Dean's-court.

Item, From the aforesaid Wall, along from the North, Southward unto Hugh Payne's Dwelling-House; and from thence, by the North Side of the said Hugh Payne's Garden, Sanctuary still; from the West unto the East Part thereof.

Item, Again from the North Side of the above rehearsed Hugh Payne's Garden, Southward, unto the Dean's Garden, Sanctuary.

Item, Along by the Wall on the North Side of the Dean's Garden, from the West into the East thereof, Sanctuary.

Item, From the North unto the South of the aforesaid Dean's Garden, with St. Leonard's Church, Sanctuary, as by a Wall it there sheweth.

Item, From the East End of St. Leonard's Church, Westward of the South of St. Martin's, unto the Bell-alley, Sanctuary; as appeareth also by another Wall there.

Item, From the Bell-alley, Southward, unto the Wall spoken of at the Beginning, which is within the Grocer's House, against the Post that standeth within the Middle of the same House. And so forth directly again, unto the Channel of the High Street, that lieth before the South South Gate of St. Martin's ; all within the Bounds rehearsed, Sanctuary.

Item, By a Statute made in the ——— Year of King Edward III. it is affirmed, The said Place of St. Martin's to be a Place franchised and privileged, having Tuition and Immunity, in Manner and Form as is above rehearsed. And in special, and for them that come in thither for Debt, Treason, and Felony. In Proof whereof the Judge that sitteth there for the King, as in a Place, not of the City, but by Privilege separate, (the Mayor not called thereto, as he is to the Deliverance of Newgate, and other such Acts in the City) to have Knowledge there in a Case of Treason or Felony, hath ever, from Time that no Mind is, sitten in the Gate of the said Sanctuary. And the Person appeached, or indicted of Treason and Felony, hath been kept by the Officers on the further Side of the Street afore him ; to the Intent that he come not of the other Side of the Channel, towards the Sanctuary there, to claim the Liberty and Franchises of the same.

Item, Whereas divers Kings of this Land, for Causes such as moved them, have seized into their Hands the Franchises and Liberties that the City of LONDON had ; by reason whereof they were not suffered to use or enjoy the said Franchises, for as long as it hath liked unto the said Kings. Yet the said Chappel of St. Martin's le Grand, in the said City of LONDON, with the Precinct of the same, at the said Times of such seizing of the aforesaid Franchises, was afore and since always a Place privileged ; without any Disturbance, diminishing, or taking away by the said Kings, or by their Ministers. And peaceably used and enjoyed their Franchises, Liberties, and Immunities, within the Sanctuary and Precinct of St. Martin's, as in a Place excepted and privileged, and no Ways pertaining unto the said City ; no Parcel thereof, though it be within the said City.

AND moreover, The said Abbot saith, That the said Church, or Chappel of St. Martin's, within the said Sanctuary and Precinct of the same ; were of late, by the late King of famous Memory, King Henry VII. lawfully annexed and given to the said Monastery of St. Peter of Westminster ; at which Time and Times, without Mind of Man before that, the said Chappel and Precinct, Circuit and Bounds of the said Sanctuary, comprized within the Limits above rehearsed, were used, allowed, and taken ; and yet be as Sanctuary.

THUS far the Abbot of Westminster's Declaration, at which Time (as it appears) there fell out so much Contestation concerning the Precincts of this Sanctuary, that the Matter was fain to be tried by antient sworn Men deposed in Court, as Witnesses. What follows of their Depositions came to Mr. Strype's Hand, the rest (and the Beginning) were lost.

Item, The said Henry Williamson deposed for the claimed Bounds, and also for the Privilege of Sanctuary-Men, in the Half-Street and Lane next to St. Martin's ; and for the setting up of the Gallows on Evil-May-Day ; and for the removing thereof, as others therein before have deposed.

Item, Ralph Twyn deposed, all wholly the claimed Bounds to be Sanctuary ; and also the setting up of the Gallows, and removing of the same ; and the Pavement to be done by the Abbot. And that he knew one Bland privileged both for Treason and Murder, even used to walk in the Street, claimed as Sanctuary, without any Disturbance.

Item, William Bayley deposed all the claimed Bounds, and also the sitting of the Justices in the South Gate : And that he heard the Justices say, that half the Street against the said Gate was Sanctuary : And that there were Persons therein arraigned, and others therein deposed : And that he knew the said Bland privileged for Treason and Felony, to dwell in Angel-alley : And that the Abbot ought to make the Pavement, as others have deposed there.

Item, John Smith, Clerk, deposed for all the claimed Bounds, and further saith, that he knew Dr. Morton, and also the Cardinal Morton, to lie there ; one in Roger Wright's House, and the other in Angel-alley, they both being privileged for Treason : And also he supposeth both Angel-alley, and Bland-alley, to be holden of St. Martin's by certain Rent, as Parcel of the Earl of Northumberland's Tenements : And also for the Pavement, as others before have deposed.

THERE was a memorable Cause tried about the Liberties, between this Collegiate Church of St. Martin's, and the City of LONDON, in the 27th of Henry VIII. which probably the former Declaration of the Abbot of Westminster refers to. The City then, by her Recorder and Council, penned and exhibited these ensuing Articles against the Sanctuary of St. Martin's.

ARTICLES declaring for the Mayor and Commonalty of LONDON ; That the Enclosure and Chyrch of Seynt Martine's le Grande, the Messuages, Houses, and Lane of Seint Martine's aforesayd, be of, and in the Liberty and Jurisdiction of the said City ; and that there be, nor by any lawful Meane have been, any such Privileges and Immunity, the which may, or ought to defend al Manner of enorm Enemies of GOD, the Chyrch, the King, and the Realm, unpunished, as it hath been of long wrongfully accustomed. And especially to disherit our most dread Sovereign Lord, and his said City and Chamber of LONDON, of such Rights, Jurisdictions, Liberties, and free Customs, as of long Time before the Foundation, and at the Foundation of the said Chyrch, and ever after, peaceably and quietly had used ; and approved by divers Records, by Authority of Parliament, Letters Patents, and otherwise, as followeth :

First, They seyen, that the City of LONDON is, and since the Tyme of Remembrance of Man, hath been the chief City of this Realm, and above al other Cities and Towns of the same, as wel in Honours, Liberties, and free Customs highly endowed ; and the which famous City, in the Time of Seint Edward, King and Confessor, and long Time before, always hath been of itself one hoole County, and one hoole Jurisdiction and Liberty, by the said Citizens, and their Predecessors, of the King and his Progenitors holden at Farm.

AND the same Citizens then, and by al the Time aforesaid, by reason of their seid Jurisdiction and Liberties, among others, have had Liberties and free Customs, to elect and make of themselves, yeerely, certain principal Officers in the said City, which faithfully shudde answer the King's Terme : And immediately under him, the People of the said City, and others repairing to the same in Peace, Unity, and Justice, shudde govern after their old Laws and Customs : And also, to substitute under them other Under-Officers and Ministers, to help for the Sustentation and Execution of the Premises, &c.

AND before this, in the Reign of Henry VI. was this great Cause in Dispute, between the City and St. Martin's, before several Commissioners appointed to hear it. Then the Citizens pleaded, That William the Conqueror, before the Foundation of the aforesaid Church, by Authority of his Parliament, and by two Charters, which the Mayor and Citizens then produced, he demised to the Citizens of LONDON, all the said City and Sheriffrick of LONDON, with all Appendages, &c. And so pleading, inter alia, concluded thus: All and singular which the same Mayor and Citizens are ready to make good, as well for the said Lord the King, as for themselves.

It seems that there hath been some later Differences about a new Door into the Liberties of the Freedom; whereupon a Court being called December 20, 1625, this Order was given out, to be enquired upon and certified.

It is ordered by the Court, that the Foreman of the Inquest, with others of the same Inquest, shall view the South Gate and Entry leading from Bladder-street into this Liberty: And also a Door made by Thomas Rodes in the East Side of the same Entry; and make their Reports under their Hands in Writing, on Monday next after Epiphany.

According to the Direction of the Order aforesaid, we whose Names are underwritten, being all of the Enquest sworn for this Yeere, having viewed the Gate and Entry, doe find, and accordingly certifie, that Thomas Rodes, a Linnen Draper, dwelling in a House next adjoining to the said Entry, on the East Side thereof, (in Part of which House Roger Wright did dwell) hath of late, without the Privy or Knowledge of the Inhabitants of this Liberty, taken downe, or caused to be taken downe and carried away, a Pair of strong, sufficient, and serviceable Gates, in the Night-Time; which were, and Time out of Mind have bin, the common South Gate of this Liberty. And instead thereof, hath set up a new Gate of Deale, opening all one Way, viz. towards the West Side; whereas the former Paire of Gates or Leaves did fall open, the one towards the East Side, and the other towards the West Side of the said Entry. Also the said Thomas Rodes hath broken down the Partition Wall on the East Side of the said Entry; against which, one Lease of the said old Gate did fall open, as aforesaid: And hath there made a new Doore (where never any was before, in the Memory of Man) of almost an Ell in Breadth, out of the Shop, into the said Entry or common Passage into this Liberty. Whereby a free and open Passage is made out of the City of LONDON, the Shop of the said Rodes, into this Liberty; to the great Prejudice of the Lords of the same Liberty, and to the great Hinderance and Damage of the Tenants and Inhabitants within the same. In witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our Names; dated the 9th of Jan. Ann. Dom. 1625.

THE Liberties of this Place, after the Dissolution of the College, remained, and were preserved very cautiously from Time to Time. And to know how the Government, Privileges, and State of it stood in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, these Matters following may explain in some Measure.

BECAUSE of the Liberty enjoyed by such as lived within these Bounds, many Foreigners,

English and others, Tradesmen and Artificers, planted themselves here, Ann. 1585. A Survey was taken of all the Strangers, being French, Germans, Dutch, and Scots, inhabiting here; and their Occupations. Many of them were Cordwainers, that is, Shoemakers, (which Trade still continues there) Taylors, (hence the Tally-men who sold Shreds of Cloth; and Button-makers, and Button-mould-makers, that remained there even until the great Fire). Here inhabited also Strangers, Goldsmiths, Pursemakers, Linnen-Drapers, some Stationers, some Merchants, and Silk-Weavers. Here lived also two Silk-Twisters, who Mr. Strype supposes were the first Silk-Throw in LONDON, and to have brought that Trade into England; wherefore he sets down their Names; one was John James, born under the Dominion of King Philip, and made Denizen the 19th of December, in the 10th Year of Queen Elizabeth. The other was Anthony Emerick, born also under the Obedience of King Philip, and made Denizen the 1st of January, Ann. 17. Regina Elizabethæ.

THERE were upon that Survey aforesaid, found to be of Householders, (Denizens, as well as others) their Wives, Children, and Servants, 161 in Number. Which nevertheless was less by half than was some Years before; for in 1569, their Number was 269.

THERE was a Constable and a Headborough for this Liberty: But divers Things here wanted providing for; in respect whereof, they that lived out of the Liberty, were in better Condition. Sundry of the Inhabitants refused to watch and ward, when upon Occasion they were required, as good Subjects and honest Neighbours, so to do. They refused to contribute to such Taxes and Payments as were set upon them for her Majesty's Service, with the rest of their Neighbours. Several visited with the Sicknesse, would not obey the Orders appointed in that Behalf; that is, they would not keep their Doors and Windows shut, nor keep themselves within their Houses; but walked forth, and struck out the Red Cross set upon their Doors, and threatened to Mischief such as should come to set any such Crosses there! And some repaired to the Court with their Wares, a Thing dangerous to the Queen and Nobility. There was no Prison in the said Liberty to commit such as should be troublesome and offensive, but the Gatehouse in Westminster; which was in another Shire, and out of the Liberty. And so they that were thus committed, commonly brought their Actions against those that committed them, and put them to great Trouble.

HENCE in the Year 1593, the Officers and Inhabitants petitioned the Lord-Treasurer to grant them such good Ordinances for the Redress of the said Disorders, and sufficient Authority for Execution of the same, for the good Government of the said Liberty, and Conservation of the People in Peace; as to his Lordship's discreet Wisdom should be thought meet: And that they might have a Prison and Execution of Justice within the Precinct of the Liberty: And that he would send his Letters to the Constable and Headborough, to find out a convenient Place for such Purpose; and to assess all the Inhabitants of the Liberty to the Charge thereof. The Lord-Treasurer recommended this Matter to Sergeant Owen, and Mr. Lewis, two Lawyers; who gave their Judgments, that for all Matters for the Service of the Queen, the Inhabitants were compelled to perform the same. But for other Matters, they must make some By-Laws and Orders among themselves, to bind themselves to Performance. And that such disordered Persons, whose Houses were limited within the College, might be be punished by Imprisonment; and in that contagious Time, very convenient to be executed.

THE Inhabitants also complained at this Time, that the Mayor's Officers entered into their Liberty at their Pleasure, and searched and viewed all the Wares of the Shoemakers, according to a Statute lately made; not calling the Officer of the Liberty, or making him privy thereto. To this the Judgment of the aforesaid Lawyers was, That the Searcher might enter into the Liberty, and search alone. But, for that the Benefit of the Forfeitures were given to the Liberty, they thought it convenient that the Lord Mayor's Officer should be with them: Which they thought might be obtained, if it pleased the Treasurer to write to the Lord Mayor in that Behalf.

THIS Place, though in the Heart of the City of LONDON, is still in the Liberty of Westminster, and is governed, and votes for Parliament Men accordingly; and Persons unfree may here follow their Professions and Trades.

LOWER down, on the West Side of St. Martin's-lane, in the Parish of St. Anne, almost by Aldersgate, was one great House, commonly called Northumberland-house; it belonged to Henry Percy. King Henry IV. in the 7th of his Reign, gave this House, with the Tenements thereunto appertaining, to Queen Jane, his Wife, and then it was called her Wardrobe. It was afterwards a Printing-House, but now a Tavern.

Cooks Hall.

Now without Aldersgate, on the East Side of Aldersgate-street, is Cooks Hall; it stands against the End of Little-britain. From thence, along to Barbican, are many good Houses on the West Side, also to Long-lane, and so to Goswell-street.

The PARISH of St. BOTOLPH Without ALDERSGATE.

IN Britain-street, now called Little-Britain, which took that Name from the Dukes of Britain lodging there, is the handsome Parish Church of St. Botolph; in which Church was some Time a Brotherhood of St. Fabian and Sebastian, founded in the Year 1377; the gift of Edward III. and confirmed by Henry IV. in the 6th of his Reign. Then Henry VI. in the 24th of his Reign, to the Honour of the Trinity, gave Licence to Dame Joan Asley, some Time his Nurse, to Richard Carwood, and Thomas Smith, to found the same a Fraternity, perpetually to have a Master and two Custodes, with Brothers and Sisters, &c. This Brotherhood was endowed with Lands, more than 30 l. by the Year, and was suppressed by Edward VI.

THIS Brotherhood consisted of a Messuage, House and Tenement, called Trinity-hall, otherwise, The Common Hall of the Fraternity, or Guild of the Holy Trinity, founded in the Church of St. Botolph Aldersgate, and also eight Messuages and Tenements, commonly called, The Trinity, also situate beneath Trinity-hall. They were in the Tenure of Alexander Chapman, and coming into King Edward's Hands by an Act of Parliament, he granted them to William Harris, alias Somers, in his second Year.

IN Trinity-hall Chapel:

Orate pro bono statu Rogeri Russel, Civis & Salter. LONDON. & Annæ Uxoris ejus.

Pray for the Soul of Nic. Achele, &c.

IN the Windows there, stood divers Coats of Cavendish, Smith, William Purchase, Mayor of LONDON, Agard, Gatton, &c.

THE Steeple of this Church of St. Botolph, being very much decayed and perished, was, so far as they found it needful, pulled down, and rebuilt with Portland Stone, beautified with new Battlements and a Turret: Some Part of the Church repaired, and many of the Pews new made. As also a new Clock and Dial (at the Cost and Charge of the Parishioners) in the Year 1627. The Charge of all amounting to 415 l.

THIS Church escaped the Fury of the Flames in 1666, though not entirely, for a small Part of it was burnt.

IT is a Gothick Building, with Galleries on the North and West Sides; also good Oak Pews, and a Pulpit carved of the same Species of Timber.

THERE is little Ornament; the Altar-Piece is old Painting, with Columns of the Composite Order, between which are the Commandments, adorned with three Cherubims; over which is a Glory, with the sacred Word GOD done in Hebrew, Greek, Latin, and English, and the Portraits of Moses on the one Side, and Aaron on the other Side of the Commandments; which Altar-Piece is rendered more ornamental by the many fine old Monuments situated near it; and the King's Arms are at the East End of the South Isle.

THE Church is in Length (i. e. that Part paved and the Chancel) 78 Feet, Breadth 51, Height about 25, and that of the Steeple about 65 Feet, in which are six Bells, one of which is the Saint's Bell.

INTERMENTS.

ON a Pyramid erected against a Pillar :

What Epitaph
Shall we afford this Shrine ?
Words cannot Grace
This Pyramid of thine :
Thy sweet Perfections,
All summ'd up, were such,
As Heavens (I thinke)
For Faith did thinke too much.
Religious Zeale
Did thy pure Heart command,
Pity thine Eye,
And Charity thy Hand.
These Graces, joyn'd
With more of like Degree,
Make each Man's Word
An Epitaph for thee.
Calme was thy Death,
Well-ordered was thy Life,
A carefull Mother,
And a loving Wife.
Aske any, How
These Vertues in thee grew ?
Thou wast a Spencer,
And a Mountague.

Generoso sanguine ductus,
Usque per innumeros
Invenietur Avos.
Si mores, dicam mores ?
Nec amantior æqui,
Nec Patriæ quisquam,
Nec probitatis erat.
Si quæ conditio,
(Si quid sit laudis in illa)
Vita sub illustri
Principe clara fuit.

Et si Principibus
 Laus est placuisse probatis,
 Laudibus hæc pars est
 Annumeranda suis.
 Jam volucris sua lustra
 Novem transegerat ætas,
 Quum mors hunc sæva

Behold the End of Dust and Clay,
O thou which livest, with living Eye;
Yet doth his Soule for ever raigne
With Christ, which he by Faith did gaine:
In Learning he his Time did spend,
And Vertue was the only End:
So long before his Glasle was runne,
With World and Vanity he had done.

A. E. Frater ejus.

Here lyeth the Body of Christopher Tamworth, of Grays-Inne, in Holborn, in the County of Middlesex, Esq; 3d Son of Christopher Tamworth, of Halsted in the County of Leicester, Esq; who died the 19th of Septemb. 1624, being of the Age of threescore and ten Yeeres.

He having dealt kindly and liberally with his Wife, and many of his Kindred and Friends, and to the Poor of divers Parishes, hath also by his Will given 20 l. of current Money of England to the Dean and Prebends of the College of St. Peter's of the City of Westminster, in the County of Middlesex, to be employed by them about the Reparations of the said College-Church of St. Peter's.

IN the Freedom of the City of LONDON.

Aldersgate-street, Magpye-court; most Part of Little-Britain, Back-alley, Town-ditch, Crown-court, Pelican-court, Friars-entry, Hatchet-alley; Part of Duck-lane, Great and Little Montagu-court, Cross-key-court, Trinity-court, Cox's-court; Part of Pottage-pot-alley, Great and Little Black Horse-court, Half-Moon-alley; Part of Long-lane, Red-lion-yard, Devonshire-court, Fann's-alley, Vine-yard, White-horse-yard; Part of Barbican, Arnold's-court, Hare-court, Cherry-tree-court, Crown-court, Cradle-court; Part of Jewen-street, Horn-alley, Cockpit-court, Little-Greenwich, Angel-alley, Angel-Inn-yard, Maidenhead-court, Red-cross or Goldsmiths-square, Nettleton-court, Rose and Rainbow-court, Ball-alley, Motte's-tenements, Stone-court, Greyhound-court, Castle and Faulcon-Inn.

In the County of Middlesex, or the Glass-house Liberty.

PART of Charterhouse-square, Rutland-court, Black-horse-yard, Glass-house-yard, Peel-yard, Pump-yard; Part of Goswell-street, Baker's-alley, Bull-alley; Part of Fan's-alley.

NUMBER of Houses are 700.

Now for the modern State of this Ward, beginning with the Places within the Wall.

Foster-lane, a Place well inhabited, chiefly by Silversmiths. The South End next unto Cheapside, that is, two Houses Northwards from St. Vedast, or Foster Church, is in the Ward of Faringdon within; and all the rest of the West Side, is in the Liberty of St. Martin's le Grand, as far as Bell-court: So that only Part of the East Side is in this Ward. In this Lane are these Places; Adam's-court, but small, seated over-against the Church. Priest's-court, or Alley, long and ordinary, with a Passage into Gutter-lane, through the Half-moon Tavern. Rose and Crown-court, good, with a Free-stone Pavement. Dark Entry, very ordinary, gives a Passage into St. Martin's le Grand. On the North Side of this Entry, was seated the Parish-Church of St. Leonard Foster-lane; which being consumed in the Fire of LONDON, is not rebuilt, but the Parish united to Christ-Church; and the Place where it stood, is inclosed within a Wall, and serveth as a Burial-Place for the Inhabitants of the Parish.

Sir John Trott, of Laverstock in Flintshire, Baronet, gave 200 l. towards the Rebuilding of three Tenements for the Use of the Poor of St. Martin's le grand, in this Parish.

Carey-lane, falls into Gutter-lane, a Place of some Trade for Silversmiths. Bell-court, a large open Place, with good Houses, well inhabited; hath a Passage with a Free-stone Pavement into St. Martin's le Grand. Three Crown-court, both small and ordinary, near Bell-court. Goldsmiths Hall, seated at the Corner of this Lane, turning into Maiden-lane, the back Part being in Gutter-lane; a handsome new Brick Building, with an open square Court within. Over-against this Hall is a large House, now made Use of for refining of Silver.

Maiden-lane, formerly Engain-lane, a handsome well built and inhabited Street; the East End falleth into Woodstreet, but hath no more in this Ward, than to Staining-lane. At the North West Corner, over-against Goldsmiths Hall, stood the Parish-Church of St. John Zachary, which since the dreadful Fire is not rebuilt, but the Parish united unto St. Anne's Aldersgate; and the Ground on which it stood, inclosed within a Wall, serving as a Burial-Place for the Parish.

NEAR this Church-yard, is a spacious House, with a large Court Yard, handsomely paved with Free-stone, formerly belonging to Sir Thomas Bludworth, Knt. Lord Mayor, 1666, and since to Richard Levett, Esq; Son of Sir Richard Levett, Knt. Lord Mayor in the Year 1700; in which House, he kept his Mayoralty. On the same Side, but beyond Staining-lane, is seated Haberdashers Hall, a large Building, which is in Part of this Lane, but in Cripplegate Ward.

Staining-lane, the East Side, which joineth unto Haberdashers Hall, is in Cripplegate Ward. At the upper End of the Lane was the Church of St. Mary Staining, which Church is not rebuilt since the Fire of LONDON; but the Parish united unto St. Michael Woodstreet, and the Ground inclosed within a Wall, for the Burial of the Dead for the Parish.

Gutter-lane hath the West Side, from the Corner of Maiden-lane unto Carey-lane, in this Ward, and the East in Cripplegate Ward.

Noble-street, long, and indifferently well inhabited; the End next to Foster-lane being esteemed the best. In this Street are these Places of Note; Lillypot-lane, but ordinary; falls into Staining-lane, as doth Oat-lane, also but small. Betwixt these two Lanes is White-horse-court, open, but ordinary. Dolphin-court, small, seated opposite to Oat-lane. A little more Northwards, is Coachmakers Hall, a handsome Building. Fitche's-court, a handsome broad Place, with a Free-stone Pavement; hath good Houses, with Inhabitants answerable. At the Upper End is an old Timber House, where formerly Titchborn, some Time Alderman and Lord Mayor, dwelt. This House strangely escaped burning in the dreadful Fire of LONDON, when all the Houses round it were quite consumed. Hide's-court, but small.

Coachmakers Hall.

St. Olaves's Silver-street Church, was seated on the North West Corner of this Street; not rebuilt since its Burning in the great Fire of LONDON; and the Parish is united to St. Alban's Woodstreet, as before-mentioned.

St. Anne's lane, a Place of some Trade, lieth betwixt Foster-lane, and St. Martin's le Grand, near Aldersgate. About the Middle of this Lane, on the North Side, is St. Anne's-alley, having a Free-stone Pavement, which leadeth to St. Anne's Church, and from thence into Noble-street, severing the Church from the Church-yard. Since the Fire of LONDON, in which it was consumed, it is rebuilt very handsome and neat, the Front facing Southward, all of rubbed Brick: To which is united the Parish of St. John Zachary.

St. Martin's le Grand lies West out of St. Anne's-lane, now much inhabited by Shoemakers.

It is a Place which yet claimeth Privileges; and belonging to the City of Westminster: At the Election of Burgeses of Parliament for that City, the Inhabitants of St. Martin's, as is before-said, have their Voices; and although within the City of LONDON, and Ward of Aldersgate; yet it is exempt from their Jurisdiction. In this Liberty they still have a Prison, and a Bailiff, and keep Courts for mean Actions. It contains but one principal Street, and that is called St. Martin's le Grand; which cometh out of Blowbladder-street, by the West End of Cheapside, and runneth to Aldersgate. But this Liberty runneth but to Bell-court, near unto St. Anne's-lane. And from Bell-court unto Aldersgate, is in Aldersgate Ward, and out of this Liberty. This Street is a Place of a considerable Trade, it is a great Thoroughfare, and its Houses well built.

IN

IN this Liberty are these Courts and Places of Note; Round-court, large, with a handsome Free-Stone Pavement, the Part towards St. Martin's being a handsome square Court. It has a Passage into Blowbladder-street, which is taken up by Milliners, Sempstresses, and such as sell Copper Lace, called St. Martin's Lace, for which it is of Note. Out of this Court is an Alley which leads into New-rents, which also comes into St. Martin's-street; and at the Upper-End are two Passages into Foster-lane, one of which goes into a Place called the Dark-entry, by St. Leonard Foster-lane Church-Yard. Mould-makers-rents, an indifferent open Place; out of which are several Passages, as into New-rents, Dean's-court, and George-street. New-rents, a handsome Street, which comes out of St. Martin's-street; and at the Upper-End was the Swan Tavern. Great Dean's-court, an open Place, indifferently well built and inhabited; has a Passage into Moldmakers-rents, or Row, and another into George-street. In this Court is another small one, called Little-Dean's-court, which is but ordinary. George-street, of which there are two; the one leading into Foster-lane, and the other into Round-court. St. John's-alley, ordinary. Cock-alley has a narrow Entrance which leads into an open Place, with a Free-Stone Pavement, indifferent. Christopher's-alley, has a Free-Stone Pavement, good; which, at the Upper-End, has a Door into the Bagnio. Four-dove-court, an open Place, with a Free-Stone Pavement. King's-head-court, a handsome Place, well built and inhabited, with a Free-Stone Pavement. Angel-alley, good, the Upper-End falls into Butcherhall-lane. Of this Street, that Part within this Liberty goes no farther than King's-head-court; the rest of this Street is in the Ward of Faringdon Within.

Bull-and-mouth-street goes out of St. Martin's le Grand, and runs up to Butcherhall-lane; but it has no more in this Ward than a little Westward of the Bull-and-mouth-inn, which is large, and well built, and of good Resort by those that bring Bone-Lace, where the Shop-keepers and others come to buy it. The Fountain Tavern, commonly called the Mourning Bush, which has a Back-Door into St. Anne's-lane, is seated near unto Aldersgate. And in this Part of St. Martin's, is a noted Meeting-House of the Quakers, called the Bull-and-mouth, and where they met long before the Fire.

Aldersgate-street, very spacious and long, and although the Buildings are old, and not uniform, yet many of them are very good, and well inhabited; and of the principal of them, two are very large, the one formerly called Dorchester-house, as being the Seat of the late Marquess of Dorchester; and Peter-house, as belonging once to the Lord Peters, now called London-house, having last been the Seat of the Bishop of LONDON. The other Thanet-house, which, says an ingenious Author, is a most delightful fine Edifice that declares the masterly Hand of Inigo Jones, and was formerly the Residence of the Earls of Shaftsbury; an Edifice that deserves a much better Situation, and greater Care in preserving it from the Injuries of Time: But the Politeness of the Town is so far removed from hence, that 'tis hardly possible this Fabrick should be admired as it ought, or kept in suitable Repair: Already it has been converted into a Tavern, and is made to serve other mechanick Uses.

THIS Street runs Northward unto the End of Barbican on the East Side, and Long-lane on the West, where Goswel-street begins. In this Street are a great many Alleys and Courts, and for the describing them, we shall begin at Al- dersgate. Castle Inn, very large, and of a considerable Resort. In the Yard are several good Houses for private Families: And out of this Yard, is a Passage into Jewen-street. Harrow-court, small and indifferent. Cooks Hall, seated over-against Little-Britain. Greyhound-court, mean and ordinary. Cock-and-bottle-court, poor and ordinary. Ball-alley, long, narrow, and ordinary. Golden-lion-court, well built and inhabited on the North Side, the East Side being open and airy, with Gardens. Deputies-court, or Rose-and-rainbow-court, ordinary; but there have been, within a few Years, several new Buildings at the farther End of it. Nettleton-court, large, but ordinary Buildings. Maidenhead-court, large, but indifferently built, with a Passage into Crowders-well-alley; from whence one may go into Jewen-street, in Cripplegate Ward. George Inn, formerly the White Hart Inn, very large, and convenient for the Reception of Coaches, Waggon, and Travelers. It hath Galleries that lead to the Chambers, as customary in many great Inns. There is in Thanet-house, which adjoins to this Inn, a Lace-Chamber of very good Resort for Buyers and Sellers; and the Inn has most of the Trade which formerly did belong to the George Inn in Little-Britain. Trinity-court, open, but indifferently built. Westmoreland-alley, or the Paved-alley, as paved with Free-Stone; the Passage leads through Westmoreland-court into St. Bartholomew's-close. Angel-alley, large, and somewhat narrow towards the Upper-End; where it has a Passage into Horn-alley, an open Place, very long, with low Buildings. About the Middle it has a Passage into Cockpit-yard, well built, which gives Entrance into Jewen-street; and that falls into Redcross-street, near St. Giles's Cripplegate Church; and this is a Street well built and inhabited: But of this Street there is no more in this Ward than Cockpit-yard, the rest and greatest Part being in Cripplegate Ward. Cradle-court, a handsome open Place, well built, with a Free-Stone Pavement. Black-horse-alley, but small, and ordinary. Black-horse-court, also small. Half-moon-court, a little open, but mean. Half-moon-alley, but narrow, has a Passage through the Half-moon Tavern into St. Bartholomew's-close. Tongue's-court, small, with old Buildings. Lauderdale-house, or Court, a large old Building, with a Free-Stone Court before it. Hare-court, open for Carts; at the Upper-End it falls into Paul's-alley, and so into Redcross-street. Bell Inn, of good Resort for Waggon with Meal, &c. The Sun Tavern, large, and of a good Trade.

Goswel-street, begins at Barbican, where Aldersgate-street ends, and runs up to the Bars, in this Ward, and much farther Northward beyond Old-street. This Street is broad, but meanly built and inhabited, especially beyond the Bars. In this Street, within the Bars, are these Courts and Places of Note: Cock Inn, has a good Trade, and resorted unto by Waggon that bring Meal, and other Goods. Devonshire-court, contains two Courts, one within another, and both but small and ordinary. Red-lion Inn, of a good Trade, and has a large Yard for Coach-Houses and Stabling. Through this Yard is a Passage into Charter-house-yard, and another into Long-lane. Beggars-lane, an open Passage into Charter-house-yard, and so to Smithfield-bars, and St. John's-street, a great Thorough-Fare. Three Cups Inn. White-horse-yard, a large open Place for Stabling and Coach-Houses, and has in it some Dwelling-Houses. Vine-yard, large, but of small Account, having old Houses, and some Part not built. Fanns-alley, just without the Bars, as to the Entrance, which is broad enough for Carts, and but but indifferently built and inhabited, the South Side being in this Ward, and the other in the Liberty of St. Giles's Cripplegate. This Alley has a Passage into Bridgewater-street, which leads into Brackley-street, and so into Litton-street, and thence into Golden-lane; all Places well built with new Brick Houses, and built on the Ground belonging to the House of the Earl of Bridgewater, who resided there before it was all built into Tenements. But all these Streets are in Cripplegate Ward.

Barbican, a good large Street, comes out of the Upper-End of Aldersgate-street, and runs up to Redcross-street; a Place of good Trade for Salesmen and Brokers for Apparel, both old and new. The Part of this Street within the Ward is but little, viz. from the Corner next to Aldersgate-street, to White-lion-court on the North Side; which is but mean, with Houses ready to fall: And Fox-and-crown-court on the South Side, which is also but ordinary.

Long-lane, so called for its Length, coming out of Aldersgate-street against Barbican, and falls into West-smithfield. A Place also of Note for the Sale of Apparel, Linen, and Upholsters Goods, both Second-hand and New, but chiefly for Old. This Lane has but little in this Ward, especially the South Side; and the North Side takes in the Red-lion Inn, already spoken of.

Little-Britain comes out of Aldersgate-street, by St. Botolph's Aldersgate Church, and runs up to the Pump, where it opens into a broad Street, and turning Northward, runs up to Duck-lane, having another turning Passage to the Lame Hospital, or St. Bartholomew's Hospital. This Street is well built, and much inhabited by Booksellers, especially from the Pump to Duck-lane, which is also taken up by Booksellers for old Books.

THE Parish Church of St. Botolph's Aldersgate, seated at the End of this Street, next to Aldersgate-street, an old Building. This Church was not burnt in the Fire of LONDON, 1666.

IN this Street of Little-Britain are these Courts and Places of Note. The George Inn, which has also a Passage into Aldersgate-street. Cross-keys-court, a Place with good Buildings, and Gardens behind some of them. Redcross-alley, a small and ordinary Place. Carpenters-yard, an open Place, which has a Passage into Townditch, being an open Place belonging to Christ's Hospital, which has good Houses on the Side fronting the Hospital. Pelican-court, a large Place, with good Houses, well inhabited. At the Upper-End it divides itself into two Courts, and both bear the same Name. On the West Side it has a Passage into Fryars-court, which is but small and ordinary. Fryars-rents, has a narrow Passage into a small and ordinary Court. Axe-yard, or Court, long and narrow, with good Houses at the Upper-End. Great Mountague-court, a good handsome Place, with a Free-Stone Pavement, well built and inhabited. Little Mountague-court, but narrow, with a Free-Stone Pavement.

THERE are to watch at Aldersgate, and other Stands in this Ward, every Night, one Constable, the Beadle, and 44 Watchmen. And in the Liberty of St. Martin's le Grand, which is in this Ward, 12. In all 56.

THE Jurymen which are returned by the Wardmote Inquest, are to serve in the several Courts in the Guildhall, in the Month of August.

THIS Ward hath an Alderman and two Deputies, one within the Gate, and one without. Eight Common-Council-Men, eight Constables, nine Scavengers, nineteen Wardmote Inquest Men, and a Beadle.

IT is taxed to the Fifteen in LONDON, 7*l.* and in the Exchequer, 6*l.* 19*s.*

THE Alderman of this Ward is Richard Levett, Esq;

C H A P. VIII.

F A R I N G D O N W A R D Within.

ON the South Side of Aldersgate Ward lies Faringdon Ward, called infra, or within, for a Difference from another Ward of that Name, which lies without the Walls of the City, and is therefore called Faringdon extra. These two Wards (of old Time) were but one, and had also but one Alderman, 'till the 17th of Richard II. At which Time the said Ward (for the Greatness thereof) was divided into two, and by Parliament ordered to have two Aldermen, and so it continues 'till this Day. The whole great Ward of Faringdon, both infra and extra, took its Name from William Farendon, Goldsmith, Alderman of that Ward, and one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, in the Year 1281, the 9th of Edward I. He purchased the Aldermanry of this Ward, as by this Abstract of Deeds may appear.

Thomas de Arden, Sonne and Heire to Sir Ralph Arden, Knt. granted to Ralph le Feure, Citizen of LONDON, one of the Sheriffs in the Year 1277, all the Aldermanrie, with the No 42. VOL. I.

Appurtenances, within the City of LONDON, and Suburbs of the same, between Ludgate and Newgate, and also without the same Gates; which Aldermanrie, Ankerinus de Avene held during his Life, by the Grant of the said Thomas de Ardena. To have and to hold unto the said Ralph, and to his Heires, freely without all Challenge; yeelding therefore yeerely to the said Thomas and his Heires, one Clove (or Slip) of Gilliflowers, at the Feast of Easter, for all secular Service and Custome, with warrantie unto the said Ralph le Feure, and his Heires, against all People, Christians and Jewes, in Consideration of 20 Markes, which the said Ralph le Feure did give beforehand, in Name of a Gersum or Fine, to the said Thomas, &c. Dated the 5th of Edward I.

Witnesse, G. de Rokesley, Maior,
R. Arrar, one of the Sheriffs,
H. Wales,
P. le Taylor,
T. de Bassing,
J. Horn,
N. Blackthorn, Alderman of London.

AFTER this, John le Feure, Son and Heir to the said Ralph le Feure, granted to William Farendon, Citizen and Goldsmith of LONDON, and to his Heirs, the said Aldermanry, with the Appurtenances, for the Service thereunto belonging, in the 7th of Edward I. in the Year of CHRIST 1279. This Aldermanry descended to Nicholas Farendon, Son to the said William, and to his Heirs. Which Nicholas Farendon, also a Goldsmith, was four Times Mayor, and lived many Years after; for Munday saith, he has read divers Deeds, whereunto he was a Witness, dated A. D. 1360. He made his Will 1361, which was 53 Years after his first being Mayor, and was buried in St. Peter's Church in Cheap. So this Ward continued under the Government of William Farendon, and Nicholas his Son, the Space of fourscore and two Years, and retains their Name unto this present Day.

THIS Ward of Faringdon within the Walls is bounded thus; beginning in the East, where the great Cross stood in West Cheap; from thence it runs West, on the North Side where the Parish-Church of St. Peter stood, which was at the South West Corner of Wood-street, to Gutter-lane, and down that Lane to Huggen-lane on the East Side, and to Kery-lane on the West.

THEN again into Cheapside, and to Foster-lane, and down that Lane, on the East Side, to the North Side of St. Foster's Church; and on the West, till over-against the South West Corner of the said Church; from thence down Forster-lane and Noble-street, is all of Aldersgate-street Ward, till you come to the Stone-Wall on the West Side of Noble-street; then by the said Wall, down to Windsor-house, or Nevil's-Inn; and down Monks-well-street, on the West Side; and then by London-wall to Cripplegate; and the West Side of that same Gate is all of Faringdon Ward.

THEN back again into Cheapside; and from Foster-lane End, to St. Martin's-lane End; and from thence through St. Nicholas Shambles by Pentecost-lane, and Butchers-alley, and by Stinking-lane, thro' Newgate-market to Newgate. All which is the North Side of Faringdon Ward.

THEN on the South, from against the Place of the great Cross in Cheap, West from Friday-street, and down that Street, on the East Side, till over-against the North East Corner of St. Matthew's Church; and on the West Side, till the South Corner of the said Church.

THEN again along Cheap to the Old Exchange, and down that Lane, on the East Side, to the Parish-Church of St. Augustine; which Church, and one House next adjoining in Watling-street, are of this Ward. And then on the West Side of this Lane it ran to the East Arch or Gate by St. Augustine's Church, which enter'd the South Church-yard of St. Paul's, and which Arch was built by Nicholas Farendon, about the Year 1361; and within the Gate, all that was formerly call'd the North Church-yard, was of this Ward.

THEN again into Cheap; and from the North End of the Old Exchange West, where the North Gate of St. Paul's Church-yard stood, up Pater-noster-row, to within about twelve Doors of Ave-mary-lane; the West Side of which Lane, is of this Ward.

THEN at the South End of Ave-mary-lane, is Creed-lane, the West Side whereof is also of this Ward.

BETWIXT the South End of Ave-mary-lane, and the North End of Creed-lane, was the coming out of St. Paul's Church-yard, on the East; and the High Street, called Bowyer-Row, now Ludgate-street, on the West, which goes to Ludgate, is of this Ward; on the North Side whereof, is

St. Martin's Church, and on the South, the Turning into Black-friars.

NOW to turn up again to the North End of Ave-mary-lane, there is a short Lane, on the West End of it, called Amen-lane, or Amen-corner.

THEN on the North Side of Pater-noster-row, beginning where the Conduit stood, over-against the Old Exchange Lane End, and going West by which stood St. Michael's Church, at the West End of which was a small Passage thro' toward the North; and at some small Distance, another Passage, which is called Panier-alley, and comes out against St. Martin's le Grand.

THEN farther West, in Pater-noster-row, is Ivy-lane, which runs North to where stood the West End of St. Nicholas Shambles.

THE West Side of Warwick-lane is of this Ward; but the East Side of that, of Ave-Mary-lane, and of Creed-lane, with the West End of Pater-noster-row, are all of Baynard's-castle Ward.

TO begin again from the Place of the Conduit by the Old Exchange; on the North Side thereof was a large Street that ran up to Newgate, the first Part to the Shambles, call'd Bladder-street. On the Back-side of the Shambles, were many Slaughter-houses, and such like belonging to the Shambles, and called Mount-godard-street. Then were the Shambles, and then Newgate-market; and so the whole Street on both Sides up to Newgate, all of this Ward, which is the farthest Extent of it.

MONUMENTS in this Ward were these:

First, The great Cross in West Cheap Street, but in the Ward of Faringdon; which Cross was first erected in that Place by Edward I., as before is shewed in West Cheap Street.

The PARISH of St. PETER in CHEAP.

AT the South West Corner of Woodstreet, was the Parish of St. Peter the Apostle, by the said Cross. John Sha, Goldsmith, Mayor, deceased 1503, appointed by his Testament, the said Church and Steeple to be new built of his Goods, with a flat Roof. Notwithstanding, Thomas Wood, Goldsmith, one of the Sheriffs, 1491, is accounted a principal Benefactor, because the Roof of the Middle Isle was supported by Images of Woodmen.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified at the Charge of the Parishioners, in the Years of our Lord 1616, and 1617, (the Charge of it amounting to 314 l.) but being burnt in the Fire of LONDON, was not rebuilt, but the Parish, by Act of Parliament, annexed to that of St. Matthew in Friday-street.

INTERMENTS.

IN the old Church were buried, Nicholas Farendon, Mayor; Richard Hadley, Grocer, 1492.

John Palmer, Fishmonger, 1500.

William Rus, Goldsmith, Sheriff, 1429.

No Parsonage-House before the Fire, or since. But there is a Piece of Ground in Philip-lane, LONDON, on which, it has been said, were two Houses before the Fire, one for the Minister, and the other for the Benefit of the Poor. The Ground was let for a Timber-Yard from Year to Year, for 6 l. per Ann. One half the Parish agreed the Minister should have, and was accordingly allowed him.

THE long Shop, or narrow Shed incroaching on the Highway before this Church was licensed to be made in the Year 1401, for yielding to the Chamber of LONDON 30 s. 4 d. the Year's Rent, but since 13 s. 4 d. Also the same Shop was let by the Parish for 3 l. at the most, for many Years.

THE Vestry is General.

THEN is Gutter-lane, originally called Guthurun's-lane, from one Guthurun, some Time Owner thereof.

THE Inhabitants of this Lane (of old Time) were Goldbeaters, as doth appear by Records in the Exchequer. For the Easterling Money was appointed to be made of fine Silver, such as Men make into Foyle, and was commonly called Silver of Guthurun's-lane, &c. The Embroiderers Hall is in this Lane. John Throstone, Embroiderer, then Goldsmith, Sheriff, deceased 1519, gave 40 l. towards the Purchase of this Hall. Huggen-lane on the East Side, and Kery-lane (called so from one Kery) on the West. Then in the High-Street, on the same North Side, is Sadlers Hall.

The PARISH of

St. VEDAST, alias FOSTER.

THEN is Foster-lane, so called from St. Foster's Church situated on the East Side, near the South End thereof.

St. Vedast (to whom this Church is dedicated) was once Bishop of Arras, in Artois, concerning whom, Clodoveus, or Clovis, King of France (the first Christian King of that Nation) about Ann. Christi 484, going to St. Remigius, Bishop of Rhemes, took along with him this Vedast, a very devout Man, who in their Journey restored a blind Man to his Sight ; the King being come to Remigius, was baptized by him, and returning ing home, left this Vedast with Remigius, who abiding with him, grew famous for his worthy Deserts and Virtue, being religious and charitable, continually praying and fasting, and pitiful to all that were in Distress. At last, he was so well esteemed by St. Remigius, that he ordained him Bishop of Arras; this Bishop then going towards his Bishoprick, met two Beggars, the one lame, and the other blind, who begging something of him, he having no Money, with Tears so effectually prayed for them, that he restored instantly, the one to his Sight, the other to his Feet. He afterwards meeting with a cruel Bear among the Ruins of an old demolished Christian Church, at his Command the Bear departed thence into the Wilderness, and never returned thither again, which is the Reason that he is ordinarily pictured with a Bear.

He died under the Reign of Clotarius, King of France, Anno Dom. 566. Sigebert says, he died in 570. Of him write Beda and others. To shew this Bishop's Worth, says Ussuardus, a Pillar of wonderful Brightness shone from Heaven over the House where he lay sick, presaging his Death.

His Festivity is celebrated yearly on the 6th of February.

Stow says this was a fair Church, new built not many Ages since; and that Henry Coot, Goldsmith, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, deceased in 1539, built St. Dunstan's Chapel here. John Throwstone, another of the Sheriffs of LONDON, in 1516, gave to the Building of this Church, 100*l.* by his Testament. John Browne, Serjeant-Painter, Alderman, deceased in 1532, was a great Benefactor, and was here buried.

HERE was a Chantry founded for the Souls of Jeffery at Gate, Joan and Alice, his Wives, and others.

THIS Church was repaired and beautified in 1614; and at the Chancel End, was added 20 Feet of Ground; which Ground, so to lengthen the Church, was given to the Parish, out of a fair Court then belonging to Sadlers Hall.

THIS Church suffered much in the Fire of LONDON, yet not so but that it was afterwards repaired, for the most Part, upon the old Walls, and the Tower and Steeple stood 'till the Year 1694; but being much weakened by the said Fire, it was re-edified, as it now appears, in the Year 1697; and the Pewing and Ornament, by the Direction and Approbation of the Committee chosen by the united Parishes, Ann. Dom. 1698.

THIS Church is well built of Stone, the Roof within is flat, covered with Lead, and supported on the South Side with Columns of the Tuscan Order, and a Gallery with four Columns of the same Order. There are three Isles, and the Floor is paved with Stone, all of one Height, both Church and Chancel.

As to Ornament. The Roof is adorned with an elliptical Figure, within a Parallellagram environ'd with curious Fret-Work, and the Key-Pieces of the Arches between the Columns, are enriched with Cherubims. There is a handsome Wainscot Gallery at the West End, and the Pews are Oak, wherewith the Walls are wainscotted near nine Feet high. The Pulpit is also of Oak, finely carved and finniere, having Enrichments of Cherubims, Palm-Branches and Fruit; and on the Sound-Board, the Figures of seven Golden Candlesticks, with Wax-Tapers, and as many Stars of eight Rays. On the North Wall the King's Arms are placed, being carved in Relievo, with Supporters, Crest, &c. At the West End is a handsome Door-Case of fine Wainscot, adorned with two Pilasters, Architrave, Frieze and Cornice, of the Corinthian Order; and the like on the North Side, near the North West Angle.

THE Altar-Piece is very curious, as well as magnificent; it is adorned below with four Columns, their Entablature and large Compass Pediment of the Corinthian Order; over which Columns are as many Acroters, whereon are placed on each a Lamp, and a fifth on a small Triangular Pediment there, under which is a Glory, in the Form of an equilateral Triangle within a spacious Circle, surrounded with Cupids, the uppermost whereof is sounding two Trumpets (and to his right Hand the Figure of an Eye) others holding Palm-Branches, &c. within this Triangle is wrote in Hebrew, Greek and Latin, the Words of St. John Chap. i. and Verse 1. the rest of the upper Intercolumns are Mitres, and those below, are the Decalogue between the Lord's Prayer and Creed, all very exquisitely written in Gold Characters on Black, between the superior Parts of which Commandments, is a Pelican neatly carved, and the whole has Enrichments of Cherubims, Fruit, Laurel and Palm-Branches, &c. and in a Window above these is painted the King's Arms, and above all, a Glory, in the 'Semblance of a Dove, descending within a circular Grappa of Cherubims, all carved and gilt. The Communion-Table is also ornamental, supported by the Figures of four Angels resting, on a Foot-Pace of Marble, inclosed with Rail and Ballister.

THE Dimensions are, Length 69 Feet, Breadth 51, Altitude about 36, and that of the Tower about 90 Feet, wherein are six Bells to be rung in Peal.

INTERMENTS.

THE Persons here buried, beside Henry Coote, and John Throwstone, before-mention'd, were John Browne, Serjeant-Painter, Alderman, deceased 1532. William Trist, Sclerar to the King, 1425. John Standelf and John Standelf, Goldsmiths. Richard Galder, 1544. Agnes, Wife to William Milborne, Chamberlain of LONDON, 1500.

John Standelf, Citizen and Goldsmith, gave by Will that Tenement in Fleet-streer, after the Death of John his Son, to the Rector of St. John Vedast, and to the Keepers or Wardens of the Goldsmiths for ever, to find a perpetual Lamp in the Chancel of the Church of St. Vedast; and to hold an Anniversary for his Soul, and of Matilda his Wife; and to distribute to thirteen Poor of the Goldsmiths Trade, 2*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.* to pray for his Soul.

MONUMENTS in the Old Church.

ON a fair Stone in the Chancel.

Hic jacet Dominus Thomas Baby, quondam Capellanus Aurifabrorum London. Qui obiit 3 die Mens. Novemb. An. Dom. 1452. Cujus, &c.

ON a fair Stone by the Communion-Table.

Here lieth buried the Body of John Lonyson, Esq; Master of the Mint of England, Citizen and Goldsmith of LONDON, who most joyfully changed this miserable and wearisome Life, with the Felicity and Happiness of God's Kingdom, in good Religion and godly Charitie, in true Feare and stedfast Faith, with a full Persuasion of Remission in the Blood of JESUS CHRIST, the One and Twentieth Day of May, Anno Dom. 1583, being about the 59th Yeere of his Age.

ON a Monument in the Wall of the South Choir.

Here lieth interred the Body of Christopher Wase, late Citizen and Goldsmith of London, aged 66 Yeeres; and dyed the 22d of September, 1605. Who had to Wife Anne, the Daughter of William Prettyman; and had by her three Sonnes and three Daughters.

Reader, stay,
and thou shalt know
What he was
that here doth sleepe; Lodg'd amidst,
the Stones below;
Stones that oft
are seen to weep.
Gentile was his Birth and Breed,
His Carriage gentle
much contenting;
His Word accorded with his Deed,
Sweet his Nature
soone relenting.
From above
he seem'd protected,
Father dead
Before his Birth,
An Orphane, only
but neglected,
Yet his Branches
spread on Earth:
Earth, that must his Bones contain Sleeping till Christ's
Trumpet shall wake them,
Joyning them to Soul againe
And to Blisse
eternal take them
It is not this rude
and little Heape of Stones,
Can hold the Fame,
Although't contains the Bones.
Light be the Earth,
and hallowed for thy sake,
Resting in Peace
Peace that so oft didst make.

A small Monument in the Wall with a gilt Plate.

Under the Stone, right against this Monument, lie buried the Bodies of Robert Marsb, Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, and Florence his first Wife; by whom he had Issue seven Sonnes. By Elizabeth, his second Wife, (left living) he had Issue three Sonnes and a Daughter. He departed this Life the 7th Day of October, Anno Dom. 1602, after he had lived 65 Yeeres and three Dayes.

A fair plated Stone under the Communion-Table.

Hereunder lyeth buried the Body of Mistris Martha Prescot, the Wife of Alexander Prescot, Citizen and Alderman of LONDON; whose Soule the Lord took to his Mercy the 26th Day of Novemb. 1616. When she had lived a married Life just 23 Yeeres that Day; and 40 Yeeres, 2 Moneths, 3 Weekes, and odde Dayes, from the Time of her Birth. She had Issue by her said Husband, six Sonnes and five Daughters; and her youngest of all, being a Daughter, named Elizabeth, lyeth hereunder interred, in the same Grave on the same Day of Burial with the said Mother.

VOL. I.

A fair plated Grave-stone in the Middle Isle.

Lord of thine infinite
Grace and Pitie,
Have Mercy on me
Agnes, some Time the Wife Of William Milborne
Chamberlain of this Citie,
Which took my Passage from this wretched Life,
The Yeere of Grace,
one thousand five hundred and five;
The twelfth Day of July,
no longer was my Space;
It pleased then my Lord
to call me to his Grace.
Now ye that are living,
and see this Picture,
Pray for me here
while ye have Time and Space,
That God of his Goodnesse would me assure,
In his everlasting Mansion to have a Place.

Here lyes the Bodies of Laurence Hawes, Citizen and Fishmonger of LONDON, about 63 Years of Age. And of Ursula his Wife, the Daughter of John Henrick, of Leicester, Esq; 82 Years of Age. They had Issue together four Sons and two Daughters, Edward, George, Humphry, John; Dorothy and Thomasin. He deceased the 10th of April, 1588; and she died the 24th of November, 1614.

Late MONUMENTS.

NUMBER of Houses, 132.

IN antient Time there was a Stone Wall, which inclosed a Garden-Plat before the Wall of the City, on the West Side of Noble-street, and was of this Faringdon Ward. This Garden-Plat, containing 95 Ells in Length, nine Ells and an half in Breadth, was by Adam de Burie, Mayor, the Aldermen and Citizens of LONDON, let to John de Nevel, Lord of Raby, Radulph and Thomas, his Sons, for 60 Years, paying 6 s. 8 d. the Year; dated the 48th of Edward III. Having in a Seal pendant on the one Side, the Figure of a walled City, and of St. Paul; a Sword in his Right Hand, and in his Left a Banner; three Leopards about that Seal: On the same Side written, Sigillum Baronum Londoniarum. On the other Side, the like Figure of a City, a Bishop sitting on an Arch, the Inscription, Me: que: te: peperis: ne: Cesset: Thoma: tueri.

THUS much for the Barons of LONDON their common Seal at that Time.

AT the North End of this Garden-Plat was a large House, built of Stone and Timber, which Stow says was, in his Time, called the Lord Windsor's House, but of old Time belonging to the Nevels, as in the 19th of Richard II. it was found by Inquisition of a Jury, that Elizabeth Nevel died, seized of a great Messuage in the Parish of St. Olave in Monks-well-street in LONDON, holden of the King in free Burgage; which she held of the Gift of John Nevel of Raby, her Husband; and that John

Latimer was next Son and Heir to the said Elizabeth.

THIS House was called Nevel's Inn, and possessed by that Noble Family to the Time of Henry VI. In the 4th of whose Reign, Ralph Nevel, Earl of Westmoreland, died, seized of that Messuage in the Parish of St. Olave, in Faringdon Ward, LONDON; and the Heirs Male of his Body, begotten on Jane, his Wife. And of another Messuage called Le Erbor, in Dowgate Ward; both held in Burgage, as the City of LONDON was held.

IN this Street, on the West Side thereof, is Barber-Surgeons Hall, already mentioned.

AT the North Corner of this Street, on the same Side, was some Time an Hermitage, or Chapel of St. James, called In-the-wall, near Cripplegate. It belonged to the Abbey and Convent of Garadon, as appears by a Record the 27th of Edward I. and also by a Record the 16th of Edward III. William de Lion was Hermit there; and the Abbey and Convent of Garadon found two Chaplains, Cistercian Monks of their House, in this Hermitage: One of them for Amor de Valence, Earl of Pembrook; and Mary de Saint Paul, his Countess.

OF these Monks, and of a Well pertaining to them, the Street took that Name, and is called Monks-well-street. This Hermitage, with the Appurtenances, was, in the Reign of Edward VI. purchased from the said King, by William Lambe, one of the Gentlemen of the King's Chapel, Citizen and Clothworker of LONDON. He deceased in the Year 1577, and then gave it to the Clothworkers of LONDON; with other Tenements, to the Value of 50 l. the Year; to the Intent they shall hire a Minister to say divine Service there.

TO come again to the High-Street of Cheapside, from Foster-lane End to St. Martin's, and so on; there was antiently on the North Side of Shambles, a Lane, called Pentecost-lane, containing divers Slaughter-Houses for the Butchers, and here was, at that Time, the Butchers Hall.

The PARISH of St. NICHOLAS SHAMBLES.

NEAR this was the Parish-Church of St. Nicholas, from which the Flesh-Market took its Name, and was called St. Nicholas Shambles.

THERE was then a Lane or Passage from Vedast-lane, now Foster-lane, to Great St. Martin's-Church on one Part, and to this Church of St. Nicholas Shambles on the other. But one William de Luda, some Time Dean of St. Martin's, stopped it up. Whereupon, at an Inquisition made in Edward II.'s Reign, for Purprestures and Annoyances in the City, the King's Justices sitting at the Tower, the Jury presented this; and that it was to the Damage of the King and the Commonalty of the City. But Richard de Ellesfield, then Dean of St. Martin's, came and shewed, that he held the said Lane stopped up, by Vertue of a Licence from King Edward I. and that by Letters Patents, which he produced.

THIS Church, with the Tenements and Ornaments, was by Henry VIII. given to the Mayor and Commonalty of the City, towards the Maintenance of the new Parish-Church, then to be erected in the late dissolved Church of the Grey-fryars; so was this Church dissolved and pulled down. In place whereof, and of the Church-Yard, many fair Houses were built, in a Court with a Well, &c. in the Middle whereof the Church stood.

THEN was Stinking-lane, formerly so called, or Chick-lane, at the East End of the Gray-fryars Church. It is now called by the Name of Butchers-hall-lane, the Butches Hall having been there.

IN the 3d of Richard II. Motion was made, that no Butcher should kill any Flesh within LONDON, but at Knightsbridge, or such like distant Place from the Walls of the City.

THIS was but the renewing of a Command strictly given by King Edward III. in the 25th of his Reign, to the Mayor and Sheriffs, upon a great Contagion in the City: which was thought to have been occasioned by the Stink of slain Beasts within, or near the City. The King's Letter will explain this Matter more at large, and that confirmed, as it seems, in Parliament.

REX Maiori, &c. Quia per maculationem grossarum bestiarum, &c. i. e. Because by Reason of killing great Beasts, &c. from whose putrified Blood running down the Streets, and the Bowels cast into the Thames, the Air in the City is very much corrupted and infected, whence abominable and most filthy Stinks proceed, Sickneses and many other Evils have happened to such as have Abode in the said City, or have resorted to it; and greater Dangers are feared to fall out for the Time to come, unless Remedy be presently made against it; we, willing to prevent such Danger, and to prevent, as much as in us lies, for the Honesty of the said City, and the Safety of our People, by the Consent of our Council, in our present Parliament, have ordained, That all Bulls, Oxen, Hogs, and other gross Creatures, to be slain for the Sustentation of the said City, to be led as far as the Town of Stretford, (i. e. Stretford le Bow) on one Part of LONDON, and the Town of Knightsbrugg on the other, and there, and not on this Side, be slain, and that their Bowels be there cleansed; and being so cleansed, to be brought, together with the Flesh, to the said City to be sold. And if any Butcher shall presume any Thing rashly against this Ordinance, let him incur Forfeiture of the Flesh of the Creatures, which he hath caused to be slain on this Side the said Towns, and the Punishment of Imprisonment for one Year. This Ordinance to be publickly proclaimed and held; and all Butchers doing otherwise, to be chastised and punished according to the Form of the Ordinance aforesaid. Witness, the King at Westminster, the 25th of February.

The PARISH of CHRIST CHURCH.

AND then the late dissolved Church of Grey-fryars, (called also Fryars-minors within Newgate) the Original whereof was thus:

The GREY-FRYARS.

THE first of this Order of Fryars in England, nine in Number, arrived at Dover, and of Italy, in the Year 1224, the 8th Year of the Reign of King Henry III. being of the Order of the Franciscans, or Fryar Minors. Five of them, being Priests, remained at Canterbury; the other four, being Laymen, came to LONDON, and were lodged at the Preaching-fryars in Oldboorn, for the Space of 15 Days; and then they they hired a House in Cornhill, of John Trevers, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON. They built there little Cells, wherein they inhabited. But shortly after, the Devotion of the Citizens towards them, and the Number of the Fryars so increased, that they were by the Citizens removed to a Place in St. Nicholas Shambles, which John Ewin, Mercer, purchasing a void Piece of Ground, appropriated to the Commonalty, to the Use of these said Fryars; and himself became a Lay-Brother amongst them, about the Year 1225.

DIVERS Citizens seemed herein to join with the said John Ewin, and erected there very beautiful Buildings.

William Joyner, Lord Mayor of LONDON, in the Year 1239, built the Choir, which cost him 200 l. Sterling; which Choir made Part of the Chancel.

Henry Walleis, who was likewise Lord Mayor of LONDON, built the Body of the Church, which afterwards was pulled down and rebuilt.

Mr. Walter Potter, Alderman, the Chapter-House, and gave divers Vessels of Brass for the Kitchen Service: Building Places also for sick Persons, and other Offices besides.

Thomas Pelcham built the Vestry-House.

George Rokefley, Lord Mayor of LONDON, built their Dorters and Chambers, and gave Beds to them.

Bartholomew of the Castel made the Refectory.

Peter de Helyland built the Infirmary, and divers Places for diseased Persons.

Bevis Bond, King of Heraults, the Study.

Margaret, Queen, second Wife to Edw. I. began the Choir of their Church in the Year 1306; to the Building whereof, in her Life-Time, she gave 2000 Marks, and 100 Marks by her Testament.

John Britaine, Earl of Richmond, built the Body of the Church, to the Charges of 300 l. and gave many rich Jewels and Ornaments to be used in the same.

Mary, Countess of Pembroke, 70 l.

Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Glocester, bestowed 20 great Beams out of his Forest of Tunbridge, and 20 l. Sterling.

Lady Helianor le Spencer, Lady Elizabeth de Brugh, Sister to Gilbert de Clare, gave Sums of Money; and so did divers Citizens, as Arnold de Tolinea, 100 l.

Robert Baron Lisle, who became a Friar there, 300 l.

Bartholomew de Almaine, 50 l.

ALSO Philippe, Queen, Wife to Edward III. gave 62 l.

Isabel, Queen, Mother to Edward III. gave 70 l. And so the Work was done within the Space of 21 Years, 1327.

THIS Church, thus furnished with Windows, made at the Charge of divers Persons, the Lady Margaret Segrave, Countess of Norfolk, bore the Charges of making the Stalls in the Choir, to the Value of 350 Marks, about the Year 1380. Richard Whittington, in the Year 1429, founded the Library, which was in Length 129 Feet, and in Breadth 31, all ceiled with Wainscot; having 28 Desks, and eight double Settles of Wainscot. Which (in the next Year following,) was altogether finished in building; and within three Years after furnished with Books, to the Charges of 556 l. 10 s. whereof Richard Whittington bore 400 l. the rest was born by Dr. Thomas Winchelsey, a Fryar there. And for the writing out of D. Nicolas de Lira his Works, in two Volumes, to be chained there, 100 Marks, &c.

THE Ceiling of the Choir, at divers Mens

Expence, 200 Marks, and the Painting 50 Marks. Their Conduit-Head and Water-Course was given them by William Taylor, Taylor to Hen. III. &c.

THIS whole Church contained in Length three hundred Feet, in Breadth eighty nine Feet, and in Height from the Ground to the Roof, sixty four Feet and two Inches, &c. It was consecrated 1325, and at the general Suppression, was valued at 32 l. 19 s. surrendered the 12th of November, 1538, the 30th of Hen. VIII. the Ornament and Goods being taken to the King's Use. The Church was shut up for a Time, and used as a Store-House of Goods, taken as Prizes from the French. But in the Year 1546, on the 3d of January, it was again set open. On which Day preached at St. Paul's-Cross, the Bishop of Rocheſter; where he declared the King's Gift thereof to the City, for the relieving of the Poor.

WHICH Gift was by Patent of St. Bartholomew's Spittal in Smithfield, valued at 305 l. 6 s. and 7 d. and surrendered to the King, of the said Church of the Grey-fryars, and of two Parish-Churches; the one of St. Nicholas in the Shambles, and the other of St. Ewin's in Newgate-market; which were to be made one Parish-Church in the said Fryars Church. And in Lands, he gave for the Maintenance of the said Church, with Divine Service, Reparations, &c. 500 Marks by Year for ever.

THE 13th of January, the 38th of Hen. VIII. an Agreement was made betwixt the King and the Mayor, and Commonalty of LONDON, dated the 27th of December. By which the said Grey-fryars Church, with all the Edifices and Ground, the Frairy, the Library, the Dorter, and Chapter-House, the great Cloister and lesser: Tenements, Gardens, and vacant Grounds; Lead, Stone, Iron, &c. the Hospital of St. Bartholomew in West-Smithfield, the Church of the same; the Lead, Bells, and Ornaments of the same Hospital, with all the Messuages, Tenements and Appurtenances; the Parishes of St. Nicholas and of St. Ewin, and so much of St. Sepulchre's Parish as is within the Gate, called Newgate, were made one Parish-Church in the Grey-fryars Church, and called Christ's Church, founded by King Henry VIII.

THE Vicar of Christ's Church was to have 26 l. 13 s. 4 d. the Year. The Vicar of St. Bartholomew 13 l. 6 s. 8 d. The Visitor of Newgate, being a Priest, 10 l. And other five Priests in Christ's Church, ministering the Sacraments and Sacramentals, the five Priests to have 8 l. a-piece. Two Clerks, 6 l. each. A Sexton, 4 l. Moreover, he gave to them the Hospital of Bethlem, with the Laver of Brass in the Cloister, by Estimation 18 Feet in Length; and the Water-Course of Lead, to the Fryar-House belonging, containing by Estimation in Length, 18 Acres.

IN this Grey-fryars there was a stinking Dungeon, of what Antiquity is uncertain: But in Queen Mary's Time, they put in here such as were Vagabonds and idle Persons. The Porter of this Dungeon was one Ninian. Here Thomas Green, Servant to John Wayland the Printer, was brought; and after some Time whipped grievously, having the Correction of Thieves and Vagabonds, for a Book called Antichrist, that he had assisted at the Printing of.

IN the Year 1552, began the preparing of the Grey-fryars House for the poor fatherless Children; and in November they were taken in to the Number of almost 400, as has been already mentioned, with other Matters relating to this Hospital, in Book I. Chap. XIV.

Dr. Ridley, then Bishop of LONDON, came and preached before the King's Majesty at Westminster. In which Sermon, he made a fruitful and godly Exhortation to the Rich, to be merciful unto the Poor; and also to move such as were in Authority, to travel by some charitable Way and Means to comfort and relieve them. Whereupon, the King's Majesty, (being a Prince of such Towardness and Virtue for his Years, as England before never brought forth; and being also so well retained and brought up in all godly Knowledge, as well by his dear Uncle the Protector, as also by his virtuous Schoolmasters) was so careful of the good Government of the Realm, and chiefly to do and prefer such Things as most especially touched the Honour of Almighty God; and understanding, that a great Number of poor People did swarm in this Realm, and chiefly in the City of LONDON, and that no good Order was taken for them; did suddenly, and of himself, send to the said Bishop, as soon as his Sermon was ended, willing him not to depart, until that he had spoken with him. And this was the very Report of the said Bishop Ridley; who (according to the King's Command) gave his Attendance. And as soon as the King's Majesty was at Leisure, he called for him, and caused him to come to him in a great Gallery at Westminster, where (to his Knowledge, and the King likewise told him so) there was present no more Persons than they two; and therefore made him sit down in one Chair, and he himself in another, which (as it seemed) were, before the coming of the Bishop, there purposely set; and forced the Bishop, against his Will, to be covered, and then entered into Conversation with him in this Manner:

FIRST giving him hearty Thanks for his Sermon and good Exhortation; he therein rehearsed such special Things as he had noted, and that so many, that the Bishop said:

Truly, truly, (for that commonly was his Oath) I could never have thought that Excellency to have been in his Grace, but that I beheld and heard it in him.

At last the King's Majesty much commended him for his Exhortation for the Relief of the Poor.

But, my Lord (quoth he) you willed such as are in Authority to be careful thereof, and to devise some good Order for their Relief. Wherein, I think you mean me, for I am in the highest Place; and therefore am the first that must make Answer unto God for my Negligence, if I should not be careful therein; knowing it to be the express Commandment of Almighty God, to have Compassion of his poor and needy Members, for whom we must make an Account unto him. And truly, my Lord, I am (before all Things else) most willing to travel that Way; and I doubting nothing of your long and approved Wisdom and Learning, who having such good Zeal, as wisheth Help unto them; but also that you have had some Conference with others, what Ways are best to be taken therein, the which I am desirous to understand; and therefore I pray you to say your Mind.

THE Bishop thinking least of that Matter, and being amazed to hear the Wisdom and earnest Zeal of the King, was (as he said himself) so astonished, that he could not tell what to say: But after some Pause, said, That he thought (at this present) for some Enterance to be had, it were good to practise with the City of LONDON; because the Number of the Poor there are very great, and the Citizens also are many and wise, and he doubted not, but that they were also both pitiful and merciful;

VOL. I.

as the Mayor and his Brethren, and other the Worshipful of the said City. And that if it would please the King's Majesty to direct his gracious Letters to the Mayor of LONDON, willing him to call in such as Assistants as he should think meet, to consult of this Matter, for some Order to be taken therein; he doubted not but Good would follow thereon. And he himself promised the King to be one himself, that should earnestly travel therein.

THE King, forthwith, not only granted his Letter, but made the Bishop tarry 'till the same was written, and his Hand and Signet set thereto; and commanded the Bishop, not only to deliver the said Letter himself, but also to signify to the Mayor, that it was the King's especial Request, and express Commandment, that the Mayor should therein travel; and so soon as he might conveniently, give him Knowledge, how far he had proceeded therein. The Bishop was so joyful of the having of this Letter, and that now he had an Occasion to travel in so good a Matter, wherein he was marvellous zealous, that nothing could have more pleased and delighted him. Wherefore the same Night he came to the Mayor of LONDON, who was then Sir Richard Dobbs, Knt. and delivered the King's Letter; and shewed his Message with Effect.

The Lord Mayor not only joyfully received this Letter, but with all Speed agreed to set forward the Matter, for he also favoured it very much; and the next Day, being Monday, he desired the Bishop of LONDON, to dine with him; and against that Time the Mayor promised to send for such Men as he thought fittest to talk of this Matter, and so he did. He sent first for two Aldermen and six Commoners, and afterwards more were appointed, to the Number of 24. In the End, after sundry Meetings, (for by the Means and good Diligence of the Bishop, it was well followed) they agreed upon a Book they had devised, wherein, first, they considered on nine special Kinds and Sorts of poor People, and those they brought into these three Degrees:

Three Degrees of Poor,

1. The Poor by Impotency.
2. Poor by Casualty.
3. Thriftless Poor.

I. The Poor by Impotency, are also divided into three Kinds; that is to say;

1. The fatherless poor Man's Child.
2. The Aged, Blind, and Lame.
3. The diseased Person by Leprosy, Dropsy, &c.

II. The Poor by Casualty, are likewise of three Kinds; that is to say;

1. The wounded Soldier.
2. The decayed Householder.
3. The visited with any grievous Disease.

III. The Thriftless Poor are three Kinds, in like Manner; that is to say;

1. The Rioter, that consumeth all.
2. The Vagabond; that will abide in no Place.
3. The idle Person, as Strumpets, and others.

FOR these Sorts of Poor, three several Houses were provided: First, for the Innocent and Fatherless, which is the Beggar's Child, and is, indeed, the Seed and Breeder of Beggary; they provided provided the House that was the late Grey-fryars in LONDON; and called it by the Name of Christ's Hospital; where poor Children are trained up in the Knowledge of GOD, and some virtuous Exercises, to the Overthrow of Beggary.

FOR the second Degree, was provided the Hospitals of St. Thomas in Southwark, and St. Bartholomew in West-smithfield. Where are continually, at least, 200 diseased Persons; which are not only there lodged and cured, but also fed and nourished.

FOR the third Degree, they provided Bridewell, where the Vagabond and idle Strumpet is chastised, and compelled to Labour, to the Overthrow of the vicious Life and Idleness.

THEY provided also for the honest decayed Householder, that he should be relieved at Home, at his own House, and in the Parish where he dwelt, by a weekly Relief and Pension. And in like Manner they provided for the Lazer, to keep him out of the City, from clapping of Dishes and ringing of Bells, to the great Trouble of Citizens, and also to the dangerous Infection of many; that they should be relieved at Home, at their Houses, by several Pensions.

NOW, after this good Order taken, and the Citizens, (by such Means as were devised) willing to further the same, the Report thereof was made to the King's Majesty; and his Grace (for the Advancement thereof) was not only willing to grant such as should be Overseers and Governors of the said Houses, a Corporation, and Authority for the Government of them; but also required that he might be accounted as the chief Founder and Patron thereof.

AND for the Furtherance of the said Work, and continual Maintenance of the same, he, of his meer Mercy and Goodness granted, that whereas before, certain Lands were given to the maintaining of the House at the Savoy, founded by King Henry VII. for the Lodging of Pilgrims and Strangers; and that the same was now made but a Lodging for Loiterers, Vagabonds, and Strumpets, that lay all Day in the Fields, and at Night were harboured there; the which was rather a Maintenance of Beggary, than any Relief to the Poor, gave the same Lands, being first surrendered by the Master and Fellows there, (which Lands were of the yearly Value of 600 l.) unto the City of LONDON, for the Maintenance of the Foundation aforesaid.

AND for a further Relief, a Petition being made to the King's Majesty, for a Licence to take in Mortmain, or otherwise, without Licence, Lands to a certain yearly Value; and a Space left in the Patent, for his Grace to put in what Sum it would please him. He looking on the void Place, called for Pen and Ink, and with his own Hand wrote this Sum, 4000 Marks by the Year; and then said, in the hearing of his Council, Lord, I yield thee most hearty Thanks, that thou hast given me Life thus long, to finish this Work to the Glory of thy Name. After which Foundation established, he lived not above two Days: Whose Life would have been wished equal to the Patriarchs, if it had pleased GOD so to have prolonged it.

BY Example of the charitable Act of this virtuous young King, Sir William Chester, Kt. and Alderman of LONDON, and John Calthrop, Citizen and Draper of the same City, at their own proper Costs and Charges, made the Brick Walls, and Way on the Back-Side, which leads from the said new Hospital to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew; and also covered and vaulted the Town-ditch, from Aldersgate to Newgate, which before was very noisome and contagious to the said Hospital.
